BELOCHUS, or Belotius the Firſt of the Name, King of Aſſyria, ſucceeded Armamitres in the year of the World 2214. and Reigned 35 years, till 2249. when Baleus ſucceeded him. Belochus II. Reigned 25 years after Amintes, from the year 2566 of the World, to 2591. Others mention one Belochus King of the Aſſyrians, whom they confound with Phul, who Reign'd in the time of Manahel King of Iſrael, about the year of the World 3265.

BELON, (Peter) Doctor of Phyſick, of the Univerſity of Paris, liv'd in the Sixteenth Century. He was of the Province of Maine, born in a Hamlet called La Sourletiere, near Fouilletourt in the Pariſh of Oiſé. He Travelled a pretty while, and wrote a Book of what he had ſeen in Judea, Egypt, Greece, Arabia, &c. He compoſed alſo Treatiſes of the Nature of Fiſhes, Fowls, &c. Made Commentaries upon Dioſcorides, whom he had Tranſlated into French with Theophraſtus, and Publiſhed other curious Pieces. His Parts got him the Eſteem of King Henry II. and Charles IX. and the Friendſhip of Cardinal Tournon. Several think that the Pieces which got him ſo much Reputation were the Works of Peter Gilles of Albi, whom he had accompanied in his Voyages. It's thought, ſaith Mr. Thuan, ſpeaking about the year 1555. of the Death and Works of the ſame Gilles, That part of them was Subſtracted by Peter Belon of Maine, who writ under him, and who accompanied him ſometime in his Travels; and though he hath got them ſince Printed in his own Name, and not that of Gilles, yet he was thereupon Eſteemed by the Learned, becauſe he did not deprive the Publick of ſuch Excellent Things. Peter Belon was Aſſaſſinated in 1564. Simler, Thuan.

BELT, is the Name which is commonly given to Two Streights of the Sea of Denmark, which are diſtinguiſhed into great and little. The great One of four Hours paſſage is betwixt the Iſles of Funen and Zealand; and the little, otherwiſe named Middlefort, of two Hours paſſage, is betwixt the ſame Iſle of Funen and the Continent of Jutland: But neither of theſe Streights, which are not very deep, ſerve for the paſſage of the great Ships, which, as they enter from the German into the Baltick Sea, Sail through a Third Streight called the Sund, betwixt the Iſle of Zealand, and the Province of Schonen in Swedeland, becauſe this Channel, which is not much more than one League in breadth, is ſtraiter and deeper. The Paſſage of Belt, upon the Ice, by Charles Guſtavus King of Swedeland, with his Army, is one of the boldeſt and moſt Memorable Actions of the Wars in the Seventeenth Age, and there is no ſuch Example in all Antiquity. See Baltick.

BELTINGHAM, a Market Town of Randal Ward in Northumberland, 212 miles from London.

BELTURBET, a Borough Town of Ulſter in the North of Ireland: 'Tis in the County of Cavan, at the Eaſt-end of Lough Erne, about 16 miles South Eaſt of Iniſkilling.

BELTZ, in Latin Belza, a Town of Poland in Black Ruſſia. It is almoſt all built with Wood, in a fertile Soil near the River Bug, and betwixt the Cities of Leopold and Zamoski. It is 32 Miles North of Lemburg, and 120 Eaſt of Cracow.

BELVAIS. See Damieta and Peluſium.

BELVEDERE upon the River Peneus, a City of Greece, belonging to the Turks. It is the Elis of the Ancients, which gave its Name to the whole Province; But it ought to be obſerv'd, that under the Name of Belvedere, not only Elis is comprehended, but alſo the Country of the Meſſenians. See Meſſena.

BELVOIR Caſtle, a Noble Seat in Lincolnſhire, belonging to the Earl of Rutland; It has a moſt delightful and large Proſpect: The Stone called Aſtroites, which has Beams like a Star, and is look'd upon as an Infallible Token of Victory to him that wore it, is found near this place.

BELUS, a King of Orkney, who Landing in the North of Scotland with an Army in the Reign of King Evenus II. was defeated, and all his Men kill'd and drown'd as crowding into their Ships, and he deſpairing of Quarter, kill'd himſelf. Buchanan.

BELUS, a River of Phœnicia in Syria, takes its ſource from the Lake Cendevia, at two Furlongs from the City Acre. It is ſmall, but deep, and it paſſeth through a Valley of about 180 Paces in Circuit; where Pliny ſaith, That Glaſs was at firſt found. A prodigious quantity of Sand is gathered there, which is turned into Glaſs, and that which adds to the Wonder is, That the Sand which the Place had rendered Tranſparent, looſeth the quality if it be carried hence. This Sand is no wiſe exhauſted, though Tranſported in great quantity, and many Ships loaden with it, for the Winds carry it down continually from the tops of the Neighbouring Mountains, and do ſoon fill the place. This admirable Valley changeth not only the Sand into Glaſs, but even the Metals which are left in it for a time. Euſebius. Nieremb. De Mirab. Terræ Prom.

BEMARIN, a Province of the Northern America in Florida. It belongs to the King of the Apalechites, and is ſituated at the foot of the Mountains: The City Melitot is the Capital of the Country.

BEMBO, (Peter) Cardinal, a Gentleman of Venice, Son to Bernard Bembo and Helena Marcella, was born in 1470. His Family hath produced Eminent Men, who have all render'd great Services to the Republick. He is Renowned for his Poetry, and the Elegancy of his Style. Leo X. made him his Secretary, and Paul III. Created him Cardinal in 1539. and Biſhop of Eugubio, and then of Bergamo. He died in 1547. in the 68th Year of his Age, of a hurt on his ſide, which he got by his Horſe's juſtling him againſt a Wall. John de la Caſa hath written this Cardinal's Life, where he giveth an exact Account of his Italian and Latin Works. Amongſt the latter there are Sixteen Books of Letters written for Leo X. in the time he was his Secretary; Six Books of Familiar Epiſtles; a Dialogue, which contains the Life of Guy Ubaldo of Montefeltro, Duke of Urbain; Divers Speeches; The Hiſtory of Venice in Twelve Books, &c. Theſe Works, eſpecially the laſt, are written in pure Latin. Thuan. Spond. Boſio.

BEMYSTER, a Market Town in Dorſetſhire, Head of its Hundred, 111 Miles from London.

BENA, a Kingdom in Nigritia of Africk, whoſe People are called Souſos. It is ſituated on the South of the Kingdom of Mandinga, and on the Eaſt of that of Melli. The Capital City hath given this Name to the Country, which is full of Mountains, where there are Mines of finer Iron than in Europe. Here are Serpents as thick as a Man's Thigh, ſpotted with very lively Colours. The King keeps commonly one of theſe Serpents in his Arms, and cheriſheth it as we do little Dogs: Wherefore he is called the King of Serpents. Theſe People are Idolaters, and believe that the Dead will find in the other World what is Interr'd with them in their Grave: Whence came their Cuſtom of putting into the ſame great Sums of Gold and Silver, chiefly in the Sepulchres of Kings and great Lords, which are hidden in retired Places, or in ſome deep place of a River, whoſe Waters are Sluced another way, whilſt they are digging the Grave, but afterwards are made to run in their ordinary Bed. Dapper Deſcription de l'Afrique.

BENACUS, an ancient Name of one of the greateſt Lakes of Italy, in the State of Venice, called now Lac de la Garde, according to Leander. This Author obſerveth, That there hath been of old in thoſe Places a Town called Benacus, from which the Lake hath its Name, and is ſpoken of in an ancient Inſcription of the Orthography of Aldus. This Lake is in the Territory of Verona, betwixt high Mountains, where the Winds meeting violently together, do raiſe Waves in it as at Sea. Its length from Weſt to Eaſt is of 30 Miles, and about ten in breadth. It is Famous for its excellent Fiſhes, eſpecially for a kind of a Carp which is not found elſewhere. This Lake empties it ſelf by the River Mincio, into that of Mantua, and thence into the Po.

BENARES, a City of Indoſtan, or Empire of the Great Mogul, ſituated upon the Ganges, in a very fair Country. It's where the General School of the Gentiliſm of the Indies is kept, and where the Bramans and Pendets, or Doctors of Paganiſm are brought up. They have no Colleges nor Schools, as in Europe: But the Maſters are diſperſed over the City in Houſes with Gardens; of theſe Maſters ſome have four or five Diſciples, others eight or ten, and ſome fifteen or twenty, who Study during 10 or 12 Years. This Study is long, becauſe the Indians are of a ſlow and ſloathful Humour, and are ſeldom animated to Work by Emulation or Rewards. Their firſt Occupation is to Learn the Hanſcrit, which is an ancient Language, quite different from the common Indian, and which is not underſtood but by the Pendets and Learned. It is of this Tongue that Father Kirker hath given an Alphabet. It is called Hanſcrit; that is a Pure, Holy, or Divine Tongue, becauſe they hold that it was in this Tongue that God gave the Beths or Sacred Books to Brama their Prophet. As ſoon as they have Learned the Hanſcrit, they betake themſelves to Read the Purane, which is an Abridgment of the Beths, or Books of the Law. Then they apply themſelves for a time to Philoſophy. Amongſt their Philoſophers, there are Six very Famous, who make Six different Sects. Some ſpeak of the firſt Principles of Things, much like to Democritus and Epicurus. Others have Opinions not much differing from thoſe of Ariſtotle and his Interpreters. Some of them have Tenets which have a Relation to the Doctrine of Plato; but all this is ſo confuſed, that the Pendets do not very well underſtand their firſt Doctors, nor do they make themſelves more Intelligible to their Diſciples. They have a great many Books of Phyſick, which are rather Collections of Remedies than Phyſical Diſcourſes. As for Anatomy, they know nothing of it; becauſe they dare not open the Body of Men nor Animals. They are much given to Aſtrology; but they have no great light in this Science; and they invent Fables to expound the Eclipſes of the Sun and Moon. They ſay, That one Deuta, a God, or Genius, Enemy to the Sun, ſeizeth this Planet, infects and darkneth it ſometimes; and that another Deuta, named Rah, Enemy to the Moon, doth it the ſame Injury. They make three ſorts of Deuta's; one ſay they are Good, the other Evil, and the other neither Good nor Evil. As to Geography, they imagine that the Earth is Flat and Triangular, and that all this Maſs is upheld by the Heads of ſeveral Elephants, who cauſe Earthquakes when they move. Within theſe few Years there hath appeared in Indoſtan a Famous Cabal of theſe Pendets of Benares, which make much noiſe, becauſe they have gain'd Dara-Chan, and Sultan-Sujah, Son to Cha-Gehan, the Great Mogul. The Pendets of this Cabal hold the Doctrine of theſe ancient Philoſophers, who admitted of an Univerſal Spirit, and a Soul ſpread through all the World, of which all the Souls of Men and Beaſts were Portions. It is this ſame Doctrine which makes the Cabal of the Souſys, and moſt of the Learned in Perſih. Bernier Hiſtoire du Grand Mogul.

BENAVIDIUS, (Mark) or Marcus Mantua Benavidius, a Famous Lawyer of Padua, Son to John Petre Benavidio, a Phyſician. He ſtudied Humanity with much application, and then the Civil and Canon Law, which he Taught during Sixty years. His fineſt Treatiſes, are, *Collectanea ſuper jus Cæſareum. Apophthegmata legalia. Conciliorum, To.*11. Problematum legalium, Lib. 4. Topica. Encomium Sacerdotis. Obſer*vationum Legalium, Lib.* 10. *Polymathiæ, Lib.*12. *De illuſtribus Juris Conſultis. Locorum Communium, Lib.*3. Equilibrium, pro jure Candidandis. De Privilegiis Militaribus. De Pupillorum favoribus, &c. He was thrice Knighted, in 1245. by the Emperor Charles V. In 1561. by Ferdinand I. And in 1564. by Pope Pius IV. He died the 28th of March, 1582. in the 93d of his Age. Thomaſini in illuſt Viror. Elog.

BENCIIS, (Hugo) of Sienna, in Italy, Living in the 15th Century: Trithemius ſpeaks honourably of him. He wrote Notes upon Avicenna, upon Hippocrates's Aphoriſm's; upon Galen, &c. Trithem. De Script. Eccl.

BENCIO, (Francis) an Italian Jeſuit, born at Aqua-pendente: He wrote ſeveral ingenious Tracts both in Proſe and Verſe, as Annuæ Literæ de Rebus Societatii, in four Parts. A Poem, called, Quinque Martyres de Societate Jeſu in India, &c. Several Great Men have ſpoken very much to the advantage of Bencio; as Bozius, Strada, &c. but I ſhall only report the Teſtimony of Cardinal Baronius, to this purpoſe; Franciſcus Bencius, ſays he, Vir maximè Pius, & inſignitèr Eruditus, qui & Muſas reddit Chriſtianas, & ſuaviore concentu, canoras. He died at Rome in the Year 1594. Alegamb. Bibl. Script. S. J. Janus Nicius Erythræus. Pinac. 2. Imag. Illuſt, C.50. &c.

BENDA, an ancient City of Macedonia, which had a Biſhoprick depending upon Durazzo. This City is now Ruined, but the Country adjacent to its Ruines in Albany, retains unto this Day the Name of Benda, and is under the Turks.

BENDERMASSEN, or Bendermaſſin, a City of the Indies in the Northern part of the Iſle of Borneo. It is upon the Mouth of the River Saccadano, over-againſt the Iſle of Java, and hath its particular King.

BENDIS, is the Name which the Thracians gave to Diana, underſtanding by this Word the Earth or the Moon. The Feaſts which theſe People kept in Honour of this Goddeſs, were like the Bacchanalia: They were celebrated at Athens in the Pireum, the 20th of the Month called Thargelion, a little before the Panathenaica. Proclus.

BENDOCDAR, Sultan of Babylon, and a great Perſecutor of the Chriſtians. He aſcended the Throne by the help of his Friends; whence he had expelled the Lawful Sovereign. He beſieged Acre with 30000 Men, about the Year 1263. Ravaged Armenia, and died at Damaſcus the 15th of April, 1277. coming to Fight the Tartars. 'Tis thought that he was Poiſoned. Sanut.

BENE, a ſmall Town of Italy in Piedmont, near Tenaro, which formerly had the Title of a County. In the laſt Age the Earl of Bene ſided with the French, and the Earl of Trinity his Brother, with the Spaniards. In 1553. the latter perſuaded Ferdinand de Gonzaga to lay Siege to Bene, which he did; but Montluc, at the perſuaſion of Birague, putting himſelf into it with ſome others, they obliged them to raiſe the Siege. The Fortifications have been demoliſh'd ſince.

St. BENEDICT, a Patriarch of a Famous Order, called Benedictins by his Name, was the firſt who brought Monaſtical Life to be eſteemed in the Weſt. He was Born at Nurſi, a Town of Italy, about 480. This Order, as it is the moſt Ancient, is alſo the moſt Famous of the Roman Church. St. Benedict died at Mount Caſſin, where he had Inſtituted his Order, March 543. Oden Abbot of Cluni, begun to Reform the Benedictins about the Year 940. and died in 944. Thence came the Congregation of Cluni. That of St. Juſtina of Padua, and Mont-Caſſin, was eſtabliſhed in Italy in 1408. and renewed in 1504. That of St. Maurus in France was begun in 1621. and hath been fruitful in Great Men. Moreover, the Order of St. Benedict hath been the Source of ſeveral others, who follow the Rule of the firſt Founder, and have made new Branches of Monks in the Church of Rome. The moſt conſiderable are the Orders of the Camaldoli of Valombre, of the Carthuſians, of Citeaux, of Grammont, the Celeſtins, the Humiliati, the Sylveſtrians, the Olivators, and ſome others, of which in their proper Place. St. Gregoire, Tritheme, Baronius, le Mire.

BENEDICTUS Tlumaſenſis, a Proteſtant Miniſter of Moravia, who being Burn'd for his Religion about 1460. People were ſo much griev'd at it, that they came in great numbers for Eight Miles round to viſit the Place, and gather ſome of his Bones.

BENEFICE. The Word Benefice is a Term uſed in times paſt to ſignifie the Funds given to Soldiers for a Reward of their Services; and theſe Soldiers were called Milites Beneficiarii. It may be ſeen in the Books which Treat of Fiefs. This Name afterwards paſſed unto Eccleſiaſticks, to whom the like Funds were given for their Subſiſtence, and they have alſo been called Beneficiaries, becauſe in effect they enjoy ſuch Benefices. Their true Original appears not to have been before the Twelfth Age, when the Revenues of the Church were divided; whence came the new Law upon this Matter, the Cognizance whereof the Popes retained unto themſelves. Though this be true in general, there are ſome Veſtigies of Benefices to be found from the Year 500. under Pope Symmachus, but it was not common. At that time, a Clerk, who had ſerved the Church well, had a Field given him for an Eſtate, from which he drew his Subſiſtence; which then was very rare, becauſe the Eccleſiaſticks lived on the Liberalities that were given them, and were divided amongſt them every Month, as it appears by the Canons of ſome Councils. The Oblation was made after the Goſpel till the Twelfth Age; and it is what is yet called Offertory at the Maſs. This Oblation was laid aſide when the Fryars called Mendicants, were introduced into the Church; for then the People left off making their Offering. When this Offering was preſented a whole Pſalm was Sung, whence the Word Offertory in the Maſs proceeded. There are moreover found in one of the Canons of the firſt Council of Orange, ſome Veſtigies of the Foundation of Benefices, and of the Right of Patronages, as well Eccleſiaſtick as Laick. See thereupon the Letter of Pope Symmachus, and the firſt Tome of the Councils of France. By Sirmund.

BENEFICES (Conſiſtorial) Great Benefices, as Biſhopricks, and other Prelatures, ſo called in the Roman Church, becauſe the Pope gives the ſame, after Deliberation in the Conſiſtory of the Cardinals. This Name is given in France to the Dignities of which the King hath the Nomination, according to the Concordat made between Pope Leo X. and Francis I. However, this Concordat was no more than a Revival of the Right that the Kings of France have been poſſeſſed of from the beginning of the Monarchy. This Right of Nomination belongs to the King of France, in the Quality of King, becauſe the chuſing of Prelates is an important thing for the Preſervation of the State, and that he is the firſt Patron and Protector of the Churches of his Kingdom; and other Kings and Sovereign Princes enjoy the like Right. See Pithæus of the Liberties of the Gallican Church.

BENET the Firſt of that Name, Pope, to whom Evagrius and others give the Sirname of Bonoſus, was a Roman born, and choſen after John III. in 573. In his time the City of Rome was afflicted with Famine, and by the Incurſions of the Lombards; Benet appeared in theſe Occaſions as a true Father of the Poor. There is an Epiſtle under his Name, written to David a Biſhop in Spain, upon the Belief which we ought to have of the moſt Bleſſed Trinity. He died the 30th of July, 577. after he had held the See four Years, four Months, and Twenty eight Days, or two Months and five Days, according to others. Baron. du Cheſne.

BENET the Second, Succeeded on the 20th of Auguſt, 684. to Leo II. He was a Native of Rome. Two Epiſtles are aſcribed to him, the one to Peter Notary, and the other to the King of the Wiſigoths, but ſeems rather to be of his Predeceſſor's Writing. He died eight Months and ſeventeen Days after his Election; viz. the 7th or 8th of May, 685. The Emperor Conſtantine had ſo great an Opinion of this Man's Sanctity, that he ſent him a Decree, importing, That for the time to come, he whom the People and Clergy of Rome choſe their Pope, ſhould be forthwith acknowledg'd as Chriſt's true Vicar, without expecting the Confirmation of the Emperor's Exarch, which was before that neceſſary to his Creation. In his time an extraordinary Comet appear'd, and Mount Veſuvius firſt broke out into Flames, which Pliny, having left the Ships that he Commanded for Trajan, to enquire into the Cauſe, approaching too near, loſt his Life. Platina.

BENET the Third, a Roman, was choſen the 21ſt of July, 856. after the Death of Leo IV. He died the 17th of February, 858. after having Governed the Church of Rome two Years, ſix Months, and ten Days. There are two Epiſtles of his, one to Hincmar, Archbiſhop of Reims, and the other to the Biſhops of the Kingdom of Charles the Bald, againſt Hubertus a Sub-Deacon, accuſed of great Crimes. Almoſt all the other Epiſtles of this Pope are loſt. Authors that mention him, give him a very good Character. Baronius, du Cheſne.

BENET the Fourth, a Roman, held the See after John IX. Hiſtorians ſay of him, That in a depraved Age he governed the Church with great Probity, and had a very particular Care of the Poor. He held the Pontificate but ſome Months of the Year 905, and 906. Du Cheſne, Papire Maſſon.

BENET the Fifth, was Pope after John XII. when the Church of Rome was divided by the Schiſm of Leo, called the VIII. created Pope by the Emperor Otho, who having taken the City of Rome by Famine, the 23d of June, 964. cauſed Benet to be Conducted to Hamburg in Germany; where he died the 10th of June, 965. about 13 or 14 Months after his Election. Baronius.

BENET the Sixth, a Roman, Son to Hildebrand, was Pope during one Year and three Months, after Donus or Domnio II. He was choſen the 20th of December, An. 972. Boniface, Sirnamed Franco, Cardinal Deacon, put him in Priſon, and got him Strangled by means of Cintius, a Potent Man. This was in 974. After that, the ſame Boniface aſcended the Chair. Onuphr.

BENET the Seventh, paſſed from the Biſhoprick of Sutri in Tuſcany, to the Throne of the Roman Pontiffs, where he lived from the Year 975. unto 984. Platina and Ciaconius, tell you how the Infamous Boniface, who had Strangled Benet IV. was ignominiouſly Baniſhed from Rome. Benet VII. was received there with great Demonſtrations of Joy: He prudently Governed his Church in very difficult Times, and died the 10th of July, 984. John XIV. was put in his Room: And Boniface had yet ſo ſtrong a Party as to throw this new Pontif into Priſon. Baronius, u Cheſne.

BENET the Eighth, Deſcended of the Family of the Earls of Tuſculum, was Biſhop of Porto, when he was choſen after Sergius IV. the 7th of June, 1012. The Tyranny of Anti-Pope Gregory obliged him to retire into Germany, to beg the Succour of Henry II. called, The Holy and The Lame, who re-eſtabliſhed him upon the See; and the Pope for a Recompence Crown'd him. He defeated the Saracens, who in his time had made themſelves Maſters of part of Italy, and likewiſe fought the Greeks, who Ravaged Apulia. Afterwards the Emperor entreated him to paſs into Germany, where he Conſecrated the Church of St. Stephen of Bamberg, in the Year 1014. Benet VIII. died at Rome the 20th of February, 1204. having Govern'd his Church about 12 years. He writ ſeveral Epiſtles which are all unknown to us, except that which he writ in favour of the Monaſtery of Mont-Caſſin. Du Cheſne.

BENET the Ninth, called firſt Theophylactus, was Son to Alberius, Earl of Freſcati, ſucceeded his Uncle Pope John XX. Brother to Benet VIII. though he was but a Child. His Youth and Ignorance made him commit horrible Vices, which cauſed him to be Baniſh'd in 1043. In his place ſucceeded John Biſhop of Sabina, who took the Name of Sylveſter III. but was Depoſed by the Faction of the Earls of Freſcati, and Benet IX. ſet up again; who continuing his ſcandalous Debaucheries, reſigned the Pontificate to John Arch-Prieſt of the Church of Rome, according to the Relation of John of Oſtia. He returned notwithſtanding afterwards, and ſcandalouſly aſcended five or ſix times conſecutively the Pontifical Throne under Gregory VI. after Clement II. in 1047. and in 1048. after Damaſus II. living ſtill in his Debaucheries and Impieties. He died in 1054. Platina ſays, That after his Death he appeared in a very monſtrous Shape; and being ask'd why, did anſwer, That it was becauſe he liv'd without Law or Reaſon. Genebrard. Tritheme.

BENET the Tenth, Anti-Pope, was Biſhop of Velitri, named John Mincius, Son to Guy Mincius of the Noble Family of the Earls of Tuſculum. Leo IX. Created him Cardinal, and gave him the Biſhoprick of Velitri. Afterwards he roſe againſt Nicholas II. in 1059. and begged Pardon of the ſame Pontiff, who permitted him to live in the Church of St. Mary Major, without Power of exerciſing any Function of Prieſthood. They ſay he died ſoon after out of Grief, the Second of April of the ſame Year, 1052. Du Cheſne, Baronius.

BENET the Eleventh, His Name before his Election was Bocaſini, he being Son to a Shepherd, or according to others, of a Recorder of Marca Treviſiana, where he was born in 1240. Pope Boniface VIII. Created him Cardinal in 1294. gave him the Biſhoprick of Oſtia, and employed him in divers important Affairs. After the Death of this Pope, Nicholas Bocaſini mounted the Pontifical See the 22d of October, 1303. At the beginning of his Pontificate, he iſſued three Bulls which annulled all thoſe of the ſame Boniface againſt K. Philip the Fair, of France, and revoked the Condemnation againſt the two Cardinals of Columna, whom Boniface perſecuted for being of the Guelphian Faction, and would fain have oppoſed the Tartars in the Conqueſt of Syria; but in the midſt of theſe great Deſigns he was Poiſoned eight Months after his Election, at Perugia. This was on the 6th or 7th of July, 1304. It is obſerved, that he refuſed to ſee his Mother who came to ſee him in Magnificent Cloaths, and that he receiv'd her with Joy before all his Court, when ſhe was in her old Rags. Bzovius and Spondanus do remark all theſe Particularities. This Pope compoſed ſeveral Works, Commentaries upon Job; upon almoſt the whole Pſalter; upon the Apocalypſe; and upon St. Matthew; Part of the latter hath been Printed. He writ moreover, De Ritibus. Sermones in diebus ſolemnibus, &c. Papire Maſſon, Spondanus.

BENET the Twelfth, of the Order of the Ciſtercians, named Father James Fournier or du Four, and by Alluſion to his Cloathing, The White Cardinal. He was Son to a Miller named William, and Native of Saverdun in the Country of Foix upon Ariege. He was made Cardinal in 1327. and laſtly, Pope, after John XXII. the 20th of December, 1334. at Avignon, where he was Crown'd the 5th of January following. He Confirmed the Cenſures of his Predeceſſor againſt Lewis of Bavaria, and Excommunicated the Fraticelli, againſt whom he had written formerly. His Care in Conferring Benefices was admired, and his denial of ſeeing his Relations. He ſtrove alſo to Reform the Monks; Writ a Treatiſe of the State of Souls after Death; and he kindly received the Cities of Italy, who quitted the Party of his Enemies. He died at Avignon the 25th of April, 1342. after having held the See ſeven Years, four Months, and ſix Days. Beſides the two Works, whereof I have already ſpoken, Benet XII. compoſed Commentaries upon the Pſalms, De Statu Canonicorum. Decretale Religioſorum. Conſtitutio de Reformatione Benedictinorum. The Life of John Gualbert, Founder of the Monks of Val-Ombre, &c. He often Mediated a Peace between Philip of France and Edward of England, but in vain, the latter refuſing to liſten to his Propoſitions, becauſe always Victorious. Ciaconius, Rainaldi.

BENET the Thirteenth, Anti-Pope, called Peter de Luna, was a Spaniard, Born at Caſp, or according to others, at Hueſca in the Kingdom of Aragon, Son to John Martin de Luna, and Mary Perez of Gotar. He was Educated carefully enough, and chiefly in the Study of Civil and Canon Law. His Inclination was for War, and in effect, during the Diſorders of the Kingdom of Caſtile, on the occaſion of the Pretenſions of Peter called the Cruel, and Henry Earl of Triſtemare, he bore Arms in favour of the latter; but having not the Succeſs he expected, he betook himſelf to the Study of the Law, and came to Avignon, whither the Holy See was Transferred. Ciaconius ſaith, He taught the Law in the Univerſity of Montpelier, and that he got much Eſteem there. Peter de Luna had then the Arch-Deaconſhip of Saragoſſa, afterwards the Provoſtſhip of Valencia in Spain; and finally, Pope Gregory XI. Created him Cardinal, with the Title of St. Mary in Coſmedin the 20th of December, 1375. The Pope was ſo perſuaded of the Merit of this new Cardinal, that he conſulted him in the moſt important Affairs, and named him one of the Commiſſaries, who had Orders to Examine a Book of Revelations of St. Bridget. Then after the Death of Gregory XI. in 1378. the Cardinal de Luna was at the Election of Clement VII. and followed him to Avignon, not regarding Urban VI. who was at Rome. Clement ſent him Legate to Spain, and then to France, where he was almoſt always accompanied with St. Vincent Ferrier, ſpeaking continually againſt the Schiſm, deteſting the Diviſion, and proteſting, That if he was in the Room of one of the Popes, there was no Conſideration which ſhould hinder him to work efficaciouſly towards the Reuniting of the Faithful under the ſame Head. In the mean time Clement VII. being Dead, the 16th of September, 1394. the Cardinals of his Obedience entred the Conclave, to the Number of 22. the 26th Day of the ſame Month; and on the 28th following, choſe Peter de Luna, who took the Name of Benet XIII. Before this Election, they made an Act, which they all ſigned, by which they promiſed to renounce the Pontificate, at the requeſt of the Sacred College, to end the Schiſm. Benet ſoon forgot this Promiſe, and nothing could perſuade him to the Peace of the Church: Immediately King Charles VI. the Clergy of France, the Univerſity of Paris, and divers Princes of Europe, propoſed the way of Ceſſion, as being the ſureſt and ſhorteſt Method to eſtabliſh Peace. But he was too ambitious to give his Conſent unto it: He firſt eluded that Propoſition, and promiſed to yield, that he might have time to take contrary Meaſures; and then he openly laughed both at the Demands, and his own Promiſes. He was ſeiz'd at Avignon, but he found means to make his Eſcape in a Diſguiſe in 1402. and retired to Chateau Reinard in the Territory of Provence, where he found ſome Troops for his Guard. In the Council of Piſa, held in 1409. Benet and Gregory XII. were declared Schiſmaticks, Breakers of their Faith, and thereupon fallen from the Right they pretended to the Pontificate. This was done in the Fourteenth Seſſion, held the 5th of June; and the 26th of the ſame Month, the Cardinals entring the Conclave, choſe Alexander V. Benet never yielded, but created new Cardinals, to make the breach greater, becauſe he ſaw himſelf abandoned of moſt of thoſe who had choſen him, and Excommunicated and Depoſed in the Council of Conſtance. He was inſtantly preſſed by all the Potentates and Honeſt Men of Europe, to give Peace to the Church, which he always deſpiſed; at laſt he retired into a ſmall Town in the Kingdom of Valencia, named Paniſcola, and there died in the Month of September, 1424. after having liv'd 30 years in Schiſm, and obliged two Cardinals, who followed him, to chuſe one named Giles of Munion, an Aragonian, Canon of Barcelona, who took upon him the Name of Clement VIII. but ſoon after yielded his pretended Dignity. Froiſſard, Genebrard, Spondanus.

BENET, a Cardinal, lived in the Eleventh Age; Pope Urban II. created him Cardinal, and Paſchal II. ſent him Legate into France, where he aſſembled a Council at Poictiers, and Excommunicated King Philip the Firſt, who had repudiated the Queen, his Spouſe, to Marry Bertrada.

BENET, (Renatus) of Angiers, a Doctor of Paris, Dean of the Faculty, and Curate of St. Euſtache in the ſame City, was very Famous for his Virtue, Science, and Employments. He preached often, and with Succeſs. He was very moderate upon the Subject of Religion, as may be ſeen by a Book ſpoken of in the Univerſal Bibliotheck, T. 11. Here he juſtifies moſt of the Tenets of the Proteſtants: Wherefore the Court of Rome would never grant him his Bulls for the Biſhoprick of Troye in Champagne, to which he was named, by King Henry the Great, who had made him his Confeſſor. Sainte Marthe, Mezeray.

BENET, (Cyprian) a Monk of the Order of St. Dominick, flouriſhed to the Year 1520. He was a Spaniard, born in the Kingdom of Aragon, and, as ſome ſay, Doctor of the Univerſity of Paris. He wrote a Book which got him much Reputation, and made a great deal of Noiſe. This Work comprehends four Treatiſes, which he dedicated to Pope Julius II. and afterwards to Leo X. (Viz.) De Prima Orbis ſede. De Conſilio. De Eccleſiaſtica Poteſtate: Afterwards he publiſhed a Dialogue of the Uſefulneſs and Excellency of Theology. Bellar. De Script. Eccl. Vincentius Blaſcus in Chron. Aragon. Sixtus Senenſis, &c.

BENEVENT, a Town of Italy, in the Kingdom of Naples, with the Title of a Dutchy and Archbiſhoprick. It is ſituated upon the Rivers of Sabato and Calore, in a Fertile Country, where it gives its Name to a Valley. The Popes are Maſters of Benevent, which the Latin Authors name Beneventum; it is thought that Diomedes built this City, and then it was called Maleventum, as we are informed by Plinius and Titus Livius; but the Romans having ſince ſent a Colony thither, this Name was changed into Beneventum, which it bore ever ſince. Benevent, which ſome place in the Country of the Hirpians, and others in that of the Sammites, was one of the 18 Colonies, which ſent the Romans a conſiderable Succour of Men and Money, to be employed againſt Hanibal, who had waſted the Country even to the Walls of Rome. This City was ruined by Totila, about the Year 545. The Lombards repaired it afterwards, and erected it into a Dutchy. Theſe Dukes have been pretty Famous, and amongſt the reſt, Grimoald, Fifth Duke of Benevent, who baniſhed Aripert from the Throne of the Lombards, and eſtabliſhed himſelf in it about the Year 663. The firſt of theſe Dukes was Zothus, whom Autharis, King of the Lombards eſtabliſhed about the Year 598. Aragiſe, Duke of Benevent, was Son-in-Law to Didier, the laſt King of the Lombards, whom Charlemaigne overcame, and reduced to what Terms he would, becauſe he had been in League with Taſſillon, Duke of Bavaria, his Brother-in-Law: This fell out in 787. Grimoald II. Duke of Benevent, ſucceeded his Father Aragiſe, and was Aſſaſſinated in 818. In 1053. Henry III. called the Black Emperor, gave the Dutchy and Principality of Benevent to Pope Leo IX. who was his Kinſman, whom alſo he raiſed to the Pontificate. It was an Exchange for Bamberg, which he was willing to free from a Gift, or Debt, which it paid every Year to the Holy See. The Pope himſelf eſtabliſhed at Benevent, a Duke or Governour, named Rodolphus; he was ſucceeded in 1071. by another named Landulphus; but ſince, this City hath been ſubject to the Roman See. Pope Victor III. celebrated there a Council in the Year 1087. where the Anti-Pope Guibert was Excommunicated with his Adherents, as we are informed by Leo of Oſtia. Urban II. held another there in 1091. againſt the ſame Man. There was one held in 1108. againſt the Inveſtiture of Benefices by Laicks. One in 1113. for ſome Affairs of the Province and of Mont-Caſſin. A Synod in 1567. and another in 1594. where Ordinances were publiſhed. This Town ſuffered much by an Earthquake, in 1688. moſt of the Houſes, and all the Inhabitants, except 600, being utterly deſtroyed. It ſtands on the River Sabato and Tamora, amidſt pleaſant Plains, 26 miles Eaſt of Capua, 27 North of Salerno, 30 North-Eaſt of Naples, and 120 South-Eaſt of Rome.

BENEZET, a young Shepherd, Native of Alvilar in Vivarets: He came by Divine Inſpiration (ſay the Papiſts) to Avignon, and there cauſed a Bridge to be built upon the Rhone in 1177. Thus being but 12 years of Age, he publiſhed the Cauſe of his being ſent; and to confirm the Truth of his Miſſion, did himſelf carry a great Stone which thirty Men could ſcarcely move, and laid it at the Foundation of the firſt Pile of the Bridge. This young Architect built afterwards an Hoſpital, where he inſtituted Religious Men named Les Freres du Pont, amongſt whom he retired himſelf, and died there in 1195. and was interred in a Chapel, which is on the third Arch of this Bridge, on Avignon ſide. This was the cauſe that ſeveral other Bridges were built upon the Rhone, where ſtill the People had very much difficulty to paſs over, becauſe of the violent ſwiftneſs of this River.

BENFELD, or Beinſfelt, Benefeldia, and Benofeldia, a little Town of Germany in Elzas: It is ſituated upon the River Ill, about three Leagues from the City of Straſbourg, on which it depends, and in times paſt it hath been very ſtrong and conſiderable; but now it's not ſo. It ſtands on the River Ill, 13 miles South-Weſt of Straſbourg, and 18 North of Briſac. Long. 27. 18. Lat. 48. 17.

BENGALA, a Kingdom of Aſia in the Indies, belonging to the Grand Mogul, is the Centre of the Commerce of the Indies, extreamly frequented by the Europeans, particularly the Engliſh, French, Portugueſe, Hollanders, &c. who have all the free Exerciſe of their Religion there. It has its Name from the Gulph of Bengala, which is the greateſt and moſt famous of Aſia. This State is commonly divided into 3 Parts; into Prurop, which is on this ſaid the Ganges; into Patan, which is on the other ſide of the ſame River; and Bengala, which is along the Coaſt. They aſſure us, That this Country is about 160 Leagues in length, and a little more in breadth betwixt the Kingdoms of Golconda and Pegu. Bengala is the fertileſt Country in the World, in Sugar, Silks, and Rice, wherewith it furniſheth even the remoteſt Provinces, and alſo with divers ſorts of Fruits, Salt-Petre, Wax, Civet, Lacca, Opium, Long Pepper, &c. Beſides, about 100 Leagues on both ſides of the Ganges, from Raje-Mehale to the Sea, are great Chanels, which have been digged and drawn from the Ganges with infinite Labour, very far in the Country, for the tranſport of Merchandiſes. Theſe Chanels are on both ſides bordered with Villages very well Peopled, and large Fields of Rice, Sugar, and Wheat; of 3 or 4 kinds of Pulſe, of Muſtard, and Seſam-Seed to make Oils, and a great Number of ſmall Mulberry-Trees to breed and nouriſh Silk-worms. Linſchot, Bernier.

BEN-GORION, or Gorionides, is the Name which the Jews give to the Hiſtorian Joſephus, whom they call Joſippus Ben-Gorion; and becauſe they have been ignorant of a long time in the Greek Tongue, they read no other Hiſtory of Joſephus, but that which one of their Rabbins hath written in pretty pure Hebrew, and is an Abridgement of the true Joſephus, tho' mixt with ſeveral fabulous things. It's obſervable, that there are two Editions of this Book, whereof the firſt is of Conſtantinople, in 1510. and the other at Baſle, with the Latin Verſion of Munſter, 1541. but the latter is imperfect: There want ſome Chapters at the beginning of it, and many at the end, and it is maimed in ſeveral places. There is an Abridgment of this Hiſtory of Ben-Gorion, with a Latin Tranſlation of Munſter, and this Abridgment was Printed at Wormes in 1529. See Joſephus.

BENGUELA, a Country of Africk in the Lower Æthiopia, and the Kingdom of Angola, with a City of this Name: It is upon the Ocean or Sea of Congo, with a pretty good Port, of which the Hollanders made themſelves Maſters ſome time paſt. This Country of Benguela hath on the South the Mountain of Zihil, and on the other ſide the Rivers of Bengeli and Suciga, about the City Angola.

BEN-HADAD, King of Syria, whom Joſephus calls Hadad, began to Reign about the year of the World 3000. and became formidable to his Neighbours. See his Hiſtory, 1 Kings 15. 20, 21. and 2 Kings 1. 8. and 2 Chron. 18.

BENI, (Paul) a Native of Gubio, or Ugubio, in the Dutchy of Urbin, and Profeſſor in the Univerſity of Padua, was one of the Learnedſt Men that Italy had at the beginning of the laſt Age: He was full of Fire, and pretty prone to Critick. He thought he had found great Faults in the Italian Dictionary, which the Academy De la Cruſca of Florence had publiſhed; this afforded him the thought of marking them with more Care in a Book Printed under the Title of Anti-Cruſca, or Paragone della Lingua Italiana. Paul Beni pick'd another Quarrel with the ſame Academy, upon the Subject of Taſſo, whoſe Defence he publickly undertook, and made two Treatiſes concerning the ſame: In the one he compares Taſſo with Virgil, and Arioſto to Homer; and in another he anſwereth to what had been criticized upon in the Poetry of this excellent Author. The latter is entituled, Il Commento ſopra il Goffredo di Torquato Taſſo. He publiſh'd ſome other Diſcourſes upon the Paſtor Fido of Guarini. All theſe Pieces were in Italian; but he hath left a greater number in Latin. The moſt conſiderable are Commentaries upon the Poetry and Rhetorick of Ariſtotle, upon the firſt Six Books of the Æneids, and the Hiſtory of Salluſt, a Poem and Rhetorick drawn from the Writings of Plato. De Hiſtoria, lib. 4. Diſputatio de Annalibus Eccleſiaſticis Card. Baronii, &c. He died the 12th of February, 1625. Lauren. Craſſo, Thomaſin, in Elog. Vir. Illuſtr.

BENJAMIN, the 12th Son of Jacob, and the 2d of Rachel, was born in the year of the World 2305. See Gen. 35. and foll. Joſ. 18. Judg. 19. 20.

BENJAMIN, Deacon and Martyr, who ſuffer'd for the Faith about the year of Chriſt 422. Varanes King of Perſia, a great Perſecutor of Chriſtians, having caſt him into Priſon, ſet him at liberty two years after, upon the Interceſſion of an Ambaſſador of Theodoſius, on condition he would no more teach the Chriſtian Doctrine. Benjamin ſaid that he could not hide the Light, nor bury the Talent which the Lord had committed unto him to make others Partakers thereof. Upon which this King preſſing him to renounce the God whom he ſerved, he made him ſo convincing a Reply, by the Compariſon which he gave him of the Crime which a Subject ſhould become guilty of who ſhould quit the Service of his King, to embrace that of his Enemy, that Varanes, filled with Shame and Anger, made this holy Deacon ſuffer the moſt barbarous Torments, in which he rendred his Soul to God. Baronius.

BENJAMIN, or Rabbi Benjamin, Native of Tui in Spain, a famous Jew, who lived in the 12th Age. He viſited almoſt all the Synagogues in the World, to know their Cuſtoms, their Ceremonies, and the Great Men they had. We have ſeveral Editions of his Obſervations in this Journey.

BENIBESSARA, a great Country of Africk in Libya, or in the Country of Segelmeſſe, which is in Biledulgerid. It is ſituate about Mount Atlas, on the ſide of the Kingdom of Tremeſcen.

BENI-GEBARA, a Mountain of the Province of Cuzt in the Kingdom of Fez in Africk: It is very Populous, and its Avenues are very difficult, wherefore the Inhabitants do keep their Liberty to this day. Here is great quantity of Corn and Flocks, with a great deal of Vines, Olives, and other Fruit-Trees: Several Fountains do abundantly furniſh them with Water; ſo that they have all that is neceſſary for Life, and may ſuffer a Siege of 10 years without fear of Famine. They are to the number of 7000 Fighting Men, armed with Muſquets and Croſs-bows. They pay a Tribute to the King of Fez, to have a free Trade in the Plain, where there is a great Market held. Marmol d'Afrique.

BENIGNUS, firſt Biſhop of Dijon, where he, according to Gregory of Tours, ſuffer'd Martyrdom, and was buried.

BENI-GUAZEBAL, a Mountain of the Province of Errif in the Kingdom of Fez in Africk, near the Mountain of Alcai: It contains more than 120 Villages, with a pretty populous City. At the very top of the Mountain may be ſeen an Opening, whence ariſe a great many ſulphureous Steams and Flames, as from Mount Gibel in Sicily. Marmol.

BENI-MERINIS, a Name of a Family of the Tribe of the Zenetes of Africk, whereof Aben-Joſeph, King of Fez, was deſcended.

BENIN, a City and Kingdom of Africk in Guinea: The City is the beſt of all thoſe of the Negro's, and ſituate upon a River of this ſame Name, which evacuates it ſelf a little after into the Gulph of St. Thomas. The Inhabitants are brutiſh Idolaters. The Country affords large Pepper better than that of India.

BENIOATARES, the Name of a Race of the Tribe of the Zenetes of Africk, which uſurped the Kingdom of Fez upon the Beni-Merinis.

BENI-ORIEGAN, a Mountain of the Province of Errif in the Kingdom of Fez in Africk, about the Coaſt of the Mediterranean Sea: It hath 3 Leagues in length, and but one and an half in breadth, and is planted with Vines and Olives. Here are alſo a great many Cedars, an odoriferous Wood, very fit to build Galleys with; and other things, which are much eſteemed in that Country. There grows no Corn here but Barley, and there is not much Cattel.

BENI-SUAID, a City of Egypt upon the Bank of the Nile, 20 Leagues from Cairo, in going up along the River. It is in the middle of a large Country, where great Plenty of Linen and Hemp groweth. The Linen is excellent, and is that which is called Alexandrian, becauſe it is tranſported to Alexandria. Marmol de l'Egypte.

BENI-TEUDI, a City of the Province of Habat, in the Kingdom of Fez in Africk, upon the River Erguile. It is now ruined; but the Relicks of ſome Magnificent Buildings are yet to be ſeen there, and ſome ancient Tombs that denote them to be Sepulchres of Perſons of great Quality. There are alſo 3 fair Fountains, with great Baſons of Marble and Alabaſter. Marmol.

BENITI, or Beniſi, (Philippa) Founder of the Order of the Annciade, call'd the Servites, or Servants of the Bleſſed Virgin, was born at Florence. He followed ſeven Merchants, who being retired to the Mountain Senere near this City, lived there practiſing all manner of Virtues. His Example animated them more, and drew ſeveral Companions unto them. Afterwards he got his Order approved, which marvellouſly increaſed by the Reputation of his Holineſs, which was ſo great, that after the Death of Clement IV. he was upon the point of being made Pope. He died the 23d of Auguſt, 1285. Pope Clement X. Canonized him in An. 1671. Bzovius & Spond.

BENI-USA, or Bervira, a Mountain of the Province of Errif, in the Kingdom of Fez in Africk, near that of Gualide. The Inhabitants of theſe two Mountains are almoſt continually at War; and the Women, if they are never ſo little abuſed, fly from the one to the other, where they marry a ſecond time; which makes them take Arms to have them again; and if they ſometimes make Peace, it is upon Condition that the new Husband will quit the Wife of the former, or reimburſe the Charges of her Marriage, which are conſiderable amongſt the Moors. They have ſome Alfaques, or Doctors of the Law, who make them agree thereupon; but take greater care to become Rich than to adminiſter Juſtice. Marmol.

BENI-YASGA, a Mountain of the Province of Cuzt, in the Kingdom of Fez in Africk, near the River Cebu, or Suba. It is Peopled with rich Folks, who are good Soldiers. Here are every where fertile Lands in Wheat, with a great many Vines and Olive-Trees, and ſeveral Flocks of great and ſmall Cattel. Their Wooll is ſo fine, that Women do make thereof as fine Stuffs as any Silk. Near this Mountain the River Cebu paſſeth between two Rocks, ſo narrow and craggy, that to go over it this Artifice is uſed; There are in the Rock two great Beams planted on both ſides, with two great Rings, through which a great Cable paſſeth, which comes twice about: At one of the ſides is tied a great Basket of Bulruſh, which holds more than 10 Perſons; and thoſe who would paſs putting themſelves thereinto, are drawn on the other ſide by the other Rope. If at any time the Basket happeneth to break, they fall into the River 1500 Fathom deep, unleſs they have the good luck to take hold of the Cables to be drawn up again. Marmol.

BEN-MERODAC, the 3d of the 8 laſt Kings of the Babylonians, ſucceeded Merodac about the 76th year of the Foundation of Rome, which was in the 3376th of the World, 678 years before Jeſus Chriſt, and the 25th Olympiad. The moſt common Opinion is, That Ben-Merodac reigned 32 years, and ſo he died in 107 of Rome, An. Mund. 3407. 647 before Chriſt, the 33d Olympiad. Uſſerius, Genebrard.

BENNET, (John) Lord Oſſulſton, the Elder Brother of Henry late Earl of Arlington, was advanced to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm by King Charles II.

BENNET, (Henry) Earl of Arlington deceas'd, was advanc'd to that Dignity by King Charles II. being deſcended from Worthy Anceſtors, and in his Youth train'd up in moſt ſorts of Learning fit for a Gentleman. He quitted his Studies in the time of the Civil Wars, and ſignalized himſelf under the King. As he was a Scholar and a Soldier, ſo he proved an excellent Stateſman, whereof he gave ſignal Proofs in that ſpecial Employment he had to the King of Spain: Therefore ſoon after King Charles's Reſtauration, he was made Principal Secretary of State, and of a Knight a Peer of the Realm, being firſt created Baron of Arlington, An. 1664. and afterwards, viz. An. 1672. Viſcount Thetford, and Earl of Arlington, a Mannor in Middleſex wherein he was born; after which, he was made Knight of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter, and conſtituted Lord Chamberlain of His Majeſty's Houſhold. He married the Lady Iſabella of Naſſaw, the preſent Counteſs-Dowager of Arlington, Daughter to Lewis of Naſſaw, Lord Beverwaert, Son to the late Illuſtrious Maurice Prince of Orange, and Count of Naſſaw, by whom he had Iſſue one only Daughter named Iſabella, married to Henry Fitz-Roy, the late Duke of Grafton, one of K. Charles's Natural Sons, who being ſlain at the late Siege of Cork in Ireland, left Iſſue by her the preſent Duke of Grafton. The ſaid Henry Bennet, Earl of Arlington, died at his Houſe in St. James's Park, Aug. 28. 1685. being in the 67th year of his Age. He was then Lord Chamberlain to King James II. who was pleaſed, upon the deceaſe of His Brother King Charles, to continue him in that great Office.

BENNO, Cardinal, a German born: He was created Cardinal by Anti-Pope Guibert, who took the Name of Clement III. compoſed ſeveral Satyrical Works, accuſed Sylveſter II. of Magick, Gregory VI. of Simony, and writ the Life of Gregory VII. or rather a Satyr againſt this Pontif. Baron. Voſſius.

BENSHEIM, a Town of Germany in the lower Circle of the Rhine, and Archbiſhoprick of Mentz, ſubject to that Prince. It ſtands 11 miles Eaſt of Wormes, 13 South of Darmſtadt, and 19 North of Heydelberg. Long. 28. 18. Lat. 49. 36.

BENTHEM, a Town and Caſtle of Weſtphalia, ſituate upon the River Vidrus near Oldenzael, is the Head of a ſmall County in the Weſt Parts of Weſtphalia. It's call'd in the German Tongue Das Grathrtchaft ven Benthem, and lies between the Biſhoprick of Munſter to the Eaſt, Over-Yſſel and the Territory of Tuvent to the Weſt, and upon the North and South is inclos'd by the River Vechta. The Caſtle of the Town of Benthem lies two miles from Oldenzael, a Town in the South-Eaſt Angle of the Province of Over-Yſſel, ten miles from Deventer to the Eaſt.

BENTIVOGLIO, is a Borough of Italy, in the Territory of Bononia, on the ſide of Ferrara. It hath been in times paſt ſtronger and more conſiderable than it is now. It ſtands on the River Reno, 18 miles North of Bologne, and 16 South of Ferrara. Long. 37. 8. Lat. 44. 19.

BENTIVOGLIO, a Family: The Family of Bentivoglio draweth its Original from Eutins, King of Sardinia: and the Kings of Arragon, the Dukes of Milan, and divers other Potentates, have called thoſe of that Family Kinſmen. It had a long time the Lordſhip of the City of Bononia. John Bentivoglio II. of that Name ſucceeded his Father Annibal; and when he was very young, one of his Relations Governed until about 1462. John was compelled through Policy to maintain himſelf by cruel Maxims. He put ſeveral of the Malvezzi to death, and baniſhed the Mareſcoti; becauſe both made ſecret Cabals to take the Government from him. That Vice excepted, he was one of the greateſt Men of his time, a good Soldier, a wiſe Captain, undaunted in Danger, and the truſtieſt Friend in the World. He entred into a League with Pope Sixtus IV. and Hercules Duke of Ferrara againſt the Venetians, beat Jerome Riario, and then bravely oppoſed Cæſar Borgia Duke of Valentinois, Son to Pope Alexander VI. about the year 1506. Pope Julius II. being come to Bononia, drove thence John Bentivoglio and all his Family; ſome of his Children were murthered, his Goods plundered, and his very Houſe demoliſhed by the People: And all this was barbarouſly executed, againſt the Promiſe which was made to him. He retired into the City of Milan, others ſay to Buſſet in the Parmeſan, where he died in 1508. almoſt 70 years of Age. The reſt of the Family of Bentivoglio eſtabliſh'd themſelves at Ferrara.

BENTIVOGLIO, (Franciſca) Wife to Galeota Manfredi, Prince of Forli in Italy, ſeeing her ſelf deſpiſed by her Husband, ſhe ſuborned two Phyſicians, and counterfeiting her ſelf ſick, made them enter his Chamber, with Arms hidden, to aſſaſſinate him: And becauſe Galeota defended himſelf againſt theſe two Men, ſhe took a Poinard which ſhe wore her ſelf, and thruſt it into his Breaſt. They ſay ſhe underſtood that this Prince had contracted a ſecret Marriage with a Damoſel of Fayenza before he married her, which brought her to this Deſpair. Fulg.

BENTIVOGLIO, (Guy) a Cardinal, much celebrated by abundance of Authors; born at Ferrara, 1579. of Cornelius Bentivoglio and Elizabeth Bendadei. In his Youth he made an extraordinary Progreſs in the Univerſity of Padua. He was Nuncio to the Pope in Flanders, and afterwards in France, and acquitted himſelf ſo worthily in theſe Employments, that Pope Paul I. promoted him to a Cardinalate in 1621. In ſhort, Bentivoglio underſtood Buſineſs extreamly well, was a Perſon of great Learning, Prudence, and Integrity, and generally belov'd. He died in the year 1644. The moſt conſiderable of his Works are, The Hiſtory of the Civil Wars of Flanders: A Relation of Flanders: Letters and Memoires. *Gualdo Priorato. Scena de Gli Huom. Illuſt. de Ital. BEORGOR, or Biorgor, King of the Alani, in the 5th Age. He occaſioned ſtrange Diſorders amongſt the Gauls, and in Italy: Ricimer, Maſter of the Roman Militia, purſued him, and having overtaken him near Bergamo, defeated him the 6th of February, 464. Thomaſini.

BEOTIA, or Bœotia, a Province of Greece, called at this day Stramulipa, under the Turk. It is commonly put in Achaia, or Livadia. It was betwixt the Country of Doris, Phocis, Theſſaly, and Attica, the Archipelago, and the Iſle of Negrepont, and divided into Upper and Lower. The firſt had the City of Lebadia, call'd now Badia, Cheronea, famous for the Birth of Plutarch, Orchomenes, Platea, where Pauſanias and Ariſtides, Generals of the Lacedæmonians and Athenians, defeated Mardonius in the 75th Olympiad, and in the 275th year of Rome; beſides Amphiclea, Hyampolis, Coronea, &c. The Lower had Thebes, Capital of all Beotia, called now Stives, Phocea, Mycaleſſus, or Malacaſſa, which Statius makes mention of in the 7th Book of his Thebais; Anthedon, Acrephium, Tanagra, &c. Beotia was waſhed with the Rivers Aſopus, Cephiſus, &c. Here was the Mountain Helicon, and the Fountain Agamppe, famous in the Writings of the Poets. Several of the Ancients have imagin'd, that Bœotus, Nephew to Æolus, and Son to Neptune and Arnea, gave his Name to Beotia: others relate it variouſly. Howbeit, the Name of Beotians and Thebans is famous enough in the Works of the Ancients, where we ſee they had a great ſhare in all the Wars of the Greeks. Miconides, General of the Athenians, having defeated the Army of the Lacedæmonians, in the 4th year of the 81ſt Olympiad, which was the 297th of Rome, ſubdued Beotia, the Locrenſes, &c. Two years after, Tolmides, General of the ſame Athenians, made farther Ravages there. Since that time, the Thebans had a great hand in the War of Peloponneſus, or Morea. In the year 344 of Rome, which was the 3d of the 92d Olympiad, thoſe of Chalcis in the Iſle of Negrepont, revolting againſt the Athenians, joined the Beotians, and made in the Streight of Euripus a Ditch, to hinder the Ships from paſſing there, leaving room for one only. Six years after, they were at the taking of Athens, in the 359th year of Rome. Being in Confederacy with the Athenians, they oppoſed the Lacedæmonians; but Ageſilaus had ſome advantages in Beotia. In the 376th of Rome, they ſent Troops into the Iſle of Negrepont; ſince which time, they had the common Deſtiny of the reſt of Greece, until it was altogether ſubdued by the Turks in the 16th Age. Pauſan. Lauremb. Strabo.

BERAUN, which the Germans call Bern, Berauna, and Verona, a City of Germany in the Kingdom of Bohemia: It is ſituate upon a little River, which renders the adjacent places pleaſant 2 or 3 Leagues from Prague, and as many from Pilſeu; but Beraun was half ruined in the late Wars.

BERBICE, or Berbeu, a great River in Braſil, 6 deg. 30 min. N. Lat. a quarter of a mile broad at the mouth, and 2 fathom deep; the Land on both ſides low and woody, has plenty of Logwood and Cotton, and in the beginning of the laſt Century, the Hollanders planted a Colony on the River.

BERCHIN, Curate or Rector of Nielle in the Dutchy of Guelders, a Perſon in eſteem in the 15th Century: He left a Chronological Abridgment of this Province to the year 1466. See Valerius Andreas Bibl. Belg. Voſſius, Simlar, &c.

BERCHTOLD, a Biſhop of Strasbourg, deſcended from the Dukes of Teck in Suabia. He defeated the Earls of Ferrete, and their Allies, and in 1228. ſignalized himſelf near Briſac, where he carried a famous Victory over ſeveral German Princes. He had moreover an Advantage over Henry of Thuringia, King of the Romans, whom he overcame twice. The very Emperour Frederick II. ſought the Friendſhip of this Valiant Prelate. He retook the Landgraviate of Alſatia, after the death of Henry laſt Landgrave, and died about the year 1244. Guillimanus Epiſc. Argentinens.

BERCI, or of Berſſi, whom others call Breſi, or Berſil, (Hugh) a French Knight and Poet, about the year 1250. He writ Satyrs againſt the Vices of his time.

BERCORIUS, or Berthorius, (Peter) a Frenchman of Poitou: His Learning and exemplary Virtue made him much valued by divers Princes and Scholars of the 14th Century. He wrote a Coſmography and Abridgment of the Hiſtory of the Bible; a Book call'd Repertorium Morale; and by King John's Order tranſlated Livy into French. He was counted the moſt Learned Divine of his time, was Prior of St. Eloy, a Monaſtery in Paris, and died in the year 1362. Trithem. de Script. Eccl. Poſſevin. in Appar. Spondan. A.C. 1350. n. 11, &c.

BERDOA, a great and waſte Country of Africk, with a Town of this Name in Libya or Zaara, where there is hardly any thing but Sand, Scorpions, and Monſters. This Country is betwixt thoſe of Gaaga and Lempta: It has 3 Caſtles, and 5 or 6 Villages, abounding with Dates. One Hama, a blind Arabian, who conducted the Caravans by his Smell, is ſaid to have diſcover'd this place at 40 miles diſtance. The Inhabitants frighted at the ſight of Strangers, ſhut themſelves up in their Caſtles, and refuſed to give Water to the Caravan, until their Caſtles were forced. Leo Afric.

BEREBERES, an ancient People of Barbary in Africk, originally of Arabia. It's ſaid they paſſed into Africk with Melec-Iſriqui, King of Arabia-Fœlix, and at firſt ſettled themſelves in the Eaſtern part of Barbary; whence diſperſing into divers places, they became Maſters of the greateſt part of Africk. They were divided into 5 Tribes, viz. Muſſamudins, Zenetes, Haoares, Zinhagians, and Gomeres; and from each Tribe iſſued ſeveral very Illuſtrious Families, ſo that the greateſt of Africk draw their Original from them. After having dwelt ſome years in Tents, there aroſe Civil Wars amongſt 'em, and the Conquerors eſtabliſhed themſelves in the Plains, becauſe they were very rich in Flocks; the reſt withdrew towards the Mountains, where mixing themſelves with the ancient Africans named Chilohes or Getulians, they built Villages and Boroughs. The Muſſamudins do poſſeſs the Oriental part of the Kingdom of Morocco, and inhabit the Places about Mount-Atlas, in the extent of Four Provinces, Hea, Sus, Gezala, and Morocco; and their Capital is Agmet. The Zenetes have as yet their old Habitations in the Country of Tremeſen, which is the Weſterlieſt Province of the Kingdom of Fez, and are otherwiſe called Chavians. Some do live about the Mountains of great Atlas, and are often in War with the King of Fez. Others are in the Provinces of Tunis and Conſtantina, where they live for the moſt part in the Fields, as the Arabians. But the moſt Potent are thoſe of the Kingdom of Algiers. With this Tribe of the Zenetes are mixed the Haoares, who are their Vaſſals. The Zinhagians extend themſelves from the Mountains of Barca unto thoſe of Nefuſa and Gueneeeris, and ſome do wander with the Zenetes. The Gomeres live in the Mountains of Little Atlas, towards the Coaſts of the Mediterranean Sea, and enjoy the Lands from the Frontier of Ceuta, near the Streights of Gibraltar, unto Telinſin, a Province of the Kingdom of Algiers. Of theſe Five Tribes, the Muſſamudins, the Zenetes, and the Zinhagians, have reigned at divers times in Barbary, upon the declining of the Empire of the Arabian Califfs; for afore they were governed by Cheques or Princes. But during the Reign of the Houſe of Jeris, which founded the City of Fez, the Line of the Mequinecians, a Family of the Zenetes, uſurped the Empire, in the time that the Abderames began to Reign in Spain, about 740. After that another Line of the Zenetes, named Magaroas, conquered ſeveral Provinces, and having overcome the Mequinecians, eſtabliſhed divers States in Barbary: But they were expelled by the Lumptunes of the Tribe of the Zinhagians, named by Hiſtorians Almoravides, becauſe they had with them many Mahometan Moravites. The Moahedins or Almohades, of the Tribe of the Muſſamudins, were then Maſters of Africk, which afterwards was ſubjected to the Benimerinis, a Family of the Zenetes, and the latter were driven by the Benioatares, from whom the Cherifs, who reign now, took the Empire. From theſe Five Tribes alſo deſcended the Kings of Tunis and Tremeſen or Algiers, until the Turks became Maſters of them. Marmol.

BEREBISTAS, a Warlike and Valiant Captain of the Getæ, who got ſo much Authority among thoſe of his Nation, that the Sovereignty was conferred on him. He made wholeſome Laws, which obliged the People to Sobriety and continual Exerciſe of the Body: By this means in a few years he extended the Limits of his Empire very far. He paſſed the Iſter, and entred Thracia, Macedonia, and Illyria. He conquered all theſe Countreys; and the People comply'd with ſo much cheerfulneſs, that they readily obeyed his Orders to pluck up all their Vines, and to drink no more Wine. Strabo.

BERECYNTHUS, a Mountain of Phrygia, where Cybele, Mother of the Gods, was Honoured, whence ſhe was named Berecynthia.

BERENGER or Berengarius the Firſt, Son to Eberard Duke of Friuli, and Giſle Daughter to the Emperor Lewis the Meek; he lived in the Tenth Age, was an Ambitious, Cruel, and Haſty Prince. About 893 he cauſed himſelf to be declared King of Italy, againſt Guy Duke of Spoleto, who defeated him in Two pitched Battels. Berenger found himſelf conſtrained to beg ſuccour from the Emperor Arnoldus, who being come into Italy, ſubdued there ſeveral Cities in 894 and 96. Afterwards in 898, the Italians not being ſatisfied with Berenger, who was unſufferably Proud and Cruel, called in L. Bozon King of Arles or Burgundy, and made him hope for a conſiderable Succour, which never appeared, ſo that this Prince being raſhly engaged in the Enemies Countrey, found himſelf ſurpriſed by Berenger, of whom he begged to let him return into his Countrey. But the following year Lewis Bozon repaſſed the Alpes at the Head of a Potent Army, to which all yielded; he advanced to Rome, where he got himſelf Crowned Emperor, and Reigned 4 or 5 years with indifferent good Luck, but not being cautious enough in the guard of his Perſon, Berenger ſurpriſed him at Verona, and pull'd out his Eyes. Reginon ſaith, that this happened in 904. After this Berenger cauſed himſelf to be Crowned Emperor by Pope John IX. in the ſame year, and then by John X. in 915. The following year he joined his Troops to thoſe of the Pope and other Princes; they defeated the Saracens, who caus'd great Diſorders in Italy : But the Grandees of Italy conſpired againſt him, and call'd in Rodolf II. King of Burgundy. Berenger had recourſe to the Hungarians, who at that time ravaged Germany and Italy with Fire and Sword, wherefore Berenger, who had ſent for them, became more odious than thoſe very Barbarians, ſo that all entred into a League againſt him. He loſt the Battel June 28. 922. near Placentia, whither Rodolf was already advanced ; and Berenger had nothing left but Verona, where he ſhut himſelf up, and was aſſaſſinated in 924 by the Treachery of Flambert, having but one only Daughter Giſle or Giſlette, Mother to Berenger II. Luitprand.

BERENGER, or Berengarius the Second, called the Young, Son to Albert Marquis of Ivrée, and Giſle Daughter to Berenger I. revolted about 939. againſt Hugh King of Italy and Arles, but was unſucceſsful, and forced to fly to the Emperor Otho in Germany, of whom he demanded Succour, and returning in 945. when that the Italians had abandoned Hugh, he became Maſter of a part of Italy, and took the Title of King in 950. after the death of Lotharius, Son to the ſaid Hugh. In the mean time he ſent the Hiſtorian Luitprand to Conſtantin VIII. Emperor of the Greeks, on ſome Deſigns which ſucceeded not. He was ſo Tyrannical over his Subjects, that they were obliged to call Otho to their Succour. Adelais Widow of Lotharius, whom Berenger would have to Marry his Son Adelbert, was another motive of the Emperor Otho's Journey into Italy. In 964. he took and ſent Berenger to Bamberg in Germany, where he died two years after. Luitprand.

BERENGER, or Berengarius, (Raimond) Thirtieth Grand-Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, whoſe Convent was then at Rhodes, ſucceeded in 1365 to Roger Pius. He was a Native of Provence, and of the ancient Family of the Berengers of Dauphine, iſſued from the Berengers, Princes in Italy. He made a League with the K. of Cyprus in 1366. and having joined their Army together, he went to re-take the City of Alexandria in Egypt, which he plundered and burnt. He loſt but 100 Knights, and brought thence a rich Booty. He ranſack'd likewiſe the City of Tripoly in Syria. In 1371 Pope Urban V. ſent the Grand-Maſter Berenger into the Iſle of Cyprus, as Nuncio, to pacifie the Commotions of that Kingdom, after the death of Peter King of Cyprus, who had been murthered by his Brothers. In the mean time there was great abuſe committed in the Adminiſtration of the Goods of the Religion in the Provinces on this ſide the Sea ; therefore the Grand-Maſter call'd a Chapter at Avignon, where he was willing to aſſiſt ; but the Pope deſired him to ſtay at Rhodes, for the publick good of the Chriſtians. Some time after Berenger would have laid down that Dignity, which the Pope hindered, knowing how neceſſary he was to the Order, and to the Chriſtian State. He held Two general Chapters, and ordered, amongſt other Things, That for the Election of the Grand-Maſter Two Knights of each Language ſhould be named, whereas before they were indifferently named of all Tongues ; and that each Religious ſhould have but one Commanderie of the great ones, or two of the little. He died in 1373. and was ſucceeded by Robert de Juliac. Boſio.

BERENGER, or Berengarius, (Raimond) a Prince of Aragon, Proviſor of St. John of Jeruſalem, inſtituted in 1188. the Nuns of the ſame Order, which are commonly called the Maltheiſes, whereof there are ſeveral Convents in Spain, and ſome few in France. Sixenne.

BERENGER, or Berengarius, Arch-Deacon of Angiers, Treaſurer and Rector of St. Martin of Tours, whereof he was a Native ; he lived in the Eleventh Age, and was reputed a very Learned and Pious Man. He was one of the firſt who durſt oppoſe the growing Tenet of Tranſubſtantiation in France, Italy, and Germany, and he drew to his Party Bruno Biſhop of Angiers, with ſeveral other Prelates and famous Men. He was in ſo great Eſteem for his Learning, that when he came to Rome the Pope ſtood up, ſaying, he Honoured his Natural Parts. Durand Biſhop of Liege, Adelman of Breſſe, and Guy Aretin, writ againſt him, notwithſtanding ſeveral Churches did embrace his Doctrine, which compell'd the Roman Clergy to call ſeveral Synods at Rome, and Vercelli, both held in 1050. five years after Hildebrand, Legate of Pope Victor II. being ſent into France, held a Council at Tours, where he oblig'd Berengarius to Sign a Recantation of his Opinion ; however, he continued in his former Sentiment, but, being Cited once more to a Council at Rome 1059. he Subſcrib'd a Confeſſion of what was then call'd the Orthodox Faith, and burnt Johannes Scotus Evigina's Book, which was ſuppos'd to have made him diſagree with the Council ; but being at Liberty, he reviv'd the Diſpute again, which laſted to the year 1079. when Gregory VII. at another Council at Rome, brought him over to his own Opinion. He died in the year 1091. Hildebert. De Tour. Apud Math. Marin. Baronius. A. C. 1004. 1028. 1035. 1059. 1079. 1088. Alberic. in Chron. He learn'd this purer Doctrine from John Scot, Erigena, born at Air in Scotland, Tutor to Charles the Bald, King of France. Several others defended his Opinion, eſpecially in Scotland, particularly a certain Clergyman named Bernard. At the ſame time Fluentius Biſhop of Florence aſſerted, that Antichriſt was already come into the World : And Arnulphus of Breſſe, becauſe he inveighed againſt the Errors and Vices of the Popiſh Clergy, was burned at Rome. See Platina, An. 1110, 1118. Hoffm. I muſt not forget the Epitaph, which Hildebert Arch-Biſhop of Tours, Berenger's intimate Friend, made upon him.

BERENICE, Wife to Ptolemæus Lagus, or Son to Lagus King of Egypt, was Mother to Ptolemæus call'd Philadelphus, who being the youngeſt of her Children, was notwithſtanding exalted to the Throne in prejudice of his Brothers. Berenice was ſtill alive in the 124th Olympiad, and 470th year of Rome, when the ſame Ptolemæus Lagus died the 40th year of his Reign. Berenice was one of the Maids of Honour to Euridice Daughter to Antipater firſt Wife of the ſame Ptolemæus, who falling in love with her, made her his Queen. Appian.

BERENICE, Daughter to Ptolemæus Philadelphus and Arſinoe, eſpouſed her Brother Ptolemæus Euergetes ; which was no ſcandal amongſt the Egyptians. Some time after, this King being compelled to make War with the Aſſyrians about the 508 of Rome, Berenice, to obtain Victory for her Husband, vowed her Hair to Venus. At his Return ſhe cut her Hair, and hung it in a Temple ; and becauſe it was not to be found the next day, a Mathematician, named Conon, affirmed it had been carried up into Heaven, and placed amongſt the Stars. Which gave the Poet Callimachus an occaſion to compoſe a Poem thereupon, which Catullus Tranſlated. This Berenice was a Wiſe Princeſs, of whom Authors ſpeak much to her praiſe. Her Son Ptolemæus Philopater put her to death about the year 533 of Rome, and afterward built her a Temple under the Name of Berenice the Guardian. Ælian. Catul.

BERENICE, another Daughter to Ptolemæus Philadelphus, Married about the 497 of Rome to Antiochus Soter King of Syria. This latter had then another Wife, named Laodice, who fearing the unconſtant mind of this Prince, poyſoned him, and cauſed Berenice, who had retired into the Aſylum of Daphné in the Suburbs of Antioch, to be murdered. Ptolemæus Euergetes immediately took the Field to revenge this death. Appian. Juſtin.

BERENICE, Siſter, or according to others, Daughter of Ptolemæus called the Piper, or Auletes, King of Egypt ; ſhe was beloved of the Egyptians, who being diſſatisfied with their Prince, baniſhed him in the 697 of Rome, and ſubmitted themſelves to Berenice. She Married Sybioſates of the Race of the Seleucides, and afterwards cauſed him to be ſtrangled to take Archelaus, who was afterwards kill'd in a Fight. But Ptolemæus being re-eſtabliſhed in 699. put his Siſter Berenice to death.

BERENICE, Daughter to Agrippa the Elder, or Herod Agrippa King of the Jews, and Siſter to Agrippa the Younger, lived about the 50th year of our Lord. Joſephus mentions her thus ; As for Berenice (ſaith he) the eldeſt of the Three Siſters of Agrippa, ſhe remained ſometime a Widow, after the death of Herod, who was both her Husband and Uncle ; but upon the Report of Criminal Correſpondence with her Brother, ſhe propoſed Marriage to Polemon King of Cilicia, if he would embrace the Religion of the Jews, believing that this would make the Diſcourſe appear falſe. This Prince gave his Conſent, becauſe ſhe was extreamly rich ; but they were not long together, ſhe having quitted him through Incontinence. The Emperor Claudius had deſtined her to be Wife to Mark, Son to Alexander Lyſimachus Alabarchus, whom he loved mightily ; but this Mark being dead before the Marriage was conſummated, Agrippa the Elder, Father to Berenice, gave her in Marriage to Herod his Brother, for whom he obtained from Claudius the Kingdom of Chalcis. This Herod died in 48, leaving by Berenice, of which I ſpake, 2 Sons, named Berenicianus, and Hyrcanus. This Princeſs was with her Brother Agrippa in 55. when St. Paul pleaded his Cauſe before them and the Pro-Conſul. Porcius Feſtus. Joſeph.

BERENICE, Daughter to Mithridates the Great and Laodice : She would not ſurvive the defeat of her Father by Lucullus, and willingly took the Poiſon which her unhappy Father cauſed to be preſented her ; but ſtruggling long with death, becauſe of her great ſtrength, ſhe ordered the Slave Bacis to ſtrangle her, which he performed. Plutarch. This Berenice was born at Chios, and Wife of Mithridates, as Plutarch aſſures us, in the Life of Lucullus, Page 503. Plutarch affirms farther, that Berenice gave her Mother part of the Poiſon, which Bacchides, (and not Bacis) Eunuch of Mithridates, gave her, and that having taken too little, Bacchides ſtrangled her to haſten her death.

BERENICIA, now called Bernicho or Vernich, a City of Africk in the Country of Cyrene, and Capital of the Province of Pentapolis, which the Moderns call Meſtrata. They ſay it was built by Ptolemæus Euergetes, who call'd it Berenice after his Wife and Siſter. It was in times paſt a Biſhop's See.

BERG, called the Dutchy of Berg, or of Mons, Bergenſis, and Montenſis Regio, a ſmall Country of Germany in Weſtphalia upon the Rhine, betwixt the County of Marck and the Biſhoprick of Cologne. Its Capital City is Duſſeldorp. The others are Sollingen, Berg, &c. This Country now belongs to the Duke of Newbourg: It abounds with excellent Corn and Coal-Mines.

BERGAMO, Bergamum, a City of Italy, in the State of Venice, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Milan. It is the Capital of the ſmall Country of Bergamaſque in Gaul, beyond the Po, called ſince Lombardy. This Country hath the Boroughs of Malpango, Senero, Bergamo, &c. it is very ſtrong by its Caſtle-walls and advantageous ſituation upon a Mountain, which overlooks the Plains of Milan for 20 or 30 miles, which gives a very fine Proſpect. It's but one days Journey from Milan, and ſituated betwixt Breſſe, Creme, Lodi, and Como, and the Rivers Brembo and Serio. Bergamo was built by the Gauls, called Cenomanois or Manceaux, who paſſed into Italy about 170 of Rome, and the XLIX Olympiad. Paul the Deacon numbers it amongſt thoſe which were ruined by Attila. The Lombards repaired it, and were Maſters of it until the Eighth Age: Then it fell under the Empire of Charlemagne and his Succeſſors; but afterwards remained a free City until 1264. Or, according to others, 1301. that Philip Turriani made himſelf Maſter of it. After Turriani, it was ſubject to Viſconti, Suardi, Coglioni, Maſtin of Eſcale, and John Pincinnino; the latter was aſſaſſinated about 1409. and Roger Suardi, whom the Inhabitants eſtabliſhed as Governor, ſold Bergamo to Pandolf Malateſta; ſome time after, it was ſubdued by Philip Duke of Milan, about 1419. and this Duke dying, Auguſt 13. 1447. thoſe of Bergamo ſubmitted themſelves to the Venetians; but in 1509. the latter being defeated by King Lewis the Twelfth, at the famous Battel of Aignadel, May 14. this great Monarch took Bergamo: It returned again about the year 1516 to the Venetians, who have ſtill kept it. It is a pleaſant City, and pretty well built. The Language of the Bergamois is the moſt unpolite of all Italy, and therefore affected by the Mountebanks of this Country. Plin. Paul. Diacon. Merula, Guichardin.

BERGEN, a City of Germany, Capital of the Iſle and Principality of Rugen upon the Baltick Sea, towards Pomerania. It belongs to the Suedes ſince 1630.

BERGEN, Berghen, Bergue, Bearn, Bergos and Bergia, a City of Norway, belonging to the King of Denmark, upon the Streight of Carmeſund, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Drontheim. It is the Reſidence of the Vice Roy of Norway, and one of the beſt and richeſt of the Country. It is defended by the Fortreſs of Fredericks-borough, and hath a ſafe Port for Ships, becauſe it is betwixt the Mountains. Plinius ſpeaks of Bergen under the Name of Bergi; but he miſtook in taking it for an Iſle. See Berghen.

BERGEN-OP-ZOOM, there is a Mountain upon the Zoom, Lat. Bergæ ad Zomam, Berga, or Mons ſupra Zomam, and Berci Zoma, a City of the Low-Countries in Brabant, with the Title of Marquiſate. It is partly ſituate upon the River Zoom, and partly upon a little Mountain. The Church of St. Gertruda was converted there into a Collegiate Church about 1442. Bergen-op-Zoom hath had particular Lords, ſince 1212. the Emperor Charles V. being at Tournay in 1528. or according to others, in 33. erected it into a Marquiſate; ſince that time the Hollanders got it, after the death of the Marquiſs de Bergues, whom the Dutcheſs of Parma had ſent into Spain, where he was arreſted, and dy'd in 1567. They have fortified this Place well and regularly with a Chanel that goeth to the Sea, defended by divers Forts. The Commandant of Requeſens was defeated in 1574. near this City, which the Prince of Parma beſieged in vain, An. 1588. and Duke Spinola in 1622. This Town is 18 miles North of Antwerp, and 18 Weſt of Breda: Lon. 23. 32. Lat. 51. 32. Guichard. deſcrip. pais bas, Strada, Grotius de Bell. Belg. This Place lying within the Dominions of the Republick of Holland, the Marquiſate thereof, with all its Rights and Revenues, which belonged to the Count d'Auvergne, Colonel General of the Light Horſe of France, was ſeiſed by the States, but ſince reſtor'd again to the Marquis by the Peace of Reſwick in 1697.

BERGERAC upon the Dordogne, a City of France in Perigord, with a Royal Seat, and Juriſdiction of the Seneſchal. It is of great Conſequence by reaſon of the paſſage of the River: The Engliſh fortified themſelves therein in the Fourteenth Age: Lewis Duke of Angiers, Brother to Charles V. took it from them about 1371. with the help of the Conſtable of Gueſclin. Thoſe of Bergerac rendered themſelves famous, during the Wars, for Religion: The Inhabitants received the Reformation, and held out againſt the Papiſts in 1562. ſince which it hath been often taken and re-taken. In 1621 it ſubmitted to King Lewis the Thirteenth.

BERGHEN, a City of the Low-Countries, Capital of Hainaut. See Mons.

BERGHEN, One of the Five Governments of Norway, whoſe Capital hath the ſame Name. The Ancients ſpeak of the City of Berghen, as of a Place oppoſite to the Iſle of Thulé, when they ſaid Men took Ship there to go into that Iſland. Here is a very ſtrong Caſtle, where the Governor reſides, whom the King of Denmark ſends. The City, which is one of the Hanſe-Towns, is full of Merchants, becauſe of the Goodneſs of its Harbour, where Veſſels of 200 Tuns ride ſafe. Here dwell ſeveral different Nations, but the Norwegians and Germans make the greateſt Number. The Merchants of Hamburgh, Lubeck, Dantzick and Brunſwick, have their particular Magazines there, and a publick Houſe beſides, which they call Contor. They carry from thence a great deal of Fiſh, taken up in January, and dry'd in the Cold, which the Germans call Stock-Fiſh. There are alſo ſtore of Skins and Furs that are brought thither from all Parts; ſo that this City is accounted the Magazine of all Norway. The longeſt Days in Summer are of Twenty Hours, and the ſhorteſt in Winter only of Four. It has a Caſtle called Bergen-Hus, which lies in a ſmall Territory of Nord-Horland, Subject to the King of Denmark, as King of Norway: It is 23 Leagues from Linſe Noes, or the moſt Southern Point of Norway, and 80 from the neareſt Coaſt of Scotland. The City is without diſpute the richeſt of Norway; the Engliſh entred its Port in 1665. and fell upon the Dutch Eaſt-India Fleet, which they had certainly deſtroyed, had not contrary Winds given the Dutch time to draw their Cannon aſhore for their Defence. Janſon Theatrum Civitatum.

BERGION and Albion, two Gyants, both Sons to Neptune, who attempting to hinder Hercules from paſſing the Rhone, near its Mouth, were overthrown by a Rain of Stones, which Jupiter cauſed to fall upon them. Mela.

BERG S. VINOC, a City of the Low Countries in Flanders, belonging to the King of France: Thoſe of the Country call it Vinoxberg, in Lat. Berga S. Winoci, or Winoci-Montium and Vinoberga; and in times paſt, Groemberga, and Mons Viridis. It is about a League and a half from Dunkirk, and 6 or 7 from Ipris. It hath the Title of a Vicounty and Caſtelanſhip, and hath many Villages under its Juriſdiction. It's ſituate in a moſt fertile Country. Berg S. Winoc was taken by the French in 1658. and it remained to them by the 31ſt Article of the Pirenæan Peace in 1659. They have built there a Royal Fort.

BERKLEY, a Market Town of Berkley Hundred in Gloceſterſhire, on the Eaſt ſide of the Severn, noted for its Caſtle, which gave Name to the Noble and ancient Family of Fitz Harding in King Henry the Second's Reign; which deſcended from Robert Fitz Harding, of the Blood Royal of the Danes. 'Twas in Berkley Caſtle that King Edward the Second was barbarouſly Murthered, after his Reſignation of the Crown.

BERKLEY (George) the preſent Earl of Berkley, is deſcended in a Collateral Line from William Lord Berkley, deſcended from the Mowbraies, who in the year 1482. was by King Richard the Third created Viſcount Berkley, from a Caſtle of that Name in Gloceſterſhire, the Chief Seat of the Family, as he was ſoon after Earl of Nottingham and Earl Marſhal, and at laſt Marquis Berkley by King Henry the Seventh; but dying without Iſſue, all thoſe Titles ended with him; only that of Lord Berkley continued in the collateral Line, till the late King Charles was pleaſed to create the preſent Lord, Viſcount Durſley, and Earl of Berkley, An. 1679. His Father's Name was George, Lord Berkley, Grand-Son of Henry, who Married Elizabeth, the ſecond Daughter and Co-heir of Sir Michael Stanhope, of Sudburn, in the County of Suffolk, by whom he had Two Sons and a Daughter, the eldeſt Son Charles was drowned in his Paſſage to Dieppe in France, An. 1640. the other is George, the preſent Earl: Elizabeth the Daughter was Married to Edward Coke, Son and Heir to John Coke of Holkham, in the County of Norfolk, Eſq; who was Son of Sir Edward Coke, Chief-Juſtice of the King's-Bench. The late Earl, when Lord Berkley, took to Wife Elizabeth, the eldeſt Daughter, and Co-heir to John Maſſingberd, Merchant of London, of the Eaſt-India Company; by whom he had Iſſue ſeveral Sons and Daughters: The eldeſt of his Sons, Charles Lord Durſley, in his Father's Life-time, was employed by Their Majeſties as Ambaſſador to the States of Holland, and is now one of the Lords-Juſtices of Ireland. The Arms of this Honourable and ancient Family, are Gules, a Cheveron between 10 Croſſes pale, Argent.

BERKLEY (John) a Baron of this Realm, the younger Brother of Charles, lately deceaſed, is Son of Sir John Berkley, of Bruton, in the County of Somerſet, deſcended from the moſt Noble and Ancient Barons, Berkley of Berkley-Caſtle, which Sir John, for his ſucceſsful Services to King Charles the Firſt and Second, was by the latter, during his Exile, created Baron Berkly of Stratton in Somerſetſhire, Anno 1658.

1658. After the Reſtauration, he was made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, where he continued three years, and was then ſent Ambaſſador into France, and upon his Return from thence, he fell ſick, and died at London, An. 1668. By Chriſtian his Wife, Daughter of Sir Andrew Riccard, Preſident of the Eaſt-India Company, and Widow of Henry Lord Kenſington: He had Iſſue Four Sons, Charles Deceaſed, John the late Lord, who was ſome time Admiral of the Engliſh Fleet in the Channel, William and Maurice, who died young, and a Daughter called Ann. The Arms ſomewhat near thoſe of the Earl of Berkley, as being collaterally of the ſame Family, are Argent, a Chevron Ermin between 10 Croſſes, Patee 6 and 4.

BERLIN, upon the River Sprehe or Spree, a Town in Germany, in the Marquiſate of Brandenburg, it is large, fair, well built, the Capital of the Territories of the Elector of Brandenburg, and his ordinary Reſidence: The River divides it into two Parts, the one of which hath the Name of Berlin, and the other that of Coln or Cologne. The Palace of the Prince, divers great Squares, regular Houſes, and fine Streets, contribute to render this City pleaſant. The River makes it full of Trade; great Barks do continually arrive there from Hamburg, and other Cities which are upon the Elbe, and the Oder; for Spree communicates with theſe two Rivers by means of the Canals that have been drawn from it. Berlin on one ſide hath Vines, on the other Ponds, and on the other a Foreſt full of Game. Berlin is 32 miles Eaſt of Brandenburg, 42 North Weſt of Francfort, 50 North Eaſt of Wittenberg, 74 South Weſt of Stetin, and 300 North Weſt of Vienna.

BERMUDAS, or Summer-Iſlands, lying directly Eaſt, about 500 miles from Virginia in North America, 1600 from England, 1000 from Madera, 400 from Hiſpanola, and from Carolina 300 Leagues; they are 400 in Number, are call'd Bermudas from John Bermudas, a Spaniard, who firſt diſcovered them, and Summer-Iſlands from Sir George Summers, who being Shipwrack'd on their Coaſts, Anno 1609. view'd them, and being taken with their Beauty and Fruitfulneſs, did his utmoſt to ſettle a Plantation there; about three years after, a Colony of about Sixty People was ſent thither, under the Command of Richard Moor, who built Eight Forts for their Defence; to him ſucceeded Daniel Tucker, who being arriv'd there Anno 1618. did much incourage the Improving of ſo good a Soil, and the Planting of Trees and Tobacco. The next that had the Command of theſe Iſlands, was Captain Butler, who carried 500 Perſons thither, he divided the Iſlands into Diſtricts, which were Peopled in ſo ſhort a time, that in the year 1623. there were reckoned above 3000 Engliſh. The biggeſt of theſe Iſlands is called Bermuda, or St. George's Iſland, is about Six Leagues long, and a League broad where broadeſt, ſituate in 32 Degrees and 30 Minutes of Northern Latitude. The Soil, both in this and the Neighbouring Iſles, is exceeding fertile, yielding two Crops a year, which they generally gather in July and December. Here are plenty of Tortoiſes, good ſtore of Hogs, great Variety of Fowls and Birds, among the reſt, a ſort of Sea-Fowl that breeds like a Rabbet in Holes. Oranges, Dates, Mulberries, both White and Red, grow here in great abundance; theſe Trees breed a vaſt number of Silk-Worms, which yield much Silk. Here has been found likewiſe ſome Pearls and Ambergreaſe; no venomous Beaſts are found here, neither will any live if brought thither. Their Spiders are no ways venomous, but are of ſundry and various Colours, and in hot Weather make their Webs ſo extraordinary ſtrong, that little Birds are often intangled, and caught in them. There grows in this Iſland a ſort of Cedar-Tree, which differs from all other in ſeveral reſpects. The Air is ſo very temperate and ſerene, that People live there to a great Age, and are ſeldom troubled with any Sickneſs, which has occaſioned many to remove from England thither. In fine, theſe Iſlands are ſo ſtrong by Nature, being environed with Rocks on all ſides, that without a perfect Knowledge of the Paſſage, a ſmall Veſſel cannot be brought into the Haven, whereas skilful Pilots may ſteer Ships of the greateſt Burthen into it: Beſides this, the Engliſh have fortified the Approaches by Block-houſes and Forts, that they need not fear any Inſult; ſo that they would be too happy, were it not for their want of freſh Water, having none but what they draw out of Wells, Pits, and Ciſterns, and their being ſubject to violent Storms that happen there, ſometimes with terrible Clattering of Thunder, and diſmal Flaſhes of Lightning.

BERNABON, of the Family of the Viſconti, Lord of Milan; he was Son to Stephen, and Brother to Galeas the Second. He was educated upon the Sea, and returned thence Cruel, Diſhoneſt, and Haſty, though otherwiſe he lacked neither Courage nor Conduct, when his Intereſt were in queſtion. It is obſerved, that he had 5000 Dogs which he forc'd his Subjects to keep; ſo that their Goods and Lives were to anſwer for theſe Beaſts. He deſpiſed the Cenſures both of the Pope, and Emperor Charles the Fourth, and exerciſed unheard of Cruelty againſt his Subjects, having cut off 100 of them for killing ſome Boars which ruined the Country, burnt the Houſes of thoſe who fled, and two Capuchins, who told him of his Faults. Beſides, he was Potent, Rich, and had a great many good Alliances: He continued in theſe Violences, and it's ſaid he deſign'd to cut off his Nephew John Galeas, who was the firſt Duke of Milan, and then Earl of Vettus. The latter affected a very great Simplicity, for fear of being ſuſpected by his Uncle, and yet he conſpired ſo dexterouſly againſt him, that his Friends declaring opportunely in his Favour, he arreſted Bernabon, and cauſed him to be put in Priſon, where he died ſeven Months after in 1383. being 66 years of Age. Divers Authors have ſpoken advantagiouſly of this Lord, and look'd upon him as one of the greateſt Men of his time. Paul. Jov. Spondan.

St. BERNARD, firſt Abbot of Clervaux, Native of the Village of Fountains in Burgundy. He was in ſo high Eſteem amongſt the Biſhops, Grandees, and People, that there was ſcarce any Eccleſiaſtical Cauſe, conſiderable Difference, or important Undertaking, wherein his Counſel was not asked. It was alſo by his Means that Innocent II. was acknowledged Soveraign Pontiff; and that after the Death of Peter Leonis Anti-Pope, Victor made a voluntary Abdication of his Dignity; St. Bernard laboured for the Extinction of Schiſm from the year 1131 to 1138. He convicted Abaillard at the Council of Sens, in the year 1140. He oppoſed the Monk Raoul, who preached that all the Jews ſhould be put to Death, purſued the Followers of Arnaud de Breſſe, and cauſed Guilbert de la Porvée, Biſhop of Poitiers, to be Condemned, and Eon de l'Etoile, in the Council of Reims, in 1148. He preached the Croiſade under Lewis the Young: He often calmed the Differences of Princes, and gave Rules for the Knights of the Temple. The Croiſade had not the Succeſs which was expected, whence his Cenſurers took occaſion to blame him. We have a very exact Edition of the Works of this Man, by the Care of Don John Mabillon, a Learned Monk of the Congregation of St. Maurice. He publiſhed them in 1667 at Paris in Six Parts, with Notes, a Chronological Table for the Life of St. Bernard, and Obſervations upon the difficult Places. In this Edition are found divers Treatiſes which we had not elſewhere.

BERNARD, Son to Pepin, and Grand-Son to Charlemaigne: In the year 813 he was made King of Italy, whither he had been already ſent, under the Conduct of Vala or Galon, Son to another Bernard, his Uncle. The Archbiſhop of Milan Crowned him at Modoëce, and he valiantly repelled the Saracens, who had entred upon his Territories. Sometime after the Death of Charlemain, he perſuaded himſelf that he could dethrone Lewis the Debonnair, his Uncle, and that the Kingdom belonged to him, as Son to the Eldeſt Brother. His Plot was diſcovered in 817. his Forces fled at the firſt Noiſe of the March of thoſe of the Emperor, and as for him, he came to caſt himſelf at the Feet of this Prince, who was at Châlon upon Marne. He was carried to Aix, where he was try'd, and afterwards having his Eyes pull'd out, he dy'd three days after, the 17th of April 818. He left but one Son, named Pepin, who was Father to another Bernard, who dy'd without Iſſue. Thegan of Treves ſaith, that Bernard was a Baſtard to Pepin, but others are not of his Opinion.

BERNARD-CASTLE, a Market Town of the Biſhoprick of Durham. It ſtands on the River Tees, adjoyning to Marwood-Park. It takes its Name from one of the firſt Saxon Families that came into England.

BERNARD, Count of Barcelona, and Great Chamberlain to the King and Emperor Lewis the Meek: He was accuſed of being a Favourite of the Empreſs Judith, and even of having been too familiar with her. This Favour made him vain and arrogant, and created him Enemies; notwithſtanding he defended the Frontiers very well againſt the Saracens of Spain. In 829. he aſſiſted at the Parliament which the Emperor held at Worms about the Month of Auguſt; and the year enſuing, the Diſorders of the Royal Family having begun, he was accuſed of having been the ſole Cauſe thereof, becauſe the Three Sons which the Emperor had by his firſt Wife, would not ſuffer that Bernard ſhould be in ſuch great Favour with their Step-Mother Judith. In 831. Lewis the Meek being reconciled to his Sons, Bernard came to the Parliament at Thionville, to fight him that would accuſe him; but none preſenting himſelf, he purged himſelf by Oath. The following year, the Emperor being come into Limouſin, deprived him of his Employments. Afterwards, in 844. he was Condemned by the Grandees of the Kingdom, and put to Death. He eſpouſed a Lady named Duodena, of whom he had Two Sons, William and Bernard, who unfortunately periſhed. Thegan, Caſeneuve.

BERNARD (James) Guardian of the Franciſcans of the Convent of Rive at Geneva, having reſolved to embrace the Reformation in 1535. cauſed a Writing to be affixed to the Doors of Churches and Suburbs, in the Form of Theſes, containing Five Propoſitions againſt Maſs and the Corporeal Preſence, the Worſhip of Images, the Invocation of Saints, Purgatory, and the Monaſtical Vows, which ſhould be maintained within a Month at his Convent, under him as Preſident, by a young Fryar, named Lewis Bernard, who had already quitted his Habit. Theſe Diſputes were opened the 30th of May, and they ended about Midſummer. The Council of Geneva aſſiſted at this Action, had four Secretaries to write what ſhould be ſaid on both ſides, that all being examined at a General Aſſembly by the Syndicks, and 200 Chief Citizens, a final Reſolution might be taken about the Party they ſhould eſpouſe. In the mean time, Bernard, to let all the World ſee that he doubted not of the Truth of theſe Theſes, quitted his Habit of Monk, and a few days after married the Daughter of a Printer at Geneva. Maimbourg.

BERNARD, Youngeſt Son of Albert, Sirnam'd, the Bear, or the Fair, Prince of Aſcania, and Head of the Houſe of Saxony; as his Brother Otho the Firſt, was of that of Brandenburgh. He was much in favour with the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa, who at the Diet of Wortzburg, in the Year 1180. inveſted him with the Dutchy of Saxony, taken from Henry Leo, and added to his Arms, A Noſegay of Rue. He made Wittenberg his Seat, which was given him by the Emperor Conrade III. and built the Town of Lawenburg, after Erdemburg had been demoliſhed. He vigorouſly oppoſed Henry VI. in his deſigns of making the Empire Hereditary; and after having gain'd the Reputation of a Juſt and Generous Prince, preſerv'd his Honour untarniſh'd to his Death, which happen'd in the Year 1212. He had two Wives, Judith of Denmark, and Sophia of Thuringia: By the firſt he had Albert, the Head Branch of the Houſe of Saxony; and by the Second, Henry, who was the Chief of the Family of Anhault.

BERNARD, of Luxemburg, a Monk of the Order of St. Dominick, Living in the 16th Century. He died at Cologne in the Year 1535. and wrote Catalogus Hereticorum, in five Books. Quodlibetum de Jubileo. Tractatus de Purgatorio. De Ordinibus Militaribus, &c.

BERNARD, of Bruxelles, a famous Painter, in very great Eſteem with the Emperor Charles V. for whom he did thoſe five Pieces of Hunting, wherein he repreſented this Prince to the Life, and the moſt conſiderable of his Court, who accompanied him in this Noble Exerciſe. Theſe Hunting-Pieces have been repreſented in very fine Tapeſtries, which are to be ſeen in the Palaces of the Princes of the Houſe of Auſtria, with ſome other that have been made upon the Deſign of this excellent Painter, by the Orders of the ſame Emperor, and the Dutcheſs of Parma. Bernard made alſo at Antwerp an admirable Picture of the laſt Judgment, whoſe Field he gilded with God before he laid the Colours on, that the Luſtre of this Metal might render its upper part more radiant. He left beſides ſixteen Paſtboards, which repreſent each of them a Prince, or an Illuſtrious Princeſs of the Houſe of Naſſau, which the Prince of Orange recovered, and which John Jordans, one of the beſt Painters of Antwerp, copied in Oyl. Vaſari.

BERNARDINS, Monks founded by Robert Abbot of Molême, and afterwards of Citeaux or Ciſtercians, in Burgundy, whence they are named Monks of Citeaux. They followed the Rule of St. Benet; but becauſe their Order hath been amplify'd and render'd Famous by St. Bernard, they are named Bernardins. They have a white Robe with a black Scapulary; and when they officiate, they are Cloathed with a large Gown, which is all white, and hath great Sleeves, with a Hood of the ſame Colour. The Feuillans are properly Bernardins of a new Model, who begun in the latter Age, in the Abbey of that Name, in the Dioceſe of Rieux in Languedoc. There are alſo Nuns called Bernardins, who follow St. Benet's Order, and are Cloathed as the Bernardins.

BERNARDINUS de Sahagun, a Monk of the Order of St. Francis, Living in the latter End of the 16th, and as ſome ſay, to the 17th Century. He was a Spaniard, and Travelling to the Weſt-Indies, ſettled in Mexico, where he learned the Language of the Country, and made a Grammar and a Dictionary, beſides ſome other Treatiſes in this Language. He likewiſe wrote a Hiſtory of the Religion, Government, and Cuſtoms of the ancient Weſt-Indian Idolaters, as alſo a Treatiſe of the Conqueſt of New-Spain or Mexico. Antonio de Leon. Bibl. Indica Occident. Nicholas Antonio Bibl. Hiſp.

BERNAZZANO, of Milan, a Famous Painter, excelled in making Landskips. He repreſented Animals very well; but becauſe he could not draw Figures, he aſſociated with Cæſar de Seſto. They ſay that Bernazzano having painted ſome Landskips in Freſco againſt a Wall, where he had alſo repreſented Strawberries, ſome Ripe, and others in their Flower; there were Peacocks, which, deceived by the appearance of this Fruit, went ſo often to pick at them, that they brook down the very Walls Felibien.

BERNBURG, Bernaburgum, a Town in Germany in Upper Saxony, and the Principality of Anhalt, with the Title of County. It is upon the Confluence of Wiper and Sale, which throws it ſelf a little after into the Elbe. It is defended by a Caſtle, lies four or five Leagues from Magdebourg, and as much from Deſſau.

BERNE, Berna, a City and Canton of Suiſſerland, upon the River Aar: Berthold IV. Duke of Zeringhen, began to build that City towards the Year 1174. and Berthold V. his Son, continuing it, it was ended about the year 1191. His Name which ſignifies Bear, is the Cauſe of divers Stories. They ſay, That the Earl of Zeringhen having kill'd one of theſe Beaſts, as laying the Foundations of this City, gave it the Name of that Bear. Others do relate the thing diverſly; but however that may be, this Town gives Bears for their Coat of Arms, and the Bernois do keep ſome of theſe Beaſts in the Ditches of their City. They ſay that Berthold V. having reaſon to complain of the Inhabitants of this new City, ſubmitted it to the Empire in Frederick the Second's time, who gave the Government thereof to Otho of Ravenſpurg; but the Bernois behaved themſelves ſo well, that they were made free, and had alſo great Privileges granted them. An Earl of Kibourg would have ſubdued them, under pretence that they built a Bridge upon Aar, which they had no Right to do. This Buſineſs had evil Conſequences, but the Bernois freed themſelves, by the help of Peter Earl of Savoy, who defeated the Earl of Kibourg: His Name was Eberard of Hapsbourg, Earl of Lauffenbourg and Kibourg. The Bernois had ſo much reſpect for this Peter Earl of Savoy, that they acknowledged him for their Protector, by Treaties of the 25th of November, 1266. They add, That this Earl having amplified that City, he had the Title, not only of Defender, but alſo of Father, and ſecond Founder of Bern. In 1268. Philip Earl of Savoy was again acknowledged Protector of that City, after his Father's Death, in the Month of June that ſame Year. This Alliance re-eſtabliſhed the Liberty of Bern, which they were like to loſe in 1286. and 87. when Rodolph of Hapsbourg, elected Emperor, made War with them. They found Means to obtain Peace, and maintained themſelves till 1353. when they made Alliance with the other Cantons. In 1527. they followed the Example of the Canton of Zurick, and received the Doctrine of Zuinglius, and after having publiſhed ſome Decrees concerning Religion, they renounc'd the Pope's Authority. They ſtill continue in the ſame Profeſſion, excepting that their Doctrine is now brought to an Agreement with the Opinions of Calvin. It is a rich City, and well ſituate. There are three great Streets, whoſe Houſes are built with embelliſhed Free Stone, and Piazza's that reach almoſt over the whole City, and are very commodious to walk in in rainy dirty Weather. The ancient Church of St. Vincent, the Arſenal, and the publick Library deſerve to be ſeen. Bern is ſituate upon a low Ground, in Form of a Peninſula, made by the River Aar, which waſhes this City in three different Places, and the fourth is pretty regularly fortified with four great Baſtions, ſurrounded with a very deep Ditch that is always filled with the Water of a Neighbouring Torrent. The Canton of Bern is the greateſt and powerfulleſt of the Thirteen, having on the Eaſt thoſe of Uri, Underwall and Lucerne, and the Territory of Baden and Bremgarten; on the Weſt, the Counties of Burgundy and New-Caſtle; on the North, the Territories of Soleurre and of the Houſe of Auſtria; and on the South, the Land of Walais and Savoy, a part of France, and the Republick of Geneva. This Canton is very large, and takes up in length more than four ordinary days Journey on Horſeback, and in breadth above two; but it is not equal every where. Generally it is very fertile, and furniſheth Corn and Wines in abundance, but particularly the Country of Vaux, one of the faireſt and pleaſanteſt of the World, which reacheth betwixt Mount Jura and the Lake of Geneva, and includes a long and excellent Vineyard, commonly called the Coaſt, reaching along the ſame Lake, betwixt Lauſane and Vevay. All this Country is full of Nobility, pleaſant Cities, and fair Caſtles. This Canton generally is divided into the German and Roman Countries. The firſt is thus named, becauſe they ſpeak there the Language of the Switzers, which is as a Dialect of the German, and comprehends ſeveral Countries, as the Uppear and Lower Argow, the Higher and Lower Sybental, the Valley Hoſel, &c. with ſeveral good Cities, and great Bailiwicks. The four principal named Landtgricht, are governed by the four Banderets of the City of Bern, under the Enſigns of which, theſe Bailiwicks march to War, viz. Chonolfingen, Soeftingen, Sternemberg, and Zollighoffen. The others are, Aarbourg, Aarwangen, Biberſtein, &c. with the free Cities governed by Avoyers, who are ſent thither, as are Aarberg, Aaron, &c. The Roman Country, ſo called, becauſe the Gentry ſpeak the French Tongue, which is derived from the Roman; but the Vulgar uſe the Dialect of Savoy. This Roman Country comprehends the following Bailiwicks: Avanches, Lauſanne, Morges, Moudon, Nion, Oron, Romamoutier, Vevay, and Yverdun; with four others that the Bernois jointly poſſeſs with thoſe of Fribourg, viz. Morat, Echalans, Granſon, and Schartzenbourg. It alſo contains the Mandemens of Aigle, Oulon, Bex, and Ormont, the Government of Bonmont, in times paſt an Abbey, at the Foot of Mount Jura near Nion, and the Baronies of Aubonne, Chattelar, &c. As for the City of Payerne, it enjoyeth great Privileges, and hath its Avoyer taken from amongſt their Burgeſſes to govern it, but confirmed by the Lords of Bern, who keep there a Schafner or Receiver, that dwells in the Abbey, and is as a Baily, though he hath no Juriſdiction in the City, but only upon two or three neighbouring Villages. The City of Bern ſtands 14 miles North-Eaſt of Friburg, 50 South of Baſil, 54 South-Weſt of Zurich, and 74 North-Eaſt of Geneva. Long.27. 1. Lat.46. 45. Before the Change of Religion, Bern depended, as to Spirituals, on the Biſhop of Lauſane; but in 1528. there was a Conſiſtory of Eight Judges eſtabliſhed in it, two of the ſmall Council, four of the Great, and two Miniſters, with a Secretary and an Officer. As to the Politick Government, it depends on two Councils, the Great and the Little: The Great is compoſed of 200 Men, who repreſent the Sovereign Magiſtrate, and there is no Appeal from their Arreſts. The Little is of 26 Senators, who aſſemble every day for the Affairs of State; and the Head of theſe two Councils is called in High-Dutch Schaltheſch, a Word which is often found in the Laws of the Lombards, and in French Avoyer. Simler Republique des Suiſſes.

BERNINI, (John Lawrence) commonly called Cavaliero Bernin, was originally of Tuſcany, and born at Naples. He excelled in the Knowledge of Painting as well as in Sculpture, Architecture, and the Mechanicks. He began to appear under the Pontificate of Paul V. who foretold the Greatneſs which he roſe to afterwards, at ſeeing his firſt Works. Rome is beholding to him for its greateſt Ornaments. They reckon in the ſole Church of St. Peter, fifteen different Works of his Invention, whereof one might ſuffice to eternize his Memory. Amongſt theſe, the moſt admir'd are, the great Altar and the Tabernacle; St. Peter's Chair; the Tombs of Urbane VIII. and Alexander VII. the Statue of Conſtantine the Emperor on Horſeback; the Columnate, i. e. the Portico's, ſupported by a great Number of Pillars, which ſurround the Court of St. Peter; the Fountain in the Square Navonna; the Church of St. Andrews for the Novitiate Jeſuits, which looks like a Jewel in Architecture; the Statue of Daphne, in the Palace of the Family of the Borgheſe. In 1665. Bernini was called into France to work on the Deſign of the Louvre, and there he made the King's Statue to the Middle, which got him the Applauſe of the whole Court. He returned with a Brevet of 2000 Crowns Penſion, that his Majeſty gave him, which made him undertake the Statue of the King on Horſeback. It may be ſaid that he was the Michael-Angelo-Buonaroti of our days, having excelled in the Practice of all the Liberal Arts, almoſt during an Age, and even in Italian Poeſie. He was ſomewhat auſtere in Humour, haſty and violent; which is well marked in a Statue of himſelf drawn to the Middle, newly come to Paris, that is ſo done to the Life, that it may be compared with the Maſterpieces of that Art. He died at Rome the 29th of November, 1680. being 82 years of Age.

BERNON, or Berno, a Monk of St. Gal, and afterwards Abbot of Richnou, near the Lake of Conſtance; a German, and living in the 11th Century. He wrote a Treatiſe De Officio Miſſæ, or De Rebus ad Officium Miſſæ pertinentibus, now in the Bibliotheca Patrum. He wrote likewiſe the Life of St. Ulricus, Biſhop of Augsburg; Sigebert and Trithemius make him the Author of ſeveral other Treatiſes, as, *De Muſica, ſeu Tonis. Lib.*11. De Inſtrumentis Muſicis. De Adventu Domini ad Aribonem. De jejunio Quatuor Temporum. De jejunio Sabbati, &c. Baronius A. C. 1014. *Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Lib.*2. *c.*44.

BERNSTADT, Bernardi Urbs, a Town of Germany in Sileſia. It is upon the River Veid or Veida, in the Dutchy of Olſs, about three or four Leagues off Breſlau, Capital of Sileſia.

BERNULF, King of Mercia, uſurped the Crown from Kelwulf, his Predeceſſor, in the Year 828. He reigned three Years, during which he was overthrown by Egbert at Ellanduna, and flying to the Eaſt-Angles, he was by them ſlain.

BEROALDUS, (Philip) born at Bononia in Italy, one of the moſt Learned Perſons in the 15th Century. He Profeſſed Humanity at Paris, Parma, and elſewhere; and the Works which he has left us, are ſufficient Proof of his being Maſter of all the Delicacies in that ſort of Learning. His Works were printed at Baſil, in 1513.

BEROALDUS, (Philip) Son to him above-mention'd, was Library-keeper in the Vatican to Pope Leo X. Lilius Giraldus makes him one of the beſt Poets of his time, and Eraſmus mentions him to advantage in Ciceron. Paulus Jovius in Elog. Cap. 51. & Lib. 3. De Vita Leonis X. Voſſius, De Hiſt. Lat. Lib. 3. Poſſevin in Appar. &c.

BERODACH Baladan. See Merodach.

BEROE, Beræa, and Berrhæa, a City of Syria, renowned in the Works of the Ancients, was re-eſtabliſhed by Solimus Nicanor. Some Authors make it Aleppo. It had the Seat of an Archbiſhoprick under the Patriarchate of Antioch. Others eſteem Alep to be Hierapolis.

BEROE, or Berea, Beræa, or Berrhæa, a City of Macedonia, near the River Lydius, which ſome Moderns call Caſtoroſtrabo. Pliny and Ptolemy ſpeak of this City, upon which the Moderns have various Conjectures.

BEROSUS, or Beroſſus, named by the Greeks Βηρωσὸς, that is Son to Oſé or Oſeas, was a Chaldean born, and Prieſt of Belus. Authors do ſpeak diverſly of his Age, and Clement Alexandrinus ſeems to ſay, that Beroſus lived in Alexander the Great's time, which may be, but then he muſt have been very young, for it is more certain, that he was in eſteem in the time of Ptolemæus Philadelphus King of Egypt, the 126th Olympiad, the 478 Year of Rome, 3778 of the World, and about 276 before the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt. He writ in three Books, a Hiſtory of Chaldæa, which the ancient Authors ſpoke well of, and of which we have now but ſome Fragments in Joſephus. For as to the Hiſtory that bears his Name, all learned Men are perſuaded that it is a Cheat of Annius of Viterbo. Beroſus dedicated his Work, either to Antiochus Soter, King of Syria, who began to Reign in 473 of Rome, or to Antiochus II. his Son, called the God, who ſucceeded him in the 129th Olympiad, and 492 of Rome; but it is more likely that it was to the Firſt. The Athenians had ſo much Conſideration for this great Man, that they erected a Statue for him, as we are informed by Pliny. Juſtin Martyr ſaith, that Beroſus was Father of the Sibylla Cumana: And if that be ſo, ſhe differs from her that lived in the Time of Tarquinius. Pliny, St. Juſtin.

BERRI, a Province of France, with the Title of Dutchy, Bituricenſis Provincia. It hath the Bourbonnois and the Nivernois on the Eaſt, Tourain on the Weſt, La Marche on the South, and the Sologne on the North. The River Cher divides it into two Parts. Bourges is its Capital: The others are Iſſoudun, Sanceerre, Argenton, la Chaſtre, Chateau-roux, S. Aignan, Le Blanc, Graſſai, Chateau-neuf upon Cher, Lignères, Sainte Severe, Valancai, Aubigni, Vatan, Buzancais, Monfaucon, &c. This Province abounds in Corn, Wine, Paſture, Cattle, &c. There is admirable Wooll in it, which makes the Cloth of Berri to be ſought for, whereof there are ſeveral Manufacturies. It is watered by divers Rivers, which render the Country fertile and pleaſant. The Principal is the Cher: The others are Indre, Auron, Auret, Eure or Yere, Arnon, &c. The Berruiers or Bituriges were in times paſt famous amongſt the People of Gaul for their Courage, and for the Conqueſts they made in Germany and Italy, having held the Empire of the Gauls, eſpecially of the Gallia Celtica, a pretty long time, and it was they that gave Cæſar the greateſt Trouble. He ſaith himſelf that the Berruiers burned Twenty of their Cities, fearing they ſhould become a Prey to the Conquerors. However, Bourges was taken. After that time Berri was ſubject to the Romans, and then to the French, making part of the Kingdom of Aquitain. Upon the Declining of the Second Race of the French Kings, the Province of Berri had particular Lords, who took the Title of Earls of Bourges, as Herard, William the Devout, Bernard, &c. Geofrey, who lived under Hugh Capet, left Harpin or Herpin, who, willing to go on a Voyage to the Holy Land, ſold Bourges to King Philip the Firſt, for 60000 Sols of Gold. From that time the County of Bourges was united to the Crown until 1360. that King John erected it into a Dutchy and Peerdom for John of France his Son, on condition, that it ſhould return to the Crown upon Default of Male Children. The King of Berri was named Ambigat, in the time of Tarquinius Priſcus, the Fifth King of Rome. We do not know the Name of thoſe who ſucceeded him; but Livy tells us, that two Nephews of Ambigat, Sons to his Siſter, named Segoveſus, and Belloveſus, ſignalized themſelves by the famous Colonies which they led into Germany and Italy. Segoveſus having paſſed the Rhine, and gone through the Foreſt Hircinia, now called the Black Foreſt, eſtabliſhed part of his People in Bohemia, the other upon the Borders of the Danube, and the third in Freezeland and Weſtphalia, whence came the ancient French, who more than a Thouſand years after, under Faramond and Clodion, paſſed the Rhine to conquer part of Gaul, that was the Country of their Anceſtors. Belloveſus took his way towards Italy, paſſed the Alps, and became Maſter of the Country, which ſince was called Lombardy. His Conqueſts gave the Name of Gallia Ciſalpina to the beſt part of Italy. This generous Expedition was made about the year of the World, 3464. the year 164 of the Foundation of Rome, and 591 years before the Birth Jeſus Chriſt. P. Labbe Hiſtoir Chronologick.

BERSARIANS, or Berverarians, certain under Officers of the Court of Charlemaigne. Some take the Berſarians for thoſe which the Ancients named Beſtiarii, and were condemned to fight for their Lives againſt Beaſts in the Amphitheatres. Spelman puts them amongſt Hunters, and chiefly thoſe who attacked Wolves; and by Beverarians, he underſtands thoſe who went to hunt after Caſtors, which moſt Nations name Bever.

BERSHEBA, or Beerſheba, a City of Paleſtin, on the ſide of Gaza, and the ſame which hath been ſince taken for Gibelin, according to Volaterran, Bochart, and ſome others. The Name of Beerſheba was given it ſometime after the League made between Abraham and Abimelech, as it is related in Geneſis, Ch. 21. It became afterwards the Lot of the Tribe of Simeon, as we ſee it in the Book of Joſhua.

BERTHE, or Edithberge, Daughter to Charibert King of France and Ingoberge, was Married to Ethelbert King of Kent, about the end of the Sixth Century. This Prince was a Heathen; but Queen Berthe drew him, by her Example and Virtue, to the Chriſtian Religion.

BERTHE, or Bertrade, whom ſome Hiſtorians have Sirnamed Great-Foot, was Daughter to Charibert Earl of Laon. She Married Pepin the Short, afterwards King of France, and was Mother to Charlemain, Carloman, &c. She died at Choiſſy, July 22. 783. and was interred at St. Denys by the King her Husband.

BERTHE, Daughter to Lotharius II. and Valrada, in the Tenth Century, was one of the moſt Illuſtrious Princeſſes of her time; She was Beautiful, Courageous, and of ſuch Wit, that ſhe could manage all ſorts of Affairs. She Married firſt Theobaldus Earl of Arles, of whom ſhe had Hugh, who was King of Arles, and afterwards of Italy in 928. After the Death of the Earl Theobald, being ſtill very young, ſhe made a ſecond Marriage with Adalbert, or Adelbert, Marquis of Toſcany, called the Rich; who was not ſo conſiderable in Wit as in Riches; and the Princeſs his Wife would ſay unto him ſometimes in Jeſt, That ſhe muſt make him either a King or an Aſs; ſo much did the good Man ſuffer himſelf to be led by her. She made a League to deſtroy Berenger King of Italy, whom Adelbert had eſtabliſhed upon the Throne, and ſhe managed it pretty well; but ſhe loſt her Husband, and this Loſs broke her Meaſures. She had by this ſecond Marriage Guy, and Lambert, Marquiſſes of Toſcany, and Hermengard Married to Adelbert Marquis of Ivre. After the Death of the Marquis of Toſcany, Berenger ſeized on Berthe, and Guy her Son, and ſent them Priſoners to Mantua, having firſt propoſed unto them that they ſhould yield to him the ſtrongeſt Towns and Caſtles of Toſcany; but Berthe refuſed it Courageouſly. As ſhe had great Wit, Beauty, and Riches, ſhe equally employed thoſe Advantages; and Berenger was at laſt forced to ſet her at Liberty, after having, perhaps, loſt his own. She did not ſurvive this Prince a long time; for Berenger was killed in 924. and Berthe died in 925. at Luca, where her Tomb is to be ſeen, with an Epitaph that contains an Abridgment of her Life, and ſpeaks of her Wit, and the Earneſt Deſire which thoſe of Quality had for her Converſation.

BERTHOLD of Rorbarch, a Heretick in the Fourteenth Age, who Preached the Opinions of the Beguards; and that Jeſus Chriſt was ſo deſerted at his Paſſion, that he doubted of his Salvation; They compell'd him firſt to abjure theſe pretended Errors at Wirtzburg in Germany; but having afterwards taught them at Spire, he was burned there in 1359.

BERTHOLDUS, Sirnamed Niger, or the Black, a Chymiſt, and according to ſome, a Monk of Germany; It's ſaid he invented Fire-Arms, and Gunpowder, upon a caſual Experiment; for having put Powder of Brimſtone into a Mortar, and covered it with a Stone, in order to prepare, and turn it into a Medicine, it happened that by ſtriking Fire hard by, a Sparkle fell into the Mortar, fired the Powder, and made the Stone fly off. This put him in the head to make an Iron Pipe, reſembling the Barrels of Guns and Muskets; which ſucceeding, he ſhewed the Uſe on't to the Venetians, who made their Advantage of it in the Battel of Chioza, againſt the Genoeſe in 1380.

BERTIN, or Bertini (George) an Eminent Phyſician, Living in the latter end of the Sixteenth Century. He was born in Terra di Lavoro, in Italy; and wrote Medicina methodice abſoluta, in 22 Books; De Conſultationibus Medicorum, &c. Vander Lindin de Script. Medic.

BERTINORO, or Bertinaro, Britinorium, Bretinorium, and Petra-Honorii, a Town of Italy in Romania, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Ravenna; It belongs to the Pope, and is ſituated on the Frontiers of Tuſcany, upon a Hill near the River Ronco, or Bodeſe, not far from Ravenna, Faenza, Coſença, &c. The Biſhoprick was in times paſt at Forlimpopoli, which is now a ſmall Borough near Bertinoro.

BERTIUS, Born at Beures, a little Town in Flanders, in 1565. He travell'd into moſt Parts of Europe, was well accompliſhed in the Polite part of Learning, and profeſs'd Humanity at Leyden almoſt 26 years; but being at laſt of Arminius's Perſuaſion, he was turn'd out, and forc'd to leave Holland: Upon this Occaſion, he travell'd into France, and turn'd Roman Catholick in Paris, where he died, having been ſometime Coſmographer to Lewis XIII. His Works are, Commentaria rerum Germanicarum, Lib. 3. Ptolemæi Geographia. Breviarium totius Orbis Terrarum. Logica Peripatetica, &c. Meurſius Athen. Batav. Valerius Andreas Bibl. Belg. &c.

BERTOLDE, Lord of Mirebeau in the Province of Peiton, ſeeing himſelf not able to defend the Place againſt the Army of St. Lewis, which was not far from it, in 1242. went to caſt himſelf at the Feet of Henry III. King of England, to whom this City was ſubject at that time, and asked him, if he might hope for any Succour? Or if he would have him hold out to the laſt Extremity? Henry touched with this Zeal, and not being able to relieve him with any Troops, permitted him to ſave himſelf with his Family as he could. Bertholde afterwards came into the Camp of St. Lewis, to promiſe him Obedience; but he appeared with a ſurpriſing Reſolution, and ſpoke thus to that Prince; I am yours, Sir, but look not upon me as leſs ſubdued by force, than if I had been taken fighting. If the King, my old Maſter, had not given me to my Family, you ſhould not have had me after this manner; as I ſhall never ceaſe to be yours, till you ceaſe to care for me. Then the King ſtretching his hand to him; I receive you, ſaith he, with joy; and be you joyful in like manner: Remain Maſter of your Place, and keep it for me. Hiſt. St. Lewis.

BERTRAM, a Monk, of the Order of St. Dominick. He liv'd in the 14th Century, was Suffragan to the Biſhop of Metz, and very conſiderable for his Learning. He left ſeveral Tracts behind him, particularly two, De Schiſmate, & Illuſionibus Dæmonum. Trethemius de Script. Eccl. Poſſevin. Sixtus Sinenſis, &c.

BERTRAM, (Cornelius) a Profeſſor of the Hebrew Tongue at Geneva; He publiſh'd ſome Works, and amongſt others, a Republick of the Hebrews, which is ſhort and methodical. But that which gave him moſt reputation amongſt thoſe of his Party is, That he is the firſt who Tranſlated the whole Bible into French from the Hebrew, with the aſſiſtance of ſome other Miniſters; which Tranſlation has been uſed ever ſince by the French Hugonots.

St. BERTRAND, Biſhop of Mans, was of the Blood-Royal, and of the Houſe of the Princes of Aquitain Theodebert and Thierry, having won the Battel againſt the King of France, Clotharius II. their Couſin, who yielded to theſe Princes the greateſt Part of his Kingdom, the City of Mans fell to the Lot of King Thierry; This Prince immediately urged Bertrand to quit the Party of Clotharius, and take the Oath of Allegiance to him. And upon the denial of this Prelate, he deprived him of his Biſhoprick and Goods, and ſent him into Captivity; but Bertrand was re-eſtabliſhed after the Death of theſe two Princes, when Clotharius had recovered the Province of Maine. This Illuſtrious Prelate died in the year 624. the 70 of his Age, and the 38 of his Governing the Church.

BERTRAND, Earl of Provence, was Son to Geofrey and Stephana, called the Sweet, whom he ſucceeded about the year 1063. He join'd with Pope Gregory VII. againſt the Emperor Henry IV. whom he had a deſire to drive from Provence, and oppoſed, on that Account, Aicard, Archbiſhop of Arles, who favoured the ſame Prince. Earl Bertrand died about the year 1090. and it is not known whether he left any Children by Matrand his Wife; for there is no certainty that Gilbert, who ſucceeded him, was his Son.

BERTRAND, the Sirname of a Family of Toulouſe, that has produced ſeveral Wiſe Magiſtrates and Illuſtrious Perſons. One Nicholas Bertrand, of this Family, liv'd in the Reign of Francis the Firſt, was Advocate to the Parliament of Toulouſe, and Profeſſor of Law. He wrote a Book called Geſta Toloſanorum; and another, De Juris-conſultis, in which there is a great deal of Learning. La Croix du Maine gives him a great Character.

BERTRAND, (Peter) Son to Blaiſe of Montluc, Lived under the Reign of Charles IX. King of France: That his Country ſhould not yield to the Portugueſes, he formed a Deſign to build a Fort in ſome place of the Kingdoms of Mozambick, Melinda, or Manicongo, that might ſerve the French as a Retreat for their Commerce into Africk and the Eaſt-Indies. For this end, he had Armed three great Men of War and ſome Barks, into which he put 1200 ſtout Men; but the Tempeſt having caſt him upon the Coaſt of Madera, and his Men being willing to go aſhore to take in Water, the Portugueſe received them with Cannon-ſhots, and ſallied upon them to cut them to pieces. Bertrand, incens'd at their violating the Law of Nations, and the Alliance betwixt the Crown of France and Portugal, Landed 800 Men, and made ſtreight towards them, whilſt his Brother Fabian attack'd them behind, having kill'd moſt of them: He immediately went to the City, which bears the Name of the Iſle, planted his Cannon, and took, and ranſack'd it; but as he attacked the great Church, where ſome of the Garriſon ſtill defended themſelves, he was wounded in the Thigh, whereof he died ſome few days after; and thus this worthy Undertaking remained without ſucceſs. Mezeray.

BERTRAND of Rheims, an Hermit, of the City whoſe Name he bore, Lived a long time very Religiouſly in the Foreſt of Portenay, and that of Glancon near Tournay, whither he withdrew juſt when it was ſaid, That Earl Baldwin, Emperor of Conſtantinople, had made his Eſcape from the Infidels, and lived in an Hermitage. This Conjuncture juncture made ſome believe that Bertrand was Earl Baldwin; and at firſt, the Monk accepted the Honours which were rendred him as ſuch; and afterwards affirm'd, That the Opinion which Men had of him was true; and ſuffered himſelf to be magnificently treated in the Cities of Flanders and Hainault, where he was received with much Joy: But this Cheat having been found out, he was convicted of Impoſture, and hang'd at Liſle in Iron Chains, in 1225. However, others are of Opinion, That this pretended Bertrand was the true Baldwin, whom Counteſs Joan, his Daughter, choſe rather to hang, than to yield her Crown to him. See de Rocolles.

BERTRAND, (Peter) called the Elder, was Cardinal-Biſhop of Autun, Son to Mat. Bertrand, born at Anonay in Vivarets. He ſtudied the Law from his Youth, and was Doctor of the Canon and Civil Branches of it: He profeſs'd this part of Learning at the Univerſities of Avignon, Montpelier, Orleans, and Paris. His great Attainments in this Faculty made him admired by the Men of Letters in the Pope's Court, and likewiſe at that of Paris, where King Philip the Long, or the Tall, had a particular Eſteem for him. It happen'd that the Lay-Judges complain'd of the Extent of the Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, and that it was inconſiſtent with that of the Prince. King Philip of Valois, being willing to put an end to this Controverſie, which might have ill Conſequences, convened the Prelates and Barons of the Realm at Paris. Peter de Cugnieres, the King's Council, pleaded for the Lay-Judges; and this Bertrand, Biſhop of Autun, was Council on the other ſide, who ſupported the Rights of the Clergy ſo well, that the King gave Judgment for them. This Prelate died at Avignon, in 1348. His Defence of the Rights of the Clergy may be ſeen in the Bibliotheca Patrum, and elſewhere. He likewiſe wrote a Book De Origine & Uſu Juriſdictionum. P. Æmilius, Du Tillet, Mezeray Hiſt. de France, Spond. A. C. 1329. Bellarm. de Script. Eccl. &c.

BERTRAND d'Argentre, Lieutenant-General, or High Steward of Rennes in Brittany. We have a Hiſtory of Brittany of his Compoſure, which he undertook at the Requeſt of the States of that Province. He had finiſhed other Works, which he had not leiſure to Print; for being obliged to quit Renne during the unhappy Factions of the League, he died of Grief, Feb. 13. 1590. 71 years of Age. He wrote ſuch Learned Remarks upon the Cuſtoms of Brittany, that the moſt Learned Lawyers, and particularly Cha. du Moulin, give him a high Character. Thuan.

St. BERTRANT, a handſome City of France in the Government of Gaſcoigny, chief Place of the County of Coſerans, and a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Aux; It's ſituate on the River Garonne, 44 miles S. of Aux, and 38 S. E. of Tarbe. Long. 18. 53 Lat. 42. 54.

BERTUE, (Robert) the preſent Earl of Lindſey, is the Son of Montague, Son of Robert Bertue, Lord Willoughby of Eresby, and Lord Great Chamberlain of England, who was created Earl of Lindſey in Lincolnſhire, by King Charles I. An. 1626. and ſlain in His Majeſty's Service at Edge-hill Fight, Octob. 23. 1642. In which Battel was alſo his Eldeſt Son Montague, Father of the preſent Earl, who ſeeing his Father wounded and taken Priſoner, voluntarily yielded himſelf to a Commander of Horſe on the Rebel's ſide, that he might attend his Father; and when upon exchange of Priſoners he was ſet at liberty, he perſiſted in the King's Service. This Family fetches its Deſcent from Tho. Bertue of Bereſted in Kent, Captain of Hurſt-Caſtle in the Iſle of Wight, whoſe Son Richard, in the Reign of Edw. VI. married the Lady Katharine, Dutcheſs-Dowager of Suffolk, ſole Daughter and Heir to William the laſt Lord Willoughby of Eresby; by whom he had, amongſt other Children, his Eldeſt Son Peregrine, ſo called becauſe he was born beyond Sea in the time of their flight from Perſecution in the Reign of Queen Mary, which Peregrine was the Father of Robert aforeſaid, the Grandfather of the preſent Earl, and firſt Earl of Lindſey. To this Family belongs, by Right of Inheritance, ſince the Death of Henry de Vere, the Title and Dignity of Lord Great Chamberlain of England; the Duties of which Office are, at the King's Coronation-Day, to wait upon Him with His Shirt and other Garments; to be Chief in Dreſſing of Him, and hold Him a Baſon of Water, both before and after Dinner: For this Service the Lord Chamberlain is allow'd 40 Ells of Scarlet-colour'd Silk to make his Chamberlain's Robe; the Bed and Furniture belonging to it, in which the King lies the Night before; the Baſon and Towel which he holds with Water; and, laſtly, the Cup which he preſents the King to drink, after his Lordſhip taſtes the Wine. The Arms of this Family are Argent, three Battering Rams Barways, in Pale Azure, Armed and Hoop'd, Or, two Lattices or Frettee-Azure.

BERTUE, (James) Earl of Abington, Half-Brother of Robert the preſent Earl of Lindſey, is the Son of Montague the late Earl of Lindſey, by Bridget his 2d Wife: He was firſt created Baron Norris of Ricot in Oxfordſhire, by K. Charles II. and afterwards Earl of Abington in Berkſhire, An. 1682. The Title of Baron Norris was in his Mother's Family before, being Daughter and ſole Heir of Edward Wray Eſq; by Elizabeth his Wife, only Daughter and Heireſs of Francis Lord Norris, Earl of Berkſhire. As for his Paternal Deſcent, ſee Bertue Earl of Lindſey.

BERTULF, King of Mercia; but the Weſt-Saxons ſucceeded to Withlof, Anno 839. The Danes coming upon him, routed his whole Army, and forced him beyond Sea.

BERULLE, (Peter) a Cardinal, Founder of the Congregation of the Oratory in France, confirm'd by Pope Paul V. in 1613. was born of a Noble Family, originally of Champagne. He made a Vow, That he would accept of no Eccleſiaſtical Dignity; but Pope Urban VIII. diſpenſed with it, and commanded him to accept of a Cardinal's Hat in 1627. which he obey'd, and died as ſaying Maſs, Octob. 2. 1629. St. Marth. Gal. Chriſt.

BERWALD, a Town in Germany belonging to the Elector of Brandenburgh, famous for the League made there in 1631. between the Kings of France and Sweden, and the Princes of Germany. It is on the other ſide of the River Oder, in the New Marquiſate of Brandenburgh, between Conigsberg, Landſperg, Soldin, Furſtenfeld, &c.

BERYLLUS, Biſhop of Boſtra in Arabia, lived about An. 240. He governed his Church very well for ſome time; but afterwards fell into Hereſie, maintaining that the Son of God had not an Eſſence diſtinct from that of the Father before the Incarnation. Several Biſhops endeavoured by their Conferences to reclaim him; but Origen prevailed by force of Argument. Theſe Conferences were long preſerved; and St. Jerome teſtifies, That in his time the Dialogues of Origen and Beryllus were to be ſeen; whom, for this reaſon, he puts amongſt the Eccleſiaſtical Writers.

BERYTE, or Barut, upon the Mediterranean Sea, a City of Aſia in Phœnicia, which in times paſt had an Archbiſhoprick under the Patriarch of Antioch: It is ancient, and mentioned by Strabo, Pliny, and Ptolemy. Baldwin I. King of Jeruſalem, the Earl Tancrede, and other Princes, with the help of the Genoa Fleet, took this City in April, Anno 1110. They eſtabliſh'd particular Lords in it; and ſome time after, Gautier exchanged it with the King of Jeruſalem for Blanchegarde. Barut was then an important City; but being taken by the Infidels, after the loſs of the Kingdom of Jeruſalem, it was almoſt ruined, and hath now but a ſmall Commerce. It lies between Tripoli and Saide, not far from Damaſcus and Mount Lebanon. There was a Council here in 448. to examine the Accuſations of the Prieſts of Edeſſa, againſt Ibas their Prelate, Daniel of Carres in Meſopotamia, and John of Batenes. They imputed to the firſt, That he ſaid, He could be made ſuch as Jeſus Chriſt made God; which he denied. They produced, beſides the Fragment of a Letter, another written by him to Maris. It is the ſame which ſince occaſioned a great Conteſtation in the Church. They ſaid, That, in this Letter, Ibas called St. Cyril a Heretick; but as it had been written before the Reconciliation of this Prelate with John of Antioch, theſe things were not conſidered, and Ibas was declared Orthodox. This Town is five miles North from Sidon.

BESANçON upon the Doux, a City and Archbiſhop's See of the Franche-Comte in Burgundy, with an Univerſity and Parliament, that hath for Suffragans Belai, Lauſane, and Baſle. In times paſt it had others, as Nion, Avrenches, Wiflisbourg, Yverdun, and Colimar; but theſe Towns are not now Epiſcopal Sees. Beſançon is Great, Fair, and Ancient; but it's ſcarcely credible that the Trojans were the Founders of it. It hath yet ſome Illuſtrious Remains of Antiquity. The Druides exerciſed their Religion in it; which afterwards yielded to that of the Romans, who conquer'd the Gauls, and valued Beſançon for its Situation: Divers Quarters of it have ſtill the Roman Names; as, Campus Martius, Vicus Veneris, &c. and Urns, Medals, and Inſtruments of Sacrifice, are daily found here. Beſançon was then a very flouriſhing City, and the Romans neglected nothing that could forward Traffick, make the Laws firm, or entice Strangers thither. It continued ſo for two or three Ages, eſpecially under the Empire of Aurelian, about 274. when they erected a Triumphal Arch for him, whoſe Remains are yet to be ſeen: But a little while after, this City was taken and ruined by the Germans and Marcomans, who entred Gaul with Crocus. It was ruinous when Julian the Apoſtate paſſed through it in 356. as he ſaith, writing to the Philoſopher Maximus: Some time after, Beſançon was rebuilt: but attack'd by the Vandals, who could not take it, in 406. About 413. it was ſubdued by the Burgundians; and Attila ruined it a ſecond time in 451. or 52. It was again built in the ſame ſituation which it now hath. The River Doux divides it into two unequal Parts, the greateſt whereof, in the form of an Iſthmus, is ſhut up by a Mountain, upon which a Citadel hath been built of late. The City lies in a Plain, on the Bank of the River which parts it from the other half, whither they paſs upon a Stone Bridge. It was a long while a Free and Imperial City, and the Emperors gave it divers Privileges. Ferdinand I. Founded the Univerſity about 1564. It was afterwards under the Spaniards, till Lewis XIV. took it with the reſt of the Franche-Comté, in the beginning of 1668. and reſtored it a little while after by the Treaty of Aix la Chapelle: But in 1674. he retook not only the City of Beſançon, where they had built a Citadel, tho' they had promiſed the contrary, but all the Franche-Comté too. 'Tis a Noble and Strong City, being fortified both by Art and Nature: The neighbouring Mountains are covered with Woods and Vines; and the adjacent Fields are ſo fruitful in Corn, that it's reputed the Granary of Burgundy. Authors do name this City variouſly, Veſontio, Biſuntium, Veſuntium, and ſometimes Chryſopolis. It hath had two Metropolitan Churches, St. Stephen and St. John. The Chapter of the Church of Beſançon is compoſed of a Dean, an Archdeacon, a Chaunter, a Treaſurer, 2 Under-Chaunters, 43 Canons, and 24 Chaplains. The Dioceſe contains about 780 Pariſhes, 15 Deanaries, and 5 Archdeaconries. They pretend that St. Linus was the firſt Prelate of that City, and the Apoſtle of the Franche-Comte. Its Archbiſhops are Princes of the Empire. There are ſtill at Beſançon divers Collegiate Churches and Pariſhes, the Abbeys of St. Vincent and Paul, a great many Eccleſiaſtical and Religious Houſes, with a College of Jeſuits. The City is great, and well built; the Streets are clean, and there are every where fine Houſes, with a great many magnificent Places and Fountains: That of the Town-Houſe is moſt conſiderable; for an Eagle with a double Head (being the Arms of Beſançon) bearing the Statue of King Charles V. and ſpouting Water by its two Bills. Beſides this Building, the Palaces of Cantecroix and Granvelle deſerve to be ſeen by Strangers, for their great number of Statues and Pictures.

BESCHEBIEN, (Peter) Biſhop of Chartres, was born at Blois about 1380. of an ancient and conſiderable Family; he was very Learned in Phyſick and Divinity. Mary of Sicily, Queen of France, Wife to King Charles VII. choſe him for her Phyſician. He died in 1459. It is remarked on this occaſion, That in the paſt Ages, almoſt all the Phyſicians to Popes, Kings, and other Sovereigns, have been Clergy-men; and particularly, that Profeſſors of Phyſick and of the Law, had not the liberty to Marry; and it was but in 1452. that the Cardinal of Eſtouteville, Legate in France, brought them a Permiſſion from Rome to Marry. Berniere Hiſt. de Blois.

BESLY, (John) the French King's Advocate in the City of Fontenay in Poitou, whereof he was a Native, had a perfect Knowledge of the Antiquities of France, as appears by his Works; but chiefly his Hiſtory of the Earls of Poitou, which his Son Printed with ſome other Pieces. He hath alſo written ſeveral Treatiſes inſerted in divers Authors, and cited by the Learnedſt of that Age. Colomiers Biblioth. Choiſie.

BESSARABIA, a great Province of Europe, belonging to the Turks; it's betwixt Podolia, Moldavia, and the Mouths of the Danube, along the Black Sea, near the Country of Budziack, about the Mouth of the Nieſter, where the Drobrace Tartars inhabit. Moncaſtro, now Budziack, is the Capital City.

BESSARION, a Cardinal, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and Archbiſhop of Nice; he lived in the 15th Age, and was born at Trebizonde, a City on the Borders of Armenia in Aſia. Georgie Gemiſte Pletho, one of the Learnedeſt Men of his time, was his Maſter, under whom he made a great Progreſs in Sciences. He took the Habit of the Order of St. Baſil, and his Merit cauſed him to be choſen Biſhop of Nice. After that, joining with the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and Archbiſhop of Ruſſia, they perſuaded the Emperor John Paleologus to promote the Union of the Greek Church with the Latin: For this Deſign they paſſed into Italy, to go to Ferrara, where Pope Eugenius IV. had aſſigned the Council, which was afterwards transferred to Florence. Beſſarion made a Speech there; and having ſubſcribed the Doctrine of the Church of Rome, the Pope gave him a Cardinal's Hat in 1439. After that, he writ againſt Alexis Laſcaris, George Palamas, and Mark of Epheſus, Metropolitan of Antioch, who perſuaded the Emperor and Greek Prelates to ſhake off the Yoak of Rome. Several Popes choſe him for their Legate: But the Legation of France coſt him his Life; for Sixtus IV. having ordered him at the ſame time to viſit the Duke of Burgundy, the Cardinal paid his firſt Viſit to the Duke; which King Lewis XI. took ſo ill, that as he preſented himſelf to the Audience, he put his Hand upon his great Beard, and ſaid unto him, and commanded him to be ſo ſpeedily diſpatched, that he might eaſily perceive his Stay was no more pleaſing to him than his Indiſcretion. The Reſentment of this grieved him ſo, that a little while after, returning to Rome, he died, and was interred in a Chapel of the Church of St. Peter. Paulus Jovius ſaith, That after the Death of Paul II. the Cardinals had elected Beſſarion for Pope; and that three of them being gone to his Houſe to tell him the News, Nicholas Perrot, his Chamberlain, would never open the Cloſet-door to them where the Cardinal ſtudied; ſo that they choſe Sixtus IV. They ſay, That Beſſarion, being inform'd of what had paſſed, teſtified his Reſentment to his Servant thus: Perrot, ſaid he, your Uncivility loſt me the Triple Crown, and you a Cardinal's Hat. Beſſarion's Houſe was a Receptacle of the Learned: He had a very fine Library, which he had enriched with 30000 Crowns worth of Greek Books; this Library he gave to the Senate of Venice, who keep it ſtill with Veneration. Beſſarion admired the Doctrine of Plato, and wrote againſt George of Trebizond, who preferred Ariſtotle. He neglected nothing which might render this Philoſopher Commendable. He left ſeveral other Works of Philoſophy and Divinity, which we have ſeparately, with his Orations and Epiſtles. It were to be wiſhed that ſome would take the pains to collect into one Volume all the Works of this Great Man. Paul. Jovius, Le Miré.

BESSUM, a Town of Auvergne, within a quarter of a mile of a Hill called the Golden Mountain, on the top of which is a large Lake of unfathomable depth, although no Water runs into it: It has this remarkable Quality, That if any thing be thrown into it, there ſtreight follows Thunder, Lightning, Rain, and Hail. Mitellius.

BESSUS, General of the Bactrians, and Governour of the Province of Bactria. After the Battel of Arbella, in the 424th of Rome, and 112th Olympiad, he Aſſaſſinated Darius laſt King of the Perſians, and took the Title of King. Spithamenes, or, according to others, Ptolemeus Lagus, took Beſſus two years after, and ſent him to Alexander, who reproached him with his Crime, and delivered him to Oxathres, Brother to Darius, who firſt cut his Noſe and Ears off, and then cauſed him to be tied to a Croſs, where the Soldiers kill'd him with their Arrows. Q. Curtius, Juſtin.

BESSUS, a certain Parricide, of whom Plutarch makes mention: This wicked Man diſcovered his Crime himſelf, by putting, as he ſaith, Swallows to death, who reproach'd him with the Murther of his Father. Plut. de ſera numinis Vindicta.

BESTERIZE, Lat. Biſticia, a ſmall City of Tranſilvania, which ſtands in a very large Plain, upon a River of its own Name, 5 German miles N. E. from Burgles, and 15 N. W. from Weiſemburg. Baudr.

BETANZAS, Lat. Flavium Brigantium, ſo called from Flavius Veſpacianus, a Town of Galicia in Spain, upon the Bay of Biſcay, eight Leagues North from Compoſtella. Baudrand.

BETAW, or Betau, a Tract of the Low Countries, in the Dutchy of Guelderland, part of the ancient Batavia, whence it takes its Name; it's divided into Higher and Lower, and reacheth from Schenkenſchans, where the Rhine divides it ſelf to the Town of Teel on the Vahal. Nimeghen is the Capital of this Tract.

BETHANY, a Borough and Caſtle of Judæa near Jeruſalem, where Chriſt raiſed Lazarus: It was the ordinary Reſidence of Martha and Magdalen, as is noted in the Goſpel of St. John. There was another Borough of that Name on the other ſide Jordan.

BETHEL, a City of Samaria, called before Luz: The firſt Name, that ſignifies Houſe of God, was given to it, becauſe of the Ladder which Jacob ſaw in a Viſion hard by it: 162 years after that, Abraham ſtopped betwixt this City and Hai, as it is noted in Geneſ. 12. 28. It was ſince named Bethaven, by way of reproach, which ſignifies Houſe of Iniquity, becauſe of the Calves that were adored there by Jeroboam's Order, Hoſea 4. 5. King Joſias deſtroyed the Altar of Abomination, which Jeroboam had built there.

BETHENCOURT, (John of) Baron of St. Martin de Gaillard, in the County of Eu, Lord of Bethencourt, and Grainville la Teinturiere, in the Country of Caux: Being willing to make new Diſcoveries upon the Weſtern Ocean, he engaged his Lands of Bethencourt and Grainville, in 1401. to Robert de Braquemont his Couſin, who was Admiral of France in 1417. and ſent by Charles VI. King of France, to the Succour of John II. King of Caſtile, againſt the Moors. He diſcovered the Canaries in July, 1402. and conquered ſome of thoſe Iſlands; but not finding himſelf ſtrong enough to become Maſter of the reſt, he paſſed into Spain, where he received Victuals and Money from Henry III. King of Caſtile, who gave him the Sovereignty of theſe Iſles, upon condition that Bethencourt would do him Homage for theſe Conqueſts. He had alſo the Title of King; and amongſt his Succeſſors are reckoned Menaud, and Menaciot his Nephew; Peter Barbe, Fernand Pernazza, and Diego de Herrera. So Bethencourt was the firſt Chriſtian who conquer'd the Canaries, tho' there had been ſome Adventurers before, who went on ſhoar in ſome of theſe Iſlands to pillage them:

For, they ſay, That in 1395. thoſe of Guipuſcoa and Andaluſia went to diſcover thoſe Iſlands, and that they plunder'd Lancelotte. Jerome Surita ſaith, That Henry III. King of Caſtile, in 1401. allowed Robert of Braquemont, after Admiral of France, who had ſerved him in the Wars againſt Portugal, to Conquer the Canaries: That Braquemont gave that Commiſſion to John de Bethencourt his Relation; and that afterwards Queen Katharine, the King's Widow, confirm'd it: That Bethencourt had the Title of King, and cauſed a Fortreſs to be built at Lancelotte, not being able to become Maſter of the Great Canaries. John le Verrier, Surita, Benzoni Hiſtoire de Nouveau Monde.

BETHESDA, the Sheep-Market Pool, a Reſervatory of Water near the Porch of the Temple. This Pool is called in Greek, Probatick, becauſed it ſerved to waſh the Sheep, and other Animals deſigned for Sacrifices. The Hebrews named it Betheſda, which ſignifies a Houſe, or place of Running, becauſe it was filled with the Waters, which ran to it from the Sealed Fountain, and that of the Rains which fell thereinto from the Porch of the Temple. It was digged two foot deep in the Ground; the 4 ſides on't, which made a long Square, were covered with Free-ſtones very well cemented; and the 5 Porches are as yet to be ſeen, together with the Steps by which People deſcended thereunto; but the bottom is full of Woods, and drained. At certain times of the year, the Water of this Pool was Troubled by an Angel; and immediately after ſtirring, the firſt ſick Man that could deſcend into it, was infallibly cured, whatever his Diſtemper was: Therefore at that time a great Number of Lame, Blind Men, and Dropſical Folks, and ſuch as were troubled with the Palſie, and other ſick Perſons, were expecting under the Porches that Agitation of the Water; as we read, John 5. That Chriſt found one at it, to whom he reſtored his Health. Betwixt the Pool and the Town-wall, was a great place, where the Beaſts were put together that were to be ſacrific'd. Doubdan.

BETHLEHEM, a ſmall Town, the Capital of the Family of David, and Birth-place of our SAVIOUR: Its Name ſignifies The Houſe of Bread. The Emperour Adrian prophaned this Town, in An. 135. building a Temple to Venus there. It was erected into a Biſhoprick in 1110. when the Chriſtians became Maſters of the Holy Land. It was Suffragan to Jeruſalem; but now that this Country is ſubdued by the Turks, Bethlehem is only a Borough. The way betwixt Bethlehem and Jeruſalem is ſo pleaſant, with Trees, Gardens, and odoriferous Herbs, that Paſſengers look upon it as an earthly Paradiſe. The Situation of this ſmall City is very pleaſant, being built on a Mountain of a middling heighth, environed with Hills and Valleys, planted with Olives, Fig-Trees, and Vines, whoſe Wine is excellent. The adjoining Fields yield great plenty of Corn; but the Buildings are ruined, and there are now no more than 150 Houſes, where Turks, Moors, and Arabians, with ſome Greeks and Maronite Chriſtians dwell, whereof ſome follow Husbandry, and others live by the ſelling of Croſſes, Beads, and other ſmall Works of Olive and Pine-wood, which they ſell to Pilgrims. The Church of our Lady, built by St. Helena, ſtands entire; but part of the Ornaments have been taken away. The Building is of Free-ſtone, in the form of a Croſs: The Quire hath two Wings on both ſides, upheld by four Ranks of Marble Columns, all of one piece. This Altar of the Quire, and the two Chapels, which are on the ſides of it, are no leſs Magnificent. This Church is not vaulted; but inſtead of Vaults, it hath a Cover of Lead, upheld by a Carpentry of Cedar-wood; and what is remarkable, it is not covered flat, as the other Churches and Buildings of Paleſtine, but has a pointed Roof as ours. The Walls were in times paſt lined with Tables of Marble, all which the Infidels have almoſt taken away to adorn their Moſques. There are 13 Windows on each ſide of the Veſtry, which give a great Light to all the Church; and theſe Windows are adorned with Moſaick Figures, repreſenting the Life, Miracles, and Death of Jeſus Chriſt. The Colours of the Stones of this Moſaick Work, are ſo lively and ſhining, and the Bottom of the Gold ſo pure, that the Work ſeems to be new, tho' it is more than 1300 years ſince it was done. Under the Quire is the Grotto, where 'tis ſaid our Saviour was born: It is about 13 Steps in length, 5 in breadth, and 10 in heighth. Now they deſcend into it by two pair of Stairs, which are on both ſides of the Quire, over-againſt the Great Altar. At the foot and middle of the two pair of Stairs, is a ſmall Altar of Marble, with Silver Rails, environed with Rays like a Sun, about which are theſe Words engraven: Hic de Virgine Maria Jeſus Chriſtus Natus eſt. Before the Altar there are three Silver Lamps which burn continually: At 5 or 6 Steps from thence, in a corner of the Grotto, is a Manger of Porphyry, which St. Helena cauſed to be put there. The Vault of the Grotto is upheld with 3 ſmall Columns of Porphyry, and adorned with a fine Moſaick. The Pavement and Walls are faced with grey Marble. St Jerome ſaith, That the Pagans had raiſed upon the Grotto an Idol of Adonis; and Genebrard ſaith, That this Idol was put there by the Emperor Adrian. The Greeks are Maſters of the Church of our Lady, and of the Chapel of the Nativity: Their Lodging, and that of the Armenians, is on the Eaſt-ſide. Towards the North is the Convent of the French Monks, with the Church of St. Katharine, where they officiate. This Convent is encloſed with high Walls, and is liker to a Fortreſs than a Monaſtry. The Monks do receive the Pilgrims there, and are obliged to give Victuals to all the Mahometans who go by Bethlehem, and muſt ſuffer patiently the Diſorders they commit. There is a Chapel to be ſeen, at the place where the Chamber and Oratory of St. Jerome ſtood, with an Altar upon his Tomb, whence his Body was, as 'tis pretended, tranſported to Rome; and ſeveral other Chapels. Doubd. Voyage de la Terre Sainte.

BETHLEHEM, the Title of a Biſhoprick of Nivernois in France. The Barbarians having driven the Chriſtians from the Holy Land, Reinaud Biſhop of Bethlehem follow'd Guy Earl of Nevers into France, in 1223. who gave him the Government of an Hoſpital at Clomeci, a ſmall Town in Nivernois, in the Dioceſe of Auxerre; ſince which, the Title of Biſhop of Bethlehem hath been eſtabliſh'd here, at the Nomination of the Earls and Dukes of Nevers: So that there have been ſucceſſive Biſhops to this day, altho' without Dioceſe. Le Mire, St. Marth.

BETHLEM Gabor, or Gabriel Bethlem, Prince of Tranſilvania, was Son to a Gentleman of this Country of great Quality, but ſmall Eſtate: He follow'd the Reformation of Calvin, and inſinuated himſelf into the Eſteem of Gabriel Bathori, Prince of Tranſilvania. He alſo ſpent ſome time at Conſtantinople, and got the Love of the Turks there by his Courage. But being over-grown with Ambition, he prov'd ungrateful to Bathori, who had rais'd him. It's ſaid, that he was in 42 Battels. With the aſſiſtance of the Turks, he defeated Bathori in 1613. and got himſelf proclaimed Prince of Tranſilvania. In 1619. Bohemia making Alliance with him, he came into Hungary, and not only made a powerful Diverſion in favour of his Allies, but had like to win a Crown; and at the very firſt took Caſſovia, or Caſchan, Poſſen, and ſome other places; and being favoured by the Malecontents and Proteſtants, he was likely to have puſh'd his Conqueſts farther. He cauſed himſelf to be declared King of Hungary, and called the Turks and Tartars to his Aid againſt the Emperor, who, in 1620. ſent the Earl of Dampierre againſt him; but he was killed whilſt about to ſurprize Poſſen; and Bucquoy being made Imperial General afterwards, had the ſame Deſtiny. But the Letters which Gabriel writ to the Infidels being intercepted, 'twas apparent that his Deſigns were pernicious to Chriſtendom: Upon this, the Hungarians began to abandon him. So to prevent his being oppreſſed, he then made Peace; but took Arms again oftner than once, tho' not ſucceſsfully; for being abandoned by his Allies, he was conſtrained to make a diſadvantageous Peace, in 1629. Bethlem married Katharine, Daughter to John Sigiſmund, Elector of Brandenburgh, and being fallen into a Dropſie, he died Novemb. 15. 1629. He left the Emperor 40000 Ducats, with a Horſe, whoſe Saddle was embroider'd with Pearls and precious Stones; and the like Legacy to Ferdinand II. and the Grand Signior. Lotichius, l. 4. & ſeq. Thuldenus Hiſt. Noſt. Tempor.

BETHORON, a City of the Tribe of Ephraim, between Samaria and Jordan, which in the time of Hadrian the Emperour was the Capital City and Seat of Government to thoſe Rebellious Jews, who, under Barchochab, endeavoured to reſtore the Jewiſh Religion and Commonwealth, which iſſued in the utter Ruine of that Nation.

BETHSAIDA, one of the Cities of Decapolis, and Principal of the Tribe of Zabulon, ſeated on the North-end of the Lake of Tiberias. Three of our Lord's Apoſtles were of this place, viz. Peter, Andrew, and Philip. Our Saviour honoured it with many of his Miracles, yet it did not reform; whereupon he threatned it, and accordingly it is ſince come to ruine, there not being above 6 Houſes in it. John 1. 12. Matth. 8. Mark 1. Luke 4. 10. Matth. 11. Mark 4.

BETH SHAN, Berſan, Niſa, Scythopolis, the City of the Scythians, becauſe built by them. Solinus pretends it was built by Bacchus. It was one of the greateſt Cities of Decapolis, ſeated on the River Jordan, about two miles beneath its Fall out of the Lake of Tiberias to the South: The Inhabitants defended it againſt the Iſraelites, when they had Conquer'd the reſt of Canaan under Joſhua. 1 Kings 4. 1 Chron. 7. 1 Macch. 5. 12. 2 Macch. 12. Joſh. 17. Judg. 1. Upon the Walls of this Town the Philiſtines hanged the Body of Saul and his Sons, 1 Sam. 21. Joſephus alſo relates a ſignal cruelty of this place towards the Jews his Country-men. The Marbles that are digged out of the Ruines of this City, ſhew what it has been; but it is now a poor Village in a Marſh, with very few Inhabitants.

BETHSHEBA, was at firſt Wife to Uriah: David who had ſeen her Bathing from the Battlements of his Palace, was ſo taken with her Beauty, that he fell in love with her; and having got her with Child, he commanded Joab to expoſe her Husband to death: After which, having repented of his Crime, upon the Reproof of Nathan the Prophet, he married Bethſheba, A. M. 2999. and by her had Solomon, who ſucceeded him.

BETHSHEMESH, that is, Houſe of the Sun, or Miniſtry, a City belonging to the Prieſts in the Tribe of Judah, Joſh. 15. 10. It was before called Abel, 2 Chron. 28. and afterwards given to the Levites, Joſh. 21. It is to this place that the Ark, which had been taken by the Philiſtines, was brought again, and where God ſtruck 50000 of the People for having dared to look into it; which was expreſly prohibited by the Law, Numb. 4. 20. There was another Bethſhemeſh in the Tribe of Naphtali, whence this Tribe could not drive the ancient Inhabitants, Joſh. 19. Judg. 1. and another in the Tribe of Iſſachar, at the foot of Mount Carmel.

BETHULIA, a Tribe of Zebulun in Galile: The Victory which Judith gain'd over Holofernes, who beſieg'd this Town, has made it remarkable. The Chriſtians built a Fort near Bethlehem, called Bethulia Francorum. Judith.

BETHUNE, upon the ſmall River Biette, a City of the Low Countries in Artois, belonging to the French: It is a very good place, pretty well fortified, 5 leagues from Aire, and 2 and a half from Lilers. Here are two Fairs, which bring it a conſiderable Trade. The French took it in 1645. and it was yielded to them by the 35th Article of the Treaty of the Pyrenées, An. 1659. and hath produced ſeveral Great Men, who have been Dukes, Peers, and Mareſchals of France, and done their Kings great Service in the Wars.

BETIS, Governour of Gaza for Darius, is noted in Hiſtory as a Man of Courage and great Loyalty to his King. He defended, with a few Men, a place of great Conſequence, when Alexander went to attack it; and this Prince was wounded there in a Sally, by a Dart, which pierced his Armour, and entred into his Shoulder. Betis thinking he was dead, returned into the City in a victorious and triumphant manner: But in a ſecond Aſſault, he was ſorely wounded, and abandoned by his Men; yet he fought courageouſly, until he was on all ſides environed, and brought to Alexander, who made him ſuffer cruel Torments, becauſe he would not humble himſelf to him. Q. Curtius.

BETISAC, (John) Principal Counſellor and Miniſter to John Duke of Berry in his Violences and Cruelties: He was burned alive for a Crime againſt Nature, which made an acceptable Bonfire to the People, whom he had tormented in a horrible manner. Mezeray.

BETLEY, a Market-Town of Staffordſhire in Pyrehill Hundred.

BETLIS, a Town of Armenia or Turcomania, ten days Journey from Diarbekir; it belongs to the Bey or Prince of the Countrey, who is very Potent, acknowledging neither the Grand Signior, nor the King of Perſia, whereas moſt of the other Beys depend of the one or of the other; but both are obliged to keep in with him, becauſe he can cut off the Paſſage betwixt Aleppo and Tauris: For the Streights of the Mountains are ſo eaſily kept, that Ten Men may defend them againſt a Thouſand. The laſt days Journey betwixt Aleppo and this Place, is betwixt high craggy Mountains, which reach two Leagues beyond Betlis, and have Torrents on both ſides in ſeveral places; the way is ſo cut in the Rocks, that there is ſcarce paſſage for a Camel or Mule to go without danger of falling into the Water. The City is betwixt two Mountains, which are about a Cannon Shot diſtant from one another, and the Caſtle is upon a Point at an equal diſtance from the two Mountains: It is much in the form of a Sugar-Loaf, and ſo craggy on both ſides, that it cannot be aſcended but by windings. The top is like a Platform, where the Caſtle is built. The Bey, or Prince of that Countrey, can raiſe 20, or 25000 Horſe, and a great Body of very good Infantry, compoſed of Shepherds, who are always ready at the firſt Command. Tavernier Voyage de Perſe.

BETON, (David) Cardinal, with the Title of St. Stephen, Biſhop of Mirepoix, and afterwards Archbiſhop of St. Andrews in Scotland, living in the Sixteenth Century; He was Son to the Baron of Balfour of the Family of the Beton's, being one of the moſt Noble in Scotland. He appear'd very warm againſt the Reformation in that Kingdom, and by his Intereſt and Proſecution it was, that George Wiſhart, being convicted of the Errors of Luther, (as they call them) and Head of the pretended Schiſm, was burnt: Upon this Account, or upon the Differences between him and my Lord Leſley, he was Aſſaſſinated in the morning as he was riſing out of Bed, in the year 1546. and afterwards he was hang'd out of the Window of his Palace, in his Cardinals Habit. Biſhop Leſley, lib. 9. & 10. Hiſt. of Scotland. Buchanan, Spondan. in Annal.

BETULEIUS, (Sixtus) commonly call'd Birck, a German, born at Memmingen in Suabia, in the year 1500. He Studied at Baſil, and made ſo great a progreſs in the Belles Lettres and Philoſophy, that he quickly found himſelf in a Condition to profeſs it with Reputation. Betuleius had very conſiderable Men for his Scholars, as Wolfgangus Muſculus, and William Xylander, who gave him a great Character: He wrote ſeveral Tracts, as the Comedies, Judith, Suſannah, Joſeph, &c. Symphonia in Novum Teſtamentum Græcum. Annotationes & Collationes in Carmina Sibyllina. In Lactantium. Commentaria in Lib. Ciceronis De Officiis. Crucius, Annal. Lib. par. 3. Thuanus Hiſt. Lib. 13. Xylander, &c.

BETUWE. See Betaw.

BEVELAND, an Iſle of the Province of Zealand in the Low Countries, which was cut in two from the Eaſt to the Weſt by a great Tempeſt, in the year 1532. which made it to be diſtinguiſhed into Nort-Beveland and Zud-Beveland, in which lies the fair and well-fortified City of Goes.

BEVERLEY, a Market and Borough-Town of Hartlull Wapentake in the E. Riding of Yorkſhire, ſituate on the W ſide of the River Hull, about 6 miles N. and by W. from the Town of Hull. Tho' there be no ſigns extant of great Antiquity, yet Cambden takes it to be the ancient Petuaria, noted however for being the principal place of John Sirnamed de Beverley, Archbiſhop of York, who in his old Age reſigned his Biſhoprick, and retired hither, where he ſpent the reſidue of his Life in pious Meditations until he died in 721. The Saxon Kings granted the Town great Immunities and large Privileges for his ſake, whereby it grew rich and populous. It was at firſt Govern'd by Wardens, till Q. Elizabeth made it a Mayor Town. It ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament.

BEUTHERIUS, (Michael) born at Carlsburg, a Town in the Dutchy of Bremen in Lower Saxony, Son of Michael Beutherius, Governour of Carlsburg. He underſtood Humanity, Philoſophy, and Divinity, to a great degree. After having been employ'd at the Court of the Emperour Charles V. in ſeveral important Negotiations, he ſettled at Strasburg, where he read publickly upon Hiſtory and Chronology, and wrote ſeveral Tracts upon this Faculty: He wrote likewiſe upon the Law, Philoſophy, Mathematicks, and Divinity, and died at the Age of 65 years, An. 1587. Melch. Adam Vitæ Germ. Phil.

BEUVRAY, Buvray, or Beureet, a Borough of the Territory of Autun, which is thought to be the ancient Bibracte, mentioned by Cæſar in his 7th Book of Commentaries, as a place whither he ſent his Troops often into Winter-Quarters, and where he aſſembled the Deputies of Gaul. At that time it was a famous Place, and amongſt the moſt conſiderable of the Country, and called Julia by his own Name.

BEUX, a Village near Seignelay in Burgundy, where at firſt the famous Phyſician Covailliere ſettled himſelf, afterwards called the Phyſician of Beux. It is a ſurprizing thing, That a Man exercis'd in Employments in the Country, could acquire ſo particular a Knowledge of all manner of Diſeaſes and their Remedies, without having ſtudied Phyſick either in Schools or Books. The Reputation which he acquired, induced Mr. Colbert to perſuade him to come and live at Seignelay, where he was conſulted from all Parts. He left behind him his Son, a very able Phyſician, and 100000. Crowns of Eſtate, beſides a great many pious Legacies Memoires du Temps.

BEWDLEY, a Market and Borough-Town of Poddington Hundred in the N. W. parts of the County of Worceſter: It's neat and well built, ſeated betwixt the River Severn on the E. and the Foreſt of Wire on the W. near which King Henry VII. built a Houſe, call'd Tukell-Hall, for his eldeſt Son Prince Arthur.

BEWLAN, an Engliſh Prieſt, living about the year 600. in the time of Gregory the Great: He wrote a Treatiſe of the Original of the Engliſh Saxons, called, De Genealogiis Gentium. This Bewlan had either a Son or a Nephew of his own Name living in the year 650. who wrote Annotationes in Nonnium; De Geſtis Regis Arthuri, & Hiſtoria Itineraria. Pitſeus de Script. Britan. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Lat. l. 2. c. 21.

BEY, they Name given to the Turkiſh Governours of the Sea-Coaſts.

BEY-CURDE, he is Prince of the Country which is called Curdiſtan, betwixt Armenia and Perſia. There are ſeveral of theſe Beys, who have fortified themſelves on the Mountains, and make no account either of the Grand Signior or King of Perſia, becauſe they are Maſters of certain Streights, where they cannot be attacked: However, ſome have put themſelves under the Protection of the King of Perſia, and others under that of the Sultan. Tavern.

BEZA, (Theodorus) Miniſter of Geneva, was born in 1519. at Verelai, a Town of the Dutchy of Burgundy, where his Family was in good eſteem; he was ſent to Paris very young, and his Uncle Nicholas Beza, Councellor of the Parliament, took great care of his Education, and ſent him thence to Orleans, and afterwards to Burges, to Study under Melchior Wolmar, a German, and Profeſſor of the Greek Tongue: Beza, then a very hopeful Youth, gain'd the affection of the Learned, who were extreamly taken with his Civil Deportment and Wit; and moſt of the Poets of that time extol him mightily in their Works. His Uncle Nicholas dying in 1532. who deſign'd him for the Church, Claude Beza, Abbot of Froimont, took care to promote him that way; having finiſh'd his Study of the Law at 20 years of Age, he commenc'd Doctor thereof at Orleans, and having an extraordinary Genius for Poetry, Compos'd ſome Pieces that were applauded by all the Learn'd, and eſteem'd worthy even of Auguſtus his Reign; but afterwards, ſome new Pieces of his, eſpecially a witty Epigram that he compos'd, being cenſur'd Licentious, and too free, and ſome envious Perſons calumniating his Life, he quitted his Priory of Lonjemeau, and retir'd to Geneva in 1548. whither John Criſpin, a particular Friend of his, accompanied him, where they reſolv'd to ſet up a Preſs, and render it famous by their Works: But Beza taking a Journey to Tubingen, to ſee his old Maſter, Melchior Wolmar, chang'd his Reſolution, and ſettled to teach Greek at Lauſanne, where he became very famous for his Tragi-Comedy of Abraham Sacrificing Iſaac, and begun his Tranſlation of the Pſalms of David in Verſe: He afterwards wrote a Treatiſe of the Right that Magiſtrates have to puniſh Hereticks; it was upon the occaſion of Michael Servetus, whom the Senate of Geneva had order'd to be burnt. Calvin, who was well skill'd in Men, intended him for his Succeſſor, and often commiſſion'd him to confer with the Lutherans; and at laſt invited him to Geneva, where, after he had Taught for ſome time, he was received Miniſter in Claudius Pontanus his ſtead: It was then he compos'd his Confeſſion of Faith. He was at the Conference of Poiſſi in 1561. and the Civil Wars breaking out ſoon after, he followed the Prince of Conde, was with him at the Battel of Dreux. Peace being concluded in 1563. he return'd to Geneva, and ſucceeded Calvin, and wrote an Apology for his Latin Tranſlation of the New-Teſtament, which Sebaſtian Caſtillon had found fault with. His Brother Nicholas Beza came to ſee him at Geneva in 1568. and the next year after he came into France, endeavour'd to Convert his Father, and his Siſter that was a Nun. He preſided in a Synod held at Rochelle in 71. at another at Niſmes in 72. was invited to ſeveral Conferences at Berne and other Places, and look'd upon as the chief of the Proteſtants of France, Flanders, and Swiſſerland: He died October 13. 1605. being 86 years, 3 months and 9 days old. Beſides the Works ſpoken of, he wrote many others, whereof there are ſeveral Editions, and many Catalogues. Thuan. Melchior Adam. Sanderus. He defended the Truth againſt the Anabaptiſts and Libertines, and confuted in a very Learned manner Tranſubſtantiation, and Conſubſtantiation; nor was he leſs ſucceſsful in exploding the Doctrine of the Real Preſence by the Authority of St. Auguſtin, and Vigilius Biſhop of Trent; and a few days after, maintain'd a Learned Debate concerning the Authority of the Church. He told Anthony of Navar, who was too much affected with the Maſſacre of Vaſſy, That the Church was an Anvil that had withſtood many Hammers. In 1600. he came to ſee Henry the Great, in the Neighbourhood of Geneva, and recommended that City to his Protection. The King, whom he knew from his Infancy, receiv'd him very graciouſly, admitting him to his Table, and preſented him with 500 Piſtols in remembrance of the good Services he had done his Father and Mother. In his old Age his Memory fail'd ſo much, that he could not remember preſent Tranſactions; yet he never forgot the Pſalms in Hebrew, nor the Chapters of the New-Teſtament which he had learn'd in Greek. Hoffman. See Bayle Hiſt. Dict.

BEZALEEL, Son to Uri and Miriam, Siſter to Moſes, was imployed with Aholiab in the building of the Tabernacle which Moſes cauſed to be made in the Wilderneſs, two years after they came out of Egypt. Theſe Two Excellent Workmen made all the Works of Braſs, Silver, Gold, and Precious Stones, wherewith the Tabernacle was enriched, Exod. ch. 31.

BEZANS, a piece of Money of Byſance, or Conſtantinople. This Name was afterwards given to the Eaſtern Coin; ſo that we Read of the Bezans of the Saracens, before the Turks were Maſters of Conſtantinople. Du Peyrat. l. 2. Of the Chapel of the Kings of France, ſaith, That the Bezans were not received in France, until the Reign of the Third Race of their Kings, that Lewis the Young brought Bezans of Gold taken from the Arabians and other Infidels whom he had overcome: So that from that time, Kings begun to make uſe of them at their Coronations, and Offerings at Maſs. Henry II. Coin'd 13 Bezans on purpoſe for this Ceremony, which were worth a double Ducat, or a Lewis d'Or each. P. Menetrier Origine des Armoiries.

BEZECK, The City of Adonibezeck, a King, taken by the Iſraelites, Judg. 1. Here Saul Aſſembled Iſrael againſt the Amonites, 1 Sam. 2. The beſt Wines in the Land of Canaan grew here. It ſtood S. W. from Jeruſalem two German miles.

BEZESTAIN, a Name which the Turks give to a great round Hall built of Free-ſtone, having Shops all round, where the moſt precious Merchandizes are ſold; much like the Exchange. There are Two of them in Conſtantinople, called the Great and Little Bezeſtain. Thevenot.

BEZIERS upon the Orb, a City of France in Languedoc, with the Title of Vice County, Royal Baylwick, Preſidial, and a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Narbon. It is great and ancient, Pliny, Ptolemy, Pomponius Mela, &c. mention it, and name it diverſly, Biterra, Baitira, Biterræ, Bliteræ, Beteris, Biterrenſis, and Bederenſis Civitas. Beziers is ſituate upon a Hill, whoſe avenues are ſomething difficult, with the River Orb at the foot: It is one of the greateſt and beſt Peopled Cities of Languedoc. It is not known who was the Founder of this City; but the ancient Inſcriptions inform us that the Romans conſidered it much; That it became a Colony in Julius Cæſar's time, and was repaired under Tiberius. It had then Two Temples; built in the Honour of Auguſtus and Julia. It was again augmented, and became very flouriſhing in the Fourth Century. The Goths took it in the following Age, and according to their Cuſtom, ruined the fineſt Buildings, taking pride in demoliſhing all the Monuments of the Roman Magnificence. Beziers was re-eſtabliſhed, and maintained it ſelf pretty well until the Eighth Age, when it ſuffered much by the Incurſions of the Saracens in Languedoc; for theſe Barbarians took it in 736. or 37. Charles Martel drove them thence in the following year; and as Beziers was an important Place, he entirely ruined it, fearing the Infidels ſhould come again and lodge themſelves there. A little while after the Inhabitants rebuilt it, and it recovered its former luſter, under the Reign of Pepin, Charlemain, and Lewis the Meek. Afterwards it had particular Lords called Viſcounts. The Dukes of Septimania had the Government of Provence, and that of the Cities of Carcaſſone, Narbon, Beziers, &c. where they put Lieutenants, in quality of Viſcounts. During the decay of the Houſe of France in the ſecond Race, theſe Viſcounts took advantage of the diſorders of the State, to render themſelves Proprietors of what they held. But St. Lewis afterwards united Beziers to the Crown. The Arrians, who were headed by Saturninus of Arles, held a Synod at Beziers in 356. for oppoſing of which, St. Hilary was baniſh'd by the Emperor Conſtantius. Walter Biſhop of Tournay, the Pope's Legate in 1223. held a Council againſt the Albigenſes; and another was aſſembled there in 1246. to conſult how the Inquiſitors ſhould reduce thoſe pretended Hereticks. Du Cheſne, St. Marthe, Du Puy.

BIAFARA, a City of Africk in Guinea: It is ſituate upon the River Dol Camarones, and gives its Name to a Kingdom which is betwixt that of Benin, the River of Niger, and the States of Congo.

BIAS, Son to Teutamus a Philoſopher, was born in Priena, a Town of Caria, and one of the Seven to whom the Greeks gave the Name of Wiſe. He flouriſh'd under the Reign of Alyattes King of Lydia, in the Forty ſecond Olympiad, and 144 of Rome. In his time ſome Fiſhermen found a Golden Trevet, with this Inſcription, To the Wiſeſt; which being brought to him, he ſent it to the Temple of Apollo. Valerius Maximus ſaith, that the City of Priena being beſieged, the Inhabitants fled, endeavouring to carry off their moſt precious Goods. Bias was obſerved to make his eſcape empty-handed, and being asked the Reaſon, He anſwer'd, That he carried his All with him. Diogenes Laertius ſays, That he compoſed more than 2000 Verſes upon Jonia; and that he died in the Arms of a Grandchild of his own, whilſt he Pleaded for one of his Friends. He commonly ſaid, That a Man who could not bear with a Misfortune, was unfortunate; and that it is a ſickneſs of the Mind to wiſh for impoſſible things. Being at Sea, and hearing impious Fellows call upon the Gods during the Tempeſt: Hold your peace, ſaid he, leſt they ſhould take notice that you are here. Plutarch, Valerius Maximus.

BIBLE, the Name is given to a Collection of Holy Books, written by the Inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt, divided into the Old and New Teſtament. The moſt ancient Tranſlation of this Part is the Septuagint, which, as is commonly ſuppos'd, was done by 72 Jews, at the Inſtance of Ptolemæus, Son of Lagus King of Egypt. Aquila, Theodotion, and Symmachus, afterwards made new Tranſlations. Origen inſerted all theſe Verſions in his Hexapla, ſetting 'em on the ſide of the Hebrew Text, and dividing them by Columns. The Evangeliſts, Apoſtles and Fathers, made uſe of the Septuagint; and the Italick or ancient Latin Tranſlation, was likewiſe made from this Verſion, tho St. Jerome afterwards Tranſlated from the Hebrew. See Septuagint and Teſtament.

BIBLES (Arabick.) There is a very great number of Arabick Bibles, of which ſome are for the uſe of the Jews, in the Countries where they ſpeak Arabick, and others for the uſe of Chriſtians of the Eaſt who ſpeak that Language. Thoſe which are for the uſe of the Jews have all been made from the Hebrew: But thoſe which are uſed by the Chriſtians, have been Tranſlated from other Verſions. The Syrians, for Example, when the Syriack Tongue ceaſed to be commonly underſtood, turn'd their Syriack Bible into Arabick. The Cophti's have alſo Tranſlated theirs into Arabick, that it might be underſtood by the People.

BIBLES (Armenian.) There is alſo a pretty ancient Verſion of the whole Bible in the Armenian Tongue, for the uſe of theſe People which are now ſcattered into divers Countries. It was Tranſlated from the Septuagint, and becauſe the Manuſcript Copies were very dear, an Archbiſhop of that Nation Printed at Amſterdam an entire Armenian Bible in 1664. but the Pſalter had been Printed long before in that Language.

BIBLES (Chaldaick.) They are otherwiſe called Paraphraſe or Targum, and are a kind of Gloſſes which the Jews made upon the Bible, at what time they ſpoke Chaldaick. But ſeveral things were added in proceſs of time, which renders them not very exact. Elias Levita, in the Preface which is before his Chaldaick Dictionary, ſpeaks of theſe Paraphraſes with more exactneſs than any other Jew. The beſt are thoſe of Onkelos, which is but upon the Five Books of Moſes: and that of Jonathan, upon all the Books that the Jews call Prophets; to wit, upon Joſhua, Judges, Kings, and great and leſſer Prophets. The Chaldaick Paraphraſes upon the other Books of the Bible, are for the moſt part full of Fables, and deſerve not to be Printed.

BIBLES (Cophtick.) They are the Bibles of the Chriſtians of Egypt, called Cophti's, or Copti's, written in the ancient Language of that Country. Nothing of them has been Printed hitherto; but Manuſcript Copies are found in ſome Libraries of Europe, eſpecially in the French King's Library. That which is worth obſerving is, that as this ancient Coptick Tongue has not been commonly uſed by the Cophti's themſelves for a long time; they commonly join to the Cophtick another Arabick Verſion, which is the Language of their Country.

BIBLES (Ethiopian.) We have no Bibles altogether Ethiopian; but ſome fragments only; As the Pſalter, the Canticles, the New-Teſtament, which had been ſeparately Printed, and re-printed ſince in the Polyglott of England. This Verſion was made from the 70. and perhaps upon the Cophte taken from the 70. becauſe this Nation depends on the Cophti's. Mr. Seguier, late Chancellor of France, had in his Library a very great number of Books in Ethiopian Manuſcripts; but they are of no uſe, being only Tranſlations, and thoſe not very exact, from the Greek Books.

BIBLES (Greek.) Hereof are ſundry Editions, yet they may all be reduced to Three Claſſes, viz. to that of Complutus or Alcala, which was Printed in the great Bible of Cardinal Ximenes in 1515. and re-printed in the Royal, or Plantin's Bible, in the Bible of Comelin, and in the great Bible of Mr. le Jay. The ſecond is that of Venice, in 1518. which hath been ſeveral times re-printed by the Proteſtants of Germany. For Example, at Strasburg, in 1526. at Baſil in 1545. with a Preface of Melancthon; at the ſame Place in 1550. with a Latin Verſion; at Francfort in 1597. with Notes, as is ſuppoſed by Francis Young. The Third is the Roman Edition in 1587. drawn from an ancient Manuſcript which is in the Library of the Vatican. The enſuing year was publiſhed a Latin Tranſlation of it with the Notes of Flaminius, and Father Morinus of the Oratory, Printed at Paris in 1628. the Greek and the Latin upon Two Columns, with the Diſtinction of Verſes, which was not in the Edition of Rome. The Engliſh have Printed in their Polyglott Bible, this Edition of Rome, believing it to be the beſt of all; to which they added the various Reading of the Alexandrian Manuſcripts.

BIBLES (Hebrew.) The Hebrew Bibles are either Manuſcript or Printed. The moſt ancient Manuſcripts do not paſs 700 years, and 'tis very rare to find any of this Antiquity. The beſt are thoſe which have been written by the Spaniſh Jews, as Rabbi Elias Levita hath obſerved in his Book, Entituled, Maſſoreth Hammaſſoreth. There are ſeveral of this kind in the French King's Library, and in the Library of the Fathers of the Oratory in Paris; but there is not one of them which exceeds 500 years. Thoſe that have been written by the German Jews, are the worſt of all, for the Characters are neither fair nor ſquare, as are thoſe of the Spaniſh Hebrew Bibles.

BIBLES (Latin.) I do not pretend to ſpeak of the Latin Bibles which have been made in theſe latter Times, becauſe they are of little moment; but only of thoſe that have been Tranſlated for the uſe of the Latin Church. They are of two ſorts, to wit, the ancient, which is called Italick, Tranſlated in the firſt Ages from the Septuagint, was read throughout all the Churches of the Weſt, till after the Time of Pope Gregory the Great. The other, which is ſtill in uſe, and called Vulgar, is the Verſion of St. Jerome from the Hebrew, excepting the Pſalms, which were kept after the Old Tranſlation, becauſe they were ſung in the Churches. The Council of Trent decreed, that the Vulgar ſhould be corrected, and then only uſed in the Latin Church. This was performed by the Cenſors of Rome, under Pope Sixtus V. and Clement VIII. but before the Corrections of theſe Two Popes, ſeveral had taken the Liberty to reform it, as may be ſeen in the Latin Edition, which hath been Printed in the Bible of Complutus. The Divines of Lovain and Paris alſo applied themſelves to this Correction, and chiefly the firſt, who have given ſeveral Editions of the Vulgar, with uſeful and curious Amendments. Robert Stephens hath alſo done the ſame thing; but the beſt of all theſe Latin Editions, is that of 1541 in Folio, where are ſeen in the Margins, the Various Readings drawn from a great Number of Manuſcript Copies.

BIBLES (Moſcovite.) Theſe People have alſo Printed a Verſion of the Bible in their Tongue from the Greek, ſeeing they profeſs to follow the Belief and Rites of the Greek Church. Thoſe who have a deſire to be throughly informed of the Bibles in all Languages, which have been Tranſlated in theſe latter Times, as well by Papiſts as Proteſtants, may conſult the new Book of Kortholthus a German, Entituled, De variis Bibliorum Editionibus. Wherein they will find ſeveral curious things concerning the Northern Tranſlations of the Bible.

BIBLES (Perſian.) The ancient Fathers made mention of a Verſion of Scripture in Perſian; but there remaineth nothing of it. The Jews of Conſtantinople have Printed a Tranſlation of the Pentateuch into Perſian, in this latter Age, in Hebrew Characters. It is re-printed in Perſian Characters in the Polyglott of England, where alſo hath been Printed a Perſian Verſion of the New Teſtament.

BIBLES (Samaritan.) The Samaritans do admit only of the Five Books of Moſes, which they read in Hebrew as well as the Jews, being only different from them in Characters, as St. Jerome hath obſerved. Father Morinus was the firſt that Printed this Hebrew Pentateuch of the Samaritans, with a Verſion which is called Samaritan, though it is in a Tongue that is almoſt the ſame with the Chaldaick: Both of them are in the great Bible of Mr. Le Jay, and in the Polyglott of England. The Samaritans have, beſides this, an Arabick Verſion of the Pentateuch, which hath not been Printed, and is alſo very rare. Two Copies of it are in the French King's Library. The Author's Name is Abuſaid, and he hath joined to it ſome literal Notes in the Margin. They have alſo a Hiſtory of Joſhua; but they do not look upon it as a Canonical Book: Neither doth it agree with the true Book of Joſhua, that makes part of Holy Scripture.

BIBLES (Syriack.) There are Two ſorts of Syriack Verſions of the Old Teſtament. The firſt from the Septuagint, not Printed. The other Tranſlated from the Hebrew, firſt Printed in the great Bible of Mr. Le Jay, and is uſed by the Chriſtians of the Eaſt, who followed the Syrian Rites. As to the Syriack New Teſtament, ſome Authors believe it to be very ancient, and others not. John Albert Widmanſtadius was the firſt who Printed it in 1562 at Vienna, in very fine Syriack Characters. R. Elias Levita, P. Morin Kortholthus de variis Biblior. Edition.

BIBLIA, or Billia, Wife to Duellius, a Roman Captain: She anſwered her Husband, who complained that ſhe never told him of his Stinking Breath, with which one of his Neighbours had reproached him, that ſhe thought all Men had the ſame Defect. Plutarch ſaith the ſame thing of the Wife of Hiero.

BIBLIANDER, (Theodorus) a Native of Switzerland, of the Sixteenth Age. He was a Learned Linguiſt and Divine; he was a Proteſtant, and taught a long time at Zurich, where he died of the Plague November the 29th, 1564. He hath written divers Theological Works, and Commentaries upon Scripture: Explicatio ſomnii Ezræ. In Epiſt. Petri. In Apocalyp. &c. Thuanus ſpeaks of him in the year 1564. Theodorus Bibliander, ſaith he, a learned Man in all things, died very old of the Plague at Zurich, November the 29th. He adds afterwards: Bibliander, aided by Conrad Pelican and Peter Cholin, Learned Men in the Greek, put the laſt Hand to the New Edition of the Bible, which was made at Zurich in 1543. and which Leo of Juda had begun; and two years after Robert Stephens added in his Edition this ancient Tranſlation, without mentioning thoſe who had wrought thereat. A long while after the Spaniſh Divines got it again to be Printed at Lions, having been reviewed by William Roville.

BIBLIOLACHAS, a Name which was given to Didymus, for having written 3500 Books, according to Cœlius Rhodig.

BIBLIS, a Woman, who courageouſly ſuffered Martyrdom, during the cruel Perſecution raiſed in France, about the year 167. in the time of Marcus Aurelius, and L. Verus, againſt the Chriſtians of Lyons and Vienne; ſhe at firſt renounced her Faith, and ſome time after ſhe was condemned to die for a certain Crime whereof ſhe was accuſed: God revealed to her in Priſon, that he had abandoned her, becauſe ſhe had forſaken him; which made her repent, and induced her openly to confeſs unto the laſt Gaſp, that ſhe was a Chriſtian. Sueur Hiſt. de L. Egl.

BIBLIS, of Mileto, Daughter to the Nymph of Cyana, who not being able to gain the Friendſhip of her Brother Caunus, cry'd until ſhe was turned into a Fountain.

BIBRACH, or Bibach, Bibacum and Biberacum, a City of Germany, in the Country of Algow in Suabia. It is an Imperial City, ſituate upon the River Ruſs, and famous for its Mineral Waters, called the Waters of Jordan. This City ſtands about five German miles from Ulm to the North Weſt, it takes its Name from a Caſtor or Beaver. It was a Village under Pepin King of France about 751. but Frederick the Second walled it for ſome ſignal Services performed under Maximilian the Firſt: The publick Arms of it were changed from a Crown'd Caſtor or Beaver, to a Crown'd Lyon. It obtained alſo from Maximilian the Second, the Right of Sealing with Red Wax.

BIBULUS, (M. Calpurnius) a Roman Conſul, Married Porcia, Daughter to Cato of Utica. He was Conſul with Cæſar in the 695th of Rome. Cæſar immediately propoſed the Lex Agraria to the People, and omitted nothing of what could procure his Friendſhip. Bibulus oppoſed theſe Novelties, but it was in vain, becauſe Lucullus and Cato, who ſupported him, could do nothing when the Intereſt of the People was in queſtion. Cæſar, who was perſuaded of the Weakneſs of his Colleague, inſulted over him, cauſing the Rods which his Lictors carried to be broken; ſome of his Party went to that exceſs of Contempt, as to throw Filth upon the Head of this Conſul, who being thus affronted, durſt no more appear in Publick, but kept at his own Houſe during eight months, making his Oppoſitions by Placaets, which he took care to ſtick up in the Night in publick Places, and Corners of the Streets. And as this Conſul did no more appear, and Julius Cæſar bore alone the Adminiſtration of the Republick, the Peops uſed to ſay in Mockery, Julio & Cæſare Conſulibus. Bibulus, Son to this Conſul, compoſed the Abridgment of the Life of Cato, his Uncle by the Mother's Side, as we are informed by Plutarch in the Life of the ſame Cato.

BICESTER, a Market Town in Oxfordſhire, in the Hundred of Ploughly.

BICON, a Grecian, being jealous of the Greatneſs of Athenodorus his Country Man, who had made himſelf Chief, and as 'twere King of the Grecian Troops, which Alexander the Great had left in Colonies about Bactria, and who had rebelled. Bicon laid a Trap for him, and having invited him to a Feaſt, got him aſſaſſinated by one Boxus of Mauritania. The next morning he aſſembled the Troops, and made ſome believe that Athenodorus had a mind to deſtroy him, but was prevented, but moſt doubted of the Impoſture, and by little and little, the reſt having found it out, they took Arms, being reſolved to kill him at the firſt Rencounter. Neverthelеſs, the Officers fearing that the Evil ſhould ſpread farther, appeaſed the Soldiers, as upon the Point of Execution. Bicon was no ſooner delivered from this Danger, againſt his Expectation, but he plotted the Death of thoſe who had ſaved him; which Deſign being diſcovered, he was ſeized with Boxius, who was killed upon the Place. As for him, they were reſolved to put him to Death by violent Torments. They were going to put him to the Rack, when the Greeks (for what Reaſon is unknown) ran to their Arms as if they had been Frantick; ſo that thoſe who carried him to be Executed, being frighted at this Tumult, left him alone, thinking that they were going to reſcue him; whereupon he came and threw himſelf, quite naked as he was, into the Hand of the Grecians, who ſeeing him in this wretched Condition, took pity on him, and commanded that he ſhould be let looſe; ſo that having eſcaped Death twice, he returned into his Country, with thoſe who quitted the Colonies which Alexander had aſſigned unto them. Q. Curtius, Lib. 9.

BICOQUE, a ſmall Town of the Milaneze, 3 miles from Milan. Odet de Foix, Lord of Lautrec, Marſhal of France, was defeated there by the Switzers, in a Battel, the 27th of April 1522.

This Place was ſurrendred by Treaty to the Moſcovites in 1634. together with Smolensko, Novograd, and other ſtrong Places, and the Territories belonging to them.

BIENNE, or Biel, Bienna, a Town in League with the Switzers, near a Lake of the ſame Name, betwixt Neufchaſtel and Soleurre. Bienne was in times paſt under the Juriſdiction of the Biſhop of Baſle; but having embraced the Reformation, it became free, and made Alliance with the Cantons in 1547. The Biſhop of Baſle made ſome Pretenſions to this City, in 1303. they entred into a League with thoſe of Bern, Strasburg, Baſil, and others; and in 1532. they entred into a particular League with Bern, granting mutual Immunities; which the Biſhop being offended at, he of a ſudden attacked the Town, killed ſome of the Inhabitants, and then ſet fire to it, whereupon thoſe of Bern coming to their Aſſiſtance, they took the Biſhop's Caſtle, and ravaged his Territories; which Service thoſe of Biel thankfully repay'd, by aſſiſting their Confederates of Bern againſt the Dukes of Burgundy in 1415. The Lake of this Name is very pleaſant and full of Fiſh, and hath its Banks planted with Vines. It has alſo ſome Iſlands, of which that called St. Peter's is very pleaſant, the reſt are frequently overflowed. This Lake is principally remarkable for plenty of thoſe Fiſh called Heurlings, and becauſe it ſwells in the greateſt Froſts.

BIETALA, or Biutala, a Fortreſs ſituated in the fartheſt part of the Kingdom of Barantola in Great Tartary. It is famous for being the common Reſidence of one of the Two Kings of the Country called Grand Lama, or Grand Prieſt of their Law. This Fortreſs, which is on the top of a Mountain, is fortified by ſeveral great ſquare Towers without its Circumference, upon the Ground where Beſiegers might have lodged themſelves, are built ſeveral Redoubts, whereof ſome are joyned by a Wall in the middle of the Place; and that the Enemy might not annoy it from a Neighbouring Mountain, the Top of that is alſo fortified by ſquare Towers, whoſe Angles ſet out towards the Fields, as the flanked Angles of our Baſtions: But to ſtrengthen this Poſt yet more, its Rampart is ſtretched unto that of the Caſtle; and that the Beſiegers ſhould not eaſily gain the Foot of theſe two Mountains, where they are acceſſible, there is built a Wall flanked at certain Diſtances by great ſquare Towers. Kirker.

BIEVRE, called alſo the River of the Gobelius and Gentilli, a ſmall River of France, which diſchargeth it ſelf into the Seine, near the Gate of St. Bernard at Paris. It takes its riſe above a Village named Bievre, three Leagues from Paris, and is famous, becauſe of its Waters, which are excellent to Dye Scarlet.

BIGLESWORTH, or Bigleſwade, a Market Town of Bigleſworth Hundred, in the Eaſt Parts of Bedfordſhire. It ſtands on the Eaſt ſide of the Iſſell, over which it hath a Stone Bridge, diſtant about ſix miles from Bedford to the Eaſtward.

BIGNONIUS, (Jerome) Attorney General to the Parliament of Paris, born in 1590. He was even from his Youth look'd upon as a Prodigy of Learning: He apply'd himſelf more particularly to the Civil and Canon Law, and to the Municipal Law of the Country; He publiſh'd Notes upon Marculfus, much eſteem'd by the Learned; In the year 1610. he Dedicated his Treatiſe of the Excellency of the Kings of France, to Henry the Great; His Notes upon Marculfus were re-printed by Stephen Baluſius in 1677. with the Capitularies of the French Kings: Several great Men of the Seventeenth Century, ſpeak with advantage of Bignonius, particularly Grotius, Du Cheſne, Du Puy, Juſtellus, Rigaltius, De Marka, Baluſius, &c.

BIGORRE, a Country of France in Gaſcony, with the Title of County. It hath on the Eaſt the Valley of Aure, the Viſcounty of Nebouſſan, River Verdun, and Pardiac: Bearn on the Weſt; on the South, the Valleys of Brotou and Penticouſe, otherwiſe de Tena in Aragon; and on the North, the Country of Riviere-baſſe, incorporated with Armagnac. Its length, to take it from the heighth of the Mountains, is, Ten Leagues from the South to the North; its breadth, Three Leagues from the Eaſt to the Weſt. It is divided into Three Parts, the Mountains, the Plain, and Ruſtan. The Mountains are incloſed betwixt thoſe of the Valley of Aure to the Eaſt, thoſe of Aragon on the South, and thoſe of Bearn on the Weſt. This ſpace contains Two principal Valleys, Lavedan and Barege. The Plain of Bigorre is an Oval, that begins to open it ſelf at the Town of Baigneres on one ſide, and near that of Lourde on the other, to that of Vic-Bigorre, and a little lower. It hath Five Leagues in length, and about one in breadth. On the Eaſt of the Hills is that part which is called Le Ruſtan, along the River of Arros. Tarbe is the Capital of the County of Bigorre. This Country is that of the ancient Bigerri or Bigerrones, of whom Cæſar, Plinius, Auſonius, and Sidonius Apollinaris, ſpeak. The Mountains ſerve for Barriers betwixt France and Spain. There are Four difficult Paſſages, which the Inhabitants are obliged to keep, to wit, Azun, Cauteres, Barege and Campan, which alſo enters into the Land of Aure. Bigorre affordeth Marble, Jaſper, Slate, and the Mountains have divers Mines of Silver, Braſs, Lead and Iron; but they are not wrought. Bigorre was, together with Aquitain, ſubdued by the Romans, and by the French Kings of the firſt Race. It had ſince particular Lords of its own; but Henry IV. united it to the Crown of France. A ſtout Man of this Country, called Enecuus, founded the Kingdom of Navarre, expelled the Moors, and left the Crown to his Succeſſors. The Inhabitants were formerly called Pelliti Bigerri, becauſe they wore Skins to defend themſelves againſt the Cold; they are alſo noted for a kind of Turban on their Heads, and ſtrip'd or Party-coloured Garments, which were from them called Bigerra.

Its Name ſignifies a Land fertile in Dates, Fruit much eſteemed in that Country, becauſe the Inhabitants Traffick in it. It extends from Eaſt to Weſt from Egypt unto the Ocean, but it is not very large. It hath Barbary on the North, and the Deſart of Zaara on the South. Here are alſo ſome Mahometan Kings, whoſe Power is much limited. Tarudante upon the Ocean is the moſt conſiderable City of Biledulgerid. It is divided into Suſa, Dara, Segelmeſſe, Tafileta, Tegorarin, Zeb, Biledulgerid, properly ſo called, Feſſen, the Deſart of Barca, &c. Mount Atlas advanceth ſeveral of its Branches into Biledulgerid. The Cape of Non upon the Ocean was for a long time the fartheſt Part to which the Portugueſe did ſail, who called it thus, becauſe they went no farther Southerly. The Arabians are powerful enough in this Country, and are retained in the Pay of the Kings, as the Switzers in Europe. It's ſaid that they hunt after Oſtriches, eat their Fleſh, ſell their Feathers, and tan their Skins to make a kind of Port-Mantle for their Cloaths; uſing alſo their Heart for Witchcrafts, their Greaſe for Medicines, and they make Ear-rings of their Tallons. Jean de Leon. deſcr. Afr. Mariana. The Capital of Biledulgerid lies 500 Miles South Weſt of Tunis, and ſomewhat more South Eaſt of Algiers. The People are Rude, Ignorant, and Lawleſs, Jealous of their Women to Exceſs, and never Marry a Whore; they are exceeding Fond of their Wives, who uſe Paint, the more to engage their Husbands. They are poor and meanly Clad, dwell in Tents covered with Hair Cloth and the Boughs of Dates, and endure Hunger to Admiration. The Country is generally Sandy, and in ſome Places affords no Water for 6 or 7 Days Journey. The Moors began the Conqueſt of this Country about 700.

BIRON, a ſmall Town of France in Perigord, one of the ancient Baronies of the Country, which King Henry IV. erected into a Dutchy in Favour of Charles of Gontaut. It hath now the Title of Marquiſate, and it is ſituated on the Mountains towards Querci.

BIRON, or Armand of Gontaut, Lord of Biron, Knight of the King's Order, and Marſhal of France, ſignalized himſelf in the Reigns of Henry II. Francis II. Charles IX. Henry III. and Henry IV. His Houſe is Noble and Ancient. After the fatal Death of Henry III. Biron was the firſt who declared for Henry the Great, by going over to this Monarch's Side, for whom he fought ſucceſsfully at the Battels of Arque, Ivry, and elſewhere, and brought part of Normandy under his Subjection. He was killed with a Cannon Shot at the Siege of Eſpernay in Champaign, Anno 1592. being 65 or 68 years old.

BIRON (Charles) of Gontaut, Duke of Biron, Peer, Admiral and Marſhal of France, Governor of Burgundy and Breſſe, was eldeſt Son to Armand de Gontaut above mentioned, and renowned for his Courage. He acquired much Reputation at the Battels of Arques in 1589. of Ivri in 1590. at the Sieges of Paris and Roan, and the Battel of Aumale in 1592. and elſewhere. King Henry the Great Honoured him with his Favours, and in 1594 he made him Marſhal of France, having already provided him with the Government of Burgundy, where Biron took Beaune, Auxonne, Autun, &c. and was wounded at the Battel of Fontaine Francoiſe, in 1595. After that, he ſerved, during the War againſt Spain, at the Sieges of Amiens, la Fere, and ravaged Artois, where he made the Marquiſs of Varembon Priſoner. Afterwards he took the City of Bourg in La Breſſe, and being returned from England, whither his Majeſty had ſent him in Quality of Ambaſſador Extraordinary, Biron was erected into a Dutchy and Peerage. But having loſt the Charge of Admiral, and on ſome other ſmall Reaſons of Diſcontent, he Treated with the Duke of Savoy and the Spaniards, the King's Enemies ; and his Obſtinacy was ſo great in denying his Fault to the King, who deſired him three or four times to confeſs the ſame, with a gracious Promiſe of Pardon, that his Majeſty put him into the Hands of Juſtice, though with much Regret. Being found Guilty of High Treaſon, he was Condemned to have his Head cut off, his Goods Confiſcated, and the Dutchy of Biron Extinguiſhed. This Sentence was executed in the Court of the Baſtile at Paris the 31ſt of July 1602. and his Body was buried in the Church of St. Paul. Davila, Montluc. Thuan.

BIRS, Lat. Birſa, a River which hath its Source in Mount Jura, is of a very great uſe for carrying Veſſels and Floats of Timber to Baſil, and is chiefly noted for a ſtupendious Breed, and great Fiſhing of a ſort of Sea-fiſh, called Naſo, about Eaſter. Hoffm.

BISAGNO, or Beſagno, Biſamnis & Feritor, a River in Italy in the State of Genoua, it riſes in Mount Appennine, and falls into the Mediterranean near the Town of Genoua.

BISANCE, (Bizance) a City of Europe, upon the Boſphorus of Thracia. Suidas writes, that Pauſanias, King of Sparta built it. Euſebius, in his Chronicle, thinks that Bizas was the Reſtorer, or the Founder of it, about the 97 of Rome. The Emperor Severus fortified it ; it was choſen by Conſtantine the Great to be the Seat of the Empire of the Eaſt. See Conſtantinople.

BISCAYE, which thoſe of the Country name Viſcaya, a Province of Spain, betwixt the Ocean or the Sea of Biſcaye, Oceanus Cantabricus on the North, the Aſturies on the Weſt, the Country of Guipuſcoa on the Eaſt, and Old Caſtile on the South. Bilbao is its Capital City, the others are Orduna, St. Andero, Laredo, Santillano, &c. Biſcaye is very Pleaſant and Fertile. It is the Country of the ancient Cantabri, which the Romans had ſo much Difficulty to ſubdue; they were ſo Induſtrious and Indefatigable, that neither Labour, nor Hunger, nor the Rigours of Seaſons were capable to make them quit their Arms, and to render them Slothful in conſerving their Liberty. Yet Auguſtus ſubdued the Cantabri, and ſince that time they have had almoſt the ſame Deſtiny with the other People of Spain. According to other Authors, Biſcay is but a Part of the Cantabri, an Ancient and Warlike People of Spain; for it included Santillana, Guipuſcoa, and Biſcay, and all that Country that lay between the Ocean and the River Ebro. Strabo ſaith, They were a Colony of the Lacones, and they had much of their Temper; ſo that Auguſtus was not aſhamed to become their Conqueror in Perſon, in the Year of Rome 727. 22 Years before the Birth of Chriſt; ſo that Horace might juſtly ſay of them, Bellicoſus Cantaber ſera domitus catena. It has the Title of a Principality, becauſe heretofore it had Princes of its own. The firſt of which was Sorie, a Gentleman of the Royal Family of Scotland, who headed this People againſt the Moors in 870. It continued for 14 Deſcents in this Family till 1309. and by Marriages, to 1351. when Don Pedro, the Nero of Caſtile, by a ſtrong Hand, ſubjected it to the Crown of Spain. Strabo. Lib. 3. Pomponius Mela.

BISCAYE, or New Biſcaye, Nova Biſcaya, a Province of New Spain, in Northern America. It hath the New Kingdom of Mexico on the North, the Province of Panuco on the Eaſt, Zacatecas on the South, and Culiacan on the Weſt. It hath the Boroughs of St. John, of St. Barbo, &c. with two Silver Mines. This Country is not far from Nombre de Dios, upon the ſide of the River Panuco.

BISCIOLA, (Lelio) a Jeſuit in Modena, who underſtood Languages, Humanity, and Divinity, very well: He wrote ſeveral Tracts, as *Horarum ſubceſivarum, ſeu rerum in omni genere excellentium, Tom.*2. *Obſervationum Sacrarum, Lib.*12. *Digreſſionum in Evangelia Matthæi & Joannis. Item in Epiſt. Pauli ad Roman. Galat. & Hebr. Lib.*4. &c. Aligamb. Bibl. Script. S. J. Mireus de Script. Sæc. 17. &c.

BISERTE, a City of Africk, in the Kingdom of Tunis, upon the Mediterranean Sea, betwixt Carthage and Tabarca, towards the Baſtion of France. It is not doubted but Biſerte is the Utica of the Ancients; 'tis now become the Retreat of Pyrates. It was formerly a Place of great Strength and Note, and hath a Lake Eaſt of it 16 Miles long, which falling into the Sea, ſerves inſtead of a Haven; and on the Weſt of it runs the River Megadra; ſo that its Situation ſeems very convenient for Trade; but the Exactions of the Kings of Tunis, and the Arabians, reduced it to this pitiful Condition.

BISHOPS-CASTLE, a Market and Borough Town of Purſlaw, in the South-Weſt Parts of Shropſhire. It ſends two Members to Parliament.

BISNAGAR, a Kingdom of Aſia in a Peninſula of India, on this ſide the Ganges. They ſay that it hath five other Kingdoms which depend on it. It is betwixt thoſe of Malabar, Decan, and Golconda, and hath Sapphires, Amethyſts, and other precious Stones. It derives its Name from its Capital City called Biſnagar or Chandegri, and it is built upon a Mountain, on which is a Cittadel. The City is four Miles in Circuit, and is Encompaſſed with many Walls. In 1565. four Mooriſh Kings leagu'd againſt this City, and beſieged it; but without effect, till it was betray'd unto their Hands, after which they plunder'd and burnt it, with the adjacent Country; and in ſix Months time their King coming back, repair'd it. The Circuit of the Walls is 24 Miles, but it is ill Inhabited. Their King keeps his Court at Pennegonde, ſix Days Journey from it, and is the greateſt Court, ſays Hackluit, that ever he ſaw. Bernier Hiſt. G. Mogul. The Inhabitants of this Country are Idolaters, and there are Pilgrims who reſort to their Idols with their Hands bound, Ropes about their Necks, Knives ſticking in their Arms and Legs; and if the Wounds made by them Feſter, they reckon them Holy. They give Gold, Silver, and Jewels, to maintain their Idol's Temples, and the Women proſtitute themſelves for that ſame end; and all the Gifts are caſt into a Lake to be kept for that purpoſe. This Idol is carried Annually in Proceſſion, with Virgins and Muſick going before. The Pilgrims ſtrive to be cruſh'd to Death under the Idol's Chariot, and ſuch as happen to be ſo, their Bodies are burnt, and their Aſhes kept as Holy. Some cut their Fleſh in pieces, and ſtab themſelves with Knives, in Honour of this Idol, and he reckons himſelf Bleſſed, that can but touch the Idol's Chariot. Verlomannus, Fernandes.

BISNOW, the Name of a Sect of Banjans, in the Indies. They call their God Ram-Ram, and gave him a Wife. They adorn their Idols with golden Chains, Neck-laces of Pearls, and all ſorts of Stones. They ſing in their Agages or Moskeys, Hymns, in Honour of their Deities, mixing their Devotion with Dances, Drums, Flagelets, Brazen Baſons, and other Inſtruments, upon which they play during their Prayers. This God hath no Lieutenants, as that of the Sect of Samerath; but he does all by himſelf. Theſe Banjans do commonly live upon Herbs and Pulſe, New Butter and Milk. Their beſt Dainties are the Atſchia, which is compoſed of preſerved Citrons in Salt, with Ginger, Garlick, and Muſtard-ſeed. The Biſnow do all of them deal in Merchandizes, and they underſtand Trading very well. Their Wives are not burnt upon their Husbands Pile, as thoſe of the Sect of Samarach, but remain always Widows. Mandeſlo, Olearius.

BISSEXTILE, the Intercalary Day which is added every Fourth Year, that the Civil Year may agree with the Courſe of the Sun. See Calendar and Year.

BISSIGNANO, a Town in Calabria Citerior, having the Title of a Principality and Biſhoprick, which depends immediately on the Holy See. It is built upon a Hill with a Caſtle, and at its Foot it hath the River of Cotili, which falls into the Crate. Biſſignano was in the Country of the Brutians, and Livius hath mention'd it. The Latin Authors do name it diverſly, Beſidiæ, Dediſiæ, Beſidianum, and Biſinianum. It is not very Populous, 'tis ſituated betwixt the Sea of Tuſcany and Roſſano, towards the Gulph of Tarentum.

BITETTO, a Town in Italy, in the Kingdom of Naples, in the Province of Bari, 'tis a Biſhop's See, Suffragant to Bari.

BITHIA, Scythian Women, who, according to Pliny, had two Apples in each Eye, which had ſuch natural Strength, that they bewitched with the very Sight, and killed any living Creature if they looked long upon it.

BITHYNIA, a Province of Leſſer Aſia, containing the City of Nice, famous for two General Councils; Chalcedonia, alſo famous for a General Council; Heraclea, Apamea, Burſa, which at preſent is the moſt conſiderable, &c. This Country is now in Natolia, about the Black Sea, or Pontus Euxinus, and Archipelago. It hath had in times paſt, very potent Kings; but the Succeſſions are uncertain and interrupted. For the Story of thoſe Princes is known but ſince the Death of Alexander the Great, to Nicomedes IV. which is about 210 years. This latter had a great ſhare in the Favours of Julius Cæſar, and dying without Iſſue, in 679 of Rome, 25 before the Birth of Chriſt, he left the Romans Heirs to his Eſtates.

BITONTO, in Latin Bituntum, a Biſhop's See and Marquiſate in the Kingdom of Naples, in the Province of Bari.

BITUITUS, King of the Auvergnats, lived 125 years before Chriſt. He was ſo Potent that he raiſed 100000 Men to fight the Romans, commanded by Fabius Maximus; but was defeated entirely near the River Iſere, in Dauphine, and carried Priſoner to Rome, with his Son Cogentiat, in the 633 year of Rome, and the 4th of the 164th Olympiad, 121 years before the Birth of Chriſt. Some Authors ſay, That Bituitus going to Rome, was made a Priſoner there; and others aſſure us, That Cneus Domitius finiſh'd this War, and ſurpriz'd Bituitus very diſhonourably, and that the Senate only oblig'd this Prince to live at Alba, being aſham'd of the Practice. Florus, Valerius Maximus.

BIZACENE, or Province of Bizacene, an ancient Country of Africk, pretty well known by the ancient Authors, and chiefly by Strabo, Ptolemy, &c. It is now in the Kingdom of Tunis. The City of Bizacene had a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Carthage. This Country is about the City of Mammometha, or Machomette, which is the Adrumetum of the Ancients. There have been four Councils in this Province: The firſt was aſſembled in 522. according to Baronius, in favour of the Biſhops, who had been baniſhed, and were recalled to their Sees after the Death of Thraſimond, King of the Vandals. Dacian the Metropolitan, celebrated the ſecond in 541 about Diſcipline. The Emperor Juſtinian writ to him, that he was the Guardian and Revenger of the Canons, and that he would give Order that the Decrees of this Synod ſhould be put in Execution. There was held another Synod in 602. upon the account of Clement, Primate of that Province, which may be ſeen in the Tenth Book of the Epiſtles of Gregory the Great. The laſt, wherein Stephen preſided, was held in 646. by 42 Prelates againſt the Monothelites. Gregory, Baronius.

BIZEBANI, the Name of the Grand Signior's Mutes, Bi ſignifying Without, and Zeban, a Tongue. Ricaut.

BIZES, Governor of the People of the Iſle of Naxos; he had almoſt a Sovereign Authority; but did not take the Title of King no more than Democritus his Predeceſſor. They ſay he invented the way of Sawing and Poliſhing Marble. Pauſanias in Eliacis.

BLACADER, the Name of a Barony in Scotland, in the Shire of Barwick, which gave Sirname to an ancient Knightly Family, the Heireſs whereof Married a Gentleman of the Sirname of Hume, whoſe Poſterity now enjoys it, and were made Knights and Baronets by King Charles the Second.

BLACKBURN, a Market-Town of Blackburn Hundred in Lancaſhire, finely ſeated betwixt the Derwent and a ſmall River that runs not far off into it.

BLACKHEATH, a noted Heath near Greenwich, in the North-Weſt of Kent, where ſeveral Battels have been fought againſt the Rebels in the Reigns of Richard II. Hen. VI. and Henry VII.

BLACKNEY, a Town of Blidſlow Hundred, in the Weſt of Glouceſterſhire, ſituate on the Weſt ſide of the Severn, near the Fall of a ſmall River into it.

BLACKWATER, otherwiſe called Awiduff, or Avenmore, is a River of Munſter in Ireland, which riſes in Kerry, takes its Courſe Eaſtward, and waters Newmarket, Mallo, Leſmore, and Youghall, near which laſt it empties it ſelf into the Sea.

BLACKWATER, an Eſſex River, which meets the Chelmer near the Mouth of it.

BLAEU, or Blaauw, or Janſſon, (William) called Janſonius Ceſius, a famous Printer of Amſterdam, much eſteemed in the beginning of this Age. He was a particular Friend and Diſciple to Tycho Brahé. His Geographical Works, and fine Impreſſions, will make his Memory everlaſting. The Atlas, the Treatiſe of the Globes, the Inſtitution of Aſtronomy, and divers other Pieces of his, are alſo in great Eſteem. Blaauw, died October the 18th, 1638. being the 67th Year of his Age. His Sons John and Cornelius Blaauw, have finiſhed what he had ſo happily begun. Voſſius de Scient. Math.

BLAIRE, the Blaire of Athol in Scotland, noted for the Battel fought there, Aug. 1. 1689. betwixt Their Majeſties King William and Queen Mary's Forces, commanded by Major-General Mackay, and the Rebels of Scotland, under the Command of the Viſcount of Dundee, thoſe conſiſting of 4000 Foot, and four Troops of Horſe and Dragoons; and theſe of 6000 Foot and 100 Horſe. The Fight began between Four and Five a Clock in the Afternoon, and laſted till very near Night, both Sides fighting with great Courage and Reſolution for ſome time, till ſome of our Regiments being over-power'd by the Enemy, gave way, which made the Major-General draw off, and retire towards Sterling, where he arrived with a Body of 1500 Men in very good Order. Dundee was killed in the Fight by a Shot in his Left-Eye, which cauſed great Diviſions among the Rebels, while the Earl of Dumferling and Colonel Cannon contended for the Command. There was great Suſpicion that Their Majeſties Forces were betray'd by the Athol Men, who miſinformed them as to the Enemies Motions, and fell upon their Baggage during the Battel; However, the Earl of Levins and Colonel Haſting's Regiment remained Maſters of the Field, the Rebels drawing off firſt, when they found their General kill'd, he having made his greateſt Effort upon the New raiſed Regiments, having cruelly perſecuted thoſe of their Perſuaſion, and knowing that they were thorowpac'd for Their Majeſties Intereſt.

St. BLAISE, a Military Order in Armenia. The Knights wear Blue Cloaths and a Croſs of Gold, which ſerveth for an Additional Armory to the Lion of Armenia. The Kings of this State eſtabliſhed this Order in Honour of St. Blaiſe, as being the Patron of their Kingdom. Favin. Theatre d'Honneur.

BLAKE, (Robert) an Engliſh Man, Admiral under the Parliamentarians. He had this Commiſſion given him in 1649. He fought the Dutch to Advantage in 1652. This Fight was near Goodwin-Sands; the ſame Year he fought the Dutch Fleet commanded by Trump, De Ruyter, and De Witt, in which he behav'd himſelf with great Conduct and Reſolution; and the Dutch were beaten. In 1655. he commanded a Fleet of 25 Sail for Cromwell, Cannonaded the Caſtle of Tunis, and burn'd nine Turkiſh Ships, which lay in the Road, and Landing 1200 Soldiers, cut off 3000 Turks, which were Encamp'd about the Town: From thence he ſailed towards Algiers and Tripoly, brought thoſe Places to Terms, and made them deliver up all the Engliſh Slaves. In the Year 1656. he fought the Spaniards in the Bay of Cadiz, and took two of their Plate Fleet; for this ſignal Service, Cromwel and the Parliament ſent him a Diamond of great value, deſigning him a much greater Reward, but this was prevented by his Death, which happen'd in 1657. Philips Continuation of Baker's Chron. Du Cheſne, Skinner, &c.

BLANCHE, of Caſtile, Queen of France, illuſtrious for her Wiſdom, Conduct, and great Piety, was Daughter to Alphonſus IX. of Caſtile, and Eleanor of England. She was married in 1200 at Parmor in Normandy, to Lewis, called the Lion, afterwards King of France. She was Mother to nine Sons and two Daughters, and was Crowned in 1223. at Reims, with the King her Husband, who being perſuaded of her Virtue and Conduct, declared her, by his Laſt Will, Regent of the Kingdom, during the Minority of his Son. This Princeſs inſpired St. Lewis with Sentiments of great Piety, telling him very often, That ſhe had rather ſee him Dead, than know him to be in a mortal Sin. She brought him up with her other Children, under Men of great Probity and extraordinary Learning. Her Government was quickly diſturb'd with a powerful League; but ſhe being Wiſe and Dextrous, diſſipated all theſe Domeſtick Factions. In the mean time ſhe reduced Raimond Earl of Tolouſe, and ſuppreſſed the Party of the Albigenſes. St. Lewis the King, her Son, going in his Voyage beyond Sea, in 1248. left her Regent of the Kingdom, which ſhe prudently governed, though diſturbed by ſome Seditions. She died at Paris, December the 1ſt. 1252.

BLANCHE of Burgundy, Queen of France, Daughter to Otho IV. Earl Palatine of Burgundy, and Maud Counteſs of Artois, She was married in 1308 to Charles of France, Earl of Marche, afterwards Charles IV. Sirnamed the Comely. Philip his Brother, who was alſo V. of the Name, called the Long, married Jane, Eldeſt Siſter to Blanche. Both the Siſters were accuſed of Adultery. Philip and Walter de Launey, Brothers, being convicted of it, were flea'd alive, dragg'd through a Meadow newly mow'd, then beheaded, and their Carcaſſes hung by the Arms to the Gibbet. Blanche was confined in Caſtle-Gaillard of Andeli, and Divorced in 1322. under pretence of Conſanguinity. After this, ſhe became a Nun in the Abbey of Maubuiſſon, where ſhe endured Penance, and died. Ste. Marthe Hiſtoire de France, Mezerai.

BLANCHE, Wife to Baptiſt de la Porte, a Citizen of Padua, render'd her ſelf famous by her Chaſtity and Courage. She accompanied her Husband when he was ſent from Padua to Baſſano in Marca Treviſana, to command the Garriſon there, in 1233. and ſhe generouſly aſſiſted him in the Defence of this Place, againſt the Tyrant Acciolini, who beſieged it; but the City being taken by Treachery, her Husband was kill'd, and the Enemies lead her Captive to their Prince. This Tyrant, charmed with the Beauty and Majeſty of this Amazone, who appeared with her Arms in his Preſence, intended to force her; which ſhe avoided by throwing her ſelf out at the Window. Being recovered of this Fall, Acciolini redoubled his Endeavours to poſſeſs her; and finding no other Means to ſatisfie his Paſſion, he cauſed her to be ty'd to a Bed. This afflicted Woman diſſembled her Deſpair, and obtained that ſhe might ſee her Husband in his Tomb, there to bewail his Death. The Sepulchre being opened, ſhe flung her ſelf upon the Carcaſs, and with an extraordinary Strugling, ſhe made the Grave Stone to fall upon her, which cruſh'd her Head to pieces; ſo that not being able to reſiſt the Violence of the Tyrant, ſhe repaired this Diſhonour by dying in her Husband's Grave, and acquired an immortal Name. Scardeon Hiſt. Petav. l. 3.

BLANDFORD, (Walter) Doctor of Divinity, was born at Melbury-Abbats near Shaftsbury in Dorſetſhire: Being ſent to Oxford, he was admitted firſt of Chriſtchurch, An. 1635. Afterwards of Wadham-College, under the Care of the Reverend Mr. George Aſhwell, B.D. (who has written Learnedly againſt the Socinians) choſen Scholar of that Houſe, Oct. 1. 1638. and Fellow An. 1644. By his Induſtry, Proficiency, and Virtuous Deportment, he was worthily qualified for his Degrees in the Arts; Thoſe accurate and celebrated Syſtems, uſed to be read to the Young Men in that College (and other Places) in MSS. were all (or moſt of them) aſcribed to him. During the Parliamentary Proceedings, 1648. and Uſurpation; he retired into the Country, and officiated in the Family of the Lord Lovelace; where, by the Eſteem and Favour he had in the College, and the Intereſt by his own Merit abroad, he lived ſecure in thoſe turbulent Times, preſerving both his Fellowſhip and his Integrity. Upon the Reſtauration of King Charles, he was Elected, and admitted Warden of that College, and became Chaplain to my Lord Chancellor Hide. In the Year 1660. he was made Doctor of Divinity, and Prebendary of the Church of Glouceſter; and one of his Majeſties Chaplains in Ordinary. He was twice Vice-Chancellor of the Univerſity; viz. An. 1662. and 1663. In the diſcharging of which Truſt, as alſo of that in his own College, while for ſeveral years he preſided there; he ſeem'd to have a peculiar Talent of mingling Prudence with the greateſt Strictneſs: And as he did not hide his Talent, ſo he could no longer conceal himſelf from being taken notice of as a Perſon qualified for Government of a higher Nature; and accordingly, upon the Death of Doctor William Paul, Biſhop of Oxford, he was Elected to that See, Nov.7. 1665. and December 3d following, (the King and Queen with their Courts, being in Oxford by reaſon of the Plague in London) he was Conſecrated in New-College Chapel by the Biſhops of London, Glouceſter, and Exeter. Soon after, the King (having a ſingular Eſteem for him) made him Dean of his Royal Chapel, which, with the Biſhoprick of Worceſter (to which he was tranſlated upon the Death of Doctor Skinner the 13th of June, 1671.) he held for about Ten years, till his Death. He was a Perſon of Regular and Exemplary Life. He died the 9th of July, 1675. in the 59th year of his Age, in the Biſhop's Palace at Worceſter, and lies buried in the Cathedral Church, in the Chapel, which is at the Eaſt end beyond the Quire, with a decent Monument and Inſcription, of which this is part;

> Gualterus Blandford, SS. T. P. &c. Ad primorum Eccleſiæ temporum exempla factus, & futurorum omnium natus; ſummis honorum faſtigiis ita admotus, ut perpetuo ſuper invidiam, citra meritum conſiſteret; non ſeculi artibus, aſſentatione, aut ambitu; ſed pietate, modeſtia, animi dimiſſione, & dignitatum fuga clarus. Ab Academiæ gubernaculo ad Eccleſiæ clavum (quæq; anceps magis procuratio) ad conſcientiæ Principis regimen evocatus, muneribus omnibus par, quaſi unico impenderetur. Nimirum eruditione recondita Academiam, ſanctiſſima prudentia Diæceſin, illibata pietate Aulam illuſtrabat. Donec perpetuis laboribus, & morbo diutino, (quem invicta animi conſtantia toleraverat) confectus, facultatibus ſuis Deo, Eccleſiæ, Pauperibus, diſtributis, &c.

BLANDFORT, a Market Town of Pimpern Hundred, in the County of Dorſet, ſeated on the River Stoure, about half way betwixt Sturmiſter Weſtward, and Wimborn-Minſter Eaſtward, all three on the ſame River. Blandford is a good Town, well Inhabited, and neighboured with Gentry.

BLANDRATA, (George) a Heretick in the Sixteenth Age; was of Piedmont, or as others ſay, a Native of the Marquiſate of Saluces. He practis'd Phyſick in Poland and Tranſilvania, from whence returning into Italy, he was ſeiz'd for his Heterodoxy. Having eſcaped the Inquiſition at Padua, he retired to Geneva; and being uneaſie there, travell'd back into Poland and Tranſilvania. He taught a refined Arianiſm, maintaining three Perſons, and three Eſſences in the Trinity, and that the Father only was true God; and being Phyſician to John Sigiſmond, King of Poland, poiſon'd him with his Errors, Florimond de Remond. Spond. An. Chriſt. 1551.

BLANGY, a Town in the Province of Arras, which hath been ſubject to the French ſince the Treaty of the Pyrenees. It ſtands three miles North from Heſdin; the Monaſtery and Church here, was built by the Princeſs Bertha, Daughter to the Count Palatine, after the Loſs of her Husband Adrian. Valeſius.

BLANKA, Blanca, an Iſland in the Bay of Mexico, on the Coaſt of South America, 12 Degrees from the Line to the North; as others ſay, 11. 48. 40 Leagues from Granada to the South Weſt, in Compaſs ſix German Miles. The Weſt Side is Champagne, the Eaſt Woody, and full of ſweet Shrubs under the greater Trees. The Soil is Barren and Rocky, and deſtitute of Water, except what comes by Rain: The Woods are filled with thorny Plants, yet the Plains are covered with a Graſs Knee deep; on which the Goats thrive ſo well, that they are encreaſed to thouſands. There live neither Spaniards nor Indians upon it, but the former go thither to hunt the Goats, and the Hollanders for that ſame end, and to fetch Salt.

BLANKEBERCHE, a Borough of Flanders in the Low-Countreys, which lies upon the Sea with a Port and a Caſtle, about two Leagues from Bruges, and ſomewhat more from Oſtend.

BLANMONT, or Blamont, a ſmall Town in Lorrain, with the Title of a County. It is ſituate upon the River called Voiziere, at the Foot of the Mountains towards Germany.

BLASCUS Nonius, a Spaniſh Lord, having ſeveral times viewed the Coaſts of the Countries of Paria and Darien, in the Southern America, diſcovered, near the Gulph of Uraba, an Iſthmus 100 Paces long, which ſeparates the two great Seas; and to profit by the Commodity of this Paſſage, he cauſed four Fortreſſes to be made on it, having gained ſome of the Princes of this Country by Gifts, and conquered the reſt by his Arms. This Succeſs augmented his Ambition, inſomuch that he endeavoured to Uſurp the Sovereignty in theſe conquered Countries; of which being convicted, his Head was cut off by Order of the King of Spain. Had it not been for this Treachery, he deſerved a great Reward, for opening the Way into Peru to Francis Pizarr, and Diego Almagre, who went thither in 1525. This Country abounds in Gold and Precious Stones.

BLASTARES, (Matthew) a Monk of the Order of St. Baſil, who in the year 1335. made a Collection of Eccleſiaſtical Conſtitutions, to which he added another of the Civil Law, and rang'd them Alphabetically under certain Heads, calling it Syntagma: There are 23 Titles, according to the number of the Greek Alphabet, and under every Letter ſeveral Chapters, as of the Agape, of the Anathema's, &c. He chooſes rather to report the Senſe than the Words of the Canons and Laws, and ſometimes only refers to the Places of the Canons where the Matter is cited. Doujat Hiſtoire du Droit Canon.

BLASTUS, a Diſciple of Valentinus in the Second Century. He maintain'd, that Eaſter was to be Celebrated on the 14th day of the Month, according to the manner of the Jews. Pope Eleutherius degraded him from the Prieſthood, and Irenæus confuted him both by Conference and Writing. *Euſebius Lib.*5. *Cap.*14. *Hiſt. Eccl. Iren. Lib.*3. Cap. 3.

BLAVET, or Port Lewis, a ſmall Town of France in Britany, with an excellent Port. It is ſituated upon the Mouth of the River Blavet, which gives it its Name. This River hath its Source at the Borough of Grace, in the Dioceſe of St. Bujeux; it paſſeth through Pontivi and Hennebon, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Sea, at the Port of Blavet. This Place is one of the beſt fortified of all Britany. Thoſe of the Leaguers gave it to the Spaniards, by means of the Duke of Mercæur, Governor of the Province; but it was reſtored by the Peace of Vervins in 1598. In the Reign of Lewis the Juſt, the Malecontent Princes fortified it; but the Duke of Vendoſme delivered it to the Marquis of Cæuvres. A little while after, the King demoliſhed it; but afterwards obſerving the Importance of this Place, he re-built it. About 1625. the Lord of Soubize, one of the Chiefs of the Revolted Proteſtants, ſurprized the Town of Blavet, and thinking to carry the Fort, was prevented by the Cannon of the Place.

BLAUUS, a Roman, who hearing that his Son was kill'd by Order of the Triumvirate, deſired that they might kill him alſo, to bear him company, which was granted. Hoffin.

BLAYE, a well fortified City of France in Guienne. It is ſix or ſeven Leagues below Bourdeaux upon the Gironde, the Name which is given to the Garonne, after that it hath received the Dordagne. It is one of the moſt important Places of the Kingdom; and though it is ancient, there is but little likelihood that it is the Promontorium Santonum of Ptolemy, as divers Authors have written. I ſhould rather believe, that the Cape, of which this Author ſpoke, is that which the French now call the Point of the Tremblade, or perhaps that of Maumuſſon, about the Mouth of the Seudre. It is thought that Blaye is ſpoken of in the Itinerary of Antoninus, under the Name of Blavium and Blavutum; but the Manuſcripts do not well agree, ſome having Plavium, others Planutum, Blauntum, &c. Howbeit, Blaye was conſiderable about the end of the Fourth Age, in the time of Auſonius, who ſpeaks of it as of a Place of War, in the Twelfth of his Epiſtles, written to Paulus, whom he invites to come to ſee him at Sainctes, &c. King Charibert died in 570. at Blaye, where he was buried in the Church of St. Roman. Thoſe of the Country ſay, that the Famous Roland, Nephew to Charlemaign, was Lord of Blaye, and that he was buried in the ſame Church. The Proteſtants took this City in 1568. as did afterwards thoſe of the League; the Marſhal of Matignon, then Governor of Guienne, beſieged it in 1593. without being able to take it. But he defeated the Spaniſh Fleet there, which came to aſſiſt the Leaguers. Blaye is two Leagues below the Point of Bec d'Ambes, where the Garonne and Dordagne Meet. It is built upon a Rock, and very well fortified: This is what they call the Upper City; the Lower, or the Suburb, is ſeparated by a ſmall Channel, where the Tide comes up. It is inhabited by Merchants, who have great Stores of Wine here. The Engliſh Ships, and others which go up to Bourdeaux, leave their Artillery at Blaye ſince 1475. that King Lewis the Eleventh ordered it ſo. Du Cheſne, Sanſon.

BLECHINGLY, a Borough Town of Tancrede Hundred, in the Eaſt Parts of Surry, now very much decayed from what it was formerly, when fortified with a fair and ſtrong Caſtle.

BLEDA, Brother to Attila, King of the Huns, lived in the Fifth Age. He ravaged Illyria and Thracia in 441. Three years after Attila cauſed him to be killed, upon Suſpicion of his being Falſe.

BLEKING, a Province of the Kingdom of Swedeland, upon the Baltick Sea, which in times paſt had the Title of Dutchy, and belonged to Denmark; but it was yielded to Swedeland by the Peace of Roſchild in 1658. Bleking hath Gothland on the North, and Schonen on the Weſt, and lies over againſt Germany. Its principal Cities are Rotembi, Chriſtianſtad, Chriſtianople, &c. The two latter were carried by the Danes, during the laſt Wars in 1676. and retaken in 1677. by the King of Sweden.

BLEMYES, or Blemmyes, an ancient People of Æthiopia, who were ſubdued by Florus, ſent by the Emperor Marcian, in 450. to reduce them. St. Auguſtine ſpeaks of them in the 37th Sermon to the Brothers of the Deſert; and Pliny alſo, l. 5. c. 5. of his Natural Hiſtory. They ſay, That the Inhabitants of this Country look as if they had not a Head, becauſe that, through ill Cuſtom, they hold it ſo as if 'twere ſunk down between the Shoulders; ſo that one would think they have their Mouth and Eyes in their Stomach; and beſides their long Hair covers their Neck, and keeps it altogether from view. This is what Borel, a Learned Phyſician, hath obſerved upon the Voyages of one of his Relations, Centur. 3. Obſerv. Hence cometh the Fable that the Blemyes had no Head. See Bochart touching the Original of this Name, which he derives from the Hebrew Words Beli, or Bli, and Muach, that is, without Brains. Dionyſ. in Perierg.

BLENE, a moſt fruitful Country in the Kingdom of Pontus, watered by the River Amnius, where Mithridates, named Eupator, did, by his Generals, entirely defeat the Army of Nicomedes, King of Bithynia; who, with much difficulty, ſaved himſelf, with a ſmall Number of his Men, and retired into Italy. Strab.

BLESUS, a Roman Captain, and Unkle to Sejanus, Favourite of Tiberius: Beſides the Services he had rendred the Commonwealth in Pannonia, where he contributed more than all the reſt, to aſſiſt Druſus in appeaſing the Sedition of the Legions; the Favour of his Nephew got him acquainted with the Emperor. It was for this, that when a Proconſul was to be ſent into Africk, to wage War with Tacfarinas, Tiberius propoſed Lepidus and Bleſus to the Senate, who for fear of the Diſpleaſure of Sejanus, whom People feared to offend as much as the Prince, choſe the latter, though they eſteemed him leſs Worthy than his Competitor. But though it ſeemed that Favour, rather than Deſert, gave this Charge to Bleſus, the happy Succeſs of this Enterprize acquired him a great Reputation, and for a Reward the Emperor ordered him a Triumph; declaring nevertheleſs, That it was in conſideration of Sejanus. In effect, after the Death of Sejanus, Tiberius poured a thouſand Reproaches on Bleſus, and cry'd ſhame on the Senate, for having preferr'd him to Lepidus, whoſe was a Man of great Worth, and whoſe Manners were blameleſs. Tacit. Annal. 3.

BLIBURG, or Blithborough, a ſmall Town in the County of Suffolk, upon the South-ſide of the River Blithe, which a little farther falls into Southwold-Bay. In this Town Anna, a Chriſtian King of the Eaſt-Angles, lies buried, who was ſlain by Penda, King of Mercia, together with Ferminus, his Eldeſt Son, in 654. Henry I. King of England, Founded afterwards a Priory of Black Canons; but that being demoliſhed, the Town fell to ruin, and is now a very ſmall place.

BLITH, a Market-Town in the County of Nottingham, in the Hundred of Baſſetlaw.

BLITHE, a Staffordſhire River, runs Southward into the Trent, and waters in its Courſe Pagets-Bromley. There is another River of this Name in the N. E. Parts of Suffolk, runs from W. to E. into the Sea near Southwold, not far from its Spring; it waters Haleſworth.

BLOIS upon the Loire, a City of France, Capital of the Country of Bliſois, with the Title of a County, a Preſidial or Bailiwick, and a Chamber of Accounts. It is commonly placed in Beauce, becauſe it is of the Dioceſe of Chartres, and that its Country extends on this and the other ſide of the River of Loire, about Sologne on the one ſide, and unto Château-dun on the other ſide. Blois is an ancient City, and tho' we do not find its Name in the Commentaries of Cæſar, yet there is a likelihood that it was built before his time. This Town is remarkable for the true Pronunciation of the French: It's likewiſe famous for Clocks and Watches. Near the City there is found Terra Sigillata, old Aquæducts, and the Remains of an Orcheſtra, which ſerv'd for a Granary to Julius Cæſar. Gregory of Tours, Aigulphe, Aimoin, &c. mention it under the Name of Bleſum, Bleſa, and Caſtrum Bleſenſe. It is ſo pleaſant a City, and ſo well ſituated, the Air ſo good, and the Country ſo fertile, that it was called the City of Kings; not only becauſe in times paſt the Children of France were brought up there, but alſo becauſe ſeveral of the French Kings made it their ordinary Reſidence, and took great delight in it. We may add, that it is alſo becauſe that theſe firſt Earls were of the Family of Hugh Capet, the Head of the Kings of the third Race. Lewis XII. was born here in 1461. and Anne his Queen died in 1514. Claude Queen of Francis I. in 1524. and Catharine de Medicis, the Relict of Henry II. in 1589. Here was alſo that famous Aſſembly of the States of France, in which, by Order of King Henry III. Henry Duke of Guiſe was kill'd, together with the Cardinal his Brother.

BLONDEL, (David) a French-man born, and a Proteſtant, was of Châlon in Champaign. From his Youth he ſhewed a great Inclination for Learning, wherein he ſucceeded extreamly well; for he Learned the Tongues and Divinity; but he applied himſelf particularly to Hiſtory. He had the happieſt Memory in the World; he alſo had a great Penetration of Wit, whereof he made uſe to make new Diſcoveries. He publiſhed a Work, to ſhew that what had been believed of the Pope Joan, was a ridiculous Fable. Beſides this Work, we have of his an Anſwer to the anrgy Tranſports of Chiflet againſt the Houſe of France, under the Title of Aſſertatio Genealogiæ Franciæ: A Treatiſe of the Sibylls: De Formula Regnante Chriſto: Iſiodorus Vapulans, which is a Piece againſt the Decretal Epiſtles: A Commentary upon the Euchariſt: The Primacy in the Church, &c. There were Marginal Notes of his promiſed upon the Annals of Cardinal Baronius, which one of his Friends was to have put into the Preſs. David Blondel having extraordinarily applied himſelf to Learning, had neglected to take care of his Fortune; it was very indifferent in France. The Adminiſtrators of the Illuſtrious School of Amſterdam, ſent to envite him thither, to be Profeſſor of Hiſtory. He accepted of it in 1650. and filled there the place of the famous John Gerard Voſſius. In the mean time, the Continuation of his Studies, the Air of Amſterdam, and perhaps his writing too ſmall a Character, made him loſe his Eyes. He died ſome time after, on the 6th of April, 1655. being 64 years of Age. One of his Brothers, who died young, a Learned Man too, writ ſome Works.

BLONDUS, (Flavius) an Hiſtorian, Native of Forli in Romania, was in Eſteem in the 15th Age. He was Secretary to Pope Eugenius IV. and ſome other Pontiffs; and he hath rendred his Name Famous to Poſterity by his Works, which teſtifie that he was an exact and inquiſitive Writer, though his Stile ſmells of the Barbarity which Men begun to baniſh in his Age. The Pieces which we have of his, are, Romæ Triumphantis, Lib. 10. which he Dedicated to P. Pius II. Romæ Inſtauratæ, Lib. 3. which he Dedicated to Eugenius IV. Italiæ Illuſtrata, Lib. 8. Hiſtoriarum Romanarum Decades, Lib. 3. And De Origine & Geſtis Venetorum. Leander Alberti ſaith, That Flavius Blondus had five Sons, all Learned Men. He lived as a Philoſopher, without troubling himſelf to acquire great Riches; and he died at Rome the 4th of June, in the year 1463. being 75 years of Age. Paul. Jov. Bellarm. Merula, Voſſius.

BLONICZ, a Town of Great Poland, upon the Frontiers of Mazovia, within 7 or 8 miles of Warſovia: It is large and very populous; but the Houſes are all of Wood.

BLOUNT, or le Blound, (Sir Walter Kirkham) of Sodington, Lord of the Mannor of Mamble, &c. in the County of Worceſter, Baronet, Son to Sir George Blount Baronet, and Mary Kirkham, Daughter of Richard Kirkham of Blagdon in the County of Devon, Eſq; by whom he had Iſſue 5 Daughters and 8 Sons. Sir Walter above-mentioned, being the Eldeſt, married Alicia, Daughter to Sir Thomas Strickland of Thornton-bridge in Yorkſhire: This Lady dying, he afterwards married Mary, Daughter to Sir Cæſar Cranmer of Aſtwoodbury in the County of Bucks. This Sir Walter is the 13th in a direct Line, ſince the Family of the le Blounds, or Blounts, ſettled at Sodington, by the Marriage of Sir Walter le Blound with Joan, Daughter and Heir of Sir William Sodington, in the Reign of King Henry III. This Family of the le Blounds, or Blounts, was very conſiderable in the time of William the Conquerour; Robert le Blound being Dux Manuum Militarium, and his Brother William le Blound, Captain-General of the Foot, their Father le Blound being Lord of Guines in Normandy, Robert le Blound was made Baron of Ickſworth in Suffolk by the Conquerour, and poſſeſs'd of thirteen Lordſhips in that County. His Brother William le Blound likewiſe held the Mannour of Croesby, and five other Mannours in the County of Lincoln. Gilbert Blount, Son of Robert above-mentioned, founded a Priory of 280 l. per Annum, being in thoſe days Fourteen Knights Fees, taken notice of by Cambden in his Britannia in theſe Words: Cernitur ubi Prioratus Antiquus à Gilberto Blount, Magnæ Nobilitatis Viro Domino de Ickſworth fundatus. From Robert and William above-nam'd, the ſeveral Branches of the Blounts are deſcended; viz. Charles Blount, Lord Montjoy, Earl of Devonſhire; Sir Walter Kirkham Blount of Sodington; Sir Henry Blount of Tittenhanger; · · · · · · Blount of Maple-Durham; Thomas Blount of Kent, &c. William, the 6th from Robert above mention'd, being ſlain in the Battel of Lewis, 47 Hen. III. left his two Siſters, Agnes, Wife of William de Creketot, and Roiſia, married to Robert de Valonis, his Heirs. And thus the Male Line of the Elder Houſe failing, 'twas ſome time before any Younger Branch of the Family was raiſed to the ſame Greatneſs: However, they made no inconſiderable Figure in the mean time; for in the 39th of Henry III. Peter le Blound was made Conſtable of the Tower of London; and Hugh le Blound was Sheriff for the Counties of Eſſex and Hertford, in the 14th of Edward I. Thomas le Blound, in the 5th of Edward II. was Governour of Droſſelan-Caſtle in Wales; and Stephen le Blound, being Chamberlain and Receiver to the ſame King Edward in Scotland, was employed in Guarding the Marches. To return to Thomas, who married Juliana, Daughter to John Lord of Abergaveny, by whom he had ſeveral Lordſhips, of which he died ſeized, being in the 20th year of King Edward II. made Steward of his Houſhold. In the firſt of Edward III. William le Blound had a Charter of Free Warren, in all his Demeſn Lands at Hampton-Lovet, with ſeveral other Privileges: He married one of the Daughters and Coheirs of Theobald de Verdon, with whom he had ſeveral Lordſhips. He had likewiſe a Command in the Wars of Scotland, and was ſeveral times ſummon'd to Parliament as a Baron by King Edward III. in the 11th year of whoſe Reign he died, leaving John of Sodington, his Brother, his Heir, from whom the Blounts of that Houſe derive themſelves in a direct Line. In the 4th year of Henry IV. Sir Walter Blount, being the King's Standard-bearer, was ſlain in the Battel of Shrewsbury, with the King's Coat-Armour upon him: And in the 14th of the ſame Reign, Sir John Blount, Governour of a Garriſon in Aquitain, being beſieged there by a Mareſchal of France, defeated the Mareſchal's Army with 300 Men only, took the Mareſchal, 12 Priſoners of Note, beſides 120 others. There have been ſeveral other conſiderable Perſons of this Family, both for their Fortunes, Services, and Employments, in the Reigns of Richard II. Henry IV. Henry V. and Henry VI. And in the 5th of Edward IV. Walter Blount was, in conſideration of his great Fidelity, Wiſdom, &c. by Charter advanced to the Dignity of a Baron, by the Title of Lord Montjoy: He was ſucceeded in the ſame Honour by his Grandſon Edward, who dying in his Minority, left his Peerage and his Eſtate to his Unkle John, to whom William his Son and Heir ſucceeded, who was made Privy Councellor to Henry VII. Commanded in the Army for ſuppreſſing the Inſurrection of the Corniſh-men, and enjoy'd ſeveral other Great Offices under that Prince. After his Deceaſe, the Honour was continued in his Son and Heir Charles, who died in the 37th of Henry VIII. leaving by his Wife, Daughter of Willoughby Lord Brook, James Montjoy his Son and Heir; which James, in the 15th of Queen Elizabeth, ſate in Judgment upon the Trial of Thomas Howard, Duke of Norfolk. Upon his Deceaſe, the Honour fell to William, who dying in the 36th of Queen Elizabeth, was ſucceeded by Charles his Brother: This Charles, being a Military Perſon of great Bravery, Commanded in the Fleet againſt the Spaniſh Armado, and was afterwards made Governour of Portſmouth, Lieutenant of the Queen's Forces in Ireland, Commanded by the Earl of Eſſex, and afterwards Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland; in which Poſt he repulſed the Spaniards at Kinſale, and in general Governed that Kingdom with great Honour and Succeſs; for which Services, in the firſt of King James I. he was made Earl of Devonſhire, and Knight of the Garter: At his Death he left all his Eſtate to Montjoy Blount, his Natural Son, who, by King James I. was made Lord Montjoy of Montjoy-Fort in the North of Ireland; and afterwards Earl of Newport by King Charles I. This Lord married Anne, Daughter to John Lord Butler of Woodhall in the County of Hertford, and died, leaving two Sons, George and Charles, who died without Iſſue. Doomſd. Cambd. Brit. Dugd. Rot. Pip.

BLUNDELL, (Sir Francis) of Edenderry, in the King's County and Kingdom of Ireland, Baronet, by Patent, the 14th of October, in the 18th of King James I. granted to his Grandfather Sir Francis Blundell, then Vice-Treaſurer of that Kingdom; who married Joyce Serjant of Denbon in Buckinghamſhire, and had by her Sir George Blundell, who married Sarah Cooly, alias Colly, ſole Daughter and Heireſs of Sir William Cooly, alias Colly, of Edenderry aforeſaid, and had by her the preſent Sir Francis, who was firſt married to Urſula Davys, Daughter of Sir Paul Davys of Ireland, and is now married to Anne Ingoldesby, ſole Daughter to Sir Henry Ingoldesby of Buckinghamſhire, Baronet, and has by her now living two Sons and one Daughter, viz. William and Montague, and Anne Blundell.

BOBADILLA, (Nicholas) a Spaniard, one of the firſt Nine Companions of Ignatius Loyala; had a quick Wit, a fiery, open, and bold Humour, and a great Zeal for the Roman Faith. Being at the Court of the Emperour Charles V. in 1548. and ſeeing himſelf beloved of moſt of the German Princes, he inveighed againſt the Interim, and with ſo much noiſe, that Charles V. commanded that he ſhould be ſent back into Italy, yet giving him all that was neceſſary for his Journey. He returned with Joy, ſaith Orlandin, thinking that he ſhould be welcomed at the Court of Rome; but he found himſelf deceived, when he ſaw that Ignatius, at his arrival, would not receive him into his Houſe. As he had great Acquaintance at the Pope's Court, he knew very well the Counſel that Cardinal Moron, and ſome Biſhops of the Council, had given to the Pope, not to complain of the Interim. In effect, we do not find that this wiſe Pontif diſapproved the ſevere Treatment of Ignatius towards this Spaniſh Father, whoſe Zeal was ſomewhat indiſcreet. Maimbourg. Hiſtory of Lutheraniſm.

BOBIO, Bobbio, and Bobi, Bobium, a Town of Italy in the Dutchy of Milan, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan to Genoa. It is ſituated on the River Trabia. There is an old Abbey, Founded by St. Colomban, and it was this Abbey which gave a beginning to the City, which belonged to the Houſe of Maleſpine, to that of Vermi, and ſome others.

BOCACCIO, (John) of Certalde, a City of Tuſcany, lived in the Fourteenth Century, and was Diſciple to Petrarch. In an Age that Men began to reliſh Learning, he cultivated them advantageouſly, and his Books are a Proof of it. He compoſed a Work of the Genealogy of the Gods, which he Dedicated to Hugh, King of Jeruſalem and Cyprus: One, Of the Rivers, Mountains, and Lakes: An Abridgment of the Roman Hiſtory: Of Great Men: Of Illuſtrious Women: Of the Wars of the Emperours: Of the Florentines: Of the Taking of Jeruſalem; and ſeveral others, amongſt which there are his Novels. Bocaccio died in 1376. being 62 years of Age. Paul. Jov. Voſſ.

BOCCALINI, (Trajano) was eſteemed at the begining of the Seventeenth Age, under the Pontificate of Paul V. He was a Roman, Son to an Architect, who had not Means enough to forward him in his Studies: He raiſed himſelf however by his Wit. His Inclination led him naturally to Satyr, at which he had no ill ſucceſs: He thought it would be the means to get the Eſteem of the World. Yet the Profeſſion was dangerous, and the Deſtiny of France, who was hanged at Rome, ſhould have deterred him. But the good Reception which ſome of his Pieces had, that he communicated in Manuſcript to his Friends, perſuaded him ſo much of his own Worth, that nothing was capable to make him take another Courſe. He was received with Delight in the Academies of Italy, and Societies of the Learned, where he was admired for his Diſcourſes of Policy, and his ſhrewd and delicate Criticks. The Cardinals Borgheſe and Cajetan declared themſelves his Protectors, and ſerved him in many occaſions; ſo that he ſeemed to have nothing more to fear either from Men or Fortune. Boccalini then publiſhed his Ragguagli di Parnaſo, and Secretaria di Apollo, which is a Continuation of it. Theſe Works were received with extraordinary Applauſe, and this Succeſs inſpired him with a Deſire of puſhing on his Satyrical Reflections. He Printed his Pietra di Paragone, and diſcover'd ſomewhat too boldly of the Spaniards Deſigns on the Liberty of Italy, and inveighed too ſharply againſt their Tyranny in the Kingdom of Naples, and elſewhere. The Spaniards made their Complaints, and reſolved to be revenged on him. Boccalini was frighted, and retired to Venice, where he ſoon got Illuſtrious Friends. He was about his Political Diſcourſes upon Tacitus, when he was murthered in the moſt ſurprizing manner that can be. He lodged with one of his Friends, who being gone out early in the morning, left him in bed; a minute after, four arm'd Men entred his Chamber, and gave him ſo many Blows with Bags full of Sand, that they left him for dead: So that his Friend returning ſome time after, found him in ſo miſerable a Condition, that he could not utter one Word. The Murderers concealed themſelves ſo well, that what diligence ſoever was uſed at Venice, they could never be diſcovered, though the Malice of thoſe who had ſet them on Work was not doubted of. Loranzo Craſſo, Cornelius Tollius.

BOCCARIS, an Egyptian King and Legiſlator: He regulated and adjuſted all that part of Polity which concerned the Authority of the Crown, and private Contracts between Man and Man. When he lived is uncertain. Diod. Sic. l. 1. c. 52, & 59.

BOCCHUS, King of Mauritania, Father to Volux. He joined with Jugurtha his Son-in-Law, againſt the Romans, and was twice overcome by Marius, in 646. and 47. of Rome. And afterwards, to make his Peace with the Romans, he delivered Jugurtha to Scylla, who was Treaſurer in the Army of Marius, and had part of his Kingdom left him, as a Price of this Treachery. Florus, Velleius Paterculus, Salluſt.

BOCHARA, or Bockora, Buchara, a Town of Aſia in Zachatay, or Maurenaher, part of Tartary. It is near the River Albiamu, which is the Oxus of the Ancients, and therefore called Tranſoxiana Regio by the Romans, about 50 Leagues from Samarcand. Bochara was the Birth-place of Avicenna the Philoſopher, and is a Town of great Trade; it lies low, is encompaſſed with a high Wall of Earth; moſt of the private Houſes are alſo of Earth; but the Temples, and ſome of the Publick Buildings, are Stone: A ſmall River runs through the middle; but its Waters are not wholeſome. This City and adjacent Country were formerly under the Perſians; but being poſſeſs'd by a Tartar Prince, in 1558. they made cruel Wars upon the Perſians, becauſe of their wearing Hair on their upper Lip, which the Tartars count a great Sin. The Kings are generally poor and Tyrannical, and ſeldom Reign above 2 or 3 years, being either expell'd or kill'd; it was formerly much frequented by Caravans from India, Perſia, Ruſſia, and Calhia, from which laſt it is 9 Months Journey, and 20 days Journey from Vercem. Lat. 39. 10.

BOCHART, (Samuel) a Proteſtant Miniſter of Caen, was Native of Roan, and deſcended from the Illuſtrious Family of Bochart de Champigny, and of the Branch of Menillet. He ſtudied Divinity; but his Inclination leading him to other Studies beſides, he not only read all the Greek and Latin Poets, and the Holy Fathers, but alſo learned moſt of the Oriental Tongues. The beſt Editions of his Works are thoſe of Leiden and Utrecht. His Worth procured him the Eſteem not only of thoſe of his Communion, but of thoſe alſo who regarded Learning and Probity. The Queen of Sweden engaged him, in 1652. to make a Journey to Stockholm, where ſhe gave publick Marks of the Eſteem ſhe had for his Learning. At his return into France, in 1653. he continued his ordinary Exerciſes, and was of the Academy of Caen, which then was compoſed of Great Men. He died ſuddenly, whilſt he was ſpeaking in the ſame Academy, on Monday, May 6. 1667. which gave M. de Brieux occaſion to make this fine Epitaph upon him:

> Scilicet hæc cuique eſt data ſors æquiſſima, talis
> Ut ſit mors, qualis vita peracta fuit.
> Muſarum in gremio teneris qui vixit ab annis,
> Muſarum in gremio debuit ille mori.

He was rich, and left an Eſtate to his only Daughter, who was married to a Councellor of the Parliament of Rouen. The conſiderableſt Works which he publiſh'd during his Life, are his Phaleg, or Sacred Geography; and the Hierozoicon, or, De Animalibus Scripturæ. He writ alſo a Treatiſe of Minerals, Plants, and Precious Stones, whereof the Bible makes mention; another of the Terreſtrial Paradiſe; Commentaries upon Geneſis; and a Volume of Diſſertations. It were to be wiſhed, that thoſe who have thoſe Fragments would publiſh them.

BOCHIUS, or Bocqui, (John) born at Bruſſels, in 1555. He was a good Latin Poet; ſo that we may call him the Virgil of the Low Countries. His Works are, De Belgii Principatu. Parodia Heroica Pſalmorum Davidicorum. Obſervationes Phyſicæ, Æthicæ, Poeticæ, & Hiſtoricæ, in Pſalmos. Vita Davidis. Orationes, Poemata, &c. Val. Andreas Bibl. Belg. Melch. Adam. in Vit. Philoſ. Germ, &c.

BOCTONER, or Butoner, an Engliſh Knight, born in Somerſetſhire. He was both Phyſician, Hiſtorian, and Mathematician. He flouriſhed about the year 1460. and wrote the Antiquities of England; ſome Pieces of Aſtrology, and others in Phyſick; as, Collectiones Medicinales: De Aſtrologiæ Valore; Abbreviationes Doctorum, &c. Pitſ. de Script. Angl. Voſſ. l. 3. c. 9. de Hiſt. Lat.

BODEGRAVE, a Town in Holland upon the Rhine, 3 Leagues from Utrecht, remarkable for a Battel fought here betwixt the French and Dutch, in 1672.

BODENSTEIN, (Andrew) or Caroloſtadius, for ſo he was called, being born at Caroloſtadt in Franconia in Germany. He was Canon and Archdeacon of Wittenburg; afterwards he ſided with Luther, and publiſhed ſome Theſes againſt Free-will, and the Merit of Good Works, which occaſion'd a Diſpute between him and Eckius. He declared againſt the Real Preſence in the Euchariſt, which made Luther diſengage from him. Moreri affirms, That he taught People to deſpiſe Humane Learning, pretending that Men ought to read nothing but the Bible; and perſuaded the Scholars at Wittenberg to burn all their Books, and follow ſome Trade; and to ſhew them an Example, he turned Labourer himſelf: But he did not engage in this way of living, till he had rambled to Strasburg, Bazil, Zurick, and all Switzerland, from whence he was expell'd as an Anabaptiſt and ſeditious Perſon. He died in 1541. Spondan. A. C. 1518. &c. Sleidan Comment. Melchior Adam. in Vit. Juriſc. Germ. &c.

BODIN, (John) a Lawyer of Angiers, was in great Eſteem in the 16th Age. He had ſo particular a Knowledge in Hiſtory, that he would anſwer immediately to any Difficulties propoſed to him. He died about 1585. very poor; for which reaſon, his Name was thus turned by an Anagram, Joannes Bodinus, Audius ſine bono. He hath left divers Works, viz. The Republick, in Six Books; A Method for the Knowledge of Hiſtory; ſeveral Commentaries, as that upon the Treatiſe of Hunting of Oppian, &c.

BODLEY, (Sir Thomas) was born at Exeter in Devonſhire, March 2. 1544. of Worſhipful Parents, who being Proteſtants, retired out of England in Queen Mary's Reign, and fix'd their abode in Geneva, where Sir Thomas, then 12 years old, became Auditor of Chevallerius in Hebrew, of Beroaldus in Greek, of Calvin and Beza in Divinity, and had Domeſtick Teachers beſides in the Houſe of Philibertus Saracenus, a famous Phyſician, where he boarded: Here he continued until his Father returning to England, in the firſt of Queen Elizabeth, he came to Oxford, took the Degree of Batchelor of Arts in 1563. and was that year choſen Probationer of Merton-College, and the next year admitted Fellow. In 1565. he undertook a publick Reading of a Greek Lecture in the ſame College-Hall. In 1566. he proceeded Maſter of Arts, and was choſen Proctor in 1569. and for ſome time ſupplied the Office of Univerſity-Orator, beſtowing his time on ſeveral Studies, until a deſire of Learning the Modern Languages made him travel beyond Seas. At his return in 1585. the Queen employed him as Reſident to the King of Denmark and German Princes, and then to Henry III. King of France; and in 1588. ſent him to reſide at the Hague, to be preſent at the Council of the State, according to the Agreement made between her and the Dutch. He diſcharged this Office ſo well, that the Queen deſigned him to Places of greater Honour, when he withdrew himſelf from State-Buſineſs to the Univerſity of Oxford; and tho' call'd upon both by the Queen and King James, to ſerve as Ambaſſador in France, and in other Court-Employments, he always declined them, and applied himſelf to the forming of the Library there, ſince called the Bodleian Library; and with no ſmall Charge, Care, and Curioſity, furniſhed it with the Choiceſt of Books in all Faculties from all Parts, to his immortal Honour, and the unſpeakable Advantage of the Commonwealth of Learning: In memory of which, the Earl of Dorſet, when Chancellor of that Univerſity, erected him a Noble Monument, with an Honourable Inſcription. Cambd. Brit. &c.

BODMIN, a Market and Borough Town of Trugg Hundred in the North-Eaſt Parts of Cornwal. It is ſeated on the River Alan, was formerly a Biſhop's See, and ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament. It is 195 miles from London.

BODON, a Town of Servia, ſubject to the Turks; it ſtands on the Danube, 26 miles Weſt of Weiden.

BODROCH, a City of Upper Hungary, ſeated on the Danube; it was formerly the Capital of an Earldom: It is in the poſſeſſion of the Imperialiſts ſince the Conqueſt of Buda and Segedin, in 1686. lies 7 German miles South of the latter, 16 Eaſt of the former, and 4 miles North of Eſſeck.

BOEDROMIA, Feaſts which the Athenians celebrated, in remembrance of the Succour that Ion, Son to Xuthus, gave them, in their War with Eumolpus, Son to Neptune, in the time of K. Erechthæus. Some ſay that this Name came from a Greek Word, which ſignifies to run with eagerneſs, or in crying out, (from Βοὴ, Clamour, and Δρόμος, Race) or to run to the help of; from Βοηθεῖν, to ſuccour, and Δραμεῖν, to run; becauſe Ion run in haſte to ſuccour the Athenians. Others believe, That this Feaſt was inſtituted in Honour of Theſeus, becauſe he had conquered the Amazons in the Month of June, which they called Boedromian. Suidas, Pauſanias, Plutarch.

BOEMOND, Prince of Antioch, and formerly Prince of Tarentum, Son to Robert Guichard of Apulia. He paſſed with the French Lords into the Holy Land, where he ſignalized himſelf at the taking of the City of Antioch, which was beſieged from the 21ſt of October, 1097. unto the 3d of June 1098. and he received it for his Share. After which, he maintained many Wars againſt the Saracens and the Greeks; and came into France to marry Conſtantia, Daughter to King Philip I. and Bertha of Holland. This happened in 1106. and he died in April, 1111. He was buried at Canoſa in Apulia. William of Tyr.

BOEOTIA. See Beotia.

BOETHIUS, (Hector) a Scotſman, and famous Hiſtorian of that Kingdom; he was Contemporary with Eraſmus, and ſtudied with him at Paris. He writ the Hiſtory of Scotland in the time of the Emperor Charles V. He publiſhed ſeveral other Treatiſes; as, one of the Biſhops of Aberdeen, &c. His Hiſtory was continued by Ferrier, a Piedmonteſe; and P. Jovius and Dempſter wrote his Elogium. Humph. Lloyd treats him rudely in his Deſcription of England; but Dempſter defends him; and he is mentioned honourably by Leland, Le Mire, Voſſius, Simler, Bellarmin, and Buchanan.

BOETIUS, (Anicius Manlius Torquatus Severinus) deſcended from the ancient Families of the Anicii and Torquati, lived towards the end of the 5th and 6th Age. He was educated from his Infancy in all manner of Sciences, wherein he became ſo able, that none could ſurpaſs him. He was Conſul in 510. and was made Principal Miniſter of State by Theodoric King of the Goths. Caſſiodorus relates, That this Prince commends Boetius in a Letter which he writ him, for enriching himſelf at Athens with the Spoils of Greece, and for having made the Books of Pythagoras the Muſician, of Ptolemæus the Aſtronomer, of Nicomachus the Arithmetician, of Euclid, Plato, Ariſtotle, and Archimedes, known in Italy by Tranſlations as good as the Originals. Boetius chiefly applied himſelf to the Doctrine of Ariſtotle: And afterwards the ſame Theodoric, upon a Suſpicion conceiv'd againſt the Senate, of ſome Intelligence with Juſtin the Emperor, cauſed Boetius to be arreſted, with his Father-in-Law Symmachus, as the moſt Powerful of this Body. Boetius was conducted to Pavia, where, after 6 Months Impriſonment, he had his Head cut off, the 23d of October, 524. He compoſed, during his Impriſonment, the 5 Books of the Conſolation of Philoſophy. Several other Philoſophical Works are aſcribed to him. Henricus Laricius Glareanus of Baſle recollected in the laſt Age all his Works, and Printed them in 1546. Voſſius, Geſner, Le Mire.

BOGA, a Mountain of Egypt abounding with Mines of Gold and Silver. This and the adjacent Country are inhabited by a ſort of Greek Chriſtians, a wandering and unſettled People, who make Incurſions ſometimes as far as Nubia. Nubienſis.

BOGISLAUS, or Boguſlaus, the youngeſt of the Sons of Miſtevan King of the Vandals, and Brother to Udo, from whom are deſcended the Princes of Meckelburg. He left a Son named Suantibar, who was overcome by Bela King of Hungary, aſſiſted with the Forces of Miciſlaus King of Poland. This defeat would have been advantageous unto him, if he had perſiſted in the profeſſion of Chriſtianity, which he then embraced; but having recovered his liberty, he return'd to Heatheniſm, and could not endure to hear Chriſt ſpoken of. He left Four Sons, Wartiſlaus, Ratibor, Suantopulcus, and Bogiſlaus, who divided Pomerania amongſt them. The hithermoſt part which is on this ſide the Oder, fell to the Two firſt, and the farthermoſt to the Two others. Spener.

BOGISLAUS the Firſt, after the death of Suantopulcus his Brother, (whom Boleſlaus King of Poland had taken Priſoner in Battle) Reigned alone on the other ſide the Oder, where the Inhabitants ſtill retained the Language and Manners of the ancient Henetes, and had nothing common with that of the People on this ſide the River, who followed the Cuſtoms of the Germans. It is from him that the Dukes of that part of Pomerania are deſcended, who always had ſome jars with the Danes, Pruſſians, and Polanders. He left a Son named Subiſlaus, who is ſaid to have founded the famous Abbey of Oliva in 1180. within a League of Dantzick; others add, that he likewiſe laid the foundations of this City. This Branch being extinct in Miſtevan, An. 1295. the Polanders claimed the Succeſſion, which the Dukes of Pomerania diſputed with them, whence aroſe ſeveral Wars.

BOGISLAUS the Fifth, Son to Uratiſlaus IV. of the Name, founded the Line of the Dukes of the Eaſtern Pomerania. He was Son in Law to Caſimir King of Poland, and Father in Law to the Emperor Charles IV. He and his Brother Barnime acquired the County of Gutskou, after the death of John the laſt Earl without Iſſue, and obtained alſo ſome Land which belong'd to the Houſe of Brandenburg.

BOGISLAUS the Ninth, Duke of Pomerania, having deſpiſed the Decree of the Council of Conſtance, ordering the Reſtitution of the Church Lands, which the Duke his Father had taken to himſelf, was Excommunicated by the Pope, together with thoſe of Straelſond, who had burned 3 Prieſts, falſly accuſed of having been the Authors of a great Sedition. He died in 1448. leaving but one Daughter named Sophia, who was Married to Eric II. her Couſin in 1459.

BOGISLAUS the Tenth, called The Great, youngeſt Son to Eric II. Duke of the Weſtern Pomerania, poſſeſſed all Pomerania alone. One Langius, a ſimple Peaſant, gave him good Counſel, by which this Prince found much advantage. Having refuſed to render Homage to Albert Elector of Brandenburgh, the latter declared War againſt him, but the Difference was adjuſted by his Marriage with Margaret, Daughter to the Elector Frederic II. After which he reconciled thoſe of Meckelbourg with the Confederate Cities; and made the Voyage of Paleſtine, where he ſuffered much. At his return he found great alteration in Religion, Luther having begun to Preach againſt the Pope. He died in 1523. and left by Anne of Poland his ſecond Wife, George Prince of Volgaſt, and Barnime the Tenth, Prince of Stetin.

BOGISLAUS the Fourteenth, the laſt of this Houſe, who poſſeſſed all Pomerania, was forced in 1627 to receive in his Country the Imperial Troops, which in three years time conſumed Ten Millions, and committed all imaginable Diſorders. In 1630 the King of Sweden entring Pomerania, forc'd the City Stetin to receive him; and obliged the Emperor to withdraw his Troops out of the Country. Bogiſlaus had no Children by his Wife Elizabeth, and ſo the Family expired in him, An. 1637. Anne his Siſter, Widow to Erneſt Duke of Croy, lived to the year 1660. and after her death the Country was divided between the King of Sweden and the Elector of Brandenburg. Spener.

BOGORIS, King of the Bulgarians, who made Peace with Theophilus Emperor of Conſtantinople, but ſeeing that after his death in 841. the Empire was in the hands of Theodora, he declared War againſt her, in hopes of an eaſie Victory over a Woman. But this generous Princeſs commanded the Envoys to tell their Maſter, that he ſhould find her at the Head of her Army, with her Arms in her Hand, to puniſh him for having ſo baſely violated the Peace. Bogoris ſurpriſed at this Anſwer, conceived ſo great an eſteem for the Empreſs, that he ſent to demand Peace, which was made on Condition that Theodora ſhould ſend back Bogoris's Siſter, who had been taken during the War; and that he ſhould alſo render to Theodora, Cupharas, who was a Man of great Worth. This Bulgarian Princeſs, who had been converted to the Chriſtian Faith during her Captivity, endeavoured alſo to convert the King her Brother, whom Theodora had already urged to renounce Paganiſm. Bogoris was much inclined that way, when the Picture of the laſt Judgment determined him entirely, and made him embrace Chriſtianity. He had given Orders to a Monk named Methodius, an able Painter, to draw him Repreſentations of terrible things, in which he delighted, having been accuſtomed to divert himſelf in looking upon Pieces of Hunting and Battles, whereupon Methodius Painted the Univerſal Judgment with the moſt frightful Circumſtances; and taking a fit opportunity, he informed Bogoris of the aſtoniſhing Truth which this Painting repreſented, wherewith this Prince was ſo touched, that he deſired Baptiſm; whereupon the Empreſs Theodora ſent him a Biſhop, who Baptized him, and gave him the Name of Michael in 845. Maimburgh Hiſt. Icon.

BOHEMIA, a great Country of Germany, near the Sylva Hercynia, with the Title of a Kingdom, Boïemum, Boïo Hemuno, and Boëmia. It has Sileſia and Moravia on the Eaſt, Luſatia or Lauſnitz and Upper-Saxony on the North, Franconia on the Weſt, and Bavaria on the South. Bohemia is eſteemed to be the higheſt Country of Europe, becauſe ſeveral Rivers have their Source in it, and that not one runneth into it. Although this Kingdom is in Germany, and the King is Elector of the Empire, yet it hath its particular States, Cuſtoms, and Speech, different from thoſe of the Germans. Prague is its Capital City. The others are Cuttember, Koningrats, Pilſen, Czaſlaw, Buduveis, Egna, Zatecz, Bohmisbroda, Glatz, Tabor, and a great number of others, above 100 in all, amongſt which are 40, called Royal Cities. Bohemia comprehends alſo the Marquiſate of Moravia, where is Olmutz upon the Morava; The Dutchy of Sileſia, where are Breſlaw and Glogaw upon the Oder; and the Marquiſate of Luſatia, yielded in 1632. to the Elector of Saxony. The Name of Bohemia or Boïohemia comes from Boii, a People of Gaul, who under the Conduct of Segoveſe eſtabliſhed themſelves in that Country about 164 of Rome, 3464 of the World, and 590 before Chriſt. The Marcomans afterwards drove the Boians away, and ſome People of Sclavonia did the like about 550. At firſt they were governed by Dukes unto Wratiſlas or Ladiſlas, who ſucceeded Spinge in 1061. and in 1086 took the Title of King. Since that time theſe Kings became Electors and great Cupbearers of the Empire, and the Kingdom Elective. Now the Houſe of Auſtria claim it as Hereditary, which was partly the occaſion of the Wars that had well nigh ruin'd Bohemia in the beginning of this Century, which at laſt did not only engage Germany, but other parts of Europe. Although this Country is very Woody, and hath many high Mountains, yet it's fruitful, and abounds in Braſs, Silver, and Gold Mines. The Huſſites, Taborites, Waldenſes, or according to the Modern name Vaudois, were formerly very ſtrong in this Kingdom; but ſince the fatal Battle of Prague, which Ferdinand II. gain'd in 1620 over the Elector Palatin, who was choſen King of Bohemia, the Popiſh Religion hath only been allowed there. Ferdinand II. having been choſen King of Bohemia in 1617. King of Hungary in 1618. and Emperor in 1619. thought himſelf ſtrong enough to deprive the Bohemians of the Liberty which the Emperor Ferdinand I. had allow'd the Proteſtant Gentlemen to have Churches in their own Lands. In 1616 they went to build one at Brunau, the Abbot of the Place oppoſed it, and complained thereof to the Emperor, who commanded them to deſiſt until the Cauſe were decided. The Church however was finiſhed; but as ſoon as Ferdinand was Crowned at Prague, he ordered it to be demoliſhed, which was the fatal cauſe of a deplorable War; The Proteſtants look'd upon this Order as a manifeſt Violation of their Privileges, murmured highly at it, entred into Conſultations, and at laſt broke out into an open War. They aſſembled publickly at Prague, took Arms; and the Emperor's Miniſters inveighing againſt them, the rebellious Bohemians threw at them out at the Windows of the Chamber where they were aſſembled, and declared themſelves Enemies to all who durſt reprove them for their Inſolence. Then they expelled the Jeſuits, and all the Emperors Officers, An. 1619. The Bohemians moreover drew the Sileſians and Moravians to their Party, and had Correſpondence in Hungary, Auſtria, and in all Germany. They founded the Juſtice of their taking Arms upon pretence of the deſign of the Houſe of Auſtria to render their Kingdom Hereditary, urging farther, that the Election of Ferdinand the Emperor, as their King, was not legal, and therefore they deprived him of the Crown; but however none of the German Princes would accept it, but Frederick Prince Palatin of the Rhine, who preſumed that he ſhould be able to maintain his Title by the help of King James of Great-Britain his Father-in-Law, the Dutch, and ſome other States who were in his Intereſts. The Bohemians had for Generals the Counts de la Sour and Mansfeld. The Elector Palatin was choſen King of Bohemia in 1619. He made his Entry into Prague, and was Crowned in November, but having on the 8th of November next year loſt the famous Battle near Prague, he was conſtrained to fly into the Low-Countreys. This Victory re-eſtabliſhed Ferdinand in his Right, but it was the Source of the Wars in Germany, where there was not a ſettled Peace until the Treaty of Weſtphalia in 1648. But to aſcend higher, this Country was almoſt all covered with Wood, when in 540 and 550. or according to ſome in 644. Czecheus and Leche, Two Brothers, conducted thither a flouriſhing Colony, and cultivated moſt part of the Ground; and after a long Interregnum, the People being vexed to ſee themſelves torn in pieces by continual Diviſions, ſubmitted to a young Man named Crocque, Son to Hlede, who gave them Laws and Political Conſtitutions. He left a Son of his own Name, or, according to others, theſe Three Daughters named Bela, Techa, and Libuſſa. The latter being very Wiſe and Prudent, was choſen to govern the Kingdom, which ſhe did with great applauſe for 13 or 14 years. Her Subjects afterwards having preſſed her to Marry, ſhe took for her Husband a Man named Bramiſlas or Przemysk, about 46 years old. This Man lacked neither Conduct nor good Senſe, begun to Reign about 632. and died in 676. He governed with great Prudence, eſtabliſh'd good Laws, and his Son ſucceeded him. The Emperor Otho IV. cauſed the King of Bohemia to be admitted, as a Privileged Prince, into the number of the Electors of the Empire in 1208. And this Electoral Dignity was confirm'd by the Golden Bull of Charles IV. in 1356. In times paſt the Kings of Bohemia received the Kingdom as a Freehold from the Empire, and this Ceremony was performed upon the Frontiers; after which they had the Arms of the Principalities which compoſed the Kingdom given 'em, without their being torn and ſcattered among the People, as are the Enſigns of the other Imperial Tenures. In caſe of vacancy, the Emperor had a Right to confer the Kingdom, as he did the other Freeholds devolved to the Empire. But the Kings of Bohemia did by degrees diſengage themſelves from the Empire, and the States of the Kingdom pretended a Right to chooſe their own King. But the Houſe of Auſtria hath rendered this Kingdom Hereditary by the Treaty of Weſtphalia in 1648. having been poſſeſſed of it a long time before. For Ferdinad I. of Auſtria, having eſpouſed Ann, Siſter to Lewis the laſt King of Bohemia, who died without Iſſue, and having cauſed himſelf to be choſen in 1527. this Crown, notwithſtanding of their having reſerved a Power of Election, hath always continued in this Family. The King of Bohemia is the firſt Secular Elector, and gives his Opinion after the Elector of Cologne; though he doth not aſſiſt at the Aſſembly of the Electors, but when an Emperor is to be choſen: For, as to the Dyets and Collegial Aſſemblies, where the Electors Debate upon other Affairs of the Empire, the Kings of Bohemia have pleaded an Exemption for 200 years, that they may thereby preſerve their independency on the Empire. This was more particularly obſerved after the Huſſites had by force of Arms obtained from the Emperor Sigiſmund, not only Liberty of Conſcience, But alſo an entire Exemption from their Subjection to the Empire, which together with the diverſity of Religion, was the cauſe that they were not called to the Dyets of the Empire. Bohemia was divided in 1346 by the Emperor Charles IV. into 12 Provinces, in each of which he ordered that Two Captains ſhould be eſtabliſhed every year to govern it, viz. a Baron and a Gentleman. He alſo erected the Church of Prague into an Archbiſhoprick, and inveſted the Prelate with the Privilege of Crowning the King of Bohemia, which formerly belonged to the Archbiſhop of Mentz. Now Sileſia and Moravia are incorporated with the Kingdom of Bohemia, and poſſeſſed by the Houſe of Auſtria. Luſatia was Mortgaged in 1620 by Ferdinand II. to the Elector of Saxony, who enjoyeth it at this time. Heiſſ. Hiſt. de l'Empire Liv. IV. Hoffman gives this Account, That Charles the Great fortified Dreſden againſt the Bohemians, An. 808. and his Son Charles made them Tributaries to the Empire, which continued till Frederick II's time. Lewis King of the Romans made War upon them with various ſucceſs, and brought 12 of their Dukes to be Chriſtians in 862. Duke Borzivoi united Moravia to Bohemia, and converted the whole Kingdom. Their Prince Wenceſlaus was brought to a Peace by the Emperor Henry the Fowler about 930. and their King Boleſlaus was ſubdued by Otho the Great, and became his Vaſſal, An. 954. They were brought under by Otho II. in 976. and for their bad Lives deſerted by Adelbert, their Biſhop, in 999. who going thence to Hungary converted many of that People. In 1196. Cardinal Capuan being ſent thither by Clement III. to urge the Celibacy of the Clergy, did narrowly eſcape being kill'd by the Prieſts. In 1230. being taught by the Waldenſes who fled thither, a great part of them embraced their Doctrine. In 1414. a great number were added to their Church by the Preaching of John Huſs, their King George Podiebracius himſelf being his Convert. In 1467 the Waldenſes being expelled from Auſtria, &c. retired thither, and about that time form'd 200 Congregations in Bohemia and Moravia. They were cruelly perſecuted in 1500. and in 1536 united with Luther. Their Churches being ſhut up by the Emperor Ferdinand I. they were again opened by Maximilian, An. 1564. In 1565 they were perſecuted a-freſh by Neuheuſius Chancellor of the Kingdom, who was drowned in the Danube, as returning from Vienna with Bloody Orders againſt them. In 1574. the Waldenſes, or Brethren of the Bohemian Confeſſion being expelled from Pruſſia, retired to Bohemia, in which together with Moravia there were 17 Barons and 146 Knights of their Communion, and being reproached by their Enemies, they drew up their Confeſſion, which they preſented to the Emperor Maximilian in 1575. and obtain'd Peace to the Church. At this time the Pſalms were Tranſlated into Verſe, and accommodated to the French Notes by Vetterus, a Learned Divine; and in 1588 the Bible was Tranſlated into the Vulgar Language by very Learned Men, and their Liberty was confirmed by the Emperor Rodolph II. in 1611. but in a little time after the Grievance of the Proteſtants not being redreſſed by the Emperor Matthias, it gave riſe to the Bohemian War in 1618. which having the iſſue abovementioned, they were baniſhed the Kingdom in 1639. ſince which time no publick Aſſemblies for Proteſtant Worſhip hath been ſuffered there, ſo that the Brethren were diſperſed into Sileſia, Poland, &c. Spanheim gives this Account of the Bohemian Brethren, That in the Fifteenth Century King Wenceſlaus Reigned in Bohemia, being deprived of the Empire, and hated at Rome becauſe of his defence of Hus and the Bohemians, and refuſing to put the Popes Bulls in Execution againſt them; Hence came thoſe reproachful Stories of his having defiled the Baptiſmal Font by eaſing Nature, as they alledge againſt Conſtantinus Copronymus. After the Cruel Judgment of the Council of Conſtance againſt John Hus, the Bohemians ſent Expoſtulatory Letters thither, but without effect; after which the whole Kingdom did in a manner embrace the Doctrine of Hus, in ſo much that their Number became formidable to the King Wenceſlaus; whereupon they were perſecuted, and their diſperſion tended to the propagation of their Perſwaſion as far as Scotland, where Paul Craw, a Bohemian, was burnt on that account, An. 1432. But the People, to whom the Memory of Huſs and Jerome of Prague was dear, revenged their death upon the Monks, Abbies, &c. Then the Complaints about Witholding the Cup were repeated, An. 1417. a little before the end of the Synod of Conſtance. And Communion in Both Kinds was aſſerted by the Univerſity of Prague. King Wenceſlaus being dead, An. 1319. all things tended to a War againſt the Huſſites, Pope Martin V. darting out the Thunderbolts of Excommunication againſt them, appointing a Croiſade, and ſtirring up the Emperor, Kings, and Princes to root them out. Whereupon the Emperor Sigiſmund having entred Bohemia with an Army, perſecuted the Huſſites cruelly, which laid the foundation of a War for 14 years, which not only afflicted Bohemia, but Moravia, Miſnia, &c. and all Germany. The Huſſites choſe Ziſca, a Valiant Nobleman, for their Captain, who by his great Atchievements became formidable to Sigiſmund and his Party. This General built the City Tabor, about 11 miles from Prague, in a place naturally fortified with Rocks, and almoſt inacceſſible, whence his Followers were called Taborites, as others were alſo called Horebites, from another Bohemian Mountain which they called Horeb. Ziſca having defeated the Papiſts ſo often, they had no other way to overcome but to divide the Huſſites amongſt themſelves. Hence Diſſentions enſued betwixt the Taborites, the true Diſciples of Hus, and the Calixtins, who only demanded Communion in Both Kinds, agreeing in all other things with the Church of Rome, and theſe were moſt numerous: But a more dangerous Evil was imminent by the defection of Ziſca, who was enſnared, by the Flatteries and fair Promiſes of Sigiſmund, into the Party of the Calixtins, and in danger of making War upon the Taborites as Hereticks, as ſome write; but he died of the Plague not long after. His death occaſioned a Third Diviſion of the Huſſites, his Followers calling themſelves Orphans, and kept a middle Courſe betwixt the true Huſſites and Calixtins, whoſe principal Leader was Rokizanus, being corrupted with the hopes of the Archbiſhoprick of Prague, of which notwithſtanding the Pope diſappointed him becauſe he would not renounce the Cup. The Emperor having been defeated by the Taborites, and the Popes Thunderbolts and Croiſades taking no effect, they had recourſe to fraud; Hence came their inviting of the Bohemians to the Synod of Baſil in 1431. of which a faithful Account is given by Orthicinus Gratius in faſciculo rerum expetendarum, and having with Flattering Promiſes, and giving Hoſtages for Safe-Conduct, engaged the Bohemians to ſend Deputies to the Council, they went accompanied with above 300 Horſe, and an Agreement being made among themſelves, the Calixtins, headed by Rokizanus, demanded the Reſtitution of the Cup. The Taborites, headed by Procopius, demanded a Reformation of Manners and Things ſcandalous in the Church. The Orphans demanded free Liberty for Preaching the Word of God. And Peter Payne, an Engliſh Wicklevite, who join'd the Huſſites, demanded the Interdicting of the Clergy from Secular Dominion. And thoſe Articles were the Compacta ſo famous in the Bohemian Hiſtory. Theſe things being debated for 50 days, and the Bohemians finding themſelves impoſed upon, they prepared to depart, but were Circumvented by a new Fraud, the Council ſending Meſſengers into Bohemia, who deceived the Huſſites with School Subtleties. So that the Taborites were diſappointed of their hopes, and nothing more was obtain'd but the uſe of the Cup, which Rokizanus and his Party pretended to be ſufficient, and ſo a Peace was concluded, principally by the means of Rokizanus in hopes of the Archbiſhoprick of Prague, and Mainard, a Valiant Bohemian Nobleman and General, who envied the Honour of Procopius, whom he afterwards defeated in Battle with the Taborites and Orphans, being ſuperior in Strength. The Gallant Procopius falling in the Fight, being not ſo much Conquered as weary with Conquering, ſaith Æneas Silvius, the Taborites were almoſt extinguiſh'd in a barbarous manner, but the Remainders of them continued for ſome time in the City of Tabor, having ſeparated from the Communion of the other Bohemians, but being betrayed by Rokizanus to ſubmit themſelves to the Decree of the States, their Town was beſieged and taken by the Viceroy, and the poor People condemned to perpetual Impriſonment, and this was the reſult of going to the Council of Baſil. Rokizanus being diſappointed, he and his Party inveighed againſt the Pope as Antichriſt, and declared they would not ſtand to the Compacta, but have the Word of God for their only Rule. Whence followed mutual Excommunications, the Pope having anathematiz'd him and Georgius Podebradius the Viceroy. Both of them died in 1471. and particularly Rokizanus in deſpair, having told the Viceroy, who came to ſee him, That both of 'em muſt anſwer for their Cruelty againſt their Brethren at the Tribunal of God in a little time. It muſt not be omitted, that the true Huſſites were perſecuted by them, and the Papiſts both, though they were at Mortal Variance with one another. Rokizanus did alſo propoſe an Agreement with the Greek Church, and for that end Mutual Letters and Meſſengers paſſed betwixt them, the Greeks Commending the Bohemians for withſtanding the Romiſh Innovations, and appealing to the Scripture as the only Judge. But Conſtantinople being taken by the Turks quickly after, this Deſign was broke. Now as to the Original of the Bohemian Brethren, Rokizanus being wearied with the Reproaches and Intreaties of the true Huſſites, obtained Leave from the Viceroy that they might retire into the Mountainous Country next to Sileſia, with whom many of the Sincerer Calixtins did join, and hence aroſe that Society of the Nobility and Commons of all ſorts who conſtituted a new Diſcipline, and were called by the Name of the Brethren of the Unity; but in a little time they were cruelly perſecuted by Rokizanus and the Viceroy, and reproached with all the Contumelies which the Heathens charged upon the Primitive Chriſtians; and being treated in the ſame manner by following Princes, they were forced to abſcond in Caves and Dens. They afterwards united with ſome Remains of the Waldenſes in Moravia and Auſtria, whence that Name became common to both; And when Luther begun to appear, there was found to be a great Concord and Harmony betwixt him and them in Doctrine and Diſcipline. Joannes a Laſco, a Noble Polander, and Amos Comenius, have given an account of their Diſcipline, that they had Superintendants and Particular and General Synods. Spanheim. Epit. Hiſt. Eccl.

BOHUN, the Sirname of a great Family which was related unto William the Conqueror, and came along with him into England; their Deſcendants have been Earls of Hereford, Eſſex, and Lords of Midhurſt; they did conſiderable Service to their Princes and Country, and were honour'd with the Dignity of High Conſtables of England. Humphrey the Tenth, and laſt of the Bohuns, being Earl of Hereford, Eſſex, Northampton, and Lord High Conſtable of England, left Two Daughters, Eleonor Married to Thomas of Woodſtock Duke of Glooceſter, and Mary Wedded to Henry of Lancaſter, Earl of Derby, Duke of Hereford, and afterward King Henry the Fourth. Camb. Dugdale.

BOHUSSA Roſten, a Bohemian Baron, who is ſaid to have ſent Ambaſſadors to all parts of the World in 1480. to ſee if there were pure Churches to be found in any. Theſe at their return aſſur'd him, they met with none beſides that of the Waldenſes in France and Italy, adding, that there were ſome at Rome who ſecretly profeſſed that Doctrine. Laet. Hiſt. Gen.

BOIANS, Lat. Boii, the Name given firſt to the ancient Inhabitants of the Celtick Gaul, who were very famous in Cæſar's time, and inhabited the Country which now makes part of Auvergne, and Bourbonnois. 2. To another People of Germany, originally Gauls, according to Tacitus, who, as Cæſar ſaith, having paſſed the Rhine, retired into Vindelicia. They were afterwards named Bojoares, according to Cluvier, and their preſent Country is Bavaria. 3. Another People of Gallia Ciſpadana, that is on this ſide of Po, in ancient Italy, where are now the Dutchies of Parma and Modena.

BOJARES, a Name of the Lords of the Court of the Great Duke of Moſcovia. They are commonly Thirty who are the Heads of the Council of State, and obliged to ſtay at Moscow, and to follow the Prince when he goeth any where elſe. They go every morning to ſalute the Grand Duke, in whoſe preſence they ſtrike their Forehead, for a Token of their Fidelity. Their Houſes are great and magnificent. When they go abroad on Horſeback, they tie to the Saddle a little Kettle-Drum, which they beat from time to time with the Handle of their Whip, to advertiſe the People to make them room. In the Days of Ceremony they are Cloathed with a Brocard Gown, enriched with large Pearls, and wear great Fur'd Caps of a Black Fox Skin. They are imployed not only in Affairs of State, but alſo in the Trying of Cauſes, and other Private Buſineſs, in Quality of Preſidents. Olearius Voyage de Moſcovie.

BOJARES, is alſo the Name which is given to the Nobles of Tranſilvania, who are Relations, or Allied to the Illuſtrious Family of the ancient Vaivods, and are often choſen for Princes of this Country. This Name ſignifieth Lord. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

BOID, the Sirname of a Family which had great Power in Scotland, in the Reign of King James the Third. Robert the chief of this Family, and his Brother named Alexander, who was appointed to inſtruct that King in Military Affairs, and brought himſelf and his Family to be the Prince's chief Minions, perſwaded him to withdraw from his Guardians, and put himſelf wholly in their Management, upon which they carried him from Sterling to Edinburgh, which being ill reſented by the States, they were forced to beg the King's Pardon; and in a little time after, Robert Boid above mentioned, was conſtituted the Regent of the Kingdom during the King's Minority, and his Son Thomas was Married to the King's Eldeſt Siſter, which as it rais'd the Family to the greateſt height that Subjects were capable of, it made 'em the Object of Envy, and occaſion'd their ruine; for the Kennedies, who were their Enemies, improving the opportunity of Thomas Boid his abſence, to bring the newly betroath'd Queen from Denmark, did render the King their Enemy: So that Robert fled into England, Alexander was beheaded, Thomas was declared Rebel, and the King's Siſter Divorc'd from him, and Married to another. He himſelf died at Antwerp in Flanders, and was Honourably interred by Charles Duke of Burgundy. Thus the Family of the Boids, at that time the moſt flouriſhing in all Scotland, grew, and was put down in few years, and may be a warning to Poſterity how ſlippery young Princes Favours are. The Earl of Kilmarnock is of this Sirname. Buchanan.

BOILE: See ROBERT.

BOILEAU, (Giles) a Councellor of the Parliament of Paris, Tranſlated Arrian's Abridgment of Epictetus's Philoſophy, and wrote the Life of this Philoſopher in French. He wrote likewiſe Two Diſſertations againſt Menagius and Coſtartius; and after his Death, there was a Tranſlation of his Printed of the Fourth Book of Virgil's Æneads, with ſome other Poems. He was admitted into the French Academy, after a great deal of Diſpute: His Genius led him to Satyr, for which way of Writing his younger Brother had likewiſe a Talent, who wrote a Book call'd, Satyrs Du Sieur D... Giles Boileau died in the year 1671. being 38 years old.

BOINE, a ſmall County in the North of Scotland, which lies North of Buchan.

BOJORIX, King of the Boians, eſtabliſhed in Italy, on this ſide the Po, lived about 194 years before Chriſt. Having Rebell'd againſt the Romans, he attack'd Sempronius in his Camp, and preſſed upon him ſo vigorouſly, that the Romans endeavouring to come out, and the Gauls to enter, neither the one nor the other Party could ſtir, until Q. Victorius and C. Atinius, took the Enſigns from the Hands of thoſe who carried them, and flung them among the Gauls, thus ingaging the Romans to attempt impoſſibilities to ſave their Honour; but the Gauls who attacked the other ſide the Camp, entred the ſame by the Queſtorian Gate, and cut to pieces all whom they met. Lucius Poſthumius, Atinius and Sempronius, were killed in this Rencounter. Nevertheleſs the Conſul having ſent freſh Troops thither, the Boians were forced to retire. Tit. Liv. L. 34.

BOIS, or Silvius (Andrew) Prior of the Abby of Marchienes in the Dioceſs of Arras, liv'd in the Twelfth Century, and at the Inſtance of Peter Biſhop of Arras, wrote a Hiſtory of the Kings of France, of the firſt Line, Intituled, De Rebus geſtis, & ſucceſſione Regum Francorum ex Familia Merovingica. Dom. Raphael of Beauchamp publiſhed this Book at Doway in 1633. with Notes, and call'd it, Synopſis Franco-Merovingica. Valerius Andreas Bibl. Belg. &c.

BOISBELLE, or Enrichemont, Boſcabellum, a Borough of France in Beri, with the Title of a Principality, belonging to the Houſe of Bethune-Sulli; Here is a very fine Caſtle betwixt Bourges and Sancerre.

BOIS-DE-TRAHISON, or Bois-de-Ganelon, a Foreſt betwixt Paris and Pontoiſe, upon the Bank of the Seine, ſo called, becauſe they ſay that the famous Ganelon laid ſeveral Ambuſcades there for Charlemaign's Captains. It is obſerved, that there is a place of this Foreſt, whoſe Wood immediately ſinks to the bottom of the Water, although all the reſt doth float upon the top. Andrew du Cheſne.

BOIS-LE-DUC, Bolduc, or Boſle-duc, Boſcum-Ducis, Sylva-Ducis, Bolducum, and in Dutch, Hertogenboſch, a City of Brabant in the Low-Countries, ſituated upon the River Domel, which there receives the Aade, and afterward the Dieſe, and diſcharges it ſelf about two Leagues from thence into the Meuſe, at the place where it formeth the Iſle of Bommel. Bois-le-duc is built in a Plain, where there was a Hunting-Foreſt belonging to the Duke of Brabant: But Duke Henry going to oppoſe the Incurſions which thoſe of Guelderland made into his Country, cauſed this Wood to be cut down in 1172. where the foundations of this City were laid, which Duke Jeffrey finiſhed in 1184. This City is naturally ſtrong, as well by its ſituation, being environed with Rivers and Meadows covered with Water, as by its Fortifications. Its Ditches are filled with the Waters of the ſaid Rivers, which enter into the City by divers Channels, very commodious to the Inhabitants. They are almoſt all Soldiers, tho' they do not neglect Trade; which occaſioneth this ſaying, That the Inhabitants of Bois-le-Duc are Warlike Merchants. The City is large, fair, well built, and very populous. The Cathedral Church of St. John is one of the moſt magnificent of the Low-Countries, with a very fine Clock. The Market-place is invironed with fine Buildings, where 10 of the greateſt Streets meet. The Hollanders became at laſt Maſters of it in 1629. by the Valour and Conduct of Frederick Henry, Prince of Orange. We have a particular Hiſtory of this Siege, written by Peter Borri. This Town is 20 miles Eaſt of Breda, 43 North Eaſt of Antwerp, 50 South of Amſterdam. Guichardin deſcrip. du Pais bas. Miræus.

BOIS-OLIVIER, Abbot of Beaulieu, a Frenchman; Cardinal Seraphino Olivier adopted him into his Family, and procur'd him his Preferment; when this Cardinal died, he made his Funeral Oration at Rome in 1609. He died in the year 1626. He wrote ſeveral Things, and amongſt others Bibliotheca Floriacenſis in 1605. Janus Nicius Erythræus. Pin. 1. Imag. Illuſt. C. 81.

BOIS-ORSILVIUS, (John) born at Liſle in Flanders, and Profeſſor of Phyſick at Doway, was Eminent in his way in the Sixteenth Century. He died 1576. and wrote, De Morbi Articularis Curatione; Acadimiæ Duacenſis & Profeſſorum Encomium, &c. Valerius Andreas Bibl. Belg. Vander Linden De Script. Med.

BOISSARD, (John James) of Beſançon, liv'd to the year 1595. publiſh'd a Book of the Antiquities of Rome, in Two Volumes in Folio, call'd, De Romanæ Urbis Topographia & Antiquitate. He likewiſe wrote, The Lives of Men of Learning, with Cuts, done by Theodore de Brie; And another Book, call'd, Theatrum Humanæ Vitæ, in Quarto.

BOISTUAU, or Boaiſtuau, (Peter) call'd Launay, born at Nantes in Britany. La Croix du Main gives him a great Character for his Learning and Elocution, beſides ſeveral other very Ingenious Pieces. He wrote an Excellent Book call'd, Theatre Du Monde, which has run through 20 Editions. Du Verdier Vauprivas Bibl. Franc. &c. This Author died at Paris in 1566.

BOLAKI, Son to Koſrou, eldeſt Son to Gehan-guir, King of the Indies; His Father Koſrou being dead, he was named Succeſſour to the Crown by his Grandfather Gehan-guir in 1627. and recommended to Aſouf-Kan, Generaliſſimo of the Armies, and firſt Miniſter of State: But this Miniſter, who had given his Daughter to Kourom, ſince called Chagehan, Brother to Koſrou, betrayed the Intereſts of Bolaki, and authoriſed the Uſurpation of his Son in Law. He ingaged moſt part of the Lords of the Court in Chagehan's Party; and the better to hide his Intreagues, and ſurprize the young King Bolaki, who did not underſtand Affairs, he ſpread a Rumour that Cha-gehan was dead, and that having deſired to be interred near Gehan-guir his Father, his Body was to be brought to Agra. The Stratagem was cunningly managed: Aſouf-kan perſwaded Bolaki to go meet the Body of his Uncle, within a League of Agra. In the mean time Cha-gehan marched incognito, and as he was in ſight of the Army which was near Agra, he put himſelf into a Coffin, where he had Air enough to draw his breath. This Coffin being carried into a Tent, all the Heads of the Conſpiracy came on pretence to honour the Body of the deceaſed Prince: The young King alſo being come out of Agra to meet it, Aſouf-kan cauſed the Coffin to be opened, and Chagehan riſing, appeared to the whole Army, whoſe Generals and Officers declared him King with publick Acclamations. The young King Bolaki being informed in his way of theſe Proceedings, was ſo troubled at it, that he fled into Perſia, where King Chaſeſi ordered him a Penſion ſuitable to his Birth. Tavernier Voyage des Indes.

Kings of Bohemia.

BOLESLAUS the Firſt of the Name called Cruel, King or Prince of Bohemia, was youngeſt Son to Wratiſlas and Drahomira, and Brother to Wenceſlaus, whom he Murthered Septemb. 28. 929. or 932. and uſurped his Throne. He defended himſelf during 14 years againſt the Emperor Otho, who would have deprived him of his Crown, on account of his Fratricide; but was at laſt conſtrained to come to a Peace on paying a certain Tribute, making publick Penance for the death of St. Wenceſlaus, and recalling the Chriſtians whom he had Baniſhed. Boliſlaus died July 15. 967. being 58 years of Age. Martin Cromer Hiſt. de Pologne.

BOLESLAUS the Second, called the Pious and Meek, was youngeſt Son to Boleſlaus I. much admired for his Mildneſs, Piety, and Courage. He made Incurſions as far as Ruſſia, and the Frontiers of Poland. In 976. he defeated at Pileſne the Army of the Emperor Otho II. Commanded by Henry Duke of Bavaria. He concluded Peace afterwards with Otho III. Son to Otho II. by the interceſſion of his Brother Mieſco, and ſent for Ditmar the Saxon, who was a moſt Zealous Preacher of the Goſpel, and made him Biſhop. Boleſlaus died in 999. Cromer. Crantz.

BOLESLAUS the Third, called the Red, the Covetous, and the Blind, was Son to Boleſlaus II. whom he ſucceeded: Through his negligence he loſt all that his Father had Conquered in the Neighbouring Provinces. His Uncle Miesko ſeizing upon his Perſon, cauſed his Eyes to be put out, and became Maſter of Prague, and divers other Places, which he left to his Son named Boleſlaus. In the mean time the unfortunate Prince being driven from his Kingdom, implored the Succour of the Saxons and Sclavonians in April 1008. and after a long and miſerable Life, he died in 1037. aged above 80. Jacomire, the youngeſt of his Sons, was named Regent of Bohemia; but his eldeſt Brother Ulric, cauſed his Eyes to be put out. Dubravius.

Kings of Poland.

BOLESLAUS the Firſt of the Name, Sirnamed Crobius, Duke, and afterwards King of Poland, ſucceeded in 969. to his Father Miciſlaus or Meiciſlaus, who had become Chriſtian: He bore the Title of King with conſent of Pope Sylveſter II. and the Emperor Otho III. who in 1001. acquitted his Country from all Juriſdiction of the Empire. This Prince laboured much for the good of Religion, and advantage of his Country, having rendered thoſe of Pruſſia, Ruſſia, and Moravia, his Tributaries. He ſuppreſſed the Rebellion of the latter, re-eſtabliſhed Stopocus Duke of Ruſſia, whom his Brother Jaroſlaus had deprived. Boleſlaus was a Warlike Prince, and liberal towards the Churches. Martin Cromer.

BOLESLAUS the Second, called the Bold and the Cruel, born in 1043. was choſen King after Caſimir I. his Father, in 1058. He waged War againſt the Bohemians and Ruſſians with good ſucceſs; He triumphed in Hungary over Andrew that had uſurped the Crown from Bela, whom he re-eſtabliſhed upon the Throne. He did the ſame Service to Izaſlaus, Prince of Kiovia, his Kinſman, after having puniſhed his Rebellious Subjects: And yet this Virtuous Youth, apparently ſo full of Zeal for Religion and Juſtice, and always Victorious, degenerated into Sacrilegious Tyranny, and effeminate Pleaſures, during his Winter-Quarters in Ruſſia, which corrupted his Martial Mind. Yet it is aſſerted, That on his return, he puniſhed, even againſt the Minds of the Soldiers, the Women, who, in abſence of their Husbands, during this ſeven Years War, had forfeited their Honour, making them ſuckle Dogs inſtead of Children. He at laſt became guilty of Rapes and Adulteries, and in a word, altogether Cruel and Diſſolute. Staniſlaus Biſhop of Cracovia, a Prelate of ſingular merit, reprehended him for his Debaucheries, which coſt him his Life as he was ſaying Maſs, May 5. 1079. Pope Gregory VII. Excommunicated Boleſlaus, who being Curſed by all Men, abandoned his Kingdom, and killed himſelf in deſpair about 1081. Some ſay that he was torn to pieces by Dogs as a Hunting; and others, that he endur'd Penance in a Monaſtery, where he lived incognito, near Inſpruch: But it is certain, That he retired into Hungary with Mieſe his Son, whom he had by Wiſceſlave, Daughter to a Prince of Ruſſia, and died there. Cromer, Crantz.

BOLESLAUS the Third, Sirnamed Labiatorta, was born in 1085. and ſucceeded in 1103. to Ladiſlaus I. Brother to Boleſlaus II. He re-eſtabliſhed, by his great Actions, the Name which his Uncle had render'd odious. The Bohemians, who were going to invade his Kingdom, felt the weight of his Arms twice in their own Country: He puniſhed alſo the Levity of the Pomeranians, who had thrice Rebelled; He Conquered the Ruſſians; but being ſurprized by them afterwards in an Ambuſcado, he was obliged to fly; and 'tis ſaid, that he took this Misfortune ſo impatiently, that he died for grief a Year after; though it was a ſmall Misfortune for a Prince, who had been at Wars from Nine years old, and fought 47 Battels. In that which he fought, *An.*1109. near Breſlaw, he defeated the Emperor Henry V. who ſent to aſk Peace of him. Boleſlaus went to meet the Emperor to conclude the ſame, and it was followed with a double Alliance; for this Poliſh Prince having loſt his Wife Sibilavia, Daughter to Michael Duke of Kiovia, eſpouſed Alix, Siſter to Henry; and Ladiſlaus his Son was married to Chriſtina, younger Daughter to the Emperor. Boleſlaus was alſo engaged in a Civil War againſt one of his Baſtard Brothers named Sbingeus, whom he often pardoned for his Rebellions and Conſpiracies againſt his Perſon; but his Subjects forc'd him at laſt to put this Rebel to Death. Boleſlaus was a juſt, liberal, and blameleſs Prince. He died in 1139. after a Reign of 37 years, leaving ſeven Children by his ſecond Wife. Cromer, Guagnini, Starovolſcius.

BOLESLAUS the Fourth, called the Curled, or the Hairy, Son to Boleſlaus III. was choſen Prince of Poland in 1146. after Ladiſlaus his Brother, who was Baniſhed. He gave him Sileſia upon the entreaty of Frederick Barbaroſſa; defeated the Rebellious Pruſſians, and obliged them to receive Baptiſm, and died after a Reign of 27 years, in 1173.

BOLESLAUS the Fifth, called the Chaſte, becauſe he lived in perpetual Continency with Cunegonde of Hungary his Wife, Daughter to Bela IV. He was choſen in 1227. after his Brother Leſcus the White; He reigned 52 years, and ſuffered much during his Minority, by the Ambition of thoſe who aſpired to the Throne. Conrad Duke of Maſſovia, his Uncle, ſeized his Perſon, and uſurp'd the Government; but he was delivered by Henry Duke of Breſlaw, his Couſin, to whom, on pretence of Guardianſhip, the Government was committed. Henry the Pious ſucceeded the latter. In 1240. the Tartars made their firſt Incurſions into Poland, Plunder'd Cracovia, and waſted Moravia and Sileſia, where the ſame Duke of Breſlaw was ſlain. Boleſlaus was a kind of Exile with Bela his Father-in-Law, and Poland divided into two Factions, between Conrad and Boleſlaus the Bald, Son to Henry the Pious: But the Polanders, being weary of all theſe Diſorders, recall'd their Prince, defeated Conrad, and obtain'd a famous Victory over the Tartars in 1267. Theſe Barbarians Plunder'd Cracovia a ſecond time in 1258. and returning again Nine years after, Peter Palatine of Cracovia defeated them June 19. whilſt Boleſlaus was at his Prayers. Boleſlaus died December 10. 1279. Cromer.

BOLGIUS, or Belgius, Prince of the Celtæ and Galatians, ſucceeded his Father Cerethrius. He made War on the Macedonians, and killed their King Ptolemy Ceraunus, or the Thunderer, in Battel.

BOLOGNE, or Bolonia, upon the Sea, near the Liane, a City of Picardy in France, with the Title of a County, Bailiwick, and Biſhoprick, ſuffragan of Rheims. It is not doubted but that the Port of Bolonia is the Iccius Portus of Cæſar, called alſo Portus Morinus, Portus Morinorum, Geſoriacus Portus, Geſoriacum Navale, Bononia, and Bolonia; which ſhews that this City is Ancient. Bologne had Earls of its own, and gave Name to an illuſtrious Family, deſcended by the Mothers ſide from the French Kings of the ſecond Race; which after having paſſed through divers renowned Families, was at laſt united to that of Auvergne, in the Perſon of Robert VI. of the Name, Earl of Avergne. In 1477. King Lewis XI. took the County of Bologne from Margaret of Burgundy; and Bertrand II. Earl of Auvergne, yielded it to the ſame King, who gave him in exchange the County of Lauragais, with ſome particular Revenues, and united this County to the Crown. Henry VII. of England, in 1487. reduc'd this City to a very low Condition, when he enter'd France for the Protection of the Dutchy of Britain; but the French King, Charles VIII. bought his Peace, and preſerv'd it. His Son Henry VIII. took it afterwards in 1544. and kept it all his Life. In the Minority of Edward VI. it was ſold, or ſurrender'd to the French again for a much leſs ſum than it coſt. It lies in Longitude 22. 42. Lat. 50. 30. Bologne is divided into Higher and Lower; the Firſt is ſtrong, and defended with a good Citadel; the Lower lies along the Port, at the Mouth of the River Liane: This Haven is none of the beſt. The Lower City is inhabited by Merchants, and contains the Pariſh of St. Nicholas, with divers Religious Houſes; The Higher City is well built, and adorned with ſeveral Markets and Fountains: And beſides the Citadel, the Palace where Cauſes are try'd, the Abbey of St. Wilemer, which now belongs to the Fathers of the Oratory; the Cathedral Church of our Lady, with the Pariſh Church of St. Joſeph, and ſome other Eccleſiaſtical and Religious Houſes, contribute much to embelliſh it. The Biſhop's See was in times paſt at Terouane; but this City having been ruined in 1553. by the Emperor Charles V. Pope Pius V. by his Bull in 1566. transferr'd the Biſhoprick to Bologne. Bologne is ſeven Leagues from Calais to the South, and five North from Eſtaples. It was formerly the uſual place of paſſage from France into Britain; and according to Pliny, the ſhorteſt and moſt convenient. The Countrey called Boulonois, or belonging to Bologne, is bounded by Picardy on the North, by the Britiſh Sea on the Weſt, Artois on the Eaſt, and Ponthieu on the South; from which laſt it is ſeparated by the River Canche. It had its own Earls, the laſt whereof ſold it in 1477. to Lewis XI. of France.

BONAVENTURE, or Bahya de Bonaventura, ſinus Bonaventuræ, a Gulph of Southern America, in Popayan.

BONAVENTURE, Cardinal, called the Seraphick Doctor; his own Name was John Fidauze, and he was a Native of Balnea Regia, commonly Bagnarea, a ſmall Town in Tuſcany. He took the Habit of a Franciſcan Monk, Studied under Alexander Alenſis, was Doctor of Paris, and taught Divinity in that City and elſewhere, with great applauſe. At 34 years of Age, he was made General of his Order, in 1256. After the Death of Clement IV. the See being vacant about Three years, and the Cardinals not agreeing upon the Election of a new Pope, left the chuſing of one to Bonaventure, engaging themſelves by a mutual Promiſe, to acknowledge him whom he ſhould Name, though it ſhould be himſelf. But he choſe Theobald Archdeacon of Liege, who was then in the Holy-Land, and took the Name of Gregory X. This Pope made him a Cardinal, and Biſhop of Alba in 1272. and ordered him to aſſiſt at the Eleventh General Council of Lyons. He was preſent at the firſt Seſſion held May 7. 1274. and died ſome days after in that City on Sunday, July 15. We have ſeveral Editions of his Works, conformable to thoſe of Rome, in Eight Tomes, where ſome other Treatiſes have been inſerted; but thoſe of this Cardinal are eaſily diſcerned from the reſt. Bellarmin, Spondan. John Gerſon.

BONAVENTURE, or Bonaventura, (Frederick) Born at Urbin, where he lived in the latter End of the 16th Century. He was a General Scholar, and particularly, a great Grecian and Philoſopher. He was a Favourite to the Duke of Urbin, and minded Learning more than Intereſt. His Works are, De Ventis. De Octo-Meſtri Partu. De Monſtris. De Æſtu Maris. De Via Lactea. De Cane Rabido. De Jure Regni, &c. Janus Nicius Erythræus. Pin. 1. Imag. Illuſt. C. 151.

BONCONVENTO, or Bonconvent, a ſmall City of Italy in Tuſcany, near Sienna, ſituated on a Hill. It was here that the Emperor Henry VII. was Poyſon'd in 1313.

BONCOURT, a Village ſituated upon the Eure, within a League and quarter of Paſſy, in the Dioceſe of Evreux in Normandy. This Village was burnt in 1666, 1667, 1668, and 1669. by an extraordinary Fire, the natural Cauſe whereof could never be diſcovered. It ſeized moſt of the Houſes at different Seaſons; ſometimes in Rooms, ſometimes in Barns, ſometimes in Stables, ſometimes on the Walls and Dunghills. It reſembled an Ignis fatuus, or

Will of the Wiſp, which went and came upon all ſorts of Materials: It burnt violently, was of a Bluiſh colour, and ſtunk exceedingly. Having on a time ſeized a Houſe which was joined to two others, it conſumed the firſt and laſt, without touching the middlemoſt. There were 80 Houſes in the Village before this Conflagration, which were all burnt excepting two or three; and it was obſerved, that during the four years wherein this Fire appeared, it was moſt ardent about the latter end of Auguſt, and the beginning of September, and that before it begun, they only perceived ſome Reddiſh Clouds in the Air; and that in thoſe Years the Land brought forth commonly all ſorts of Fruits. About fifteen or ſixteen Houſes which ſtood but 50 Paces from the Village, and compoſed a Hamlet, were exempted from thoſe Flames. The Intendant of the Generality of Roan cauſed a Narrative thereof to be drawn, in 1670. which was atteſted by the Lieutenant of Paſſy, and the Dean of the Dioceſe of Evreux. Memoirs du Temps.

BONDELMONT, a Florentin Cavalier, had promiſed to Marry a Gentlewoman of the Family of the Amidees; but the Wedding being delay'd, he was gain'd by a Lady of the Family of the Donati, and perſuaded to Marry her Daughter. The Amidees reſolving to be revenged for this Injury, Murthered Bondelmont on Eaſter Sunday, 1215. as he was going to Church. This cauſed a great Diſorder in the City, and the Nobility was divided into two Factions; thoſe who were for the Bondelmonts, took the Name of Guelfs; and thoſe who upheld the Donati, were called Gibelins. Villan.

BONE, a City of the Province of Conſtantine, in the Kingdom of Algiers, or Tunis, according to Marmol, upon the Coaſt of the Mediterranean. The ancient City which was called Hippo, was deſtroyed by Calif Odman, in 651. ſo that there remains nothing but the ruines of a Temple, and a great Palace, upon the Bank of the River Jadoc. Sometime after, the Mahometans built another a League Weſt from thence, which the Arabians call Beled-el-Ugneb, that is, Place of Jujubes, becauſe of the Plenty of that Fruit thereabouts. The Chriſtians call it Bone, either from the ancient Name Hippo, or becauſe it is the beſt and fertileſt Country of all Barbary. The Caſtle was built upon a Hill which Commands the City, by the King of Tunis, An. 1500. Bone has a little Port, where the Merchant Veſſels Trade in Leather, Wooll, Dates, and other Product of the Country. The Inhabitants ſuffer much for want of good Water, having none but Rain Water reſerved in Ciſterns. There is a long ſhallow Road Eaſtward of the Town, where there's a Fiſhery for Coral; The Genoeſe built a Fort upon a Rock, to defend themſelves from Pyrates, in this Fiſhery, which they farm'd of the King of Tunis. The Emperor Charles V. after having taken Tunis, in 1535. ſent Andrew Doria with 30 Galleys, and 2000 Men to ſeize Bone, which he found abandoned by the Inhabitants. Sometime after, he cauſed it to be diſmantled; but the Turks have fortified and re-peopled it ſince. Marmol de L'Afrique.

BONFINIUS, (Anthony) a Native of Aſcoli, flouriſh'd in the 15th Century; He was a Learned Man, and good Linguiſt, and much eſteemed by Matthias Corvinus, King of Hungary, at whoſe perſuaſion he wrote the Hiſtory of that Kingdom to 1495. conſiſting of 45 Books; He was a good Man, and impartial in his relations, telling things as they were, for which he is cenſured by ſome Criticks, particularly Raderus. Bonfinius publiſhed alſo Dialogues de fide Conjugali & Virginitate. The Life of Philoſtratus. S. Sophiſts. The Rhetorick of Hermogenes, &c. The beſt Edition of his Hiſtory of Hungary, was Printed by John Sambucus of Tirnaw, or Durn, in Hungary, in 1568. This Edition has fifteen Books more in it, than that that was firſt Printed by Brenner. Bellarmin, Voſſius.

BONGOMILES, or Bogomiles, Hereticks, ſo call'd, from Bogomilus a Monk. This Hereſie is made up of Manicheiſm and Maſſalianiſm, and contains many monſtrous and abſurd Tenets. Theſe Hereticks deſpis'd the Myſteries of Chriſtianity: They call'd Churches, the Devil's Temples, and made no account of the Euchariſt. They were ſtrangely poſitive in their Heterodoxies, and firmly believ'd, they could endure any Torture without ſenſe of Pain. They believ'd GOD had a Humane Form, and that St. Michael the Arch-Angel, was Incarnate. They made uſe of none but the Lord's Prayer; and believ'd they could Conceive, and bring forth the WORD, as well as the Bleſſed Virgin; and underſtood nothing of the Reſurrection, but Repentance and a Good Life. This Hereſie was condemn'd in a Council of Conſtantinople, held in 1143. Baronius, A.C. 1118. Cave. Hiſt. Liter. Pars 1. pag. 679. Pars 2. p. 414.

BONI, a little Town in France upon the River Loire, betwixt Nevers and Orleans, in the Country of Paiſaie in Beauce, a little above Briare. It ſuffered much during the Civil Wars, the Importance of the Paſs on the River drawing this Miſchief upon it. The Proteſtants took and plundered it in 1561. The King's Troops retook it; afterwards it returned again to the former, until 1568. that the Roman Catholicks retook it; nor did it ſuffer leſs during the Wars of the League. It is 30 Miles North-Eaſt of Bourges.

BONIFACE the Firſt, a Roman, ſucceeded Zozimus in the Popedom, December the 24th, 418. His Election was controverted by ſome of the Clergy, who ordained Eulalius. The Emperor Honorius, who was prepoſſeſt in his Favour, by the Relation of Symmachus, Governor of the City, ſent a Reſcript to maintain this Anti-Pope; but having found out the Truth, he ordered Boniface and Eulalius to come to Ravenna, and there aſſembled in 419. the Prelates of the Gauls, of Italy and Africk, who decided the Cauſe in Favour of Boniface. In the mean time, this Pope having received Letters, which Julian the Pelagian writ to his Predeceſſor; he ſent them to St. Auguſtin, who was rudely treated by them; and this Holy Doctor anſwered them by four Books, which he dedicated to Boniface, Entituled, Againſt the two Epiſtles of the Pelagians. He ordered that no Woman ſhould touch the conſecrated Pale or Incenſe, and that no Servant or Debtor ſhould be received into the Clergy. Boniface died October the 25th, in 423. having held the See four Years ten Months.

BONIFACE the Second, a Roman, was made Pope after Felix III. October 15. 530. Some Malecontents oppoſed Dioſcorus to him, who died a little while after. In the mean time Boniface, who had ſeen the Diſturbance at his own Election, and feared ſuch another after his Death, called a Synod of Biſhops December 531. to prevent it, and deſigning Vigilius the Deacon for his Succeſſor, cauſed this Deſignation to be ſubſcribed by the Prelates, before the Sepulchre of St. Peter. But this Novelty being contrary to the Canons, was revoked by another Synod. Boniface acknowledged his Fault, and died October 17. 532. having held the See two Years and 26 Days; or, according to others, a Year and two Days. Platina ſays, That he decreed that no Biſhop ſhould appoint his own Succeſſor; and that upon the Deceaſe of any Biſhop of Rome, another ſhould be choſen, if poſſible, in three days, to prevent Diſſenſion. He ordered likewiſe, that the Clergy ſhould ſit apart from the Laity at the time of Celebration of the Maſs.

BONIFACE the Third, a Roman, ſucceeded Sabinianus, was choſen the 13th of February, and died the 12th of November 606. During his Pontificate, he obtained from the Emperor Phocas, to whom he had formerly been ſent Nuncio by Gregory I. that the Title of Univerſal Biſhop ſhould be given to none but him of Rome. In a Synod of 72 Biſhops, 30 Presbyters, and three Deacons, he ordered that no Perſon ſhould ſucceed any Biſhop or Pope until three days at leaſt, after his Predeceſſor's Death; and that whoever made uſe of Bribes to raiſe themſelves to the Popedom, or any other Biſhoprick, ſhould be Excommunicated. He alſo ordered, that Biſhops ſhould be choſen by the Clergy and People, and approved by the Pope and Civil Magiſtrate.

BONIFACE the Fourth, a Native of Valeria, a City of the Dutchy of Marſi, ſucceeded Boniface III. after a Vacancy of ten Months and ſix Days. It was September 18. 607. he obtained the Pantheon of the Emperor Phocas, which he changed into a Church, in Honour of the Bleſſed Virgin, and the Martyrs, which is now called our Lady de la Rotonda. He held the Pontificate ſix Years, ſix Months, and thirteen Days, and died May the 8th, 614. The Acts of a Council, which he celebrated in 610. about the Affairs of the Engliſh Church, are ſtill extant.

BONIFACE the Fifth, a Neapolitan, was choſen after Deus-Dedit. He prohibited the Judges to meddle with thoſe who took Sanctuary in the Churches. He was choſen December the 24th, 617. and died October the 25th, 625. There are ſeveral Decretal Epiſtles aſſigned him, of which there are not above three or four remaining.

BONIFACE the Sixth, a Roman, is reckon'd by ſome in the Catalogue of the Popes, being created two days after the Death of Formoſus, December the 16th, 896. and driven from the Chair fifteen days after. Baronius ſays, he was a very ill Man, and not Canonically choſen, and that he was Condemned in a Council under Leo IX. But Platina affirms, that his Election was Regular and Canonical.

BONIFACE the Seventh, Anti-Pope, Sirnamed Francon, poſſeſſed the Chair by Violence for thirteen Months, having ſtrangled Benet VI. in Priſon, in 974. After this Benet VII. was Canonically choſen, and Boniface baniſhed; but he robbed the Treaſures of the Church of St. Peter, as he retired to Conſtantinople, whence he returned after the Death of Benet, in 985. Then he put John XIV. to death, who had ſucceeded the ſame Benet, and held the Chair again 4 Months: But the ſame year he died ſuddenly, and was dragged naked about the Streets after his Death.

BONIFACE the Eighth, formerly called Benet Cajetan, from Cajeta in Catalonia, where he dwelt. His Father Educated him with a great deal of Care in the Liberal Arts and Civil and Canon Law. He was yet very young when he received the Doctor's Cap; and as he was Bold and Ambitious, he ſoon made Acquaintance at the Court of Rome, where he had the Charge of Conſiſtorial Advocate, and Proto-Notary. He was afterwards made Canon of Lyons, and Pope Martin II. created him Cardinal the 23d of March, 1281. Nicholas III. ſent him Legate into France, in 1290. with Gerard de Bianchi. In the mean time Celeſtine V. being choſen at Perouze, the 5th of July, 1294. Cardinal Cajetan was continually with him, and by telling him that he would be damned if he did not leave the Government of the Church to ſome Perſon more capable than himſelf, prevailed ſo far, that Celeſtine made a voluntary Abdication of it in Naples, December 13. that ſame year; and Benet was choſen Pope on the 24th, and ſecured Celeſtine in a Caſtle, where he died ſome time after. The new Pope, who took the Name of Boniface VIII. would fain have begun his Pontificate, by making Peace amongſt Chriſtian Princes; but he could not effect it betwixt England and France, though he did betwixt France and Arragon; and then begun a War himſelf with King Philip the Fair, which coſt him his Life. Having a mind to engage all Chriſtian Princes in the Holy War, he commanded the Kings of England and France to lay down their Arms upon pain of Excommunication. Philip of France anſwered, That he would receive Laws from none about the Government of his own Kingdom; and that the Pope might Exhort, but not Command him. The Pope having afterwards erected the Abbey of St. Anthony of Pamiez into a Biſhoprick, gave it to Bernard Seiſſet, who was an ambitious Man, and did not pay due Reſpect to his Prince; wherefore the King would not conſent to his Election; and after ſome Grudges for two or three years, his Majeſty was ſo incenſed at the raſh and opprobrious Reflections uttered againſt his Perſon, by this Prelate of Pamiez, that he cauſed him to be arreſted in 1301. And Boniface diſpatched the Archdeacon of Narbonne, with Command to the King to ſet Bernard at liberty; the Bull importing, That his Majeſty was under his Correction, and had no Right to confer Benefices. By another Bull he ſuſpended the Privileges granted the King. By a third, he commanded all the Prelates of the Kingdom to come to Rome: And by another, he excommunicated Philip. This Pope had ſo great a Hatred againſt the Gibelins, that he furiouſly perſecuted the Family of the Columneſi, which maintained this Party; and eſpecially Sciarre Columna, who having been taken at Sea by Pirates, and forced to tug at the Oar, ſaid, That he had rather live the miſerable Life of the Galley-Slaves, than endure the Violence of Boniface. It is alſo noted, That when the Archbiſhop of Genoa preſented himſelf before him the firſt day of Lent, to receive the Aſhes, according to the Cuſtom of the Church, he flung a handful of them in his Face, ſaying, Remember that you are a Gibelin, and that one day you will be reduced into Aſhes with the Gibelins. King Philip, out of his Hatred againſt Boniface, reſolved to make him come willingly, or by force, to a Council, which he had a mind to Aſſemble at Lyons; and for that end he ſent Sciarre Columna into Italy, with William Nogaret his Confident, who having treated with the Gibelins, entred Anagnia, where Boniface was, and took him, Sept. 7. 1303. on the Eve of the Nativity of our Lady. The Pope was to have publiſhed next day a Bull, by which he excommunicated the French King, abſolved his Subjects from their Obedience, and gave his Kingdom to the firſt that could take it, having offered it before to the Emperor Albert, and confirmed his Election, the more to engage him; but he declined it notwithſtanding. The fourth day after the Confinement of Boniface, the People of Anagnia expell'd the French, and the Pope went to Rome, where he died of a burning Fever, Octob. 12. 1303. after 8 years, 9 months, and 10 days Reign. This Pope was Learned, but too Ambitious. He Canonized Lewis IX. King of France, in 1297. and inſtituted the Jubilee from Age to Age in 1300. It's ſaid of him, That he entred the Pontificate like a Fox, he lived in it like a Lion, and died in it like a mad Dog; according as Celeſtine, whom he ſo much injured, is ſaid to have Propheſied. He was buried in the Church of St. Peter, under a magnificent Sepulchre, which he had made for himſelf. Beſides a great many Epiſtles, two Diſcourſes which he made at the Canonization of St. Lewis, and the Oration Ave Virgo Glorioſa; and ſome Treatiſes are aſcribed to him; as, De Regulis Juris. Reſcriptum de Indulgentiis Anni Jubilæi. Conſtitutio de Privilegiis Doctorum & Studentium almæ Urbis. De Chriſtianæ Fidei & Romanorum Pontificum Perſecutionibus: But this latter Treatiſe the Criticks think was writ by Bonifacius Simoneta. This Pope moreover employed ſome Cardinals, &c. to make the Collection of the Decretals, which he called the Sexte, containing the Decrees of two General Councils of Lyons, and others. He would inſert theſe new Conſtitutions in the Decretals of Gregory IX. but made a diſtinct Work of them, either for the convenience of Scholars, or, as 'twas generally believed, for the Pleaſure of doing ſomething new himſelf: For this Reaſon he made this Sextus Decretalium, a Supplement or Continuation of the Five Books of Decretals, publiſhed before. This Book conſiſts of the New Decretals, made in the ſpace of 60 or 68 years; partly by Gregory IX. after the Collection which he had publiſhed, and partly by following Popes, and ſome of them by Boniface himſelf. This Work is divided into Five Books. Platina adds, That he prevailed with P. Celeſtine to diveſt himſelf of the Triple Crown, by ſuborning one to ſpeak to him thro' a Cane, thus: Celeſtine, Celeſtine, Dimitte Papatum ſi vis Salvus fieri; negotium ſupra vires eſt. Which the ſimple Pope thinking to be a Voice from Heaven, obey'd. Having baniſhed the Columna's, he appointed a double Anniverſary, one in Honour of the Apoſtles and Evangeliſts, and the other in Honour of Gregory, Auſtin, Jerome, and Ambroſe. In his Jubilee, he gave a full Pardon to all thoſe who viſited the Apoſtles Tombs, which drew People from all ſides to Rome. Hoffman ſays, That in a Synod and Parliament, called by Philip the Fair of France, this Pope was condemn'd of Simony, Murther, Uſury, Atheiſm, Adultery, and Underhand-Contracts with the Saracens. When he was taken by Nogaret, the French General, who threatned to carry him to Lyons, where he ſhould be degraded by the Council; he anſwer'd, That he was not frighted at the Threats of a Paterin. Whereupon the ſaid General ſtruck him on the Face with his Gantlet, and taking him by the Neck, forced him to Rome, where he died. Spanheim adds from the French Annals, That when Boniface's Bull arriv'd in France, aſſerting that he was Supream Lord of Temporals as well as Spirituals, and that King Philip held his Kingdom of him; the ſame was publickly burnt by Order of the Parliament of Paris, and by the Aſſembly of the States of the Kingdom, that ſame year, who declared againſt the Papal Uſurpations, as Reſervation and Collation of Benefices, and Taxing the Clergy, &c. and the King writ in anſwer to his Letter, Philippus Dei Gratia Francorum Rex, Bonifacio ſe gerenti pro ſummo Pontifice ſalutem modicam ſeu nullam: Sciat Maxima tua Fatuitas, in Temporalibus nos alicui non ſubeſſe, Eccleſiarum & Prebendarum collationem ad nos jure Regio pertinere, &c. Secus autem credentes fatuos & dementes reputamus. i. e. Philip, by the Grace of God, King of France, to Boniface the pretended Pope, little or no Greeting: Be it known unto your Fooliſhneſs, That we are ſubject to none in Temporals, and that the Collation of Churches and Prebendaries belong to us by our Royal Prerogative; and thoſe who think otherwiſe, we account Fools and mad Men. He concludes, That this Pope died frantick, gnawing his Fleſh off his Hands with his Teeth. Du Cheſ. Papyr. Maſſon. Ciaconius in Vit. Pontif. Poſſevin, &c.

BONIFACE the Ninth, Named before Peter Thomacella, was of a Noble Famlily of Naples, but reduced to Miſery. Of a poor Eccleſiaſtick he was made a Cardinal in 1381. by the Title of S. George I. and then of S. Anaſtaſius, and created Pope after Urbin VI. Novemb. 2. 1389. in the time when the Cardinals who were at Avignon, had choſen Clement VII. and after that Benet XIII. This Pope inſtituted the Firſt Fruits of Benefices; i. e. half a year's Revenue of each; celebrated the Jubilee in 1400. and pretended to be much for putting an end to the Schiſm: But his ſecret Intrigues to maintain himſelf on the Throne, were not hid. He is commended for an admirable Chaſtity, which made him prefer Death to a Remedy which offended this Virtue; but the Liberty he allowed his Relations, is blamed by all Writers. Theodorus of Niem, who had been his Domeſtick, ſpeaks of him with great Diſparagement for his unſatiable Covetouſneſs, having introduced, ſaith he, unlawful Means to draw Money from Benefices, and diſhonoured his Pontificate by making Merchandiſe of all manner of Places at the Court of Rome. Boniface IX. died October 1. 1404. having been Pope 5 years wanting 34 days. Platina adds, That he was the firſt who inveſted all the Power of Rome in the Pope himſelf; That he created Magiſtrates as he pleaſed, and fortified the Caſtle of St. Angelo; and that he was ſuſpected of having put to death, out of meer Envy, a certain Prieſt, who came down from the Alps cloathed in White, and pretending a great deal of Modeſty, was eſteemed a Saint, and followed by a numerous Multitude, who from their white Apparel were called Albi: But the Pope pretended that he aimed at the Triple Crown, and therefore cut him off. Spanheim, from ſeveral other Authors, accuſes this Pope of Tyranny, Simony, and Idolatry, ſelling Benefices to thoſe who bid moſt, and thundring his Excommunications againſt Lewis of Anjou, and Richard and Edward of England, for conferring of Benefices. He alſo excommunicated all Princes who claimed any Right to Govern the Temporal Concerns of the Church, and upon this account did abrogate the Authority of the Emperour Winceſlaus. He further ordered That thoſe ſuſpected of Hereſie, ſhould be flea'd and burnt alive.

St. BONIFACE, Firſt Archbiſhop of Mentz, and then Biſhop of Utrecht. He was a Learned Engliſh Prieſt, Named Wilfride, or Winfride before. He came into the Dioceſe of Utrecht whilſt Willibrod had the Conduct thereof, and by Order of this Prelate he Preached 13 years in Lower Friezland. Being afterwards at Rome to viſit the Sepulchre of St. Peter and St. Paul, he was ſent back by Gregory II. to Thuringia and Heſſe, in the Quality of Legate, where he re-eſtabliſhed the Chriſtian Religion. In the mean time the Biſhop of Mentz died, and the Fathers of the Synod at Charles Martel's Command aſſembled there, named Wilfride to ſucceed. His Election was confirmed by Pope Gregory III. who changed his Name to Boniface, gratified him with the Pallium, and created him the firſt Archbiſhop of Mentz. In this Quality he founded, with the Conſent of Pope Zachariah, and King Pepin the Brief, the Biſhopricks of Aichſtet and Wurtzburg, both in Germany, and the famous Abbey of Fuld, of the Order of St. Bennet. Having Governed that Church during 21 years, and hearing of the Death of Willibrod, he convocated a Synod, and reſigned the Archbiſhoprick in favour of his Couſin Lulley, and went to take the Conduct of the Biſhoprick of Utrecht. He built the Church of St. Salvator of Utrecht in 738. and founded there 40 Canonſhips; and King Pepin, in acknowledgment that he had Crown'd him, whilſt he was Archbiſhop of Mentz, confirmed all the ancient Privileges of Utrecht. After having held this See 16 years, he Conſecrated Gregory, and having put him in his Place, he went with ſome Great Perſons to Preach the Goſpel into Friezland, where he ſuffered Martyrdom in 753. His Body was immediately buried in the Cathedral of Utrecht, and afterwards carried in Pomp, and put into the Abbey of Fuld. The Death of Boniface was ſoon revenged; for the Lieutenant of King Pepin being gone with a powerful Army to Dockum, did not only put his Murtherers to the Sword, but all thoſe that he could meet with. There was ſince a fair Monaſtery built upon the Place where Boniface was killed. Jean de Beka.

BONIFACIO, a City of Italy, in the Iſle of Corſica, belonging to the Genoeſe: It is thought to be the Palla of Ptolemy. It lies in the South part of the Iſle, with a Port extreamly commodious, and a Fortreſs eſteemed to be one of the beſt in Europe, becauſe of its advantageous Situation in a Peninſula. Bonifacio is a Trading Town, and well built: It gives its Name to the Streights between the Iſles of Corſica and Sardinia. The Inhabitants call it Le Bocche di Bonifacio, which is the Fretum Taphros of Pliny, and the Fretum Etruſcum of Pomponius Mela, the Sinus Sardonicus of Euſtatius, and by ſome Moderns called Le Bocche di Beixonnere. The French took it in 1553.

BONIFACIUS, an Earl in the Fifth Century: He had acquired a great Reputation at the War; and being ſent into Spain againſt the Vandals, he was ſo much abuſed by Caſtinus his Companion, in 422. that he went into Africk, where the Services he had rendred the Empire acquired him great Riches. He contracted Friendſhip with St. Auguſtine, whoſe Converſation influenced him with a Deſire to embrace a Monaſtical Life; but this Holy Biſhop perſuaded him to lead rather a Chriſtian Life in the World, where he might do good Service to the Church. He married afterwards an Arrian Wife, ſuffered his Daughter to be Baptized by the Arrians, and even fell into ſome Debaucheries; which obliged St. Auguſtine to write him that excellent Letter, the 70th of his Epiſtles, and afterwards to excommunicate him, becauſe he had taken a Criminal by force out of a Church, whither he had withdrawn. Count Bonifacius acknowledged his Fault, deliver'd up the Criminal, and was readmitted to the Communion. Some time after, he was accuſed of Rebellion, and attack'd in Africk in 427. and 28. He defended himſelf courageouſly, and called Genſeric to his Aſſiſtance; but having made Peace with the Emperor Valentinian III. the Vandals drove him out of Africk. Aëtius alſo purſued and fought him, and he received a Wound, whereof he died 3 months after, in 432.

BONIFACIUS, (John) born at Rovigo in the State of Venice; an eminent Lawyer, and a good Poet and Hiſtorian He ſtudied the Law at Padua. He wrote the Hiſtory of Trevigi, and ſeveral Tracts in the Law; as, Commentario Sopra La Feudal Lege Venita. De fertis, & de componendis Epitaphiis. L'Arte de Cenni. Methodo delle Legge della Seren. Rep. Venita, &c. Jam. Philip, in Thomaſin. Illuſt. Vir. Vita, &c.

BONIZO, Biſhop of Sutri, and afterwards of Placentia in Italy, was murthered in 1082. by the Placentians, becauſe he maintained the Intereſt of the Pope. They pulled out his Eyes, and cut off his Arms and Legs. He has left an Abridgment of the Hiſtory of the Popes. Barthold.

BONNA deeſſe, Lat. Bona dea, or the Good Goddeſs, a Nymph, one of the Dryades, Wife to Faunus King of Italy, whoſe Feaſt the Roman Women celebrated by night in a place where Men were not allowed to come. They ſay ſhe was ſo Chaſte, that no Man had ever ſeen her Face, nor known her Name, and therefore they did not aſſiſt at her Sacrifices. Myrtle was not employed amongſt the Ornaments of her Altar, becauſe this Tree was dedicated to Venus, an unchaſte Goddeſs. In the time of Cicero, Publius Clodius profaned the Ceremonies of this Feaſt, by entring into the Houſe of Julius Cæſar, then Sovereign Pontiff, in Women's Apparel, to debauch Mutia, Cæſar's Wife, who was celebrating the Feaſt of that Goddeſs with other Roman Ladies. There are ſome who ſay, That the Wife of Faunus having drank exceſſively, her Husband beat her to death with Myrtle-branches; and that this King afterwards, being much grieved at her Death, built her an Altar: Therefore there was no Myrtle made uſe of at this Altar, but a Pitcher full of Wine, covered with a Table-Cloth, was ſet upon it. The Greeks did alſo Sacrifice to the Good Goddeſs, whom they called the Goddeſs of Women, and one of Bacchus's Nurſes, who was forbid to be called by her true Name. Plut. in Quæſt. Rom. q. 20. Macrob. Saturn. l. 1. c. 12.

BONNE, a Town of Low Germany, in the Dioceſe of Cologne, ſituate upon the Rhine, four Leagues from Cologne, in a fine Country, environed with Hills, and covered with Vines and Wood. Several Authors think that it was built by the Trojans, after the Deſtruction of Troy. However, it is certainly the Ara Ubiorum of the Ancients. Ptolemy ſpeaks of it under the Name of Βώννα, and there is mention made of it in Tacitus, Ammianus Marcellinus, the Itinerary of Antoninus, and the Tables of Peutinger. Its Name was alſo found in ſome Medals of Auguſtus, related by Goltzius, under the Name of Colony, Col. Julia Bona. It is pretty well fortified with broad, dry Ditches. It is the ordinary Reſidence of the Elector of Cologne, who is Lord of it, and has there a very fine Caſtle, and curious Gardens in the Neighbourhood. The Town-Houſe is alſo very well built, with divers Paintings, and a Clock with a melodious Chime, after the faſhion of the Country. There are ſtill fine Churches to be ſeen, the Principal of which is Dedicated to the Holy Martyrs, Caſſius, Florentius, and Maluſius. This City ſuffered much in the firſt Wars of the Low Countries, and was fiercely attacked, partly by the Bavarians, and partly by the Troops of the Duke of Parma, who carried it at laſt by Famine, in 1588. In this City, Frederick of Auſtria, choſen in Oppoſition to Lewis of Bavaria, was Crowned Emperor in 1314. It was in times paſt an Imperial City; but now it is under the Obedience of the Elector of Cologne. Lewis XIV. of France having given Troops to Cardinal Furſtemberg, to render himſelf Maſter thereof, in the Quality of Elector, it was beſieged in Summer, 1689. by the Elector of Brandenburg, who after having almoſt ruined it with Bombs, took it by Capitulation. In 1673. the Prince of Orange, having taken Naerden, and ſecured Holland by a part of the Army, he march'd with the reſt into Germany, and join'd part of the Confederate Troops to beſiege Bonne, which had been put into the French K.'s hands by the Elector of Cologne at the beginning of the War; and the taking this Place forced the French to withdraw their Forces out of the United Netherlands. It is (ſaith Dr. Burnet) a regular Fortification; the Walls are faced with Brick, and the Ditch, which is dry, is pretty broad; but the Counterſcarp is in ſuch ill Condition, that it is not able to make a great Defence. At the laſt Siege of this Place, they found a Vault, in which there was an Iron Cheſt, that was full of Medals of Gold, to the value of 100000 Crowns: The Metal was Ducat Gold, and the Impreſſions made for Roman, but very ignorantly, as being not above 4 or 500 years old; and one muſt be extreamly ignorant in Medals to be deceived by them: Some few of them that ſeem'd true, were of the latter Greek Emperors. This Place is ſmall and poor. It's 14 miles South of Cologne, 28 South-Eaſt of Julters, 55 North-Eaſt of Triers, and 60 North-Weſt of Mentz.

BONNE, a Borough of Savoy, in the Country of Foucigni, upon the Brook of Menay, or Monole, within 3 or 4 Leagues of Geneva. Simler ſaith, That its Name of old was Banta. It's aſſerted, That it received its Name from the Houſe of Bonne, which has ſince ſettled in Dauphiné.

BONNE, or Bona Sforza, a Queen of Poland, ſecond Wife to Sigiſmund I. and Daughter to John Galeas Sforza, Duke of Milan, by Iſabella of Arragon. She was brought into Poland in 1518. and had 5 Children, a Son, and 4 Daughters: The Son was King Sigiſmund II. Sirnamed Auguſtus, born in 1520. and died July 18. 1572. at Knichin, upon the Frontiers of Lithuania and Maſſovia. This Prince left no Children, though he had three Wives, and ſo was the laſt of the Jagellans, or Lithuanian Princes, who Reigned in Poland near 200 years. Queen Bonne was very Vertuous and Generous, and her Love to the King her Husband was extream, which appeared by her being conſtantly near his Perſon whilſt he lived; and particularly when 30 years after their being married, this Prince fell into a languiſhing and continual Indiſpoſition, which laſted till his Death During this time, ſhe would her ſelf alone take care to give him all that was neceſſary, notwithſtanding the earneſtneſs of her Husband to perſuade her to take a little more Reſt. After the Death of Sigiſmund I. Bonne took ſome Diſpleaſure at King Sigiſmund II. her Son, who was fully reſolved to take to his ſecond Wife Barba Radzivil, Widow of Gaſtold, a Lithuanian Lord. Then ſhe ſided with the Princes and Lords of Poland, who ſcorning to ſee their King marry the Widow of a plain Gentleman his Vaſſal, had withdrawn from Court; but ſome time after, Queen Barba dying ſuddenly at Cracovia, perhaps by Poiſon, the Troubles of the Kingdom were appeaſed, and the King and the Queen his Mother reconciled: Yet this Reconciliation laſted not long; for the Queen often reproaching the King her Son with this Alliance, which ſhe found very unequal, Sigiſmund one day anſwered her haſtily, That he had not done ſo much Diſhonour to his Houſe and Crown in eſpouſing Barba publickly, and in the face of the Church, as ſhe had diſhonoured it by marrying ſecretly to Pappacoda, a Man of a mean Condition. Theſe Diſcourſes inflamed their Minds, and were the beginning of a great Miſunderſtanding betwixt the King and the Queen his Mother, of which the Emperor Charles V. and his Brother Ferdinand King of the Romans, were ſoon advertiſed by their Ambaſſadors in Poland, and by Catharine of Auſtria, Queen, and third Wife of Sigiſmund Auguſtus. Whereupon theſe two Princes, to feed the Diſcord between the Mother and the Son, and by that means to hinder that the Queen and Poles ſhould come together a ſecond time, to ſuccour Iſabella Queen of Hungary, who would have re-eſtabliſhed her Son Stephen or John Sigiſmund in his Territories, which Charles V. and Ferdinand had invaded, writ very engaging Letters to Bonne, which ſhe received with the more pleaſure, becauſe they were both of the Royal Houſe of Arragon, whence ſhe iſſued; therefore ſhe determined to quit Poland and the King her Son. On this Deſign ſhe asked Leave to retire to her Lands in Apulia, in the furtheſt parts of Italy; and having obtained the ſame, ſhe went thither, after ſhe had been magnificently entertained in all the Countries belonging to Charles V. and Ferdinand; and particularly at Venice, where three years after, about 1558. ſhe died, loaden with Honour, having been Mother to a King and three Queens. This Queen hath been undeſervedly blamed for having made Pappacoda her Heir, a Neapolitan Lord, of the Noble Family of Pappacoda, who was, as ſome ſay, her Husband; for, according to the Hiſtorians who hold for the Houſe of Auſtria, Philip II. King of Spain, Son to the Emperor Charles V. was true Heir to this Queen. This occaſioned a great Suit betwixt the Kings of Spain and the Princes of Poland, which is not as yet decided: For their Hiſtorians maintain that this Teſtament is falſe; that Queen Bonne never made Philip II. King of Spain, or Pappacoda, her Heir; but that ſhe left all her Eſtate to her Daughters, and to her Son Sigiſmund Auguſtus, King of Poland, with whom ſhe was reconciled ſome Months before her Death, and had ſent to the Venetians to lend her their Galleys to conduct her into Poland. Hilarion, de Coſte.

BONNE, a Lombard, Native of the Valtoline, of a low Condition; but by her Courage ſhe became very Illuſtrious in the 15th Age. She was at firſt Concubine, and afterwards Wife to Peter Brunoro, an Illuſtrious Captain of Parma, who, as he was leading an Army into the Valtoline, perceived Bonne in the Field feeding Sheep; and obſerving that ſhe was lively and haughty, carried her with him. He took delight to cloth her in Man's Apparel, that ſhe might the better accompany him on Horſeback, and follow him a Hunting. She attended him when he ſerved Count Francis Sforza againſt Alphonſus King of Naples; and alſo when he re-entred into the Service of Alphonſus. Some time after, Brunoro would have returned to Francis Sforza, and deliberated about the Means of making his Eſcape, and to keep it from the Knowledge of the King of Naples; who having diſcovered it, arreſted and clapp'd him in Priſon. Bonne immediately reſolved to enlarge Brunoro; and to compaſs her Deſigns, ſhe went to all the Princes of Italy, the King of France, Philip Duke of Burgundy, and the Venetians, from whom ſhe obtained Letters of Recommendation on Peter Brunoro's behalf. Alphonſus being entreated by ſo Great Powers, was obliged to ſet him at liberty, and reſtore him to his Warlike Girl, who afterwards prevailed with the Senate of Venice to give him the Command of their Troops, with a Penſion of 20000 Ducats. Then Brunoro, conſidering the great Obligation which he owed Bonne, reſolved to marry her, and took her for his lawful Wife. After her Marriage, ſhe made the Greatneſs of her Courage appear more and more, being at all Rencounters, where ſhe fought valiantly, and became very Underſtanding in the Military Art, the Effects whereof were ſeen on divers Occaſions, and chiefly in the Enterprize of the Venetians againſt Francis Sforza, Duke of Milan, where ſhe forced the Enemies to ſurrender the Caſtle of Pavone near Breſſe, after having aſſaulted it at the Head of her Troops; inſomuch that the Senate of Venice having an entire Confidence in the Conduct and Valour of Peter Brunoro and his Wife, they ſent them to defend Negrepont againſt the Turks; which they performed ſo well, that during the time they remained there, the Turks durſt undertake nothing more on that ſide. Brunoro died in the City of Negrepont, where he was very honourably Interred; and Bonne returning to Venice, died by the way in 1466. in a City of the Morea, leaving two Children behind her.

BONNE-COURCY, (John of) a Franciſcan Monk of Luca in Italy. He ſtudied at Paris in the beginning of the Sixteenth Age, under the Reign of King Lewis XII. and put this Aſſertion in his Theſis, That the Pope was above the King in Temporals. The Parliament, incenſed at the Impudence of this Fryer, arreſted him: He was condemned to be ſtripp'd of his Habit of Cordelier by the Hangman; was clothed with another, half yellow and half green, and led before the Image of the B. Virgin, which is on the Palace-Gate, holding a Torch of ſeveral Colours in his Hand, and declaring on his Knees, with a Rope about his Neck, That he had impiouſly, and againſt the Commandments of God and Orthodox Principles, maintained pernicious Errours, whereof he repented, and called to God for Mercy; and craved Pardon of the King, the Court of Juſtice, and the Publick. After this Execution, he was led by the Hangman in the ſame Apparel unto Ville-Juiſe, where he had his Franciſcan Habit reſtored, and thirty Livres given him to withdraw whither he would, being forbidden to return into France, on pain of being hanged. Bouchel, Collection of the Decrees of the Gallican Church.

BONNEFOY, (Ennemond) known by the Name of Boneſidius, one of the moſt famous Lawyers of his time. He was born at Chabueil, a ſmall Borough of Dauphiné; was Profeſſor in the Univerſity of Valencia, in 1572. Joſeph Scaliger and he were to have been killed there, during the Maſſacre of St. Bartholomew: They owed their Preſervation to the Care of Cujacius. The Fear that Bonnefoy had on't, made him conceive ſuch a Hatred againſt his Country, that he withdrew to Geneva, where he ended his days; and no Entreaties were able to make him return. His Latin Works, and, amongſt others, his Treatiſe of Civil and Canon Law in the Eaſt, ſhew how great and ſolid his Erudition was.

BONNER, (Edmund) Biſhop of London, and a cruel Perſecuter of the Proteſtants in the Reign of Queen Mary, was the Natural Son of George Savage, Prieſt, Parſon of Davenham in Cheſhire, Natural Son of George Savage of Clifton, in the ſaid County, Knight of the Garter, and Privy Counſellor to Henry VII. In 1512. or thereabouts, Edmund Bonner became a Student of Broadgate's-Hall, now Pembroke-College, in Oxford, then a noted Nurſery for Civilians and Canoniſts; and having made a ſufficient Progreſs in Philoſophy and the Laws, was admitted Batchelor of the Canon, and a month after, An. 1519. Batchelor of the Civil Law, Some years after this, he became one of King Henry VIII.'s Chaplains, a Favourer of the Lutherans, of the Divorce between the King and Katherine of Spain, and of the King's Proceedings in annulling the Pope's Authority in the Kingdom of England; a great Stickler for Tho. Cromwell, Secretary of State, as appeared by ſome tart-pointed Repartees betwixt him and Biſhop Gardiner. At laſt he became Maſter of the Faculties under Archbiſhop Cranmer, then Archdeacon of Leiceſter, in the room of Edward Fox, promoted to the See of Hereford. By the means of Cromwell, he was employ'd as Ambaſſador to the Kings of Denmark and France, to the Pope and the Emperor; and in the year 1538. promoted to the See of Hereford: But before he was Conſecrated thereunto, he was Elected Biſhop of London, Octob. 1. 1539, being then in an Embaſſie. After the Death of King Henry VIII. the Reformation being encouraged by his Son and Succeſſor, King Edward VI. Bonner ſeem'd at firſt to be for it; but recanting, was enjoin'd to Preach at Paul's Croſs for the Reformation; which he did; but ſo faintly, that it manifeſted his Mind rather to betray than defend it; beſides, he omitted the Article of the King's Authority, for which he was proſecuted, and committed Priſoner to the Marſhalſea in Southwark; then deprived of his Biſhoprick: But being releaſed by Queen Mary, he ſhewed himſelf a true Zealot of the Roman Religion, in occaſioning the Death of many of the Proteſtants. After Queen Elizabeth came to the Crown, (for he lived to ſee Four Reigns) he was, for denying the Oath of Supremacy, deprived again of his Biſhoprick, and ſent to the Marſhalſea, where he lived ten years a Priſoner, in a chearful and contented Condition, till the time of his Death in Anno 1569. which made his Adverſaries ſay, That he was like Dionyſius the Tyrant of Syracuſe, Cruel and Peremptory in Proſperity, Patient and Pleaſant in Adverſity.

BONNEVAL, a ſmall Town of France, in the Province of Beauce, and Country of Chartrin. It is ſituated upon the Loire, which receiveth there the Brook called the Meſuve, in a fertile Country, about ſix Leagues from Chartres, and three from Chateaudun. There is a famous Abbey of the Order of St. Benet, which gave Name and Riſe to the Town.

BONNEVILLE, or La Bonne-ville, Bonnopolis, a ſmall Town of Savoy, Capital of the Country of Foucigni. It is ſituated upon the Bank of the River, over which it hath a Wooden Bridge, two Leagues from Cluſe, one from la Roche, five from Annecy, and about as many from Geneva. Bonneville is at the Foot of the Mountains, but the Plain on the other ſide the River la Roche, belongs to Geneva. It is not conſiderable, yet ſeveral Noble Families of Savoy, as of St. Alban, de Millet, de Chales, &c. have had their Original from thence.

BONNON, or Bavon, Abbot of Corbie or Corvey, in Weſtphalia in Germany, lived in the time of the Emperor Lewis IV. and in the Ninth Century, and wrote the Hiſtory of his own time with ſufficient exactneſs. Poſſevin in Appar. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Lib. 2. C. 38.

BONOMI, (John Francis) born in the Seventeenth Century at Bononia in Italy, an Eminent Author. His Principal Works are theſe, Monarchia Apollinis. Democritus, ſeu Moralis Riſus. Chiron Achillis, ſive Navarchus humanæ vitæ. Heraclitus, ſive Moralis Fletus, &c. Trithem. De Script. Eccl. Lorenzo Craſſo, Elog. De Huom. Letter.

BONONIA, called the Fat, a City of Italy, belonging to the See of Rome, with an Archbiſhoprick and famous Univerſity. It is one of the greateſt and faireſt Cities of Italy, and the ſecond in the Eccleſiaſtical State. It's Sirnamed Fat, becauſe of the Goodneſs of its Territory, which is at the Eaſtern End of Lombardy, where there are a great many Sources which water it,falling from the Appennine Mountains, at the foot of which it is ſituated, near the ſmall River of Reno. Authors ſpeak variouſly of the Foundation of Bononia; ſome pretend that it was built by the Greeks, and others by the Tuſcans, and inhabited by the Gauls. It is certain that it is an old City, whereof the Ancients ſpeak with Praiſe. The Romans ſent a Colony thither, and were Maſters of Bononia, till about the Eighth Age, that it was ſubdued by the Lombards. Pepin and Charlemain delivered it from the Slavery of theſe barbarous People, and ſince that, Bononia belonged to the Emperors, whoſe Abſence, after they had tranſlated their Seat into Germany, gave a Beginning to the Republick of Bononia. Their Differences with the Pope were the occaſion of their farther Eſtabliſhment, and this City became ſo potent, that without mentioning a War, which it maintained for three years againſt the Republick of Venice, with 40000 Men, nor its Battels againſt the Marquiſs of Ferrara, the Lords of Milan, and other Italian Princes, it ſufficeth to ſay, that it oppoſed the Emperor Frederick II. vigorouſly, and that Euzelin, Natural Son to this Prince, was taken Priſoner in that War. The Bononians poſſeſſed the beſt part of Romania, which they loſt, together with their Liberty, by their frequent Diviſions. They began their Republick in the Thirteenth Age, and it endured more than 200 years. The firſt Factions were thoſe of the Jeremei, and the Lambertazi, who were driven thence in 1274. with their Partiſans, to the number of 15000. Some time after Bononia fell under the Dominion of the Bentivoglio's, Cannetules, and Pepoli, who baniſhed each other. Annibal Bentivoglio was murthered about 1445. leaving John his Son, who was Maſter of Bononia, and Policy obliged him to follow cruel Maxims, putting ſeveral of the Malvezzi to Death, baniſhing the Mareſcotti, and oppoſing himſelf to the other contrary Factions. Yet with all his Precautions, he could not avoid his Ruine. Pope Julius II. baniſhed him in 1506. and this Misfortune ruined his Family. Since Bononia came under the See of Rome. It is governed by a Legat à Latere, whom the Pope ſends thither, and by a particular Privilege, hath an Ordinary Ambaſſador at Rome, where this City is treated rather as a Siſter than a Subject. The City is very well built, and moſt of its Streets have Galleries and Arches, ſo that one may walk without being incommoded either by the Sun or Rain. It is five or ſix miles in Circuit, and longer than broad, ſo that its Form is much like that of a Ship. There is, in the middle of the City, a Tower called de gli Aſſinelli, which is very ſtreight and high, and is called the Maſt of this Ship. Beſides this Tower, there is another, de la Carriſeuda, which ſtoops on one ſide. Bononia hath no Fortifications but a ſingle Brick Wall with ſome Towers. The Metropolitan Church of Bononia, is that of St. Peter, built after the Model of St. Peter at Rome: The largeneſs of its great Vault is admirable, the Quire is very handſome, and underneath it has a Cellar ſtored with Relicks of Saints. The head Altar is deckt with ſome Pillars of Marble, and the Steeple is ſeparate from the Church, whoſe Chapter is very Auguſt. St. Apollinarius preached the Goſpel at Bononia, and St. Zama is thought to have been its firſt Biſhop. Pope Gregory XIII. who was a Native of Bononia, of the Family of Bon-compagno, erected this Cathedral into a Metropolis, An. 1583. whoſe Suffragans are now Parma, Placentia, Reggio, Modena, Crema and Borgo: St. Donnino, Cervia and Imola, which the ſame Pope had ſubmitted to the Metropolis of Bononia, have been ſince reſtored to that of Ravenna by Paul V. Beſides Gregory XIII. this City hath furniſhed Four Popes, to wit, Honorius II. called before Lamberto Fagnani, Lucius II. of the Family of the Caſianimici, Innocent IX. of that of Fachineti, and Gregory XV. of that of the Ludoviſi. The Church of St. Petronia is at the end of the great Market. Leander Alberti, who writ more than an hundred years ago, thought that this Church would not be finiſhed till the end of the World. They work continually at it, and yet there is but the half of it done. In this Church it was that Charles the Fifth was Conſecrated Emperor by Pope Clement VII. in 1529. The Convent of the Dominicans is one of the moſt Magnificent Structures of Bononia. There is a Bible in Parchment to be ſeen in the Church, which they ſay was writ by Eſdras. The Quire is behind the great Altar, and remarkable for its Seats, which are all inlaid with Stones ſo Artificially coloured, that they repreſent the Hiſtory of the Old and New-Teſtament. It is ſaid to be the Work of a Lay-Brother, named Francis Damian, of Bergamo. The Monaſtery of the Nuns of Corpus Domini, of the Order of St. Clare, is one of the moſt famous in this City, which has perhaps the moſt magnificent Churches, and Religious Houſes in the World. It abounds alſo with large Streets, pretty Fountains, fine Markets, and magnificent Palaces; amongſt which, thoſe of the Malvezzi, Campeggi, Bentivoglio, Facchinetti, Pepoli, and Coſpi, and the Pope's Legat, are the handſomeſt. The Houſes are generally well built, and in Summer, the Doors are for the moſt part left open, ſo that Travellers ſee unto the bottom of the Courts and Gardens, whence the Orange-Flowers, and Jeſſamin, exhale an odoriferous Scent. There is abundance of Nobility and Learned Men at Bononia. Here is alſo to be ſeen the Cloſet of the famous Ulyſſes Aldrovandus, a Native of this City, with 2 or 300 Manuſcripts, that contain his Remarks, whence the Works which we now have of his, are formed: The Curious may conſult the Bibliotheque of the Writers of Bononia, of John Antonius, Bumaldi, &c. for a farther Account. The Univerſity of this City is very ancient and famous: They pretend that it was founded by Theodoſius the Young, in the time of St. Petronio, Biſhop of Bononia, about 423. Yet it is certain, that for the Study of Civil and Canon Law, it is the firſt of all Italy, where they ſay in a Proverb, Bononia docet. The Colleges are very well built, and filled with a great number of Doctors. Here is that of the Spaniards, founded by Cardinal Albarnoz; and that of the Jeſuits, which are very fine. Beſides the Univerſity, Bononia has the Academy of Gli Otioſi, which is a famous Society of Men of Wit; ſo called from the Latin Word Otium, to denote their Tranquility of Mind. This City is about 6 miles in Compaſs, and lies in Long. 33. 35. Lat. 44. 15. The Council of Trent was tranſlated to Bononia in 1547. becauſe of the Plague in the former, and the Ninth and Tenth Seſſion was held there. Dr. Burnet ſays, the Civil Government is in the Hands of the Senate, who grant the Taxes; yet after all, the Pope draws more Money from this Free, Rich, Populous City, than from thoſe which are abſolutely in his Power, and are therefore diſ-peopled. The Inhabitants of this City are ſuppoſed to be 70000 Perſons.

BONOSUS, a Captain, originally of Spain, Son to a Profeſſor of Rhetorick; he cauſed himſelf to be proclaimed Emperor in Gaul, but was defeated, and afterwards hanged by the Command of Probus, who ſaved the Life of his Two Sons, and their Mother Hunila, Daughter to a King of the Goths. It is obſerved that he was an exceſſive Drinker, and that thereupon one of his Enemies, who ſaw him on the Gibbet, called him a hanging Bottle. This happened about 280. Aurelian ſays of him, that he was born to drink and not to live; and that he uſed to fuddle Foreign Ambaſſadors, thinking that they would tell the Truth in their Cups.

BONOSUS, a Biſhop of Macedonia, toward the end of the Fourth Century. He maintain'd, That the Holy Virgin did not remain ſo after her Childbirth; beſides this Error, he fell into the Hereſie of Photinus. The Council of Capua, held in 389. order'd, that Anyſius Biſhop of Theſſalonica, with the aſſiſtance of the Neighbouring Prelates, ſhould give Sentence in the Cauſe: Theſe Delegated Judges Condemn'd him, and Excommunicated his Ordainers. Baron. A. C, 389.

BONS-HOMMES, Monks eſtabliſhed in 1299 in England, by Prince Edmund. They profeſſed the Rule of St. Auguſtin, and wore a blue Coat. Spondanus believes, that they followed the Inſtitution of John le Bon, who lived in that Age. This Name was alſo given to the Minims in France.

BONZES, Prieſts of China, Japan, and the Indies, who amidſt their ſecret Debauches, make ſhew of great Continence and Sobriety. They have divers Univerſities, where they teach the Myſteries of their Sect, and live in common. They have alſo Women, who live after the ſame manner in Houſes apart. Xavier.

BONZI (Clement of) Biſhop of Beziers, acquired much Reputation during the Civil Wars. The Sollicitations of the Duke of Montmorency, who had taken up Arms againſt Lewis XIII. could not ſhake the invincible Loyalty of this Prelate. He raiſed a Regiment of Foot at his own Charges, and heading the ſame, he went in 1637 to relieve Leucate, a Town in Languedoc, which the Spaniards beſieged, and joined Marſhal de Schomberg, who entirely defeated the Enemies. He made alſo ſeveral fine Foundations in his Biſhoprick. St. Marth.

BOOT, or Botius, (Gerard) a Phyſician, born at Gorcum in Holland, and Brother to Arnoldus Boot, alſo a Phyſician. They have written ſeveral Treatiſes, as Philoſophia Naturalis reformata, publiſhed in 1641. another in Dutch, Entituled, The Pleaſant Hours, &c.

BOOT, or Boetius, (Anſelm) born at Bruges, and Phyſician to the Emperor. He publiſh'd a Treatiſe, De Gemmis & Lapidibus, in 1609. Afterwards he added a Third Volume to his Two former, which Typotius calls, Symbola Divina & Humana Pontificum, Imperatorum, Regum, &c. Valer. Andreas, Bibl. Belg.

BOOT, an Iſland in the South Weſt Parts of Scotland, about ſix Miles diſtant from Arran. 'Tis ten Miles long, four broad, and all in a manner low Land, therefore fit for Corn and Paſturage. It has but one Town in it, bearing the Name of the Iſland, and an old Caſtle, called Rothſey, and another called Keams.

BOOTES, called otherwiſe Autophylax. It is a little Star near Urſa Major, which ſeems to follow the Cart like a Shepherd. The Poets ſay, that it was Icarus of Athens, Father to Erigone, who having received ſome Bottles of Wine from Bacchus, laid them upon his Wagon, and having given ſome of the Liquor to the Athenian Shepherds, they became drunk with it; ſo that by their beaſtly Actions, and ridiculous Speeches, their Comerades were ſurpriz'd, and not knowing what to make of it, concluded that they were poyſoned, and therefore killed Icarus, whoſe Daughter Erigone hanging her ſelf for Grief, Jupiter tranſlated her, with her Father and their Dog, among the Stars, calling him Bootes, her Virgo, and it Canicula. Cic. de Nat. Deor. Ovid.

BOOTH, Henry Earl of Warrington was advanced to that Dignity from the Title of Lord de la Mere, ſince the late Revolution: His Father, Sir George Booth, a worthy and Religious Gentleman, was noted for his Loyalty to King Charles II. and Zeal for his Service, ventured hard to bring him in during the Uſurpation; and headed, in order to it, an Inſurrection in Cheſhire, but was routed by Lambert, and being taken afterwards in a Diſguiſe, attempting to make his Eſcape, was clapt up in the Tower. Whence, upon the Reſtauration of King Charles II. he was freed, and afterwards created Lord de la Mere of Denham Maſſey in Cheſhire. After his Deceaſe, his Son, the preſent Earl, enjoy'd his Eſtate and Title, and Married Mary, the Daughter of Sir James Langham, of Colebrook. Being accuſed of High Treaſon on the Duke of Monmouth's Account, he was Try'd for his Life on the 24th of January 1686. but made ſo good a Defence for himſelf, that he was quitted by his Peers. Upon the Landing of the Prince of Orange, he made all the Party he was able, and raiſed conſiderable Forces for him, firmly adhering ever ſince to Their preſent Majeſties King William and Queen Mary. This Lord is Paternally deſcended from a very ancient and Knightly Family in Cheſhire and Lancaſhire, and by Heirs Female from the Maſſies, Montforts, and Clintons, Honourable Families of this Realm; and his own Mother was the Lady Elizabeth, Daughter to Henry, late Earl of Stanford. He died much lamented, 169— leaving Two Sons, and as many Daughters, behind him, and was ſucceeded in Eſtate and Honours by George the preſent Earl of Warrington. His Arms are, Ar. 3 Boars Heads erected and eraſed, S. armed, O. Dugdale, &c.

BOPART, and Boppart, Bopartium and Bodobriga, a ſmall Town in Germany, in the Archbiſhoprick of Treves, upon the Rhine, betwixt Coblentz and St. Goar.

BORBORITES, a Sect of the Gnoſticks in the Second Century, which beſides the Errors of theſe Hereticks, deny'd the laſt Judgment. St. Epiphan. Baronius.

BORCH-LOEN, or Loots, a Town of the Low-Countries, in the Biſhoprick of Liege, Subject to that Biſhop. It ſtands on River the Nereck, 13 Miles Weſt of Maeſtricht, and 16 North Weſt of Liege.

BORCHOLM, a ſmall Town and Fortreſs of Sweden, in the Iſle of Oeland near Goria, two Miles Eaſt from Calmar. Lat. 56. 50. Long. 34. 17.

BORCHOLT, upon the Aa, a ſmall Town of Germany in Weſtphalia, which belongs to the Biſhop of Munſter.

BORCHSTENFORD, a Town of Germany, in the Circle of Weſtphalia, Chief of a County of the ſame Name, Subject to a Count of Benthem: Stands fifteen Miles North Weſt of Munſter.

BORDELONG, or Bordelone, Bordelona, a City of the Kingdom of Siam, in the Peninſula, on the other ſide of the Ganges. It is ſituated upon the Gulph of Siam, with an indifferent good Port, betwixt Lingor and Singora.

BORDUNI, () Son to a Notary of Marſeilles in Provence, died about 1615. being 50 years old, and was interred in the Convent of the Obſervants, where his Head is kept, becauſe it is prodigiouſly big. He was but four foot high, and yet his Head three foot round, and almoſt a foot high. The Bones, by ſpreading out too much, were become very thin, and were the breadth of a Crown aſunder in two places. Though he had much Brains, his Wit was but very little; ſo that it was a Proverb at Marſeilles, Thou haſt no more ſence than Borduni. When he became aged, he could not hold up his Head without laying it on a Cuſhion. Spon.

BOREAS, Son to Aſtræus, ran away with Orithya Daughter to Erectheus, the Sixth King of Athens, three years before Eumolpus Inſtituted the Myſterious Ceremonies of Ceres, in the City of Eleuſis in Attica, which happened about A. M. 2655. (as Euſebius affirms in his Chronicon.) Ovid alſo makes mention of Boreas and Orithya in the Sixth Book of the Metamorphoſis.

BOREU, (Herbert, or Heribert) Biſhop of Utrecht, ſucceeded to Andrew, who died in 1138. It was in the time of Biſhop Boreu, that Theodoric, Earl of Holland, laid ſiege to Utrecht, and reduced it to ſo great a Want, that Boreu, to move this obſtinate Enemy, being cloathed in his Prelatical Habits, cauſed the Gates of the City to be opened, and went thus accompanied with his whole Clergy, to meet this Earl, as did in times paſt Pope Leo, when Attila appeared before Rome. Theodoric being taken with the Majeſty of this Venerable Prelate, caſt himſelf immediately at his Feet, and asked him Pardon; after which he ſpeedily raiſed the Siege. Boreu then return'd with great Honour into the City, having Conquered the Enemy, and Succoured his People in ſo preſſing a Neceſſity; and having received there the publick Acclamations, he was Zealous for the Intereſt and Advantage of his People as long as he liv'd, which was till the year 1150. William Gazey Hiſt. Eccl. of the Low-Countreys.

BORGES, made Governor of Eion by the King of Perſia, and being much preſſed by the Grecians in a cloſe Siege, choſe rather to be burnt than yield up the Town. Polyæn.

BORGIA, an Illuſtrious Family of Spain: Said to be deſcended from the ancient Kings of Arragon.

BORGIA, (Cæſar) a Cardinal, Archbiſhop of Valencia in Spain, and afterwards Duke of Valentinois, ſecond Son to Pope Alexander VI. and Vanoza a Roman Lady. From his Infancy his Father deſigned him for a Clergyman; and when he was Studying the Law in the Univerſity of Piſa, he gave him the Biſhoprick of Pampeluna, and immediately after, named him to the Archbiſhoprick of Valencia, and then created him Cardinal in 1493. and ſeeing the Promotion of a Baſtard might have been rejected in the Sacred College, he thought it convenient to aſſert in a Conſiſtory, that Vanoza had this Cæſar by her Husband Dominick Arimano, though at other times he was not aſhamed to own him publickly for his Son, as Guichardin teſtifies. Some time after, this new Cardinal having more ambitious Deſigns, reſolved to make away with his eldeſt Brother John de Borgia, Duke of Candia, and in 1497. he was actually found dead in the Tiber, with Nine Thruſts of a Sword. There were convincing Proofs that Cæſar was the Author of this Fratricide; and beſides the Enmity upon the Account of Intereſt and Ambition, he could not ſuffer that the Duke of Candia ſhould have a greater Share than himſelf in the Favours of Lucretia Borgia, their Siſter and Miſtreſs. And Giles of Viterbo ſaid with a great deal of Truth, that in his time there was to be ſeen at Rome a ſecond Romulus, who, like the firſt, could neither endure a Companion nor Brother. In the mean time, Cæſar being freed from the Fear of his Brother, quitted the Eccleſiaſtical Profeſſion, and entred into a League with Lewis XII. King of France, who was thinking upon the Expedition of Milan. This Prince made him Duke of Valentinois, in recompence for a Bull which he had brought unto him, by which the Pope appointed Commiſſioners to diſſolve his Marriage with Jane, Daughter to Lewis XI. having moreover brought him a Cardinals Cap for George of Amboiſe. After that, the King cauſed him to be Married to Charlotte, Daughter to Alain, Lord of Albert. By this means, Cæſar made uſe of the Kings Arms to accompliſh his Deſigns, though he was not always faithful unto him. He took the beſt Places of Romandiola, ſeized Imola, Forli, Fayenza, Peſaro, Rimini, Camerine, &c. and exerciſed an unſufferable Tyranny over the moſt part of the Italian Princes; and afterwards being deſirous to be enriched with the Spoils of Cardinal Adrian Cornette, he invited the Pope to Supper with the ſaid Cardinal in a Garden the 17th of Auguſt, and cauſed poyſoned Wine to be prepared for him; yet it happened, that the Father and the Son coming in ſooner than the reſt, and being dry, by reaſon of the Heat of the Seaſon, called for ſome Drink; but in the Abſence of the Servant, who was privy to the Plot, another gave them of the Poyſoned Wine. The Pope, who was aged, died of it in 1503. Cæſar held out better, and having cauſed himſelf to be wrapped up in a Mule's Belly, eſcaped. Notwithſtanding, under the Pontificate of Pius III. Succeſſor to Alexander, he was like to be overcome, and deſtroyed by his Enemies; but the Protection of the King of France ſaved his Life; in recompence of which, this Traytor abandoned his Intereſt. Of ſo many Places which he had invaded there, he had none left but four, which he offered to ſurrender to Julius II. who was choſen after Pius. This Pope refuſed at firſt to accept of them, and permitted Cæſar to withdraw; but having been afterwards better adviſed, he cauſed him to be ſeized at Oſtia, and kept him in Priſon until he yielded theſe Places. Then he ſuffered him to go to Gonzales of Corduba, who gave him his Word of Honour, and yet ſent him into Spain, where he was condemned to a perpetual Impriſonment. He afterwards made his Eſcape, and fled to John Albert, King of Navarre, his Wife's Brother. This Prince being in War with Lewis de Beaumont, his Vaſſal, Conſtable of Caſtile, Cæſar Borgia beſieged the Caſtle of Viane, which belonged to the ſaid Conſtable, who putting Sixty Men into the Place by Night, the Duke of Valentinois purſuing them, was killed on Friday, March 12. 1507. Cæſar Borgia had for Device, theſe Words, Aut Cæſar, aut nihil, which gave occaſion to ſome Poets of his time to make the following Diſtichs.

Borgia Cæſar erat, factis & nomine Cæſar:
Aut nihil, aut Cæſar dixit; utrumque fuit.

2.

Aut nihil, aut Cæſar, vult dici Borgia: quid ni,
Cum ſimul & Cæſar poſſit & eſſe nihil?

3.

Omnia vincebas, ſperabas omnia, Cæſar:
Omnia deficiunt, incipis eſſe nihil.

BORGO, a Town of Swedeland, in the Province of Finland, called Nyland. It is ſituated upon the Gulph of Finland, betwixt Vibourg in Carelia on one ſide, and Revel in Livonia on the other.

BORGO S. DONNINO, a Town of Italy, in the Dutchy of Parma, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Bononia. It is an ancient Town, the Fidentia of Titus Livius, of Ptolemy, and the Itinerary of Antoninus. It was ſince Sirnamed Julia, as may be ſeen in the Roman Martyrology, and then that of Burgus S. Domnini. Blondus ſaith, that here was in times paſt a famous Abbey of St. Columbus, which was deſtroyed by the Emperor Frederick II. Pope Clement VIII. made it an Archbiſhoprick, and Paul V. rendered it Suffragan to Bononia. This Town did formerly belong to the Family of Pallavicini.

BORGO-SAN-SEPOLCHRO, a Town in Italy, in the Dominions of the Great Duke of Tuſcany, with a Biſhop's See under the Metropolis of Florence.

BORGO-VAL-DI-TARO, a Town of Italy, in the Dutchy of Parma, which in times paſt belonged to the Houſe of Landi. It has a ſtrong Fortreſs, called Val de Taro, on the ſide of Genoa.

BORICHUS, Natural Son to Coloman, King of Hungary, joined the Troops of Lewis VII. called the Young, King of France, as he paſſed through Hungary to the Holy Land in 1147. and he ſought an Opportunity to ſeize his Father's Crown; but Geiſa II. King of Hungary, croſs'd his Deſigns, and ſent to demand him of King Lewis. Borichus ſeeing himſelf diſcovered, flung himſelf at the Feet of Lewis VII. imploring his Protection, which this generous King granted him. And when the Ambaſſadors of Geiſa exaggerated the Perfidiouſneſs of Borichus, he anſwered them, That he could not ſuffer that a Prince ſhould be taken ſo nigh his Perſon; That the Tent of a King was an Altar, and that the Feet of a Soveraign were a Shelter for the Unfortunate. Borichus notwithſtanding, fearing the Power of Geiſa, fled away ſecretly, mounted upon one of the Kings Horſes, to ſeek for Safety elſewhere. Bonfin. Dec. 2. l. 6.

BORIQUEN, one of the moſt conſiderable Leeward Iſlands in Northern America, belonging to the Spaniards. It lies amongſt the Artilla, betwixt the Iſle of the Holy Croſs, and that of Porto Rico. Boriquen is ſmall of extent; but there is Sugar, Caſſia, Ginger, and Leather in it. They ſay that the Inhabitants reckoned the Spaniards immortal, until they ſaw one named Salſedo drowned at the Paſs of a River called Guarabo.

BORIS Gudenou, Great Maſter of the Horſe, and Brother-in-Law to the Great Duke of Muſcovy, whoſe Siſter he had Married; he was Regent of that State during the Reign of Fedor, or Theodorus; and to ſecure the Crown to himſelf, ordered a Gentleman to go and murther Demetrius, Son to John Baſilowitz, and Brother to Fedor, a young Prince of Nine years old, in the City of Uglitz, where he was brought up; and this Tyrant, to conceal the Murther, killed this Aſſaſſinate and his Accomplices as ſoon as they returned to Moſcow, and ſent Soldiers to raze the Caſtle of Uglitz, and drive away the Inhabitants, as if they had favoured the Murther. It is believed that he poyſoned King Fedor afterward, to render himſelf abſolute Maſter of the Empire; and though he made a ſhew of refuſing the Royal Dignity, yet he uſed all poſſible means to obtain it by the Election of the Grandees, which he accompliſhed: But his Reign was diſturbed by the Impoſture of Griska, who appeared under the Name of Demetrius, and obtained the Protection of the Vaivod of Sandomiria, whom he perſuaded that the Murtherer ſent by Boris, had killed a young Lad who reſembled him, and was on purpoſe put in his Room by his Friends, whilſt he made his Eſcape. This Vaivod raiſed an Army, entred Moſcovia, and declared War againſt the Great Duke. At firſt he took ſeveral Cities, and drew into his Party ſeveral of the Officers of Boris, who died for Grief in 1605. The Knez and the Bojares did immediately Crown Fedor Boriſſovitz, Son to Boris, who was as yet very young; but afterwards conſidering the Succeſs of the Arms of Counterfeit Demetrius, they took a Reſolution to acknowledge him for their Prince, and having perſuaded the People accordingly, they ran haſtily to the Caſtle, where they made the young Duke and his Mother Priſoners; and in the mean time they ſent to pray Demetrius to come and take poſſeſſion of his Kingdom, who immediately commanded a Deak, or Secretary, to go and Strangle the Mother and the Son, and to give out that they were Poyſoned; which was performed June the 10th 1605. See Demetrius. Olearius's Voyage to Muſcovy.

BORISTHENES, Dnieper, or Nieper, a River of Poland, which has its Source in Moſcovia. As it enters into Lithuania, it waters Smolensko, Orſa, Sklon, Mohilou, Rohaczou, &c. Thence it comes into Volhinia, where upon its Banks are Czernobel, Kiou, Circaſſi, &c. It runs alſo through a Corner of Ukrania, near Trethimirow, which was the firſt Town given to the Coſſacks by King Stephen Bathori. Then come the Shelves of the Boriſthenes or Porohi, the ſafeſt Retreat of the Coſſacks. Porohi is a Ruſſian Term, which ſignifies a Stone of a Rock. This River, for 50 Leagues from its Fall into the Black-Sea, is travers'd with Rocks, which raiſe a kind of Bank in the midſt of its Channel, and renders it unfit for Navigation. There are ſome of theſe Rocks which are even with the Water, others that are ſix, eight, or ten Foot above it, and from this inequality, are formed ſeveral Caſcades or Water-falls, which the Coſſacks paſs in ſmall Boats with a great deal of danger. There are Thirteen of theſe Water-falls or Cataracts, ſome whereof are higher than others. There are alſo many Iſles on the other ſide of Porohis of the Boriſthenes: There is one amongſt others, to be ſeen below the River called Czertomelik, encompaſſed with above 10000 more, whereof many are Marſhy, and covered all over with Reeds, which hinders one from diſcerning the Channels that ſeparate them. In theſe Places alſo the Coſſacks make their Retreat, which they call their Skarbnica Woiskowa, that is, The Treaſure of the Army, becauſe there they keep all the Booty they make in their Incurſions upon the Black-Sea. In the mean while, beſides the River of Czertomelik, the Boriſthenes receiveth a great number of others, as Bereſine, Przipiecz, Soſa, &c. and being extreamly increaſed, it diſcharges it ſelf into the Black-Sea near the Town of Ocziacou belonging to the Turks, who endeavoured to become Maſters of the Mouth of the Boriſthenes for the Security of Conſtantinople, and the Towns that are upon the ſame Black-Sea. This River is formed of Two principal Rivers, almoſt equal in Breadth and ſtrength of Current; the Nieper is one, and the Prepice or Pripece the other; and becauſe the latter has its Source farther towards the South, and the other towards the North, the Nieper is eſteemed to be the moſt Northern Boriſthenes, and the Pripece the moſt Southern Boriſthenes of Ptolemy. This Nieper has its Source in Moſcovia, not far from Moſco. The Nieper, after having received the Berezine, croſſeth the Country at Rzecnica, and receives the Prepice, which has its Source in Black Ruſſia in Poland, upon the Borders of the Upper Volhinia and Poleſia, where it waters Pinsk, Mazi in Lithuania, Czernobel in Volhinia, and a little lower is loſt in the Nieper. This is next to Iſter or the Danube, the greateſt River of Scythia. It is Navigable for 600 furlongs, and towards its Mouth, are found great quantities of Natural, or Bay-Salt, and huge Whales without Fins.

BORMIO, or Vormes, a ſmall Town in the Country of the Grisons, with the Title of a County, upon the River Adde, near the Valtoline, and Capital of all the Boroughs of this County.

BORNEO, a very great Iſland in the Indian Sea, and the Chiefeſt of the Iſlands of the Sond. It is ſituated betwixt the Iſles of Celebees Eaſtward, Java Southward, Sumatra Weſtward, with India and the Philippine Iſlands Northward. It's round in Form, and about 1600 Miles in Circuit, according to ſome, and but 1400 according to others, at moſt. Here the Air is very hot, becauſe it lies under the Equinoctial Line. It contains ſeveral Kingdoms, the moſt renouned of which is that of Bornea, whoſe Capital, of the ſame Name, is built in a Marſh upon Piles, as the City of Venice, and they go from one Street to another in Boats. It has a large and commodious Haven, but the Air is unwholſome. The King is a Mahometan, as moſt of the People who dwell on the Coaſts; but thoſe who live far up in the Country are Pagans and Idolaters. They are Cloathed much like the other Indians, having a Linen Cloth about their Reins, and a little Turban on their Head. The beſt Camphir of all the Indies comes from Bornea. Here is Gold alſo to be found, and Bezoar, which is a Stone formed in the Stomach of a Sheep or He-goat, about a bit of Straw which ſtayeth in the Stomach, and is often found in the Stone. The Perſians call theſe Beaſts Bazans, and the Stone Bazar, whence we have the ſaid Bezoar. Here are alſo Diamonds, a great quantity of Pepper, Frankincenſe, and other Gums. The Country is reaſonably fruitful, as to Corn and Cattel: The Inhabitants go naked in Summer, and in Winter wear Skins of Beaſts. The King has 3000 Horſes, and a vaſt Number of Foot under his Command; his Revenue is the Tenth Part of the Subjects Corn; he has Horſes ſent him from Barbary, for which he exchangeth Slaves.

BORNERUS (Gaſper) a German, born in a Village of Miſnia, lived in the Fifteenth Age. He taught, during Eighteen years, at Leipſick, and died in the beginning of May 1574. He was a Man of great Probity, Mild, Honeſt, and Learned in all manner of Literature, but chiefly in Divinity and Mathematicks. We have divers Works of his, as Analogia: De ſtellis. Indices in Ptolemai Geographiam, &c.

BORNHEIM, a Borough of the Low-Countries, in the County of Flanders, with a Caſtle. This Borough hath under it ſeveral Villages, and the Country where it is ſituated, is called the Country of Bornheim or Borhem, betwixt the Scheld and Aloſt. Bornheim, Bendermonde, and Montgerard, with their Territories, are the proper Demeſne of the Earldom of Flanders.

BORNHOLM, an Iſle of Denmark, upon the Baltick Sea, near Schonen, with ſome ſmall Towns, which have often ſuffered by the Arms of the Swedes. This Iſland was yielded to them in 1658. by the Peace of Roſchild; but ſince that time, the Danes have parted with ſeveral Lands in Schonen to redeem it.

BORNO, a City and Kingdom of Africk in Nigritia, with a Deſart and a Lake of that Name. It is the Country of the ancient Garamantes. It's ſaid that the People of this Country do live in Common, and that Men do acknowledge for their Children thoſe who are like unto them. The Lake of Borno is famous, becauſe the Niger goes through it. The Kingdom of Borno has Nubia on the Eaſt, Berdoa and Gaoga on the North, Gangara on the Weſt, and the Niger on the South. The Inhabitants of this Iſland are ſo Curious to have a Lawful Heir upon the Throne, that the Husband not being certain the Children which he has by his Wife are his own, but ſhe certain that they are hers, therefore they rather chooſe to be Governed by a Woman, to whom they give the Title of Queen; her Husband being only her Subject, and having no Power, but what ſhe permits him. Taver. Part. 2. Pag. 140. In this Iſland there is a River called Succadan, in the Sand of which are found Diamonds, but the Queen will not ſuffer them to be exported. There is a certain Bird found in this Iſland, which the Portugueze call the Sparrow of the Sun, having the moſt beautiful Feathers of any Bird in the World; they are never found alive, and according to Fame, they never fly but in the Sun-ſhine, whence they are called Birds of the Sun. They have no Feet, and conſiſt moſt part of a Tail, with a little Head and Belly; they are very rare, and extreme Dear. Baud.

BOROUGH-BRIDGE, a well built Market, and Borough Town, in the Weſt Riding in Yorkſhire, ſituate on the River Yore, over which it hath a large, fair Stone Bridge; it's 204 miles from London, a great thorough-Fare in the Northern Road, noted for the Devil's Bolts, of which in their own Place.

BORRA, a Spaniſh Buffoon, who applied himſelf chiefly to jear at Learned Men, and to reproach them with their Poverty. He was beloved of ſeveral Kings, who beſtowed many rich Preſents upon him, and particularly the Emperor Sigiſmund gave him once ſo much Money at a Feaſt, that he could not carry it. He lived Ninety years, having laid up about an Hundred thouſand Crowns. It's ſaid, that being preſent at the Death of Martin, King of Aragon and Sicily, at Barcelona, in 1410. he perceived a little Shadow which roſe from the Middle of the Belly, moving towards the Head, and vaniſhed near the Throat, juſt when this King expired; but it is look'd upon as the Story of a Jeſter, and made for Diverſion. Valla Hiſt.

BORRELISTES. M. Stoup in his Treatiſe of the Religion of the Hollanders, ſpeaks of this Sect, whoſe Chief was Adam Boreel of Zealand, who had ſome underſtanding in the Hebrew, Greek, and Latin Tongues. The Borreliſtes, ſaith Mr. Stoup, entertain for the moſt part the Opinions of the Mennonites, though they never frequent their Aſſemblies: They are of a very ſevere Life, imploying part of their Means to give Alms, and acquitting themſelves in many things as good Chriſtians. But then they have an Averſion to all Churches, the uſe of Sacraments, Publick Prayers, and all other External Acts of Worſhip. They aſſert, That all the Chriſtian Churches ſince the death of the Apoſtles, and their firſt Succeſſors, have degenerated from the purer Doctrine, becauſe they have ſuffered the Word of God, which is Infallible, to be expounded, or rather corrupted by Doctors who are not Infallible, and yet would make their Confeſſions, Catechiſms, Liturgies, and Sermons to paſs for what they are not.

BORRHAUS, (Martin) known by the Name of Cellaris, was born at Stutgard in the Dutchy of Wirtemberg in 1499. He became one of the moſt famous Divines amongſt the Proteſtants, and learned the Hebrew, Syriack, and Chaldean Tongues. He taught Rhetorick, Philoſophy, and Divinity at Baſle, where he died of the Plague, Oct. 11. 1564. He has compoſed divers Works, as De Cenſura veri & falſi. Annotationes in Politica Ariſtotelis, Mathematica. Commentaries upon the Pentateuch, Joſhua, Judges, Kings, Job, &c.

BORROMEA, (Bianchа) a Damſel of Padua, illuſtrious for her Learning and Virtue. She had a perfect Knowledge of Sciences, and Foreign Tongues, which procured her the Eſteem of all the Learned of her time, who came to ſee her at Padua, where ſhe taught with applauſe. She died in 1557.

BORROMEUS, (Frederick) Cardinal, Archbiſhop of Milan, Brother to Charles Borromee. In 1609 he celebrated the Seventh Council of Milan. He was the Founder of the Ambroſian Library in this City, which Anthony Olgiati, to whom he committed the care thereof, enriched with Nine thouſand Manuſcripts, and at one time there were added 70 Packs of Books which were ſaved from the Shipwreck of the Library of Vincent Pinelli. Cardinal Borromee died in 1632. We have ſeveral Works of his. Sacra Colloquia. Principum Favor. Divinæ Laudes. Sermones Synodales. De Epiſcopo concionante. Meditamenta literaria. De Chriſtianæ mentis jucunditate, &c.

BORROMEUS, (Charles) Cardinal and Archbiſhop of Milan, born in the year 1538. and Son to Count Gilbert Borromeus, and Margaret de Medicis, Siſter to Pope Pius IV. He held Six Provincial Councils, and Eleven Synods, provided very well for the Government of his Province, and was a very Regular and Exemplary Prelate. He died in the Forty ſeventh year of his Age, and was Canoniz'd by Pope Paul V. in 1610. See Giuſſano Godeau, and Ripa Montius, who wrote his Life.

BORSHOLDER, a Name which was anciently given in England to the Dean or Head of a certain Society called Decuria, becauſe it conſiſted of Ten Men, who obliged themſelves for one another, and then one for all to anſwer what ſhould be done amiſs by any of the Aſſociates; ſo that if one of them ſhould run away, the reſt were obliged to bring him back in 30 days, or to ſatisfie for him, according to the Nature of his Crime. King Alfred, who lived about 880. divided England into Counties, the Counties into Hundreds, and thoſe into Decuries or Tithings of Ten conſiderable Citizens, whoſe Dean was called Borſholder, or Tithingman, that is, principal Surety. See Henry Spelman, Gloſſ. Archaeol. where he tells us, that Alfred by this Laudable Conſtitution endeavoured to keep his Subjects in order, and to ſtop the career of ill diſpoſed Perſons.

BORSIPPA, a Town of Babylonia, formerly conſecrated to Apollo and Diana. It is noted for a great Woollen Manufactury, and the vaſt Multitude of Batts which they pickle for eating. Strabo.

BORSIUS, Prince of Ferrara, in Italy, uſurped the Principality from his Brother Hercules, to whom it belong'd. But he would not Marry, fearing that the Love of his Children might prevent his deſign to reſtore it. He died in 1466.

BORYSTHENES, the River: See Boriſthenes.

BORYSTHENES, the Emperor Adrian's Horſe remembred in Hiſtory, becauſe this Emperor built him a Sepulcher, with an Epitaph of his own compoſing. Salmaſ. in Æl. Spart.

BORZIVOGE, or Boriveri I. King or Duke of Bohemia, Son to Noſtrice or Heſtivite, whom he ſucceeded in 856. He was fortunate enough in ſome of his Wars; but happier in this, that he was the firſt Duke of Bohemia who received Baptiſm, June 23. 894. in the 60 or 65 of his Age. After this he was baniſhed, and then recall'd by his Subjects; but at laſt he abdicated the Government in favour of his Son Spitigne or Zpitizvene, and retired into a Wilderneſs to follow his Devotions, and died a little after. Dubr. Hiſt. Bohem.

BORZIVOGE, or Boriveri II. was eſtabliſhed King of Bohemia at Ratisbonne, by the Emperor Henry IV. in 1100. after the Death of Bretiſlaus II. who was murder'd on the 22d of December that ſame Year. The States of the Kingdom not having elected him, would not acknowledge his Authority, ſo that he was driven from his Throne, and re-eſtabliſhed three ſeveral times. So that finding it impoſſible to maintain himſelf on the Throne, and againſt the Ambuſhes which were continually laid for him, he was forced to withdraw into Germany, May 14. 1107. Dubrav. Hiſt. Bohem.

BOSA, Boſi, and Boſſa, a Town in the Iſle of Sardinia. with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Tore, whoſe See is at Savari. It is ſituated on the Weſtern Coaſt, at the Mouth of a ſmall River betwixt Ariſtan and Oriſtagni on the South, and Saſſari on the North: it is an ancient Town, and mentioned by Ptolemy and Pliny.

BOSCAGER, (John) a famous Lawyer, much Honoured by the Univerſity of Paris, was born at Beziers, Aug. 13. 1601. He came very young to Paris, where his Uncle the Learned Forret was a famous Profeſſor of the Law, in which Employment he ſucceeded after his Death. The Method in which Boſcager taught was very Particular: He had reduced the whole Law to certain Principles or Definitions, whence he drew Conſequences, which comprehended all that could he ſaid on each Matter. But he never thought of Printing any thing, till he was not in a Condition to do it. He had alſo compoſed ſeveral Treatiſes in Latin, which he turned into French at the ſollicitation of the late Mr. Colbert, and they were ſince publiſhed by the Title of Inſtitutions of the French and Roman Law. This 'tis ſaid was done without his conſent, nor are the Remarks upon them of his Compoſure. He died Septemb. 15. 1687. Aged 87.

BOSCOBEL, a Wood which ſerved for a Retreat to King Charles II. of Great Britain, after the Battel of Worceſter, September 1651. thought to have been named Boſcobel becauſe of its Beauty. There are two Houſes in the midſt of this Wood, the one whereof is alſo called Boſcobel, and the other White-Ladies, becauſe it was in times paſt a Convent for Nuns cloathed in White. The ſaid King being obliged to ſave himſelf in this Place, remained there ſeveral days, retiring at Night to the Houſe, and hiding himſelf by day in a thick Oak, which is look'd upon as a Prodigy, becauſe it is ſo large and thick of Boughs, that 20 Men may eaſily hide themſelves in its high Branches; and ſince this famous Accident, it has been called the Royal-Oak.

BOSIUS, (Anthony) of Milan, a Lawyer, and Agent of the Order of Malta Having quitted it, he reſolved to apply himſelf to ſome great Deſign which might acquire him Reputation, and ſo undertook the Work of Roma Sotterranea, at which he laboured from 1567, till about 1600. and deſcended often into the Catacombs, where he would paſs ſome times five or ſix Days without interruption, yet he had not the ſatisfaction to ſee this Work perfected, but after his Death John Severani, Prieſt of the Oratory of Rome, augmented and publiſhed it in 1632. and Paul Aringhi, another of that Society, Tranſlated it into Latin, and Printed it in 1651.

BOSIUS, (James) of Milan, Uncle to Anthony, was a Knight, Servant of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, and their Agent at Rome, wherein he acquitted himſelf with much reputation, and wrote their Hiſtory, which we have in three Parts: He wrote alſo the Hiſtory of the Holy-Croſs.

BOSKENA, a ſmall Place of Pentwith Hundred in the Weſt Parts of Cornwall, near the Sea-ſide, upon the South-weſt of whoſe Promontory is a Trophy erected, which are 18 Stones placed round, and pitch'd 12 Foot from each other, with another in the Center far bigger than the reſt, which ſeems to be a Monument of ſome great Victory obtain'd either by the Romans, or the Saxon King Ethelſtan.

BOSNIA, or Boſſina, a Province of Europe, formerly a Kingdom. It is ſituated betwixt the Rivers of Unna, Save, and Drina, and took its Name from the River Boſna. It has Servia on the Eaſt, Dalmatia on the South, Croatia on the Weſt, and Sclavonia on the North. The principal City of this Kingdom was in times paſt Jaiza, then Warboſaum, and now Sari, which is alſo named Boſna. This Country was anciently part of Pannonia, conquered ſince by the Goths, and at laſt by the Sclavonians, who becoming Tributaries and Subjects to the Hungarians, Boſnia had the ſame Fate. It conſiſted then only of one Province, which hath ſince had Princes of its own. Mahomet II. ſeized it in 1463. and flea'd Stephen the laſt King of Boſnia. Cluvier, Chalcondylas. In 1688. at the ſame time that the Duke of Bavaria marched to the Siege of Belgrade, Prince Lewis of Baden went with a ſtrong Detachment of Germans and Hungarians to the Conqueſt of Boſnia. The Croatians having Order to join with him, the 14th of Auguſt his Army paſſed the River Unna, though the Baſſa oppoſed him with 15000 Men, after which he took Caſtanovitza, which is a Caſtle of 3 ſtrong Towers, and a Wall according to the ancient way of Fortification, and ſeated on the Unna between Croatia and Boſnia, which yielded without Reſiſtance. The 15th the Army went towards Gradiſca, which was ſet on fire and deſerted, as was alſo Debitza and Jaſſenowitz, and 3000 Turks were intercepted and cut off near the former. The 25th he marched towards Brod (the Croats being ſent home) in order to reinforce the Siege of Belgrade, but finding the Baſſa had ſtill a conſiderable Body of Men in the Field, he reſolved to diſperſe them before he went. The Baſſa lay then at Terwent, five Hungarian miles from Brod, and the 4th of September he marched towards the Baſſa in the Night with a Body of 3000 German Horſe, without any Foot; the 5th by break of Day they fell upon the Enemies Camp 15000 ſtrong, and defeated their Horſe, and of 7000 Foot, which could not ſo well ſhift, 5000 were ſlain, and 2000 taken, with the loſs of 150 of his Men, upon which Bagnaluca the laſt Town yielded to him, and ſince that the Germans are become Maſters of all the other Places, and have re-conquered the whole Province from the Turks.

BOSON, or Bozon, King of Arles, Provence, and Burgundy, Cisjurana, was Son to Buves or Buvon, Earl of Ardenne, and to a Daughter of Thietberges, Wife to Lotharius II King of Lorrain, whom he Divorced in 857. to eſpouſe Valdrade. King Charles the Bald who had been in Love with Richilda, Siſter to Boſon, eſpouſed her in 870. after the Death of Hermentruda his firſt Wife; and for her ſake did great kindneſſes for the Prince her Brother, gave him the Government of Burgundy, made him Duke of Aquitain, and Grand Maſter of the Door-Keepers. Pope John VIII. adopted him for his Son; or, as Cardinal Baronius expounds it, made him Temporal Governor of Italy; and in this Quality he aſſiſted at the Council of Pavia in 876. Afterwards he accompanied this Pope in his Journey to France, in 878. that ſame Year he Married Hermengarda, ſole Daughter to Lewis II. King of Italy and Provence, and would fain have invaded the Crown of France, after the death of Lewis the Liſper, in 879. but this Deſign ſucceeded not; yet being always animated by his Wife to make himſelf King, he cauſed himſelf to be Crowned Sovereign of Burgundy and Arles, in a Council held at the Caſtle of Mantaille in Dauphine, Octob. 15. 879. Lewis and Carloman who had divided the Kingdom, made War with him, carried and almoſt ruined Vienne in 882. where Boſon's Wife and Daughter were made Priſoners. This Prince however did not loſe his Courage, but managing his Friends and Subjects dexterouſly, recovered his Eſteem and Intereſt; ſo that in a little time he appeared as powerful as ever: And the death of King Carloman in 884 reſtored Boſon to his firſt Dignity; and the French being over-run by a Deluge of Barbarous People, they were not in a way to oppoſe the Proſperity of this Prince, who could not deſire a fitter time to recover from his fall. So that Charles the Corpulent yielded him the Lands, which he had erected into a Kingdom, and was ſatisfied with the Homage which Boſon render'd him in 885. After which he lived in great Tranquility, and died January 11. 888. Du Cheſne, Du Puy, &c.

BOSPHORUS Cimmerianus, or Streight of Caffa; it is this famous Streight which makes the Communication of Pontus Euxinus, or the Black-Sea, with the Palus Mæotis. It is alſo named Streight of Caffa, becauſe the Town of this Name, which is in the Taurica Cherſoneſus, or Little Tartary, is built in the Peninſula form'd by theſe two Seas, known alſo by the Name of Mare Majora, or Sea of Zabache and Tana. The Cimmerian Boſphorus is alſo called the Streight of Kerci, from a ſmall Town of that Name in Little Tartary. Boſphorus or Boſporus, was an antient, but now ruined City, which gave its Name to this Streight, and to the People called Boſphori, of whom Strabo, Pliny, Stephanus, Polybius, &c. have made mention.

BOSPHORUS of Thracia, or the Streights of Conſtantinople, and Chanel of the Black Sea, is the Streight which is betwixt Thracia and Aſia Minor, or betwixt the Black Sea, and the Propontis, or Sea of Marmora, where are Gallipoli, the Caſtles of the Dardanelles, and the Towers of the Black Sea at the Mouth of the Boſphorus. It is called the Chanel of Conſtantinople, becauſe this City is built upon it; and this Chanel is ſo narrow, that from ſome Places of the City the Cocks may be heard when they Crow upon the Aſian Shore, which is on the other ſide. The Seven Towers are a Fortreſs where the Priſoners of State are kept.

BOSRA, or Boſtra, a Town of Aſia in Arabia Petræa, call'd at preſent, Boſſeret, or Boſſereth; was formerly an Archbiſhop's See, firſt under the Patriarch of Antioch, and afterwards under him of Jeruſalem. The Council held againſt Berillus ſat in this Town. The Emperor Marcus Julius Philippus, who ſucceeded Gordian in the Year 244. was born at Boſtra; and, as Zonaras reports, order'd it to be call'd Philippopolis. Strabo mentions another Town, called Boſtra, in Phœnicia. Stephanus de Urbibus. *Strabo Lib.*16. Adrichomius, pag. 80, &c.

BOSSIO, or Boſſius, (Matthew) of Verona, was Canon, and afterwards Abbot of the Order of St. Auguſtin, and lived towards the end of the 15th Century. He publiſhed ſeveral valuable Pieces, the Principal of which, are, De Animi Gaudiis. De Sapientiæ Cultu. Epiſtolæ de Gerendo Magiſtratu, &c. Geſner. *Bibl. Miræus de Script. Sæc:*16. &c.

BOSTON, a Market, Sea-Port, and Borough Town in the S.E. parts of Lincolnſhire; it belongs to Skirbeck Wapentake in Holland Diviſion, and is ſeated on the River Witham, within five miles of its fall into the Sea. This is one of the moſt conſiderable Towns in the whole County, Rich, and Populous, well Traded, and reſorted to. It has a fair high wooden Bridge, is governed by a Mayor, Aldermen, Recorder, &c. The Tower of it's fair and large Church, is thought to be one of the beſt built in the World; it ſerves as a Lanthorn to Sailors; it's 114 Miles from London.

BOSTON, the Metropolis of New-England in the Northern America, is commodiouſly ſeated for Traffick on the Sea-ſhore, called Boſton, with reference to as noted a Sea-Port in Lincolnſhire. 'Tis a large and ſpacious Town, compoſed of ſeveral well order'd Streets, grac'd with fair and beautiful Houſes, and well inhabited by Merchants and Tradeſmen, who drive a conſiderable Commerce in ſuch Commodities as that Country affords with other Parts of America, as alſo with England and Ireland, taking by way of Exchange ſuch Commodities as each Place affordeth that are to their purpoſe. 'Tis likewiſe a Place of good ſtrength, having Fortifications on two or three adjoining Hills, with great Pieces of Cannon mounted thereon, and a ſuitable Garriſon.

BOSWORTH, a Market Town of Sparkenhoe Hundred in the Weſt of Leiceſterſhire, ſeated upon a Hill in a fertile Soil, memorable chiefly for the great Battel fought near it at *Redmore Aug.*22. 1485. betwixt King Richard III. and Henry Earl of Rickmond, wherein Richard being ſlain, the Crown returned in the Perſon of Henry from the Houſe of York to the Houſe of Lancaſter. This Town is of ſome Note beſides, for giving the Title of Baron to James Fitz-James the preſent Duke of Berwick. It's 83 Miles from London.

BOTAL, (Leonard) born in the County of Aſt, in Piedmont; was Phyſician to King Henry III. and brought in the frequent Uſe of Letting Blood, into Paris. He was a Perſon very much eſteem'd in his Profeſſion, and has left ſeveral Tracts, which are ſufficient Proofs of his Skill in Phyſick and Chirurgery. Vander Linden de Script. Medic.

BOTEON, (John of) in Latin Buteo, was a Monk of the Order of St. Anthony of Viennois, and one of the greateſt Perſons of the laſt Age. He was born in Dauphiné, where he entred into the Abby of St. Anthony. He received the firſt Tinctures of Mathematicks from Oronce Fine, whom he ſurpaſſed in ſome things. De Boteon underſtood alſo the Law, and was very ſkilful in making all ſorts of Mathematical and Muſical Inſtruments. He invented ſeveral things, which before his time never entred the thought of any. He perfected things which were already invented, and in every thing ſhewed ſo much Art and Exactneſs that nothing could be added. His deſert procured him the eſteem of the Learned of his time, and he died at St. Anthony, in 1560. He writ, De Quadraturis circulorum tam antiquis quam modernis. De Libra & Statera. De arca Noë, cujus formæ & capacitatis fuerat. De ſublicio Ponte Cæſaris. Explanatio ad Quinctiliani locum Geometricum. Emendatio figurationis organi à Columella deſcripti. De fluviaticis Inſulis ſecundum Jus Civile dividendis, &c. Thuanus, Voſſius.

BOTERICUS, Governor of Theſſalonica, a City of Macedonia, who having been killed there, was the Occaſion of the Murther of 7000 Men, whom the Emperor Theodoſius ſacrificed in revenge, *An.*390. Sozomen.

BOTERUS (John) liv'd to the Year 1598. and wrote ſeveral Pieces; amongſt others, that call'd, his Univerſal Relations, is the moſt conſiderable: It is written in Italian; and Renatus de Lucinge, in his Treatiſe of the Manner of Reading Hiſtory, gives a great Character of it, both for the Beauty of the Stile, and the Care and Integrity of the Author.

BOTHNIA, a Province of Sweden, betwixt Lapland and the moſt Northerly part of the Baltick, known by the Name of the Gulf of Bothnia, and formerly Dumaſhaff. This Province is commonly divided into three Parts, Eaſtern, Weſtern, and Northern. Torn is its Capital City.

BOTLESHAM (Nicholas) a Carmelite Engliſh Monk, living in the 15th Century. He was call'd Botleſham, upon the Account of his being born in a Village of that Name, in Cambridgeſhire. This Nicholas commenc'd Doctor of Divinity at Paris, and wrote ſeveral Pieces, as Quæſtiones Theologicæ in Magiſtrum Sententiarum. Tabulare Studentium, &c. Lucius Bibl. Carmel. Pitſæus de Script. Angl.

BOTTANTI, a certain People who border on the Kingdom of Laor, near the River Indus; they are very much inclined to Pious Works, eſpecially thoſe of Mercy towards the Indigent; They are of a fair Complexion, and wear a Turkiſh Veſt, ſo well adapted to their Bodies, that no wrinkles are to be ſeen in it; they never put it off, no not when aſleep, till ſuch time as it is wore to pieces. They never waſh their Hands, alledging, That ſuch a pure Element as Water, ought not to be defil'd. They have no King, but live in great Liberty. They are in Features much like the Europeans, their Hair is generally flag and yellow; They are of a middle Stature, and very Robuſt; their Diſhes, Platters, and Cups are the Skulls of Dead Men. Hoffm.

BOTTIFANGA, (Julius Cæſar) a Knight of the Order of the Militia of Chriſt in Portugal, who lived in the beginning of this Age, under the Pontificate of Paul V. He was Native of Orvieto, and one of the moſt Ingenious Men in the World; he could not only play upon all Inſtruments of Muſick, but make 'em alſo; he Painted and Embroidered extreamly well; nor was there any Art or Profeſſion but what he could exerciſe, though he had never learned them. His Genius was his Maſter, and he Learn'd of no body but his own Ingenuity. He did moreover write extreamly well in Proſe and Verſe; he compoſed a Poem of Orvieto, and ſome other very ingenious Treatiſes. Pinac. Imag. Illuſtr.

BOTWAR, a Town of Germany, in the Circle of Suabia and Dutchy of Wirtemberg, it ſtands 14 Miles South of Hailbrun, and 21 N.E. of Stugard.

BOUCANIERS, People of the Caribby Iſlands, between the Southern and Northern America; ſo called, becauſe they live upon Humane Fleſh, Roſted or Grilled. Boucaner in their Language, ſignifying to Roaſt or Smoke. The Name of Boucaniers is likewiſe now given to thoſe People that Hunt in theſe Iſlands, and eat Roaſt-Beef. The Spaniards call them Matadores de Toros, and the Engliſh, Cow-Killers. Theſe Boucaniers make Hunting their Buſineſs; ſometimes Cows, and ſometimes Boars, are their Game. The Spaniſh Boucaniers Hunt differently from the French; they never make uſe of any Fire-Arms, but Lances; they ſend out their Servants in queſt of the Bulls, and when they have found one, they run him into a Meadow, where the Boucanier ſtands Mounted, and prepared, and upon the ſight of the Bull, rides up to him, gives him a Cut in the Leg, and then kills him with his Lance: This way of Hunting is ſo full of Humour and Ceremonies, that 'tis almoſt as Pleaſant to ſee, as a Royal Bull-Combat at Madrid. Oëxmelin. Hiſt. des Ind. Occid.

BOUCHAIN, Lat. Bochonium and Buceinium, a Town of Hainault in the Low-Countreys, ſituated upon the left Bank of the Scheld, with a very good Caſtle, betwixt Valenciennes and Cambray. It is a ſmall Town, but well fortified, and Capital of the County of Oſtervand, which in times paſt belonged immediately to the Eldeſt Sons of the Earls of Hainault. Bouchain belongs now to the French, who took it 1676. Jacobus Leſſabæus. Bouchain is 10 miles S W. of Valenciennes, and 28 W. of Mons.

BOUCHARD, Conſtable, or Comes Stabuli of France in the Reign of Charlemain, on divers occaſions gave ſignal Proofs of his Conduct and Valour, eſpecially when he defeated the Sarazens at Sea, An. 806. Mezerai.

BOUCICAUT, or John le Maingre, called Boucicaut II. of the Name, Count of Beaufort, and Viſcount of Turenne, Marſhal of France, eldeſt Son to Boucicaut I. His Name is famous in the French Hiſtories; for he begun to carry Arms at the Age of Ten; and King Charles V. was raviſh'd with his Virtue. He accompanied Charles VI. into Flanders, with whom he had been Educated as Page of Honour, and fought near his Perſon at the Battel of Roſebec, in 1382. At the Battel of Nicopolis, in 1396. Boucicaut was taken; but his Beauty ſaved him from Death, amongſt 600 more, whom Bajazet cauſed to be cut in pieces. He was afterwards Ranſom'd. The King ſent him in 1399. to the Succour of the Emperor of Conſtantinople, where with 1200 Men he forced the Turks to raiſe the Siege, and gave ſo many Marks of his Valour in the Eaſt, and in Italy, that the Venetians became jealous of his Glory, whilſt his very Enemies were his Admirers. He was eſtabliſhed Governor of Genoa, where he made his Entrance in 1401. and brought the City of Famaguſta under their Obedience. At his return from an Expedition againſt the Infidels, he was defeated by the Venetians in 1403. and afterwards in 1409. being gone to the aſſiſtance of the Duke of Milan againſt thoſe of Verona, the Genoeſe improving the abſence of this Mareſchal, killed Hugh Cholet his Lieutenant, and ſubmitted themſelves to Theodorus Palæologus, Marquis of Montferrat. Boucicaut having attempted, but in vain, to re-eſtabliſh himſelf, retired to France, where he embraced the Party of the Duke of Burgundy. In 1415. he lead the Vantguard of the Battel of Azincourt, where he was made Priſoner, and being carried into England, died there in 1421.

BOUDICEA, a Hardy and Enterprizing Queen of the Iceni in Great Britain: She was Preſutugus's Widow, which Prince being very Rich and Potent, when he perceiv'd himſelf likely to die, made the Emperor Nero his Heir. He pitch'd upon this Expedient, in hopes of protecting his Family the better, from being inſulted by the Romans, but was perfectly miſtaken in his Proviſion, for his Eyes were no ſooner clos'd, but the Romans plunder'd his Palace, outrag'd his Queen, and abuſed his two Daughters almoſt in her preſence. This Princeſs, having juſt reaſon of Provocation for ſuch Uſage, rais'd the Country to the number of 120000 Men; and after having harangu'd them; with a great deal of Spirit led them on to the Charge. The beginning of the Battel was fortunate enough, upon the account of Paulinus Suetonius, the Emperor's General, being abſent; but the Romans being re-inforced by his Return and Conduct, the Britains being raw and ill-arm'd, were entirely defeated, and 80000 kill'd upon the Spot. Boudicea deſpairing to recover this Loſs, poiſon'd her ſelf. Tacitus Annal. 14. C. 31, 37, &c.

BOUET, (Charles) Lord of La Noüe, deſcended from the Boüets of Touraine. He became conſiderable for his inviolable Fidelity to the Crown of France during the League, and was one of thoſe who opened the Gates of Tours to King Henry III. after the Parliament of Blois, upon which his Majeſty made him one of the Sheriffs of that City, and advanced him to the degree of Nobility. King Henry the Great employed him in conjunction with the Lord de la Valiere, in 1595. to view the Frontier Towns of Picardy, in which he acquitted himſelf very well. He was afterward choſen to be Mayor of the City of Tours, and was alſo named by his Majeſty, with the Earls Schomberg and Rochepot, to mediate a Truce with the Duke of Mercœur, which was the fore-runner of a Peace, which concluded the Civil Wars. But the Lord de la Noüe died of a Strangury during the publick Rejoycing on this Account. Souliers Hiſt. Nobleſſe. Touraine.

BOUFFLERS, a Territory ſituated upon the River of Authie near Heſdin, in the Dioceſe of Amiens in Picardy, which hath given name to one of the moſt ancient and illuſtrious Families of this Province.

BOUFFLERS, (James) Lord of Boufflers, Noële, Sailly, and Caigny, was Son to Peter II. Lord of Boufflers, and Iſabell of Neuveille. He was born about 1436. This ſtrange particular is obſerv'd of him, that he never drank out of any Glaſs, but his Lips ſwell'd, and he felt intolerable pain.

BOUFFLERS, (Lewis) Sirnamed the Strong, Lord of Boufflers, was born in Picardy about 1534. He was the eldeſt Son of Adrian Lord Boufflers, and he was educated with John of Bourbon, Duke of Anguien, Brother to Anthony King of Navarre, Father to Henry the Great, to whom he had the Honour of being related; he was called Strong becauſe of his prodigious Strength, wherein he ſurpaſſed not only all the Lords of his time, but almoſt all the Heroes, whoſe Memory has been preſerved by Antiquity, either for Greatneſs of Courage, Comely Stature, or Natural Vigour. It ſeemed, ſay the Hiſtorians, that Nature had formed him on purpoſe to make him admired and feared by all Men. When he would fix himſelf ſtedfaſtly on his Feet, there was no Man that could move him; when he put the top of his Finger upon his Forehead, none was able to take it thence; neither could any thing be taken from him that he held with his Right Hand; when he ſtretched out his Right Arm, no Man could bend it; and he could break a Horſe-ſhooe in two with his Hand; he would hold an Ox by the Tail, and drag him whither he pleaſed; he would take up a Horſe in his Arms, and carry him very far; for all which he has been compared to Milo the Wreſtler of Crotona: But what was moſt remarkable in him was, that he had no leſs Dexterity than Strength; he overcame all the Wreſtlers of Britany; and when he went a Fowling, he would leap over very large Ditches and Brooks, Booted and Spurr'd; he could kill with a Stone Beaſts running, and Birds flying; he could mount on Horſeback, Armed Cap-a-pee, without putting his Foot in the Stirrup; for 200 ſteps he would out-run the ſwifteſt Spaniſh Horſe; and in a word, could perform ſo many incredible things, that they would make him paſs for a fabulous Hero, if they were not related by Writers worthy of Credit, as Loiſil, in his Memories of Beauvaiſis, and La Morliere, in his Illuſtrious Houſes. The rare Qualities of this French Hercules made Men hope for great Exploits from him in the Armies; but Death took him off in the Flower of his Age, by a Musket-Bullet at the Attack of Pont Sur Yonne, whither he accompanied the Duke of Anguien; he left three Brethren, from whom are deſcended the three Branches of the Families of Boufflers. Adrian Boufflers ſucceeded him, and ſignaliz'd his Valour on many Occaſions in the Reigns of Henry III. and IV. againſt the Leaguers. He was alſo a Perſon of great Learning, and wrote an Hiſtorical Collection, wherein in imitation of Plutarch he compares the Modern with the Ancient Hiſtorians. He was ſucceeded by his Son Francis, always deputed by the Nobles of his Province to the Meetings of the States, and diſtinguiſh'd himſelf at the Siege of Cazal in 1630. He had two Sons, the Eldeſt called Francis, who died in February 1672. leaving a Son called Henry; and Louis Francis Marquis de Boufflers, Colonel-General of the Dragoons of France, Grand Baily of Beauvais, Lieutenant-General of the King's Armies, and Governor-General of a great many Provinces; He was lately made Mareſchal of France, and is noted for his Valour and Conduct, bearing a great Command in the War againſt the Allies; And to ſpeak the Truth of him, he ſhewed himſelf upon all Occaſions to be an Active and Prudent General in the Courſe of the late War. In 1695. he threw himſelf, with Eight Regiments of the beſt Dragoons, into Namur, juſt as the Confederates were going to lay Siege to it; and during the whole Siege, commanded there with equal Reſolution and Glory; but being at length forced to Surrender, he was (as he marched out at the Head of the Dragoons of the Garriſon) ſeized by the Orders of the King of England, by way of Repriſal, for the Garriſons of Dixmuyde and Deynſe, detained by his Maſter; but treated very Civilly, and offered his Liberty, upon his Parole to return in caſe the Garriſons were not releaſed; but his Anſwer being, That he could not paſs his word of Honour, in a Matter which he could not execute himſelf, &c. he was from Namur conducted to Maeſtricht, and ſoon after ſet at Liberty by his Maſter's Compliance with the Confederates Demands: A little before the Concluſion of the Peace at Ryſwick he had ſeveral interviews with the Earl of Portland by his Maſter's directions, between the Camps, which did not a little haſten and facilitate that great Work.

BOUHIN, or the Iſle of Bouin, an Iſle of France, upon the Ocean, betwixt the Coaſt of Poitou and Britain. It is below the Mouth of the Loire, betwixt the City of Ganache, and the Iſle of Nermourſtier. Boüin is alſo a Borough of France, in the Province of Forez, near the River Lignon, having the great Plain of Forez on the Eaſt towards Feurs upon Loire, and on the Weſt, the Mountains of Auvergne, about Thiers. It is a vety pleaſant Place, and one of the beſt Boroughs of the Country. It ſuffered much in the 16th Century during the Civil Wars.

BOVIGNES, or Bouvines, Bovinæ, &c. Boviniacum, a Town of the Low-Countreys, in the County of Namur. It was environ'd with Walls in 1173. by Henry the Blind, Earl of Namur. After which, the Counteſs Yolande granted it the Rights and Privileges of a City. In 1154. it was taken by the French. Bouvines, ſaith Thuanus, being only defended by the Inhabitants, was beſieged by the King's Troops, and taken by Aſſault, after having been battered by the Cannon; at firſt there was a great Slaughter, ſome were drowned in the River, and thoſe who eſcaped preſent Death, were taken and hanged for their Obſtinacy, becauſe they would not yield, till the Cannon had play'd upon 'em, though they were in no condition to hold out a Siege. This City has ſince recovered. Bouvines is likewiſe the Name of a ſmall Village in Flanders, near Tournay, famous for the Victory which King Philip Auguſtus obtained there, on Sunday the 27th of July, 1214. over the Emperor Otho IV.

and his Confederates, where he took Priſoners Ferrard Earl of Flanders, Renaud Earl of Bologne, &c.

BOUILLE, or De Bovelles, (Charles) Canon of Noyon, flouriſh'd about 1520. La Croix du Main makes him a Mathematician, Philoſopher, Orator, Divine, and Grammarian. He wrote ſeveral Books in French, and Latin, as, The Art and Practice of Geometry. Liber de differentia Linguarum Vulgarium, & Gallici Sermonis Varietate. Six Books, being, An Introduction to Geometry. De Quadratura Circuli; and ſeveral other Pieces in Mathematicks. Voſſius de Mathem. C.16. &c. Du Verdiere. Vauprivas. Bibl. Franc.

BOVINO, a Town of Italy, in the Kingdom of Naples, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Benevent. It is in the Province of Capitanata, ſituated near the River Cervaro, at the Foot of Mount Apennine.

BOULLIAUD, (Iſhmael) Born at Loudun, in 1605. was a celebrated Aſtronomer in the middle of the 17th Century. His Aſtronomia Philolaica, in which he maintains Copernicus's Syſtem, and draws ſeveral Conſequences from it, gave him a great Reputation. He publiſh'd a Book of Claudius Ptolemæus, in Grrek and Latin, Entituled, De Criterio & Facultate Principe, and made Remarks upon it. He wrote ſeveral other Books in Mathematicks and Aſtronomy. Voſſius de Scient. Mathem. The Reader, if he pleaſes, may ſee the Character of this Author in Le Journal des Scavans of 1695. Journal VII.

BOULONOIS, or Boulenois, a Country of France in Picardy, about the City of Bologne upon the Sea. It is hard to mark the Limits of this Country: They extend it commonly along the Coaſt from the Re-conquered Country unto the River Canche, and ſo take in Bownonville, Delvre, Monthulin, Eſtaples, &c. The Boulonois is fertile enough, and has a very good Race of Horſes. Bologne is the Capital City, and gives its Name to the whole.

BOULONOIS, or il Bolognoſe, a ſmall Country about the City of Bononia in Italy. It is fertile in all ſorts of Grains and Fruits.

BOURBON, or the Iſle of Bourbon, formerly called Maſcarenhe, an Iſland of Africa, in the Ethiopick Ocean, now belonging to the French. It is on the Eaſt of the Iſle of St. Lawrence, or Madagaſcar, about 25 Leagues long, and 14 broad. The Portugueſe were formerly Maſters of it. It's ſaid that there is a Mountain which caſts out Fire, but the reſt of the Country is fruitful, well Watered, and hath all the Commodities of the Iſle of Madagaſcar, with the Ports of St. Paul and Aſſumption, where the French inhabit.

BOURBON l'Anci, l'Ancien, or l'Anceaume, a Town and Caſtle of France in Burgundy, with a Bayliwick. The Territory of Bourbon l'Anci is in the Dioceſe of Autun near the Loire, which ſeparates it from the Bourbonnois It is environed on the ſide of Burgundy with fertile Mountains, and ſeveral Coppices. Bourbon is ſituated on a Hill, and built after the modern way, though the Walls are old. The Town is, as it were, the lower Court of the Caſtle, which has a good Ditch digged in the Rock on the ſide toward the City, and very ſtrong Walls, ſo that it could never be taken during the Civil Wars, being defended by the Lord of Ancanze; it hath near it the Boroughs of St. Loger, St. Lazarus, St. Martin, &c. This Place is very famous for its Baths which are under the Caſtle, in the Suburbs of St. Leger. The Waters come out of a Rock, upon which the City is built, and fall into Baſons of Roman Structure. What diſorder ſoever the length of time could cauſe in the Buildings of the Fountains and Baths of this Place, there are as yet fine Remains, which ſhew the Riches of the Matter, and the Ornaments of Roman Architecture. The Baſons are compoſed of great Quarters of white Marble, and their Pavement, as well as that of the Baths, is of Grey Marble. All the Statues that adorned theſe Baths, were alſo of White Marble. The Walls, the Steps, the Niches, and other Works of Architecture, were covered with Tables of Marble of different Colours. The Fragments which remain thereof, ſhew the Magnificence of the Romans, who knowing the Uſefulneſs of theſe Waters, ſpared nothing to beautifie the Place. The French Kings in this Century, have cleared this great Work from the Ruins under which they were buried. Henry III. ſent thither his Head Phyſician, the Comptroller of his Buildings, and his Chief Architect, who wrought at it ſome time. Mr. Beaulieu, Secretary of State, in 1602. and Mr. Deſcures in 1603. under King Henry IV. continued to take up part of the Ruins of theſe Baths: And Mr. Motheau, one of the French King's Phyſicians, and Intendant of the Mineral Waters, in 1680. took care to have a conſiderable Sum laid out upon it, which was finiſhed by the States of Burgundy. Of the Five Baths which are at Bourbon, Three have been digged up of late, and amongſt thoſe Ruins, as well as in thoſe of the Baths, which had been ſearched before, there have been found ſeveral Fragments of Pillars, Corniſhes, Statues and Pavements, after the Moſaick Faſhion, and a great many bits of Jaſper, Porphyry, caſt Copper and Braſs. Here was alſo found an entire Statue, which King Lewis XIV. cauſed to be carried to the Louvre, in the Hall of the Anticks. There have alſo been found divers Medals of Gold, Silver, and caſt Copper, which repreſent the Effigies of Julius Cæſar, Auguſtus, and other Emperors. The Waters of Bourbon l'Anci are no leſs conſiderable for the admirable Virtues which they have from a Mixture of Brimſtone and Bitumen, with ſome little Salt, Niter, Alum, and Vitriol. Theſe Waters are light, without Savour or Smell, and being ſettled, they leave no thick Matter. Though they are actually very hot, yet they do moderate the Heats of the Body, and quench Thirſt in a Trice, better than any cooling Ptiſane. They agree well with the Stomach, ſtrengthen the weakned Sinews, cure Palſies, Sciaticks, Rheumatiſms, Dropſies, and eaſe the Gout, and are alſo a Remedy againſt lingering Poiſons. They have moreover a ſpecifick Virtue againſt the Barrenneſs of Women, as hath been often found by Experience. There are five Baths, and ten Fountains, ſeven of hot Water, and three of cold. The firſt hot Fountain, called Le Limbe, is the moſt conſiderable. It is round, and made after the Form of a Well: Its Source comes out of a craggy Rock of about forty Foot high. The Water is ſo hot, that one cannot drink a Glaſs, but at ſeveral Draughts. The ſecond Fountain has the ſame degree of Heat as the firſt. The third, named of St. Leger, is more temperate, as well as the Fourth and Fifth. The Queen's Fountain (which is the Sixth) is cooler than the two firſt, and hotter than the three others: It is called the Queen's Bath, becauſe it was repaired by the Liberalities of Ludovica of Lorrain, Queen of France, Wife to Henry III. The Seventh is called Deſcures, becauſe of its being diſcovered by a Lord of that Name in 1609. Its Water is a little leſs warm than that of the Queen's Fountain. Theſe ſeven Fountains diſtribute their Waters into the Baths by divers Channels, which warm or temper them according to what degree of Heat is required. The firſt of the three Fountains of cold Water, diſtributes it ſelf into the ſame Baths; but the two others are now hidden under Ground. Theſe ten Fountains are incloſed in a Court of 180 Foot long: Joyning to this Court, on the North ſide, is the Royal Bath, of a round Figure; Afterwards three other Baths, built in a long Square; and on the ſide of the Fifth, called the Poors Bath. All theſe Baths and Fountains are emptied by Pipes of Copper, Lead, and Stone, into a great Aqueduct, where the Mouths of the 53 Pipes diſcharge themſelves, the moſt part of which convey cold Waters. And as this Number of Pipes exceeds that of the Fountains and Baths, it is eaſie to judge that there are more Baths and Fountains under the Ruines. Comier's Letter 1681.

BOURBON l'Archambaud, a Town and Caſtle of France, in Bourbonnois, with the Title of a Dutchy. It is near the River Allier, within four or five Leagues from Moulins, and gives Name to the Province. It had in times paſt the Title of a Barony, and King Charles the Fair, by Letters, Dated at Paris, December the 27th, 1327. erected it into a Dutchy and Peerdom, in favour of Lewis I. called the Great. It's ſaid, that under the firſt Race of the Lords of Bourbon, this Barony having been divided betwixt two Brothers, named Anceaume and Archambaud, they gave their Names to theſe two Cities. Howbeit, that which I now ſpeak of, is in a Valley, environed with four Mountains, and the Caſtle is at the Weſt, upon the top of a Rock, encompaſſed with 24 Towers. The Chapel is very fine. The Glaſs Windows do repreſent the Sacred Hiſtories, ſeveral Actions of the Princes of the Houſe of Bourbon, and their Arms, which are thoſe of France, with the Diſtinction of a Batoon, Peri en Bande. This I remark, becauſe divers Hiſtorians relate a thing which is very particular: Namely, that at the ſame time that King Henry III. who was the laſt King of the Branch of Valois, was murthered, a Thunder-Bolt carried away the Addition of theſe Arms, without touching the reſt of the Coat; which was look'd upon as a Preſage, that the Branch of Valois ſhould yield the Crown to that of Bourbon. This Chapel hath other particular Curioſities; the Princes of Bourbon have founded twelve Canons, and one Treaſurer in it, as at the Holy-Chapel at Paris. There is near to the Caſtle a great Pond, and Baths, which have always been very famous. Du Cheſne, Papier Maſſon.

BOURBON, (Nicholas) a famous Latin Poet, and alſo well skill'd in the Greek and Belles Letters. He was Greek Rhetorick Profeſſor, at the Recommendation of Cardinal Perron. He was put in Priſon, for writing a Latin Satyr againſt an Order of Parliament, called, Indignatio Valeriana. We have a Volume of his Works in Latin: He had ſo great a Memory, that he could repeat almoſt all the Hiſtory of Thuanus, and all the Elogia of Paulus Jovius. He died in the year 1644. Monſieur Balzac and he had ſome Miſunderſtandings, but were at laſt reconciled by Monſieur Chapelaine. Paulus Jovius in Elog. Doct. St. Marthe. In Elog. Doct. Gal. Lib. 1. Peliſſon Hiſt. De l'Academ. Franc. &c.

BOURBONNOIS, a Province of France, having the Loire on the Eaſt, which ſeparates it from the Dutchy of Burgundy; Berry on the Weſt, Auvergne and Forez on the South, and Nivernois on the North, with part of Berry. Moulins is its Capital City; the others are, Bourbon l'Archambaud, which gives its Name to the Province; Montegat, Montlucon, Gannat, Sancoin, St. Amand, Cuſſet, Meris, La Paliſſe, &c. Some Geographers divide Bourbonnois into the Upper and Lower; Moulins is in the latter, and Montegat in the former; and they add thereto the ſmall Country of Combraille, which others aſcribe to the Country of Merche, with its Town of Eſſuaon. The River of Allier goes through Bourbonnois, which has alſo the Cher on the Weſt, on the ſide of Berry, and the Loire on the Eaſt. The Country is fertile in Fruit and Corn, and furniſheth much Cattel, Oil of Nuts, &c. and there are alſo divers kinds of Manufactures made in it. The ancient People of Bourbonnois, who made part of the Bojans, are renowned for the Colónies which they carried into Germany and Italy, under the Reign of Ambiga, Prince of the Berruiers in Gaul, and by the Wars which they maintained againſt the Romans, according to Titus Livius, Polybius, Strabo, Juſtin, and Cæſar, who ſpeaks often of them in his Commentaries. But this Country is ſince become more famous by the Merit of the Lords, who have been Maſters thereof. The firſt had the Title of Barons, and the others are the Princes of the Royal Family of Bourbon, whence is deſcended the preſent King of France. Guichenon, in his Hiſtory of Savoy, is of Opinion, That the ancient Lords of Bourbon were deſcended from Ademar, who founded the Priory of Souvigny in Bourbonnois, in 921. But becauſe it would be too tedious to follow the Genealogy from him, we will deſcend to Archambaud, Lord of Bourbon; who dying in 1249. left but two Daughters, Mahaud and Agnes, who married two Brothers, Sons of Hugh IV. Duke of Burgundy. The firſt had for her Portion the Counties of Nevers, Auxerre, and Tonerre: The ſecond was Lady of Bourbon, and left but one Daughter, named Beatrix, who married Bobert of France, 6th Son to St. Lewis, or the 9th of that Name, and Founder of the third and preſent Race of the Kings of France. Lewis his eldeſt Son ſucceeded, whoſe third Son James, Count of Marche, left John, and he Lewis, Count of Vendoſme, Father of John II. born in 1495. who was ſucceeded by his Son Charles, Duke of Vendoſme, born in 1489. who by Frances of Alençon, Dutcheſs of Beaumont, Widow of Francis Duke of Longueville, left, 1. Margaret, born in 1516. 2. Anthony, Duke of Vendoſme, and King of Navarre, who ſucceeded him. 3. Francis, Count of Enghein; born in 1519. but died without Iſſue. 4. Magdalen, Lady Abbeſs of Poitiers. 5. Katharine, Abbeſs of Soiſſon. 6. Renate. 7. John of Arghien, born in 1528. 8. Lewis Prince of Condé. And, 9. Eleonora, born in 1535. Anthony Duke of Vendoſme ſucceeded, rendred himſelf very famous under Francis I. and Henry II. and after the Death of his Father-in-Law Henry II. King of Navarre, whoſe only Daughter, Joan of Albret, he had married, he poſſeſſed himſelf of what he could of that Kingdom, and of the Principality of Bearn. He was much perſecuted by the Guiſes; died in 1562. and left Katharine, married to Henry Duke of Lorrain in 1509. and Henry IV. Sirnamed the Great, born in 1553. for whoſe great Actions, and tragical End, ſee his Life. King Henry IV. took to his firſt Wife Margaret of Valois, Daughter of King Henry II. but put her away, and married Mary of Medicis, Daughter of Francis the Great, Duke of Florence; by whom he had, 1. Lewis XIII. 2. Elizabeth, married in 1615. to Philip IV. King of Spain. 3. Gaſton John Baptiſt, Duke of Orleans, born in 1608. who left four Daughters: 1. Anna Maria, Dutcheſs of Montpenſier, born in 1627. and died unmarried in 1693. 2. Margaret Louiſa, born in 1645. and married to Coſmo III. Great Duke of Tuſcany, in 1661. 3. Iſabella, born in 1646. and married to Joſeph Lewis Duke of Guiſe in 1667. now a Widow. 4. Frances Magdalen, born in 1648. and married to Charles Emmanuel, Duke of Savoy. The 5th of K. Henry IV.'s Children was Maria Henrietta, born in 1609. married to Charles I. King of Great Britain in 1625. and died in 1669. Lewis XIII. born in 1601. married Anne, Daughter of Philip III. King of Spain in 1645. by whom he had Lewis XIV. born in 1638. and Philip Duke of Orleans, born in 1640. who married Henrietta Stuart, Daughter to Charles I. King of England; and after her Death, took to his ſecond Wife, in 1671. Charlotte Elizabeth, Daughter to Charles Lewis, Elector Palatine: By the firſt he had Maria Aloiſa, born in 1662. and married in 1679. to Charles II. King of Spain; ſhe died in 1689. Two other Children that died young; Anna Maria, born in 1669. and married to Victor Amadæus II. the preſent Duke of Savoy, in 1684. By the ſecond he had Philip Duke of Chartres, born in 1674. and Elizabeth Charlotta, born in 1676. Lewis XIV. Crowned in 1654. married Maria Thereſa, Daughter of Philip IV. King of Spain, and by her has one Son, the preſent Dauphin, Lewis XV. born in 1661. who in 1680. married Mary Anne Chriſtina, Daughter of Ferdinand, Elector of Bavaria, by whom he hath Three Sons: 1. Lewis Duke of Burgundy, born Auguſt 6. 1682. 2. Philip Duke of Anjou, born December 19. 1683. 3. Gaſton Duke of Berri, born Auguſt 31. 1686.

BOURBOURG, a ſmall Town of Flanders in the Low Countries: It was in times paſt pretty ſtrong, and is ſtill conſiderable. It lies within a League of Graveline, and about 3 Weſt from Dunkirk. The French took it in 1645. and it was ſince confirmed unto them by the 41ſt Article of the Treaty of the Pyrenées.

BOURCHIER, (Thomas) Cardinal-Archbiſhop of Canterbury: He was an Engliſhman, and Brother to Henry Earl of Eſſex, Edward IV.'s Favourite. The Cardinal was firſt a Student at Oxford, and afterwards Vicechancellor of that Univerſity. He was Biſhop of Worceſter, of Ely, and laſtly promoted to the See of Canterbury: It was in this Station that he Crown'd Edward IV. Richard III. and Henry VII. He died at Canterbury in the year 1486. having been a Biſhop 51 years. Godwin. de Præſ. Angl. P. Virgil. Hiſt. Angl. l. 24. &c.

BOURDEAUX, upon the Garonne, a Town of France, Capital of the Province of Guienne, with an Univerſity, Parliament, and Archbiſhoprick, that hath for Suffragans, Agen, Angouleſme, Xainctes, Poictiers, Perigueux, Condom, Maillezaies, or Rochelle, Luçon, and Sarlat. It is one of the ancienteſt, faireſt, greateſt, and beſt Trading Cities of France, ſituated in a Country extreamly fertile. Auſonius ſpeaks of it in theſe terms:

Burdegala eſt natale ſolum: clementia Cæli
Mitis, ubi & riguæ larga indulgentia terræ,
Ver longum, brumæque breves, juga frondea ſubſunt, &c.

The Latin Authors call this City Burdegala. Pliny and Strabo mention thoſe of Bourdeaux by the Name of Bituriges Viviſci, or Viviſca, to diſtinguiſh them from the Inhabitants of Bourges, whom Cæſar calls Bituriges Cubi. Ptolemy, Columella, Auſonius, Am. Marcellinus, Aimonius, and Iſiodorus, ſpeak of this City, as Illuſtrious for its Antiquities and Haven, which is one of the moſt famous of Europe, and called The Haven of the Moon, becauſe it is in the form of a Creſcent, and the City of Bourdeaux reſembles a Bow, whoſe String is the Garonne. This River, 7 Leagues below Bourdeaux, hath at its Mouth the famous Pharos, named The Tower of Cordoüan, the Work of Lewis de Foix, an able Engenier. The Univerſity of Bourdeaux was one of the moſt flouriſhing Univerſities in ancient times; and Charles VII. reſtored it to its former Luſtre. Pope Eugenius IV. gave it great Privileges; and Lewis XI. augmented them ſince. St. Jerome and Auſonius ſpeak of the Great Men it had produced; and, in a word, it hath all the Qualities and Prerogatives which can make a City Conſiderable. The Romans valued it as a Free City, and there are ſtill many Marks of their Liberality to be ſeen; as, the Palace of Safeguard, and the Palace of Galienus. The firſt, in all likelihood, was a Temple conſecrated to the Tutelar Gods; and the other, an Amphitheatre, which is eſteemed to have been built in the time of the Emperor Galienus. The great number of Statues, Inſcriptions, and ancient Medals, which are every day found there, are further Arguments of the Value which the Romans had for Bourdeaux. This City was poſſeſſed by the Goths in the Fifth Age, and ſubdued ſince by the French. In 415. they firſt burned it. The Saracens took it in 732. and it alſo ſuffered much by the Invaſion of the Vandals and Normans, who often ruined it. Therefore we ſee that its Form is very different now from what it was in Auſonius's time, who repreſents it as a ſquare City:

Quadrua murorum ſpecies, ſic turribus altis
Ardua, ut aërias intrent faſtigia nubes, &c.

After this, Bourdeaux had particular Lords, ſome of whom were Counts, Dukes, &c. Eleonor, Daughter and Heireſs to William X. laſt Duke of Guienne, reunited this Province to France, by her Marriage with Lewis VII. called The Young, in 1137. but being divorced in 1152. ſhe married Henry of Normandy, afterwards King of England; ſo that the Engliſh poſſeſſed Bourdeaux until the time of Charles VII. This Monarch having reunited Guienne to the Crown, Bourdeaux follow'd the ſame Fate. He eſtabliſhed there a Parliament in 1451. or 52. but this City revolting afterwards in favour of the Engliſh, he took it from them; and Lewis XI. his Son reſtored it about 1463. Since that, it was tranſlated elſewhere, but only for a ſmall time. Thuanus ſpeaks of a Sedition here in An. 1548. at Bourdeaux, on account of a Tax upon Salt, and how ſeverely the Conſtable Montmorency puniſhed the ſame. Afterwards this City had ſhare enough in the Miſfortunes of the Civil Wars. The Mareſchal of Matignon, Governour of Guienne, kept it for the King againſt the League, which had divers Partiſans there. It has not been without Diſorders in this Age; but the King, to prevent them in time coming, hath built Chateau-Trompette to curb the City. It is Governed by Four Jurats, or Sheriffs, and by a Mayor, who is always a Perſon of Quality. The Metropolitan Church of St. Andrew is large and fair, with two high Towers. As to the Eccleſiaſtical part, it is only ſubject to the Roman See. Its Chapter is one of the moſt Auguſt of the Kingdom, compoſed of a Dean, three Archdeacons, a Singer, a Treaſurer, a Veſtry-keeper, a Prebend, a Subdean, a Subſinger, and 23 Canons. The Dioceſe has about 400 Pariſhes, under 10 Arch-Prieſts. There is a great Key at Bourdeaux, where the Tide ſwelling 12 foot high, enableth the greateſt Ships to come up to it. There are a great many of them during the Fairs which come from the North, and elſewhere, to take in Wines and other Commodities. At the entrance of the Key is Chateau-Trompette, flank'd with 6 great Baſtions: Moſt of the great Streets of Bourdeaux terminate at this Key: Thoſe of the Chapeau-rouge and Foſſé are the moſt conſiderable. Beſides Chateau-Trompette, there is that of Ha, which conſiſts of a great ſquare Tower, flank'd with 4 Turrets. The Town-Houſe, the Arſenal, the Palace of Juſtice, &c. entertain the Curioſity of Strangers; but that which is moſt admired is its Haven, Markets, fair Houſes, and Fountains, amongſt which, that of Duge forms a Brook, ſpoken of by Auſonius:

Salve fons ignote ortu, ſacer, alme, perennis,
Vitree, glauce, profunde, ſonore, illimis, opace;
Salve Urbis genius, medio potabilis hauſtis,
Divona Celtarum lingua, fons addite Divis, &c.

Beſides the Parliament, Bourdeaux has, a Chamber of Juſtice, a Seneſchal's Seat, a Court of Admiralty, an Exchequer-Office, another of General Treaſurers, and a Mint, where Silver is marked with the Letter K. &c. Pope Clement V. decided the famous Controverſie for the Primacy of Aquitain, in favour of the Church of Bourdeaux; ſo that the Primacy of Bourges is no more acknowledged there. The ſame Pope did moreover grant great Privileges to the Metropolitan Church of St. Andrew, whereof we have a Hiſtory, compoſed by M. Lopez. The Prelates of Gun aſſembled a Council here in 385. when Priſcillian was condemned. There were ſeveral other Provincial Councils held here. Du Cheſne.

BOURDEILLE, or Bordeille, (Elias) Cardinal and Archbiſhop of Tours, Son to Arnaud de Bourdeille, of a Noble ancient Family of the Country of Perigord. King Lewis XI. having arreſted Balüe, called the Cardinal of Angiers, with William of Harancour Biſhop of Verdun, Elias of Bourdeille complained of it, as an Attempt againſt the Body of the Clergy. But finding that his Remonſtrances were not conſidered, he publiſhed a Monitory, threatning to excommunicate thoſe who ſhould undertake any thing againſt the Clergy: And the Parliament ſtiled this Violence and Paſſion; ordered him to recall his Cenſures; and upon his Denial, his Revenues were ſeiz'd, and he ſuſpended: But the King concluded this Buſineſs himſelf. Elias of Bourdeille writ alſo againſt the Pragmatick Sanction, and a Treatiſe of Concord, as touching Benefices; and Pope Sixtus VI. recompenſed his Zeal on the 15th of November, 1483. with a Cardinal's Hat. He died near Tours, July 5. 1484.

BOURDEILLE, (Peter of) who lived about the latter end of the 16th Century, known by the Name of Sieur Brantome, was a Commendator of the Abbey of Brantome, and conſiderable for his Birth, Good Qualities, and Wit. He ſpeaks thus of his own Adventures, in the Life of M. du Gua: As ſoon as I got from under the Subjection of Father, Mother, and Schoolmaſter, I began to travel to the Courts of France, Spain, and Portugal, the King of which laſt, honoured me with the Habit of Chriſto, which is the Order of that Country. Being returned from Pignon of Valez in Barbary, I went again into Italy; then to Malta; then to the Siege of Goulet in Africk; afterwards into Greece, and other ſtrange Places, which I loved an hundred times better than my own Country. De Thou ſpeaks of Brantome, upon the account of his Voyage to Malta, and names him amongſt thoſe who went thither in 1565. when the Turks beſieged it. Brantome confeſſeth that he had a Deſign to make himſelf a Knight there; but that Strozz, his good Friend, hindred him. I ſuffered my ſelf to be thus rul'd, adds he, by the Perſuaſions of my Friend, and I returned into France, where being big with Hopes, I received no other Fortune but that I have, God be thanked, been always well-beloved, known, and welcomed by the Kings my Maſters, by the Lords and Princes, by my Queens, by my Princeſſes, and, in ſhort, by every one; ſo that without Bragging, I may ſay, That the Name of Brantome hath been there very famous: But all theſe Favours, Grandeurs, Vanities, Boaſtings, pretty Feats, and good Times, are vaniſhed; and nothing remains unto me, but the having been all this, and a Remembrance which ſometimes pleaſes, and ſometimes diſpleaſes me, advancing towards curſed hoary Old Age, the worſt of all the Evils in the World, and Poverty, which cannot be repaired, as in a flouriſhing Age, to which nothing is impoſſible; repenting me a thouſand times of the brave and extraordinary Expences which I have made in times paſt, &c. He died in the Reign of Henry the Great, about Anno 1606. for he ſpeaks of the Death of Mareſchal Matignon in 1597. and, as appears by his Memoirs, which have been publiſhed in ſeveral Volumes, after they had been a long time in Manuſcripts in the Cloſets of the Learned.

BOURDELOT, (John) an Advocate of the Parliament of Paris, and Maſter of the Requeſts to Queen Mary of Medicis, lived in the 15th Age, and beginning of the 16th. He has Tranſlated and Commented on Heliodorus and Lucian, whereof he publiſhed a fine Edition in Folio. We have yet of his a Commentary upon Petronius, which is much eſteemed. He compoſed beſides an Univerſal Hiſtory: Commentaries upon Juvenal: A Treatiſe of the Etymology of the French Words; and a great many other Works, which have not been publiſhed. He died at Paris in 1638.

BOURDILLON, Mareſchal of France; his proper Name was Imbert de la Blatiere, Knight of the King's Order, and Lieutenant-General in Champaigne. Imbert de la Blatiere Bourdillon, ſaith de Thou, an Illuſtrious Captain, by his Prudence and Courage was made Mareſchal of France, in the place of the Mareſchal of St. Andrew. In 1563. he was preſent at the taking of Havre de Grace from the Engliſh; and in the following year he was ſent into Guienne, to appeaſe ſome Troubles between the Roman Catholicks and the Proteſtants. He died at Fontainbleau in Auguſt, 1567.

BOURG, upon the Reiſſouſe, a Town of France, in the Province of Breſſe, with a Bailiwick and Preſidial. Latin Authors name it Forum Sebuſianorum, and ſome Tanum: This Place, ſaith de Thou, is ſituated in a marſhy, but fertile Country. It hath Eaſtward the Mount St. Claude, and pleaſant Hills planted with Vines: It looks towards Franche Comté Northwards, Lyons Eaſtward, and Weſtward it hath a great Plain, which reaches unto the Saone. It followed the Deſtiny of the reſt, being taken under Francis I. and afterward rendred, until it was ſubjected to France by Henry the Great. The Government of Bourg is Ariſtocratick; for two Syndics, or Sheriffs, have the Direction of all the Affairs of the City. Emanuel Philibert, Duke of Savoy, built a Citadel there in 1569. which was demoliſh'd in 1611. King Henry the Great erected a Preſidial there in July. 1601. Here is alſo a Collegiate Church, with divers Monaſteries of both Sexes. At the Sollicitations of Charles III. Duke of Savoy, Pope Leo X. eſtabliſhed a Biſhoprick in this Town, An. 1515. which was ſuppreſſed the year enſuing, and re-eſtabliſhed again in 1521. Paul III. entirely ſuppreſſed it by another Bull in 1534. The Church of our Lady of Brou, near Bourg, is very Renowned, Margaret of Auſtria, Wife to Philibert II. called the Fair, Duke of Savoy, having ſpent 200000 Crowns in building it. This Town ſtands 34 miles N. E. of Lyons, and 48 W. of Geneva.

BOURG, (Annas) Councellor-Clerk to the Parliament of Paris, was Native of Ryon in Auvergne, Son to Stephen de Bourg, Lord of Silloux, Comptroller-General of the Cuſtoms in Languedoc, and Brother to Anthony de Bourg, Preſident in the Parliament of Paris, and afterwards Chancellor of France. He was deſigned for the Church, and ordained Prieſt; but embracing the Proteſtant Religion, it occaſioned his being Honoured with the Crown of Martyrdom. He was a Perſon of great Wit and Learning, eſpecially in the Law, which he taught at Orleans with much Applauſe. He was received Councellor-Clerk to the Parliament of Paris the 19th of October, 1557. In that high Station, he declared himſelf the Protector of the Proteſtants, endeavouring to mollifie the Puniſhments, and to hinder the Severity of the Judgments that were paſſed againſt them. Several famous Merchants were of his Opinion: But King Henry II. took other Meaſures. Thoſe who had Credit with him, perſuaded him to rid himſelf of the Proteſtants; and, amongſt others, Giles le Maitre, Firſt Preſident; John of St. Andre, and Anthony Minart, Preſidents, told him, That the Evil was ſo great, that it could not be diſſembled any longer: That to oppoſe it, he ſhould begin, by puniſhing the very Judges, whereof ſome by their Favour upheld the Proteſtants ſecretly, and others did it by the Credit and Recommendation of their Friends: That this was the Root which was to be plucked up; and that they believed it was neceſſary for the King to come unexpectedly into Parliament, which he ſhould find aſſembled on the Subject of the Mercurials, or Checks, a kind of Cenſure againſt the Magiſtrates, which Charles VIII. inſtituted; and were thus named from the Day whereon they were to be held. This Monarch had concluded a Peace at Chateau Cambreſis, April 3. 1559. and came at the beginning of the Month of June following into the Parliament, where Councellor de Bourg having ſpoken too freely to him, ſo far as to mention the Example of Achab, and the great number of Adulteries which were committed at Court, the King cauſed him and ſome others to be Arreſted. On the 19th, Commiſſioners were appointed to Try them; and de Bourg was declared a Heretick by the Biſhop of Paris; who ordered, That he ſhould be deprived of the Character of Prieſt, and then delivered into the hands of the Secular Power. But the King, on the 29th of June, having received the Wound whereof he died the 10th of July following, this Affair was ended: But in December next, he was condemned by the Biſhop of Paris, and the Archbiſhop of Lyons and Sens, his Appeals being rejected by the Parliament. Frederick, Elector Palatine, and other Proteſtant Princes of Germany, ſollicited his Pardon, which had been granted, had it not been for the Accident of the Preſident Minart's being aſſaſſinated. It ſeems Minart had been challenged on the Bench by de Bourg, and deſired not to ſit as Judge upon him: This, as Moreri intimates, made the Roman Catholicks ſuſpect ſome unfair Practice from de Bourg; ſo that he was hanged, and his Body burned, December 20. An. 1559. And thus died Annas de Bourg, at the Age of Thirty eight, being A Learned Man, a Good Magiſtrate, and a Faithful Friend; who could be reproached with nothing by his Enemies, but his Application to the Proteſtant Religion. He wrote divers Works. The French Proteſtants reckon him in the number of their Martyrs; and his Hiſtory may be ſeen more at large in their Martyrology.

BOURGES, upon the Rivers Auron and Eure, a City of France, Capital of the Province and Dutchy of Berri, with a Bailiwick, Preſidial, Generality, Univerſity, and Archbiſhoprick, which hath the Title of Primacy and Patriarchate. It is the Avaricum Biturigum of the Ancients; which has alſo been diverſly named Biturix, and Biturigum. It is certain, That Bourges hath been not only one of the moſt ancient Cities of the Gauls, but alſo one of the faireſt and moſt conſiderable; and was ſo reckoned in the 47th Olympiad, or the 164th of Rome, about 590 before Chriſt: For Titus Livius aſſures us, That under the Reign of Tarquin the Ancient, King of the Romans, the Monarchy of the Celtæ was in this Capital of Berri, whereof Ambigat was Sovereign. Julius Cæſar took this City about the 702d of Rome, which was the firſt of the 172d Olympiad, 52 years before Chriſt. He ſpeaks of it in the 7th Book of his Commentaries; and ſaith, That Vercingetorix, Head of the Gauls, having aſſembled a Council, cauſed twenty Cities of Berri to be burned; and that they had it even under Debate to do the ſame to Bourges it ſelf; but that thoſe of the Country oppoſed it, beſeeching the reſt not to conſtrain them to burn their Capital, the Ornament and Safeguard of Berri, and one of the firſt Cities of the Gauls. Cæſar writes afterwards the Hiſtory of that Siege; and ſaith, That of 40000 Men who were in it, there ſcarcely eſcaped 800, all the reſt having been put to the Sword, the Soldiers ſparing neither Age nor Sex. It ſuffered in the 5th Age, by the Incurſions of the Viſigoths; and being ſubjected to the French under Clovis, who took Aquitain from the ſaid Viſigoths, Bourges fell to the Lot of Clodomir, and afterwards of Gontran King of Orleans. It was from the latter that one Didier, General of the Troops of Chilperic I. took Bourges in 583. and burnt it almoſt entirely. It was afterwards repaired at divers times, chiefly under Charlemaign; and became again ſo conſiderable, that William the Breton took delight to give a magnificent Deſcription of it, ſpeaking, in the 8th Book of his Philippides, of its Riches, Strength, and the great Number of Inhabitants. Bourges had particular Earls of its own in 1412. During the Factions of the Houſes of Burgundy and Orleans, the Duke of Burgundy ſeized upon the Perſon of Charles VI. and led him before Bourges, where were incloſed the Dukes of Berri and Bourbon, with a great many Lords, and an Agreement was made on July 15. King Charles VII. during the firſt years of his Reign, made his Reſidence commonly in this City, which he fortiſied; and thereupon his Enemies in mockery called him King of Bourges. In the latter Age, during the Wars about Religion, the Prince of Conde being at Orleans, ſent Gabriel Earl of Montgomery, who ſurprized Bourges for the Proteſtants, May 27. 1562. The Duke of Guiſe beſieged it for King Charles IX. and Tvoy, who was Governour thereof, ſurrendred it on Septemb. 1. that ſame year; and Bourges afterwards followed the Party of the League; but in 1594. was ſubjected to Henry IV. John Duke of Berri erected here, in May 1379 a Chamber of Accounts for the Lands of his Portion; and K. Charles VII. tranſlated thither that for the Kingdom, while his Enemies were Maſters of Paris: But now the Government of this City depends on the Mayor and Sheriffs. It is believed, That King St. Lewis founded the Univerſity; Charles Duke of Berri, Brother to King Lewis XI. re-eſtabliſhed it, and obtained ſeveral Privileges for it of P. Paul II. in 1464. And it hath had many famous Profeſſors of the Civil and Canon Law. Bourges is naturally ſtrong, by reaſon of its Situation, the Rivers having rendred the adjacent Country full of Marſhes, which makes it of difficult acceſs on one ſide, and on the other ſide it riſes pretty high: It is alſo environed with good Walls, defended by 80 Towers on the ſide which may be the moſt eaſily approached. It had a great Tower, which is partly ruinous ſince 1651. The River of Eure, which others call Yeure, begins there to be Navigable, by the encreaſe of the Waters which it receives from the Auron, Aurette, Molon, Colin, and ſome other Brooks. Bourges is a great City, well-built, with fine Palaces, a great number of Fountains, and very clean Streets. The Palace of the ancient Dukes of Berri, ſerves now for a Seat to the Preſidial, and is joined to the Holy Chapel. Strangers do entertain themſelves here with the ſight of the King's Houſe, the Town-Houſe, that of the Germans, and that of the famous James Colur, beſides the Amphitheatres, and other Antiquities. The Church of St. Stephen is the Metropolis, and thought to have been built in 254. under the Empire of Decius. There is a fine Chapter in it. Beſides this Church, Bourges hath ſeven Collegiate ones: That called the Holy Chapel, which immediately depends on the See of Rome, is the firſt. John of France, Duke of Berri, Son to King John, and Brother to King Charles V. founded it, and was buried there in 1416. in the middle of the Quire, where his Tomb is to be ſeen. Beſides theſe Collegiate Churches, there are 17 Pariſhes at Bourges, 3 Abbeys, and a great number of Monaſteries, with a College of Jeſuits. The Diocece, which is one of the largeſt in the Kingdom, contains near 900 Pariſhes, under 12 Archdeaconſhips, and 20 Archprieſts, 34 Collegiate Churches, 35 Abbeys, and 10 Commanderies of Malta. The Church of Bourges has had Illuſtrious Prelates, amongſt which 18 are Canonized. The Archbiſhops of Bourges take the Title of Patriarchs and Primates of Aquitain, it having begun to enjoy this Title in the 9th Age. Theodulfe of Orleans ſaith, That Aigulfe, who lived in 830. was the firſt Patriarch of Bourges. The Engliſh afterwards becoming Maſters of Guienne, the Archbiſhops of Bourdeaux refuſed to acknowledge this Primacy of Bourges. King Philip Auguſtus complained thereof to Pope Innocent III. who did not determine the Affair; but ſome time after, Gregory IX. declared in favour of the Church of Bourges: For Clement V. had tranſlated this Primacy to Bourdeaux, whereof he had been Archbiſhop. The Metropolis of Bourges has had 11 Suffragans; Clermont, le Puy, St. Flour, Mende, Rodez, Vabres, Caſtres, Cahors, Tulles, Limoges, and Albi: But as this laſt Church has been of late erected into an Archbiſhoprick, it has had part of its Suffragans; to wit, Caſtres, Cohors, Mende, Rodez, and Vabres. Cardinal Robert, Legate, called a Council here in 1215. But the Biſhops of France, having reaſon to complain of his Conduct, oppoſed it, and made their Appeal to the Council of Lateran, which Pope Innocent III. held towards the end of that year. The Legate-Cardinal Roman held one there in 1225. or 26, to judge of the Lands of Raimond Earl of Toulouſe, in which his Son demanded to be re-eſtabliſhed. There were 7 Archbiſhops; but he of Lyons pretending to the Primacy over that of Sens, and that of Bourges over thoſe of Bourdeaux, Auſch and Narbonne; it is ſaid that they took their Seats as in a Council of State, and not as in a Council of the Church. Simon of Bria, Cardinal-Legate, held one in 1276. for the Peace of the Church, the See of Rome being then vacant by the Death Innocent V. In 1286. Simon of Beaujeau, Archbiſhop of Bourges, held there a Provincial Synod. There were alſo ſeveral Councils held in this Age, for the Primacy of firſt Aquitain, whereof the Prelates of Bourges were in poſſeſſion ſince Charlemaign's time; who having made that City Capital of the Kingdom of Aquitain, compoſed of three Provinces, would, for the better uniting of them together, that they ſhould all depend on it, as to Spirituals. The Prelates of Narbonne ſhook off this Yoke, as ſoon as there were Earls of Tholouſe: That of Bourdeaux attempted the like, when the third Aquitain was left to the Kings of England, under the Title of the Dutchy of Guienne; but thoſe who were in poſſeſſion oppoſed it. Simon of Salli, whom ſome Authors make a Cardinal by the Title of St. Sixtus, Legate of the See of Rome, and Archbiſhop of Bourges, held a Council in 1228. and ſuſpended the Archbiſhop of Bourdeaux, who would not aſſiſt at it. This Quarrel went ſo far, that Giles of Rome got Bertrand of Got, Archbiſhop of Bourdeaux, afterwards Pope, under the Name of Clement V. to be excommunicated by Walter of Bruges, Biſhop of Poictiers, about 1300. and this Pope did afterwards highly expreſs his Reſentments of it. The Clergy of France aſſembled in 1438. at Bourges under Charles VII. acknowledged the Council of Baſle, and drew up the famous Conſtitution named the Pragmatick Sanction. The Council approved of it, and it laſted till 1516. that it was ſuppreſſed by the Concordate betwixt Pope Leo X. and King Francis I. The ſame King Charles VII. about two years after, Aſſembled the Clergy again in that City; and Eugenius IV. was acknowledged for Pope. In 1584. Renaude of Beaune, Archbiſhop of Bourges, celebrated a Provincial Council for the Reformation of Manners, and the Diſcipline of the Church. Anthony Bojer, a Cardinal, held a Synod there in 1516. and Peter of Hardivillier celebrated another in 1643. Bourges is 7 Leagues from La Charite to the Weſt, 22 from Orleans, to the North. Its great Towers were raſed by Order of the preſent King of France, becauſe it ſided with the Prince of Condé in the laſt Civil Wars. Baronius, Spondanus, &c.

BOURGOING, (Edmund) Prior of the Jacobins of Paris, was made Priſoner at the Aſſault of the Suburbs of Paris during the League, where he was armed as a Soldier. He was brought to Tours, where the Parliament ſat in 1589. and being convicted of having publickly praiſed James Clement in his Sermons, a Friar of his Convent, who had committed the horrid Parricide on the Perſon of King Henry III. and of having compared him to Judith, who kill'd Holofernes before the City of Bethulia; he was condemned to be drawn betwixt 4 Horſes; and the Sentence was executed at Tours, Jan. 26. 1590. Cailliere Hiſt. du Mareſ. de Matignon.

BOURGOIN, a ſmall Town of France in Dauphiné in Viennois; it hath been in times paſt dependant on the Barony of La Tour du Pin, and is renowned for its Hemp-Trade. It ſuffered much in the Civil Wars in the 16th Century. Thuan. Hiſt. l. 31.

BOURIGNON, (Antonietta) was born at Liſle in Flanders, in 1616. having reſolved to quit the World, ſhe took a Hermit's Habit at the Age of 18. to retire into the Deſarts; but ſhe was known, and ſtopp'd in the Dioceſe of Cambray, where the Biſhop granted her a Solitude. She was forced afterwards to withdraw elſewhere, becauſe ſhe would live there with ſome other Virgins, without any Vow or Rule, but the Love of God and the Goſpel. After this, ſhe ſhut her ſelf up in a Chamber, where ſhe lived alone for four years. Her Parents being dead, ſhe contributed to the Foundation of an Hoſpital, and was there nine years taken up in inſtructing ſeveral poor young Women. Having received ſome Diſcontent there, ſhe abandoned this Hoſpital, and travelled into ſeveral other places during the reſt of her Life. She died at Franeker in 1685. Her particular way of Life, has given occaſion to believe that ſhe was for making ſome new Sect. She has left divers Treatiſes of Piety, which are bound in 18 Volumes in Octavo. Republique de Lettres.

BOURN, a Market-Town in the South of Lincolnſhire, of Aveland Wapentake in Keſteven Diviſion: Here are ſtill to be ſeen the Ruines of a good Caſtle; and not far from it ſtood Swinſted Abbey, a Monk whereof, named Simon, poiſoned K. John, as moſt Hiſtorians relate. From London 153 miles.

BOURON, a City of Romania, near the Archipelago, on the ſide of Aperoſe. There is a Lake of the ſame Name, which is on this ſide of Mount Argontaro. The City of Bouron had in times paſt a Biſhop's See, and was known to Pliny, Ptolemy, and Stephanus, who often ſpeak of it under the Name of Biſtonia.

BOUTAN, a vaſt, populous, fruitful Kingdom in the middle of Aſia, 3 months Journey beyond Patua to the N. bounded to the S. by the Kingdom of Nupal, from which it is ſeparated by Mount Naugracut, which is probably the Taurus, and is 8 days Journey over. The Prince of this Country is very Potent, and wonderfully Honoured by his Subjects, who Trade in Indoſtan for Beads of Amber and Coral, in exchange for Rhubarb and Wormſeed, and Silver. The Country is fruitful, and rich in Furrs; but ſurrounded with ſnowy deſart Countries, and lies in the Road between Ruſſia and China. Tavern. Part 2. 182. c. 15. lib. 2.

BOUTHEROUE de Chartres, (Michael) a Learned Phyſician, living in the beginning of the 17th Century. He wrote ſeveral Books in his own Faculty; as, Pyrotologia, &c. Another of this Name, who was a Lawyer, wrote a Treatiſe of ancient Coins.

BOWE, a Market-Town in Devonſhire, 153 miles from London.

BOXHORNIUS, known under the Name of Marcus Zulrius Boxhornius of Bergen-op-Zoom in Brabant. In 1631. he publiſhed the Authors of the Hiſtoria Auguſta; the Panegyrick of Pliny, Juſtin, and ſome Satyrical Poets: And ſince that time he has publiſhed other Pieces; as, the Deſcription of the Towns of Holland; the Hiſtory of the Siege of Breda; a Diſſertation of Printing, and the Inventers of this Art; Monumenta Illuſtrium Virorum, &c. He was born in 1612. was Profeſſor at Leyden, and afterwards went into Sweedland. He was eſteemed no good Critick, as appears by his Notes on Plautus and Sulpitius

BOYLE, (Richard) Earl of Burlington, had this Honour conferr'd upon him by King Charles II. Ann. 1664. and is the firſt Engliſh Earl of that Title: His Father was Richard, Baron of Youghall and Bandon, Viſcount of Kinalmeaky and Dungarvan, and Earl of Cork in Ireland; which Titles are now enjoyed by the preſent Earl of Burlington, whereunto King Charles I. added that of Baron Clifford, Earl of Cumberland. But that which adds much to the Glory of this Family, is the Fame of the preſent Earl's two Brothers, lately deceaſed, viz. Roger Boyle, Earl of Orrery, and Baron Broghul in Ireland, ſufficiently recommended to the World by his Elegant Writings both in Proſe and Verſe; and Robert, no leſs known by his large Improvements in Experimental Philoſophy, and the many excellent Volumes he has publiſhed to the World. See Robert.

BOYNE, a River of Leinſter in Ireland, famous for the Glorious Victory His Majeſty King William obtained there over the late King James and his French and Iriſh Army, July 1. 1690. The Paſſage of the River was attempted by Count Mainard, now Duke Schomberg, with a Body of Horſe, Foot, and Dragoons, three miles higher than the Camp; which was done with great Gallantry, notwithſtanding eight Squadrons of the Enemy that ſtood there to diſpute the Paſs: Upon Information whereof, the King ordered his Infantry to make over the River in another place, where the Water took them up to their Arm-pits; and the Horſe ſwam over in another, notwithſtanding all Oppoſition. Preſently the King, accompanied with the Prince of Denmark, paſſed the River, and appeared at the Head of his Troops in the greateſt Heat of the Action. In ſhort, the Iriſh were routed; and the French, under the Command of Lauzun, retreated in good Order. In the Heat of the Fight, a Cannon-Bullet carried off a piece of the King's Boot, and broke a Horſe's Leg that was cloſe by him. But our greateſt Misfortune was the Loſs of that Great General the Duke of Schomberg, who was ſlain with a Piſtol-ſhot. The day before the Fight, King William viewing the Enemy's Camp, and obſerving the Fords of the River, received a Wound upon the Shoulder, from a Cannon-Bullet of ſix pound weight, which took away a piece of his Coat, Waſtcoat, and Shirt, and drew a little Blood. This Victory was attended with the ſurrender of Drogheda the next day; and King William entred Dublin on the 6th without reſiſtance.

BOZIUS, or Bozio, (Thomas) Prieſt of the Oratory at Rome, lived in the beginning of the 17th Century, in the Pontificate of Clement VIII. He wrote Ten Volumes in Hiſtory, entituled, Annales Antiquitatum; but being prevented by death, there are but Two of them publiſhed. He wrote likewiſe a Book, De Signis Eccleſiæ, Printed in 1591. De Ruinis Gentium & Regnorum. De Antiquo & Novo Italiæ Statu: Both againſt Machiavel. De Imperio Virtutum. De Robore Bellico, &c. His Brother Francis was a Prieſt of the ſame Order; wrote De Temporali Eccleſiæ Monarchia; Annales Mundi. Vita Beati Petri. Janus Nicius, Erythræus Pinac. Imag. Illuſt. p. 1. c. 50. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 17.

BOZOLO, a ſmall Town of Italy, in the Dutchy of Mantua, with the Title of Principality, betwixt Mantua and Cremona, 18 miles W. of Mantua.

BRA, (Henry) commonly known by the Name of Henricus à Brâ, a Phyſician of the Low Countries, who acquired great Reputation by his Books, De Curandis Venenis: De Febribus, &c. He was born at Dockham in Weſt-Frizeland; and having travell'd to the moſt celebrated Univerſities in Italy and Germany, took his Doctor's Degree at Bazil, in 1585. Sufridus Petri Decad. 16. De Script. Friſiæ. Vander Linden de Script. Med.

BRABANT, a Province of the Low Countries, with the Title of a Dutchy: It is in a manner an Iſland, environed with Rivers, having the Meuſe on the Eaſt and the North, the Demer on the South, which runs through part of this Province; and the Scheld on the Weſt, with the Ocean on the ſide of Breda and Bergen-op-Zoom. It has part of the Country of Guelderland, and the Biſhoprick of Liege on the Eaſt; Flanders and part of Zeland on the Weſt; the Country of Hainault and the County of Namur on the South; and on the North, Holland, and another part of Guelderland. This Country is 20 Leagues in breadth, and about 80 in circuit. Thoſe who ſeek for the Original of the Name of Brabant, are too fabulous for us to rely upon. The Air there is good, the Country is fertile; and beſides the Rivers, there is a great number of Lakes and Ponds. The Cities of it alſo are very fine, whereof there are 26 walled and very ſtrong, not mentioning others of leſs Importance, which are, however, pretty good Cities. The Marquiſate of the Holy Empire, where Antwerp is, the Lordſhip of Malines, and even the Dutchy of Limbourg, are comprehended in Brabant; where there are, beſides the Dutchy of Arſchot, the Marquiſate of Bergues, the County of Hooghſtraet, the State of Maeſtricht, formerly of Liege, 19 Baronies, &c. Louvain was in times paſt Capital of Brabant; but now Bruſſels. The others are Antwerp, Malines, Tillement, Lire, Arſchot, Nivelle, &c. belonging to the Spaniards. The Hollanders have there, Bergen-op-Zoom, Breda, Grave, Boiſleduc, Williamſtadt, Lillo, and Maeſtricht. The Brabanders are deſcended from a Colony of Saxons, brought from beyond the Elbe by Charlemaign, and planted in this Country in 806. Divers Authors ſay, That Anchiſes, or Anchiſiſes, Father to Pepin of Hariſtel, was Lord of Brabant. Charlemaign and his Children were Maſters of this Country, until ſuch time as Otho, Son to Prince Charles of France, Duke of Lower Lorrain, being dead in 1004. without being married, Brabant became the Portion of Gerberge, ſecond Daughter to the ſame Charles of France, and his firſt Wife Bonne of Ardenne, married to Lambert II. Earl of Monts and Louvain, the Founder of the Branch of the Dukes of Brabant and Lothier. At firſt they took only the Title of Earls; but in 1235. Henry I. took the Title of Duke of Brabant and Lorrain. Philip III. called the Good, ſucceeded to the Duke of Brabant, which he left to Charles the Raſh his Son, Father to Mary of Burgundy, who carried it into the Houſe of Auſtria, by her Marriage to Maximilian, afterwards Emperor. Brabant has been fruitful in Illuſtrious Men and Learned Writers.

BRABO, an Illuſtrious Roman, Kinſman to Julius Cæſar, came with him into Gaul, and gave his Name to Brabant, according to the Opinion of ſome. They ſay, That here was a Giant named Antigonus, upon the Banks of the Scheld, where ſtands now the City of Antwerp, who lived in a Fort that he had built there, and cut off the hands of all thoſe he met with thereabouts: That Brabo overthrew him, and as a juſt Reward of his Cruelty, cut off his hand before he killed him, and flung it into the Scheld, whence the Fortreſs of this Giant was named Hantwerpen; that is, A Hand caſt away; and the Country, Brabant, from Brabo. This is looked upon as a meer Fable: But there is ſtill to be ſeen, at the Gate of Antwerp, the Place which is ſaid to have been the Fortreſs of this Giant, and ſome Bones of a prodigious bigneſs, ſaid alſo to be his. They have alſo in this City a Statue of Marble, which repreſents that Illuſtrious Brabo: And they make two Proceſſions every year; the one on Trinity-Sunday, and the other on the Octave of the Aſſumption, wherein they carry a great Coloſſius repreſenting this Giant; under which, is to be ſeen this Inſcription:

> Cernitis immanem hunc immenſa mole Gigantem:
> Talem olim, ut fama eſt, tulit Andoperva Tyrannum.

Goropius, who believes this Relation to be a Story, ſaith, That the Bones which are ſhown as his, are the Bones of a Whale. Corn. Graph.

BRACCIAN, or Bracciano, Braccianum, and Arcenum, a ſmall Town of Italy, in the Province called the Patrimony of St. Peter. It is ſituated upon a Lake which gives it Name, and has the Title of a Dutchy belonging to the Houſe of the Urſins.

BRACCIO, an Illuſtrious Captain of the Family of Forte Bracci of Perugia in Italy: After having ſhewn his Courage on ſeveral Occaſions, in 1409. he was choſen General of the Florentines, who took part with Lewis II. Duke of Anjou, againſt Ladiſlaus, King of Naples. In 1414. Pope John XXIII. going to the Council of Conſtance, made him General of his Troops, and Governour of Bononia. At this time he re-eſtabliſhed the Gentry in Perugia, whence they had been driven by the Mob. He waged War afterwards againſt Pope Martin V. who agreed with him, and ſent him to Bononia, to reduce that City, which had revolted; and having overcome theſe Rebels, he Commanded the Army of Johanna II. Queen of Naples, and of Alphonſus King of Arragon, againſt Lewis Duke of Anjou, and routed General Sforza, who held for Lewis. After this Victory, Johanna gave him the Principality of Capua, and made him Great Conſtable of the Kingdom. But his Ambition prompted him to aſpire to the Kingdom it ſelf: He took Arms againſt Queen Johanna, Lewis Duke of Anjou, and General Sforza, who was reconciled to this Princeſs, and laid Siege to Aquila: But he was wounded in a bloudy Fight; and being made Priſoner, would neither ſpeak nor eat; and ſo died rather of Grief than of his Wound, in 1424. He became Maſter of a great part of Marca Anconitana, all Umbria, ſeveral places of Tuſcany, and of ſome of the Kingdom of Naples. Pompil. Totti.

BRACCIOLIN, or Brandolin, (James) a famous Orator, Son to Poggio of Florence, Author of an Hiſtory which this James's Son tranſlated into Italian. He compoſed alſo other Books, and had a hand in the Conſpiracy of the Pozzi, againſt Julian and Laurence de Medicis: He was convicted of it, arreſted, and hanged at a Window in the Houſe of one of the Chief Conſpirators, in 1478. We muſt remember, That this James Bracciolin is different from another Son of Poggio, Pope Leo X.'s Favourite, as P. Jovius tells us. Polit. Hiſt. Conj. Pact.

BRACELLI, (James) born at Zarzano in the State of Genoa, and flouriſhed to the year 1460. He was Secretary of State to the Republick of Venice, and wrote the Hiſtory of the War between the Spaniards and the Genoeſe, from 1412. to 1444. He wrote likewiſe another Book of the Eminent Men of Genoa: A Deſcription of the Coaſt of that State, &c. Paul. Jov. Leand. Alberti Deſc. Ital. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Lat, &c.

BRACHELI, (Adolphus) born at Cologne in the beginning of the 17th Century, wrote the Hiſtory of his Time; it takes in the Wars of Germany from 1618. to 1652. This Work, which was written in Latin, is continued by A. Thulden to 1660. and by Hen. Brewer to 1671.

BRACHITES, a Sect of Hereticks in the third Age, who followed the Errours of Manes and the Gnoſticks. Bateole.

BRACHMANS, a Sect of Gymnoſophiſts, or Philoſophers of the Indians, famous enough in the Works of the Ancients: They lived partly in Woods, where they conſulted the Stars, and exerciſed themſelves in the Knowledge of Nature; and partly in Cities, to adviſe Princes, and teach Morality to the People. They believed that the Souls of Men paſſed into thoſe of Beaſts, and eſpecially of Oxen; deſpiſed Death, and made their Happineſs conſiſt in rejecting the Advantages of Fortune. The ancient Philoſophers paſſed often into the Indies to conſult the Brachmans; and it's thought that Pythagoras had learned the Opinion of the Metempſycoſis from them. At this time the Gentiles, called Banians, who are in the Indies, and particularly in Indoſtan, have their Prieſts, whom they call Brachmans, or Brahmens. They ſay, That GOD, whom they Name Achari, having reſolved to create the World, he created Three moſt Perfect Beings to be Inſtruments: The Firſt was Brahma, which ſignifies Penetrating: The Second Beſchen, which ſignifies Exiſting in all Things: And the Third, Mehahdeu; i. e. Great Lord. That he Created the World; by Brahma Preſerves it; by Beſchen and Mehahdeu he will deſtroy it. They add, That this Brahma publiſhed Four Books, which they call Beths, that is, Science; becauſe they pretend that all the Sciences are compriſed in them. The Firſt is called Atherbabed; the Second Zagerbed; the Third, Rekbed; and the Fourth, Samabed. Theſe People are diſtinguiſhed into Four Tribes: The Firſt are Brahmens, who teach Religion and Law; the Second, Quetteties, or Soldiers; the Third, Beſcue, or Merchants, who are properly the Banians; and the Fourth conſiſts of Trades and Husbandmen, whom they call Scidra. They all agree in the Doctrine of the Metempſycoſis, and in that it is not lawful for them to Eat nor Kill any living Creature. Yet there are ſome of the Second Tribe, who may Eat them, provided they be neither Cow nor Peacock, having a great Reſpect for theſe Creatures. Kercher, Bernier, Hen. Lord.

BRACKLAW, Lat. Braclavia, a ſtrong Town of Poland in Lower Podolia, ſituated upon the River Bog, towards the Frontiers of Volhinia; but all this Country has been ruined by the Turks ſince the taking of Caminieck. It's 110 miles Eaſt of Caminieck.

BRACKLEY, a Market and Borough-Town of Sutton Hundred, in the South parts of Northamptonſhire, upon the Borders of Buckinghamſhire. It ſtands near the Spring of the Ouſe, conſiſts of two Pariſhes, and had formerly a College, now made uſe of for a Free-School; a noted Place, and was formerly in a manner the Staple Town in the County for Wooll: It is Governed by a Mayor and Aldermen, and is 48 miles from London.

BRADFIELD, a Market-Town of Treſſwell Hundred in Eſſex, 39 miles from London.

BRADFORD, a Market-Town of Bradford Hundred in the Weſt parts of Wiltſhire, 83 miles from London. His Majeſty King William III. has been pleaſed to confer the Honour of Earl of Bradford upon Francis Lord Viſcount Newport, Treaſurer to his Houſhold.

BRADFORTH, a Market-Town in Morley Hundred and Weſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, near the Fall of a ſmall Stream into the Are, 145 miles from London.

BRADING, a Market-Town in the Hundred of Eaſt-Medine in the Iſle of Wight, 70 miles from London.

BRADNIDGE, a Market-Town of Halberton Hundred, in the Eaſt Parts of Devonſhire; from London 185 miles.

BRADSHAW, or Bradſaus, (Henry) an Engliſh Monk of the Order of St. Benedict, living to the beginning of the Fifteenth Century. He left ſeveral Hiſtorical Pieces behind him. A Chronicle De Antiquitate Urbis Ceſtriæ, &c. Balæus, Cent. 14. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. &c.

BRADSHAW, (John) Preſident of the pretended High Court of Juſtice, ſet up by the Rebels for the Murther of King Charles I. The Continuation of Sir Richard Baker, &c.

BRAERSIUS, or Vekenſtil, (Henry) Mathematician and Printer of Louvain, in the beginning of the 16th Century. His Works are, Tabulæ Perpetuæ Longitudinum & Latitudinum Planetarum. De Compoſitione & Uſu Decretorii Planetarum. De Compoſitione & Uſu Quadrantis. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

BRAGA, or Brague, Bracara, a City of Portugal, an Archbiſhop's See; is ſituated upon the River Cavado, in the Province of Entre Douro and Minho, five Leagues from the Sea. Braga has been in times paſt in Galicia, and is one of the moſt ancient Cities of Spain. Ptolemy names it Braccara Auguſta; and the Itinerary of Antoninus, Bregara. Auſonius puts it amongſt the Four Chief Cities of Spain:

Quæque maris ſinu jactat ſe Braccara dives.

They ſay it was the Seat of the ancient Suevian Kings, and that it was very conſiderable under the Goths; as alſo for its Church, which has had many Illuſtrious Prelates. They Stile themſelves Primates of Spain; for Alfonſus I. having taken this City in 1240 from the Moors, all the Biſhops of Spain then ſubmitted themſelves to its Church. That of Toledo diſputes this Honour with it; but this Proceſs has not, as yet, been finiſhed; and the famous Dom Barthelmi of Martiers, Archbiſhop of Brague, being at the Council of Trent in 1561. maintained the Rights of this Church there. This Town ſtands 75 Miles South of Compoſtella, and 180 North of Lisbon. The firſt Council of Brague was held in the year 408. by Pancracian Biſhop of the Town, who with Nine other Prelates, condemn'd the Errors of the Barbarous Nations, who had invaded Spain. There was another little Provincial Council held there in 563. where the Errors of the Priſcilianiſts were condemn'd in 17 Articles. There was alſo held there another in 572. under Ariamirus, for the Regulation of Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline. Baron. In Annal. Labee in Edit. Concil.

BRAGADIN, (Marcus Antonius) a Noble Venetian, Governour of Famagouſta, in the Iſle of Cyprus, in 1570, and 1571. After he had defended this City with an invincible Courage, during a long Siege, againſt Muſtapha, General of the Turkiſh Army, who loſt above 80000 Men, he was at laſt forced, becauſe the Succours from Venice were too long delay'd, to ſurrender the City upon Honourable Terms: But Muſtapha did not obſerve the Articles, but by a Treachery, common to theſe Infidels, made him Priſoner, with Aſtor Baglioni, who commanded the Garriſon, Lawrence Ticpoli Magiſtrate of the City, and ſeveral other Officers. All theſe Chriſtians were cruelly Maſſacred in the ſight of Bragadin, who was reſerved for a more rigorous Puniſhment. Muſtapha, to make him indure the more, cauſed a Cimeter to be put thrice to his Throat, which this Illuſtrious Captain look'd on always without Fear. They cut off his Noſe and Ears, and afterwards caſt him bolted into the bottom of a Dungeon, whence the Hangman drew him up afterwards to make him carry Earth in a Basket to thoſe who repair'd the Fortifications of Famagouſta, and made him ſtoop with his Load to kiſs the Earth, every time he paſſed before Muſtapha, who ſaw the Fortifications of the Place carried on himſelf. To make him ſuffer all manner of Indignities, he was ty'd to a Sail-yard of one of the Galleys, afterwards dragg'd into the publick Place, where being ty'd Hands and Feet, he was flea'd alive. This Cruelty did not pull down his Courage, for he dy'd with great Conſtancy, reproaching the Infidels with their Perfidiouſneſs and Inhumanity. His Skin was dipped in Salt and Vinegar, which Muſtapha cauſed to be ſtuffed with Hay, and to be ty'd to the Admiral, to ſhew it along the Coaſts of Egypt and Syria. It was put in the Arſenal of Conſtantinople, whence the Children of this Illuſtrious Hero recover'd it, and conſerve it as the moſt glorious Title of their Family. Muſtapha's Fury being ſomewhat appeaſed by this barbarous kind of Death, he ſpared the Garriſon which remained, and put them in Chains. Gratiani Hiſtoire de Cypre.

BRAGANZA, or Berganca, Brigantia and Brigentium, a Town of Portugal, with the Title of Dutchy. Some take it for the Cæliobriga of the Ancients in the Aſturies: It is ſituated upon the little River of Sabor, in the Province of Tralos Montes, in the Mountains, near the City of Mirande, not far off the Frontiers of Gallicia, and the Kingdom of Lobia. It is the chief Town of a Dutchy, and has about 50 Boroughs depending on it: Here are Mines of Silver in this Dutchy. The Dukes of Braganza deſcended from the Kings of Portugal, made their ordinary Reſidence at Villavicioſa, and were privileg'd to ſit under the Canopy with the Kings of Spain. They have been in Poſſeſſion of the Crown of Portugal, from the year 1640. Bragance ſtands 35 Miles North Weſt of Braczalaw.

BRAHEM, Son to Ali, and Fourth King of Morocco, of the Race of the Almoravides, ſucceeded his Father in 1115. and ſubdued one Alfeque, a Mahometan Doctor, who would have dethron'd him, and having put out his Eyes, ſentenced him to Death; but in 1140. having loſt the Battel againſt Abdala, an African Berebere, and ſeeing no ſafe Retreat, he ſpur'd his Horſe through deſpair, and made him leap from the top of a Rock, where he was cruſhed in pieces, chooſing rather to die thus, than to fall into the Hands of his Enemies. Abdala being dead, ſome time after, Abdulmumen, General of the Army, was choſen King, under the Title of Amir-el-Mominin (or Miramolin) and beſieged the City of Morocco, where the Son of Brahem was then a Child, yet declared King after his Father. And ſeeing that the Beſieged reſiſted with an extraordinary Courage, he ſwore he would never quit the City until he had made himſelf Maſter of it; and having taken it by Storm, he ſeized the young Prince, and ſtrangled him with his own Hands; and in him extinguiſhed the Line of the Almoravides. Marmol. de L. Afrique.

BRAIDALBIN, which in the Highland Dialect ſignifies the higheſt place of Scotland, is a Country in the Highlands which gives Title of Earl to one of the Family of Campbell. The higheſt place of this Country is call'd Drum Albin, i. e. the Back of Scotland, from whence ſeveral Rivers derive their Original, ſome of which run into the German, others into the Iriſh Seas.

BRAINTRY, a good large and populous Market Town of Hinckford Hundred in Eſſex; from London 34 miles.

BRAMA, one of the chiefeſt Gods of the People of Tonquin, betwixt China and India. Theſe Idolaters ſacrifice to the Seven Planets, and have Five Idols, for whom they have a particular Veneration, viz. Four Gods, named Brama, Raumu, Betolo, Ramonu, and a Goddeſs whom they call Satibana. The King, the Mandarins, that is, the Lords of the Court, and the Learned, ſcarcely adore any thing but Heaven. Tavernier Voyage des Indes.

BRAMBER, a Borough Town which gives Name to one of the Six Rapes or Diviſions of Suſſex.

BRAMENS, Bramins or Bramans, a kind of Pagans in the Indies, who devote themſelves to the Worſhip of their Idols, and to the Miniſtery of their Temples. They boaſt that they ſprung out of the Head of their God Bramha, which they ſay produc'd ſeveral other things, but not ſo Noble, becauſe they iſſued from the Stomach, Arms, Thighs, or Feet. Abraham Rogers, who lived a long time upon the Coaſt of Coromandel, obſerves in his Treatiſe of Paganiſm, that the great God of the Bramens is called Wiſtnu, and ſometime Etwara; and that Bramha is the firſt Man whom this God created, and to whom he gave the Power of creating the World, together with the conduct thereof; ſo that Bramha was eſtabliſhed as Lieutenant to God, with an abſolute Power over all things. The Bramins ſay, that there are Eight Worlds like this we inhabit, and that theſe Eight Parts of the Univerſe are governed by Eight Lieutenants of Bramha. They believe the Immortality of the Soul, but hold the Metempſychoſis or the Tranſmigration of the Soul from one Body into another; and they ſay, that the Soul of a mild Man paſſes into the Body of a Pigeon, or a Hen; that of a cruel Man, into the Body of a Tyger; that of a crafty Man, into that of a Fox; that of a Glutton, into that of a Hog; that of a Traitor, into the Body of a Serpent; and thus into other Beaſts according to the different Qualities of the Deceaſed. They believe that theſe Souls are retained in the Body of theſe Beaſts during a certain time before they can enjoy a Happineſs purely Spiritual: Therefore they have ſo much reſpect for Beaſts and Inſects, that they found Hoſpitals for the wounded or ſick Animals, and redeem Birds taken by the Mahometans, thinking they render this Service perhaps to one of their Kindred, and that after death, care ſhould alſo be taken of their Souls. Some ſay, that the Souls of thoſe who have done good Actions, paſs into the Body of a King, a Prince, or a great Lord. The Bramens are very much reſpected by the Banians in all the Indies, but thoſe of the Coaſt of Malabar have for them an extraordinary deference; for the Bridegroom preſents his Wife to a Bramen, to diſpoſe of her before the Conſummation of the Marriage, that he may be happy and bleſſed. They have amongſt the Banians the Direction of the Affairs of Religion, whereof they expound the Myſteries, and by this Means gain great Credit amongſt the Simple People, who conſult 'em upon all Emergencies as infallible Oracles. They have alſo the Care of the Schools, where they Teach Children to Read, Write, and Caſt Accounts. What augments the Veneration People have for them, is the auſterity of their Life, and their frequent Faſtings, which are ſo rigorous, that ſometimes they are three or four days without eating, at leaſt they make People believe ſo. Mandeſlo.

BRAMHAL, (John) Lord Primate of Ireland, was born at Pontefract in Yorkſhire in 1593. He was a Gentleman of an Ancient Family, deſcended from the Bramhal's of Bramhal-Hall in Cheſhire. He was Educated at Cambridge, where he took the Degree of Maſter of Arts, from thence he removed to a Benefice in Yorkſhire, and engaging a Jeſuit in a Conference about Tranſubſtantiation, had the advantage in the Diſpute: Upon this, he was made Chaplain to Matthews, Archbiſhop of York; and not long after Prebendary of York and Rippon. He was competently Skill'd in the Common and Statute Laws of England, (a Study generally too much neglected by the Clergy.) He Commenc'd Doctor of Divinity at Cambridge. In 1633. he reſign'd all his Preferments in England, and went over, upon Invitation, into Ireland: And, by the Recommendation of the Lord Strafford, then Deputy, was made Biſhop of Derry. At his coming to Ireland, he found the Revenues of the Church miſerably waſted, and for the Remedy of this Miſchief, procured ſeveral Acts of Parliament for ſecuring the Eccleſiaſtical Revenue; Among others, an Act for the Preſervation of the Inheritance, Rights, and Profits of Lands belonging to the Church and Perſons Eccleſiaſtical. He regain'd the Rights of the Church by Argument, Law, and Purchaſe; got Fee-Farms ſurrendered, and recover'd between Thirty and forty thouſand Pounds per Annum in Four years time. By his Intereſt and Sollicitation, the Nine and Thirty Articles of the Church of England were paſs'd in the Convocation at Dublin, and a new Book of Canons made, into which ſeveral of the Engliſh Canons were incorporated. Afterwards, Affairs growing troubleſome in that Kingdom, he was Impeach'd and Impriſon'd at the Proſecution of Sir Bryan O Neal; but the Impeachment appearing Unreaſonable and Malicious, he was ſet at Liberty by the King's Order. He had like to have been deſtroy'd by a Malicious Contrivance of Sir Phelim O Neal, Head of the Iriſh Rebels: This Gentleman had a Deſign to get the Biſhop and his Reputation Murther'd at the ſame time; To this purpoſe, he directs a Letter to his Lordſhip at Derry, in which he deſires, that according to their Articles, ſuch a Gate ſhould be delivered to him, at his approach. The Garriſon, being upon their Defence, and expecting the Enemy, Sir Phelim knew the Letter would be open'd before it came to the Biſhop's Hands, and the Scots, upon ſeeing the Contents (tho' altogether falſe) would not fail to Murther him: But, by the Providence of God, the Meſſenger ſent with this Letter, deſerted, and ran away with it, the Plot never coming to light, till Sir Phelim himſelf diſcover'd it. The Rebellion gaining ground in Ireland, the Biſhop comes over for England, and does the King great Service in the Civil Wars. After the Battel of Marſton-Moor, which the Biſhop diſſwaded, he ſet Sail for Bruſſels; During his being beyond Sea, he wrote againſt Monſieur Militieri, the Biſhop of Chalcedon, &c. At the Reſtauration he was made Archbiſhop of Armagh, and Speaker of the Houſe of Lords in the Parliament of Dublin. The Charge abovementioned againſt him, and the Lord Strafford, are torn out of the Journals of Both Houſes. To conclude, He was very conſiderable in the Argumentative part of Learning, a great Controverſial Divine, a good Governor and Stateſman, and had a Courage ſuitable to his Character and Principles. He was far from being ſtraight Lac'd in his Notions, or Uncharitable in his Cenſures, being Famous for his Diſtinction between Articles of Peace and Articles of Faith. See his Life before his Works in Folio.

BRAMPOUR, a City of the Province of Candis in the Empire of the Great Mogul. Moſt of its Houſes are ruinous, but there is yet ſtanding a great Caſtle in the middle of the City, where the Governor of that Province reſides, and which is ſo conſiderable, that it is given to none but to the Kings Son, or to his Uncle. But ſince the Wealth and Revenue of the Province of Bengala came to be known, its Government is the firſt of the Empire of the Great Mogul. They make at Brampour, and in all the reſt of the Province, a vaſt quantity of Cotton Cloth, which is tranſported into Perſia, Turkey, Moſcovia, Poland, Arabia, Great Cairo, and elſewhere; ſome are Dyed in ſeveral Colours, and imbelliſh'd with Flowers; others left all White, with a Stripe or two of Gold and Silver along the Piece, and at each of the Two Ends there is a Thread woven with Gold or Silver and Silk, with Flowers; This Cloth has no outſide, the one ſide being as fine as the other. Some of theſe Cloths are Striped, half Cotton, and half Gold or Silver, and theſe Pieces are called Ornis. Tavernier Voyage des Indes.

BRAMPTON, a Market Town in Cumberland, in Eskdale Ward, not far from the Picts Wall, 225 miles from London

BRAMYARD, a Market Town of Broxach Hundred in the Eaſt of Herefordſhire, ſeated on the River Frome, 104 miles from London.

BRANCACIO, a Family. The Family of Brancacio is of the moſt ancient and noble of the Kingdom of Naples, where it has produced the Branches of Brancacio Imbriachi, Brancacio del Veſcavo, Brancacio del Glivolo, and Brancacio del Cardinale. It was alſo eſtabliſhed in France 300 years ago, and known under the Name of Brancas.

BRANCACIO, (Francis) Cardinal, Biſhop of Viterbo, of the Houſe of Brancacio abovemention'd. He was a Perſon of Worth and Learning, and amongſt other Pieces, wrote one about Chocolate. After the Death of Clement the Ninth, in 1669. he was propoſed in the Conclave to ſucceed him, but his Election miſcarried by the Intereſt of the Spaniards.

BRANCASTER, Lat. Branodunum, a Town in the North-weſt parts of Norfolk, was of great Note in the time of the Romans, who kept a Garriſon in it.

BRANCHIDES, Prieſts of the Temple of Apollo, which was at Didymus in Inia, a Province of Leſſer Aſia, towards the Egean Sea, upon the Frontiers of Caria. The Inhabitants of Didymus had alſo the ſame Name. They opened to Xerxes the Temple of Apollo, whoſe Riches he took all away. After which, thinking it unſafe to ſtay in Greece, they fled into Sogdiana, on the other ſide the Caſpian Sea, upon the Frontiers of Perſia, where they built a City, which they named Branchides; but they eſcaped not the puniſhment of their Crime; for Alexander having conquered Darius King of Perſia, and being informed of their Treachery, put 'em all to the Sword, and raſed their City, puniſhing the Impiety of the Fathers in their Poſterity. Suidas, Q. Curt. l. 3.

BRANCUS, King of the Allobroges, the ancient People of Dauphiné, lived in the time of Hannibal. He was diſturbed in the poſſeſſion of his Kingdom by his younger Brother, who had drawn into his Party all the young People, and had almoſt baniſhed him out of his States. Hannibal being choſen Arbitrator of this Quarrel, after he had Examined the Reaſons on both ſides, pronounced in favour of the Eldeſt, who acknowledged his Obligation in furniſhing him with Proviſions, and all that could be neceſſary for his Army for the paſſing the Alps. Liv. Lib. 21.

BRANDENBOURG, a Country of Germany, with the Title of Marquiſate, and Electorate of the Empire, betwixt Pruſſia, Pomerania, Mecklebourg, Upper and Lower Saxony, the Dutchy of Brunſwick, and Luſatia. It is divided into Three Parts, or Marches, i. e. Marquiſates, Old Marche, or Altemark on the Weſt of the Elbe; the Middle or Mittelmark betwixt the Elbe and the Oder; and the New Marche, or New Mark on the Eaſt of the Oder. The Elbe diſcharges it ſelf into the Ocean, and the Oder into the Baltick Sea; and of late there has been a great Channel made for the joyning of theſe Two Rivers together by the Havel: So the Commerce has been facilitated, and People endeavoured to free themſelves from the Payment of the Duties of the Sound. Berlin is the Capital City of the Country, upon the Sprehe, as well as Brandenbourg, which is alſo a City. The others are Francfort upon the Oder, Tangermund upon the Elbe, Seunemberg, Landſperg, Havelberg, Verben, &c. with the Fortreſs of Kuſtrin, Spandau and Peits. This Country is good and fertile, and the Inhabitants are almoſt all Lutherans, though the Elector of Brandenbourg is a Calviniſt. The Electoral Dignity is annex'd to the Marquiſate; but beſides that, it has the Dutchies of Pruſſia and Cleves, with thoſe of Croſſen and Jargendorf in Sileſia, the Principalities of Alberſtad and Minden; the Reverſion of the Dutchy of Magdebourg, Lower Pomerania, with the Adminiſtration of the Biſhoprick of Camin. The Five laſt were yielded to him by the Peace of Weſtphalia in 1648. with the Fort of Wiltzbourg, for part of Pomerania, which he yielded to the Swedes. There are beſides in the Family of Brandenbourg, the Marquiſates of Culembach, Anſpach, or Onſpach, the County of Ravenſbourg, &c. the Fortreſſes of Ruſtrin, Pillau, Memel, Colberg in Pomerania, Drieſſen. The Poſſeſſions of the Elector of Brandenbourg are conſiderable, extending from the Dutchy of Cleves unto Pruſſia, diſtant from one another the ſpace of 200 German Miles; but his States are not united. The Family of Brandenbourg is divided into Three Branches. In the Order of the Aſſemblies, he is the laſt ſave one of the Electors, ſince the Eighth Electorate hath been created. He has his Seat and Voice as Prince of Halberſtad and Minden. As Duke of the farthermoſt Pomerania, he takes his Turn with the Duke of hithermoſt Pomerania, for the Suffrage which belongs to them in common; and as Duke of Magdebourg, he does the like with the Duke of Bremin in the Direction of the inferior Circle of Saxony, whereof he is a Member. His younger Brothers are called to the States, and give in their Opinion each apart; but they cannot Definitively Judge their Subjects, if the Sum exceeds 400 Florins, of the Rhine, which are about 60 l. Sterling. The Elector of Brandenbourg is Grand Chamberlain of the Empire: He has his Place on the Right-hand of the Duke of Saxony, and carries the Scepter before the Emperor. In diſcharging at Solemnities the Duty of Great Chamberlain, he rides on Horſeback from the Hall-Door to the Cupboard, where he takes the Baſon, the Ewer, and the Napkin, and then he returns after the ſame manner, and alighting, he pours out Water for the Emperor to waſh his Hands. The Country of Brandenbourg has been in times paſt poſſeſſed by the Teutons, the Suevians, and afterwards by the Semnons or Sennonois, the Vandals, and the Saxons. The latter were ſubdued by Charlemain. Brandenbourg was then poſſeſſed partly by the Henetians. The Emperor Henry the Fowler defeated them about the year 927. and made Sigefroy, Count of Rifugelheim, Brother to the Empreſs, Marquis, that is, Governor of that Marche or Frontier. In the Marquiſate of Brandenbourg, with its Dependencies, are 55 large Cities, 64 great Towns, 16 leſſer Towns, 38 Caſtles, 17 Abbeys, and 10 large Deer-Parks. The Country produces Coral, Eagle-Stone, Plume-Allum, and other rare Stones. Authors ſpeak differently of the Original of the Noble and Powerful Family of Brandenbourg, for ſome are of Opinion that the Marquis of Baden, the Arch-Duke of Auſtria, and Marquis of Brandenbourg, are deſcended of the ancient Family of Alſace; but it's more probable that the Counts of Zolern, or Hohen-Zolern in Suevia, from whom the preſent ſent Elector is lineally deſcended, were the Off-ſpring of Peter Colonne, baniſhed out of Italy by Pope Paſchal II. as being a Guelph, and endowed with large Poſſeſſions by the Emperor Henry V. in Suabia. We will begin at Conrad, Count of Zolern, who having Married Ann, Heireſs to the Burgrave of Nuremburg, was inveſted in the Burgraviate by the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa: Frederick I. his Succeſſor, dy'd in 1218. whoſe eldeſt Son Conrad dying without Iſſue, his Brother Frederick II. ſucceeded, who left Two Sons. Conrad III. who gave all his Poſſeſſions to Pious Uſes, and made his Three Sons Clergymen; and Frederick III. who was ſucceeded by John I. and this by John II. who left Frederick V. Father of John III. Burgrave of Nuremberg, and of Frederick VI. Firſt Elector of Brandenbourg, of the Family of Zolern, who ſold a great part of the Burgraviate to the City of Nuremberg; made War againſt Pomerania and the Huſſites, and againſt Bernard Duke of Saxe-Lawenburg. Frederick II. Sirnamed Ironteeth, ſucceeded him, refuſed the Crowns of Poland and Bohemia, which was offered him, was choſen Protector of the Council of Baſil in 1434. made War againſt Bohemia for Luſatia in 1461. and againſt the Duke of Pomerania, about the Succeſſion; and in 1470. reſigned his Electoral Dignity to his Brother Albert, to go into the Holy Land. This Albert, Sirnamed the Ulyſſes and Achilles of Germany, was ſo powerful, that the Emperor did nothing without his Advice, which gave People occaſion to ſay, that Albert adminiſtred the Empire by the Emperor Frederick. He made a Compact of Mutual Succeſſion with the Houſe of Saxony and Heſſe. His Son John, called the Great for his Stature, and the Cicero of Germany for his Eloquence, was ſucceeded by Joachim I. called Neſtor Germanicus, a very Learned Prince, who excelled particularly in the Knowledge of Languages, Mathematicks, Aſtrology and Hiſtory, founded the Univerſity of Frankfort upon the Oder, and was ſo Zealous a Papiſt, that he deſign'd to have impriſon'd Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter of John, King of Denmark, for Embracing Luther's Doctrine; puniſhed 38 Jews and one Chriſtian, the laſt for ſelling an Hoſt to the other, and them for running their Knives into it. His Son Joachim II. made open Profeſſion of Lutheraniſm, was declar'd General of the Imperial Army in 1542. broke the Power of the Turks, and was poyſon'd by a Jewiſh Doctor in 1571. John George, his Son, reveng'd his Death, baniſh'd the Jews out of his Dominions, renewed the Agreement of Mutual Succeſſion with the Houſe of Saxony and Heſſe, and dy'd in 1598. Joachim Frederick, Archbiſhop of Magdeburg, ſucceeded his Father, and dy'd of an Apoplexy in 1608. His Son John Sigiſmond ſucceeded, and in 1614 embrac'd Calvin's Doctrine, Married Ann, Eldeſt Daughter of Albert Frederick Duke of Pruſſia, and of Mary Eleonor of Cleves, by whom he had a Right to the Dukedoms of Pruſſia and Cleves; he dy'd in 1619. His Son George William ſucceeded, and at firſt ſided with Guſtavus Adolphus, but afterwards turn'd his Arms againſt the Swedes, who had poſſeſſed themſelves of ſeveral Places in Pomerania: He dy'd in 1640. and was ſucceeded by Frederick William the Great, who for his Power in the Empire, and incredible Experience of Things, was eſteem'd the common Father of Germany. In a word, He was a Pious, Victorious, Juſt, and Merciful Prince, one of the Heroes of the Age, and a Zealous Aſſerter of the Proteſtant Religion. His Siſter Loviſa Charlotte was Married to James Duke of Curland in 1645. and Hedwidge Sophia Married in 1649 to William Landgrave of Heſſe Caſſell. Frederick William took to his firſt Wife, in 1646. Loviſa Henrietta of Naſſau, Daughter to Fredrick Henry, Prince of Orange, and Amelia Counteſs of Solm. This Electoreſs dying in 1667. he took to his ſecond Wife, in 1668. Dorothy of Holſace, Daughter to Philip Duke of Holſace Glucksbourg, and Widow of Chriſtian Duke of Lunenbourg Zell: He had 13 Children by both; by the firſt, 1. William Henry, born in 1648. who dy'd in 1649. 2. Charles Æmilius, born in 1655. and dy'd in 1674. 3. Frederick III. born in 1657. 4, 5. Henry and Amalia, Twins, born in 1664. but both dead. 6. Lewis, born in 1668. who Married Loviſa Charlotte Ratzivilia, dy'd Iſſueleſs in 1687. 7. Philip William, born in 1669. gave ſeveral Proofs of Valour againſt the French in the late War. By the ſecond Wife he had 8. Maria Amilia, born in 1670. BRAWER, (Adrian) an Excellent Painter, Native of Oudenard in Flanders, whoſe Facetious and Burleſk Paintings were admired, as well as his Miniatures, which ſometimes were ſold for their Weight in Gold. He got himſelf a Reputation in Holland, and at Antwerp, where he dy'd, being but 32 years of Age, conſumed with Debaucheries, and ſo Poor, that he did not leave wherewithall to Bury him: Yet he was Interred in the Cloiſter of the Carmelites of Antwerp, whence he has been ſince removed to their Church, where the Magiſtrates have Erected him a Magnificent Tomb, with an Epitaph to his Praiſe. Acad. Pict.

BRAY, a Word, which either begins or ends the Names of ſeveral Places in France; it comes from Braium, which in the ancient Language of the Gauls, ſignifies Puddle, Mariſh, or a Moiſt Place. This we learn from the ancient Manuſcript of the Miracles of St. Bernard, Abbot of Clervaux; which is a confuſed Collection of ſeveral Pieces, where theſe Words are to be found: Caſtrum Braium quod lutum interpretatur; in ſpeaking of Bray upon Seine, in the Dioceſs of Sens, in a Marſhy Place. There is alſo Bray upon Somme in Picardy; Bray upon Epte in Normandy, in the Country of Vexin, whereof mention is made in the Actions of Lewis VII. King of France; and a Bray in Burgundy, upon the Armanſon, near Semur, in the Territory of Aliſe, &c. Amongſt the Places of France, whoſe Names end in Bray, theſe are the Chief, Guibray in Normandy, near Falaiſe, renowned for its Fairs; Vaubray, in the Neighbourhood of Langres; Follunbray, in the Dioceſe of Laon, one of the Royal Houſes of Francis I. and Henry II. of which Hincmar, Biſhop of Laon, makes mention in a Letter, which he directs to another Hincmar, Biſhop of Rheims; Tinchebray, in the Country of Perche: All which Places have taken their Names from the Nature of the Wet and Marſhy Ground whereon they are ſituated. *Adr. BRECHIN, or Breckyn, Brechinium, a Town of Bohemia with a Fortreſs, ſituated upon the ſmall River of Laucnitz near Tabor, was often taken and retaken, during the Wars of the Taborites.

BRECKNOCK, Lat. Brechinia, the chief Place of Brecknockſhire in South-Wales, is ſeated at the confluence of the Usk and the Outhy; This Town has good Walls about it, with Three Gates for entrance, and Ten Towers for defence, beſides an old Caſtle, which in its ruinous condition, ſhews a great deal of Magnificence: It hath alſo a fair Stone Bridge, and Three Churches, of which one is Collegiate; The Houſes are well built and inhabited, and neatly compacted: It's Govern'd by Two Bailiffs, has a good Trade for Cloathing, and Two good Markets on Wedneſdays and Saturdays; from Lond. 161.

BRECKNOCK-MEES, is a large Pool Two Miles from Brecknock, containing ſome Miles in compaſs, call'd by the Welſh, Linſavethen; Here were in times paſt plenty of Otters.

BRECKNOCKSHIRE, Brechinenſis Comitatus, an Inland County of South-Wales, is ſo called from Brecknock its Principal Place: It lies between the Counties of Radnor on the North, Glamorgan on the South, Hereford and Monmouthſhires on the Eaſt, and Cardigan and Carmarthenſhires on the Weſt; ſo that it reaches from N. to S. about 28 miles in breadth, from E. to W. 30. The whole divided into ſix Hundreds, wherein are 61 Pariſh Churches, and 4 Market Towns, anciently inhabited by the Silures, and now in the Dioceſe of St. David's: A Country much like the reſt of Wales, ſwelling into Hills of a lean, and hungry Nature; but the Valleys therein ſo well Watered by many freſh Springs, that they make plentiful amends by their fruitfulneſs. Beſides the River Wye, which parts it from Radnorſhire, here the Usk has its riſe, which Waters the South part of it; As for the Wonder of Mounch-Denny, and the Meer Llynſwathen, they will be found under thoſe Names. Brecknock is the only Place in this County privileged to ſend a Member to Parliament, beſides a Knight of the Shire.

BREDA, upon the River of Merke, a City of the Low-Countreys in Brabant, with the Title of Barony: It is three or four Leagues from the Sea, eight from Antwerp, ſix from Boiſleduc, a little leſs from Bergen-Op-Zoom, and one of the ſtrongeſt Places of the Low-Countreys The Barony comprehends now about ſeventeen Villages, but it had more formerly, and Bergen-Op-Zoom did then depend upon it. Breda had anciently particular Lords of its own, and was ſometime in poſſeſſion of the D. of Brabant; but John III. Duke of Brabant, ſold it again in 1350. to John Polon, Lord of Lieck, who left an only Daughter Johanna, Married in 1404. to Engelbert of Naſſau. Henry of Naſſau begun the Caſtle of Breda, where the Tomb of Renatus of Naſſau is to be ſeen in the Collegiate Church of St. Peter, founded about 1303. This City ſuffered very much towards the end of the latter Age, during the War betwixt the States and the Spaniards. The Prince of Parma took it from the United Provinces, July 18.

1581. Maurice of Naſſau became Maſter of it again in 1590. The Stratagem was a Boat loaden with Turff, under which he hid 60 Soldiers, who render'd themſelves Maſters of the Caſtle, and he afterwards took the City by Capitulation. They tell a very remarkable thing of one of theſe Soldiers who was hidden under the Turff, viz. That not being able to abſtain from Coughing, he deſired one of his Companions to kill him, for fear his Cough ſhould diſcover the Enterprize. The Hollanders kept Breda until 1625. that the Marquis of Spinola, General of the Troops of Spain, beſieged it Auguſt 27. 1624. and took it the 5th of June next year. This Loſs afflicted the Hollanders extreamly; but they retook it in 1637. Frederick Henry, Prince of Orange, having beſieged it Wedneſday, July 22. and took it on Sunday, October 11. ſince which time, the Hollanders are Maſters of that City. It is of a Triangular Figure, and its Ramparts bordered all round with young Elms, are of Turf. At each Angle there is a Gate built with Brick, and the Curtins are flanked with fifteen Bulwarks mounted with Cannon. Breda however is not very well built, yet there is a pretty fair Street in it; the Caſtle is fortified, the Town-houſe and ſome other Places indifferent: It is in a Marſhy-Ground, and often overflown. Its Fields are plentiful in Paſtures, watered by the Rivers of Ade and Merke, which being joined, enter into the City, and form divers Chanels. It has produced ſeveral Great Men, and ſeveral Writers, as Adam Kecelius, Anthony Buſennius, William Abſelius, Gerard of Breda, &c. The Ancient Fortifications of this Town were lately repaired, and new ones added by the Prince of Orange, ſo that now it is a large Regular City, and is both by Nature and Art thought impregnable: Beſides the Ramparts, which are all ſupported by very ſtrong Brick Arches, and raiſed above the Houſes of the Place, there are Two Pair of Out-works, each of which are ſurrounded by broad, deep Waters. It is 27 Mile North Eaſt of Antwerp, 20 Weſt of Boiſleduc, 24 from Rotterdam, and 52 South of Amſterdam.

BREDERODE, a Caſtle in Holland near Harlem, which gave Sirname to a Noble Family of the United-Provinces. Henry Brederode was one of the Heads of the Confederate Proteſtants of the Low-Countreys: He preſented divers Memorials and Petitions to Margaret of Parma, and cauſed Braſs Money to be Coyned with the Arms of the Houſe of Burgundy, having this Motto on one ſide, Per tela, per ignes; and on the other, Inſigne Vianenſe. Brederode pretended to be independent Lord thereof, as deriving his Original from the Earls of Flanders. This happened in 1567. in the mean time the face of Affairs being changed, he put himſelf into a Ship with his Family, and what Moveables he could tranſport, and went to Embden, and thence into Germany, where ſoon after he died of Grief. His Widow, who was of the Houſe of the Earls of Meurs, a Woman of a great Courage, Married the Elector Palatine afterward. Lancelot Brederode, one of the Chief of the ſame Confederates, was Beheaded, after the taking of Harlem in 1573. There was alſo Peter Cornelius of Brederode, of the Hague in Holland, a famous Lawyer, who lived in the Sixteenth Century, and Publiſhed divers Tractates of Law. Theſaurus ſententiarum, regularum & dictionum Juris Civilis, which Francis Modius has augmented, and Printed under the Name of Repertorium. Specimen Juris. Loci communes in Bartolum. Tractatus de appellationibus, &c. Thuanus, Strada, Grotius.

BREFORT, Bredefort, or Brederwoerde, a ſmall Town of the Low-Countreys, in the County of Zutphen: It is ſituated pretty ſtrong, in a Marſhy place, with a pretty good Caſtle. Maurice Prince of Orange took in this Town, in 1597. by Storm, the Garriſon conſiſting of 300 Men; it is within two Leagues of Grol, and about as much from Anholt, near a Canal which falls into the Iſſel.

BREGENTS, a ſmall Town of Germany, with the Title of a County: It is ſituated upon a River of the ſame Name, was formerly reckoned part of the Griſons Country, but now part of Suabia, and united to Tirol. Under its Wooden Bridge are a great many Corn and Gunpowder Mills.

BRELAND, a ſmall Iſland near the Weſtern Coaſt of Cornwall, and but a few Miles North from the Lands End.

BREMA, upon the River Menan, a City and Kingdom of the Indies in the Peninſula, beyond the Ganges, near Pegu, which lies on the South. Some ſay that the King of the Country dwells at Corpa; and others, that he makes his ordinary Reſidence at Brema. His other Cities are Abdiara, Vilep, &c. This Prince is Powerful, and the Country has Mines of Precious Stones, Benjamin, Lacca, and certain Herbs, whence Silk is ſaid to be drawn.

BREMEFERDE, or Bremerferdes, a Town of the Dutchy of Bremen, in Lower Saxony, with a good Caſtle, where the Governor of the Dutchy reſides.

BREMEN, an Hanſe Town in Lower-Saxony, upon the Weſer. It had in times paſt the Title of Archbiſhoprick; but ſince the Peace of Weſtphalia, in 1648. this Dioceſe has been ſecularized, and granted to the King of Swedeland, under the Title of Dutchy. But the Town of Bremen is governed as a Common-wealth and free City. It was conſiderable in the Eighth Age, when Charlemain founded an Archbiſhoprick in it about 788. and made it Metropolis of the North, having united the Church of Hambourg with it. Latin Authors name it diverſly, Brema, and Bremenſis Civitas, and they take it for the Phabiranum of Ptolemy. The Prelates took care to augment, beautifie, and fortifie it. In the laſt Age it received the Reformation, and appeared one of the moſt zealous Proteſtant Cities, and the Archbiſhop, in vain, endeavoured to reduce it. In 1547. Groenghen, Governor of Zealand, beſieged it, by the Emperor Charles V's Order, and was killed there. After his Death, Colonel Uribergue commanded till the 15th of March, that Henry Duke of Brunſwick ſucceeded; but finding his Labour to be in vain, he raiſed the Siege the 23d of May following. Whereupon the Emperor made ſuch heavy complaints againſt the City of Bremen at the Diet of Ausbourg in 1550. In that ſame Age the Suedes alſo beſieged it, but in vain. Its Territory conſiſts of three or four Leagues. The River Weſer, which there receives the Ems, divides it into two, the one called the New Town, and the other the Old, both equally ſtrong, though they are not of the ſame Extent. It is ſituated upon a Peninſula, which has a ſtrong Caſtle at the end, and the two parts of the City have Communication by Bridges, the greateſt of which has a ſingular Engine, being a Wheel of admirable Height to draw up Water, which it diſtributes to all the Places of the City. Under its Wooden Bridge are a great many Corn and Gun-powder Mills. The Old Town has great Streets which center at a Square, where ſtands the Statue of Charlemain; on that ſide is alſo the Town-Houſe, the ancient Metropolitan Church of St. John, and ſome others. The New Town has the Arſenal, the College, and divers Hoſpitals. Bremen is a City of War and Traffick: Its Beer is renowned all over Germany and the Low-Countreys. It lies about 15 Leagues from Hamburg, eight or ten from Oldenburgh, and a little more from the Mouth of the Weſer.

BREMEN, or Dutchy of Bremen, a Province of Germany in Lower Saxony; lies betwixt the Elbe, Weſer, and the Sea. The Town of Bremen gives its Name, but is ſeparated from it. The Governor keeps at Bremerferde; and beſides this Town, there are thoſe of Staden, Bruxtehud, Humeſport, and ſeveral Boroughs. The Germans and Danes took this Dutchy from the Swedes in 1675.

BREMGARTEN, in Latin Bremocartum, a ſmall Town of Switzerland, with a Bayliwick belonging to the eight ancient Cantons. It ſtands upon the River of Ruſs, betwixt Baden, Soleurre, Zurich, and Lucerne.

BRENE, (Walter) Duke of Athens, was ſent in 1341. by Robert King of Naples, with ſome Soldiers, to aſſiſt the Florentines againſt the Piſans. Being arrived at Florence, he put Malateſta, Lord of Rimini, who maintained the Party of that Republick, out of Credit, and gained ſo much upon the Florentines, that they entruſted him with the Government of their City, and the general Command of their Armies. The Duke ſeeing himſelf in Credit, aſpired at the Sovereignty: At firſt he got himſelf to be choſen, during Life, Lord of the City and State of Florence; but this diſpleaſed the Senators, and bred many Malecontents. The Duke diſſembled what was ſaid of him; and to perſuade the People that he did not believe that the Nobility was capable of conſpiring againſt him, he cauſed publickly to be put to Death ſeveral Perſons who had informed him of the Deſigns againſt him; but in fine, the Conſpirators having choſen for their Heads the Adimari, the Medicis, and the Donati, reſolved to make a general Rebellion in the City. This Deſign was executed, and the Duke's Palace was inviron'd. He reſiſted for a while, but was at laſt conſtrained to deſire an Accommodation, and obtained, by much Intreaty, that he might go out of the City with his Life, provided he would put into the Hands of the People the Conſervator and his Son, and Cerretieri Viſdomini. His Men, who were no longer willing to endure Famine in the beſieged Palace, took the Conſervator's Son, and flung him as a Prey to the Fury of the Conſpirators, who maſſacred and cut him in pieces. They afterwards demanded the Father, whom they had alſo delivered unto them, and dealt more cruelly with him than the Son; and ſome were ſo inhumane, as to eat the Fleſh of theſe two Lords, broiling it on the Coals before they were quite dead. In the mean time Viſdomini found means to make his Eſcape. On the third day Articles were drawn betwixt the Florentines, and the Duke, who left the Caſtle, and retired with his Family.

BRENE, or Breine-Aleu, a ſmall Town of the Low-Countreys in Brabant. It is very ancient, and lies within two or three Leagues of Bruſſels, where there is ſtill Brentle-Chateau.

BRENIUS, (Daniel) Diſciple to Epiſcopius, a famous Arminian, but his Doctrine is altogether Socinian, in the ſhort Commentaries on the Bible; neither did Sandius omit to reckon him in the Number of the other Unitarians, in his Bibliotheque of Anti-trinitarians. He joined with the Mennonites of Holland, amongſt whom are many Socinians. Beſides his Commentary upon the Bible, he has compoſed ſeveral other Works, whereof ſome are written in Flemiſh; the Catalogue of them may be ſeen in Sandius's Bibliotheque. He compoſed, amongſt other things, a Treatiſe, Entituled, De Regno Eccleſiæ glorioſo per Chriſtum in terris erigendo; where he endeavours to prove this Kingdom of Jeſus Chriſt upon Earth, by ſeveral Paſſages of Scripture, chiefly of the Prophets; wherein he is oppoſite to Socinus, who believed that this Temporal Kingdom of Jeſus Chriſt upon Earth, which ſome Unitarians pretended to found on the Prophecies and Revelation of St. John, did entirely ruine the Chriſtian Religion, and uphold the Principles of the Jews, who expect the Reign of their Meſſiah to re-eſtabliſh them in Jeruſalem.

BRENNUS, a Captain of the Gauls, was in great eſteem amongſt his Country-men: He paſſed with a puiſſant Army into Italy, in the 363d of Rome, about 390 before Chriſt, and after having made great Conqueſt, laid Siege to Cluſium, now Chiuſi, in Tuſcany. The Inhabitants being preſſed, demanded the Succour of the Romans, whoſe Ambaſſadors, after having made their Addreſs to the Gauls, fought for thoſe of Cluſium, which occaſioned the Gauls to lay Siege to Rome. In effect, after having fought the Romans near the River of Allia, they carried the City in 364. and ranſack'd it; but were beaten off from before the Capitol by Camillus, with great Loſs, and driven out of Italy; if we believe Livy, who ſays, That the Gauls having plundered the City attacked the Capitol, but raiſed the Siege upon the Romans agreeing to pay them a certain Number of Talents of Gold, which, as they were weighing, Brennus drew his Sword, and would have that Weight too; the Romans refuſed this as altogether beſides the Bargain and Unjuſt, which occaſioned a Debate; during which, Camillus pour'd his Forces upon the Gauls, forced them away with great Slaughter, and without their Gold. But Hoffman is of a different Opinion, which he confirms by the Authority of Trogus Pompeius a Roman, and of Polybius, who had all his Dependance on the Romans, and therefore was not like to blemiſh them in a Matter that concerned their Honour as much as this did. The firſt introduces the Ætolians, ſpeaking thus to the Roman Ambaſſadors. Adverſus Gallos urbem eos ſuam tueri non potuiſſe, captamque non ferro ſed auro redimiſſe. And Polybius, ſpeaking of the Return of the Gauls, ſays, they went off, Habentes emolumentum; which had been falſe, and not ſafe for him to ſay, had the thing happened as Livy writes. Tit. Liv. Florus.

BRENNUS, another Gauliſh Captain, being at the Head of 152000 Foot, and 20000 Horſe, he entred Macedonia, killed Soſthenes, ravaged Theſſaly, and paſſed into Greece by the Streight of the Thermopylæ, in the ſecond Year of the 125th Olympiad, under the Archon Anaxicrates, in the 476th of Rome, 3778 of the World, and 278 before Jeſus Chriſt. After having ruined the whole Country, he advanced to Phocis, to plunder the famous Temple of Delphos, where he loſt his Life, with part of his Troops.

BRENT, a Market Town of Stanborough in Devonſhire, 168 Miles from London.

BRENTFORD, a Market Town of Elthorn Hundred in Middleſex, is ſix Miles from London, and lies upon the Thames, in the Weſtern Road, called Brentford from Brent, a ſmall River that runs here into the Thames; otherwiſe, New, Great, and Weſt Brentford, to diſtinguiſh it from the Old, or Little Brentford, which lies about a Mile Eaſt from it. Here King Edmund Ironſide overcame the Danes in the Year 1016. which made them raiſe the Siege of London. Here was alſo a Battel fought November the 12th, 1642. betwixt K. Charles I. and the Parliament's Forces, in which the King's ſide got the Reputation of a Victory, more than the Effect thereof; Two years after this, the King created Patrick Ruthen, then Earl of Forth in Scotland, Earl of Brentford, which Title was extinct with him.

BRENTIUS, or Brentzen, (John) a Proteſtant Miniſter, and one of the Faithfulleſt Diſciples of Luther, was Native of Will, a ſmall Borough of Suabia, where he was born in 1499. He ſtudied at Heidelburg with Melancthon and Bucer. The reading of Luther's Books, and ſome Converſation that he had with the Chief of the Proteſtants, convinced him, ſo that he Preached that Doctrine publickly. He Married a young Widow, named Margaret Greterine, and Preach'd and Writ againſt the Celebacy of the Clergy and the Maſs. Chriſtopher, Son to Uric, Duke of Wirtemberg, made him his ordinary Councellor, loaded him with Riches, and mentioned him on all Occaſions as a Man for whom he had a particular Eſteem. Brentius had a Hand in all the great Affairs of his Time, concerning Religion, and therefore his Life was ſought after by the Emperor Charles V. He was Head of the Party after Luther's Death, about 1550. He loſt his Wife, by whom he had four Children. He Married another, Named Catharine Iſemmane, by whom he had twelve. Brentius compoſed two or three Confeſſions of Faith; He was called to ſeveral Conferences about uniting the Lutherans and Calviniſts, and died September the 11th, 1570. aged 72. We have ſeveral Works of his in eight Volumes. He is looked upon as the Patriarch of the Ubiquitarians.

BRESCH, an ancient Town built by the Romans, upon the Mediterranean Sea, (37 Leagues Eaſt of Oran, and 20 Weſt of Algier, in the Kingdom of Tremeſen) which containeth many Inhabitants, moſt of them Weavers. The Inhabitants had a Cuſtom to make a Black Croſs on their Forehead and Hands, as they did alſo at Bugia and Algier in our Author's time, who ſaith, it is a Remainder of Chriſtianity, though they are now Mahemetans. It has Plenty of Figs, Barly, and Flax. This Town was conquered by Barbaroſſa the Turk, when he took Tremeſen, in 1534. which occaſioned the Expedition of Charles V. the next year into Barbary, where he defeated Barbaroſſa in a Battel. Leo African.

BRESIL, or Braſil, a great Country of Southern America, lying on the Sea, from the River of the Amazons, unto the Provinces of Paraguay. Its Coaſt is in Form of a great half Circle, of near 12000 Leagues, and the Sea waters it on three ſides. Alvarez Cabral was the firſt who diſcovered this Country, in 1501. having been driven thither by a Tempeſt, and erected a Pillar with the Arms of the King of Portugal his Maſter, and Americus Veſputius diſcovered it afterwards more exactly. The People there are all Naked, they neither Sow nor Reap, but live by Hunting, and upon the Fruits, which the Land produceth abundantly of its own accord. They eat their Enemies, whom they take, rather to ſatisfie their Revenge, than their Taſte; They have no Prince, no Laws, little Religion, and ſeveral amongſt them did not think that there was a God before they learned it from the Europeans. Thoſe in the Heart of the Country are ſtill unknown, and have mutual Wars: Modern Relations name a hundred Sorts of theſe People, which is but a few, in regard of thoſe we know not. The moſt famous, and beſt known, are the Margajas, the Toubinambours, the Morpious, Cariges, Tobajares, Paraibas, Ouetacas, the Petiguares, &c. The Portugueze have render'd themſelves Maſters of what they found moſt pleaſing and commodious along the Coaſt, where they eſtabliſhed divers Governments, which they call Captainſhips. There are now 14 of them along the Coaſt, from the River of the Amazons to Paraguay; to wit, Tamaraca the moſt ancient, Bahia de todos los Sanctos, the moſt famous; Pernambuco, Paras, Maraham, Ciara, Rio Grande, Paraiba, Seregippe, Los Iſleos, Porto Seguro, Spirito Sancto, Rio Janeiro, and St. Vincent. The principal Cities of Breſil, are Salvador of Bahia de todos los Sanctos, Olinda of Pernambuco, Puerto Seguro, St. Sebaſtian of Rio Janeiro, Spirito Sancto, Siera, and others, which bear the Name of Captainſhips. This Country, which gives Name to the ſort of Wood which we call Braſil, and which it abundantly furniſhes, was called the Country of the Holy Croſs, when Alvarez Cabral diſcovered it the firſt time in 1501. Though it is under the Torrid Zone, the Air is nevertheleſs temperate enough, and the Waters excellent: And ſome Relations aſſure us, that theſe People live to 150 years. They are of a middle Stature, have big Heads, large Shoulders, reddiſh Complexion, brown Skin, and value nothing ſo much as War and Revenge. They divert themſelves by Hunting, Fiſhing, and Feaſting. The Mandiache, a kind of Root, ſerves for Bread, and the Cumin ſerves for Malt to brew Drink; Salt or ſmoak'd Fleſh, or Fiſh, are their delicious Dainties. They alſo eat Serpents, Adders, Toads, &c. which are there without Poiſon. They Comb all their Body, upon which they leave no Hair, no, not ſo much as upon their Eye-brows; but a Crown only round about their Heads. They put to their Under-Lips, or Cheeks, ſome little Bone very well poliſhed, or a ſmall Stone, which they eſteem highly. Others cut their Skin in various Figures, and mix certain Colours which never wear out. They make themſelves Caps, Neck-Laces, Cloaks, Girdles, and Bracelets of Feathers of divers Colours. The Women do commonly let their Hair hang over their Shoulders. The Soil is more proper for Fruits, Paſtures, and Pulſe, than for the Grains and Vines of Europe; ſo that they have abundance of ſorts of Pulſe, Fruit-Trees, Herbs, Beaſts, Birds, and Fiſh, altogether unknown to us. They make great Advantage of their Palm-Trees. The Wood of Breſil comes from their Araboutan, which is a thick Tree without Fruit. Here are alſo ſome Mines of Gold, but many more of Silver. Here are alſo Saffron, Cotton, Red Wood, Lacca, Balſam, Tobacco, ſome Ambergreeſe, and Mines of Jaſper, with White and Red Chryſtal, and a very great quantity of Sugar, and amongſt other ſorts, that of Candi or Canti, whereof ſo great an Eſteem is made, takes Name from this Place, and neither from its Whiteneſs, nor from the Iſle of Candia, as has been thought. There is moreover ſuch a diverſity of Tongues amongſt the People of Breſil, that Jarric aſſures us, that in his time, there were 60 different ſorts. Thoſe who remain among the Portugueze are almoſt all Chriſtians, and inhabit the Aldees, dées, which are Villages conſiſting of no more than four or five Houſes; but ſo long, that they will contain more than 800 Perſons each. The Miſſionaries have made a great Progreſs there, and converted many of the Infidels.

BRESLAW upon the Oder, a Town of Germany, Capital of Sileſia, and of a particular Dutchy, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Gneſna, about 1033. or 35. The Latin Authors call it Uratiſlavia Budorgis, and Butorigum. It is one of the greateſt and faireſt of all Germany, and became conſiderable ſince the Eleventh Age. In 1109. Boleſlaus III. King of Poland, defeated the Emperor Henry V. there. It ſuffered much in the Thirteenth Age by the Incurſions of the Tartars, who burned it almoſt to the Ground; and it has been twice ſince almoſt deſtroyed by Fire, to which it is very ſubject, as being built moſtly of Wood. The Emperor Charles IV. who loved Breſlaw, enlarged it, and gave great Privileges to the Inhabitants, eſpecially in 1348. when he himſelf came to that City. Wenceſlaus, his Son, augmented thoſe Privileges; and they ſay he gave occaſion to the great Miſchief which happened there afterwards, by the Miſunderſtanding of the Inhabitants, and principally in 1418. The Emperor Sigiſmund, Brother to Wenceſlaus, cauſed Twenty two of the Ringleaders of the Sedition to be puniſhed; and ſince that time this City became extreamly flouriſhing. In the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Ages it had a ſhare in the Evils which afflicted Germany, during the Wars about Religion. Divers of its Inhabitants are Proteſtants, and the Emperors have been obliged to grant them particular Privileges, by the Thirteenth Article of the Treaty of Weſtphalia. The River of Oder ſerves both for a Rampart and Ornament, and Conveniency for Trade to Breſlaw, becauſe of the Merchandiſe which is carried thither from all Parts. It is watered on the other ſide by the little River Olan, which falls there into the Oder. Here are great Market-places, long and large Streets, fair Houſes, and magnificent Churches. The Town-Houſe, built in one of theſe Markets, is one of the faireſt Buildings of Germany, with a Clock, and an admirable Conſort of Trumpets, after the manner of the Country. Near to this, are three great Halls, where the richeſt Merchants have their Warehouſes and Shops. The New Market and the Salt-Market are alſo very fine Places. The fineſt Churches are thoſe of St. Magdalen and St. Elizabeth, which are in the hands of the Proteſtants. The Cathedral of St. John is in a Suburb of that Name, with a Collegial, called that of the Holy Croſs. There are alſo ſome Religious Houſes of Auguſtines, Franciſcans, and Jeſuits, who have a fine College there. Breſlaw is very ſtrong, and of an admirable Situation. The Inhabitants themſelves keep Guard in it; and though it depends on the Emperour, with the reſt of Sileſia, yet it is Governed as a Common-wealth. It ſtands 120 miles North-Eaſt of Prague, 130 North-Weſt of Cracow, and 170 North of Vienna.

BRESSE, a Province of France, betwixt the Rivers of Soane, Seille, Rhone, and Ains. The latter is on the Eaſt of it, the Rhone on the South, the Soane on the Weſt, and the Seille on the North It is in length about 16 Leagues, reaching from Montſymond unto Caluire near Lyons; and runs in breadth from St. Laurence near Macon, to the Port of Serrieres, upon the River of Ains. The Rhone, which this Country has on the Eaſt and South, ſeparates it from Savoy and Dauphiné: The Soane ſeparates it from the Dutchy of Burgundy, Beaujoulois, and Lyonnois; and Franche-Compté lies on the North of it; having beſides a Corner of Switzerland at the Eaſt. This Situation made Guichenon believe that this is the Iſle in the form of a Delta, ſo plentiful in Wheat, through which Hannibal paſſed going into Italy, as is deſcribed by Polybius: But others are not of this Sentiment. Breſſe is fertile in Corn and Hemp; it has alſo Vines, and a great deal of Game and Fiſhing. There are ſeveral Rivers and Ponds, which make the Country unwholeſom in ſome places. It is divided into Upper and Lower. The firſt is on the ſide of Bourg, Capital of the Province; and the Lower about the Soane, on the ſide of St. Trivier and the Bridge of Veaux. Breſſe was part of Gaul, under the Protection of the Autunois, when Cæſar conquer'd it. About 408. or 10. it became ſubject to the Kingdom of Burgundy, until about 530. that it was united to France. In the 9th Age it made part of the Kingdom of Arles, and afterwards of Burgundy beyond the Jura. But about a hundred or ſix ſcore years after, it was ſubjected to divers Lords, and chiefly to four, viz. the Sieurs of Bauge, Coligni, Villars, and of Montluel. They poſſeſſed divers Lands which came in reverſion to the Houſe of Savoy, by the Marriage of Sibylla Lady of Bauge. King Francis I. believing he had lawful Pretenſions to it by Ludovica of Savoy his Mother, and having beſides ſome juſt Reaſon to complain of Charles III. Duke of Savoy, who refuſed to render him Homage for Faucigny, and to give him an account why he uſurped the County of Nice: This King, I ſay, conquered Breſſe, in 1535. and it was ſubjected to France, under the Reign of this Monarch and Henry II. his Son, until the Peace of Château-Cambreſis, in 1559. that it was reſtored to Emmanuel Philibert, Duke of Savoy. This Duke died in 1580. leaving Charles Emmanuel his Son, who taking advantage of France, during the Wars of the League, in 1587. ſeized the Marquiſate of Saluces. King Henry the Great, when in Peace, demanded Satisfaction, which the Duke promiſed in 1598. but not keeping his Word, the King was obliged to take Arms, at which time he carried Breſſe, and almoſt all Savoy. Pope Clement VII. being urgent to put an end to this War, ſent the Cardinal Aldobrandin to his Majeſty at Lyons, where a Peace was concluded Jan. 17. 1601. and the King had for the Marquiſate of Saluces, Breſſe, Bugey, Valromey, and the Bailiwick of Gexo. So that a great Politician of that time, ſpeaking of this Peace, ſaid, That the King had dealt like a Merchant, and the Duke like a Prince. Sieur Guichenon.

BRESSE, a Town of Italy in Lombardy upon the Gotzo near the Mela, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Milan. It was the Country of the ancient Genomani, who came thither from Gallia-Tranſalpina. The Inhabitants name it Breſcie, and the Latins Brixia. Authors ſpeak differently of its Foundation, tho' they agree that it was built by the Gauls, and afterwards ſubdued by the Romans. St. Apollinaris of Ravenna Preached the Goſpel there the firſt: Attila ruined it; and it was immediately after rebuilt about 452. It was afterwards under the Lombards, Charlemaign, the Kings of Italy, and at laſt it became free. The Emperor Henry VI. carried it after a long Siege; and it ſuffered great Hardſhips during the Faction of the Guelphs and Gibelins. The Dukes of Milan became Maſters of it, until ſuch time as this City ſurrendred it ſelf to the Venetians, and afterwards to King Lewis XII. in 1509. and Francis I. delivered it again to the Venetians, who now poſſeſs it. As it is a Frontier-City, it is defended with a ſtrong Caſtle, good Ramparts, and an Arſenal very well furniſhed. The Caſtle is built upon a Hill, whence it commands the City, which has fine Churches, a fine Town-Houſe, and divers Rivulets of clear Water which run in the Streets. The Biſhop of Breſſe has the Title of Duke, Marquiſs, and Earl; and there is kept in the Cathedral a Croſs or Oriflame, alledged to be that which appeared to Conſtantine. Breſſe is pretty large, and has about 50000 Inhabitants. It is the Capital of the ſmall Country called Le Breſſan, and by the Italians Il Breſſiano, which comprehends from the N. to the S. all between Valtebina and the River Oglio, and from the Weſt to the Eaſt what is betwixt the Lake of Iſco. Dr. Burnet aſſures us it is now a great Town, and full of Trade and Wealth; and that in it are made the beſt Barrels of Piſtols and Muſquets in all Italy. The Citadel lies over the Town on a Rock, and commands it abſolutely. This Place is Governed by a Podeſta ſent yearly from Venice.

BRESSICI, a City and Palatinate of Poland in Poleſia, ſituated upon the River Buge, or Bug, and has a pretty good Caſtle, being the moſt conſiderable of Poleſia, towards the Frontiers of Polakia and Black Ruſſia.

BREST, or Brezſti, Breſtia, a Town of the Kingdom of Poland in Cujavia. It is pretty well built, with a good Caſtle, in a marſhy place, near Uladiſlaw and the Viſtula. Here was a Council celebrated in 1595. for the Union of the Greeks of Lithuania with the Latin Church, and another in 1620. on the ſame account. This Town ſtands 110 miles Eaſt of Warſaw.

BREST, a Town of France in Bretagne, with a good Harbour: It is the Brivates Portus, Geſocribate, or Geſobrivate of the Latins. The Town is ſituated on the Deſcent of a Hill by the Haven, whoſe Entrance is defended by a good Caſtle built upon a Rock. It lies in a Bay, where the Sea enters by four different places, and Ships may ride there at Anchor the whole year. It is the Magazine of the Admiralty of France, for the Ships which Trade upon the Ocean. It is 125 miles Weſt of Rennes, 120 South-Weſt of St. Malo, and 320 Weſt of Paris.

BRETAGNE, a great Province in France, with the Title of a Dutchy: The Ancients called it Armorica; 'tis now called Britannia Minor, or Little Britain, to diſtinguiſh it from the Iſland of Great Britain. It's bounded with the Ocean on the North, South, and Weſt, and has the Lower Poictou, Anjou, Maine, and Normandy on the Eaſt: It's one of the greateſt Provinces of the Kingdom, having above 70 Leagues in length, and from 35 to 40 in breadth. Some Geographers reſemble it to a Horſe-ſhooe; and it's commonly divided into the Upper and Lower Bretagne. Rennes, the Capital, ſtands in the upper part of this Province; this City has a Parliament and a Biſhop's See. Nantes, St. Malo, St. Brieux, Dol Evêchez, Fougiere, Vitré, Lamballe, Quintin, Montfort-la-Cane, Jocelin, Ploermel, Redon, Guerande, Château-Briant, Ancenis, Machecou, Cliſſon, St. Aubin du Cormier, &c. ſtand in the ſame Province. In the Lower Bretagne to the Weſt, are the Dioceſes of Vannes, Cornouaille, St. Paul de Leon and Treguier, Concarnaux, Penmark, Le Conquêt, Lannion, Breſt, Blavet, Morlaix, Hennebon, Quimperlay, Landernau, &c. Bretagne is likewiſe divided upon the account of the difference of Language; into that part which ſpeaks French; into that which ſpeaks Britiſh; and a third, which ſpeaks a mix'd Language of French and Brittiſh. The Biſhopricks of Rennes, Dol, and St. Malo, uſe the French Language: The Biſhopricks of Cornouaille, St. Paul de Leon, and Treguier, expreſs themſelves in Britiſh; and the mix'd Language is ſpoken in the Biſhopricks of Nantes, Vannes, and St. Brieux. Theſe Nine Biſhopricks are under the Archbiſhop of Tours. There are ſeveral Iſlands upon the Coaſt of Bretagne; the moſt conſiderable are Bell-Iſle and Oueſſant. The River Loire parts Bretagne from the Lower Poictou; its other Rivers are, La Vilaine, La Rance, Blavet, &c. There are likewiſe ſeveral Foreſts in Bretagne; thoſe of Lyſſay and Breſſelian are the moſt remarkable. This Province is ſufficiently fruitful in Corn, and produces good ſtore of Hemp and Milk, though but little Wine. There are likewiſe Mines of Iron, Lead, and even of Silver: It has likewiſe good Paſturage; for which reaſon they have great ſtore of Cattel, and many Horſes bred. The Bretaignes are excellent Seamen; and though they appear ſomewhat heavy to a Stranger, yet upon further Acquaintance, one may perceive that they want neither Management nor Underſtanding. Some Authors affirm, That the Bretaignes came from Great Britain, where being ill handled by the Barbarous Nations, they tranſported themſelves and their Effects into Armorica, about the year 442. That the Romans ſuffer'd them to ſettle in the Country of Vannes, Cornouaille, or Quimper Corentin; from whence ſpreading themſelves into the Biſhopricks of Treguier and Leon, they gave the Name of Bretagne to this Province. On the contrary, 'tis aſſerted by other Authors, That this Country was ſo called in the time of Pliny; and that the Gauliſh Bretaignes, inſtead of receiving a new Appellation, gave the Name of Britaigne to the Iſle of Albion. The inquiſitive Reader may conſult the Original Authors at his leiſure; for my part, I ſhall only remark, That Julius Cæſar made himſelf Maſter of this Province, which continued part of the Roman Empire, till Maximus ſet up himſelf for Emperor in Great Britain, in the year 382. This Prince gave Conan Meriadoc, one of his Generals, leave to Erect a Kingdom in this Armorica: This Sovereignty laſted till the Reigns of Clovis and Chilperick, who obliged them to ſtoop to the Title of an Earl. However, they continued revolting till Dagobert II. who made them Tributary; in which condition they continued till 787. when they were reduced by Charlemain. Their Inclination for Liberty made them revolt againſt Lewis the Debonnaire and Charles the Bald: Afterwards they were Governed by Princes and Dukes of their own, till the year 1491. when Anne, only Daughter to Francis II. the laſt Duke, was married firſt to Charles VIII. then to Lewis XII. Kings of France, who reunited this Dutchy to the Crown. Alain Bouchard les Chron. Annal. de Bret. Bertran d'Argent. Hiſt. de Bret.

BRETEUIL, a ſmall Town of France in Upper Normandy, ſituated upon the little River of Iton, near a Pond, betwixt Aigle, Evreux, and Verneuil. Henry II. Duke of Normandy, &c. King of England, gave this Town to Robert of Montfort, which his Siſter Amicia ſold in 1210. to King Philip Auguſtus. Afterwards it fell to the Lot of Charles King of Navarre, who yielded it in 1410. to King Charles VI. who gave him other Lands for it.

BREWOOD, a Market-Town of Cudleſton Hundred in the Weſt of Staffordſhire: Before the Conqueſt, the Biſhops of this Dioceſe had their Palace here. It is 107 miles from London.

BRIANCON, a Town of France in the Mountains of Dauphiné, Capital of a ſmall Country called the Bailiwick of Briançon, or Briançonois. It is built at the bottom of a Rock, upon which there is a Caſtle; and it is eſteemed, by reaſon of its ſituation, the higheſt Town of Europe. Two ſmall Rivers meet below this Town, viz. the Dure and Ance, which give Name and Original to the Durance. Strabo and Ptolemy give that of Βριγάντιον to Briançon, which the Itinerary of Antoninus names Brigantium; and Ammianus Marcellinus, Virgantia. About two Leagues from this Town, there is a great Rock cut open, which the Inhabitants name Pertius Roſtang. Some Authors believe that Julius Cæſar cauſed this Rock to be opened at his coming into Gaul: Others do think that it was this ſame Rock that Hannibal cut with Fire and Vinegar, to make a commodious Paſſage through it for his Elephants. And others maintain, That it was King Cottius who cauſed this Gate to be wrought out, [illegible] pleaſe Auguſtus, whoſe Statue he ſet on the top of it. Briançon is an ancient City, and became conſiderable in the Twelfth Age. In the laſt Century it was in the hands of the Leaguers, who conſidered it as a Town of Importance; and the Lord Leſdiguieres, afterwards Conſtable of France, took it from them in Anno 1590. This Town is fine enough, if we conſider its Situation upon the Mountains; it has a Bailiwick, a fine Church, and three Monaſteries. It has alſo produced Men of Learning, and amongſt others the famous Oronce Fine, one of the moſt Learned Mathematicians of his time. This Town ſtands 22 miles North-Eaſt of Ambrun, 36 Weſt of Pignerol. Chorier. Hiſt. Dauph.

BRIANCON, or Brianconnet, a Village of Provence in the Dioceſe of Glandeves. Divers Medals of Gold, Silver, and Braſs, which are found in it every day, with a great many Inſcriptions, do witneſs that this Place has been more conſiderable in times paſt than now; and that which perſuades me of it, is, That in ſome of theſe Inſcriptions theſe Words are to be found; Ordo Brig. F. C. to wit, Ordo Brigantium, or Brigantinus fieri curavit. The Curious do know, That this Name Ordo was not given but to great Cities, which had the Three Orders of the Senate, the Soldiery, and the People.

BRIANCON, or Fort Brianconnet, a Caſtle of Savoy, in the Country of Tarantaiſe. It is built upon a Rock along the Iſere, about a League below Montiers. There is alſo a Village of this Name. Some Authors believe, That the Caſtle of Briancon has given its Name to the Houſe of Briancon in Dauphiné, which is Noble and Ancient, and hath produced a great many Illuſtrious Men.

BRIANSFORD, a Village in the County of Downe in Ireland, where there is a Linen Manufactury.

BRIARE upon the Loire, a ſmall Town of France in Great Beauce, or, as others ſay, in the Government of Orleans, or particularly in Gaſtinois. Latin Authors name it Brivodurum, Bridoborum, and Breviodurus. It gives its Name to the Canal which joins the Loire and Seine. It was undertaken in the beginning of the laſt Age, and it was ended under the Reign of Lewis the Juſt, by the Care of Cardinal Richelieu. Briare ſuffered much during the Civil Wars of the League. There was a Battel fought near this Place in 1650. by the King's Troops and thoſe of the Princes. Briare ſtands 37 miles South-Eaſt of Orleans.

St. BRICE, a Biſhop of Tours, ſucceeded St. Martin in that See, as it is related by Gregory, Biſhop of the ſame Place, in the Second and Tenth Book of his Hiſtory. Brice was Deacon of the Church of Tours in St. Martin's Life-time, and was wont to laugh at that good Man, and call him a doting and ſilly Fellow. St. Martin believing he ſpake thus rather out of Indiſcretion and Lightneſs of Mind than Malice, was not at all offended; but foretold that he ſhould ſucceed in the Biſhoprick, and ſhould undergo a great many Croſſes therein. In effect, 33 years after his Promotion to the Epiſcopacy, he was accuſed of having debauched a Nun, and to have got her with Child. When ſhe was brought to bed, the People were going to ſtone Brice, as guilty of this Crime: But he, to ſhew his Innocency, cauſed the Child, who was but 30 days old, to be brought to him; and in preſence of all the People, adjured him, by the Son of God, to declare if it was true that he himſelf was Father. To which the Child is ſaid to have anſwered, That it was not true. The People not ſatisfied with this, would oblige Brice to make him declare who was the Father. To which he anſwered, That this did not concern him; and, that if they had any thing to propoſe to the Child, they might interrogate him. Whereupon the People told him, That he made the Child ſpeak by Witchcraft, and proteſted that they would no more acknowledge him for their Biſhop. Brice, to purge himſelf ſtill better, put burning Coals in his Gown, and cloſing them to his Stomach, carried them to St. Martin's Tomb; after which, he ſhewed that his Clothes had not been endamaged by the Fire. But the People ſtill grew more obſtinate; and having driven him from his See, ſet up in his room one Juſtinian. Brice withdrew to Rome, and lived there 7 years, until the Pope commanded him to return to his Dioceſe, where he arrived ſome days before the Death of Biſhop Armence, Succeſſor to Juſtinian. The Inhabitants of Tours chearfully received him, and he held the See 7 years after his return. He died about the middle of the Fourth Age.

BRICKINGTON, (Stephen) an Engliſh Monk of Canterbury, of the Order of St. Bennet, living in the 14th Century: He wrote an Hiſtorical Account of the Biſhops of Canterbury and Ely. Pitſæus in Append. Illuſt. Script. Angl. Poſſev. Voſſ. &c.

BRICONNET, (William) Biſhop of Meaux, was a Man of great Worth, and very good Morals. He entertained a long time at his Houſe William Farel of Dauphiné, James Fabri, or le Fevre, Arnaud Rouſſel, and Gerard Rouſſel of Piccardy. But the Parliament of Paris having named Commiſſioners to examine theſe Four Reformers, they fled into Germany; whereupon the Biſhop returned to his firſt Sentiments, condemned in a Synod the Books of Luther, and forbad the Reading of them. Maimb.

BRICSTAN, or Briſtan, a Monk of the Order of St. Bennet, living in the Ninth Century. He was a good Hiſtorian, and underſtood Mathematicks and Muſick. He wrote ſeveral Poems likewiſe; amongſt others, one which he calls, A Lamentation upon the Deſtruction of his Monaſtery by the Danes: The Title in Latin is, In Cineres Monaſterii Croilandenſis Threni: And begins thus:

Quomodo ſola Sedes, dudum Regina Domorum
Nobilis Eccleſia, & nuper Amica Dei, &c.
Pitſ. de Script. Angl. &c.

BRIDFERTH, an Engliſh Monk, of the Order of St. Bennet, living towards the end of the Tenth Century: He was well skill'd in Philoſophy and Mathematicks. Some of his Works are extant among thoſe of Venerable Bede; as, De Principiis Mathematicis. De Inſtitutione Monachorum, &c. He likewiſe wrote Commentaries upon ſome of Bede's Works. Pitſ. de Script. Angl. &c.

BRIDGE-END, a Market-Town of Newcaſtle Hundred, in the South parts of Glamorganſhire, ſituate on the Weſt-ſide of the River Ogmore, over which it has a ſtone Bridge. 135 miles from London.

BRIDGENORTH, a Market and Borough-Town of Stolſdon Hundred, in the Eaſt parts of Shropſhire, ſituate on the Weſt-ſide of the Severn, with a fair ſtone Bridge over it, and divided into 2 Parts, the Upper and the Lower Town, conſiſting of two Pariſhes: Formerly it was fortified with a good Wall and a Ditch, beſides a ſtately Caſtle, ſeated in a Rock now decayed. It is 135 miles from London.

BRIDGE-TOWN, the principal Town of Barbadoes, was burnt, April 18. 1668.

BRIDGEWATER, a Market and Borough-Town of North Petherton Hundred, in the Weſt of Somerſetſhire; a large, well-inhabited, and frequented Town, ſeated on the Weſt-ſide of the River Parret, about three miles from the Iriſh Sea, Dignified with the Title of an Earldom, in the Perſon of the Right Honourable John Egerton, the preſent Earl of Bridgewater, derived to him from his Anceſtor John Edgerton, created Earl of Bridgewater by King James the Firſt, in the year 1617. This John was Son and Heir of Thomas Egerton, who was created Baron of Elſemere in 1603. and Viſcount Brakely in 1616. From London 143 miles.

BRIDPORT, a Market and Borough-Town of Thorn Hundred in Dorſetſhire, ſeated between two Rivers, with a Bridge over each of them, about two miles from the Sea: A Town of good Account in Edward the Confeſſor's Reign, and then a good Sea-Port, but now choaked up with Sands. It was once the only Place appointed for the Twiſting of Cordage and Ropes for the Navy of England, the neighbouring Soil yielding great ſtore of good Hemp. It ſends Two Burgeſſes to Parliament; and is 115 miles from London.

BRIE, a Country of France in Champagne, betwixt the Rivers Seine and Marne. Aimoin calls this Country Brigienſis Saltus; and in the Teſtament of King Dagobert, it is named Brigium. Modern Authors call it Bria. It abounds in Corn, Fruits, Paſtures, &c. Meaux upon Marne is the Chief Town of it: The others are, Provins, Lagni, Brie-Comte-Robert, Seſane in Brie, &c. There are divers fine Houſes, and ſeveral Abbeys and Priories. Now part of Brie belongs to the Government of the Iſle of France. and part to that of Champagne. The Counts Palatine of Champagne were alſo Lords of Brie, and that Country was united to the Crown at the ſame time with the other.

BRIE-COMTE-ROBERT, near the ſmall River of Jere, a Town of France in Brie, within 4 or 5 Leagues of Paris; Dignified with a Court of Juſtice depending on the Châtelet of Paris. Brie is ſituated in an extraordinary fertile Country.

BRIEG upon the Oder, Brega, a Town of Germany in Sileſia, betwixt Breſlaw and Oppelen, which ſtands upon the ſame River. Brieg is Capital of one of the Chief Dutchies of Sileſia, and gives it its Name.

BRIEL, or Brill, a Town of Holland, on the Mouth of the Meuſe, with a pretty good Port: It is indifferent well built and peopled, in a Country which produces very good Wheat; but the Air is thick and foggy. Counteſs Matilda Founded a Collegiate Church there, about 1372. Cluvier and Junius ſpeak of the Original of the name of the Town of Briel. It became famous in the 16th Century; for it was there that the Confederate Provinces laid the firſt Foundations of their Republick in 1572. The Duke of Alva having driven them from the Low-Countries, they retired into England, where having equipped a Fleet of about 40 Sail, under the Conduct of Count Lumei, they continually rifled the Coaſt, and were therefore in Raillery called Beggars of the Sea, or Sea-Geeſe. The Duke of Alva making his Complaint to Elizabeth Queen of England, That theſe Confederates, whom he named Pirates, had a Retreat in her Ports, ſhe was obliged to order them away; ſo that, ſaith Thuanus, being gone to Enchuyſen, they took three Ships belonging to Antwerp, richly laden with Spaniſh Effects, and another of Biſcay: Thence having no very good Wind, they landed in the Iſle of Briel, where the Rhine and the Meuſe meet together, before they empty themſelves into the Sea; and there a lucky Occaſion offering it ſelf, they attacked the Town, which bears the Name of the Iſland, flung down the Gate, mounted the Wall, and became Maſters of the Place on Palm-Sundy, 1572. After that, they plundered the Churches, and neighbouring Convents, and fortified the Town. This was the very beginning of their Commonwealth. In 1585. it was put into Queen Elizabeth's hands for a Cautionary Town, and reſtored to the Hollanders by K. James I. Thuan. Cluv.

BRIENNE upon the Aube, a ſmall Town of France in Champagne, with the Title of County. It was one of the Seven Peerages, eſtabliſhed in that Province by the Counts Palatine. Brienne is near Troyes, betwixt Bar-ſur-Aub and Plami. It gave its Name to the Ancient Houſe of Brienne.

BRIGANTES, was a Name given to People of different Nations, whither the ancient Gauls ſent Colonies, as in Spain, Portugal, Italy, Germany, and Great Britain; and the People ſo named, did generally inhabit the hilly Parts of thoſe Countries; and the Towns whoſe Names ended in Brica, Briga, and Bria, were for the moſt part ſituate on riſing Grounds. Buchan

BRIGG, Glanford-Brigg, a Market-Town in the North of Lincolnſhire. It lies in Yarborough Wapentake, part of Lindſey Diviſion; 153 miles from London.

BRIGHTHELMSTON, a Market-Town in Suſſex in Lewis Rape, by the Sea-ſide.

St. BRIGIT, or Brigite, a Princeſs of Swedeland, lived in the 14th Age: She married Prince Ulſon, or Wlfon, of Nericia, and was Mother to 8 Children. After the Death of her Huſband, who turned Ciſtercian Monk, and with whom ſhe had been in Pilgrimage at St. James's of Compoſtella, ſhe went into Italy and the Holy Land. She writ to Avignon to Pope Gregory XI. to perſuade him to return to Rome, where ſhe had Founded a Religious Order, called The Holy Saviour, and preſcribed it Rules in 31 Chapters. She hath alſo compoſed a Volume of Revelations in 8 Books, which are approved of by the Popes. St. Brigit died in 1373. Pope Boniface IX. Canonized her in 1391. and the Council of Conſtance confirmed this Canonization in 1415. Surius, Le Mire.

BRIGNOLLE, a Town of France in Provence, with a Bailiwick and Seneſchal's See. It is ſituated near the ſmall River of Caramie, in a pleaſant Soil, and extraordinary fertile in Corn, Olives, Vines, and excellent Prunes. Latin Authors call it Brinonia, and Brinnola, which laſt Name is mentioned in a Bull of Pope Gregory VII. in 1084. Some take it for the Forum Voconii, and others for the Matavonium viæ Aureliæ. It is well built, adorned with fine Churches and Monaſteries. Beſides the Lieutenant Seneſchal and Bailiwick, there is alſo a Regal Judge, and another called Vignier. The Earls of Provence took great Delight in this Town. Noſtradamus ſaith, That the Children of the Earls of Toloſa were brought up there, and that it was thence Sirnamed the Nurſery of Children. Inſcriptions found here, teſtifie that this Town is ancient. Queen Joanna I. alienated it in 1357. to John II. Earl of Armagnac, who had ſome Troops in Provence; but that was for a ſhort time. In 1536. Brignolle was carried by the Vanguard of the Army of the Emperor Charles V. Commanded by Ferdinand of Gonzague, who ſurprized and defeated ſome of the King's Troops in it. It ſuffered much during the Wars of the League. Hubert de la Guarde, Lord of Vins, Head of the Leaguers in Provence, ſurprized Brignolle in 1589. plunder'd it, and drew 30000 Crowns from the Inhabitants. Noſtradam. Bouche.

BRINDES, or Brindici, Brundiſium, and Brunduſium, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples in the Land of Otranto, with an Archbiſhoprick. It is ſituated at the beginning of the Adriatick Sea, betwixt Otranto (which is at the Mouth of the Gulph) and Bari. Brindes has one of the faireſt and ſafeſt Ports of Italy, defended by a Caſtle built in the Sea, and by ſome Forts. It has been in former times a Colony of the Salentins, and afterwards of the Romans, who took it in 487. of the Foundation of their City. They eſteemed the Port of Brindes as moſt commodious for Shipping off Forces, &c. and becauſe it ſtood at the Extremity of Italy. Cæſar purſued Pompeius thither in 705. of Rome; and upon his abandoning it, embarked there the next year. Virgil died there in 735. of Rome, about 19 years before the Birth of CHRIST. Brindes has been often taken and retaken by the Barbarians, ruined twice or thrice, and repaired. Leander Alberti. Tit. Liv. Cæſar, &c.

BRION, an Iſland in the Bay of Canada in North-America, one League long, and three in compaſs: It was diſcovered in 1534. by the French. The Soil is very good, full of large Firr-Trees, Meadows, Fields ſtored with wild Corn, wild Peaſe, Goosberries, Strawberries, Damask-Roſes, Parſley, and excellent Herbs. Lat. 47. 30. Hack. p. 205.

BRIOUDE, upon the Alier, Lat. Brivas, Brivatum, and Viſcus Briacenſis, a Town of France in Auvergne, below Iſſaire, which ſtands upon the ſame River. It is ancient and great, adorned with divers Churches and Monaſteries, in a fertile Soil. Amongſt the Churches, St. Julian's is the moſt conſiderable, having a great Steeple, a fine Clock, and a Chapter, conſiſting of 25 Canons, who call themſelves Earls of Brioude. This Church was firſt an Abbey, and afterwards Canons were put into it, who in times paſt were Knights, inſtituted by William I. called the Pious, Duke of Guienne and Earl of Auvergne, in 898. to make War againſt the Normans. And therefore Belli and Juſtel ſay, That this Duke was the firſt who inſtituted Knights for the Defence of the Faith. Within about half a League of this Town, is the Borough of Brioude the Old, upon the Allier, remarkable for its Bridge of one Arch only, ſo extreamly high and long, that it is believed it cannot be parallell'd in all Europe. Gregory of Tours, Juſtel Hiſt. d'Auverg.

BRIQUERAS, or Briqueraſco, Briqueraſcum, a conſiderable Borough of Italy in Piedmont, 4 or 5 Leagues from Pignerol, with a good Caſtle; famous by the Sieges it ſuffer'd towards the end of the 16th Age. The Lord of Leſdiguieres, ſince Conſtable of France, took it about the year 1592. and cauſed it to be very well fortified; ſo that it paſſed for an important Place. Charles Emmanuel, Duke of Savoy, neglected nothing to recover it; but in vain: He afterwards took juſter Meaſures, and ſucceed; for, making his Preparations during a Truce agreed upon, he beſieged Briqueras at the expiration of it in 1594. with Ten thouſand Men, and Eighteen Pieces of Artillery. The Borough was taken by Aſſault, and the Caſtle, having endured eight thouſand Cannon-ſhots, which made five Breaches, ſurrendred by Compoſition, Octob. 24. Briqueras has alſo been famous during the Wars of Piedmont, in 1629, 30, and 31.

BRISACH, or Briſſac, Lat. Briſacum, and Briſacuſmons, a City and Fortreſs of Germany, in Briſgaw in Alſatia, lately belonging to the King of France. It is ſituated upon the Rhine, which there has a Stone Bridge over it. Briſach is now eſteemed one of the ſtrongeſt Places of Europe, whether its Situation upon a Hill be conſidered, or what Art has contributed to render it regular: And ſome Authors call it the Citadel of Alſatia; others the Head of Germany; and a modern Author, the Pillow upon which the Houſe of Auſtria repoſed. Guſtavus Horn, a Swede, made an Attempt on this City in 1633. after his great Advantages over the Imperialiſts; but the Duke of Feria broke his Meaſures, and threw Succours into the Place. Bernard of Saxony, Duke of Weimar, General of the Swediſh Army, had better Succeſs in 1638. He beſieged Briſach after he was reinforced by the French Troops, Commanded by Mareſchal Guebriant, and took it in the Month of December: There were great Riches found in it, and more than 200 Pieces of Cannon. The Duke of Weimar being ſick at Newembourg near Briſach, the 18th of July, 1639. the Mareſchal of Guebriant poſſeſſed himſelf of this and the other Places which were left to the French King by a Treaty, the 9th of October following, and which have been yielded by the 47th Article of the Peace of Weſtphalia, in 1648. to be united to that Crown; and again confirmed by the 60th Article of the Peace of the Pyrenés. in 1659. Briſach is ſituated upon the farthermoſt Bank of the Rhine, which it commands, as it does the Country on the other ſide, which it diſcovers all along, becauſe it is upon a Hill. This is (ſaith Dr. Burnet) a poor miſerable Town, though a notable Fortification. It hath on the Weſt-ſide of the River (over which a Bridge is laid) a regular Fort of 4 or 5 Baſtions. The Town riſeth on a Hill a conſiderable heighth: There were near it two other Hills, the one of which is taken within the Fortifications, and the other is ſo levelled with the Ground, that it cannot be diſcerned; and all the reſt of the Country is plain for many miles; ſo that from the Hill within the Works, all the Motions of an Enemy may be exactly ſeen in caſe of a Siege. The Fortification is a French League in compaſs; the Baſtions are filled with Earth, and faced with Brick, and ſecured by a hugh broad Ditch full of Water. The Counterſcarp, the Covered Way, which hath a Paliſado, with the Parapet and the Glacis, are all in good repair; and there is a Half-moon before every Curtain; and the latter are ſo diſpoſed, that a good part of them defend the Baſtions; and it will require, in time of War, 8 or 10000 Men to defend it. It is 3 Leagues off Colmar, 7 off Scheleſtad, 10 or 12 off Baſle, and about 15 or 18 from Strasbourg. This Place, by the Treaty of Reſwick in 1697. was conceded by the French to the Emperor, after it had been in the hands of the former for near 60 years; but the Treaty was not fulfilled till about two years after, the French having in that interim laid the Foundation of, and brought to a great forwardneſs a New Briſach over againſt the Old, on the other ſide of the Rhine. Laboureur, &c.

BRISAG, or Briſiago, a Borough of Italy upon the Lake Majour, belonging to the Griſons, betwixt Locarna, Canobia, and Domo.

BRISEIS, a Trojan Lady, who was taken by Achilles, from whom Agamemnon took her. See Achilles and Agamemnon.

BRISES and Chriſes, were two Brothers: The firſt had a Daughter called Hippodamia, whom Homer, from her Father, calls Briſeus. Some ſay that this Briſeis firſt taught the Way of Managing and Making up Honey. Euſtath. Cæl. Rhodiginus, l. 24. c. 5.

BRISGAW, or Briſgou, Lat. Briſgovia, and Briſgoia, a Country of Germany, which ſome place in Alſatia, betwixt the Rhine and the Black Foreſt. Briſach has given its Name to it, and has been in former times its Capital; but ſince, Fribourg has carried it, and is become Renowned by its Riches and other Advantages. It is ſo likewiſe by the famous Battel that Lewis Duke of Anguien, ſince Prince of Condé, won there in 1644. where General Merci was killed. The other Places of Briſgaw are Newembourg, betwixt Briſach and Baſle, Zentzingen, Nuyhuit, &c. Its Name, which ſignifies Praiſe-worthy Soil, expreſſeth pretty well the Qualities of the Country, which is plentiful. It belonged in times paſt to the Dukes of Zeringuen; and it's ſaid, that afterwards the Earls of Furſtemberg were Maſters of it. Hugh, or Hegon, ſold it in 1367. to the Dukes of Auſtria, to whom the Emperor, Lewis of Bavaria, had already mortgaged Briſach, about the year 1326. Since that time, the Country of Briſgaw has always belonged to the Houſe of Auſtria; but now it belongs for the moſt part to France.

BRISSAC upon Aubance, a ſmall Town of France, in the Country of Angiers, with the Title of a Dutchy erected in Favour of Charles de Coſſé, Second of the Name, Mareſchal of France. It is ſeated in a plentiful Country near Pont Cé, or the Bridge of Cæſar, and below Saumur. Briſſac has a very fine Caſtle, a great Park, and a Pond, which is almoſt a mile long. It is become famous by the Worth of its Lords, under the Name of Coſſé.

BRISSE, Lat. Brixius, (Germain) born at Auxerre, and lived in the 16th Century: He was a great Linguiſt, and particularly a great Grecian. He tranſlated St. Chryſoſtome, De Sacerdotio, into Latin, and ſome other Pieces, which are much eſteemed. The Fight which happened between one French and two Engliſh Ships, gave occaſion to a Paper-Combate between him and Sir Thomas More. His Deſcription in Verſe of this Sea-Fight, was thought a finer Poem than Sir Thomas More's. He was alſo a good Greek Poet, and kept open Houſe for the Entertainment of Men of Learning. P. Jov. Elog. c. 130.

BRISSONIUS, (Barnaby) Preſident of the Parliament of Paris, one of the moſt Learned Lawyers of his time. Henry III. ſent him Ambaſſodor for England; at his return, his Majeſty employed him to make a Collection of his own Ordinances, and of thoſe of his Predeceſſors. He wrote ſome other Works in Law: De verborum quæ ad jus pertinent ſignificatione. De Formulis & Solemnibus Populi Romani verbis. De Regio Perſarum Principatu, &c. He gave an Expectation of more conſiderable Performances; but his Life was ſhortned by a very unfortunate Accident: Living at Paris when that Rebellious City was beſieged by King Henry the Great, the Preſident Briſſonius remonſtrated againſt the Treaſonable Practices of the Leaguers, who under pretence of the Holy Union, contemned the Royal Authority, which was much more Sacred. Theſe Religious Traitors, being diſſatisfied with Briſſonius's Loyalty, dragged him to Priſon, and ſtrangled him cruelly in it, the 15th of November, 1591. Thuan. St. Marthe, Le Mire.

BRISTOL, Lat. Briſtolium, is, next to London, the greateſt Place for Trade in England, and a flouriſhing City, near upon 100 miles Weſt and by South from London. It ſtands partly in Somerſetſhire, and partly in Glouceſterſhire, at the very Fall of the Frome into the Avon, which running through the midſt of it, empties it ſelf 8 miles lower into the Severn. Over this River is a fair Stone Bridge, like that of London, with Houſes upon it, which makes it look more like a Street than a Bridge. Its Streets are neatly ordered, and ſet out with many fine Edifices, among which I reckon the Cathedral, and moſt of the Pariſh-Churches, whoſe number is about 18; of theſe, St. Mary Radcliff, without the Walls, is looked upon to be the faireſt Pariſh-Church in England. The Croſs and the Tolſtall, where the Merchants meet, are alſo two great Ornaments to this City, which being of it ſelf a County incorporate, is independant from the Juriſdiction both of Somerſetſhire and Glouceſterſhire, and owns no other Officers but its own. At the end of it ſtood a Caſtle, wherein King Stephen was kept Priſoner by Maud the Empreſs; but it was demoliſhed during the Civil Wars, and is now built into Streets. That which has moſt contributed to make Briſtol ſo conſiderable, is the goodneſs of its Port, where at Spring-Tide the Sea flows about 40 Foot, which brings in Ships of great Burthen. Thus it became a Place of great Reſort both for Merchants, and Tradeſmen; thoſe driving a great Trade to moſt Places of the known World; theſe a home-Trade, eſpecially to Wales, Shropſhire, and other Counties. About Briſtol is great ſtore of Coals, alſo a ſort of precious Stone, call'd from hence Briſtol-Stones, and taken out of S. Vin- cent's Rock, at the bottom whereof is a hot Well of a Medicinal Nature. Briſtol was made a Biſhop's See in the Province of Canterbury, by King Henry VIII. with five other of his erecting, upon the Foundations of ſuch ancient Monaſteries as he thought fitteſt, and beſt ſeated for that purpoſe, wherein he failed not any where ſo much as in this of Briſtol, the Juriſdiction whereof being Dorſetſhire, which formerly belonged to the See of Salisbury, is many miles diſtant from the Biſhop's Seat. The Cathedral Church, Dedicated by the Name of St. Auſtin, was Founded by Robert Fitz-Harding, Son to a King of Denmark, and by him ſtored with Canons Regular, An. 1148. But this Foundation being diſſolved, King Henry VIII. placed therein a Dean and ſix Prebendaries, as it ſtill continueth. In this Dioceſe, containing the City of Briſtol, and, as was ſaid before, the whole County of Dorſet, are reckoned 236 Pariſhes, whereof 64 are Impropriated. 'Tis valued in the King's Books 338 l. 8 s. 4 d. the Clergy paying for their Tenth 353 l. 18 s. It has only one Archdeacon, which is he of Dorſet. Laſtly, this City was Honoured with the Title of an Earldom, in the Perſon of the Right Honourable John Digby, deſcended to him from his Grandfather John Lord Digby of Sherburn, created Earl of Briſtol by James I. in 1622. But he dying in 1699. without Iſſue, the Honour died with him. In the beginning of the Troubles againſt King Charles I. it ſided with the Parliament, and was on that account beſieged by Prince Rupert, July 24. 1643. who took it in two days; under whom it continued till September 10. 1645. when it was ſurrendred to Fairfax, General of the Rebel-Forces. It was preſerved from falling into the hands of the late Duke of Monmouth, by the Vigilance of the Duke of Beaufort, who was Lord Lieutenant of this City and its County.

BRISTOL, Little Briſtol, the Principal Town and Pariſh of Barbadoes, was formerly called Sprights-Town, and lies about four Leagues from St. Michael's. It hath a commodious Road for Ships, which makes it well frequented and traded unto, and two Forts for its Defence.

BRITAIN, (New) a Country in Northern America, between Hudſon's Bay and New France, diſcovered, named, and poſſeſſed by the Engliſh; formerly called Eſtotiland.

BRITAIN, or Great Britain, the greateſt Iſland of Europe, and little leſs than the greateſt in the known World; is every where ſurrounded with the Ocean, which parts it Northwards from the cold Regions of the Frozen Zone; Southward from the Continent of France, where it is called the Channel; Eaſtward from the Low Countries and Denmark, where it has the Name of German Ocean; and Weſtward from Ireland, where it has the Name of Iriſh Sea, otherwiſe known by that of St. George's Channel. It's ſituate under the 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th Climes; ſo that the longeſt Day, in the moſt Southern Parts of it, is 16 Hours at leaſt; and in the moſt Northern parts 18, not reckoning the long Twilight theſe have after Sunſet, inſomuch that there is ſcarce any Night at all about the time of the Summer Solſtice. The whole Length of this Great and Famous Iſland, is reckoned from North to South about 600 miles; the Breadth various, by reaſon o the Crooks and Bendings of the Sea-Coaſt; but where it is broadeſt, as towards the Channel, it reaches about 270 miles. The Name of Britain is moſt probably derived from Brit, which in the ancient Britiſh, ſignifies Painted, and the Word Tuin, a Nation: So that Britain, by this Interpretation, does denote a Painted Nation, or Nation of Painted Men, agreeable unto the Cuſtom of the Ancient Britains, who, to appear the more terrible to their Enemies, uſed to paint and diſcolour their Bodies. It was alſo anciently called Albion, moſt probable from the Latin Albus, White, by reaſon of the White Chalky Clifts that appear along its Coaſt. It's at preſent divided into Three Principal Parts, England, Scotland, and Wales, in the Deſcription whereof you will find that of Great Britain.

BRITANNICUS, Son to the Emperor Claudius and Meſſalina, was excluded from the Empire, whereof he was preſumptive Heir, after his Father had Married Agrippina. This Princeſs put her Son Nero upon the Throne, and cauſed Britannicus to be poyſoned during the Saturnalia, in the Fifty fifth year of the Chriſtian Æra. Tacitus, Sueton. Nero.

BRITISH SEA, Mare Britannicum, by the French called La Manche, becauſe it reſembles a Sleeve, is the known Sea betwixt England and France, extending, according to Pomponius Mela, to the Iſlands of Sain and Oiſmiens.

BRITOMARE, or Viridomare, Chief of the Inſubrian Gauls, who inhabited about Milan, was overcome by the Conſul Marcellus in 532 of Rome, as he was ready to Vow, that he would not put off his Belt before his Army had taken Rome, and Scal'd the Capitol. Florus, Polybius, Oroſius.

BRITOMARTIS, a Nymph of Crete, Daughter to Jupiter and Charmea, was, ſay the Poets, much beloved of Diana; being one day a Hunting, ſhe happened to fall into the Nets, and ſeeing her ſelf in danger of being devoured by ſome wild Beaſt, ſhe had recourſe to that Goddeſs, who diſingaged her. Britomartis, to ſhew her Acknowledgment, built a Temple in Honour of Dictyn Diana, that is, the Goddeſs of Nets: for Δίκτυς in Greek, ſignifies a Net. Others ſay, That Britomartis invented the Nets whereof Hunters make uſe, which got her the Sirname of Dictyn, whence ſome have taken her for Diana. It is thought ſhe was beloved by Minos King of Crete, and that ſeeing ſhe could not ſhun his Embraces but by flight, ſhe flung her ſelf headlong into the Sea from the top of a Rock. Britomartis, in the ancient Language of Crete, ſignifies Dulcis Virgo, and was the Name of Diana. See Salmaſius in Solinum, Cap. 11. Diodorus, Heſychius, Solinus Scaliger.

BRITWALD, a Benedictin Abbot, and afterwards Archbiſhop of Canterbury, liv'd in the Eighth Century, in the time of Venerable Bede, who mentions him with advantage. He wrote ſeveral Tracts, as, The Life of St. Edwin Biſhop of Worceſter. De Origine Eveſmahenſis Cœnobii, &c. and died about the year 731. *Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. BRIVE-LA-GAILLARDE, a Town of France, in the Lower Limoſin, towards the Frontiers of Quercy, within two or three Leagues of Tulle, and five or ſix from Sarlat. It is ſeated upon the River Coureza, and hence it is that the Latin Authors name it Briva Curretia. Brive is an ancient Town; Gregory of Tours makes mention of it often: It's in this Town that Gombaud, called Ballomer, who pretended to be Baſtard to King Clotaire I. got himſelf Crowned in 584. having heard of the Death of Chilperic I. Brive has a Seneſchal See, and beautiful Churches, amongſt which there is a Collegial, and two Pariſh Churches, &c. Though it is not ſpacious, yet it is ſo pleaſant, that it is believed it has from thence the Name of Gaillarde. Its Territory is fertile, beautified on all ſides with fine Proſpects, formed by the Intermixture of Meadows, Vineyards, ſtately Woods and Orchards. Gregory of Tours, Du Cheſne.

BRIXEN, or Breſſenon, or Brixino, Brixina, and Brixinum, a Town of Germany in Tyrol, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Saltzbourg. It ſtands at the Foot of the Mountains, upon the River Aiſech, which receives there the Rienez. This River divides Brixen into Two Parts, the greateſt of which has Two or three fine Streets, with the Cathedral Church, divers Market-places, and very neat Piazza's; yet the Town is not well Peopled, its Inhabitants being only a few Merchants, who live there for the Conveniency of Traffick, it being a Paſs from Italy into Germany. Its Biſhop has good ſtrong Places, viz. Brauneck, a Caſtle in Tyrol, upon the River of Riantz, and Feldex or Fels, a Caſtle in Carniola. He has great Officers as well as the Biſhop of Bamberg; to wit, the Duke of Bavaria for Marſhal, the Duke of Carinthia for Chamberlain, the Duke of Meran for Cupbearer, and the Duke of Suabia for Steward of his Houſhold: But theſe Officers have Vicars to officiate for them at the Conſecration and Entrance of the new Biſhop. This Town ſtands 25 miles Eaſt of Tyrol, and 48 of Trent. The Emperor Henry IV. called the Old or the Great, conven'd a Council at Brixen, in the Month of June, 1080. in which he preſided over 30 Biſhops of his Party. Theſe Biſhops ſeconded the Emperor's Reſentments againſt Pope Gregory VII. who had Excommunicated and Depos'd him: They return'd the Pope's Freedoms upon himſelf, Depos'd him, and ſet up Guibert Archbiſhop of Ravenna in his Place, who took the Name of Clement III. They likewiſe agreed that the Emperor ſhould make an Expedition into Italy, to put theſe Canons in Execution. Abbas Uſpergenſ. in Chron. Baronius in Annal. &c.

BRIZO, Goddeſs of Dreams, adored in times paſt in the Iſle of Delos. Her Offerings were Cockboats filled with all ſorts of Goods except Fiſh. She is ſo named from the old Greek word Βρίζειν, which ſignifies to Sleep. Cocl.

BROITZCHIA, a Town of the Kingdom of Guzurate, in the Empire of the Great Mogul, in India, on this ſide the Ganges, within 12 Leagues of Surate. It is built upon an indifferent high Mountain, and is one of the ſtrongeſt Places of the Indies. All the Country about it is flat and even, except ſome Mountains, 5 or 6 Leagues from the City, out of which Mountains very fine Agat is drawn, which they make Cups of, and ſeveral other Works that are carried to Cambaye.

BROMLEY, Paget's Bromley, a Market Town on the Blithe in Staffordſhire, 101 Miles from London.

BROMLEY, a Market Town of Bromley Hundred in the North Weſt of Kent, ſeated upon the Ravensbourn, which from hence runs Northward into the Thames, and is noted for its fair College founded by Dr. Warner Biſhop of Rocheſter, for 20 Clergy-men's Widows. In which each has convenient Lodgings, and 20 l. per Annum Rent-Charge duly paid, beſides a Chaplain for Publick Devotions provided with fair Lodgings and 50 l. a year. Hard by this Town is a fine Summer Seat for the Biſhop of Rocheſter. It's 10 miles from London.

BROMES-GROVE, a Market Town in Worceſterſhire in Half-ſhire Hundred, upon the Banks of the River Salwerp, well inhabited by Clothiers, 82 Miles from London.

BRONCHORST, a Town of the Low-Countreys in the Province of Gueldres, with the Title of a County: It is ſituated on the right Hand of the Iſſel, within half a League of Zutphen.

BRONSBROO, or Broemſebroo, Bronsbroa, a Borough of Swedeland in Oſtro-Gothia, famous by the Treaty of Peace which was concluded there the 13th of July 1645. betwixt the Kings of Swedeland and Denmark. By this Treaty the King of Denmark obliged himſelf to reſtore Jempterland and Herendal to Swedeland, to yield to that Crown for ever the Iſles of Gothland and Oeſel, with the Province of Halland for 30 years.

BRONSCHORST, (Everard) born at Deventer, and Son of John hereafter mention'd, was one of the moſt Eminent Lawyers of the Low-Countreys. He profeſs'd this Faculty at Wirtenburg and Erfort, and returning into the Low-Countreys, was Law-Profeſſor at Leiden, where he died in 1627. He has left us Two Orations, De Studio Juris. Controverſiæ Juris. 'Εναντιοφανῶν Centuriæ IV. &c. Meurſius Athen. Bat. Valer. Andreas Bibl. Belg. &c.

BRONSCHORST, (John) of Nimeguen, liv'd in the Sixteenth Century, and was Principal of the College of Deventer: Afterwards he taught the Mathematicks at Roſtock, and died at Cologne in 1570. His Works are Scholia in Dialecticam Georgii Trapezuntii. Arithmetica, &c. He likewiſe Tranſlated Eight Books of Ptolemy's Geography into Latine, and made Remarks upon Venerable Bede's Treatiſe De ſex mundi ætatibus. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Voſſ. De Mathem. &c.

BRONTES, one of the Cyclops, who work'd in Vulcan's Forge, was ſo call'd from his making Jupiter's Thunder-Bolts; Steropes and Pyracmon, were his Fellow Journeymen, and are thus mention'd by Virgil in his Eighth Æneid.

BRONTEUS, one of the Names which the Greek Antiquity gave to Jupiter; from the Greek Βροντὴ, that ſignifies Thunder, whence it comes that the Latins call him Thundering Jupiter. Some have given the ſame Name to Bacchus, becauſe of the Noiſe and Quarrels which Drunkenneſs occaſions. Blondus Flavius, Lib. 1. of his Triumphant Rome, ſaith, That Bacchus was called Father Liber, and Brontin. The Ancients uſed in their Publick Games an Engine called Brontea, becauſe it imitated the noiſe of the Thunder, by the means of a large Copper Veſſel which was hidden under the Theater, and in which Stones were roul'd. Feſtus calls this Machin, the Claudian Thunder, from the Name of Claudius Pulcher, who was the Inventor of it.

BRONZERIO, (John Jerome) an Eminent Italian Phyſician; He was well vers'd in the Belles Lettres, Philoſophy, Aſtrology, and Phyſick, which laſt he practis'd at Venice, Padua, and Belluno, where he died in 1630. His Works are, De Principatu jecoris ex Anatome Lampetræ. De Principio effectivo ſemini inſito. De innato calido & naturali Spiritu, &c. Thomaſin. in Vit. Illuſt. Vir. P. 2. Vander Linden. De Script. Medic. &c.

BROSSE, or De Broche, (Peter la) was born in Touraine, of low Extraction, but he had a great deal of Wit, becoming very expert in Chirurgery. He came to St. Lewis his Court, where he was immediately receiv'd Chirurgeon to Philip of France, afterwards King under the Name of Philip III. Sirnamed the Bold, who when he mounted the Throne, he made La Broſſe his Chamberlain, and ſuffered himſelf to be governed altogether by him, which rendered the Favourite ſo inſolent, that he made an attempt upon the Perſons of the Princes and Great Lords of the Kingdom. He Poyſoned Lewis of France in 1276. Eldeſt Son to King Philip III. by Iſabeau of Arragon his firſt Wife, and endeavoured to perſwade the King, that Queen Mary of Brabant, his ſecond Wife, was the Author of it, to bring ſome of her own Children to the Crown. His Ambition made him commit ſeveral other Crimes which came to the King's knowledge, whereupon he aſſembled his Council at Vincennes, where it was reſolved to ſeize La Broſſe, who being Tried in preſence of ſome Barons, he was condemned to be Hanged, and his Goods to be confiſcated to the King, which was executed in 1276. The Duke of Burgundy, the Duke of Brabant, the Earl of Artois, and ſeveral other Lords, were willing to ſee this Execution, and there were a great many Gentlemen to whom the Death of this wicked Man was very acceptable, becauſe he had ſerved them ill Turns with the King. Du Puy.

BROSSES, (Francis Senchez des) in Latin Sanctius Brocenſis, was the moſt famous Grammarian of Spain towards the end of the laſt Age. Lipſius calls him the Mercury and Apollo of Spain. Scioppius uſed to ſay, that he was a Divine Man. That of his Works which made moſt noiſe, is his Treatiſe of the Cauſes of the Latin Tongue, or of Minerva, which got him the Title of Father of the Tongues, and Inſtructor of the Learned. This Book was Printed at Franeker, with Scioppius and Perizonius's Notes. He wrote a Book, Entituled, The Art of Speaking, and of the Manner of interpreting the Authors Nicol. Antoine. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

BROTHERTON (Thomas) of Hey, in the County of Lancaſter Eſq; deſcended from an ancient Family of that Place. Having ſpent ſome time at Jeſus-College in Cambridge, removed from thence to Gray's-Inn for the Study of the Law, where, at leiſure Hours, he made ſeveral Curious Obſervations and Experiments concerning the Growth of Trees, Publiſh'd by the Royal Society in the Philoſophical Tranſactions for June 1687. Numb. 187. by which he clearly proves the Three following Propoſitions; Firſt, That moſt, if not all the Sap, aſcends in the Veſſels of the Lignous part of the Tree, and not in the Cortical part, nor between the Cortical and Lignous parts. Secondly, That the encreaſe and growth of a Tree in Thickneſs is by the deſcent of the Sap, and not by the aſcent; and if there was no deſcent, a Tree would encreaſe but very little, if at all. Thirdly, That there is a continual Circulation of the Sap all the Summer Seaſon, and during ſuch time as the Sap is ſtirring, and not a deſcent at Michaelmaſs only, as ſome have held. Now, notwithſtanding theſe Principles diſagree with the Opinions of many Learned and Ingenious Gentlemen, who have Treated upon Planting, yet when rightly apprehended, they will be found to tend much to the improving and accelerating the growth of Trees, as Mr. Brotherton has Experienced in his Plantations, and particularly in his Groves and Avenues of Firs, which for number and bigneſs are hardly to be parallell'd in England. Cambd. Brit. Ed. London. 1695. p. 801. Theſaurus Geographicus, p. 29.

BROWER, a Streight of Southern America, in the Magellanick Sea, about the Iſland called Statenland, which parts it from the Streight of Le Maire. It was diſcovered about the year 1643 by the Dutch, under the Conduct of one Brower, who gave his Name to it.

BROWER Shaven, a ſmall Town of Zealand in the Iſland of Schouwen with a Sea Port. It is within two Leagues of Zircizea, rich and well Peopled.

BROWN, (Francis) Viſcount Montague, came to this Title An. 1629. upon the deceaſe of his Father Anthony, Grandſon of that Anthony, who being Grandchild of the Lady Lucy, one of the Daughters and Co-Heirs of John Nevill Marquiſs Montague, was by Queen Mary created Viſcount Montague in 1554. whereupon he was by Order of Parliament ſent with Tho. Thurlby, Biſhop of Ely, to the Pope, for reducing of this Realm to an Union with the Church of Rome. And in the Second year of Queen Elizabeth, upon the grand Diſpute in Parliament for aboliſhing the Popes Supremacy, and reſtoring it to the Crown, he was the only Perſon, who with the Earl of Shrewsbury, then Voted againſt it. Yet as he was a Perſon of Integrity, and that what he did was not out of Faction, but Zeal to his Religion, he was employed by the Queen as Ambaſſador into Spain. He was alſo one of the Peers who ſat upon the Trial of Mary Queen of Scots. By Jane his firſt Wife he had Iſſue Anthony, his Son and Heir, who died before him, ſo that his Eſtate and Title fell immediately from him to his Grandſon Anthony, the Father of the preſent Viſcount, who by Elizabeth, Daughter to Henry late Marquiſs of Worceſter, has Two Sons, and a Daughter Married to Chriſtopher Lord Tenham. The ſaid Anthony, who firſt got the Title, was Grandſon of Sir Thomas Brown Treaſurer of the Houſhold to King Henry VI. who had Two Sons, George, from whom Sir Adam Brown of Beckworth is Surrey is deſcended, and Anthony, who was made Standard-Bearer to King Henry VII. which Anthony dying, left amongſt his other Iſſue Anthony his eldeſt Son, from whom the Title is devolved to Francis the preſent Viſcount.

BROWNISTS, ſo called, from their Chief, Robert Brown, born at Northampton; He was at firſt Maſter of a School in Southwark, and afterwards Author of a Hereſie; His Followers condemn'd all Ceremonies, and Eccleſiaſtical Diſtinctions; they will not endure any Forms or ſtated Prayers, and believe that all the Laity are qualified to interpret the Scripture. Alex. Roſs, View of Religion. Colonel Stoupp, alias Stubs, who was acquainted with theſe Sectaries both in England and Holland, gives this Account of them, in his Book, call'd, The Religion of the Hollanders: The Browniſts, ſays he, are Separatiſts from the Church of England, and from all other Reform'd Churches, becauſe they believe there is a Mixture of Corruption in all Communions but their own, not with reſpect to Articles of Faith, for in theſe they agree with the Churches of Holland, Germany, and others, but with relation to the Form of Government; They equally condemn Epiſcopacy and Presbytery, as to the Juriſdiction of their Conſiſtories, Claſſes, and Synods: They refuſe to unite with theſe Churches, pretending they are not ſufficiently aſſur'd of the Converſion and Probity of their Members; and becauſe they tollerate and admit of vicious Perſons, with whom, as the Browniſts affirm, 'tis not lawful to communicate. Theſe Sectaries condemn the Religious Solemnity and Prieſtly Benediction at Marriages; affirming, this Condition to be no more than a Civil Contract, and therefore the Confirmation of it, ſhould depend upon the Secular Magiſtrate. They refuſe Baptiſm to thoſe Children, whoſe Parents are not Members of the Church, or who have not been ſufficiently careful of the Education of their Children formerly Baptized; as I obſerv'd before, they reject all Forms of Prayer, and aſſert, that the Lord's Prayer ought not to be uſed in the Method and Words 'tis deliver'd, the deſign of it being only for a Model to form our own Extempore Prayers upon: They are for no Bells in Churches, and object againſt them more particularly, becauſe, as they pretend, they were conſecrated to the Service of Idolatry.

BRUCÆUS, (Henry) Born at Aloſt in Flanders; He was both Phyſician and Mathematician, liv'd in the 16th Century, and was taken notice of for the Correſpondence he held with Turnebus and Ramus. He publiſhed ſeveral conſiderable Works, as De Motu Primo. Inſtitutiones Sphæræ, &c. Val. Andr. Bibl. Belg. &c.

BRUCE, (King Robert) See Robert.

BRUCE, (Thomas) Earl of Ailesbury in Buckinghamſhire, is the ſecond Earl of that Title devolv'd to him by Inheritance from his Father Robert Bruce Baron of Skelton, Viſcount Bruce of Ampthill, and Earl of Ailesbury by King Charles II. An. 1664. This Honourable Family derives its known Original from Robert de Bruce, who coming in with William the Conqueror, was endowed with ſeveral Caſtles and Mannors, particularly that of Skelton in Yorkſhire, from which time it ſtill flouriſh'd more and more, till at laſt it gave Two Kings to the Kingdom of Scotland, viz. Robert and David Bruce, the laſt whereof died without Iſſue in Edinburgh-Caſtle, ſo that Margery, his Siſter, became his Heir, who was married to Walter Stuart, from whom the Kings of that Realm afterwards deſcended. Upon the coming of King James to enjoy the Crown of England, An. 1603. amongſt many other worthy Perſons that came with his Majeſty, was Edward Bruce of Kinloſs, who being a Man of great Parts, had the Office of Maſter of the Rolls conferr'd upon him for Life, and was afterwards made a Baron of Scotland by the Title of Lord Bruce of Kinloſs. He left two Sons, Edward and Thomas, and a Daughter named Chriſtian, who was Married to William Earl of Devonſhire, Grandfather to the preſent Earl of that Name; Edward had the hard fate to be kill'd in a Duel by Sir Edward Sackvile Knight of the Bath, afterwards Earl of Dorſet, whereupon Thomas his Brother became his next Heir, who was by King James created Earl of Elgin in Scotland, An. 1612. and by King Charles I. a Baron of England, by the Title of Lord Bruce of Whorton in Yorkſhire, An. 1663. Dying, he left his Honours and Eſtate to Robert his Son and Heir, by Anne his firſt Wife, who, as it's before ſaid, was created Earl of Ailesbury by King Charles II. He Married Diana, Daughter to Henry Earl of Stamford, by whom he had Eight Sons and Eight Daughters, part whereof are now living. About the beginning of the late King's Reign, he was made Lord-Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold, in the room of the Earl of Arlington deceaſed; but dying ſoon after, he left for his Succeſſor to his Eſtate and Titles the preſent Earl, his 6th Son, but Eldeſt alive. Dugdale.

BRUCHSAL, a Town of Germany in the Circle of the Upper Rhine, and Biſhoprick of Spire, ſubject to that Biſhop, ſituate on the River Saltza, ſix miles South Eaſt of Philipsburg, and 12 North Eaſt of Durlach.

BRUDENEL, (Robert) Earl of Cardigan, is the ſecond that has born this Title, derived to him from his Father Thomas Lord Brudenel of Stanton-Wivel in the County of Leiceſter, who was created Earl of Cardigan by King Charles II. An. 1661. This Family, whoſe chief Seat for divers Ages has been at Dene in the Eaſt part of Northamptonſhire, fetches its deſcent from that Robert Brudenel who became one of the King's Serjeants in the Reign of Henry VII. and Chief Juſtice of the Common-Pleas in the next ſucceeding Reign. Robert had Iſſue Sir Thomas Brudenel, ſucceeded by his Son Robert, and he by the aforeſaid Thomas, Father of the preſent Earl, which Thomas was one of that number whom King James I. raiſed to the degree of Baronet, at that time firſt inſtituted. Then in the Reign of Charles I. he was advanced to the Dignity of Baron, to which K. Charles II. in conſideration of his Loyalty, Services, and great Merits, added as aforeſaid the Title of an Earldom, now enjoy'd by Robert his Son and Heir, the preſent Earl of Cardigan, who was twice Married, firſt to Mary, Daughter to Henry Conſtable, Viſcount Dunbar, by whom he had Mary, Married to the Earl of Kenoule in Scotland: Afterwards Anne Daughter of Thomas, Viſcount Savage, by whom he had Iſſue Francis Lord Brudenel, and Joſeph, both deceaſed, and three Daughters, Anna-Maria, Married to Francis Earl of Shrewsbury; ſecond Katharine, third Dorothy, Wife of Charles Earl of Weſtmorland. His Lordſhip's Arms are, Pearl, a Cheveron Ruby, between three Morions, Sapphire. Dugdale, Orig. Jurid. in *Chron. p.*77.

BRUGES, (James) Lord Chandos, is the Succeſſor of William the 6th in Title, and 5th in Deſcent from that John Bruges who was created by Queen Mary Baron Chandos of Sudley, whoſe eldeſt Son Edmund, renowned for his notable Exploits in the Reign of King Edward VI. left two Sons, Giles and William; Giles dying without Iſſue-Male, William ſucceeded him in the Title, who dying in the laſt Year of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, left it to Grey his Son and Heir, who by reaſon of his great Intereſt in Glouceſterſhire, and numerous Attendants when he came to Court, was commonly called the King of Catſwold. By his Wife, the Lady Anne, one of the Daughters and Co-heirs of Ferdinand Earl of Derby, he left two Sons, George and William: George his next Heir ſignaliz'd himſelf in the Service of King Charles I. particularly in Newbery Fight, where he had three Horſes kill'd under him at the Head of his Regiment. In conſideration whereof he had an offer from the King to be advanced to the Title of Earl of Newbery, which he modeſtly refuſed till it might pleaſe God to reſtore his Majeſty to the peaceable Enjoyment of his Crown and Dignity. Departing this Life An. 1654. he was ſucceeded in his Honour by William his Brother, and William by the preſent Lord. Dugdale.

BRUGES, or Bruggen, Latin Bruga and Brugæ, a Town of the Low-Countreys in the County of Flanders, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Malines. It is ſituated in a great Plain within three Leagues of the Sea, upon the Canal called Reye, which being divided into ſeveral Navigable Torrents runs in divers places of the City, and afterwards theſe join in the ſame Canal which goes to Sluce. But this laſt belonging to the Hollanders, the Inhabitants of Bruges about 40 years ago made a new Canal, which goes to Oſtend, that is but about three Leagues from it, and the Tide mounting almoſt half way, it bears Ships of 400 Tuns to Bruges, which maintains a ſtanding Trade there. But it flouriſhed more in former days, before Merchants had thought of retiring to Antwerp. Bruges is one of the greateſt and beautifulleſt Cities of Flanders, fortified with good Ditches, great Ramparts, and ſtrong Walls. It is equally eight Leagues diſtant from Ghent, Courtray, Furnes, and Middlebourg. The publick Buildings are very ſumptuous, the Streets large and ſtreight, with ſeveral fine Squares, and chiefly that of the Market, whereat ſix great Streets begin that lead in a ſtreight Line to the ſix principal Gates of the City. There are above 60 beautiful Churches. The Cathedral is that of St. Donat or Donatian. The Provoſt of this Collegial Church was born Preſident of the Court called St. Donat, and Hereditary Chancellor of Flanders. But this Dignity has been united to the Epiſcopal Title, and the Biſhop enjoys the Privileges now. Pope Paul IV. founded in 1559. this Biſhoprick, with the others of the Low-Countreys, and Peter Curtius of Bruges was the firſt Prelate of it. This City is divided into ſix Quarters, and nine Pariſhes, comprehending the two which are in the Suburbs. Beſides St. Donat, there are the Collegial Churches of St. Salvator and Our Lady, the Abbies of St. Andrew, of Audembourg, and divers Religious Houſes. At the ſide of the Cathedral is the Biſhop's Palace, and over-againſt it is a great Market-Place, where the Town-Houſe is, an ancient Building enriched with Figures, and divers curious Pieces of Sculpture. In the great Market is a high Tower, with a Clock, the Chiming whereof is Muſical. There alſo is an old Building ſupported on Pillars, under which the Water runs, and Boats may paſs. The Caſtle alſo deſerves to be ſeen. Juſtice is render'd here by ſix Magiſtrates, who all have a particular Juriſdiction; to wit, the City, the Frank, the Provoſtſhip at preſent, the Biſhoprick, the Court for Feodal Tenures, Zizleelo, and Mandaſche. There is alſo the Water-Houſe, where there is an admirable Machine to convey Water into all the Quarters of the City. The Spaniards have a great Trade here in Wooll, Silk, Cotton, &c. There are a great many Tradeſmen who make Fuſtians, Tapeſtries, Cloths, Stuffs of Silk, &c. They are divided into 68 different Profeſſions. This City had a ſhare in the Troubles of the Low-Countreys, during the Civil Wars. It has given its Name to divers great Men that were born in it; as to Bartholomew of Bruges a Learned Phyſician, to Walter of Bruges, and to divers others. The Engliſh loſing Calais in 1558. removed the Staple for Wooll to Bruges, and that for ſome time preſerved it from decaying. Philip the Firſt, King of Spain, was born here in 1478. Bruges ſtands 34 miles N. W. of Ghent, 11 E. of Oſtend, 34 N. E. of Dunkirk, and 40 W. of Antwerp. Caſſander. Guichardin, Miræus, &c.

BRUGES, (John of) a Famous Painter in Flanders, and a great Admirer of Chymiſtry. He was the firſt that found the Secret of Painting in Oil, having obſerved after ſeveral trials, that in grinding Colours with Nut or Linſeed Oil, it made a ſolid Painting, which not only reſiſted Water, but moreover gave a brisk Luſtre which needed no Varniſh, as that which was done in Water Colours or Freſco.

He alſo obſerved, that the Mixtures and the Dyes of Colours were better performed thus, and that Pictures were more uniform and agreeable. He preſented his firſt Picture drawn after this manner to Alſonſus I. King of Naples, which much pleaſed him, and ſurprized all the Curious of that Country. Bruges liv'd in the 15th Century. See Antonello Felibien ſur les vies des Peintres.

BRUGNETO, a Town of Italy in the State of Genoa, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of the Metropolis of Genoa. It is ſituated at the foot of the Mount Apennin upon the Frontier of Verra, about ſeven or eight Leagues from the Sea.

BRULART, a Family Originally of the Country of Artois, both ancient and illuſtrious in Military and Civil Employments.

BRUMA, a falſe God of the Brachmanes, who, according to their Fables, produced as many Worlds, as he has conſiderable Parts in his Body. They ſay, that the firſt World which is over Heaven, was form'd of his Brains ; the ſecond, of his Eyes ; the third, of his Mouth; the fourth, of his left Ear; the fifth, of the Roof of his Mouth and Tongue ; the ſixth, of his Heart ; the ſeventh, of his Belly ; the eighth, of his Privy Parts ; the ninth, of the left Thigh ; the tenth, of his Knees ; the eleventh, of his Heel ; the twelfth, of the Toes of his right Foot ; the thirteenth, of the ſole of the left Foot ; and the fourteenth, of the Air which environed him. In ſome of the Figures of this Idol, the firſt World is marked on the top of his Head ; the ſecond, upon his right Eye ; the third, upon his Mouth ; the fourth, upon the left Eye ; the fifth, upon his Throat ; the ſixth, the ſeventh, the eighth, and the ninth, as I juſt now ſaid ; the tenth, upon his right Thigh ; the eleventh, upon his right Foot ; the twelfth, upon his left Foot ; the thirteenth, under the ſole of the left Foot ; and the fourteenth, upon an Oval which repreſents the Air wherewith he is environed. The Brachmanes make People believe, that there is a relation betwixt theſe Worlds, and the Parts from which they have ſprung, and that each Man has different qualities conformably to the World which hath produced him. That from the firſt World come the Wiſe Men, the Learned and fine Wits ; from the ſecond, Prudent Men ; from the third, Eloquent ; from the fourth, Crafty and Subtil ; from the fifth, Gluttons ; from the ſixth, Liberal ; from the ſeventh, Cowards ; from the eighth, Laſcivious ; from the ninth, Tradeſmen and Labourers ; from the tenth, Gardeners ; from the eleventh, Handy Tradeſmen ; from the twelfth, Murderers and Thieves ; from the thirteenth, the Violent Oppreſſors of the Poor ; from the fourteenth, thoſe who have the Gift of doing all things well. Kircher de la Chine.

BRUMALES, a Feaſt in Honour of Bacchus, whom the ancient Latins called Brumus. The Romans celebrated it twice a Year, viz. the 18th day of February, and the 15th day of Auguſt. Rhodig. Lil. Gyrald.

BRUNEHAUD, or Brunichilde, ſecond Daughter to Athanagilde King of the Wiſigoths in Spain, and to Goſvinthe, Married to Sigebert I. King of Auſtraſia in 568. and Mother to Childebert II. to Ingonde, and to Clodeſinde. She abjured the Errors of Arius, and at firſt appeared Pious and Liberal ; the Foundation of the Abbies of St. Martin of Autun, St. Peter, and Eſnag of Lyons, and St. Vincent of Laon, being aſcribed to her. She became infamous afterwards for her Cruelty, Vengeance, Avarice, and Impudicity, though Pope Gregory I. and Germain Biſhop of Paris, were at the Pains to make her a Panegyrick. After the death of Sigebert ſhe Married Merouée, Son to Chilperic, and retiring to her Son Childebert, ſhe became Regent of the Kingdom of Auſtraſia. Her Ambition made her extreamly reſtleſs, ſo that ſhe ſacrificed all things to this violent Paſſion. She took part againſt her own Son with Combaud or Gondebaud, who pretended to be Son to Clotaire, and was accuſed of having poyſoned him, for his Majority excluding her from the Authority which ſhe had, ſhe was reſolved to recover it in the Nonage of her Grandſons. She governed the States of Theodebert, who had Auſtraſia for his Portion, made uſe of the Sword and Poiſon to ſatisfie her Avarice and Luſt. Winton Duke of Champagne, with ſeveral others experienced what I ſay. Thus ſhe rendered her ſelf ſo odious to all the Lords of the Kingdom, that they baniſhed her quite naked out of Auſtraſia. A Poor Man, named Dicier, knowing her, conducted her to Châlon upon Sâone to her other Grandſon Thierry, who gave her the whole Authority. Her Conductor had for a Reward the Biſhoprick of Auxerre. In the mean time this Cruel Queen inſpired the Prince with Love of Women, and fearing leſt a Lawful Wife ſhould perſwade him to take away the Authority from her, ſhe provided Miſſes for him her ſelf. And though ſhe was twice Grandmother, ſhe had notwithſtanding Gallants, as Protade, whom ſhe advanced to the Office of Mayor of the Palace, by the death of Bertoalde who exerciſed the ſame. The Scandal of her Amours was ſo great, that St. Didier Biſhop of Vienne, thought himſelf neceſſitated to reprove her. But this Jezebel not liking his Liberty, got him condemned in 603 at Châlon, in an Aſſembly of Biſhops devoted to her Intereſt, and two years after ſhe cauſed him to be ſtoned to death by her Guards. In the mean time, to be revenged on Theodebert, ſhe perſuaded Thierry II. to make War againſt him, which ended in the loſs of the formers whole Family, in 611. and then, as it's thought, ſhe poiſoned the latter in 612. So many Crimes at laſt obliged the French, being in a Military manner, aſſembled to rid themſelves of her. Clotaire II. was preſent, repreſented her Crimes, and accuſed her of having put to death ten Kings. She was therefore condemned to an infamous death, in 613. or, according to others, in 614. She was put to the Rack three days together ; then ſhe was led upon a Camel round about the Camp ; and afterwards tied by the Feet to the Tail of a Wild Mare, who dragged her upon the Stones : Others ſay, that ſhe was drawn betwixt four Horſes, and afterwards burnt.

BRUNI, (Leonard) called Aretin, becauſe he was of Arezzo, lived in the 15th Century. He learned the Greek Tongue under Emmanuel Chryſolorus, and became one of the moſt able Men of his time. His Worth procured him conſiderable Employments, Pope Innocent VII. made him Maſter of the Briefs, and he was afterwards Secretary to the Republick of Florence. He was alſo a Philoſopher, Hiſtorian, and Orator. Divers great Men have writ his Panegyrick. He lived in Celibacy, and the only thing which he is reproached with, was his having been too Worldly. He Tranſlated from Greek into Latin ſome of Plutarch's Lives, Compoſed three Books of the Punick War, Tranſlated the Hiſtory of the Goths from Procopius, Wrote the Hiſtory of his own time, and another of the Greeks. He alſo left a Tranſlation of the Morals of Ariſtotle, and ſome other Works in Greek and Latin. He died in 1443. being Seventy four years of Age, and was interr'd in the Church of the Holy Croſs of Florence, with this Epitaph :

> Poſtquam Leonardus e vitâ migravit,
> Hiſtoria luget, Eloquentia muta eſt :
> Ferturque Muſas tum Græcas, tum
> Latinas, Lachrymas tenere non potuiſſe.

Æneas Silvius, Ep. 51. Paul. Jov. in Elog. cap. 9. Voſſius, &c.

St. BRUNO, Founder of the Order of the Carthuſians. It is a Subject of Debate amongſt the Learned Roman Catholicks, whether the occaſion of the retreat of St. Bruno, was the Prodigy ſaid to have happened in our Lady's Church of Paris, when the Body of a famous Doctor, whoſe Name was Diocre, at what time Maſs was ſaying for him in that Church, lifted his Head from off the Bier, and cryed out firſt, that he was accuſed, then judged, and finally damned by the juſt Judgment of God. Thoſe who believe not this Hiſtory alledge theſe Reaſons, viz. That St. Bruno himſelf in a Letter, which he writ from his Monaſtery of Calabria in Italy, to Raoul le Verd, Provoſt of the Church of Rheims, excites him to become a Monk, to accompliſh the Vow they had made together at Rheims, of quitting the World, after having found its vanity, in the Converſations they had had in that City. He ſpeaks nothing of this Prodigy, which would have been a powerful motive to excite him to embrace the Religious State, and to fulfill his Promiſe. Guibert, Abbot of Nagent, in the Life of St. Bruno, relates, That after the Death of Gervais Archbiſhop of Rheims, one Manaſſes had obtain'd that Dignity by Simony, and maintained himſelf in the ſame by force of Arms, having raiſed a Company of Guards who followed him every where : That Bruno entertaining a horror of this Diſorder, went from Rheims with ſome of the Clerks of the Cathedral Church to Grenoble, where he retired into a Wilderneſs. Here is another Cauſe of St. Bruno's retreat, written by an old Author, and one in whom we may confide. If ſo prodigious a Miracle, as the ſpeaking of a Dead Body, had contributed thereunto, Abbot Guibert would not have omitted it ; the thing was too extraordinary to be forgotten. Peter of Cluny, called the Venerable, ſpeaking of the Order of the Carthuſians inſtituted in his time, by St. Bruno and his Companions, ſays, That theſe firſt Hermits of the Chartreuſe renounced the World, and made profeſſion of a very auſtere Rule, after having ſeen the diſorders of ſeveral Monks who lived in a luke-warmneſs and criminal negligence. He ſpeaks nothing of the Prodigy of the Man raiſed from the Dead, though he had ſaid in the Preface of his Book, that his deſign was to write all the Miracles, whereof he ſhould have a certain knowledge, and which might augment the Faith, or regulate the Manners of Chriſtians. Several other ancient Authors, who wrote near 240 years after the Inſtitution of the Order of the Carthuſians, ſpeak nothing of this Miſerable Doctor. The firſt who writ this Hiſtory, which was invented ſome time before, was John Gerſon, Chancellor of the Univerſity of Paris, in his Treatiſe of the Simplicity of the Heart, which he compoſed about 1420. He relates this Prodigy, as an Example which ought to move us to the Fear of God, and which was ſaid to have given beginning to the Order of the Carthuſians: But he mentions it only as a common Report, without citing any Author for it. Antoninus Archbiſhop of Florence alſo deſcribes the Reſurrection of the Doctor, and ſaith, That St. Bruno, Profeſſor of Divinity at Paris, was preſent at this dreadful Spectacle: But he names no Authors, and it's known, that he did not always examine the Truth of the things which he writ in his Hiſtory, as Canus a Learned Monk of the ſame Order has obſerved, who aſſiſted at the Council of Trent. Thoſe who have ſince ſpoken of this Prodigy, add new Circumſtances, which contradict each other. Some have ſaid, That the dead Man ſpoke three days ſucceſſively; and others, that it was in the three Nocturns of the ſame Day. Some affirm, that his Body was flung on the Dunghill; and others, that a Ghoſt drew near the Coffin, and carried it away. Some ſay that he was Canon of Noſtre-Dame, and alledge, that ſince the time of this horrid Spectacle, theſe words, Reſponde mihi, were no more uſed in the Dioceſe of Paris, but that in ſinging this Song of the Office of the Dead, they begun at Quantas habeo iniquitates. Which are all groundleſs Forgeries. About 100 years ago, this Doctor was called Raimond Diocre. See Diocre. De Launoy, De verâ cauſâ ſeceſſûs S. Brunonis. Howbeit, it is certain, that Saint Bruno went in 1084. or in 1086. to Hugh Biſhop of Grenoble. He was followed by his Companions, and this Prelate appointed them a Deſart which was in his Dioceſe, whither he ſent them. It is a frightful Solitude of the Chartreuſe in Dauphiné, which gave name to the famous Order that St. Bruno founded there. Pope Urban II. who had been his Diſciple and Friend, called him into Italy. But Bruno being no more able to endure the Converſation of great Perſons, retired into Calabria, and died there in 1101. Pope Leo X. Canonized him in 1514. He has written an Expoſition upon the Pſalms, Commentaries upon the Epiſtles of St. Paul, and ſeveral other Treatiſes which F. Theodorus Petreius, a Carthuſian, in 1611. put into three Volumes, Printed at Cologne. The firſt of which has the Life of St. Bruno in the Front, and yet the Criticks are perſuaded, that amongſt the Works which are attributed to him, there are ſome of Bruno of Segni's. Arnulph Boſtius, Petrus Bleſenſis, &c.

BRUNO, or Brunon, Brother to Wittikind King of the Saxons, ſwore Allegiance to Charlemaign about 785. and gave riſe to the Family of the preſent Princes of Saxony. Some hold that the Guelphs, Earls of Altorff and Dukes of Bavaria, are deſcended from him, and that the Earls of Zollern, and conſequently the Marquiſſes of Brandenburg owe their Original to the Guelphs; and others add, that the Othos of Saxony, who have been Emperors, were his Deſcendants. Spener. Hiſt. Geneal.

BRUNO, called the Great, Archbiſhop of Cologne and Duke of Lorrain, was Son to the Emperor Henry I. of Saxony, called the Fowler, and Brother to Otho I. and to Haldwige Mother to Hugh Capet. He was well skill'd in the Latin and Greek Tongues; ſome aſcribe unto him Commentaries upon the Five Books of Moſes, and ſome Lives of Saints. He ſucceeded in 953. to Wicfred Archbiſhop of Cologne, and was afterward Legate to the See of Rome. The Emperor Otho I. his Bother, gave him the Government of the Dutchy of Lorrain. He was concerned in all the great Affairs of his time, and died in 965. Le Mire, Molan, Cratepolius, &c.

BRUNO, Biſhop of Wurtzburg in Franconia, known by the Name of Bruno Herbipolenſis; He was Son to Conrade, Duke of Carinthia, and Uncle to the Emperor Conrade II. He died about the middle of the Eleventh Century. He is reputed the Author of Annotations on the Pſalms, on the Canticles, and on the reſt of the Old and New Teſtament; upon the LORD's PRAYER, the Apoſtles Creed, and that of St. Athanaſius: Theſe Works were revis'd by John Cochlæus, and are inſerted in the 10th Volume of the Bibliotheca Patrum, Printed at Cologne. Trithem. De Script. Eccl. Miræus in Auct. Poſſevin, &c.

St. BRUNO, Biſhop and Apoſtle of Pruſſia: He is ſaid to be an Italian, and a Benedictine Monk; and that travelling into Pruſſia to preach the Goſpel, he converted a great Number of the Heathens; was Biſhop of the Country, and ſuffered Martyrdom October 15. in 1008. Trith.

BRUNSBERG, or Bronsberg, a Town of Poland in Royal Pruſſia; ſtands upon a little River near the Gulph of Dantzick. Brunsberg has formerly been the Seat of the Biſhop of Warmorlant, but is now Engag'd, or Mortgag'd to the Elector of Brandenburg, being ſituated upon the Frontiers of Ducal Pruſſia. This Revolution has given it the Name of Brandeburg. See Brandeburg.

BRUNSBUTEL, a ſmall Town of Holſtein in Dithmarſon, belonging to the King of Denmark. It is indifferent ſtrong, ſituated near the Mouth of the Elbe, within two or three Leagues of Gluckſtadt.

BRUNSVIC, or Brunſwick, a Country of Germany in Lower-Saxony, with the Title of Dutchy, betwixt the Biſhopricks of Halberſtat, and Hildeſheim, the Country of Lunenbourg and Weſtphalia. Brunſwick is the Capital Town thereof, the others are Goſlar, Gottinghen, &c. Under the Name of Brunſwick is alſo comprehended all that the Princes of this Houſe poſſeſs in Lower-Saxony, where they form different Branches, and have the Dutchies and Countreys of Lunenbourg, Gottinghen, Grubenhagen, and Gallemberg, Wolſembuttel, Hanover, Zell, Urzen, Danneberg, Garbug, Gifforne, Eimbech, Hamelen, &c. This Country is good and fertile, well furniſh'd with Mines, and Stock'd with Game and Corn. It is watered by divers Rivers, the Chief of which are the Weſer, the Oker, the Glein, the Humenaw, the Viper, &c. Here are alſo divers fine Sources of Water, and vaſt Foreſts. Trade flouriſhed there formerly, but the laſt Wars have occaſioned a Change there, as well as in other parts of Germany. Here are ſtill very fine Towns, Hanover, Gifforne, Wolſembuttel, &c. which laſt made a good defence in 1641. againſt the French and Swedes, who pretended to carry it by raiſing the Waters of the Oker, having for that purpoſe made Ditches below the Place. The Houſe of the Princes of Brunſwick, and Lunenburg, are deſcended from Azo of Eſte, Marquis of Tuſcany, who lived in the 11th Age, and about 1028. or 30. and followed the Emperor Conrade II. into Germany, where he Married Cunegonde, Siſter to Guelph III. of the Family of the ancient Guelphs, of whom it's ſaid he was the laſt.

BRUNSWICK, or Brunſvic, upon the Oker, Brunopolis Brunſriga, and Brunonis vicus, a City of Germany in the Lower-Saxony, Capital of the Dutchy of Brunſwick. It's pretended that it was built about 868. by Brunon, Son to Alphonſus Duke of Saxony, who gave his name to it. The Emperor Henry the Fowler augmented it ſince, and divers other Princes have contributed in rendring it one of the beautifulleſt Cities of all Germany. It's form is almoſt ſquare, and it is half a German League in circuit. The River of Oker divides it into two. Here are five or ſix fair Squares, and fine Houſes, amongſt which the Town-Houſe is very magnificent, and ſeveral Churches that are all in the Proteſtants hands. For the Inhabitants of Brunſwick were among the firſt who ſubſcribed Luther's Doctrine. The Chief of theſe Churches is that of St. Blaſius. Brunſwick was one of the chief Hanſe Towns, and governed in manner of a Republick, pretending to have bought its Liberty from the Dukes of Brunſwick, which they have oppoſed vigorouſly, taking Arms to aſſert their Titles, but this City had always the advantage. In the 16th Age Henry the Young beſieged it, in 1542. 1550. and 1553. It ſuffered much during theſe Sieges; but with the help of their Confederates, ſtill maintained its Liberty. In 1569. the Diſputes that were betwixt the Dukes of Brunſwic and that City, were accommodated amicably upon theſe Conditions, that Duke Julius, Son to Henry the Young, aſſented to, viz. That the Senate ſhould render to the Duke the whole Bailiwick of Aſſemburg near Wolſembuttel; That the Duke ſhould alſo ſurrender the Bailiwicks of Eich and of Wenthauſen to the two Conſuls, in the Name of the Republick; and that he ſhould renounce for him and his Heirs all Claims to Sate and the Old-ſtreet, which Henry his Father pretended to be Part of the City of Brunſwick, mortgag'd by his Anceſtors, but not ſold to the Senate. This Agreement did not fully compoſe the Differences; for Frederic-Ulric laid Siege to Brunſwick, and preſſed it furiouſly in 1614. but the Hanſe Towns and the Dutch reſcued it from this Danger. The Duke levying new Forces the year following, forced it to render him Homage in 1617. ſo ſeemed to have put an end to all the Differences, which moſt of his Anceſtors had with this City. But his Succeſſors pretending other Rights, took their Meaſures ſo well, that they entirely ſubdued Brunſwick in 1670. It was then very ſtrong; they have fortified it regularly ſince, and put it in a condition of being no more able to revolt. In the mean time the numerous Garriſon which they keep there, and the noiſe of Arms, have driven thence moſt of the Merchants, and put a ſtop to Trade. Brunſwick is ſeated in a Plain, ſurrounded with a double Wall, and two deep Ditches, and in ſome places with three; in the reſt its fenced by Moraſſes between the Ditches, it hath a thick Rampart round the Town, planted with divers ſorts of Trees. Bertius, l 3. *Comment Germ. BRUNUS, or Bruni, (Anthony) a famous Italian Poet, who flouriſh'd in the beginning of this Age. He was Native of Manduria in the Kingdom of Naples, and ſo much eſteemed for the Delicacy of his Wit, his Natural Mildneſs, his Merry Humour and Civility, that not only the moſt famous Academies of Italy thought it an Honour to admit him a Member of their Body; but the Learned, and Perſons of Quality, ſtrove to have ſhare in his Friendſhip. The Duke of Urbin invited him to his Court, where he gave him a Place of Counſellor and Secretary of State. He died in 1635. as he was ending a Poem, Entituled, The Metamorphoſis. The Works which we have of his, are, Il Parnaſo. Lettre Grazie. Le Veneri. L'Epiſtole Heroiche, &c. L. Craſſo.

BRUNUS, (Conrade) Canon of Ausbourg: He lived in the Sixteenth Century, and was counted a great Lawyer. He publiſhed a Treatiſe concerning Ceremonies, in Six Books: The reſt of his Works are, De Hæreticis. De Seditioſis. De Legationibus. De Imaginibus. And likewiſe a Book againſt the Centuriatores Magdeburgenſes. They were Printed in one Volume at Mentz, in 1561. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 16.

BRUTIDIUS, (Niger) lived in the Reign of Tiberius: He was Scholar to Apollodorus, and wrote a Hiſtory, in which he gives Tully a high Character, as Seneca obſerves. Tacitus likewiſe makes mention of him. This Brutidius was very much in Sejanus's Intereſt, and out-liv'd the Fall of that great Favourite; which made Juvenal ſay, That the Fear of miſcarrying with his Friend, made him turn pale.

BRUTII, a People of Italy, which drew their Original from the Lacedæmonians, according to Juſtin, lib. 10. who placeth them in the extremity of Italy, in that part which was called Great Greece. They were diſtinguiſhed into Ciſmontani and Tranſmontani, and inhabited the Country now called the Furthermoſt Calabria, in the Southern part of the Kingdom of Naples. The Inhabitants of Lucania called them Brentians, or Brettians, which in their Language ſignifies Fugitives, becauſe they having been their Slaves, ſhook off the Yoak, and went to ſettle on the other ſide the River Laüs. The Romans called them Brutians, as if one ſhould ſay Brutiſh People, by reaſon of their Clowniſhneſs, Stupidity, and the Cowardice which they ſhewed in the time of the Second Punick War, where, inſtead of fighting for the Romans againſt Hannibal, they ſubmitted baſely to this General; for which reaſon, they were never afterwards regarded, nor employed but in ſervile Works; and it's hence that the Romans called all thoſe Brutians who lived mean, and without Publick Offices. Aul. Gell. Diod. Strabo.

BRUTON, a good Market-Town of Burton Hundred, in the Eaſt of Somerſetſhire, graced with a fine Church, a Free-School, founded by King Edward VI. for the Education of Youth, and an Alms-Houſe for the Relief of the Poor.

BRUTUS, a King, often mentioned in the Annals of Britain, is ſaid to have been the Son of Sylvius, and he of Aſcanius, whoſe Father was Æneas, a Trojan Prince, who at the burning of Troy, made his eſcape with his Son Aſcanius and others; and after a tedious Voyage, arrived in Italy, where Brutus is ſaid to have been born. Being 15 years of Age, he happened to kill his own Father with an Arrow; for which unhappy Fact, being baniſhed by his Kindred, he retired into Greece, where he undertook the Deliverance of the Trojans, kept there in ſervile Condition by Pandraſus, then King, whom he had the good Fortune to make Priſoner; but gave him his Liberty upon theſe Conditions: That he ſhould give him his Daughter Inogen in Marriage, with a rich Dowry; and, That he ſhould provide Shipping, Proviſions, and Money, for the Trojans to depart the Land, and ſeek their Fortune elſewhere. Which being punctually performed by Pandraſus, they, under their Leader Brutus, ſet out with a Fleet, as 'tis ſaid, of 324 Sail. After two days ſail, they came to an Iſland then called Leogeica, but long before diſpeopled and left waſte by Sea-Rovers. There was however a Temple and Image of the Goddeſs Diana that gave Oracles, which Brutus thought fit to conſult before he went any further. Being adviſed by the Oracle to proceed Weſtward beyond the Realm of Gaul, he ſteer'd his Courſe accordingly; and after ſome Encounters on the African ſide, he happened to land at a place on the Tyrrhenian Sea on the ſide of Italy, where he found the Race of thoſe Trojans who came with Antenor thither, and whoſe Chief Leader was Corincus, a Brave and Valiant Commander: Theſe join'd with Brutus, and being come to the Aquitain Ocean, caſt Anchor at the Mouth of the Loire, where they had ſeveral Conflicts with the Natives with different Succeſs. Touron, a Valiant Nephew of Brutus, fell in the laſt Battel, whoſe Aſhes being left in that Place, gave Name to the City of Tours, built by the Trojans. Brutus finding his Power much leſſened, and that this was not the Place foretold him, leaves Aquitain, and landing where now ſtands Totneſs in Devonſhire, he was ſoon ſatisfied that it was the Place promiſed by the Oracle. The Iſland, then called Albion, was only inhabited by a remnant of Giants, whoſe Tyranny had conſumed the reſt of the Inhabitants. Theſe Brutus deſtroy'd, and with ſome reference to his own Name, called the Iſland Britain; in the Diviſion whereof, that part we now call Cornwal, fell by Lot to Corincus. After this, Brutus built a City called Troja Nova, or New Troy, changed in time to Troynovantum, now London, and began to enact Laws. He Governed the Iſland 24 years, and at his Death divided it by Conſent amongſt his Three Sons, Locrine, Camber, and Albanact. The firſt had the middle part, called Loegria; Cambria, or Wales, fell to Camber; and Albania, now Scotland, to Albanact. Thus is made out the Story of Brutus's Planting of Britain, by thoſe that maintain the ancient Britains to be an Offspring of the Trojans: But many count the whole fabulous.

BRUTUS, (Lucius Junius) Son to Junius, who married the Daughter of Tarquinius Priſcus, King of Rome. This Name of Brutus was given him, becauſe he counterfeited the Fool, to avoid the Fury of Tarquin the Proud, his Uncle, who put his Father and Brother Marcus Junius to death. The Violence that Tarquin's Son did to Lucretia, in 245 of Rome, gave occaſion to Brutus to perſuade the Romans to take Arms, and baniſh the Kings from Rome; which was accordingly effected, and Brutus declared Conſul with L. Tarquinius Collatinus, An. 245. in the 66th Olympiad, and about 509 before the Chriſtian Æra. He diſcharged this Office with ſuch Zeal for the good of the New Commonwealth, that having diſcovered that his two Sons had conſpired with the young Men of Rome to reſtore the Tarquins, he cauſed them to be brought to the Publick Place, where they were firſt ſcourged, and then beheaded. After that, he ſingled out one of Tarquin's Sons in a Battel, and fought ſo deſperately, that both of them were killed. Florus, Liv. l. 1.

BRUTUS, (Marcus) deſcended from the Family of Ancient Junius, according to ſome Authors; but others affirm him of a different Houſe; lived in the 700 of Rome. He was a great Admirer of Learning. He compoſed an Abridgment of the Annals of Fannius, of Cælius, and ſome other Works. His Contempt of Riches was ſo great, that he refuſed the Charge of Quæſtor of the Gauls, an Employment of great Gain. He preferred the Philoſophy of the Stoicks to the reſt. He ſided with Pompey during the Civil War; and after the Death of this Great Man, was pardoned by Cæſar, who beſtowed great Favours upon him. The Love he had for the Liberty of his Country, rendred him Ungrateful towards his Benefactor; ſo that with a great many Conſpirators, he murthered him in full Senate, in the 710th of Rome, 44 before Jeſus Chriſt. This Piece of Ingratitude is pretty well expreſſed in the famous Gallery of the Palace of the Great Duke of Florence. There is a Head of Brutus begun by Michael Angelo; but ſtill unfiniſhed: An Ingenious Gentleman has given the Reaſon of it in a Diſtich engraven in Copper under the Head, thus:

Dum Bruti Effigiem Sculptor de marmore ducit,
In mentem ſceleris venit, & abſtinuit.

After the Death of Cæſar, Brutus withdrew into Macedonia, joined Caſſius, and was overcome by Auguſtus and Antonius, in the Philippick Fields, in the 712th of Rome: So that fearing he ſhould fall into the hands of his Enemies, he obliged his Friend Strato to kill him. His Wife Porcia, upon the news of his Death, made her ſelf away. Liv. Flor. Suet.

BRUTUS, (Peter) a Venetian, and Biſhop of Cattaro in Dalmatia, lived to the year 1490. He was a good Linguiſt, and wrote an Excellent Book againſt the Jews, with ſome other very valuable Pieces. Trithem. De Script. Eccleſ.

BRUXEL, a ſmall Town of Germany in the Palatinate of the Rhine, and Dioceſe of Spiers: It belongs to the Biſhop, and is ſituated upon the River Saltz, about 2 or 3 Leagues from the Rhine.

BRUXELS, or Bruſſels, a Town of the Low Countries, Capital of the Dutchy of Brabant, Seat of the Chancelery and Court of Brabant: The Council of State, the Courts for the Exchequer, and the War, are held here, it being the ordinary Reſidence of the Prince, or Governour, whom the King of Spain keeps in the Low Countries. It is ſituated upon the ſmall River of Sinne, or Saine, which diſcharges it ſelf in the Schelde, by a Canal of the length of five Leagues, which was made in 1561. It is built part in the Plain, and part upon a Hill, extreamly pleaſant, environed with a double Wall, pretty far diſtant from each other, having betwixt both, Eaſtward, the Court, with a fine Park. Bruxels is about 4 Leagues from Louvain, and as many from Nivelle, near the Foreſt of Soignies. It is one of the greateſt, beautifulleſt, and beſt Peopled City's of the Spaniſh Low Countries. The River Sinne, which waſhes it in ſeveral places, is no ſmall Ornament to it: The Two Branches of the great Canal are the Lower City, bordered with great Keys, filled with a prodigious Number of Boats, that come thither from the Sea by the Schelde. This makes Bruxels a Trading Town, as well as its ſeveral Manufactures. There are Fifty two Trades, divided into Nine Guilds, or Companies, called the Nine Nations. Here you find ſome Footſteps of the Ancients Fancy for the Number Seven; for there are Seven Gates, Seven principal Churches, Seven conſiderable Families, and Seven Sheriffs, who have the care of Affairs. The Streets of Bruxels are beautiful, its Houſes well built, its Market-places and Squares ſpacious, and its Fountains and Palaces magnificent. That of the Governour ſtands on a riſing Ground, with rich Apartments and fine Gardens. The Chapel belonging to it is alſo very curious: The King's Palace, the Town-Houſe, and the Churches deſerve to be ſeen by Strangers. Among the Churches, the Collegial, Dedicated to St. Gudulla, is the Chief, and the moſt ancient, where they pretend to have an Hoſt, ſtabbed by a Jew in Indignation, at the ſuppoſed Preſence of the Body of Chriſt, which ſhed Blood out of the Wound; whereupon, they ſay, the Jew was immediately ſtruck with Death; whereas his Life and Converſion had been a greater Proof. It is adorned with rich Paintings, divers Statues, and coſtly Furniture. In 1695. while the Confederates were buſie in the Siege of Namur, and Prince Vaudemont too weak to oppoſe the French Army; the latter, under the Command of the Duke de Villeroy, ſo ſeverely Bombarded this Place, that a great part of it was reduced to Aſhes. Guichard. Sand. Miræus, Notit. Eccl. Belg.

BRUYS, (Peter) born, as is believed, in the Mountains of Provence, or Dauphiné, in France, in the 12th Century: He Preached at Toulouſe 10 years, and ſolidly impugn'd Maſs, Prayers for the Dead, and other Tenets of the Church of Rome, out of Scripture; for which he was perſecuted, and at laſt burned alive at St. Gille's. Moreri calls him an Hereſiarch, Founder of the Petrobruſians; and ſays he held, That People ought rather to have an Indignation than Veneration for the Croſs on which our Saviour ſuffered: That he condemned Pædobaptiſm, and was for pulling down of Churches.

BRYDALL, (John) of Lincoln's-Inn, Eſq; Son and Heir of John Brydall of the Rolls Liberty, Eſq; who was a Batchelor in the Civil Law, a good Mathematician, well skill'd in the Oriental Tongues, and Secretary to Three Maſters of the Rolls, (viz.) Sir Charles Cæſar, John Lord Culpeper, and Sir Harbottle Grimſton. He was likewiſe Captain-Lieutenant of the Foot-Regiment of Auxiliaries, conſiſting of Gentlemen, Officers, and Servants, belonging to the Inns of Court and Chancery, raiſed againſt the Rebellion in the Reign of King Charles I. for the Defence of the Univerſity and City of Oxford, and Commanded by Edward Lord Littleton, Keeper of the Great Seal. Captain Brydall was ſo remarkably Famous for the Managing a Pike, that he was once commanded upon an Exerciſe before the Prince of Wales, in Chriſt-Church Quadrangle, where, after ſome lower Eſſays by way of Flouriſh, he toſs'd three gag'd Pikes at once, to the great Satisfaction and Surprize of the Prince and Company: And for his Dexterity in this Performance, and his Loyalty to the King, had a Patent for a Coat of Arms, blazon'd as follows: Argent, three Mullets in bend Gules, double cottiz'd Azure; upon a Canton Gules, a Portcullis Or: The Creſt, upon a Helmet proper, mantled Gules, doubled Argent, and Wreath of his Colours, an Arm attired Azure, turned up Argent; the Hand proper, holding three Pikes Or, headed Argent.

BRYENNIUS, (Nicephorus) who bore the Quality of Cæſar and Auguſtus, becauſe of his Alliance with Alexis Comnenus, Emperor of Conſtantinople, was as conſiderable by his Wit, as by his Birth and Employments. He was born at Oreſtia, a Town of Macedonia, where his Father making ſome Enterprize againſt the Empire, obliged the Emperor Nicephorus Botoniates to ſend againſt him Alexis Comnenus, then General of his Army, who cauſed his Eyes to be pulled out: But obſerving a great deal of Wit and Majeſty in the Perſon of his Eldeſt Son, of whom I ſpeak, he married to him his Daughter Anne Comnenus, ſo famous by her Writings. When Alexis came to the Empire, he gave his Son-in-Law the Quality of Cæſar; but would not hearken to the Empreſs Irene, who having extraordinary Love for the Princeſs Anne her Daughter, did what ſhe could to make him declare Bryennius his Succeſſor, to the Prejudice of John Comnenus her Son. After the Death of the Emperor, John Comnenus having taken upon him the Government of the Empire, the Empreſs Irene, and her Daughter Anne, would fain have put Bryennius in his room; but he would not conſent to it. He was afterwards ſent, about 1137. to beſiege the City of Antioch, where falling ſick, he died after his return, at Conſtantinople. The Hiſtorical Memoirs which he has left of the Actions of Alexis Comnenus, his Father-in-Law, ſhew well enough, that his Employments and Affairs did not hinder him to apply himſelf to his Study. He writ them, as he teſtifies himſelf in his Preface, at the Sollicitation of the Empreſs Irene, his Mother-in-Law. This Work, which he divides into Four Books, begins at the the Reign of Iſaac Comnenus, a long time before his Father-in-Law came to the Empire, and contains what paſſed under this Emperor and his Succeſſors, Conſtantine Ducas, Romanus, Diogenes, and Michael Ducas, Parapinaces; ends with the Account of the Expedition that Nicephorus Botoniates undertook againſt Nicephorus Meliſſenus, who, with the Aſſiſtance of the Turks, went to make himſelf Maſter of the Empire. Father Pouſſin the Jeſuit, has tranſlated this Work, which he cauſed to be printed in Greek and Latin, with Notes, at Paris, in 1661. and in 1670. were added the Hiſtorical and Philological Remarks of Charles du Freſne. Zonar. Annal. Tom. 3.

BUA, the Name of the King of Tonquin, who indeed has little beſides the Name of Prince, the whole Authority being lodged in the Choüa. See the Article Tonquin, in the Title of the Kings and Government.

BUA, which thoſe of the Country call Chiovo, a ſmall Iſland of Dalmatia, near that of Taucor Troghir, which are joined by a Bridge: They are near Spalatro, and belong to the Venetians. Plinius has ſpoken of the Iſle of Bua; and Ammianus Marcellinus makes alſo mention thereof, under the Name of Boüs. See John of Lucio, Deſcr. Dalm.

BUABIN, an Idol of the People of Tonquin, betwixt China and India, whom they invoke when they are about building a Houſe, &c, They erect an Altar, and call ſome of the Bonzes to offer Sacrifices upon it to this Idol. After the Sacrifice is over, they prepare a Feaſt of the Meats which have been offered; then they preſent to this falſe Divinity ſeveral gilded Papers, which have ſome Magick Words writ in them; and afterwards burn theſe with Perfumes before the Idol, to oblige it, by this Ceremony, to preſerve the Structure they were about from all unlucky Accidents. Tavern. Voyage des Indes.

BUBONA, a Goddeſs of Pagan Antiquity, to whom was aſcribed the Care of Oxen and great Cattel.

BUBOICI, (John Nicholas) Biſhop of Sagona in the Iſland of Corſica, lived towards the end of the Fifteenth Century. In 1496. he publiſhed a Book at Naples, De Origine & Rebus Geſtis Turcarum; which is bound with Chalcondylas.

BUCCAFERREI, (Jerome) a celebrated Profeſſor of Law at Bononia: He died in the year 1623. But his Works are Immortal; we have them in one Volume, containing 1400 Conſultations; and 'tis to be hoped more of them will appear ſhortly. Thomaſ. in. Vit. Vir. Illuſt.

BUCCELLAIRE, Lat. Buccellarius, a kind of a Vaſſal amongſt the Viſigoths in Spain, and properly he who received Buccellam, the Morſel of his Lord, that is, who eat at his Table, or was kept by him. In the Laws of the Viſigoths, Lib. 1. 5 Tit. 2. by the Word Buccellari, is underſtood an Ancient Soldier, or a Gentleman holding a Fief, for which he obliges himſelf to ſerve in Perſon at the War. Turneb, Adverſ. 24. Ch. 46. quotes one Maurice, a certain Greek Author, who deſcribes after what manner theſe were Armed. Their Armour was a Cuiraſs, or Coat of Mail, which hung almoſt to their heels. He adds, That they were a kind of Archers; and ſpeaks in the ſame place of a certain Order of Buccellaires, who in times paſt were very much conſidered, and marched in Companies before and after him who had the General Command of the Army. Suidas ſeems to intimate, that they were Gallogreeks born. Gregory of Tours, l. 2. c. 8. of his Hiſtory, remarks, That whilſt the Emperour Valentinian made a Harangue to the People, one Occylla, a Buccellar belonging to Aëtius, came on a ſudden, and run his Sword through his Body. There are ſome who hold, That theſe Buccellaires were thoſe whom the Latins named Latrones, that is, Guards to a Prince, quaſi Laterones, as Plautus expreſſeth himſelf in theſe Words: Rex Seleucus me opere oravit maximo ut ſibi Latrones cogerem. Alberi believes that theſe Buccellars were Thieves, who having received a Commiſſion to make War in the Eaſt, gave themſelves up to all manner of Licentiouſneſs, and lived on Plunder and Rapine. Spelm. Gloſſ. Archæol.

BUCENTAURE, a Galeaſs, or great Gally of the Doge of Venice, adorned with fine Pillars on both ſides, and gilt over from the Prow to the Stern. The Doge's Seat is upon the uppermoſt Deck, where the Standard of the Republick is diſplayed, with the Prince's Arms on the ſide. Juſtice is repreſented in Gold upon the Prow, holding a naked Sword in her Right Hand, and a pair of Scales in her Left. This Veſſel is covered over Head with a kind of a Tent made of Purple Silk. It is in this Galeaſs that the Doge receives the great Lords and Perſons of Quality that go to Venice; accompanied with the Ambaſſadors and Counſellors of State; and all the Senators ſeated upon Benches by him. This ſame Veſſel ſerves alſo every year in the magnificent Ceremony of Aſcenſion day, in which the Duke of Venice throws a Ring into the Sea to Eſpouſe it, and to denote his Dominion over the Gulf of Venice. It's ſaid, that the firſt Galeaſs of this kind was built in 1177. by order of Sebaſtian Ziani Duke of Venice, to receive the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa, who came to make Peace with Pope Alexander III. and the Republick of Venice.

Others believe that it was built in 1311. As to the Name, the Ancients called Centaurs, certain great Ships which had the Figure of a Centaur on the Stern; and ſome think that the Galeaſs of Venice was called Bucentaure, as if one ſhould ſay a great Centaur; the Particle Bȣ in Greek, being put at the beginning of Words ſignifies Great. The Elector of Bavaria cauſed to be built ſome few years ſince, a Ship as great and as magnificent as that of the Venetians, to which he has alſo given the Name of Bucentaure. He has ordered it to be launch'd on a Lake which is ſix Leagues in length. Mezeray. Abrige. Chronol. &c.

BUCEPHALIA, a City which Alexander the Great built in the Indies, in Honour of his Horſe Bucephalus. Quintus Curtius mentions it in the Ninth Book of his Hiſtory; and ſeveral Modern Authors think it is Lahor, Capital of the Province of Pengab, in the Dominions of the Great Mogul. The Ancients placed it upon the River Hydapſes, where ſtands the Rawci of our time. This City is ſpacious and fair, has a great many magnificent Moſques, great Palaces, and fine Gardens, with a good Caſtle.

BUCEPHALUS, the Name of Alexander the Great's Horſe. This Name was given to Horſes whoſe Heads reſembled thoſe of Oxen; for Bȣς in Greek ſignifies an Ox, and κεφαλ& ſignifies Head, or to thoſe which had a very big Head; the Word βȣ in Greek being added to others to ſignifie a great bulk. The Horſes were alſo called Bucephals, who had the Figure of a Bulls-Head upon their Shoulders, or on their Rump. It is uncertain for which of theſe Reaſons Alexander's Horſe got that Name. This Prince bought him for Sixteen Talents, of a Theſſalian, who kept excellent Horſes in the Pharſalian Fields; and never mounted him but when he went to fight ſome Battel. When this knowing Beaſt had his Harneſs on, he ſuffered none but Alexander to mount him, and would bend his Knees to receive him; but when his Saddle was off, the Groom manag'd him as he pleas'd. Being mortally wounded, he ran with an extraordinary ſwiftneſs, to carry Alexander far from the Enemies, and having reached a ſecure place, he fell down dead. Alexander reſolved to render his Memory immortal for ſo good a Service, erected him a magnificent Tomb, and cauſed the City of Bucephalia to be built at the place where he fell, after the Battel wherein Alexander vanquiſhed King Porus. Pliny. Strabo, L. 5.

BUCER, or Beucer Martin, was born at Scheleſtat in Alſace in 1491. quitted the Dominican Order in which he liv'd 15 years, and embraced the Reformation in 1521. Publiſh'd a Book of the Reaſons of this Change, and wrote a Dialogue againſt Luther under the Name of Arbogaſtus, and endeavour'd an Agreement between the Reformed Divines concerning the Lords Supper. He taught Divinity for 20 years at Strasbourg, where he was Miniſter, and was one of the chief Founders of the Reformation there, was employed in all the Conferences about Religion in his time. He refuſed to ſign the famous Accommodation called Interim; and a little after, was ſent for into England by Archbiſhop Cranmer, in the Reign of Edward VI. and made Profeſſor of Divinity at Cambridge, where he died in 1551. In 1555. in Q. Mary's Reign, his and Paul Fage's Bodies were taken up, and burned; but Q. Elizabeth, in 1560. ordered their Tombs to be repaired. He wrote much, and upon different Subjects; was well skill'd in Greek and Hebrew, and a profound Divine. Beza ſpeaks advantageouſly of him; and Calvin writes thus of him in a Letter to Viretus: Quam Multiplicem in Bucero jecturam fecerit Dei Eccleſia, quoties in mentem venit cor meum prope lacerari ſentio. Melch. Adam. Hoffm.

BUCHAN, a Country in the North of Scotland, having the German Sea on the Eaſt and North, and the Counties of Murray and Marr on the Weſt and South. This Province is noted for good Paſturage and great Flocks of Sheep, whoſe Wooll is much eſteemed. There are no Rats in this Country; and if they be brought thither from elſewhere, they die immediately. Near the Caſtle of Slanes there is a Cavern, from the top of which there diſtils a ſort of Water which turns to Stone as faſt as it falls, and would quickly fill up the Cave, if it were not emptied. On the Coaſts of this Country is found yellow Amber, of which a quantity as big as a Horſe was ſeen there in the laſt Age; and on this Coaſt the Claik-Geeſe, ſaid to breed from the Logs of Firr-trees, are alſo found; but this is certain, that the ſaid Geeſe taſte exactly of Firr. The Rivers of this Country abound with Salmon, except that called Ratra, in which there is never one to be found. This County hath given the Title of Earl to ſeveral Families; as, to the Cumins, and the Family of Quincy, Earls of Wincheſter; and ſeveral times to Branches of the Royal Family of Scotland; one of whom was John Stuart, Earl of Buchan, Son to Robert Duke of Albany, Governour of Scotland, who Commanded the 6000 Scots Auxiliaries, ſent to the Aſſiſtance of Charles VII. of France; and on Eaſter-day defeated and killed the Duke of Clarence, Brother to Henry V King of England, who Commanded the Engliſh at the Battel of Bavge: In conſideration of which, the French King created the Earl of Buchan Conſtable of France; but in 3 years after, he was killed by the Engliſh at Vernoil. Buchanan.

BUCHANAN, (George) the famous Scotch Poet and Hiſtorian, was born in the County of Lenox, in the Highlands of Scotland, Feb. 1. 1506. His Family was Ancient, but of low Fortune; ſo that his Unkle James Herriot, was at the Charge of his Education; and after he had paſſed his trivial Schools at home, ſent him to Paris, where he followed his Studies, but chiefly Poetry; both becauſe of his Natural Inclination that way, and that he had been accuſtomed to it in his Youth: But e're he had been there two years, his Unkle's Death, and his own Sickneſs and Poverty, obliged him to return; and after his Recovery, he join'd the French Auxiliaries, then in Scotland, to learn ſomething of War: But this brought him into a Relapſe of his Diſtemper, and confin'd him that Winter. Next Spring he went to St. Andrews, to hear John Major's Logicks, or rather Sophiſtry, as he ſays himſelf; and the Summer following accompanied him to France, where he imbibed Luther's Doctrine, and ſtrugled with great Difficulties for two years; and was for three after, Grammar-Profeſſor at Barbara-College; during which time, the young Earl of Caſſils being much taken with him, he entertained him for 5 years, and carried him home to Scotland. Buchanan deſigning to return again to Paris, he was detained by the King, and was made Tutor to James his Natural Son. In the mean time, a Poem of his repreſenting St. Francis ſolliciting him in a Dream to take the Habit of his Order, provoked the Franciſcans ſo, that they ſought his Life as a Lutheran. Not long after the King's return from France with his Queen Magdalene, a Conſpiracy was diſcovered, wherein his Majeſty ſuſpecting the Franciſcans, ordered Buchanan to write againſt them; which he perform'd, under the Title of Franciſcanus & Fratres; whereupon Cardinal Beaton offered the King a great Sum for his Life; and Buchanan being committed, eſcaped from Priſon into England firſt, and then into France, where he found his Enemy, the Cardinal, Ambaſſador from Scotland; ſo that he retired from Paris to Bourdeaux, where, at the Invitation of Andreas Goveanus, he taught three years in the Publick Schools, and there he wrote his Tragedies: But the Cardinal having writ to the Archbiſhop of Bourdeaux to apprehend him, the Letters did providentially fall into the hands of ſome of Buchanan's Friends; and in the mean time the King of Portugal having invited Goveanus thither, and to bring ſome Linguiſts and Philoſophers with him, Buchanan was applied to for one, and eaſily aſſented, eſpecially becauſe he had ſuch Learned Companions as Nicholaus Gruchius, Gulielmus Garentæus, Jacobus Tevius, and Elias Vinetus. They ſucceeded excellently well at firſt; but Andreas Goveanus dying, their Enemies pick'd Quarels with them, put three of them into naſty Priſons; but were moſt ſpiteful againſt Buchanan, becauſe of his Poem againſt the Franciſcans: ſo that he was put into the Inquiſition, and after a year and half's Examination and Torment, leſt they ſhould ſeem to have cauſleſly vexed a Man of his Fame, they ſhut him up in a Monaſtery for ſome Months, to be diſciplined and inſtructed by the Monks, Men, he ſays, who were not Uncivil nor Bad, but Ignorant of all Religion. 'Twas then that he tranſlated moſt of the Pſalms into Latin Verſe, which have made him ſo famous in the World. After this, he ſued for a Paſs from the King, who was unwilling to part with him, and gave him a Penſion, with Promiſe of better Preferment: But being wearied out with delay, he ſail'd from Lisbon to England, where he had great Offers made him in the Reign of Edward VI. but did not think fit to accept them; ſo that he returned to France, about the time that the Siege of Metz was raiſed, on which, at the Importunity of his Friends, he wrote a Poem. From thence he was called over into Italy by Charles de Coſté of Breſcia, who Governed that part of Italy belonging to France; and there he ſtayed with him and his Son Timolean 5 years, till 1560. during which time he ſtudied the Holy Scriptures, returned to Scotland quickly after, entred himſelf into that Church, and was one of thoſe ſent by the States of that Kingdom, to prove their Accuſation againſt Queen Mary before Queen Elizabeth; and appointed Tutor to King James VI. in 1565. He died at Edinburgh, Sept. 28. 1582. But notwithſtanding his great Parts and Learning, he hath wrote ſome Books, which, in the Opinion of ſome Authors, have tarniſhed his Character; particularly Cambden calls his Book De Jure Regni apud Scotos, A Damn'd Dialogue; affirms it written at the Inſtance of the Earl of Murray; and that ſome Paſſages concerning the Precariouſneſs of that Crown, are contrary to the Credit of the Scotiſh Hiſtory. This Book, together with his Hiſtory, was prohibited and ſuppreſſed in the Reign of King James I. as containing many things to be found fault withal, to be defaced, and obliterated. Cambden adds, That his Book, called The Detection, written againſt Mary Queen of Scots, was condemn'd of Falſhood, by the Eſtates of the Realm of Scotland; and that his Pen was byaſs'd by the Earl of Murray's Liberalities, and his own partial Inclinations to that Nobleman: That he lamented his own Inſincerity before King James, for caſting ſo many Aſperſions upon the Queen his Mother, and wiſh'd he might live long enough to make a Publick Retractation, and wipe out the Calumnies, though it were with his Blood. Sir James Melvill reports, That Buchanan was Religious, but eaſily abuſed; and ſo facile, that he was led by every Company that he haunted, which made him Factious in his old days; for he ſpoke and wrote as thoſe who were about him inform'd him; for he was become careleſs, following in many things the vulgar Opinion: He was likewiſe Naturally Popular, and Extreamly Revengeful; of which unhappy Temper, this Hiſtorian gives ſeveral Inſtances. Melvill's Memoirs, p. 125. Cambden's Elizabeth, p. 88, 95, 301. Part of the Elogies given him by the Scaligers and Beza, on the account of his Pſalms, is as follows:

Joſeph Scaliger ſays,

Namq; ad Supremum perducta Poetica culmen
  In te ſtat, nec quo progrediatur habet:
Imperii fuerat Romani Scotia Limes,
  Romani Eloquii Scotia finis erit.

Jul. Cæſ. Scaliger ſays of him,

The Great Beza writes of him thus:

Ut te Roma licet Scotorum ad littora natum,
Æquoreas inter cautes atq; horrida Cete,
Tanquam urbe in media civem ſibi vindicet ortum:
Inde autem Magni te Mantua clara Maronis

Invidiaq; omni major, Buchanane, triumpha.

BUCHOLSERUS, (Abraham) a German Proteſtant Miniſter, lived in the Sixteenth Century: He compoſed a Chronology from the beginning of the World, unto 1580. under the Name of Iſagoge Chronologica. He was a Native of Schonau near Wittemberg, and died at Freiſtadt in Sileſia, where he had been Miniſter, June 4. 1584. being 55 years of Age. Beſides that Work, he has left a Catalogue of the Roman Conſuls, Chronological Tables, which his Sons, George and Scultet, have augmented; and other Pieces of Chronology. He ſtudied at Francfort and Wittemberg, and learned Divinity under Melancthon. Melch. Adam. Voſſius.

BUCHS, a Country of France, in the Landes of Bourdeaux, near Medoc. The Head or Cape of Buchs is a ſmall Principality under the Title of Captalat; and its Inhabitants are thought to be deſcended of the ancient Boians, or Boates. It had Lords named Captals of Buchs, of the Houſe of Foix and Candale.

BUCKENHAM, New Buckenham, a Market Town of Shoreham Hundred, in the South Parts of Norfolk, from London 79 M.

BUCKERIDGE, the Name of an ancient Family in Berkſhire, who have had their Seat at Baſſeldon near Reading, ever ſince the Seventh of William the Conqueror; and from this Family all the Buckeridges in England are deſcended. The Eſtate is at preſent enjoyed by Mr. Thomas Buckeridge. Of this Family was John Biſhop of Rocheſter in 1611. tranſlated to Ely in 1627. who had for his Bearing, in a Field Or, Two Pallets between five croſs Croſlets, Fitchy in Saltire Sable.

BUCKHOLD, (John) or John of Leyden, was a Botcher of that City, a Crafty, Eloquent, Subtil, Confident, Changeable and Seditious Fellow; he was one of thoſe called Anabaptiſts, and ſet up at Munſter, whither he was ſent by John Matthias, one of the Ringleaders of thoſe Enthuſiaſts; ſo that he, with Rotman, Knipperdoling, Knippenburch and Kraehtin, ſpread their Errors in private Conventicles at Munſter, and running about the Streets in Enthuſiaſtical Raptures, cryed out, Repent and be Baptized, otherwiſe the heavy Wrath of God will fall upon you. This happened An. 1533. A little after they broke out into a Tumult, ſeized the Palace and Magazines, and cryed out aloud, That all were to be deſtroyed as Heathens, who would not Embrace Anabaptiſm: Hereupon enſued Skirmiſhes, and afterwards a Truce, on condition that every one ſhould quietly follow what Religion they profeſſed; but the Anabaptiſts conſpired to drive all the Proteſtants out of the City, and for that end ſent for all of their own Opinion from Neighbouring Cities, ſo that thoſe who conſulted their own ſafety, left Munſter. Whereupon the Enthuſiaſts degraded the Senate, choſe another, and made their Ringleaders Conſuls; then they plundered all Places, Sacred and Prophane, turning out the other Citizens, without Diſtinction of Age or Sex, and ſeizing their Poſſeſſions; and the poor People being thus Treated, were no leſs barbarouſly uſed by the Soldiers, who had blocked up the Avenues without, who killed many of them, ſo that abundance of Godly and ſober People were forced to ſtay within, though involved in Blood and Tears. John Matthias, the great Prophet of the Anabaptiſts, being killed, Knipperdoling pretended a Revelation that Buckhold muſt ſucceed him, that the Great Men ought to be degraded, the Poor exalted, and Churches demoliſhed; and Buckhold delivered Knipperdoling the Eexcutioner's Sword. In the meantime the Biſhop's Forces, who had beſieged the City for ſome Months, made an Aſſault to have taken it by Storm, but loſt 4000 Men, and all hopes of reducing it by Force, yet continued the Siege. Three days after this Buckhold pretended to be Dumb, and in imitation of John Baptiſt's Father, made Signs for a Tablet, wherein he wrote down Twelve Men, who were to be the Twelve Elders of Iſrael, and manage all things as in the New Jeruſalem, for which he pretended a Divine Command, and then aſſumed to himſelf the Title of a King, Marrying Three Wives, one of them the Widow of Matthias, their firſt Ringleader, who was ſlain in a Sally, and her he called Queen. The Soberer Part of the Citizens being moved with Indignation, ſeized the falſe Prophet Knipperdoling; but he was quickly releaſed by his deluded Diſciples, who murdered 49 of the ſaid Citizens in a barbarous manner, tearing them in pieces with Hooks. On the 24th of June, 1534. Tuyſentſchryver, another pretended Prophet, counterfeited a Revelation, That Buckhold was to be exalted to Royal Dignity, and the Eternal Throne of his Father David, which he was to poſſeſs with greater Dignity than he; the Common People tore their Hair for Grief, but durſt not oppoſe him, ſo that he was inveſted with the Regalia, and appointed his Officers of State in every thing reſembling a King, and indeed, with the Gold which they had plundered, and other Materials; his Veſtments were as ſumptuous as thoſe uſed by Emperors in their greateſt Solemnities. Nor was his Attendants leſs magnificent, the Sword carried before him was enriched with Jewels and Diamonds of great Value, and another carried a Bible with a Golden Crown, adorned with ſuch ſparkling Jewels as dazled the Beholders Eyes. His Title was The King of Juſtice, The King of the New Jeruſalem. He had a ſtately Throne erected in the Market-place, and cauſed Money to be Coined with this Inſcription, Verbum caro factum quod habitat in Nobis. About Bartholomewtide after, Tuyſentſchryver ſounded a Trumpet through the Streets, inviting all to the Lord's Palace, where all that came were magnificently entertained, the Mock-King, Queen and Courtiers attending them, and Buckhold himſelf gave every one a Loaf of Unleavened Bread, ſaying, Take, Eat, and Celebrate the Lord's Death: and his Queen carried about the Cup in like manner, and thus they had a Mock-Sacrament. This being performed, Tuyſentſchryver preached a Mock-Sermon, and pretended that he had Orders from Heaven to ſend Twenty eight Men from that City to Preach their Doctrine through the World, and having named and aſſigned them their Quarters, their King, after Supper, about the ſecond Watch, ſent them away, giving each of them a Piece of Gold, charging them, that neglecting their own Safety, they ſhould depoſite it for a Note of condemnation, where-ever they beſtowed it. They went accordingly to their Poſts, howling out, Repent, and be Re-baptized, or you are undone; but the Magiſtrates of the ſeveral Cities having ſeized them, all of them except one were hanged; at their Examination they told, that they were ſent by God, to perſuade the People to be Re-baptized, and have all things in Common, and to leave the Golden Coin of Condemnation among thoſe that refuſed; adding, That the true Goſpel had not been Preached ſince the Time of Chriſt and the Apoſtles; but that there were Two Prophets, the Progeny of Truth it ſelf, ſlipt down from Heaven, viz. John of Leyden, and David George: That the Pope was a falſe Prophet, and Luther worſe than he. And being asked why they had baniſhed and plundered the Citizens of Munſter, they anſwered, That it was now the Time when the Meek and Humble ſhould inherit the Earth, and that they imitated the Iſraelites who robbed the Egyptians of their Jewels and Ear-Rings. After this they diſpatched their Miſſionaries to Amſterdam, Leyden, and other Towns, where they occaſioned many Diſorders and Tumults: And in the latter end of 1553. Buckhold ſent out a cunning Soldierly Fellow with a great Sum to Levy Soldiers in Zealand, and raiſe the cloſe Siege; which he managed ſo cunningly, with the Aſſiſtance of thoſe of his Party, that having got together ſome Hundreds of Soldiers, he ſeized on a Monaſtery, called Old Munſter, and having plundered it, encamped there; but George Skench, then Governor of Friezland, attacked, and after a gallant Defence, overcame them, killing all but 60, who were hanged at Lovard; and their Leader John Geel, who eſcaped to Amſterdam, and by the help of John Campenſis, and Hans Gothelet, a ſtrong and Warlike Fellow, contrived, with the Aſſiſtance of the Anabaptiſts, to ſeize that City, and accordingly attempted it on the 10th of May, but were defeated, Geel and Gothelet ſlain, and Campenſis taken and hanged; and at the ſame time David George endeavoured to raiſe Commotions in Utrecht. Thoſe of Munſter being at laſt reduced to Famine, Buckhold promiſed that the Siege ſhould be raiſed before Eaſter, appointed Guards for his own Security, and promiſed Money and Preferment to his Captains, as that they ſhould be Dukes, Electors, &c. One of his Queens, formerly a Glover-Wench, having ſaid that Famine came not from God, he ſtruck off her Head in the Market-place, charging her with Adultery, while her Fellow Queens ſung a Hymn, beginning, Glory be to God on high. Eaſter being come, and no Deliverance appearing, the People grew more and more uneaſie, and he pretending to be ſick, promiſed to appear to them in ſix days time, and that the Deliverance which he had promiſed them was Spiritual, and that all who had followed him were freed from their Sins. Many, for Hunger, revolted to the Beſiegers, not ſo much in hope of Compaſſion, as to accelerate the end of their miſerable Lives, being pinched with the Extremity of Famine, inſomuch that they eat Dogs, Mice, Rats, yea, and the very Fleſh of the buried Carcaſſes, and yet the Wretch Buckhold had two Months Proviſions at his own Houſe. At laſt John Longſtrat, one of his Noblemen, Privy-Counſellors and Confidents, undertook in a Fortnight to relieve the City with Proviſions and Men; and getting out on this Pretence, for a Sum of Money and his Pardon, he betray'd the City to the Biſhop, and ſo returning to the City, aſſured Buckhold on his Faith and Reputation, that the Supplies would arrive on St. John's Eve about 10 at Night, for which end he got one of the Gates opened, and letting in a Party of the Biſhop's, the Guards were quickly cut off; the Alarm being given, Buckhold and his Courtiers getting into a Body, drove the Biſhop's Forces back, and the Citizens ſhut the Gates again; but they without breaking them open, diſplay'd their Colours, and entering, had a Bloody Fight in the Market-place, where the Botcher King, with Knipperdoling and Krachting, were taken, which ſo diſcouraged the reſt, that they fled and hid themſelves; The Soldiers ſacked the City unmercifully for ten days, and found as much Proviſion in Buckhold's Palace, as would have ſerv'd 200 Men two Months. This happened in 1535. Buckhold was carried before the Biſhop at Dulmen, within three Leagues, who ſpoke to him thus: O thou Caſtaway of Mankind! By what means haſt thou corrupted and deſtroyed my People? Buckhold anſwered undauntedly, O thou Pope! Have we done thee any Wrong, by delivering into thy Hands a well fortified and invincible City; but if thou thinkeſt thy ſelf any way endamaged by us, hearken to our Advice, and thou ſhalt be eaſily enriched? The Biſhop hardly refraining from Laughter, deſired to know the Secret: and he reply'd, Put me in an Iron Cage, and cover it with Leather, and carry me about for a Show, and if thou takeſt but a Penny from every one for the Sight of me, it will do more than repay the Charges of the War. He was ſhow'd to all the Chief Captains and Eccleſiaſticks of the Landtgrave of Heſſe, who diſputed with him, and brought him to a Nonplus; and he to obtain Life, deſired another Diſputation, and promiſed to reduce all the Anabaptiſts elſewhere, and be obedient to the Magiſtrates; but on the 20th of January 1536. he and his Companions were brought to Munſter, and after ſome time ſpent to convince them of their Offences, he acknowledged them, and caſt himſelf wholly upon Chriſt; but the reſt continued Obſtinate. Next day he was faſtned to a Stake, and pull'd Piecemeal by two Executioners with red hot Pincers. The firſt Pains he ſuppreſſed, but afterwards implored God's Mercy. Thus he was Treated for above an hour, and at length, to haſten his Death, run through with a Sword. His Companions dy'd obſtinate, being puniſh'd in the ſame manner, and all their Carcaſſes were put into Iron Baskets, and hung out upon St. Lambert's Tower. Sleiden's Commentar.

BUCKINGHAMSHIRE, or Bucks, Lat. Buckingamenſis Comitatus, is a midland County of England, ſo called from Buckingham, the chief Place. It's a long narrow County, having Northward, Northamptonſhire; Barkſhire to the South, bounded Eaſtward with Bedford and Hartfordſhires, and Weſtward with Oxfordſhire; ſo that it reaches in length, from North to South about 40 Miles; in breadth, from Eaſt to Weſt, ſcarce 18; the whole divided into Eight Hundreds, wherein are 15 Market-Towns, and 185 Pariſhes. This Country, together with Bedford and Hartfordſhires, was the ancient Seat of the Catieuchlani, in the time of the Heptarchy, a Province of Mercia, and is now in the Dioceſe of Lincoln. A Country bleſt with healthful Air, and with a rich and fertile Soil, yielding abundance of Corn, Graſs, and Marle. Chiltern Hills run through the midſt, and divide the whole Country into two Parts. In the Vales, particularly in the Vale of Ailsbury, are bred abundance of Sheep, much valued for their fine Wooll; and ſuch is the Improvement of Paſture in theſe Parts, that one Field, called Berry-Field, in the Mannor of Quarendam, has been lett for 800 l. per Annum. This County, beſides the Two Knights of the Shire, ſends Twelve Members to Parliament, viz. out of Buckingham, Ailesbury, Chipping-Wicomb, Agmundeſham, Wendover, and Great Marlow. Its firſt Earl was Walter Giffard, a great Man among the Normans, whoſe Son Walter dy'd in 1164. In 1377. Richard II. conferred this Title upon his Uncle, Thomas of Woodſtock. Humphry Earl of Stafford was the firſt created Duke of Buckingham, in 1444. Edward, the laſt of this Race, was Beheaded in the Reign of Henry VIII. in 1521. after which this Title lay vacant till 1623. when James I. created George, Viſcount Villars, Duke of Buckingham; his Son George ſucceeded him, who died April the 16th, 1687. without Iſſue, and left the Title vacant. Buckingham, the chief Town of this Shire, lies 44 Miles North Weſt and by Weſt from London, in a fruitful Soil, waſhed on all ſides by the River Ouſe; but on the North it has Three Stone Bridges over this River, was Walled before the Conqueſt, in 915 by Edward the Elder, to ſecure it againſt the Danes; and in Aftertimes there was a Caſtle built here, which is now entirely ruined. This Town is a Corporation, and ſends Two Burgeſſes to Parliament.

BUCKOR, a City and Kingdom of the Indies, in the States of the Great Mogul. This Kingdom is ſituated betwixt Hendowns and Jeſſelmere, which is on the Eaſt thereof. It has the Kingdom of Tatta on the South, that of Multan on the North, and on the Weſt that of Hajacen and Perſia. The City ſtands upon the River Indus, which runs through the Kingdom of Buckor, and there receives the Rivers Rawei and Caul.

BUDA, or Offen, the Capital City of Hungary, upon the Danube. The pleaſant ſituation of this City obliged the Kings of Hungary to make it their ordinary Reſidence. Sigiſmund, King of Hungary, who was Crowned King in 1387. and was afterward Emperor, beautified it with ſeveral ſumptuous Palaces, and cauſed the Caſtle to be built, where afterwards his Succeſſors kept their Court. This City paſſed for one of the beautifulleſt of the Kingdom, before the Turks had it; but whilſt it was in their Poſſeſſion, they ſuffered the fineſt Buildings to fall to Ruine. It is built on the Right ſide of the Danube, upon a Mountain, which makes its Situation very advantageous. Peſt is on the other ſide, a little below it; and there is commonly a Bridge of 60 Boats, which ſerves for a Communication from the one to the other. The Lower City, called Waſſerſtadt, or Town of the Jews, which is like a Suburb, reacheth from the Upper City to the Danube, on the ſame ſide. The Upper City takes up all the Declivity of the Mountain, and is fortified with good Walls, which have Towers at certain diſtances, after the ancient manner. The Caſtle is at the Extremity of the City Eaſtward, upon a Hill, which commands the greateſt part of it. It is ſurrounded with a very deep Ditch, and defended by old faſhioned Towers, and ſome Modern Fortifications, which take up all the Hill from the Wall of the Upper City to the Danube. This City was taken by Solyman II. in 1526. Ferdinand, the Arch-Duke of Auſtria, re-took it the next year after. In 1529. Solyman made himſelf Maſter of it again, after the Garriſon had ſtood Eleven Aſſaults, and reſtored it to the Waywod of Tranſilvania, who had loſt it before. Ferdinando, in 1540 or 1541. attacked it again, when Solyman coming the third time to relieve it, raiſed the Siege, and made himſelf Maſter of the Place by Stratagem and Surpriſe, and ſo took it from the Queen, whom he came to aſſiſt. Matthias the Arch-Duke beſieged it again in 1598. and after in 1601. but with no Succeſs. The Duke of Lorrain ſate down before it in 1684. from July 14 to Novemb. 1. but was forced to raiſe the Siege and leave it; but re-inveſted it the 15th of June 1686. but was forced to raiſe the Siege, and to make Peace with Mahomet III. In fine, the Imperialiſts took it from the Infidels the 2d of Septemb. 1686. after a Siege of two Months and a half, of which we have many Relations, the beſt of which ſeems to be that which is contained in the Hiſtory of the late Troubles of Hungary, Pag. 5. The 15th of June the Two Bodies of the Army advanced equally; that of the Elector of Bavaria encamped at Mohatz, and Prince Charles of Lorrain, with the Cavalry at Dotkamp, oppoſite to one another, the Danube lying betwixt them. The ſame day the Count of Staremberg having received

Orders to make the Infantry advance, and to encamp at Maretz, arrived there with all the Troops, and part of the Baggage of the Army which had not been imbarked. The 16th Prince Charles went to encamp with the Horſe at St. Andrew, Count Staremberg with the Foot at Poſtkam, and the Elector of Bavaria to Wailan, ſo that the Infidels, from the Ramparts, could ſee the Chriſtians on both ſides the Danube, yet they made no Motion. The 18th, all the Infantry having joyned the Army, Prince Charles ordered them to advance; and the Order was no ſooner given, but the whole Army marched, and the Place was inveſted on all ſides. They begun the ſame day to make a Bridge of Boats, as well for the Paſſage of the Troops of Bavaria, as for Communication with the other ſide of the Danube, and afterwards reſolved to attack the Town in four different Places; The firſt Attack, on the ſide of the Lower Town, was commanded by Prince Charles, and carried on by the Imperial Troops: The Second on the ſide of the Caſtle, by the Elector of Bavaria: The Third by the Troops of Saxony, and the Fourth by thoſe of Brandenburg. The 19th Prince Charles cauſed the Army to approach to the Baths, and there fixed the general Quarter with ſome Regiments of Foot, within a quarter of a League of the City. On the 21ſt the Elector of Bavaria marched his Troops over the Bridge, and came to encamp at the Foot of Mount St. Gerard. The 22d the Prince of Neubourg, Grand Maſter of the Teutonick Order, arrived in the Camp with Count Dunewald. The next day, the Chriſtians began to batter the Waſſerſtad, and having made a ſufficient Breach, they entered it, whilſt the Infidels retired into the Upper City. On the 30th the Marquiſs of Turlac arrived in the Camp with the Troops of Swedeland, and at the ſame time arrived alſo the Auxiliary Troops of Franconia and Suabia, and Two Companies of Paſſau and Ratisbonne. The 2d of July the Troops of Brandenburg arrived under the Command of the Marſhal General Schonen. The 13th the Chriſtians made an Aſſault, and became Maſters of the Breach; but the Infidels ſpringing a Mine, ſeveral Volunteers of great Note, with a great Number of Soldiers, were killed or wounded. The 23d it was thought fit to ſummon the Beſieged. The Count Koningſeck, Ayde de Camp General, was ſent with an Interpreter and a Drummer to make the Summons. The Turks came to meet him, and took the Letter, which they preſented to the Governor. Upon this there was a Truce of Two Hours. The Turks brought a Letter wrapped in Scarlet, written by the Governor, in anſwer to that of Prince Charles; wherein he declared, that he was reſolved to make a vigorous Defence. After this Anſwer there was great Firing on both Sides. The 27th the Chriſtians gave a general Aſſault, and became Maſters of three Towers, at the Three Quarters of Prince Charles of Lorrain, of the Marſhal of Schonen, General of the Troops of Brandenburg, and of the Elector of Bavaria. The Firſt of Auguſt the Beſieged ſent Two Aga's, who offered, in the Name of the Viſier of Buda, to reſtore this Place, with all its Dependencies, and what other Two Towns the Emperor ſhould make choice of, if he would make Peace; but Prince Charles being informed that the Emperor would do nothing, but with the Conſent of his Allies, he diſmiſſed the Aga's. On the 14th, the Turks, who came to the Relief of Buda, appeared in Battel Array: The Duke of Lorrain fought them; he took Eight Pieces of Cannon, and Forty Standards and Colours, with the loſs of about 200 Men. The next day there were found in the Field 2200 dead Bodies. The 22d the Bavarians ſeized on one of the Towers of the Caſtle. The 29th the Turks made another Attempt to enter into the City, but they were repulſed by the Chriſtians. The 31ſt they got Advice, that the Grand Viſier was extreamly diſſatisfied with the Two Baſſa's who commanded the Troops which the Chriſtians had defeated the 29th, and that his Army was but of about 30000 Men. Laſtly, the 2d of September was the general Aſſault given: The Elector of Bavaria, accompanied with the Prince of Baden, begun it, by attacking the Caſtle. A little while after, the Duke of Lorrain, attended by the Princes of Croy, Newbourg, and Commerci, the Generals Souches, Diepenthal, Scherffemberg, and the chief Voluntiers of the Army, marched to the Aſſault. After a Hot Combat, which laſted an Hour, the Governor being killed upon the Breach, the Turks were diſheartened, and retired in Diſorder to the foot of a Wall of the Caſtle. The Imperialiſts being entred the City, made a terrible Slaughter. The Elector of Bavaria found a ſtronger Reſiſtance at the Caſtle; for the Turks who were there in their Retrenchments, not knowing that the City was taken, defended themſelves with a great deal of Courage; at laſt, being overpowered, they ſet Fire, through Deſpair, to ſeveral Places of the City. After a great Maſſacre, the Elector of Bavaria cauſed Quarter to be given to near 2000 Men, who were retired into the Caſtle, whilſt Count Koningſeck carried the ſame Orders to the Imperialiſts from the Duke of Lorrain. This they did, becauſe the Infidels might have defended themſelves yet a great while; for they had at their Head, the Aga of the Janiſaries, with the Baſſa's Lieutenant, the Mufti, and ſeveral other Officers, who were made Priſoners by the Bavarians: Moſt of the Women and Children were alſo ſaved. The Infidels being diſarmed, ſome were conducted to a Moſque, and the reſt left in the Caſtle, whilſt the Fire they had kindled in the City raged ſo far, that the Walls of the Houſes hardly eſcaped its Fury. The next day the Two Generals viſited the Place, and found in it above 400 Pieces of Artillery, four of which, of an extraordinary bigneſs, which they call the Four Evangeliſts. There was Ammunition alſo found in it for more than a Month. The Chriſtians did not loſe above 100 Men in this Action; and as they were preparing to go to attack the Grand Viſier in his Camp, they were informed that he had quitted it. There was a Treaſure of 300000 Ducats diſcover'd in the City, which had been put into the Baſſa's Hands, to uſe as he ſhould ſee occaſion. There were alſo 60000 Sequins found, with other Sums, buried in the Ground in divers Places. The Library of the ancient Kings of Hungary, ſo much augmented by Matthias Corvinus, being not in the leaſt damnified, was tranſported to Vienna. It is ſaid, that a Writing in Turkiſh Language, was found in the Mufti's Cloaths, which was an Order of the Grand Signior, to make Publick Prayers throughout the whole Extent of his Empire, to appeaſe the Wrath of God, who was irritated againſt the Muſulmans. Buda lies 49 German Miles North from Belgrade, and 54 South of Vienna. Hiſt. of Troubles of Hungary, Tom. 5.

BUDDESDALE, a Market Town in Suffolk, in Harteſmore Hundred, has a good Grammar-School, endowed with certain Scholarſhips aſſigned to Cambridge; from London 72 Miles.

BUDÆUS, (William) a Frenchman, Lord of Merly-la-ville, Councellor to the King, and Maſter of the Requeſts, was a great Ornament to his Country by his Erudition and Worth. He was ſecond Son to John Budæus, Lord of Yere, and of Villiers, and born at Paris in 1476. He raiſed himſelf happily above the ridiculous Cuſtom of his Times, when Perſons of Quality look'd upon Learning with Contempt; and with ſo much the greater Glory, that he never had any Maſter to teach him, nor Rival to inſpire him with Emulation. His Knowledge in the Greek Tongue was ſuch, that John Laſcaris, the Learnedſt of the Grecians of his time, ſaid he might be compared to the moſt excellent Orators of old Athens. That of his Works, which got him moſt Reputation, is his Treatiſe of ancient Coins, Intituled, De Aſſe, wherein he ſhewed, that he could unfold all the Myſteries of Antiquity. Some Germans endeavoured to rob him of this Honour, and Eraſmus himſelf, who calls him the Prodigy of France, envied his Reputation, and uſed his private Intrigues to leſſen it; but it was too well eſtabliſhed to be ſhook. Learning was not the only good Quality he was recommendable for, nor his Birth his greateſt Advantage; he was very Wiſe and Pious, Modeſt, Honeſt, Obliging, and took a ſingular Delight in Serving his Friends, and procuring ſome Eſtabliſhment for Learned Men. King Francis I. loved to have him near his Perſon, and it was by his Perſuaſion that this Monarch founded the Royal College, to teach in it the Tongues and Sciences. He dy'd at Paris, Auguſt the 26th, 1540. He ordered by his Teſtament, that he ſhould be buried at Night, and without Pomp, in the Church of St. Nicholas in the Fields, which made ſome believe that he was inclin'd to the Opinions of the Proteſtants. Howbeit, What paſſed then, gave Salomonius Macrinus Subject to compoſe this Epitaph.

Beſides his Works De Aſſe, Budæus has left Annotationes in Pandect. Commentaria, Ling. Græc. Lat. &c. All the Learned of his time ſtrove to make his Panegyrick in Proſe and Verſe. Amongſt the latter, I find one of Theodorus Beza, and one of Latomus, both worthy of being inſerted here. This is the firſt,

Unus Budæus terramque, poloſque, homineſque

Cælo animum, terræ corpus donavit habendum,
At cerebri nobis dona ſuperba dedit.
Sic deceſſit inops, nam nil ſibi liquerat ipſe:
Verum hæc paupertas unica vincit opes.

Beza compoſed beſides another Epitaph for him. This is that of Latomus, which others have aſcribed to themſelves.

BUDES, a Brachman or Philoſopher of the Indies, lived in the ſecond Century. He was one of the Maſters of Manes the Hereſiarch, according to Suidas, and his Diſciples believed that he was born of a Virgin. Hieron. contr. Jovinian.

BUDOA, a Town of Dalmatia, belonging to the Venetians, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan to Antivari, whereof the Turks are Maſters. It is ſituated upon the Sea, betwixt the Gulph of Cataro, and the City of Dulcigna. Pliny, Ptolemy, and Stephanus of Byzantium have made mention of it under the Name of Butua, Bulua, Buthac. Alexandro Donato having cowardly yielded Antivari to the Turks, 1571. Auguſtin Paſqualigo ſurrendred Budoa, whereof he was Governor; but was not blamed, becauſe of the Weakneſs of the Place. Zacharias Salomoni, Governor of Cataro, having retook it ſoon after with the Land and Sea Forces, the Republick took care to fortifie it; ſo that though it is a ſmall Place, yet it is very regular. It ſuffered much in 1667. by an Earthquake; but care was taken to repair the Ruines cauſed by this Accident.

BUDOS, (Ludovica) Wife to the Conſtable Montmorency, being dead in 1599. appeared ſo hideous, and her Viſage ſo diſfigured, that ſhe could not be look'd upon without Horror; which cauſed divers diſadvantageous Judgments of her, as were made of the Dutcheſs of Beaufort, who died a little before with the ſame Symptoms. Mezeray.

BUEIL (John IV. of) Great Maſter of the Archers of France, which is the ſame Poſt with Great Maſter of the Artillery, and the Colonels of the French Infantry. He was Lieutenant to the Duke of Anjou at the Siege of Montpelier, and ſeveral other Cities of Languedoc. He had alſo the Charge of the Seneſchal of Toloſa; In 1377. the King named him his Lieutenant-General of the Provinces of Guienne, Languedoc, Rovergne, Quercy, Agennois, Bigorre, and Bazadois. He and his Brother Peter de Bueil defeated the Engliſh, and took General Felton, Seneſchal of Bourdeaux, and a great number of other Priſoners. He afterwards accompanied the Duke of Anjou, and did good Service in all the Conqueſts of this Prince, who reduced Six ſcore Cities or ſtrong Places. He was at laſt killed at the Battel of Anincourt in 1415. in which defeat 'twas remarked that there were Sixteen Perſons of the Name of Bueil taken or killed. Chevalier.

BUEIL, (Lewis of) Earl of Sancerre, Knight of the King's Order, Great Cup-bearer of France, render'd himſelf Famous in the Sixteenth Age. He was wounded at the Battel of Marignan, and taken Priſoner at that of Pavia. He ſignalized himſelf in the moſt perillous Occaſions of War, under the Kings, Henry II. Francis II. and Charles IX. He ſaved the Prince of Condé's Life, put a ſtop to all the Emperor's Forces before St. Didier in Champaign, and finally, defeated there the Enemy's whole Army. Chevalier, Hermite Souliers.

BUENOS Ayres, This City is called Cividad de la Trinidad, and was built by Petro de Mendoza, on the South ſide of La Plata, in 1535. It is ſeated in a Plain, bounded with Mountains to the Eaſt. The Town was ſo far deſerted, that in 1542. Cabeza de Vaca ſettled a ſecond Colony in it, and in 1582. a third was ſent, ſince which laſt Settlement it has ſtill been inhabited. It lies in Lat. 34. 45. about 63 Leagues from the Mouth of the River, having la Plata to the North, and another River to the South, on an advanced Ground, and encompaſſed with a ſmall Rampart, ſcarce five Foot thick; the Houſes are moſt of Clay, and are defended by a few Cannon: The Inhabitants in 1630. were not above 200. employed moſtly in Husbandry and feeding Cattle; but it has ſome Trade with Braſil and Potoſi; but the King of Spain diſcourgeth this Trade what he can, for fear Braſil ſhould be enriched by it. Potoſi is 400 Leagues to the Weſt from this City, and betwixt them there is a good and eaſie Paſſage. It has all things needful in abundance. Laet. 528.

BUFFALMACO, (Buonamico) a famous Painter, was in great Reputation in the Sixteenth Age. Being conſulted by Bruno, a Painter of his time, how a lively Colour could be given to Figures, and a ſtrong Expreſſion; he taught him how to improve the Colour, and make it more beautiful; and for the other, adviſed him to make written Rolls come out of the Mouth of the Figures, that ſo they may ſeem to ſpeak to one another, which is ſeen in ſome Pictures drawn by Cimabué. This new Manner of Expreſſing things, took ſo with Bruno, and the Painters of that time, that they practiſed it in moſt of their Works: So that what Buffalmaco ſaid in Jeſt, introduced this ridiculous kind of Expreſſion. He died in the year 1340. Felibien.

BUGEN, a Town and Kingdom in the Iſle of Ximo in Japan; 'tis ſituated on the Northern Part of the Iſland upon a Gulph, and bounded with Funay and Bungo, on the South.

BUGENHAGEN, (John) a Proteſtant Miniſter, born at Wollin in Pomerania, 1485. Thuanus praiſeth him for his ſweet Humour and great Learning. He taught in his own Country, was made Prieſt, and look'd upon as one of the moſt Learned of his time. He ſhewed at firſt great Averſion to the Doctrine of Luther. Yet having afterwards embraced his Opinions, he became a moſt zealous Defender thereof, helped to make it to be received at Hamburgh, at Lubec in Denmark, in the Dutchy of Brunſwick, and elſewhere. He was afterwards Miniſter of Wittemberg, where he died in 1558. being 37 years of Age. He has written Commentaries upon the Epiſtles of St. Paul, and ſome other Works. Thuan. Melchior Adam.

BUGEY, a ſmall Country of France, betwixt the Rhone, which ſeparates it from Savoy and Dauphiné, the River of Ains, which parts it from Breſſe, and the Country of Bourgoigne. Its Length from the Bridge of Ains to Seiſſel, is 16 Leagues. Its Breadth from Dortans, upon the Frontier of the County, to the Port of Loyettes, about 10. Belley is the Head Town thereof, with a Biſhop's See. The other Towns and conſiderable Boroughs are, Seiſſel, Nantua, Vaux, Ambronay, and St. Rambert, with an Abbey, Lanieu, Chatillon de Corneille, Chatillon de Michaille, S. Sorlin, Poncin, Cerdon, &c. Bugey, is a fertile Country in Corn, Wines, Fruits, &c. There are good Paſtures in it, lofty Woods, ſeveral Lakes, and divers Rivers, as the Rhone, the Ains, the Vauferine, the Seran, the Furan, the Albarine, &c. This Country had the ſame Lords with Breſſe, until 1601. that it ſubmitted to France. Guichenon.

BUGIA Salda, a ſtrong City on the Mediterranean Sea, in the Kingdom of Algier, which has a good Harbour, and a ſtrong Caſtle; it ſtands at the Mouth of a conſiderable River of the ſame Name, to the Weſt of Algier, and is the Capital of a Province called Bugia. This City was taken by the Spaniards in 1508. retaken by the Turks, and is now under the Algerines. In 1671. Sir Edward Sprague, an Engliſh Admiral, took and burnt, under the Guns of this Caſtle, nine of the beſt Men of War the Algerines had, who thereupon cut off the Head of their King, and made a Peace with us, much to the Advantage of England. Nubienſ. p. 82. ſaith, it is ſeated upon a Rock at the Foot of Mount Amaſium to the So; that it was employed for an Arſenal to build Ships, having plenty of Timber, and Mines of Iron. He calls it Bugiaya. Leo Afric. p. 135. ſaith, the Kings of Telenſin were firſt Lords of this City, and after that, the Kings of Tunis. It was built, as it's thought, by the Romans. It ſtands on the ſide of an high Mountain, on the Mediterranean Sea, encompaſſed with ancient, ſtrong, high Walls, and in his time had about 8000 Families, but was capable of 24000. The Houſes, Moſques, and Colleges, were moſt magnificently built, and the Market-place was large and fair; towards the top of the Mountain it had a beautiful, ſtrong, large Caſtle. The Inhabitants were Rich and Valiant, and always at War with the Spaniards, who took it at laſt without any Reſiſtance, and ſacked it: Six years after, Barbaroſſa endeavoured to retake the Forts which the Spaniards had built in 1508. but was beaten off with great Loſs.

BUGIE, a Province and City of Africk, in the Kingdom of Algiers, in Barbary. It lies along the Sea, which it has on the North, the River of Suſegmar on the Eaſt, the River Major on the Weſt, and the Mountains on the South. It has along the Coaſt two principal Places, Bugie and Gegel; and in the Country Steſe, Labes, Necaus, Meſila.

BUGIE, a Sea-port belonging to Egypt, on the Red-Sea, ſeated in the moſt Southern Part of that Kingdom, over againſt Giodda or Ziden, the Port of Mecca, from which it lies 24 hours Sail, which is about 100 Miles. The Cuſtoms of this Town in the 12th Century, were divided between the King of Egypt, and the King of Ethiopia, or Abaſſinia, and each of them had his Collector here. The Inhabitants of this Town were accordingly treated as Natives of both Kingdoms, and had a free Trade in both, by which, and their Fiſhery on the Red Sea, they ſubſiſted; yet the Town was in Poſſeſſion of the King of Egypt, and here the Head-Money was paid for every Pilgrim that paſſed to Mecca, which was eight Pence in Gold. Nub. p. 44.

BUHACON, King of Fez, in the latter Age. He was of the Race of the Merinis Oatas, Kings of the Country; He was in great Eſteem for his Prudence and Courage. After the Defeat and Captivity of King Oatas, taken Priſoner by Cherif Mahomet, he cauſed the Son of this Unfortunate Prince to be put upon the Throne, whoſe Name was Mulei Cacer, Born of a Chriſtian Woman of Corduba; and Mulei made him Grand Viſier, and Principal Miniſter of the Kingdom: This happened in 1548. Some time after the Cherif being come to Fez, made himſelf Maſter of it; and afterwards cauſed the King of Fez to be Strangled, with his Son. Buhacon having received this News, paſſed into Spain, and came thence to Augsburg to Treat with the Emperor Charles V. But this Prince being then full of Troubles, could not give him the Satisfaction he deſired; ſo that Buhacon returning into Spain, he made a Treaty with John King of Portugal, who gave him an Army in 1553. Salb Rais, Dey, or Governor of Algiers, took away his Ships, but afterwards coming to an Accommodation, they reſolved on an Expedition to Fez againſt the Cherif Mahomet. Thither they went, and render'd themſelves Maſters of the City, whereof Buhacon was conſtituted King in 1555. After that, he made divers Conqueſts, he employed his Thoughts about ſtrengthening himſelf in his Acquiſitions. In the mean time Mahomet led an Army againſt him, and gave him Battel, wherein he received a thruſt of a Lance in his Thigh, and fell Dead to the Ground, and his death put an end to the War in 1557. This unhappy Prince had two Sons, who were taken by French Pyrates, as they were Coaſting Spain to ſeek ſhelter. Thuan.

BUILLON, or Bouillon, in Latin Bullonium, a Borough and Caſtle in the Country of Liege, with the Title of a Dutchy. This Caſtle is very ſtrong, ſituated upon a craggy Mountain, at the foot of which is a great Borough, about 16 Leagues from the City of Liege, and four from Ivoy. This Caſtle gave its name to the illuſtrious Godfrey of Bouillon King of Jeruſalem, who undertaking the famous Expedition of the Holy Land, engaged Bouillon to Obert Biſhop of Liege, upon condition, that if he came back he ſhould have the liberty of redeeming it. Alberic ſpeaks of this Mortgage in his Chronicle of 1096. In the 15th Age Buillon paſſed into the Houſe of la Marck. Juſtel.

BUILT in Brecknockſhire, a Market Town pleaſantly ſeated among Wood on the Banks of the River Wye; it hath a conſiderable Trade for Stockings, and two good Markets weekly for black Cattle and Proviſions, 127 miles from London.

BUL, the Name of the Eighth Month of the Hebrews, which anſwers to our October and November, 1 Kings 6. This word ſignifies Old Age, or Paſſing away, becauſe after it the year grows Old, and that the Fruits and Leaves fall from the Trees. It was alſo called Marchevan.

BULARCHUS, a famous ancient Painter, repreſented the Battel of the Magneſians. Caudales, Sirnamed Marſilus, King of Lydia, and the laſt of the Race of the Heraclidæ, valued this Picture ſo much that he gave its weight in Gold for it, which was then a very conſiderable Price. Felibien.

BULGARES, or Bulgari, a ſort of Hereticks, whoſe Opinions comprehended the Cathari, Joviniamiſts, &c. Roger Hoveden an Engliſh Hiſtorian, gives an account of their Tenents. Now amongſt other Errors, they held, That Men ought to believe no Scripture but the New Teſtament; That Baptiſm was not neceſſary to Infants; That Husbands who converſed with their Wives could not be ſaved; That Vicious Prieſts had no Authority to conſecrate the Sacrament; That neither Biſhops nor any other Eccleſiaſticks ought to be obey'd, unleſs they lived according to the Canons; That an Oath was abſolutely Unlawful, &c. Theſe unhappy Separatiſts, not being able to ſubſiſt without Union and a Head over 'em, made themſelves a High-Prieſt, whom they called a Pope, and obliged all their Miniſters to be ſubject to him. This pretended Pope fix'd his See in Bulgaria, where, (as our Author affirms) the French Albigenſes went to conſult him, and receive his Determinations in Matters of Controverſie. *Marca Hiſt. de Bearn. BULGARIA, a Province of Europe, belonging to the Turk, had in times paſt the Title of Kingdom. It ſtretches from Servia which it has on the Weſt, along the Danube, which parts it from Moldavia and Valachia, unto the Mouths of this River in the Black Sea, which bounds it on the Eaſt; and on the South a long Chain of Mountains ſeparates it from Macedonia and Romania, the old Thracia. Sofia is the head City of Bulgaria. Amurat II. took it, and ſince that time all the Country has been under the Turks. The other Town is Nicopolis or Nigoboli, upon the Danube, famous by the Victory which Bajazet I. won there in 1396. Varne upon the Black Sea, where the ſame Amurat defeated the Chriſtians in 1444. Ternova, Aparia, Dora, Siliſtria, &c. from which laſt Place to Troſmi or Tomi, known in Antiquity by Ovid's Confinement, are ſeen the remains of a Wall built by the Emperors of Conſtantinople againſt the Barbarians. Near Tomi is Proſlaviza, inhabited by the Dobrucian Tartars, whereof the Turks make uſe in their Armies, keeping them in Pay; which conſiſts of ſome Stuffs, a Sultanin or cloſe Jerket, with leave to Plunder. Bulgaria formerly made part of Lower-Mæſia. Authors do vary about the Original and firſt Seat of the Bulgarians. There are ſeveral who think that they came from the Aſiatick Sarmatia, and that they took their Name from the River Volga, which diſcharges it ſelf into the Sea of Hyrcania, having had their Seat upon its Banks before they paſſed into Europe. Others make them to deſcend from the ancient Getæ and Gepids. Howbeit, the Bulgarians have often oppoſed the Emperors of Conſtantinople, and made Incurſions into Italy and Germany, and into France too, under the Kings of the ſecond Line. They were Part of 'em converted to Chriſtianity in 866. by Paul Biſhop of Populania, and the Remainder received the Faith in 970. 'Tis ſaid there are two Latin Biſhops in Bulgaria, and that all the reſt are of the Greek Church. Spondan. Chalcon.

BULGARIANS, People of the Country that lies betwixt the Danube, the Black Sea, Romania, and Servia; quitting the Neighbourhood of the great River of Volga in the Aſiatick Sarmatia, they paſſed the Danube towards the end of the Fifth Age. They were Pagans, but were Converted at the Example of their King Bagorus, who received Baptiſm and the Name of Michael, in 845. The Patriarch of Conſtantinople maintained, That the Bulgarians belonged to his Patriarchate, and not to Rome; His Reaſon was, That the Country, ſince called Bulgaria, had been of the Greek Empire, before it was ſeized by the Bulgarians. The Pope on the contrary, would have Bulgaria to be of the Patriarchate of the Weſt, and pretended it had always been ſo, until the Bulgarians became Maſters of that Country, and gave it their Name: He added, that the Bulgarians had ſubmitted themſelves to the Roman See, to which they addreſs'd themſelves for the Prieſts and Biſhops, by whom they were Inſtructed and Baptized. Upon this Conteſtation, King Michael ſent his Ambaſſadors to Conſtantinople, to get this Difference decided by the Council which was held there in 870. But the Greeks declared themſelves abſolutely againſt the Pope, and aſſign'd Bulgaria to the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, which the Pope could not nder.

BULGARUS, De Bulgaris, of Bononia, a famous Lawyer, lived in the Twelfth Age, about the year 1160. His Reputation was ſo great, that the Emperors and greateſt Princes took him for Umpire of their Differences, and his Deciſions often paſſed for Law. He writ divers Works, and began to bring Civil and Canon Law in credit, which he taught a pretty while. Fiſchard. Leand. Alberti.

BULL, in Cæna Domini; ſo is called a Bull, which is publickly read on the Day of the Lord's Supper, viz. Holy-Thurſday, by a Cardinal Deacon, in the Pope's preſence, accompanied with the other Cardinals, and the Biſhops. It contains an Excommunication againſt all that are call'd by the Church of Rome Hereticks, the Stubborn, and Diſobedient to the Holy See; and after the reading of this Bull, the Pope throws a burning Torch into the Publick Place, to denote the Thunder of this Anathema. In the Bull of Pope Paul III. of the year 1536. it is declared expreſly in the beginning, That it is an ancient Cuſtom of the Sovereign Pontiffs to publiſh this Excommunication on Holy-Thurſday, to preſerve the Purity of Chriſtian Religion, and to keep the Union of the Faithful; but the Original of this Ceremony is not marked in it. The principal Heads of this Bull concern Hereticks, and their Upholders; Pirates, Impoſers of new Cuſtoms; thoſe who falſifie the Bulls, and other Apoſtolick Letters; thoſe who abuſe the Prelates of the Church; thoſe that trouble, or would reſtrain Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, even under pretence of hindering ſome violence, though they may be Counſellers or Advocates-General to Secular Princes, whether Emperors, Kings, or Dukes; thoſe who uſurp the Goods of the Church, &c. All theſe Caſes are reſerved to the Pope; and no Prieſt can give Abſolution in ſuch a caſe, if it be not at the Point of Death. The Council of Tours in 1510 declared the Bull in Cæna Domini, void, in regard of France, which has often proteſted againſt it, in what relates to the King's Rights, and the Liberties of the Gallican Church. Rebuffe.

BULL, (the Golden) an Edict, or Imperial Conſtitution, made by the Emperor Charles IV. in the Diet or Aſſembly of States, held at Nurembourg in January, 1356. It is called Golden, becauſe it has a Golden Seal in the form of a Pope's Bull, tied with yellow and red Cords of Silk, upon one of which the Emperor is repreſented ſeated in his Throne, and on the other the Capitol of Rome. It is alſo called Caroline, on Charles IV's account. This Golden Bull contains 30 Chapters, concerning the Form and the Ceremonies of the Election of the Emperors; the Number, the Functions and Rights of the Electors; and all that belongs to the Government of the Empire in general. There were but 23 Articles ratified in this Aſſembly, which were read and publiſhed in preſence of the Emperor ſeated in his Throne, having the Crown on his Head, and cloathed with all the Imperial Ornaments; and with the Conſent of all the Princes and States of the Empire. Towards the end of the year, in another Dyet which was held at Metz, he cauſed to be added 7 Articles more, which alſo were publiſhed in preſence of the ſame Electors, Princes, and States of the Empire, of the Cardinal-Biſhop of Alva, and of Charles, Eldeſt Son of France, Duke of Normandy, and Dauphin of Viennois, the Emperor's Nephew. The firſt Chapter Orders how and by whom the Electors ought to be conducted to the Place wherein the Election of a King of the Romans is performed. The ſecond, how this Election ought to be done. The third regulates the Places of the Archbiſhops of Mentz, Cologne, and Treves. The fourth treats of the Functions and Rank of the Princes Electors in common. The fifth, of the Rights of the Count Palatine of the Rhine, and of the Duke of Saxony. The ſixth, of the Compariſon of the Princes Electors with the other common Princes. The ſeventh, how the Sons ſucceed the Electoral Princes their Fathers. The eighth, of the Juriſdiction of the Kingdom of Bohemia, and of the Privilege of the Inhabitants of that Kingdom. The ninth, of the Mines of Gold, Silver, and other Metals, which are or ſhall be diſcovered in the Kingdom of Bohemia, and in the Principalities and Lands of the Electors. The tenth, of the Right of Coining Money. The eleventh Chapter regulates the Juriſdiction of the Electoral Princes. The twelfth, the Aſſemblies of the ſame Electors. The thirteenth revokes the Privileges which might be given by the Emperor, in prejudice of the Right of the Electors. The fourteenth ſpeaks of the Duty of Vaſſals and Feudatories towards their Liege Lords. The fifteenth, of Conſpiracies, Leagues, or unlawful Aſſociations. The ſixteenth of falſe Burghers, or ſuch as cauſe themſelves to be received Burgeſſes of other Cities, to the prejudice of their Natural Lords. The ſeventeenth, of Challenges and Appeals, and unjuſt Violences. The eighteenth contains the Form of ſending for the Electors to chooſe a King of the Romans. The nineteenth, the Form of the Proxy which the Elector is to give when he ſends an Ambaſſador for him to the Election. The twentieth orders, that the Quality of Elector ſhould be inſeparably tied to the Principality of the Electors; ſo that whoſoever enjoyeth the Principality, ſhould alſo enjoy the Right of Chooſing. The one and twentieth regulates the Order of the Precedency of the Eccleſiaſtical Electors. The two and twentieth, that of the Precedency of Secular Electors. The three and twentieth, the Preheminency of the Archbiſhops Electors in the Ceremony of the Church. The twenty fourth Chapter, which is the firſt of the Articles publiſhed in the Dyet of Metz, ordereth after what manner thoſe who contrive any Plot, or make any Attempt upon the Lives of the Electors, ſhall be puniſhed. The twenty fifth forbids to divide or diſmember the Electoral Principalities. The twenty ſixth ſpeaks of the Rank of the Electors in the Emperor's Cavalcade to the Place where he is to hold an Imperial Seſſion. The twenty ſeventh, of the Functions of the ſame Princes, in the time of their Sitting and Solemn Court. The twenty eighth, of the Emperor's Table, and of the Seven Tables for the Seven Electors. The twenty ninth, of the Fees due unto the Emperor's Officers, by the Princes who render them Homage for their Freeholds. And finally, the thirtieth, of the Obligation which lies on the Electors of underſtanding the German, Sclavonian, Italian, and Latin Tongues. The Emperor Charles IV. having attended this Edict with all the neceſſary Formalities, to make it a Fundamental Law of the Empire, he began to put it in execution, by the Service which he deſired the Electors and other Officers of the Crown ſhould render him, which was obſerved in a magnificent Feaſt held the next day. The Emperor and the Empreſs, clothed in their Imperial Ornaments, having heard a ſolemn Maſs, being accompanied with all the Prelates, and all the Princes, went to the Place where the Feaſt was prepared. It was in the middle of the great Square, where there was an Alcove raiſed, upon which ſtood the Emperor's Table. As ſoon as the Emperor and Empreſs were ſeated, the three Eccleſiaſtical Electors, viz. the Archbiſhops of Mentz, Treves, and Cologne, came on Horſeback, as Archchancellors of the Empire; the firſt being Archchancellor of Germany; the ſecond of the Gauls; and the third of Italy: Each had a Seal tied to his Neck, and a Letter in his Right-hand. After that, marched the four other Secular Electors, alſo on Horſeback. The Duke of Saxony arrived the firſt, having a Silver Maund filled with Oats in his Right-hand, as Archmarſhal of the Empire; and having alighted, he ſhewed his Colleagues the Seats that were deſigned for them. The Marquiſs of Brandenburgh alighting from his Horſe, gave the Emperor and Empreſs Water to waſh their Hands, with a Golden Ewer in a Golden Baſon. The Count Palatine of the Rhine ſerved the Golden Diſhes with their Victuals, on the Imperial Table. The Duke of Luxemburg, the Emperor's Nephew, diſcharging the Office of King of Bohemia for the Emperor, who was King himſelf, put a Golden Flaggon full of Wine upon the corner of the Table, and preſented ſome to the Emperor in a Golden Goblet. After the Electors, the Marquiſs of Miſnia, and the Earl of Schwartzembourg, both great Hunters, winding the Horn and followed with their Huntſmen and their Dogs: They killed a great Stag and a Boar in the Emperor's Preſence. At the end of the Dinner, the Emperor made rich Preſents to the Electors, Princes, Earls, and Lords, whom he diſmiſſed, having thus executed the Golden Bull by this Ceremony. *Heiſſ. BULLEN, (Sir Thomas) the Father of Anne Bullen, ſecond Wife to King Henry VIII. and Mother to Queen Elizabeth, was one of the greateſt Stateſmen of his time. His Father was Godfrey Bullen, Son of Jeoffrey, who being but a ſecond Brother, was ſent to London; but the eldeſt dying without Iſſue Male, his Eſtate fell to him, which encreaſed conſiderably the Wealth which he owed to his Induſtry. In ſhort, this is he who was Lord Mayor of London in 1457. King Henry had ſuch an Opinion of his Parts, that he would model and alter his Deſigns upon his Word. He diſcovered Ferdinand the King of Spain's Underhand-Treaty with Lewis, and his Deſign upon Navarre: He hinted the neceſſity of a Peace, or at leaſt a Truce with Scotland; was againſt the King's going to France in Perſon, before he had more Iſſue, or Edmund de la Pool, of the Houſe of York, were diſpatched out of the way: But Sir Thomas Howard was for it, ſaying, It was unſafe to entruſt ſo Noble an Army, or ſo Renowned an Action, with any Subject, eſpecially when Maximilian the Emperor offered to ſerve as Lieutenant under his Majeſty, and the Pope to attend him as Chaplain. After he had ſhifted the Court of Germany, he was ſent to Spain, to ſet King Charles againſt the French, as he had done Maximilian; and afterwards, with Sir Robert Poyntz, made up the Treaty between thoſe Crowns. At his return, he adviſed the King to forbid his Daughter the Court; which was ſo ill reſented by her, that ſhe would not come near his Majeſty, till her Father was commanded, not without Threats, to bring her to Court; which he had much ado to compaſs; and when ſhe came, ſhe kept that diſtance, that the King might eaſily perceive how ſenſible ſhe was of her late Diſmiſſion. Sir Thomas would have married her to the Lord Piercy; but the King and Cardinal Wolſley forbad it, deterring his Father the old Earl of Northumberland from it, and he his Son. The King had before rewarded Sir Thomas's Service with the Title of Viſcount Rochfort, and the Profit of the Treaſureſhip of the Houſhold: To that he now added the Title of Earl of Wiltſhire, in which Quality he ſent him to the Pope about his intended Divorce with the Queen, and at the ſame time contrived that a Declaration of the whole Kingdom in Parliament ſhould follow him. This Earl had two Sons and two Daughters; the Eldeſt Son was bred at the Emperor's Court, the Youngeſt with the Pope at Rome. Mary was the Eldeſt Daughter, Anne the Youngeſt.

BULLEN, (Anne) Daughter to Sir Thomas Bullen aforeſaid, and ſecond Wife to King Henry VIII. was born at London. The King having a long time ſtruggled in vain with the Court of Rome to diſannul his Match with Catharine of Spain, at laſt found out means to compaſs what the Pope declined; and being charmed with the Wit and Beauty of the Lady Anne Bullen, married her privately in 1552. and ſhortly after got his former Marriage with Queen Catharine declared void by Act of Parliament, and a Law enacted, wherein all Appeals to Rome were forbidden; and that none ſhould ſtile Catharine other than Princeſs of Wales, or Prince Arthur's Widow; whereupon the Lady Anne was proclaimed Queen throughout the Kingdom, and ſhewed her ſelf publickly as Queen on Eaſter-Eve, and was at Whitſontide Crown'd with as great Pomp and Solemnity as ever any Queen of England: Many Triumphant Arches were erected in London, where ſhe was to paſs, and upon one of them this Prophetical Dyſtick:

> Regina Anna paris Regis de ſanguine natam,
> Et paries populis Aurea ſecla tuis.

And the Queen was really then with Child of the Famous Queen Elizabeth: But it was not long before ſhe was brought to the Scaffold, through the Inconſtancy of her Husband's Affections, as is conceived by the moſt moderate Men. The Pretence was her Inconſtancy to him, from which ſhe cleared her ſelf, in anſwering all Objections made againſt her; yet ſhe was found guilty, and according to the Sentence paſſed upon her, beheaded in the Green within the Tower, May 19. 1536. Two days before, her Brother George Viſcount Rochfort, Henry Norris, William Brierton, and Francis Weſton, Gentlemen of the King's Privy-Chamber, had ſuffered Death in her Cauſe. And the very next day after the Queen was beheaded, the King married Jane Seymour, Daughter of Sir John Seymour, and King Edward VI.'s Mother, who 9 days after, clad in her Royal Habiliments, was ſhewed as Queen.

BULLINGBROOK, a Market-Town of Lindſey Diviſion, in the Eaſt parts of Lincolnſhire. 'Tis ſeated in a low Ground, near the Spring of a River which runs Southward from hence into the Witham, and is chiefly noted for being the Birth-place of King Henry IV. commonly called Henry of Bullingbrook: And almoſt ever ſince his time, one of the Honours, as we call it, of the King's of England. In the year 1624. King James I. made it an Earldom, by conferring the Title of Earl hereof upon Oliver Lord St. John of Bletſoe, fetching his Deſcent from the Lady Margaret Beauchamp, Grandmother to Henry VII. from which Earl, is deſcended in a Right Line the Right Honourable Pawlet St. John, the preſent Earl of Bullingbrook.

BULLINGER, (Henry) a Zuinglian Miniſter of Zurich, was born at Bremgarten, a Borough of Swiſſerland, ſituate upon the River Ruſſi near Zurich, in 1504. He began to write at 20 years of Age, and publiſhed two Dialogues in favour of Capnion againſt a converted Jew, called Pfeffercorn. He deſigned to turn Carthuſian; but reading the Works of Luther and Melancthon, his Inclination was diſengaged. In the mean time, he was perſuaded to teach School in Swiſſerland, where he continued 5 years. Some time after coming to Zurich, he embraced the Doctrine of Zuinglius, and ſucceeded him as Miniſter in that City, where he became very Famous both for Learning and Piety. He wrote ſeveral Homilies, Sermons, and Commented upon ſeveral Books of the New Teſtament; all which were publiſhed in 10 Tomes, beſides the fine Book he publiſhed in High-Dutch under this Title; Anklag Gottes an Die Eidnoſ chafft: wherein he introduces GOD checking the Swiſſers ſeverely, and upbraiding them for hiring their Men, and receiving yearly Penſions from Princes of different Religion: In this and moſt other things imitating Zuinglius. He died in 1573. aged 71. Melchior Adam ſpeaks thus of him: Nullum Argumenti genus fuit in quo probe is non fuerit verſatus.

BULLIRBORN, or Bullerborn, a famous Fountain near the Village of Oldenbeck, in the Foreſt of Teuteberg, or of Dothmold in Weſtphalia. It is ſo called from the German Word Bulleren, which ſignifieth to make a great Noiſe; whence the Latins have named it Fons Tumultuarius; and this Name has been given to it, becauſe at its Source there is an extraordinary whiſtling heard. This Fountain has a marvelous Quality; for after having ran a matter of an hour, it ceaſeth during three hours, and then runs again; and continues thus by irregular viciſſitudes. This Spring yields much Water, which at a League's diſtance buries it ſelf in the Ground. Some ſay that it does not now run by intervals, as before; and that this marvelous Effect of Nature, which had appeared ſo many Ages, ceaſed in 1638. ſince which time, it yields its Waters continually as other Sources do. Monumenta Paderbornenſia.

BUNAS, an Athenian, who being choſen Referee to take up a Difference between the Calidonians and Æleans, found an Expedient to ſpin out the matter without ever coming to a Deciſion; from whence comes the Proverb, Bunas is made Judge, againſt thoſe who delay Buſineſs, and will never be brought to pronounce upon a Cauſe. Eraſm. Adag.

BUNDER, (John) a Dominican of Ghent: He lived in the Sixteenth Century, and was one of the Inquiſition in the Low Countries. Our Author makes him a Man of great Learning, Prudence, and Regularity. He wrote ſeveral Books, which gained him great Reputation; and amongſt others, Compendium Rerum Theologicarum. Collationes IV. SS. Doctorum Ambroſii, Hieronymi, Auguſtini, & Gregorii magni. Scutum Fidei, &c. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Miræus De Script. Sæc. 16. &c.

BUNEL, (Peter) of Toulouſe, a Man of great Learning and Chriſtian Piety. By his Writings he gained the Reputation of reviving the Ciceronian Eloquence. He went in the French Ambaſſador's Train to Venice, where he was valued to that degree among the moſt Learned in Italy, that the famous Paulus Manutius profeſſed that he had learned the Secret of Writing good Latin of Bunel. He died in the 47th year of his Age; and Charles Stephens has publiſhed a Collection of his Latin Letters. Scevole de St. Marthe. In Elog. Doct. Gall. l. 1.

BUNGAY, a Market-Town in Suffolk, in Wangford Hundred, upon the Banks of the River Wavenay, having 2 Pariſh-Churches, one of which is fair. Here is alſo a Grammar-School, with 10 Scholarſhips for Emanuel-College in Cambridge. From London 85 miles.

BUNGAY, (Thomas) a Franciſcan, living towards the end of the Thirteenth Century. He was Doctor of Divinity at Oxford, and a particular Friend and Acquaintance of Friar Bacon. In this Ignorant Age, every thing that was extraordinary look'd like Magick; ſo that both Bacon and Bungay lay under the Imputation of ſtudying the Black Art. Bungay's publiſhing a Treatiſe of Natural Magick, confirm'd ſome well-meaning credulous People in this Opinion; but 'tis certain 'twas altogether without ground; for Bungay was choſen Provincial of his Order; and the ſuſpicion was founded upon nothing, but the Excellency of his Parts and Learning: Beſides this Book, he wrote Commentaries upon the Maſter of the Sentences, and a Book of Queſtions in Divinity. Pitſ. De Illuſt. Angl. Script.

BUNGO, a City and Kingdom of the Iſle of Ximo, belonging to Japan. The City is ſituated on the Eaſt Coaſt near a Gulf, betwixt Funei, which it has on the North, and Uſuqui on the South. The King of Bungo embraced the Chriſtian Religion in the Sixteenth Age, and almoſt all his Subjects did the like; but the Perſecution which aroſe in Japan, has made them to change their Belief.

BUNTIN, or Buntingius, (Henry) a German, a Saxon born, lived in 1593. He publiſh'd an Univerſal Chronology. He has alſo compoſed the Itinerary of Holy Writ, a Chronicle of Brunſwic, which Meibanius has corrected, and continued to 1620, &c. Martin Zeiller. de Hiſt. Celebr.

BUNTINGFORD, a Market Town in Edwinſtree Hundred in Hartfordſhire, from London 36 miles.

BUONACORSI, otherwiſe Perrin del Vague, was one of the famouſeſt Painters of his time. Raphael employ'd him to work on the Apartment of the Vatican which he was Painting for Leo X. and in other Works which he continued for Clement VII. in 1523. Julius the Roman, and John Franciſco Penny, courted his Friendſhip, and as a greater tie, Penny Married his Siſter to him. Two years after this Alliance, Perrin having loſt all he had in the Siege of Rome, was advis'd to go to Genoa, where he Painted the Palace of Prince Doria, which got him much credit. Returning again to Rome, he was choſen to work the Ceiling of the Hall of Kings in the Vatican, but did not finiſh it, being prevented by a ſudden death in 1547. Felibien.

BUPALUS, a famous Carver, lived with Anthermus, or Athenis according to others, in the Sixtieth Olympiad, about the year 216 of Rome. They expoſed a Poet's Picture in raillery, whoſe Name was Hipponax, a very ill favoured Man; This drew upon them ſuch a bloody Satyr, that ſome Authors writ, that they hang'd themſelves for vexation.

BURA, an ancient City of Achaia in Peloponneſus, upon the Coaſt of the Gulf of Corinth, was deſtroyed by an Earthquake, and the Ruines which remain of it are now called Pernitza, betwixt Patras and Vaſilica, which is a Village where in times paſt ſtood the City of Sicyon. The Oracle of Hercules, whoſe Statue was adored in a Cave near Bura, rendred it famous. Thoſe that came to conſult this Oracle took four Dice, and caſting them on a Table, obſerved the marks on the upper ſides, and ſought for the ſame Figures in the Table, the Expoſition of which they found, and ſo knew what was to befall them, and what they ſhould undertake. Pauſanias in Achaia.

BURCHARD, Biſhop of Worms, living in the Eleventh Century, was Præceptor to Conrade, call'd, Salicus, afterwards Emperor. We have a great Volume of Decrees under the Name of Burchard, call'd, Magnum Volumen Canonum, divided into 20 Books; The deſign of it was to Inſtruct the Prieſts of his Dioceſe, in thoſe things which relate to the Regulation of Penance. Sigebert in Chron. 1008. &c. Baronius A. C. 999. 1024. & 26. Bellarmin. de Script. Eccl. &c.

BURDIN or Bourdin, (Maurice) was Native of Limoges. He followed Bernard Archbiſhop of Toledo to Spain, who made him Archdeacon of his Church; after that he was made Biſhop of Conimbre, and finally Archbiſhop of Brague in Portugal. Some time after he went to Rome, and offer'd a very conſiderable Sum of Money to Paſchall II. to advance him to the See of Toledo; being denied, he ſided with the Emperor Henry V. and obliged Pope Gelaſius, Succeſſor to Paſchal, to retire into France, where he ſoon after died at Cluny; and got himſelf to be created Anti-Pope under the Name of Gregory VIII. in 1118. Calixtus II. Succeſſor to Gelaſius, gave orders to Cardinal John de Creme to lay Siege to Sutri, where Burdin was, whom the Inhabitants delivered to him, and he ſent him to Rome. Baronius, Sigonius.

BURDONI, (Bennet) of Padua; was a Learned Geographer, and in the beginning of the 16th Century publiſhed a Map of Italy, a Deſcription of Iſlands, and ſome other Works. Leand. Albert. Deſc. Ital.

BUREAU, (John) Lord of Montglat, Knight, and Chamberlain to the King, had only the Quality of Ordinary Receiver of Paris, when King Charles VII. committed unto him the Government of the Artillery of France for the Siege of the City of Meaux, in 1439. He performed again the Function of Maſter of the Artillery, when the King made War with the Princes of the Blood Royal, who were in Rebellion againſt him in 1440. He alſo exerciſed that Charge againſt the Engliſh in 1441. Served at the Sieges of Pontaiſe and Harfleur; Commanded the Franc-Archers before Falais; was at the taking of Bayeux, and aſſiſted at the Capitulation of Caen. He ſignalized himſelf beſides at the taking of Bergerac, and the recovery of Guienne; made the Treaties for the ſurrender of the Caſtles of Montguyon, and of Blaye; and laid Siege to Libourne, and St. Millon, which he took. He was afterwards made Commiſſioner to Treat about the Reduction of Bourg, Fronſac, and Bourdeaux, whereof he was declared perpetual Mayor. He help'd to bring under his King's Obedience Caſtillon, Cadillac, and Bourdeaux in 1453. and was made Knight by King Lewis the Eleventh, at his Coronation. He died at Paris the 5th of July 1463.

BUREN, a ſmall Town of the Low-Countreys, in the Province of Guelderland, with the Title of an Earldom. It is ſituated near the River of Slingh, upon the Brook called in times paſt The Ditch of Mules, one League from Tiel, three from Bois-le-Duc, and as many from Utrecht.

BURFORD, a Market Town of Brampton Hundred in the South-weſt parts of Oxfordſhire, ſituated upon an Aſcent on the South-ſide of the Windruſh, being a Town of good Antiquity, near which a great Battel was fought An. 750. between Cuthbert King of the Weſt-Saxons, and Ethelbald the Mercian King, in which Ethelbald was totally defeated, and his Dragon Banner won from him. The Memory whereof has continued for ſeveral Ages in the Cuſtom uſed here of making a Dragon yearly, and carrying it about the Town in great jollity on Midſummer-Eve, with the Addition of a Giant to it. Of late Burford is noted for giving the Title of Earl to the Duke of St. Albans. It is 61 miles from London. Near the Town is a Place called Burford-Downs, much reſorted to by the Gentry for Horſe-Races.

BURGAW, or Burgow Burgavia, a Country of Germany in Suabia, with the Title of Marquiſate, lies along the Danube which is on the North of it, and betwixt Leck on the Eaſt, and 2 or 3 other ſmall Rivers, which it has on the North; and which do diſcharge themſelves in the Danube below Iller-Burgaw the Capital City, ſituated upon the River of Mindel; gives its Name to the Country. There are beſides ſome good Boroughs, and famous Monaſteries, as Welden, Wetenhauſen, Reiſempurg, Jetingen, &c. This Country is about 8 or 10 Leagues in length, and its breadth much the ſame. It formerly had particular Marqueſſes. Henry the laſt of that Family died about 1283. ſince which time the Marquiſate of Burgaw fell to the Houſe of Auſtria, and it has been often the Title and Portion of its younger Sons.

BURGENSIS, (Lewis) firſt Phyſician to the Kings Francis I. and Henry II. was born at Blois in 1494. He was Son to John Burgenſis, Phyſician to Lewis Duke of Orleans, ſince King of France, and Twelfth of the Name. He was received Doctor of Phyſick, of the Faculty of Paris, at Eighteen years of Age, and King Francis I. admitted him at the Age of Twenty two into the number of his Phyſicians in Ordinary. Lewis Burgenſis was afterwards firſt Phyſician to his Majeſty. He contributed to the King's Enlargement when he was Priſoner at Madrid, by an Artifice that Charles V. a cunning Politician, did not in the leaſt miſtruſt. Francis I. being fallen ſick, this able Phyſician made the Emperor believe that there was no hope of his Recovery, becauſe the Air of the Country would by no means agree with his Conſtitution. This obliged Charles V. to Treat with him ſpeedily, that he might not loſe his Ranſom; and thus Francis I. made his Agreement in 1526. upon Conditions which the Emperor would not otherwiſe have accepted of. Burgenſis was Rewarded at the Kings return, and bought the Lordſhips of Montgougier and Mulan. After the death of Francis I. he was alſo firſt Phyſician to Henry II. and Fernel, though in great Favour, would not diſpute the Precedency with him.

BURGH, a Market Town of Lincolnſhire, it belongs to Wray Wapentake in Lindſey Diviſion.

BURGOS, upon Arlanca, a Town of Spain, Capital of Old Caſtile, with an Archbiſhoprick erected by Pope Gregory XIII. Some take it for the Braum or Bravum of Ptolemy, and others call it Burgi Burgum, and Marturgum. It is one of the beautifulleſt, greateſt, and beſt Peopled of all Spain; ſituated upon the ſide of a Hill, which has a pretty ſtrong and ancient Caſtle upon the top of it, and at the foot the River of Arlanca, over which are divers Bridges. It's Streets are narrow and ill ordered, as in moſt ancient Cities; yet there are ſome larger and fairer, chiefly thoſe which end at the Squares of Lana, of Huerte del Rei, and of the Cathedral Church, which is extreamly magnificent. Beſides which there are others very well built, with divers Abbies, Monaſteries, and a College of Jeſuits. The Dominicans have alſo one there. The Monaſtery of the Crucifix belonging to the Auguſtins, is alſo very famous. Burgos is a Trading Town, beautified with a great number of Fountains and Palaces, amongſt which that of the Conſtable, and of the Archbiſhop's, are moſt eſteemed. The Epiſcopal See was tranſlated thither from the Old City of Auca in 1075. or according to others in 1097. And Gregory XIII. as I have ſaid, turned it it into an Archbiſhoprick at the Requeſt of Philip II. King of Spain; and it has for Suffragans Pampelune, Calahorra, and Palencia. Mariana, l. 8. c. 2. M.

BURGOS, (John Baptiſt) an Auguſtinian Monk of Valencia in Spain; He aſſiſted in the Quality of a Divine, in the Council of Trent, and deliver'd there, in the year 1562. an Excellent Diſcourſe, as Moreri calls it, concerning Four Methods or Expedients, which may be lawfully uſed, for the Extirpation of Hereſie, which was afterwards Printed. Nicholas Anton. Bibl. Hiſp. Miræus. De Script. Sec. XVI.

BURGUNDY, Lower Burgundy, or the Dutchy of Burgundy, a Province of France, which in times paſt had the Title of a Kingdom, and afterwards of Dutchy and Peerdom. As it is now, it has Franche-Comté and Breſſe on the Eaſt, Champagne on the North, Bourbonnois and Nivernois on the Weſt, and Beaujolois on the South, extending above 50 Leagues from South to North, and 30 from Weſt to Eaſt. It comprehends the Country called Montague, which contains Chaſtillonois, Maconnois, Chalonnois, Auxois, Auxerrois, Autunois, the Country of Surſeance or Revermont, wherein are Savigne and Fontaine Francoiſe; and the Charolois. Dijon, a Parliament City, is the Capital thereof. The others are Autun, Châlon, Macon, and Auxerre, with a Biſhops See, Beaune, Châtillon upon Seine, Semeur, Auxonne, St. Jean de Lone, Tournus, Verdun, Bellegarde, formerly Seure, Bourbon-Lancy, Arnai-le-Duc, Avalon, Alize, Tonnerre, Saulieu, Rulli, Charoles, &c. Burgundy is a very conſiderable Province for its largeneſs, ſituation, and fertility. It is commonly called the Mother of Corn and Wines. It is watered with divers Rivers, which do equally contribute to render it plentiful. The Seine has its Source there at the Village of St. Seine. It is watered on the Eaſt by the Saone, which receives there the Dehune, having taken in the Burſure, the Ouche, together with the Tille, and divers other Brooks. On the Weſt the Loire ſeparates Burgundy from Bourbonnois, and receives the Regonſe, the Brebince, the Arroux, &c. and finally the Tonne which paſſeth at Auxerre, and which comes from Nivernois, receives the Cauſin or Avalon, the Sezin or Serin, the Armenſon and the Brenne, with the Oſerain and the Loze, which have all of them their Source in Burgundy. The Inhabitants are good Natured and Civil, and want neither Wit nor Courage. It has furniſh'd Marſhals to France, Officers to the Crown, divers famous Writers, and ſeveral Saints, among the reſt St. Bernard, whoſe Abbey of the Ciſtercians was in his time call'd the School of Virtue, and the Seminary of the Biſhops of France. This Abbey is the Head of the Order. Burgundy has moreover that of Cluny, which has not been leſs famous than the Ciſtercian, that of Val-des-choux alſo Head of an Order, La Ferté upon Groſne, &c. The People that eſtabliſhed this Kingdom in the time of Honorius, came from Old Germany. The French pretend that they are of a Gauliſh Original, Subjects or Allies to the Autunois, and that the latter having made Peace with the Senonois, the Burgundians who feared their Reſentment, being not comprehended, withdrew into Germany with their Families, where they joined with the Vandals. Pliny makes the Burgundians one of the Five Principal Branches of the People of Germany. There are Five Tribes (ſays he) or Diviſions of the Germans, inter cæteros, Vindili, quorum pars Burgundiones. Thoſe which he calls Vindili are the Vandals. But their Tallneſs, which commonly was of Seven Foot according to the Teſtimony of Sidonius Apollinaris, their Cuſtoms and Religion, ſhew rather that they came out of the North, as well as the Goths, Alani, and Lumbards. They lodged in Tents, which they joined together, the better to be in a way of making a Body, when it was requiſite to take Arms; and called theſe kinds of Aſſemblies Burgi, whence is come the Name of Burgundi and Burgundiones. Their Religion was like unto that of the other Northern Nations: They had ſeveral Prieſts, but the Head and Principal of them all was diſtinguiſhed by the Name of Siniſte, which was a Title of Honour. He was perpetual, and the People had an extraordinary Reſpect and Conſideration for him. They received the Chriſtian Faith about the year 401 or 430. In 370 the Emperor Valentinian invited them to fall upon the Germans. They came to the Rendezvous, upon the Banks of the Rhine, to the number of 80000; but the Emperor not coming to it, they retired into their Boroughs or Tents, and 3 years after they returned to the ſame number. Then it was that they began to eſtabliſh themſelves along the Rhine. The Burgundians paſſed the Rhine under Gaudiſele in 404 or 408. and they at firſt ſettled themſelves along that River in what is now called Alſatia, Franche-Comte, and Switzerland. Gundicare, his Son, extended his Conqueſts afterwards from the Rhone to the Soane, and ſubdued Dauphine, Savoy, and part of Provence, where Ætius defeated him in 434. but afterwards yielded unto him what the Burgundians poſſeſſed in Weſtern Provence as far as the Durance, and made Alliance with him about 450. The enſuing year Gundicaire came with an Army to ſuccour him againſt Attila, and was killed at the famous Battel of Châlons in Champagne. His Son Gunderic ſucceeded him, and reigned about 22 years, died in 473. leaving Four Sons, Gombaud or Gondebaud, Chilperic, Godomar, and Godegeſile. Gaudebaud made a General Edict, which comprehended the Laws of the Burgundians, and this is it which Frederick of Lindebrog has publiſhed in his Collection of ancient Laws, under its ancient Title of the Laws of the Burgundians, which Hiſtorians do ordinarily call the Gombette Law. The Four Sons of Gunderic went to War with one another. Chilperic had at firſt all the advantage, and defeated Gondebaud near Autum about the year 476 or 78. But the latter ſurpriſing Vienne and his Brothers in it. He cauſed Chilperic and his Two Sons to be beheaded, and his Wife to be flung into the Rhone, but ſpared the Two Daughters of this unfortunate Prince. The Eldeſt, is diverſly called Chrune, Threne, and Mercuria, became a Nun, and the youngeſt named Clotilda was Married to Clovis the Great. Godomar, his Brother, who retired into the Palace, was burn'd by the King's Order. He died without Children, as did Godegeſile the other Brother; and thus Gondebaud re-united the States of the Burgundians, and died in 509 or 516. according to the Chronicle of Marius of Avranches, leaving Two Sons, Sigiſmund and Godomar. The firſt Married Oſtrogotha, Daughter to Theodoric King of the Goths in Italy, and had by her Sigeric, and a Daughter which was Wife or Mother to Thierri King of Auſtraſia, Son to Clovis the Great. Sigiſmund Married a ſecond Wife, who animated him againſt Sigeric, whom he put to death. He was afterwards defeated and taken Priſoner by Clodomir King of Orleans, one of Clovis's Sons, who order'd him with his Wife and Children, to be flung into a Well, in 524. at a Village called S. Piere-Avy-la-Colombe, in the Dioceſs of Orleans. Godomar ſucceeded his Brother, and was defeated in the ſame year at the Battel of Virou, where Clodomir was kill'd. Clotaire I. and Childebert I. Brothers to the latter, purſued Godomar, who periſhed in 534. according to the Chronicle of Marius, or according to others in 532. Thus ended the Kingdom of the Burgundians, which had laſted 126 years after their coming into Gaul, or about 90 after they were abſolute Maſters of theſe great Provinces. Thus the Kingdom of Burgundy was Poſſeſs'd by the Merouvian Line of France, and continued in that Crown for above 340 years; And then it was firſt Uſurp'd by Boſon in 879. and afterwards by Rodolphus in 888. For Boſon not long after the beginning of the Reign of the Carlovingians, eſtabliſhed a new Kingdom, which laſted to Rodolphus or Raoul King of the Tranſjuran, Burgundy, and Arles, who died in 1033. naming the Emperor Conrad his Heir, who had Married Giſele his youngeſt Siſter, without conſidering Eudes Earl of Champagne, Husband to Berthe that was eldeſt. By this Inſtitution, this Kingdom was tied to the Empire, which loſing its poſſeſſion, loſt alſo the Title thereof. At the ſame time Henry I. King of France, yielded what we call the Dutchy of Burgundy to his Brother Robert; whence came the firſt Branch of the Dukes of Burgundy of the Blood-Royal. It had 12 Dukes in 330 years time, the laſt of which was Philip I. who died at the Age of 16 years in 1361. This Country being re-united to France, was given by King John to his Son Philip the Bold in 1363. Philip II. dying in 1404. left the Dutchy to John his eldeſt Son, who was killed in 1419 at Montereau Faut-Yonne, in revenge of the death of Lewis Duke of Orleans. Philip the Good ſucceeded him, and died in 1467. leaving Charles the laſt Duke, who was beaten by the Switzers, and killed before Nanci in 1477. His Daughter Mary brought Franche-Compte, with the Low-Countries, to the Houſe of Auſtria, by her Marriage to Maximilian of Auſtria, afterwards Emperor, and Grandfather to Charles V. King Lewis XI. re-united the Dutchy to France.

BURGUNDY, Franche-Comte, or County of Burgundy, called alſo Upper-Burgundy, a Province with the Title of an Earldom, is properly the Country of the ancient Sequani. It has Switzerland and Alſatia on the Eaſt, Breſſe, Bugey, and the Country of Gex on the South, Lorrain on the North, the Dutchy of Burgundy and part of Champagne on the Weſt. Some do divide it by Bailiwicks, and others make Three Parts of it, which are the Upper or of Amont, the Middle or of Dolac, the Lower or of Aval. Dole is its Capital City, the others are Beſançon, Greci, Selins, and Veſoul. The leſs conſiderable are S. Cloude, Orgelet, S. Amour, Arlay, Lyon le Sannier, &c. The Forts of S. Ann, and the Caſtle of Jux, have been famous. Franche-Comte has Mountains on the Eaſt and North. The Country is fertile enough in Corn, Wines, and Wood. Here are alſo excellent Salt-Pits, and it is watered with divers Rivers, the moſt conſiderable of which is the Saone. Lewis the Fourteenth of France took it in 1668. reſtor'd it by the Treaty of Aix la Chapelle, and re-took it in 1674.

BURICK, or Budrick, Lat. Burichum, Budrichium, and Burunchium, a Town of Germany in the Dutchy of Cleves, upon the Rhine, within 2 or 3 Leagues of Guelderland, pretty well fortified. The Hollanders were Maſters of it, and it is one of the four Cities that the French King cauſed to be attacked at one and the ſame time at the opening of the Campagne of Holland in 1672. The Marſhal of Turenne beſieged it.

BURIENSIS, (Richard) born in Suffolk, in the Fourteenth Century. He was a Bendedictin, and was in ſome of the beſt Poſts both in Church and State, for he was Lord Chancellor, Lord Treaſurer, and at laſt Biſhop of Durham: He was a great Encourager of Learning and Learned Men. He made it his Buſineſs to Collect a Noble Library, furniſh'd with Books of all Kinds and Sciences, and wrote a Treatiſe upon this Subject called, Philo-Biblion, ſive de Amore Librorum. He likewiſe wrote other Treatiſes, beſides a Volume of Letters, among which there are ſeveral to Petrarch, together with Petrarch's Anſwers. Burienſis liv'd to the year 1349. Harpsfeild in Hiſt. Eccl. Angl. Cave. Hiſt. Literar. Pars Alt. In Præfat.

BURIS and Spertis, Two Gallant Lacedæmonians, who of their own accord preſented themſelves to Xerxes, to undergo what kind of Puniſhment he would inflict, to expiate the Crime which the Lacedæmonians had committed, by the murder of the Heraulds whom that King had ſent unto them. This Boldneſs raiſed Xerxes his Admiration, who not only pardoned the Offence, but alſo prayed them to tarry with him as his chief Favourites: To which they anſwered, That ſeeing they were come to ſave their Country, they would take care not to abandon it ſo, and that they preferr'd their Liberty to the Kingdom of Perſia.

BURLINGTON, Lat. Brillendunum, a Market and a Sea Town of Dickering Wapentake in the Eaſt Riding of Yorkſhire. The Town ſtands high, about a mile from the Sea, but by the Sea-ſide is the Key call'd Burlington Key, from whence the adjoining Bay has got the Name of Burlington Bay. In the year 1664. the Right Honourable Richard Boyle, Earl of Cork in Ireland, was created Earl of Burlington by King Charles II.

BURNHAM, a Market Town of Brother-Croſs Hundred in the North Eaſt parts of Norfolk, not far from the Sea-ſide, 90 miles from London.

BURNTWOOD, a Market Town of Chelmsford Hundred in Eſſex, a Place of good antiquity, and well inhabited, 17 miles from London.

BURRHUS, (Afranius) who was Governor of the Prætorium under Claudius and Nero, to whom he had been Governor. He ſignalized himſelf in the Armies, and his Manners were ſevere like the ancient Romans. Being afterwards ſuſpected by Nero, he is thought to have been poyſoned by ſome who pretended to cure his ſore Throat.

BURROWBRIDGE, a Market Town in Clare Hundred in the Weſt Riding of Yorkſhire.

BURSA, formerly Pruſe, Pruſa ad Olympum, a City of Anatolia in Aſia, Capital in times paſt of Bithynia. It is ſituated under Mount Olympus, and thought to have been built by Pruſias King of Bithynia, who made it the Capital of his Dominions. It was ſince a Metropolis under the Patriarch of Conſtantinople. Oſman or Othoman, the firſt Prince of the Turks, took it about 1300. and made it the Seat of his Kiugdom; though the Arabians thought that the Seat of the Turkiſh Empire was Yengi Shahr. However that is, from this time Burſe has been under the Ottomans. It is thought to be as large and as well Peopled as Conſtantinople, and is divided into Upper and Lower, the upper part is defended with good Walls and a Caſtle. Here are divers Moſques and Tombs of the Ottoman Princes. Ottoman the firſt Emperor of the Turks dying in 1398. in 1399 Tamberlane took it, and reſtored it to the Emperor of Conſtantinople. In 1403 Solyman Son of Bajazet recovered Burſa, Nice, and Neapolis, but a Conteſt being between Solyman and Mahomet, the Two Sons of Bajazet, it was taken 3 times in 4 years, till at laſt Mahomet prevailed, and in 1409 ſtrangled Solyman. This is now the Capital of Bithynia, and ſends once in two Months a Caravan to Perſia. It is 15 miles from Propontis, and 30 Eaſt from Conſtantinople. Long. 57. 30. Lat. 41. 49.

BURTON, a Market Town of Lonſdale Ward in the South of Weſtmorland, upon the edge of Lancaſhire, 204 miles from London.

BURTON, or Burton upon Trent, a Market Town of Offelow Hundred in the Eaſt of Staffordſhire, upon the Borders of Derbyſhire, from which it is parted by the River Trent, having a ſtately Stone Bridge over it, conſiſting of 35 Arches; it was at this Bridge that Edw. II. did put to flight Thomas Earl of Lancaſter, and many of the Barons. It is 96 miles from London.

BURTON, or Buxton-Wells in Derbyſhire, where in the compaſs of 8 or 9 yards iſſue out of a Rock 9 Springs of Mineral Waters, of which 8 are warm, and one very cold; they are much frequented by the Northern Gentry for divers Cures.

BURTON, a Market Town in the North Weſt parts of Lincolnſhire, it belongs to Manlie Wapentake in Lindſey Diviſion, ſeated on the Eaſt-ſide of the River Trent, within 4 miles of its fall into the Humber, 127 miles from London.

BURWELL, a Market Town in the Eaſt parts of Lincolnſhire. It lies in Lowthe Hundred, being part of Lindſey Diviſion.

BURY, or S. Edmondsbury, Lat. Villa Fauſtini, a Market and Borough Town of Thingoe Hundred in the Weſt parts of Suffolk, pleaſantly ſeated on the River Lack, which falls into the Great Owſe, and firſt called the Royal-Town or Villa-Regia by the Saxon King Segebert, who founded here a Church. But upon the death of King Edmund the Martyr, who, for not Renouncing the Chriſtian Faith, was Shot to Death at Hoxon by the Danes, and afterwards brought hither to be interr'd, it took the Name of Bury or S. Edmondsbury. King Canute, the Dane, to expiate the Sin of his Father Sueno, who had murdered this Prince, built here a new Church, and an Abbey, and ſtock'd it with Black Monks in 1020. to whom he gave the Town, with many good Mannors about it, who governed the Town by a Seneſchal or Steward; and when it came to be a Corporation, the Magiſtrate took his Oath of Obedience to the Abbot. As for the Beauty of the Town and Abbey, Leland gives this Account, The Sun (ſays he) has not ſeen a City more finely ſeated, upon the eaſie aſcent of a Hill, with a River running on the Eaſt-ſide, nor a Richer and more magnificent Abbey, which look'd more like a City than a Monaſtery, ſo many Towers it had for Defence, and ſo many Gates for Entrance, ſome of 'em Braſs; with a moſt Stately Church, attended with 3 others, all in the ſame Church-Yard, and all of curious Workmanſhip. But now their Ruines lie in the Duſt. The Town conſiſts of Two Pariſhes, is ſweetly ſeated, and as finely built, which makes it much frequented by the Gentry, who living here, enrich the Inhabitants, and ſupport the Town; The Grammar School founded here by King Edward VI. is no ſmall Ornament to it. It was dignified with the Title of Baron in the Perſon of Henry Jermin, created by King Charles I. Baron of this Place, An. 1643. and afterwards Earl of St. Albans by King Charles II.

BUS (Cæſar of) Inſtitutor of the Congregation of the Prieſts of the Chriſtian Doctrine, was born at Cavaillon in 1544.

BUSA, a generous Damſel of Apulia, who maintained near 10000 Romans that fled from the defeat of Canna in the 538th of Rome.

BUSCHETTO da Dulichio, a famous Surveyor of Building, ſo named from the Iſle of Dulichio in the Ionian Sea, was in reputation at the beginning of the Eleventh Age. The Republick of Piſa ſent for him in 1016 to build the Dome, that is to ſay, the Cathedral Church, which has ſince paſſed for one of the moſt Sumptuous of Italy. He had a particular underſtanding in Machines, and would move extraordinary Burthens with a very inconſiderable Strength. He died at Piſa, and on his Tomb there was amongſt other Inſcriptions, this following:

Quod vix mille boum poſſent juga cuncta movere,
Et quod vix potuit per mare ferre ratis.
Buſchetti niſu, quod erat mirabile viſu,
Dena puellarum turba levavit onus.

Importing, that he cauſed Burthens to be lifted by ten young Women, which a thouſand Yoke of Oxen could not have moved, nor a Ship have carried.

BUSEBEC, or Boesbec, (Auger Ghiſlin) known under the Name of Augerius Ghiſlenus Busbequius, was born at Commines in Flanders, Son to Giles Ghiſlin Lord of Boesbec, which is a ſmall Village upon the Lis. Ferdinand I. ſent him Ambaſſador to Solyman II. Emperor of the Turks. He has publiſhed a Relation of his Voyages, wherein he puts the Natural Hiſtory of the Countreys through which he paſſed, obſerving all things exactly. In 1570. the Emperor Maximilian II. named him to Conduct into France the Princeſs Elizabeth his Daughter, Married to King Charles IX. and commanded him to reſide there in the Quality of his Reſident. He was there again in 1592. and having a mind to paſs ſome Months at his own Houſe in the Low-Countreys, he obtained Leave from the Emperor. The Pariſians begun then not to be ſo fond of the League. Auger Ghiſlin foreſaw this Change, which was not to the advantage of the Houſe of Auſtria, which took part with the Leaguers. He was willing to prevent, by his departure, the ſad Accidents which he foreſaw, and in ſhunning them, run into another, which proved fatal to him. Paſſing through Normandy, ſome Soldiers of the Garriſon of Roan, thinking all was lawful during the Civil Wars, met with Boesbec, and ſeized on his Perſon. Others ſay, that it was in an Inn, and that they dragged him thence with violence, but having found out what he was, they let him go. The Governor of Roan immediately ſignified his diſpleaſure at it to Ghiſlin, who falling into a Fever cauſed himſelf to be carried to a Gentleman's Houſe, where he died 22 Days after, in October 1592. which was the 70th of his Age. He gathered in the Levant divers Inſcriptions, which he ſent to Scaliger, Lipſius, and Gruterus, and more than a Hundred Greek Manuſcripts, which are one of the richeſt Ornaments of the Emperor's Library. We have alſo of his Writing, Epiſtolæ Turcicæ Legationis IV. Conciliorum de re militari contra Turcas inſtituenda. Itinera II. Conſtantinopolitanum & Amaſianum. Epiſtolarum Legationes Gallicæ. Lib. II

BUSIRIS, who is ſaid to be Son to Neptune and Libya, and Brother to Belus and Agenor, was King of Egypt. He was ſo cruel, and abuſed Strangers at ſuch a rate, that Hercules took their part, and killed him. It is thought that this Buſiris is Orus Pharaon, who ſucceeded Amenophis, A. M. 2469. There was another named Cenchres. Euſeb. Chron. Apollodor. Lib. 2. (Diodorus of Sicily witneſſeth, in the Firſt Book of his Bibliotheck, that Buſiris is not the Name of a Man, but that this word ſignifies in Egyptian the Sepulchre of Oſiris, near which it was the Cuſtom to ſacrifice Men.)

BUSIRIS, a Town of Lower Egypt, in the middle of the Delta, which had the greateſt Temple that ever was conſecrated to Iſis, and where the Feaſt of this Goddeſs was moſt ſolemnly celebrated. They ſay, that this Town was named Buſiris, becauſe Oſiris was buried there in a Wooden Ox. Herodot.

BUSIUS, (Paul) Born at Zwol in Over-Iſel, Profeſs'd the Law, and publiſhed ſeveral Pieces; *De Republicâ. De Officio Judicis. Subtilitatum Juris, Lib.*7.&c. Melchior Adam. In Vit. Juriſc. Germ. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. &c.

BUSSIERES, (John of) a Jeſuit of the Province of Lyons. We have of his Writing a Hiſtory of France in Latin, Floſculi Hiſtoriarum, which he himſelf Tranſlated into French, under the Title of the Hiſtorical Garden, an Epick Poem of Scanderbeg, and divers other Pieces in Proſe and Verſe: All which are clear Proofs of the Delicacy of his Genius.

BUSTUARII, a Name which was given to the Gladiators who fought near the Funeral Piles of the Noble Romans, that the Blood which they ſpilt might ſerve for a Sacrifice to the Infernal Gods. This Cuſtom was found to be leſs Cruel than to Sacrifice the Priſoners of War, as formerly. Suetonius, in the Life of Tiberius, chap. 7. ſaith, That this Emperor made the Buſtuari to fight, in remembrance of his Father and his Grandfather Druſus, in divers times and places; firſt at the Market, and then in the Amphitheatre. The firſt Romans who eſtabliſhed this Cuſtom to honour the Aſhes of their Fathers, were Marcus and Decimus, Sons to Brutus, under the Conſulſhip of Appius Claudius and Quintus Tiberius, as Valerius Maximus teſtifies, *lib.*2. *chap.*1. They did thus not only at the Funerals of Perſons of the higheſt Quality, but alſo at thoſe of private Perſons, as Tertullian aſſures us in his 6 Chapter of the Shews. There were alſo ſome, who being on their Death-Bed, ordered by their Teſtament, that this Honour ſhould be render'd them. In proceſs of time theſe Bloody Plays, which were acted then only near Funeral Piles, paſſed thence into the Circus and the Amphitheatres, became the ordinary Exerciſe of the Gladiators for the Paſtimes of the People.

BUTACIDES, of Crotona in Italy, the handſomeſt Man of his time. He was alſo very dexterous in all ſorts of Exerciſes, and often Victorious in the Olympick Games; Having joined Dorieus, he was kill'd in Sicily, in a Combat againſt the Inhabitants of the Town of Egeſta. He was ſo lamented for his Beauty, that his very Enemies erected a Monument, and offered Sacrifices unto him after his Death. His Name is not properly Butacides, but Philip the Son of Butaciſſus. See Herodotus, *Lib.*5. *Cap.*47.

BUTES, Son to Boreas King of Thracia, was exiled by his Father, becauſe he went about to kill his Brother Lycurgus. He took Ship with thoſe of his Party, and landed at the Iſle of Naxos, which was then called Strongyle; and finding it commodious to dwell in, he put to Sea again with the beſt part of his Men, to go in queſt of Women, that they might begin there their Families. They found ſeveral upon the Coaſt of Theſſalia, celebrating the Bacchanalia, amongſt which was Iphimedia, Wife to Aloëus, his Daughter Pancratis, and the Nymph Coronis. Butes made the latter his Prey, but Bacchus, whoſe Nurſe this young Woman had been, ſent a violent Fury which made him fling himſelf into a Well, where he periſhed. The Thracians nevertheleſs regained their Ship with their Prey, and returned to Naxos, where they proclaimed Agaſſamenus firſt King of that Iſle.

BUTHUS, a famous Wreſtler, who would eat a whole Oxe in a Day, whence great Eaters are called by his Name.

BUTIUS, or Budt, (Adrian) a Ciſtercian of Hulſt in Flanders, living to about the Year 1476. He wrote ſeveral Hiſtorical Pieces, as, The Continuation of the Chronicles of Giles and Roya, and of Bartholomew de Beca. Eleven years Hiſtory of the Earls of Flanders, Epiſtles, &c. Charles de Viſch, Bibl. Ciſterc. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

BUTKENS, (Chriſtopher) a Ciſtercian Monk, born at Antwerp, and afterwards Abbot of St. Saviour, was a conſiderable Perſon in the 17th Century, both for his Family, Learning, and Probity. He wrote ſeveral Books in French, The Sacred and Secular Trophies of Brabant in nine Books. The Genealogical Annals of the Family of Lindem, in fifteen Books, &c. Charles de Viſch Bibl. Ciſter. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg Mireus de Script. Sec. 17.

BUTLER, (James) the preſent Duke of Ormond, is the Eldeſt Son of Thomas Earl of Oſſery, by Amalia the Daughter of Lewis de Naſſaw, Lord Beverwaert, which Earl being a Perſon of ſingular Worth, gave eminent Proofs both of his Prudence and Valour by Sea and Land on ſeveral Occaſions, but eſpecially at the famous Battel of St. Denys, wherein the late Duke of Monmouth and he having joined their Forces to the States Army under the Command of the Prince of Orange, they broke into the French Camp, and put that Army, Commanded by the Duke of Luxemburg, in confuſion. This noble Earl, a worthy Son of his Illuſtrious Father James Duke of Ormond, was ſuddenly ſnatch'd away by Death in the Flower of his Age, July 30. 1680. and his Father ſurvived him Eight Years, who being Earl of Ormond and Oſſory, Viſcount Thurles, and Baron of Arcklow in Ireland, was by King Charles created Marquis of Ormond, and by King Charles II. July 20. 1660. made firſt an Engliſh Peer by the Titles of Baron of Lanthony, and Earl of Brecknock, afterward Duke of Ormond in Ireland, and in the year 1682. Duke of Ormond in England, that is, an Engliſh Duke, retaining the ſame Title. In which Honours and Title he was ſucceeded by the preſent Duke his Grandſon, one of the Gentlemen of His Majeſty's Bedchamber, and Captain of the ſecond Troop of Guards, following in Valour and Gallantry the Footſteps of his Grandfather and Father. This Noble Family is ſaid to have drawn its Original from Theobald, deſcended from the ancient Counts of Brion in Normandy, who was advanced by King Richard to the Office of Chief Butler of Ireland, which Office is ſince become the Name of the Family.

BUTOW, a ſmall Town of Pomerania in Germany. It is ſituated on the River of Stolp, towards the Frontiers of Royal Pruſſia, and the Foreſt of Valdow, betwixt Lawemborch and Belgarde. The Marquis of Brandenburgh holds it in Mortgage from Poland.

BUTRINTO, a ſmall Place upon the Coaſt of Epirus, belonging to the Venetians. It has been formerly a conſiderable City, known by the Writings of the Ancients, who call it Buthrotum and Buthrotus ; it was afterwards a Biſhop's See, but ruined by the Turks about 120 years ago ; and though the Venetians have taken care to repair it, yet it is inconſiderable. Some call it Botrinto ; 'tis now the Retreat of all the Fiſhermen of Epirus and Lower Albania. It is ſituated in the Country of Chimera, upon the Gulf to which it gives its Name, over-againſt that of Corfou.

BUTRIO, a Lawyer of Bononia, living in the 15th Century, a Perſon of conſiderable Learning. He wrote ſeveral Books, as, Repertorium Juris Canonici & Civilis. Commentaria in Decretales & Clementinas. Concilia, &c. Trithem, & Bellarmin. De Script. Eccl. Bumaldi. Bibl. Bonon. &c.

BUTTONS-BAY : See Hudſons-Bay.

BUTUA, an African Town and Kingdom in Monomotapa, near the River Zambere, between Amara, Giera, and Boro. Marmol, Sanſon, &c.

BUXTORF, (John) There were two Learned Profeſſors of Hebrew of this Name at Baſle, the Father and the Son : They are allowed a Place amongſt thoſe of the firſt Rank for Rabbinical Learning : The firſt Work that Buxtorf the Father compoſed, was his Great Dictionary, Entituled, Lexicon Chaldaicum, Talmudicum & Rabbinicum, Printed at Baſle in 1639. and is abſolutely neceſſary for underſtanding the Rabbins, being more extenſive than that of R. David of Pomis, Printed at Venice in 1587. He wrote alſo a ſmall Dictionary of Hebrew and Chaldaick words in the Bible, which is very Methodical. There is nothing more compleat than his Treaſury of the Hebrew Grammar. He alſo Printed a great Hebrew Bible at Baſle in 1618. with the Rabbins, the Chaldaick Paraphraſes, and the Maſſora, after the manner of the Great Bible of Venice. But Father Simon thinks it uncorrect. To this Bible is commonly added the Tiberias of the ſame Author, which is a Commentary upon the Maſſora, where at large he explains what the Rabbins think of it, and expounds in Latin the Terms of the Maſſora, which are very difficult. He follows Rabbi Elias the Levite, in his Expoſition of thoſe Terms. He has alſo publiſhed Synagoga Judaica, where he expoſes the Ceremonies of the Jews ; but though it be full of Learning, it is not Judicious, inſiſting too much upon Trifles, and to render the Jews ridiculous. The ſmall Abridgment of Leo of Modena upon this Subject, tranſlated by Father Simon, is far better. We have beſides ſome other Books of the ſame Anthor ; and amongſt others, his Bibliotheck of the Rabbins, which is a curious Work ; but there have been ſince his time a great many Diſcoveries made on that piece of Learning. Thoſe who have a mind to write Hebrew, may make uſe of the Collection of Hebrew Letters which he has publiſhed, under the Title of Inſtitutio Epiſtolaris Hebraica. John Buxtorf the Son, had no leſs Skill of the Hebrew and the Rabbins than his Father, as appears by the great Number of Works which he has compoſed on thoſe Heads. He tranſlated ſome Rabbins, and amongſt others the More Nevochim of R. Moſes, and the Book, Entituled, Cozri. He alſo writ upon the Hebrew, Chaldaick, and Syriack Grammars. His Hebrew Concordance is alſo much eſteemed, and being Heir of his Father's Opinion as well as Jewiſh Literature, he has defended the Antiquity of the Points and Vowels of the Hebrew Text againſt Lewis Cappellus, in a Book, Entituled, Tractatus de Punctorum, Vocalium & Accentuum in Libris veteris Teſtamenti Hebraicus origine, antiquitate & authoritate, Printed at Baſle in 1648. There is a great number of Paſſages of the Rabbins cited in this Book. He has alſo written another Book much more valuable againſt the Criticks of the ſaid Ludovicus Cappellus, with this Title, Anticritica ſeu vindiciæ veritatis Hebraicæ adverſus Ludovici Cappelli Criticam quam vocat ſacram, at Baſle in 1653. He has alſo compoſed ſeveral Diſſertations upon different Matters relating to the Jewiſh Literature, in which he excelled. Many Learned Men, who admire the Rabbinical Excellency of theſe two Great Men, are not always ſatisfy'd with their Judgment ; they believe theſe Authors too much led by the Rabbies, and that Cappellus, though not ſo great an Hebrician, has written more judiciouſly upon this Argument. They add, That the ſtrong Fancy which a great part of the German and Geneva Divines have for the Hebrew Points, proceeds from the regard they had to the Two Buxtorfs, whoſe Opinions they blindly followed, not being able to go to the bottom of ſo difficult a Diſquiſition.

BUZELIN, (John) a Jeſuit of Cambray, living in the 17th Century : His Works are Gallo-Flandriæ Deſcriptio. Annales Gallo-Flandriæ, &c. Alegamb. Bibl. Script. S. J.

BUZYGES, an Illuſtrious Citizen of Athens, ſaid to be the Inventer of Plowing the Ground with Oxen. Hence he had his Name Βουζύγης, which is compoſed of Βοῦς, an Ox, and of Ζεῦγος, a Yoak ; it was he with whom Demophoon truſted the Palladium, after he had received it from Diomedes, to carry it for Athens.

BYAS, a famous Carver, born in the Iſle of Naxos, in the Ægean Sea, he lived before the 55th Olympiad, and invented the Uſe of the ſmall pieces of Marble cut in the Form of Slates, to cover Temples and other Sumptuous Buildings. Pauſan. L.5. Eliac.

BYRSA, the Name of the Cittadel of Carthage in Africa, on the Top whereof was a Temple dedicated to Æſculapius, which the Wife of Aſdrubal burnt after the taking of that City. The occaſion of the Fable concerning the Foundation of that City in as much bounds as could be compaſſed with an Ox Hide, is, That anciently inſtead of Money they uſed little bits of Leather marked, with which Dido bought the Place to build her City on ; the Greeks abounding in thoſe ſorts of Inventions, by drawing the Original of all Words from their own Tongue : But thoſe who underſtand the old Phænician Tongue, which Dido introduced into Africk, know that the true Name of the Cittadel of Carthage was not Byrſa, as the Greeks pronounced it, but Botzra, or Boſra, that is in Hebrew, a Fortreſs, or Tower.

BZOVIUS, (Abraham) a Dominican, born in Poland, and died at Rome in 1637. He was a Man extreamly laborious, and compoſed ſo many Books, that it's hardly credible that one Man could have writ ſo many. The moſt conſiderable of his Works is the Continuation of Cardinal Baronius's Annals in Nine Volumes, from 1198. until his own time, and is ſo particular as to the Affairs of the Dominicans as if he had deſign'd the Annals of that Order. He compoſed alſo the Lives of the Popes in Three Volumes. He pick'd a Quarrel with the Cordeliers, on occaſion of John Scot, the Subtil Doctor, of whom he ſpeaks contemptuouſly ; and with George Hervart, on the Account of the Emperor Lewis of Bavaria ; which drew upon him ſuch Replies as he could not well Anſwer. Starovolſcius, de Illuſt. Polon. &c.

C.

C. This Letter among the Ancients was a Mark of Condemnation, and was called the fatal Letter, as the Letter A was the Mark of Abſolution, according to Pierius. Metellus ſays, That it was a Cuſtom among the Indians to Mark the Foreheads and Arms of ſuch of the Royal Blood as became Chriſtians, with this Letter, ſo that it became an Honourable Mark of their Religion. The Letters C and Q differ ſo very little, that ſeveral Grammarians had a mind to reject Q as ſuperfluous, pretending that the C and U would ſuffice. Yet the Diſtinction and Difference of theſe two Letters is ſo neceſſary, that we find ancient Poets placed their C where we make uſe of Q, when they had a mind to divide a Word. So Lucretius makes cuiret of three Syllables for quiret, and Plautus has acua and relicuus for aqua and reliquus. Plautus, Auſonius.

CAB, a Meaſure of the Hebrews, containing 97 cubick Inches of Water. Cumberland.

CABADES, King of Perſia, ſucceeded his Father Obalas in 486. but was dethroned in 497. becauſe he would eſtabliſh the Cuſtom of having Women in Common. Zamaſques his Son governed in his Place until he himſelf was re-inthroned in 501. He put a great number of Chriſtians to Death; but afterwards, ſeeing a Prelate work Miracles, and Diſpoſſeſs the Devils of a Caſtle, where they gave diſturbance, and in which Place there was a great deal of Treaſure found, he ſuffered the Chriſtians to live unmoleſted in his Country. The Manicheans having a deſign to Dethrone him a Second time, and to ſet up his Son, who promiſed them Countenance, diſpleaſed the old Prince to that degree, that he Executed great numbers of 'em, baniſhed the greateſt Part, and declared the Remainder uncapable of any Office. He made War againſt the Emperor Anaſtaſius. Marcellin the Count writes, That Cabades beſieged Amida in 502. and took it after a Siege of five Months, through the Treachery of ſome Friars, whom he beheaded for their Pains. The Town was re-taken the next Year, and Cabades made a Peace with Anaſtaſius, and then with Juſtin his Succeſſor. This laſted for ſome time, after which Juſtinian got ſeveral Advantages over Cabades, by the Conduct of Beliſarius. Cabades died in 532. after he had Reigned 35 years at two ſeveral times. Marcellin in Chron. Agathias. Cedrenus.

CABALE, or Cabaliſto, a certain Sect amongſt the Jews, which hold to the Tradition of the Ancients, or to that Science, which as they pretend, contains all the Myſteries of the ancient Law, all the Secrets of the ineffable Name of GOD, the Cœleſtial Hierarchies, the Science of Numbers, and many other Curioſities, or rather Dreams. They divide this Knowledge into Speculative, which conſiſts in the Contemplation and Search of theſe Myſteries, and into Practick, which conſiſts in the Taliſmans, in the Science of the Planets and Stars, and perhaps of Magick, and the Philoſopher's Stone; many of the Jews are ſo obſtinate and headſtrong in this Cabale, that they apply themſelves to Magick, abuſing the Name of God and Angels, in expectation of performing ſupernatural Things. It is probable that the Cabale had its beginning from Plato's and Pythagoras's Philoſophy, which ſome of the Jews have intermixed with their Religion, adding an infinite number of Dreams and ridiculous Superſtitions, as may be ſeen in the Books of Adam, Enoch, Solomon, Zohar, and ſeveral others. In the firſt Ages of the Church, Hereticks eaſily fell into the Superſtitions of the Cabaliſts, eſpecially the Valentinians and Baſilians, of whom we have yet ſome Agats with Medals, having Hieroglyphic Figures engraved in them, which reſemble much the Taliſmans of the Jews; there are yet found ſome Figures of their making, which the Latins call Amuleta, a kind of Preſervatives that they uſed to hang about Childrens Necks, to ſecure them from the Evils that might befall them, eſpecially from Enchantments and Witchcraft. The Speculative Cabale is divided into Gametria, Notarica, and Themura. Gametria is an Explication that is made by tranſpoſing the Letters of a Word: As for Example, It is ſaid in Exodus (Præcedet te Malachi, i.e. Angelus meus.) The Cabaliſts find that this Angel is Michael, becauſe the Letters of Malachi being tranſpoſed, make Michael. Notarica makes an entire Word of every Letter, or explains one Word by another, of the ſame number of Letters. It is writ in the third Pſalm, Multi inſurgunt in me. The Hebrew word that ſignifies multi is compoſed of R, B, I, M, whence the Cabaliſts conjecture that the People meant by this, are the Romans, the Babylonians, the Ionians or Greeks, and the Medes. Thus they ſay, that Macom is the ſame with Jehova, becauſe the Letters of theſe two Words, written in Hebrew, make both the ſame Number of 186. Themura or Ziraph conſiſts in the Changing of Letters, which are made equivalent in certain Combinations. Here follows an Example in the Latin Tongue, having made the Combination of the Letters thus, A, B, C, D, E, F, &c. They pretend that the two Letters of each Combination can be put one for the other, ſo that what is written DBCE may be read Fade; that is, Call. All the three Parts of this Cabale are good for nothing elſe but to amuſe ſhallow Wits. For to make uſe of the ſame Examples, may not we read inſtead of Michael, Chamiel, Kimhel, &c. that is, Angel of Fire, Angel of Wounds, &c. and by the four Letters R, B, I, M, cannot we underſtand the Rabbies, the Bactrians, the Italians, and Moabites; and this Diviſion of the Cabale is but a Superſtition invented by the Modern Rabbies, for the ableſt divide the Cabale into two Parts, the one Mercava, which is the Science of the Chariot; and the other Bereſith, that is, the Work of the Creation; the firſt conſiders the Intellectual World; the other the Viſible one, as Father Kircher explains it in the Second Tome of his Oedipus Ægyptiacus.

CABALLO, (Emmanuel) a famous Genoeſe, who has rendered his Name immortal by his bold Undertaking, when the City of Genoa was beſieged by the French. The Town being much ſtreightned for Proviſions, after a Siege of 16 Months, there arrived a Genoa Ship laden with Proviſions and Ammunition, which to ſhun the Enemies Fleet, ſailed towards the Citadel, not knowing the French were Maſters of it, and fell into their Hands; the Beſieged perceiving this Miſtake, begun to think of Surrendring, until the brave Caballo raiſed their drooping Spirits, and deſired only a Ship, that he might reſcue the other; and being accompanied with a good Number of ſtout young Men, he ſails directly towards the Citadel, paſſing through the midſt of the French, and receiving their Shot from all ſides, without the leaſt Fear, cuts the Cables, and brought the Ship off, to the Amazement and great Joy of the Genoeſes, who looked upon him as the Deliverer of their Country, and honoured him accordingly. Folieta Elog. clar. viror.

CABASILAS, (Nicholas) a Grecian, Archbiſhop of Theſſalonica, lived about 1350. and not in 1300. as Sixtus of Sienna writes. He writes for the Greeks againſt Thomas Aquinas, and an Expoſition of the Greek Liturgy, which we have according to the Verſion of Gentianus Hervetus, and is put ſince in the Bibliotheck of the Fathers. He publiſhed another Treatiſe, De Vita in Chriſto, and an Oration Contra Fœneratores; but divers other Works are aſcribed to him which he never compoſed. Poſſevin, Pontanus.

CABASOLE, (Philip) of Cavaillon in France. After ſeveral Promotions he was made a Cardinal by Urban V. He died at Perugia in 1372. The Book, De Nugis Curialium, is commonly aſſign'd to this Cardinal. His Friend Petrarch, dedicated his Book De Vita Solitaria to him. Petrarch, Lib.2. Ep.1.&c. St. Marth. Gal. Chriſt.

CABES, Capes Cape, Tacapa, a conſpicuous City on the Coaſt of Barbary, over againſt Trepano in Sicily, which has a River conveyed to it from a Lake behind it, and a Port, though of no great Uſe, becauſe expoſed to all Winds, which makes the River, though ſmall, of the greater Value, the Tides filling it, and bringing up thoſe Ships it will bear. From this City the Syrtis Minor is now called Golfo de Caps. It lies 70 Miles from Safucos to the Eaſt, and two Stations from Cairuan to the South Eaſt, and 20 Miles from Tunis South Eaſt. The Lake is called Tritonis, in Ptolemy, and is ſaid to be hot, and to cure the Leproſie. Leo Africanus, p.256. ſays, it was a ſtrong Roman Town.

CABESTAN, a Borough of France, in the Province of Languedoc near Niſmes; whence William of Cabeſtan, a Provincial Poet, that lived in the 13th Age, took his Name. He was of the ancient Houſe of Cervieres, and ſpent the five firſt Years of his Youth with the Lord of Cabeſtan, where he fell in Love with a Lady of the Houſe of Beaux, and made Verſes in her Praiſe. The Lady fearing he would prove Inconſtant, made him eat of an Herb that had like to have kill'd him, for it quite deprived him of his Senſes; which when he recovered again, he left that Gentlewoman, and began to admire Tricline Carbonel, Wife to Raimond of Seillans, who ſhewed him ſo much Kindneſs and Civility for the Verſes he made for her, that the Husband became ſo jealous of him, that meeting him abroad in the Country, he killed him, and barbarouſly pulled out his Heart, which he made his Wife eat as if it had been ſomething elſe; but when ſhe found what it was, ſhe died of Grief in 1213. Petrarque Noſtredamus.

CABIRA, a Nymph, Wife to Vulcan, and Mother of Camilus: This Camilus had three Sons of their Grandmother's Name, from whom are deſcended the Nymphs, called Cabarites, mentioned by Acuſilaus the Argive, cited by Strabo in his 10th Book.

CABIRES, certain Gods who were worſhipped in Samothracia, an Iſland in the Ægean Sea, according to Herodotus, Lib. 2. This Name probably comes from the Hebrew word כביר Cabir, which ſignifies Great and Powerful. They were in ſuch Veneration, that it was a Crime to mention their Name amongſt the People. It was believed that ſuch as were initiated in their Myſteries were under their Protection, and might obtain any thing they wiſhed for. The Ancients do not agree about the Number of theſe Gods. Mnaſeas allows three of them, Axieres, Axiocerſa, and Axiocerſus; that is, Ceres, Proſerpina, and Pluto. Dionyſiodorus adds a Fourth to them, whom he names Caſmilus, that is, Mercury. Others hold, that there were but two Cabires, whereof Jupiter was the Eldeſt, and Dionyſius the Younger: Athenion ſays, that Jaſon and Dardanus, who were named Cabires, were deſcended of Jupiter and Electra; ſome are of Opinion that they were God's Miniſters, and others think that they were Devils. They had alſo a Temple in Egypt, which none entred into but the Prieſts of thoſe Gods, and they had another in the Territories of Thebes. And there were Cabires of Ceres, which were ſo reſpected, that it was thought, that any who ſhould dare to beat them, ſhould never eſcape the Vengeance of the Gods. The Phœnicians had alſo Gods called Cabires, or Caberes, which were worſhipped chiefly at Berythus. Damaſius in Photius, Heſychius, Cauſabon, &c.

CABRIRA Moralis, (Francis) a Spaniard, living in the beginning of the 17th Century. He was a good Linguiſt, and wrote a Continuation of Ciaconius's Hiſtory of the Popes, and ſome other Works. Nicholas Antonio Bibl. Belg.

CABRIERES, a Town in the Compte Venaiſſin in Provence. See Merindal.

CABUL, a Town and Kingdom of the Eaſt-Indies, in the Territories of the Great Mogul, the fartheſt advanc'd towards Perſia and Wibeck, having Cachemire to the Eaſt. It is in this Kingdom that the River Nilab and Behat, that diſcharge themſelves into the Indus, have their Sources. The Town is great, and has two Fortreſſes: It ſtands upon the Road from Labor to Samarcand. The other Towns are Ghidel and Paſſaur, which are all Towns of great Commerce for Musk, Silks, Rhubarb, and other Merchandizes that are brought from Cathai. The Tartars ſell 60000 Horſes here every Year. It was the firſt Seat of the Great Mogul.

CACA, Cacus's Siſter, diſcover'd to Hercules, her Brother's ſtealing of his Oxen; for which reaſon, as Servius obſerves upon the 8th Æneid, the Veſtal Virgins ſacrificed to her, though Virgil in the ſame Place, and Ovid in his firſt Book De Faſtis, give another account of the Diſcovery of this Thievery.

CACACA, a Town in the Province of Garel, in the Kingdom of Fez, in Africa, upon the Coaſt of the Mediterranean Sea, ſeven Leagues from Melile by Sea, though but two by Land. The Duke of Medina made himſelf Maſter of it in 1496: After the taking of Melile, he demoliſhed the Town, leaving nothing but the Caſtle, which is very ſtrong, becauſe upon a Rock that cannot be Undermined. Mar.

CACALLA, (Auguſtin) of Valladolid in Spain, he was a long time Preacher to Charles V. but having quitted the Communion of the Church of Rome, and turn'd Lutheran, he was condemn'd by the Inquiſition, and burned at Valladolid in 1559. Theodorus Beza.

CACCIALUPI, (John Baptiſt) a Celebrated Lawyer of Bononia, living in the beginning of the 15th Century. This Doctor's Opinion, both in Civil and Eccleſiaſtical Matters, was the moſt valued of any in his time. He wrote ſeveral Tracts in his Profeſſion; De Juſtitia & Jure. De Debitore Suſpecto Fugitivo. De Pactis. De modo Studendi. De Tranſactione. Defenſorium Juris, &c. Forſter in Vit. Juriſc. Bumaldi Bibl. Bonon. &c.

CACERES de Camarinha, a Town of Aſia, in the Iſle of Lucon, one of the Philippines, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Manille. It is ſituate upon the Streights of Manilha, and has a Port that belongs to the Spaniards.

CACHAN, a Town of Perſia in the Province of Yerak, 22 Leagues from Iſpahan towards Kom. There are two Market Places called Bazars, and ſeveral Caravanſera's built with Brick. In this Town is made the beſt Silver and Gold Brocades in all Perſia, and here are above 1000 Jewiſh Families, who pretend to be deſcended from the Tribe of Juda; as do alſo thoſe of Iſpahan and Kom. Tavernier Voyage de Porte.

CACIQUES, the Name of the Governors or Princes under the ancient Incas or Emperors of Peru; the Chief of the Native Nobility of the Country retain ſtill the Names of Incas and Caciques, though they are Subject to the Spaniards; and the Princes of Cuba in America Septentrionali bore the Name of Caciques when the Spaniards conquered them.

CACUS, a Shepherd of Italy, who lived upon Mount Aventin, before it was joined to Rome. He was a great Robber in that Country, for 'tis ſaid that Hercules in his return from Spain, after he had killed Geryon, as he was driving that King's Herd Home, came near Cacus's Dwelling, who ſtole ſome of his Cows; but that the Theft might not be diſcovered, nor the Cattel traced to his Den, he drew them backwards by the Tail. Hercules miſt his Oxen, and ſearched for them in Cacus's Den, but could never imagine that they were ſhut up there, becauſe their Footing ſeemed to be outwards, until they bellowed when they ſmelt the reſt of their Company about the Place. Whereupon Hercules broke the Door of the Cave, and killed Cacus with his Club. Poets ſay that this Cacus was Son to Vulcan, and that he caſt Flames out of his Mouth; which is perhaps becauſe he burned Houſes after Plundering them. They add, he was a Giant of a prodigious Bigneſs, who lived upon Humane Fleſh, and that he was but half Man, ſuch as the Satyrs are repreſented to be. Others will have him to be a Prince of Hiſpania Tarraconenſis, who gave his Name to Mount Cacus in Arragon, upon the Borders of Old Caſtile, which is now called Moncaio; that he was horrible, and of an extream Savage Humour, which was the reaſon he was called half Man: That he had invented Fire-Arms, and a kind of Gun-powder like ours, which was alſo the reaſon why he was called Son of Vulcan: And finally, that he purſu'd Hercules into Italy, where he ſtole four of his Cows. Tit. Liv.

CADI, Judge of the Civil Affairs in the Turkiſh Empire, though in Biledulgerid in Africa, the Cadi gives Sentence in Spiritual Matters. Cadi is generally taken for the Judge of a Town; Judges of Provinces are called Mollas. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

CADILESCHER, or Cadileſquer in the Turk's Empire, is the Head Judge, who judges all Caſes in the Divan. Cadi ſignifies Judge, and Leſcher Army, whence it comes that Cadileſcher is Judge of the Army or Soldiers. There are but three ſuch Judges in all the Grand Signior's Territories. The firſt is he of Europe, the ſecond of Natolia or Aſia, and the third reſides at Grand-Cairo. The laſt was eſtabliſh'd when Selim conquered Egypt, and is the moſt conſiderable, becauſe his Juriſdiction reaches over the Egyptians, the Syrians, Arabians, and over a Part of Armenia. Now the Soldiers are not under the Cadileſcher's Juriſdiction, for they have obtained the Privilege to be Judged by none but their own Officers. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

CADIZ, an Iſland near the Weſtern Coaſts of Andaluſia in Spain, Northwards of the Streights of Gibraltar. It was formerly called Tarteſſus, the Iſle of Juno, becauſe the Pagans had a magnificent Temple in it, where they worſhipped that Goddeſs. Afterwards it was called Gades, whence came the Word Cadiz. It is ſeven Leagues long, its greateſt Breadth three, and at ſome places it is but a League broad. To the Eaſt of it is a Bridge called Pont de Sac, 700 Paces long, by which it joins with the firm Land. There are both Fields and Mountains in it, but no Springs, the want of which is ſupplied by a great number of Wells. The Entrance into the Bay of Cadiz is very dangerous, by reaſon of the Rocks called the Diamont and Los Pueros. The Port of the Town, which is at the Weſt end of the Iſland, looks to the Eaſt. The Town is inhabited by a great number of rich Merchants, who have the fineſt Magazines and Store-Houſes in Europe. It is here that the Fleet and Galleons arrive with the Gold and Silver, which the Spaniards draw from America. Its Caſtle was built by the Moors, and was lately well fortified. The Fort of St. Sebaſtian was built to defend the Mouth of the Gulph, and the Fort of St. Philip to ſecure the Port. The Town has the Title of a Biſhoprick, has many well built Churches in it, and is one of the ancienteſt Cities in Spain, ſcarce yielding to any in the Empire for Greatneſs, Magnificence, and the Number and Quality of Inhabitants. It was here that Robert Earl of Eſſex and Sir Walter Rawleigh burned the Spaniſh Indian Fleet, conſiſting of 40 Sail of Ships, whoſe Lading was valued at eight Millions of Crowns, and overcame the Spaniſh Navy, conſiſting of 57 Men of War, took the St. Michael and St. Andrew, two great Galleons, with their Lading, and carried away more Martial Furniture than could be ſupplied in many years after, forced the Town, in which they ſlew and took Priſoners 4000 Foot, 600 Horſe, and brought a conſiderable Booty thence: This happened in 1596. The Iſland has ſuch good Paſture, that Cattel would burſt if they were ſuffered to feed any long time, and not bled every Month. Cadiz is one of the Keys of Spain, and one of the three Towns which the Emperor Charles V. adviſed his Son Philip II. to have a watchful Eye upon. The other two, were Fluſhing in Zealand, and Goulette in the Kingdom of Tunis. The Town, after it was taken by the Engliſh, paid Five hundred and twenty thouſand Ducats for its Ranſome. There were two Millions more offered to preſerve the Ships in Port Real from being burnt; but it was refuſed by the Admiral, becauſe his Orders were to burn all the Ships he could not bring away. The whole Loſs was eſteemed at 20 Millions of Ducats. The Earl of Eſſex offered to have kept this Iſland with three hundred Men, and three Months Proviſion; but it was denied him by the other Commanders, who were become wonderfully Rich, whilſt the Earl reſerved nothing but a Noble Library for his Share. P. Labbé. Cambden's Eliz.

CADIZADELIRES, a Sect of Mahometans, that reſemble very much the Stoicks; they ſhun Feaſts and Diverſion, and affect an extraordinary Gravity in all their Actions. They ſpeak inceſſantly of GOD, both in private and publick, and ſome of this Sect make a mixture of Chriſtianity and Mahometiſm, eſpecially thoſe who live on the Borders of Hungary and Boſnia. They read the Goſpel in the Sclavonian Tongue, and the Alcoran in the Arabick; they drink Wine in the Month of Ramazan, or the Turks Lent, but put neither Cinnamon nor other Drugs in it, and then they look upon it to be permitted; they love and protect Chriſtians; they believe that Mahomet is the Holy Ghoſt, and that the Deſcent of the Fiery Tongues upon Whitſuntide, was the Figure of the Coming of this Falſe Prophet. They practiſe Circumciſion as the Jews do, and make uſe of the Example of Jeſus Chriſt to authorize it. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

CADMUS, King of Thebes, Son to Agenor King of Phœnicia, Brother to Phœnix and Cilix, and Grandchild to Epaphus; He went to Bœotia and built Thebes, or at leaſt the Caſtle called Cadmea, about the Year of the World 2620. and brought into Greece theſe ſixteen Letters, α, β, γ, δ, ε, ι, η, κ, λ, ν, ο, π, ζ, σ, τ, υ, to which Palamedes is ſaid to have added theſe four, θ, ξ, φ χ, in the Time of the War of Troy. Poets ſay that he left his Country to ſeek his Siſter Europa, ſtollen away by Jupiter, and that the Oracle commanded him to travel into Bœotia, where one of his Retinue was devoured by a Dragon as he was drawing ſome Water out of a Well, which Cadmus ſlew by Minerva's Order, and ſowed its Teeth in a Field, whence ſprung an Army of Men who deſtroy'd one another. That he Married Hermione or Harmonia, Daughter of Mars and Venus, on whom he begot Polydorus, who ſucceeded him, Semele, Ino, Antonoe, and Agave. But they who ſeek truth in theſe curious and ingenious Fables, affirm, That Cadmus paſſed into Bœotia, a Province of Greece, at that time called Aolia, and killed a Prince who was called Dragon, ſowed cunningly a Diſſention amongſt his Subjects, who would oppoſe his Eſtabliſhment, and improving the Diſorder, made himſelf Maſter of the Country, and gave the Name of Thebes to the firſt City he built, to ſhew that his Anceſtors were of the great City of Thebes in Egypt. He poliſhed and civilized the People, and afterwards the Diſtractions of his Family made him go to end his Life in Illyrium. This Cadmus, according to others, was Lord High Steward to a King of Tyre or of Sydon; and Hermione or Harmonia, his Wife, was a Player on the Flute. The Word Cadmus ſeems to have come from Cadmoni, which is the Name of a Nation in Palæſtina, the ſame with Heveans. Harmonia derived her Name from Hermon, a Mountain of that Country, which is ſaid to have been changed into a Serpent, becauſe that the Word Heveans, in the Syriack Tongue, ſignifies a Serpent; and it's ſaid that he ſowed the Serpent's Teeth, and that Armed Men ſprung from them, becauſe in the Phœnician Language, to expreſs Men armed with Braſs Darts, they made uſe of certain Words that might be tranſlated armed with Serpent's Teeth. It's more probable that Cadmus brought the Phœnicians Letters into Greece, than that he invented them. Pauſanias, Bochart. Canaan, &c.

CADMUS of Miletum, a Greek Hiſtorian, Son of Pandion; He writ in four Books a Work of the Original of Miletum, and of all Ionia. It was to him that Pliny attributed the Invention of Hiſtory. He lived about the time that the Grecians took Troy, which was An. Mundi 2870. or thereabouts, 1184 years before the Birth of our Saviour. He writ a Hiſtory of Ionia. We muſt take care not to confound this Cadmus with another Hiſtorian of the ſame Name, born at Miletum, who liv'd a great while after the firſt. This Latter wrote the Hiſtory of Attica in 16 Books. Pliny, Suidas, Joſephus.

CADOLOUS, or Cadolus, Biſhop of Parma; He lived in the 11th Age, and was choſen Anti-pope by two Prelates, that were of the Emperor Henry IV's ſide, and was named Honorius II. in oppoſition to Alexander II. in 1061. He took the Field with an Army, and being well provided with Money, came before Rome, whence Duke Godfrey made him retire to Parma; ſome time after, being recalled by ſome Seditious People, he made himſelf Maſter of the Church of the Vatican; but being worſted a ſecond time, abandoned by his own Party, and beſieged in the Caſtle of St. Angelo, whither he got by Cincius's Favour, he bought his Liberty, and ſtole away alone. The Council of Mantua, held in 1064. condemned him in preſence of Annon Archbiſhop of Cologne, Regent and Tutor of Henry; after which he died miſerably, but always holding himſelf to be Pope to his very Death. Leon of Oſtia, Platina in Alexand. II. Baronius, A. C. 1061.

CADORINE, a Country in Italy, in the Marquiſate of Treviſano, in the Territories of the Republick of Venice, Northward of all Italy, towards the County of Tirol and the Alps, which are to the Weſt and North of it, as Friuli is to the Eaſt, and la Marche to the South. Its Capital is Pieve di Cadore, ſituated upon the River Pieve or Piave.

CADOVIN, an Abbey of the Dioceſe of Sarlat, in Perigord, where the pretended Winding-Sheet of Jeſus Chriſt is kept.

CADRITES, a ſort of Mahometan Fryars, whoſe Founder was called Abdul-Cadri, a Man of great Reputation for Philoſophy and Law. They ſpend a great part of the Night in turning round, holding each others Hands, and repeating inceſſantly the Word Hai, which ſignifies Living, and is one of the Attributes of GOD, and all this time there is one of them playing upon the Flute, to hearten the reſt to Dance; this they do every Friday Night. They are a Subtle ſort of Hypocrites, and never diſcover the Secrets of their Practice, but to thoſe of their own Profeſſion; never cut their Hair, nor cover their Heads, and always go barefoot; they have Liberty to leave the Convent, and to Marry if they pleaſe, provided only they wear black Buttons to diſtinguiſh them from the reſt of the People.

CADVALLUS was choſen Vice-Roy of Scotland, after that Gillus was expelled for his Male-adminiſtration, being Chief of thoſe who conſpired againſt him. Gillus having retired into Ireland, made War thence upon Scotland; but Cadvallus not only repulſed, but following him thither, gave him a total Rout; and returning back into Scotland, loſt the greateſt Part of his Army in a Tempeſt, together with a rich Booty, for Grief whereof he died. Buchanan.

CADUCEUS, the Name of the Rod which Mercury received of Apollo for the Harp of ſeven Strings which he gave him; ſome will have this Name to come of the Latin word Cadere, which ſignifies to fall, becauſe, according to the Fable, this Rod had the Virtue to appeaſe and make all Differences fall; ſo that as the Romans made uſe of Heraulds, whom they called Feciales, to declare War, ſo alſo they had ſome to proclaim Peace, whom they named Caduceatores. The ancient Egyptians adorned this Rod with two Serpents, the one Male, and the other Female, which were twiſted about it, and formed a kind of Knot in the middle, and at the top ſeemed to kiſs each other, and formed a kind of Arch or Bow with the upper part of their Bodies, to which they added Wings. All this is founded, as the Mythologiſts ſay, upon Mercury's parting with his Rod two Serpents that he found fighting together; ſo that he carried it ever after as a Mark and Symbol of Peace. Others ſay, that the Caduceum marks the Power of Eloquence, which can compoſe the Mind, and gain the Heart; that the Serpents are the Symbol of Prudence, which is neceſſary for an Orator, and that the Wings ſignifie the Sublimity of Diſcourſe, and the Readineſs of Speech, which made Homer call ſome Words winged. Poets give this Rod two other Properties, as to lead the Souls to Hell, or bring them thence; and to cauſe or diſturb Sleep, &c. Virgil Æneid. 4.

CÆCILIUS was no more than Son to a Slave made free, but had in great Conſideration, by reaſon of his Parts: He was of Calantis, a Town in Sicily. He taught Rhetorick at Rome in Auguſtus's time. He writ a Hiſtory, or Relation of what paſſed in the Slaves War. There are other Books aſcribed to him; amongſt the reſt, a Collection of what Orators ſaid for and againſt Hiſtory. Athenæus.

CÆCILIUS, or the Cæcilian Family: Authors ſpeak differently of the Original of the Cæcilian Family, which was one of the moſt Conſiderable among the Plebeians of Rome; the ancienteſt of them whom we know, is, L. Cæcilius Metellus, Sirnamed by ſome Dentex, who was Conſul with C. Servilius Tucca, the 470 Year of Rome, and the 384 before the Chriſtian Æra. The Family of the Cæcilians, beſides other great Men hereafter mentioned, produc'd two Eminent Lawyers, the firſt called Publius Cæcilius, whom we find often cited in the Digeſts; the Name of the other is Sextus Cæcilius, who profeſs'd the Law in the Reigns of Trajan and Adrian. Bernardinus Rutilius mentions both of 'em, in the Lives of the Ancient Lawyers. Paterculus, upon the occaſion of the Triumph of Metellus Numidicus, which happened in the Year of Rome 647. upon this Occaſion, I ſay, He makes the following Remark upon the Grandeur of the Family of the Cæcilians. At this time, ſays he, there were above 12 Magiſtrates of this Name, who, in 12 Years, were raiſed to the higheſt Poſts in Rome; ſome were Conſuls, and ſome were Cenſors; and to the above-mentioned Promotion, ſome were ſo Fortunate, as to add the Glory of a Triumph. Vell. Paterc. Lib. 2. Hiſt.

CÆCILIUS Metellus (Quintus) a Conſul and Roman Captain, who was Sirnamed of Macedonia, becauſe he ſubdued that Country, and vanquiſhed one Cheriſcus, who pretended to be King of it, and had taken the Name of Philip. He defeated the Achaians, and gained great Victories in Spain: His great Severity drew the Peoples Hatred upon him, which was like to keep him from the Conſulſhip that was deny'd him twice. It was taken much notice of, that he was carry'd to his Grave by four Sons that he left behind him, after he had the Pleaſure to ſee three of them honoured with the Dignity of Conſuls, and the Fourth carry the Honour of a Triumph.

L. CÆCILIUS Metellus, Conſul and Roman Commander; he is thought to be the Son of Cæcilius Dento. He made War in Sicily againſt the Carthaginians, and at firſt kept within the Mountains, and took care that his Army ſhould neither be expoſed to the Enemy, nor be pen'd up by them: A little after he came into the Plains, and carry'd Theruce and Liparis almoſt at the Enemies Noſe, and had ſuch a watchful Eye upon Aſdrubal, a great Soldier and General of the Carthaginians, ſeeking all Occaſions to ſurpriſe him, and took his time ſo well, that he charged him unexpectedly near Palermo, as he was going to remove his Camp, and gave him an entire Defeat. He killed him 26 Elephants, and took 104. which were led to Rome, with 13 of the chiefeſt Officers of the Enemies Army, who were a great Ornament to his Triumph. He was Conſul afterwards twice, in 503 and 507 of Rome. Polybius, Eutropius, Pliny.

CÆCILIUS Metellus, (Quintus) was Son to L. Cæcilius Metellus Calvus, who was Conſul, and gained the Name of Numidicus, becauſe he overthrew Jugurtha King of Numidia, in the 645th year of Rome; and it was then he got the Conſulſhip with M. Junius Silanus. Africa fell to his Lot, he entred the Enemies Country, after he had reeſtabliſhed the Military Diſcipline, which was much decay'd through the Negligence of former Generals. Jugurtha being frighted at his coming, profered him a Peace, with a Promiſe to turn Subject to the Romans. This Offer did not make the Conſul neglect his Buſineſs; he encamp'd himſelf advantageouſly, and hearing that Jugurtha was far off, made himſelf Maſter of the Town of Vacca, where he made his Magazines. Afterwards he defeated Jugurtha; but that Victory not being altogether ſo compleat as he could wiſh, he lays Siege to Zama, Capital of Numidia, which the King made him raiſe. Vacca revolted the year after, which was the 646th of Rome; but Metellus retook it by a Trick, and cut the Inhabitants in pieces, who came abroad to meet him, taking him for Jugurtha. After this he gave that King a freſh Defeat, in a Town called Thala, which the Enemies abandoned. The War then beginning to grow tedious, Cæcilius Metellus was obliged to return Home, and Marius, that was made Conſul in 647. obtained a Commiſſion to end it; but this did not diminiſh any thing of Metellus's Triumph. Being choſen Cenſor, he would never admit one Quinctius into the City Regiſter, becauſe he falſly called himſelf Tiberius Gracchus's Son: He alſo refuſed to Swear to the Law of Apuleius, becauſe it was not Authoriſed but by Force; whereupon he was baniſhed, and went to Smyrna, under the Sixth Conſulſhip of Marius, A. R. 654. but he was recalled the next year, upon the Petition of his Son, who for that reaſon was called the Pious. Salluſtius, Florus, Appian.

CÆCILIUS, (Statius) a Comick Poet, born in the Neighbourhood of Milan; he lived in the 179th year before our Saviour's Birth. Cicero accuſes him of ſpeaking very bad Latin, though Volcatius Sedigitus calls him Prince of the Comick Poets. Aulus Gellius. He was Contemporary with Ennius, and wrote ſeveral Comedies, the Fragments of ſome of which are collected by Robert Stephens.

CÆCILIUS, an Eminent Lawyer in Rome, living at the end of the Second and beginning of the Third Century. This Perſon, Minutius Felix introduces in his Dialogue, call'd Octavius. This Octavius was Minutius's Friend, and prov'd Inſtrumental in Converting the Lawyer Cæcilius: 'Tis ſaid, that this latter was afterwards a Chriſtian Prieſt, and the ſame Cæcilius mention'd in the Life of St. Cyprian, and was aſſiſting toward the Converſion of that Father, who at his Baptiſm took the Name of Cæcilius out of regard to his Inſtructor. Minut. Felix. in Oct. Pontius in Vit. S. Cypr. Baron. A. C. 211. N. 2.

CAEN upon Orne, a Town of France, and Capital of Low-Normandy, has a Preſidial, Bayliwick, Cuſtom-Houſes, and an Univerſity. It is called Cadomum in Latin. Though it was in no great Eſteem before the Thirteenth Age, it is now become a Great, Rich, and Populous Town. The River Orne runs between it and its great Suburb called Vaucelle, joined together by the Bridges of St. James and St. Peter. The Town-Houſe is built upon this laſt, with 4 great Towers belonging to it. Beſides, Caen has a fine Caſtle built upon a Height, and does not want Churches, Abbeys, Monaſteries, nor any Publick Buildings that may contribute to its Embelliſhment, and round it are pleaſant Walks and Fountains. Henry II. eſtabliſhed a Mint-Chamber in it in 1430. the Univerſity was founded about 1430. whereof the Biſhop of Bajeux is Chancellor, and the Biſhops of Lizieux and Coutances are Overſeers of the Apoſtolick Privileges; the Univerſity has 3 Colleges, which are called du Bois, du Cloutier, and of the Arts, beſides that of the Jeſuits. There is alſo an Academy, or Society of Learned Men, that was eſtabliſhed about the middle of this Age. Beſides all theſe Advantages, Caen is a Town of great Commerce, being but at 2 or 3 Leagues diſtance from the Sea, whence great Veſſels come with the Tide to the very Town upon the River Orne, which receives the Oudon at the Bridge of St. Peter; the River divides the City in two Channels, and ſerves for ſeveral Uſes; one of its Streams runs near the Place Royal; the other paſſes by the Place of St. Sauveur, where the College of du Bois is. There are many Fairs in this Town, of which, that of the Quaſimodo is the moſt famous. Caen ſhared in the Troubles of the Civil Wars. The Inhabitants boaſt of their Loyalty, and pretend, that it's for this Reaſon they are allow'd Three Flower-de-Luces in their Arms. 'Tis believed, that the Second Council, convened by Morillus Archbiſhop of Roan in 1063. was held at Caen in the preſence of William the Conqueror; which Prince was buried there. Du Cheſne. Thuan.

CAERLEON, by the Romans called Iſca Silurum, is a Market Town of Usk Hundred, in the South of Monmouthſhire, ſituate on the River Usk. In the time of the Romans here lay the Legion called Iſca, to keep the Silures in awe; the Roman Coins, and remains of Theatres, Aqueducts, Hot-Houſes, &c. ſufficiently evidence its former Antiquity. In the firſt Planting of the Goſpel in King Lucius's time, this was one of the Three Archbiſhops Sees in Britain, the other Two being London and York; but Arthur, King of the Britains, tranſlated the See hence, farther off from the Saxon Fury, to a Place called Menew, afterwards St. Davids, in memory of David the Archbiſhop, who ſo tranſlated it. In the Reign of Henry II. this City was deſolate; but ſince it has made ſhift to recover it ſelf to ſome degree, being now a pretty large Town, and the Houſes thereof for the moſt part built of Stone. It ſtands Nine miles Eaſt from Landaff, 20 from Brecknock South Eaſt, and 62 from Hereford South Weſt.

CAERPHILLY, a Market Town in the County of Glamorgan, in Wales, Capital of its Hundred, the Eaſt of Pembroke; has a Noble Caſtle in it, from London 122 miles.

CAERWIT, a Market Town in Flintſhire in Coleſhul Hundred, from London 155 miles.

CAFFA, a Town in Little Tartary, upon the Coaſt of the Black Sea, near the Boſphorus Cimmerianus, now called the Streights of Caffa, from this Town. The Genoeſes became Maſters of it in the Thirteenth Century, in the time of the Holy War, and Decline of the Eaſtern Empire; but it was taken from them in 1475 by Mahomet II. and is ever ſince ſtrongly Garriſoned by the Turks. There are two Forts in this City, whereof one commands all the Neighbouring Places, and is the Reſidence of the Baſhaws; the other is the leſſer of the two, but is well furniſhed with Artillery. They count 4000 Houſes in Caffa, whereof 3200 belong to Turks and Tartars, and the other 800 to Grecians and Armenians. There are no Stone Buildings, except Eight old Churches, which were built by the Genoeſes; The ordinary Houſes are of Earth and Mortar. It has good Air, but their Water is naught, and there grows but little Fruit about it; but as for other Proviſions, it's thought it does not yield to any Town in the World, either for Goodneſs or Cheapneſs; very good Mutton coſts but the third part of a Penny a Pound, and other Meat, Fowls and Bread, are proportionably Cheap, or rather Cheaper. But freſh Fiſh is very ſcarce, for they can get but little ones about the Town, and that but in Spring and Autumn neither. All the Turks and Tartars wear little Caps lined with Sheep-Skins; and becauſe moſt part of the Chriſtians in Aſia were Caps, thoſe of Caffa are obliged to ſow a little piece of Cloth to theirs (as the Jews do to their Cloaks in Germany) to diſtinguiſh them from the Mahometans. The Road of Caffa is very convenient and ſafe, and the Town has the greateſt Commerce of any Port on the Black Sea; The greateſt conſiſt in Salt Fiſh, and Caviar, that is brought from the Sea of Zabache, and ſent into Europe, and to the Indies. It's ſaid, that there are Fiſh taken in that Sea which weigh 8 or 900 Pound a-piece, and whereof one fills 3 or 4 Ferkins of Caviar. The Reaſon the Country People give for the great Number of theſe prodigious Fiſhes, is, that the Water is fat and muddy, and but very little Salt, by reaſon of the River Don or Tanais, that diſcharges it ſelf into that Sea; this draws the Fiſh from the Black Sea, and fatneth them in a little time. They begin to Fiſh in the Month of October, and continue to April. Beſides the Ships that go for Fiſh to Caffa, there are many that tranſport Corn, Butter, and Salt, thence to Conſtantinople, and other Places: Its Butter is the beſt of all Turky. The Venetians, after much Coſt, and many Endeavours, got Leave to Trade here in 1672. but the Maſter of the Cuſtoms of Conſtantinople, repreſenting to the great Viſier the many Inconveniences that this would occaſion, made him revoke the Licence; he inſiſted much upon this, That it would open the Chriſtians a new way of holding Correſpondence with thoſe that lived about this Sea already, and were uneaſie under the Government. Beſides, That it would ruine a great number of their own Subjects, for that the Venetians would ingroſs all the Trade unto themſelves, becauſe all People would think it more ſafe to put their Goods aboard them than any others, &c. Chardin in Voyage de Perſe in 1673.

CAFFRARIA, or the Coaſts of Cafres, a Country to the South of Africa, which has the Indian Sea to the Eaſt, the Æthiopian to the Weſt, and the Southern Ocean to the South, and the Kingdoms of Mataman and of Monomotapa, with the Coaſt of Zanguebar, and the Mountains of the Moon, to the North. It is a Country inhabited by divers ſorts of People, who have their particular Governours. The Chief of thoſe that were diſcovered are the Goringhaconas, the Gorachouquas, and the Goringhaiquas, who all live about the Cape of Good Hope, in the Neighbourhood of the Hollanders Fort. There are beſides the Cachoqueas, the Cariguriquas, the Hoſaas, the Chainoaquas, the Cobonas, the Sonquas, the Namaquas, the Heuſaquas, the Brigoudis, and the Hancumquas. Travellers give us the following Account of theſe People. The Goringhaconas, whom the Hollanders call Watermen, are four or five Families of Cafres, which are about 50 in Number, under one Commander. The Garachouquas, Sirnamed Tabaco-Thieves, are 4 or 500 Men able to carry Arms, who alſo have their Captain. The Goringhaiquas, and People of the Cape, becauſe they aſcribe to themſelves the Property of the Cape of Good Hope, can make up 4 or 500 good Soldiers, and have their King. The Cochoqueas or Soldanhars, are 4 or 500 Families, who inhabit 15 or 16 Villages in the Valleys of Saldanha-Bay, and are a ſort of Herdſmen, who, with the reſt ſpoken of before, live towards the Cape of Good Hope. Theſe who follow, are farther off the Coaſts. The Chainoaquas live about 3 Months Journey from the Cape, their Prince wears a Leopard's Skin, and all his Body ſhines with Greaſe, according to the Cuſtom of that Country. The Gobonas live beyond them, and are Anthropophaques, People that roaſt alive all them they can catch, without ſparing the Cafres themſelves: They are the blackeſt of the Negroes, and wear their Hair very long. The Sonquas inhabit the higheſt Mountains, and live of Veniſon, and of a Root that ſerves them for Bread: They have wild Horſes and Aſſes in their Country, that have ſeveral lively and handſome Spots of different Colours. In 1662. the Sonquas brought one of theſe Skins, and ſold it to the Hollanders at the Cape of Good Hope for Tabaco. The latter ſtuffed it with Straw, and hung it in the Caſtle-Hall as a thing worthy to be ſeen by Strangers. The Cafres make a Trade of Stealing, and look upon all the Cattle they can light on, to be good Prize. Their Apparel are Buffle-Skins, ſow'd together in form of a Cloak, and Women carry Umbrella's made of Oſtritch Feathers, which they wear round their Heads. The Namaquas keep 150, and ſometimes 200 Leagues from the Cape of Good Hope; they are of good Stature, wear Beaſts Skins, deck'd with ſome Grains of the Glaſs of Cambaye, which they buy of the Portugueſes for Sheep and Goats, for they go often as far as Monomotapa; Men wear Plates of Ivory before their Bellies, and Women cover that part with a rich Skin, and wear a Paraſol about their Heads, as the Sonquas do, and have all the reſt of their Bodies naked. Theſe Cafres all obey one King, and when they received the Hollanders in 1661. a Company of Muſicians were ſent to meet them, who had each a Reed, making a Noiſe that reſembled a Trumpet-Marine. The King Treated the Hollanders with Milk and Mutton, and they preſented him with Brandy, Tabaco, Coral, Grains, and ſome Pieces of Braſs. The Heuſaquas live very far off, to the Northweſt of the Cape. None has yet been in their Country, nor ſeen any of the Natives, excepting ſome that came upon the Coaſts with the Prince of the Chainouquas to Traffick in Cattle. They are Shepherds and Herdſmen, as the other Cafres, and beſides are given ſomewhat to Agriculture; amongſt other things, they ſet a kind of Root call'd Dacha, which infuſed in Water, renders the Liquor ſo ſtrong, that it makes People as Drunk as the ſtrongeſt Wine could: They have Nets and Snares to catch Lyons, which they Tame and make as Docile as Dogs, and bring them up to faſten upon, and fight their Enemies when they have occaſion to come to a Battel. The Brigoudis have never yet been ſeen by Travellers, but are ſaid to be very rich in Cattle. The Hancumquas live near the Heuſaquas, but People have had no Dealing with them yet. Moſt part of the Cafres are Tawny and Olive-coloured, have flat Noſes, thick Lips, wild and frightful Looks; They that Trade with the Hollanders begin to be Civilized, the reſt are very Savage, and live in deep Ignorance; their Arms are Bows and Arrows, with a Zagaye or a Spear. They eat nothing but Roots boyl'd in Water, or burn'd upon Coals, and the Fleſh of their worſt Cattle, which they never kill if they be not old or ſick; they alſo feed upon the dead Fiſh they find on the Shoar; they put a great Value upon Sea-Dogs, which they kill with their Staffs on the Coaſts, whither they come in great Shoals; they alſo hunt Elephants, Unicorns, Elks, Tygers, Lions, Buffles, and other Wild Beaſts. They live to 100 or 120 years; when they die, they are buried ſitting, and all naked, and uſe this Ceremony, That all who are a Kin to the Dead Perſon muſt cut off the Little Fingers of the Left Hand, to put them into the Grave with him; for which Reaſon they do not love to ſee any of their Kindred die. Their Houſes are Tents made of the Branches of Trees, and covered with Mats made of Ruſhes, and ſome of theſe Huts are ſo big, that a Family of 30 Perſons may live in them. All they that live about the Cape ſpeak one Language, which is ſo confuſed, that their Words reſemble more the Sound of Bells than articulate Expreſſions: And though Strangers cannot learn this Language, they make a ſhift to learn theirs, for there are many of them that ſpeak Dutch pretty well, and ſo plain, that they can be underſtood; They ſet no great Value upon Linen or Woollen Cloath, nor upon Looking-Glaſſes or Bells, much eſteemed by other Blacks; but they eſteem Iron, Braſs, Copper, Axes, Knives, and ſuch other Inſtruments, and are great Lovers of Coral, Tabaco, and Brandy. They willingly give a Cow for a piece of fine Braſs twice as broad as the Palm of their Hand, and for a piece of Tabaco. As for Religion, they own a Sovereign Being, which they call Humme; but they ſeldom worſhip him, if it be not when he ſends them fair Weather, and complain of him when either the Rain, Heat, or Cold incommode them; they alſo adore the Moon when it begins to appear, and ſpend the Night in Dancing and Singing. Ladolf believes that theſe People are called Cafres from the Arabick Cafres, and the Plural Cafiruna, which is a Name the Arabians give all them who deny that there is but one God. Tavernier, Part 2. p. 204. ſaith, Thoſe who live about the Cape of Good Hope, were the moſt hideous and brutiſh People he ever ſaw in all his Travels; their Language was ſcarce Articulate: The beſt were Cloathed with Skins of Beaſts; the reſt had only a naſty Rag to hide their Nakedneſs; the Mother cuts out the Right Stone of every Male as ſoon as it is born. They know nothing of Gold or Silver, God or Religion: Neither Men nor Women are aſhamed to ſhew their Nakedneſs, for indeed they are but a ſort of Humane Beaſts; yet after all, they have ſome Knowledge in Simples, and cured ſeveral Dutchmen of deſperate old Sores with Herbs. They ſell their Cattle for Aquavitæ, Tabaco, Cryſtal, and Agat-Beads, and old Iron. In all this he exactly agrees with Mr. Herbert. Dapper Deſcript. Afric.

CAGAN, or Caran, a Name that is thought to have been common to the Kings of the Huns, one of whom, about the end of the Sixth Century, entered the Territories of Sigebert King of Auſtraſia, with a potent Army, and was beaten back the firſt time; but coming two years afterwards, in 571. and, as it's ſaid, making uſe of Charms and Witchcraft inſtead of Arms, he diſpirited the French ſo that they could not defend themſelves. Sigebert, to deliver himſelf from this Extremity, was forced to give them Money, and ſupply them with the Proviſions they ſtood in want of. Gregory of Tours.

CAGANUS, King of the Avares, in the European Scythia, who having killed Giſulphus, Duke of the Lombards in Italy, beſieged Friuli in 612 with a very numerous Army; being ſeen by Romilda, Giſulfus's Wife, as he was viewing his Troops in the Camp, ſhe became ſo enamoured with this young Prince's Beauty, that ſhe ſent him word ſhe would deliver him the Town if he would promiſe to Marry her. He accepted the Offer, and took her to Wife for a Day, but on the next, delivered her to Ten young Soldiers to ſatisfie her immoderate Luſt; after which he cauſed her to be impaled; nor was he ſatisfied with this inhumane Action, but made all the People come out of the Town, and burned it, with all the Riches that the Lombard Princes had heaped up there a long time before, thinking that a Place of great Safety. Sabelli, Lib. 5.

CAGLI, or Caglio, Cale, Calle and Callium, a Town in the Dutchy of Urbino in Italy, belonging to the Pope, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Urbin. It was called the City of St. Angelo for a time, and is ſituate at the foot of the Mountains, towards the Confluence of the Rivers Cantiano and Boaſi, between Urbino and Eugubeo.

CAGLIARI, Caglier, or Cailleri, in Latin Calaris, Capital of the Iſland of Sardinia, an Archbiſhop's See, and Seat of the Vice-Roy, is a pretty good Sea Port, and divided into Three different Boroughs, beſides its Commerce, which makes it conſiderable; there are many of the Nobility of the Iſland that live in it. It gives its Name to a neighbouring Promontory, called Capo Cagliari. It has particular Privileges, as having been a Metropolitan See for a long time, it being recorded that the famous Lucifer was Prelate of it in the Reigns of Conſtantine the Great, and of Conſtantine the Young; for there is a Book Printed in 1639 at Cagliari, Intitled, Defenſio, Sanctitatis, B. Luciferi nec non Primatus Archiepiſcopi Calaritani. It was firſt built by the Carthaginians, and ruined by Gracchus. It is ſtrong by Nature, being ſeated on the Top of an Hill, and hath under it a ſpacious and goodly Haven, much frequented by Merchant-Ships. It has a beautiful Cathedral, and is exempted from the Juriſdiction of the Vice-Roy, being governed more immediately by its own Common-Council.

CAGNATI, (Marſilio) an Eminent Phyſician of Verona, living in the beginning of the Seventeenth Century. He underſtood the Belles Lettres and Philoſophy no leſs than the Buſineſs of his own Profeſſion. His Works are, De Sanitate tuenda, Lib. II. Opuſcula varia, &c. Janus Nicius Erythræus, Pin. I. Imag. Illuſt. c. 52. Vander Linden, De Script. Medic.

CAGNOLI, (Jerome) an Eminent Lawyer of Verceil. He Profeſs'd the Law a great while at Turin, afterwards at Padua and Venice, and died in the year 1551. His Works are, Variæ Legum Enarrationes. De Vita & Regimine boni Principis, &c. Thomaſin in Elog.

CAHIER, (Peter Victor Palma) he was a Doctor in Divinity, and quitted the French Proteſtant Communion, for that of Rome. He died at the College of Navarre in 1610. He wrote the Hiſtory of what occurr'd, for the firſt Seven years, after the Peace of Vervins, which was made in 1598. He wrote likewiſe Two other Books, the one of 'em call'd, Conſilium Pium de componendo Religionis Deſidio; and the other, Remede aux diſſolutions publiques, preſented to the Parliament. J. De Toulouſe, Antiq. Abbat. S. Victor. Monſieur Bayle calls this Cahier, Cayet. Vid.

CAHORS upon the Lot, a Town of France, Capital of the Province of Querci, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Bourges, with an Univerſity. It is the Divona Cadureorum of the Ancients, which the Authors ſince the German Empire call Cadurcum. It is ſituated in a Peninſula, formed by the River Lot, and raiſed on one ſide upon a ſteep Rock, where there was formerly a Cittadel. This is an ancient, great and populous Town, the Birth-place of James of Oſſat, who was Pope under the Name of John XXII. and founded the Univerſity of Cahors in 1331. Beſides this Univerſity, there is a College in Cahors which belongs to the Jeſuits. The Biſhop hereof takes the Title of Count of Cahors, and has, as ſome ſay, Privilege to officiate with his Boots and Spurs on. Some Authors take Cahors for Uxellodunum, which was the laſt Town of the Gauls that reſiſted Cæſar; but there is but little likelihood of the Truth of this, though it is certain that it was a Place in Querci that held out the laſt againſt that General. The River Lot is very ſerviceable to the Town, which has Three Stone Bridges upon it. This Place ſuffered much in the laſt Civil Wars, being then very ſtrong, both by its Situation, and by a ſtrong Caſtle built upon a Rock, which is now demoliſhed. Gregory of Tours, St. Marthe.

CAJANIA, or Bothnia Orientalis, a Province of Suedeland in Finland, between the Gulph of Bothnia and Laponia: Its chief Borough is Caſaneburg, which has a Fortreſs near the Lake of Oulo. See Bothnia.

CAJAPHAS, a Town of Phœnicia, ſituated by the Sea ſide, at the Foot of Mount Carmel. It's thought to be the Porphyreum of which Polybius and Stephanus of Bizantium ſpeaks. It was a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Tyre, and Reſidence of many Powerful Lords, when the Chriſtians were Maſters of the Holy Land.

CAIAPHAS, High Prieſt of the Jews, he ſucceeded to Simon, Son of Canuth, in the Nineteenth year after Chriſt's Birth, whom he condemned to Death, according to the Evangeliſts, but was himſelf put out of his Place by the Emperor Vitellius, after he had been in it about 17 years; This Diſgrace afflicted him ſo ſenſibly, that he made himſelf away through Deſpair, according to what is mentioned in the Conſtitutions of St. Clement. Nicephorus ſays the ſame of Annas. Joſeph. lib. 18. Ant. cap. 2. St. Clement in Conſt. lib. 8. c. 2.

CAJAZZO, and Gajazzo, Calatia, a Town of Italy, in the Kingdom of Naples, in the Terra di Lavoro, with an Archbiſhoprick depending on Capoua, ſituated near the River Volturnus, between Capoua, Theleſe, and Caluy. Cajazzo is of no great Note now, but is ancient, for Cicero, Cæſar, &c. make mention of it.

CAJENNE, or the Cajenne, is an Iſland in Southern America in Guiana, about 100 Leagues from the River of the Amazons. It receives its Name from the River Cayenne, which is Southward of it. This River ſprings in the Mountains near the Lake of Parime, runs through the Country of the Galibis, and is 100 Leagues long; The Iſland which it environs, is 18 Leagues in Circuit, and is good and fertile; The French firſt eſtabliſhed themſelves in it in 1625. and built the Fort of Ceperou, but have been often forced to quit it, yet returned thither again, as in 1640, in 1652 and 1654. and were conſtrained to leave it for want of Succour. The Hollanders ſetled there in 1656. and kept there until 1664. when they were beat out by Mr. Tracy, and Mr. De la Barre. They had their Revenge, and drove the French out in 1676. but were themſelves beat out in 1677 by the Vice-Admiral d'Eſtrees. The Soil of this and the Continent is very pleaſant, and a Champagne Country, with little Wood in it. The Inhabitants were Caribbes, great Friends to the Engliſh then, becauſe driven by the Spaniards from Oronoque. The Natives are generally a Lazy and Vagabond People, few in Number, and often change their Abode. They live on Fiſh, have many Wives, and obey their Petty Kings as long as they pleaſe. They puniſh with Death nothing but Murther and Adultery. Laet. P. 640.

CAJETAN, Cardinal. See Boniface VIII. and Vio.

CAIFUNG, the Capital formerly of the Province of Honan in China, ſituated in a Bottom to the South of the River of Huang, which is but a League and a half from it; and becauſe this River was much higher than the Town, there was a great Bank made to ſtop it, and to hinder its overflowing the Country. When the Town was beſieged in 1642 by the Uſurper Lyncungh, the Inhabitants deſigning to drown his Army, opened the Damme, which had that effect, that it made the Enemy retire to the neighbouring Hills; but the Water taking its Courſe towards the Town, overthrew all the Houſes, and drowned above 300000 Inhabitants, and turned the City into a Lake, which was formerly the Reſidence of great Emperors. Embaſſie of the Hollanders to Japan.

CAIMACAN, in the Ottoman Empire, is the Name of the Governor of Conſtantinople, who is as a Lieutenant to the Grand Viſier; but beſides him, there is another, who always attends the Sultan. When there happens any Difference between the Soldiers or Ambaſſadors, the Caimacan immediately acquaints the Grand Viſier with it, or waits on the Grand Signior for his Orders about it; but when the Viſier is at Conſtantinople, the Caimacan has no Power.

CAIMAN, an Iſland of the Northern America, in the Gulph of Mexico, famous for the Fiſhery of Tortoiſes. It is called great Caiman, to diſtinguiſh it from another of the ſame Name, and in the ſame Gulph; which belongs to the Engliſh, and is called Caiman Pequegna, or Little Caiman.

CAIMI, (Euſebius) Biſhop of Cita-Nova, living in the Seventeenth Century. He was a Prelate of great Learning and Worth, and died in 1640. He wrote theſe following Manuſcripts, Reſponſorum Volumima II. Juris Miſcellania, &c. Thomaſin in Vit. Illuſt. Viror.

CAIMI, or Caimo, (Pompei) an Eminent Phyſician, Brother to the Biſhop Euſebius, above-mentioned. He was a Domeſtick of Cardinal De Montalto at Rome; afterwards the Senate of Venice got him to Padua, where he Profeſs'd in that Faculty. His Works are, De innato Calido in Three Books. De Febrium Putridarum Indicationibus. De Nobilitate. Del ingegno Humano, &c. Thomaſin in Vit. Illuſt. Viror. Janus Nicius Erythræus, Pinac. I. Imag. Illuſt.

CAIN, whoſe Name ſignifies Acquiſition, Eldeſt Son of Adam and Eve; he was the firſt that ſet Bounds to diſtinguiſh Inheritances, and built a City which he call'd Enoch, from his Eldeſt Son's Name; he ſurrounded it with Walls, and Peopled it with Inhabitants. He murthered his Brother Abel, and the ancient Tradition of the Hebrews has very ſingular things concerning his own Death; for it aſſerts he was kill'd by Lamech, who ſeeing the Leaves of a Buſh ſtir, under which Cain lay, he ſhot an Arrow into it, and killed him, Anno Mundi 688. according to Torniel and Salian, though others think it was in 701. Joſephus, Torniel, Salian.

CAINAN the Ancient, Son of Enos, was born Anno Mundi 326. his Father being 90 years old. Cainan begot Mahalaleel at 70 years of Age, Anno Mundi 396. and died at the Age of 910. in the 1235 of the World. Salian, Torniel.

CAINAN the Young, Son of Arphaxad, was born An. Mundi 1694. his Father being then 35 years of Age; his Son Salah was born in 1724. and died Anno Mundi 2053. aged 360 years. It's worth taking notice of, that the Name of this Second Cainan is neither found in the Hebrew Original of the Books of Geneſis and Deuteronomy, nor in the Vulgar Chaldaick Paraphraſe, Joſephus, Philo, Theophilus of Antioch, Julius Africanus, nor in St. Epiphanius; but only in the Tranſlation of the Septuagint, and in the Genealogy of St. Luke. Auguſtin, Cajetan, Janſenius, Genebrard.

CAINITES, or Cainians, Hereticks, a Sect of the Gnoſticks of the Second Century; they were called after Cain's Name, who, they ſaid, was formed by a Celeſtial and Almighty Power, and that Abel was made but by a weak one. They held, that the way to be ſaved, was to make tryal of all manner of things, and ſatisfie their Luſt with all wicked Actions; They fancy'd a great number of Angels, to which they gave barbarous Names, attributing to each of them a particular Sin; ſo that when they were about any wicked Action, they invoked the Angel whom they fancy'd to preſide over it. They compoſed a Book, Intituled, St. Paul's Aſcenſion to Heaven, which they filled with Blaſphemies and Execrable Impieties, as if they were the ſecret Words that Apoſtle had heard in his Ecſtaſie. They had a particular Veneration for Cain, Corah, Dathan, Abiram, the Sodomites, and eſpecially for Judas, becauſe his Treachery occaſioned the Death of Jeſus Chriſt. And they made uſe of a Goſpel that bore that falſe Apoſtle's Name. Tertullian, Baronius, Auguſtin.

CAIRO, upon the Nile, a Town of Africa, Capital of Ægypt; the Arabians call it Alchabir, and others Alchair: It is great, populous, and of good Commerce, but is much leſſened, and very different from what it was when the Souldans of Ægypt reſided in it. Now it belongs to the Turks, ever ſince Selim took it in 1517 from the Mammelucs, who had been Maſters of it about 370 years before. Marmol believes that Cairo was firſt built by a Runagade Sclavonian, that it had 6000 well built Houſes, and ſeveral magnificent Palaces that faced the River, and a Moſque of an admirable Structure; and adds, that the Town of Memphis, where the Pharaoh's reſided, and is now deſtroyed, ſtood on the Nile, ſome Leagues from Cairo, where its Ruines are to be ſeen to this day. Some Authors will have this Cairo to be the Babylon of the Ancients in Egypt; but it's a Miſtake, for the Ruines of that are yet to be ſeen at ſome Leagues diſtance from Cairo. Some others divide this Town into four Parts, viz. Boulac, the Old Cairo, New Cairo, and Caraſat, which are at a pretty diſtance from one another. They ſay that theſe four, together with their Suburbs, are 12 Leagues in length, 7 or 8 broad, and have a Circuit of 25. and that the Streets of all the four, with them of the Suburbs, make 16 or 18000. That there are 6000 publick Moſques, beſides 20000 particular ones, with 200000 Houſes, ſeveral Squares, Bazars, and Market-places. But they that examine things without prevention, and have not a mind to exaggerate, own that Cairo, conſidered without its Suburbs, and the Buildings that are all round it, is not bigger than Paris or London, and that it has nothing ſo very extraordinary in it; that the Streets are very narrow, and finally, that the Town is much fallen from what it was, which was occaſioned by the Decay of Trade there; for ſince the Voyages and Navigations of the Indies, we receive thence the Merchandizes and Proviſions we formerly had from Cairo and Alexandria. Cairo has a Caſtle upon a Rock, which is a fine and very ſtrong Place; The Paintings and Ornaments that are yet left there, manifeſt the great Magnificence of the Souldans of Egypt; Its Proſpect upon the Town, the Nile, and the Country, is admirable; it receives Water from the River by an Aqueduct of 350 Arches. At Cairo People ride upon Aſſes, as in other Cities in Coaches. This Cuſtom was introduced by the Turks, to reſerve the Horſes for their own uſes. Here are ſeveral Manufactories, and amongſt other, one of curious Tapeſtry, call'd Turky-work. Travellers never neglect to viſit the Pyramids and Mummies, that are near Cairo; and Joſeph's Well and Granaries, which are in the Town; and make us believe ſtrange things of them, as well as of many other Curioſities they meet with in their Journeys. Cairo is by the Hebrew Writers called Noph. It is commonly thought one of the largeſt Cities in the World: The true Name in Arabick is Elchahira, the Imperious Miſtriſs. It containeth within the Walls 800000 Families, Noblemen, Gentlemen, and Merchants. It is ſeated on a beautiful Plain, two miles from the Nile, and is inviron'd with ſtately Walls. Beb. Zavaila, one of its Suburbs, contains 12000 Families. Beb. Elleck 3000, Bulach 4000. and Caraſa 2000; and there is another called Gemeth Tailon, of the Number of which he gives no account; ſo that the whole is about 30000 Families or Houſes. Yet ſome of theſe Suburbs ſtand a Mile or two from the City, ſo that it is not one continued Pile, as London, Weſtminſter, and Southwark are. The Inhabitants of this City are of a chearful Diſpoſition, will promiſe much, but perform little, and they have no great Inclination to Learning. Cairo, in 1566. was in Circuit 18 Miles, ſo populous, that it could receive no more, and they were then building new Houſes without. It was Inhabited by Chriſtians, Armenians, Abiſſins, Turks, Moors, Jews, Indians, Medes, Perſians, and Arabians, who Trade here. The Baſha of all Egypt reſides in it, and with a Cadie Governs it; and he hath under him 20 Sanjacks (Captains) 3000 Janiſaries, and 4000 Horſe. The Old Cairo ſtands two Miles from it, ten Miles in Compaſs, but not half inhabited. The New Cairo payeth to the Port yearly 600000 Ducats of Gold, clear of all Charges. The Houſes without are fair, within richly hanged. It ſtands from the Nile a Mile, on a Plain, having a Caſtle on an Hill, rich, large, and finely adorned with Gardens; in Auguſt, the Nile overflowing, paſſeth through the City; the Women are Beautiful, Libidinous, and richly adorned; the Soil fertile, their Cattle fat, &c. Hackl. T. 2. P. 200. In 1586 it had 2400 Moſques, and was wonderfully Populous. There is in this City a Caſtle, in which is Pharaoh's Gynecium, or Womens Court, (as the Moors ſay) having 55 Marble Pillars of the ſame Order with thoſe of the Royal Exchange in London. They are 60 Foot high, and 14 in Compaſs. Hackl. T. 2. P. 281. The Emperor of the Turks Coins ſome Ducats in this City; in all other Places he Mints nothing but Aſpers, which are as ſmall and irregular as a Spangle. From Meſſe or Grand Cairo to Bagdad or Babylon, is 570 Leagues, or 1710 Miles, Nub. P. 107. From Grand Cairo to the Red Sea, are 90 Miles, Ib. P. 108. To the South Weſt of Cairo lies the deſolate ſmall Town of Menf or Memphis, and the famous Pyramids, and to the North of Ainſems, the Fountain of the Sun; but they are now both Country Villages, Nub. P. 98. In this Latter are the Gardens of Balſam, which now grows no where elſe on the Earth. The Nubian placeth Cairo 50 Miles South of the Diviſion of the Nile into Branches. Gabriel, Chap. 9. ſaith, The Balſam Plants were in his Time (1619.) removed to Mecca, where they thrived very much. He obſerves alſo, That the Inhabitants of Grand Cairo are very Numerous, Vile and Effeminate, Lazy and Vicious to the utmoſt degree; and, except the Soldiers and a few Merchants, that they generally ſpent their time in Basking in the warm Sun, or wandering about the Streets in great Poverty and Miſery, without any Virtue or Labour, truſting to the Clemency of the Air, and the Fertility of the Soil for a Subſiſtance. And their Maids, till 14 years of Age, go moſtly ſtark naked. Dr. Heylin ſays, That the Compaſs of Cairo is not above Eight Miles, but is full of Streets, the number ſaid to be 18000, every one fortified with a Gate at each end, which being well barr'd, made every ſeveral Street an impregnable Fortreſs, found ſo by Selymus the Firſt, when he Conquered Egypt, who ſpent three days in forcing his way through it with his numerous Army: The Private Buildings very mean, the Publick beyond Thought Magnificent, viſited every Seventh year with a dreadful Peſtilence, yet ſtill ſo populous, that it's conceiv'd to be in good Health, if there die not above 1000 a day, or 300000 within the year; adorned with many delicate Orchards, both within the City and without, full of variety of Contentments, and neighboured by a pleaſant Lake, but made more pleaſant by the Company which meet there in Boats for their mutual Solace and Delights. Marmol. Thevenot. Sanſon. &c. Some Eccleſiaſticks and Jeſuits held a Council at Cairo in 1582. by the Order of Pope Gregory XIII. The Deſign of this Council was to diſcover the Errors of Neſtorius and Dioſcorus to the Cophti, and to bring them back to the Communion of the Church. The Patriarch of the Cophti aſſiſted at this Council, with ſeveral Abbots and other Conſiderable Perſons of his Communion; They were ſo far convinc'd, as to own Two Natures in Jeſus Chriſt, and abjure their Error by Word of Mouth; but the Patriarch dying ſoon after, his Pretended Succeſſor prevented the Subſcribing it. Poſſevin. T. II. Appar. Spondan. A. C. 1582.

CAIROAN, or Caruan, which the Arabians call Cairauan, a Town in the Kingdom of Tunis, in Africa, towards the Gulph of Capes. It was built in 652, by Occuba, General to Odman, Third Calife of Syria, and ſo is the firſt Town the Mahometans built in Africa. The Moſque built by Occuba is very magnificent, wherein are the Tombs of the Kings of Tunis. Here was formerly an Academy, compoſed of ſeveral Learned and Able Men, whither People reſorted out of all Parts of Africa. All the Country about it is Sandy, and bears neither Corn nor Fruit, nor is there any Water, but what is kept in Ciſterns, for they have neither Springs, Wells, nor Rivers. When the Emperor Charles V. drove Barbaroſſa out of Tunis in 1535. the Inhabitants of Cairoan choſe the Chief Alfaqui, or Doctor of the great Moſque for their King, who was ſurpriz'd, and kill'd by Bragut. This laſt made himſelf Maſter of the Town, which is ſtill in the Hands of the Turks. It was founded by Hucba, General of the Wandering Arabs under Hutmen, 361 Miles from the Mediterranean, and from Tunis to the Eaſt 100, and was intended only for a Harbour for that Nation, to ſtore up the Spoils of Africa: To that end he ſurrounded it with impregnable Walls. This was in the year of the Hegyra 400. A. C. 991. when this General led 80000 Men to the Conqueſt of Africa; after which, he makes theſe Arabs to Enter, and Conquer Spain. It is ſeated in a Sandy Plain, which beareth neither Corn nor Trees, but has Plenty of Water from Mount Gueſlet, 12 Miles from it. For a great while it was the Seat of the Arabian Learning in Africa. In after-times it was Sacked, and could never recover its ancient Splendor, being now inhabited only by Tanners, and Subject to the Kings of Tunis. Marmol of Africa.

CAITHNESSE, a County in the North of Scotland, abounding with Paſturage, and pierced in many Places with Arms of the Sea. It was formerly the Reſidence of the ancient Catti, now the Clanchattan, or Mac-Pherſons, whence it took Name. The Trade of this Country conſiſts moſt in Grazing and Fiſhing. It gives the Title of Earl to one of the Families of Sinclair, or St. Clare; the firſt of the Name advanced to that Dignity, having Married the Heireſs, and being Pantler to the King of Scotland.

CAIUS and Lucius, Roman Princes, Sons of Agrippa and Julia, Daughter of Auguſtus, and adopted by this Emperor. As ſoon as they began to appear in the World, the Romans offered them a Conſulſhip; but they being then but 15 years old, Auguſtus allowed them only the Quality of Nominal Conſuls. The Roman Knights proclaimed them Principes Juventutis, that is, Princes of the Equeſtrian Order. Both died as they began to taſte of the Happineſs of their Fortune.

St. CAIUS, or Gaius, Pope, a Sclavonian by Nation, and Kinſman to the Emperor Diocleſian. He was choſen after Eutychian in 283. The Care he took to hearten ſome Martyrs as they were Suffering, eſpecially his Niece Suſannah, Daughter of Gabina, whom Diocleſian would fain perſuade to marry Maximinus Galerius, his Nephew and Aſſociate in the Empire. This Care, I ſay, occaſioned Caius's own Martyrdom, which hapned in 296. after he had been Pope 12 years and 5 days. Platina adds, That this Caius ſtated the ſeveral Orders in the Church, by which, as by certain Degrees, the Clergy were to riſe to the Epiſcopal Dignity; theſe were the Door-keeper, the Reader, the Exorciſt, the Acolythus, the Subdeacon, the Deacon, and the Presbyter. He ordained likewiſe that no Laick ſhould commence a Suit of Law againſt a Clergy-man; and that no Pagan or Heretick ſhould have Power to accuſe a Chriſtian.

CAIUS, or Gaius, Patriarch of Jeruſalem, Son to Caius Rufus, from whom the Family of Auguſtus ſprung, according to Suetonius. We know no more of him, but that he was a Learned Man; that he lived in the Second Century, about the year 160. that he was choſen after Symmachus, and was ſucceeded by Julian II. Euſebius, Baronius.

CAIUS, or Gaius, a Prieſt of the Church of Rome, a very Learned Man. He lived in the third Age, and diſputed in publick againſt Proclus, a famous Diſciple of Montanus, and confuted him ſo that he had not a Word to Anſwer for himſelf. Pope Zephirin hereupon, in 215. Excommunicated all thoſe that ſhould follow Montanus. This Diſpute was Publiſhed by Caius, and was ſeen by Euſebius, and in his Opinion contained unanſwerable Arguments againſt the Montaniſts, which is all we know of it; for this Piece, with many other of the Primitive Ages, is loſt. Euſeb. Photius, Baro.

CAIUS or Kayes, (John) a famous Phyſician born at Norwich, and brought up in the Univerſities of Cambridge and Padua. Liv'd to the latter end of the 16th Century. He Tranſlated good part of Galen and Celſus into Latin, and made large Remarks upon thoſe Authors: At his Death he gave his Eſtate for the building a New College to Gonvil-Hall in Cambridge, and aſſign'd a perpetual Maintenance for 23 Students. This Houſe is now called Gonvill and Kayes Colledge, where the Founder has a Monument with this Inſcription, Fui Caius. Cambden Eliz. p.200.

CAKET, a Kingdom of Georgia towards Mount Caucaſus, is properly the Antient Iberia: It was conquered by the King of Perſia, and its Prince has now only the Title of Viceroy. All the Towns of this Country are ruined, except one called alſo Caket: It's thought that it was the Northern People of Mount Caucaſus, i. e. the Huns, and the Alans, that laid this Country waſte. Chardin.

CALABER, (Quintus) Compoſed a Greek Poem, Entituled, The Paralipomena of Homer, becauſe it is the Continuation and Accompliſhment of the Iliads. This Author is generally known under the Name of Calaber, becauſe this Work of his was found in the Ancient Monaſtery of St. Nicolas in Calabria; but it ſeems he ſhould be rather called Quintus Smyrnæus, ſince he ſays of himſelf, That he was employed at Smyrna to Feed the illuſtrious Flock of the Muſes. He is a very pleaſant and poliſhed Poet, who imitated Muſæus, and hardly yields to Homer neither in Invention or Style. Voſſius de Poet. Græc.

CALABRIA, a Province of Italy in the Kingdom of Naples, with the Title of a Dutchy. It is very different from what it was formerly, and is leſs Spacious than it was in the time of the Meſſapians, deſcended from one Meſſapus, who gave his Name to the Country; which afterwards took that of the Calabrians brought from Great Greece. That part of the Country near the Gulf of Tarentum, was Inhabited by the Salentins, and in after times the Name of Puglia was made uſe of to ſignifie the Country that was between the Ferentins and Calabria, as Cluvier Remarks; ſo that in them days Calabria contained all that end of Italy between the Adriatick and the Mediterranean Sea, viz. the Land of Otranto, of Barry, the Baſilicata, and all that which is about the Gulf of Tarentum. Now the Calabria comprehends the Country of the Brutians, and a Part of Great Greece, called ſo becauſe a great many Greeks Eſtabliſhed themſelves there. It lies moſt Southward of any place in Italy, and is of Sicily ſide, from which it is ſeparated by a little Channel: It has the Gulf of Tarentum and the Ionian Sea to the Eaſt and South, and the Tuſcan to the Weſt, and the Baſilicata to the North. It is divided into Higher and Lower; In the Higher is the Iſthmus, ſo renowned in Hiſtory for the Wall that Licinius Craſſus built againſt Spartacus, Chief of the Rebellious Slaves, which was in the year 681 of Rome, and 74 before the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt: Coſenza is the Capital of this Part of Calabria; the other Towns are Roſſano, an Archbiſhop's See, Caſſano, St. Marco, Biſignano, and ſeveral others which are Biſhops Sees; and the Town of the Sybarites, ſo Famous in Ancient Writing, was in this part of Calabria. The Low Calabria has St. Severina and Reggio, both Archbiſhop's Sees; Cotrone, Iſola, Belcaſtro, Taverna, Nicaſtro, with ſeveral other Biſhops Sees; the Principalities of Maida, Satriona, Mileto, Roccella, Seiglio, Silla, and St. Agatha, with Semnaria, where the French defeated Ferdinand of Arragon, in 1496. and Gioia, where the French themſelves were beaten in 1503. Calabria is not equally Fertile in all its Parts; for there are ſome that are barren, as others are of an extraordinary good Soil. Its Situation renders it very important. It was under the Roman Yoak, and afterwards Subject to the Emperors of Conſtantinople, until the Saracens made themſelves Maſters of it in 827. and made Incurſions into the reſt of Italy, until the Famous Robert Guichard, a Norman, beat them out of it in the Eleventh Age. He was made Duke of Apuleia and Calabria in 1059. and died in 1085. He had a Brother that ſettled in Sicily. Robert his ſecond Son had Calabria, which he left to William, who left it to Robert II. his Kinſman, who was King of Naples and Sicily, Famous for his Courage and Conqueſts. He died in 1152. with the Honour of having ſubdued Apuleia, Calabria, Sicily, and Part of Africa, which is ſignified by this Verſe that he got Engraven on the Blade of his Sword, Apulus & Calaber, Siculus, mihi ſervit & Afer.

Since that time Calabria was made a Part of the Kingdom of Naples, and the Sons of the Kings of that Kingdom bore the Title of the Dukes of Calabria, as Charles, Son to King Robert; John of Anjou, Son of K. Renatus; Nicholas, Son to the ſame John, &c. Calabria is ſubject to Terrible Earthquakes, as thoſe it had from 1638. to 1641. whereof there is a particular Relation under this Title, Hiſtorico racconto Dei Terremoti della Calabria del Anno 1638. ad 1641. Dal Agalio de ſomma. Pliny, Ptolemy.

CALAHORRA, a Town of Spain in Old Caſtile, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Tarragon and Burgos. It is ſituated upon the Ebro, which receiveth there the River of Cidacos de Caſtiglia. The Biſhoprick of Calzade, or that of St. Domingo of Calzade, was united to that of Calahorra in 1236. Quintilian and Prudentius were both of this City; the ancient Inhabitants of it ſuſtain'd a Siege againſt Pompey with ſo much obſtinacy as at laſt to kill their Wives and Children, and Salt them like Pork, and Eat them for Proviſions.

CALAIS, a Town and Sea-Port of France, in that part of Picardy which is called the Re-conquered Country, ſince it was taken from the Engliſh. Some Authors think it is the Portus Iccius of the Ancients; but Mr. Sanſon ſays, That Boulogne was that Portus Iccius. This Town, as ſeveral others, had its Name from the Country it's in, which was called Caletes, and ſome ſay, reaches from the Mouth of the Seine to that of Aa. It's aſſured that Baldwin IV. called Fairbeard, Count of Flanders, begun the Building of the Port of Calais; and that Philip Count of Boulogne, one of the Malecontents that join'd together againſt the Regency of Blanche, Mother of St. Lewis, ſurrounded it with a Wall, it being but a ſimple Borough before. Edward III. King of England, beat the French out of it in 1347. after he had lain before it Ten or Eleven Months. The Engliſh held it for 210 Years, and brag'd that they had the Key of France hung at their Girdles, until the Duke of Guiſe retook it after a Siege of Nine or Ten Days, in the beginning of 1558. Queen Mary reſented the Loſs ſo much, that it's thought ſhe died of Grief for it, ſaying not long before her Death, That if ſhe were opened they ſhould find Calais at her Heart. The Arch-Duke Albert of Auſtria, Governor of the Spaniſh Netherlands, made himſelf Maſter of this Town in 1596. but it was delivered two Years after to Henry IV. by one of the Articles of the Peace of Vervins. When the Duke of Guiſe took it, it was defended by three Baſtions, and had a Fourth towards the South, where the old Cittadel was; and ſince it has been more Regularly Fortified, and now has Nine great Royal Baſtions, beſides that of the Cittadel, and many other Works, all covered with Stone, and round it are many Forts, ſo that it is one of the ſtrongeſt Places of the Kingdom. It has a double Ditch, very large and deep, through which runs the River of Hames, and ſeveral other ſmall Rivulets that come from the Neighbouring Bogs, and diſcharge themſelves into the Ditch: There is no coming into the Town but by this Bog, and a Cauſey called Pont de Nieville, and no entrance into the Port without coming by the Fort Ruban. This Port is divided in two Parts; one whereof is called Caldegray; the other, the Biggeſt of both, is defended by Two Moles covered with Stone; part of the River runs through the Town; and of the other ſide there is a Channel which makes it very convenient for Traffick. Calais is no great Town, but is mighty Populous and well Built, the Streets are fair and ſtraight, the moſt conſiderable is that that begins at the Gate of the Lands ſide, and reaches to the Port; it paſſes through the great Square where the Town-Houſe is, and near the Palace of the Auditory and the Watch Tower. It has beſides, ſeveral fine Buildings, Magnificent Churches and Monaſteries. Calais in Latin, Caletum, gives its Name to the Channel between it and Dover, which is thought to be but ſeven Leagues over, and is called the Streight of Calais. In 1416. Sigiſmond Emperor of Germany, coming into England to Henry V. and ſeeing and conſidering well the Importance of Calais and Dover, laid two of his Fingers upon his Eyes, and ſaid, Brother, Keep thoſe Two Towns as carefully as you would your Eyes. The Duke of Guiſe (ſaith Dr. Burnet) came before this Town the Firſt of January 1558. when there was not above 500 Soldiers, and 200 Men fit to bear Arms in it, though King Philip had given the Queen notice before that the French had a Deſign againſt it. The greateſt Defence of the Town was in Newnam-Bridge Fort, a Mile from it to the Land, and in Fort Risbank, which Commanded the Haven; but the Governor not daring to weaken his Gariſon, ſent no ſupplies thither, ſo that they were taken without any Oppoſition. Then the Enemy drew the Water out of the Ditch, which was about the Town and Caſtle, and paſſing it, aſſaulted and carried the Caſtle by Storm, it being the leſs guarded becauſe thought Impregnable. The Governor tried ſeveral times to retake the Caſtle, but could not; and having loſt 200 of his beſt Men, the 7th of January he yielded the Town alſo, when it had been 210 years in the Hands of the Engliſh. Philip had offered to put Men into it, and it was refuſed by the Jealous Engliſh, who for want of Money were then not able to Man it themſelves: Thus far Burnet in that Year. In the year 1696. this Place was Bombed by the Engliſh Fleet, and received ſome Damage, but not near ſo much as was expected, or as other French Maritime Towns had before and ſince ſuſtain'd. Papyr. Miſſon. du Cheſne.

CALAIS and Zetes, Brothers, Sons of Boreas and Orithya, to whom Poets attributed Wings; they went the Voyage of Colchis with the Argonauts, and delivered Phineus, King of Paphlagonia or Bithynia, from the Harpyes that were always incommoding him, but were afterwards ſlain by Hercules. Ovid.

CALAMA, an Ancient Town of Africa, between Hippo and Conſtantinople, with a Biſhop's See, ſuffragan of Carthage: There is mention made of it very often in St. Auguſtin's Books, and eſpecially in his Second againſt the Donatiſts, and in the Second of his Retractations.

CALAMATA, a Borough of the Province of Belvedere in the Morea: It is pretty well Inhabited, though it has no Walls to ſecure it from a Surpriſe: It had a Caſtle upon a Neighbouring Hill, which was Regularly Fortified; but being taken in 1685. by General Moroſini, was Demoliſhed by his Order.

CALAMATA, a Town of Africk, in the Kingdom of Algiers, near the River Maior. Marmol. Deſc. Afr.

CALANUS, an Indian Philoſopher, who followed Alexander the Great in his Expedition to the Indies, having lived 83 years without the leaſt Sickneſs, and being at his return into Perſia taken with a Cholick, he reſolved to diſpatch himſelf: For that end he deſired the King to order a Funeral Pile, and that when he ſhould put himſelf in it he would be alſo pleaſed to Command Fire ſhould be put to it. Alexander diſſuaded him as much as poſſibly he could, but ſeeing no hopes of prevailing, he was forced to Conſent to what he deſired. But as he Lov'd this Philoſopher, ſo he Honour'd his Death with a Funeral Pomp, worthy of his own Magnificence. He drew out his Army, and ordered certain Perſons to throw very rich Perfumes upon the Pile, where Calanus placed himſelf richly Cloathed, and then lay him all along, and did not ſtir nor ſhew the leaſt ſign of Pain when the Flame came at him. It's ſaid when he was ask'd, Whether he had any thing to ſay to the King, who withdrew from this ſad Spectacle; he anſwered, No, Becauſe he expected to ſee him in a little time after at Babylon: Theſe Words ſeem'd to foretell Alexander's Death, which happen'd three Months after. A. R. 430. Quint. Curt. Arian.

CALAROGA, a ſmall Borough in Old Caſtile in Spain, in the Dioceſe of Oſma, Famous for being the Birth Place of Dominick of Guzman, Founder of the Dominican Order.

CALASIO Marius, a Franciſcan, Profeſſor of the Hebrew Tongue in Rome. He made a Concordance of the Bible, which was Printed in 1621. and conſiſts of four great Volumes in Folio; a Work much Commended by all Learned Men: For beſides the Hebrew Words of the Bible, which are in the Body of the Book, with the Latin Verſion over againſt it, there are in the Margents the Differences between the Septuagint and the Vulgar; ſo that at one View may be ſeen wherein the Three Bibles agree, and wherein they differ: Moreover, at the beginning of every Letter there is a kind of Dictionary, which gives the Signification of each Hebrew word, and is compared with the Neighbouring Languages; as the Chaldaick, Syriack, and Arabick, which is a help to underſtand the Hebrew Words. The Ground of this Hebrew Concordance was taken from Rabbin Nathan, Printed at Venice, and afterwards Augmented by Rabbi Mardochée, and Printed at Baſle. Memoir. Scavans.

CALATAJUD, Lat. Bilbilis Nova, a Town of Spain in the Kingdom of Arragon, ſituated at the Foot of a high Mountain upon the Xalon, which receives there another River called Rio Baubula, is towards the Frontiers of Caſtile, between Saragoſſa and Medina Cœli. It is a great and fine Town, built in a very Fertile Country; Has a Caſtle upon a Rock hard by it that commands all the Place. It was formerly noted for the beſt Swords in the World, and a generous Breed of Horſes. Auſonius, Nonius.

CALATRAVA, a Military Order in Spain, Inſtituted under Sanchas III. King of Caſtile, when that Prince took the ſtrong Fort Calatrava from the Moors of Andaluſia, he gave it to the Templars, who wanting Courage to defend it, returned it him again. Dom Raimond, Native of Bureva in Navarre, Abbot of the Monaſtery of St. Mary of Hytero, and of the Order of the Ciſtertians, accompanied with ſeveral Perſons of Quality and Courage, made offer to defend this Place, which the King thereupon delivered to them, and Inſtituted that Order in 1158. which increaſed ſo much under the Reign of Alphonſus King of Caſtile, that the Knights deſired they might have a great Maſter, which was conſented to, and the firſt was Dom Garcia Redon. There are now above Eighty Commanderies of theſe Knights in Spain; who at the beginning wore a White Robe and Scapulary, as the Monks of the Ciſtercian Order do; but Pope Benet XIII. diſpenced with this Garb, and Paul III. gave them leave to Marry once. Le Mire, Mariana.

CALAZOPHYLACES, or Chalaſophylaces, certain Prieſts amongſt the Græcians, whoſe Care was to divert Hail and Tempeſts, by Sacrificing a Lamb or a Chicken; but if they wanted ſuch little Animals, or if they foreſaw any Evil a coming upon them, then they cut their own Fingers with a Penknife, or pricked them with a Bodkin, to appeaſe the Anger of the Gods with their proper Blood. Gyraldus.

CALCAGNO, in Latin, Calcanius (Lawrence) born at Breſcia in Italy, in the 15th Century. He was one of the moſt Eminent Lawyers of his time. He wrote De Commendatione Studiorum. De Peccatis Mortalibus. Conſilia, &c. Trithem. de Script. Eccl. Leandr. Albert. Deſc. Ital.

CALCAR, a Town of Germany in the Dutchy of Cleves, belonging to the Elector of Brandenburg, ſituated upon the River of Meine, a League from the Rhine, and two from Cleves. It has a Caſtle, and is well Fortified; The Streets are narrow, ſo that there is nothing very conſiderable but the great Place, where the Town Houſe is.

CALCEDON, or Chalcedon, an Ancient Town in Aſia Minor, now Natolia, upon the Coaſts of the Sea of Marmora, at the Mouth of the Channel of the Black Sea. It was formerly much Renown'd; is now only a ſmall Village, there being neither the Famous Temples of the Ancient Pagans, nor the fine Churches of the Primitive Church: There is no other Church now but a part of that of St. Euphemia, which is yet ſtanding, and is that where the few Græcians that are in this Town Pray. It was in this Church that the Fourth General Council was held. As for the other Antiquities, there remain none but pieces of Tombs, and ſome Inſcriptions, with part of a curious Aqueduct. The Port is not Chain'd as formerly, to hinder Ships from coming in, which now do not frequent that Port. Chryſopolis, now called Scutari, was its Arſenal, and a Place where all Stores and Proviſions were laid up; but at laſt, the Perſians, Goths, Saracens, and Turks, have utterly ruined it. The Emperors of Conſtantinople labouring to make their City Famous, Embelliſhed it with the Spoils of Calcedonia; for the great Aqueduct, which is near Solimania, and the greateſt Part of the Moſque, is built of the Ruines of that Famous and Antient City. Grelot. Voyage de Conſtantinople.

CALCHAS, a kind of Aſtrologer, or Prophet, who went with the Græcians to the Siege of Troy. He found out that the Fleet was retained at the Port of Aulis, becauſe Diana was angry with the Græcians; ſhew'd them the Means to appeaſe her, and foretold that Troy would not be taken before the Tenth year. At his return he paſſed into Ionia, where he took ſo much to Heart, (that Mopſus told what he himſelf did not foreſee) that he died of Diſcontent. Homer, Virgil.

CALCHINIA, the only Daughter of Leucippus, King of Sicyonia in Peloponneſus; She ſucceeded her Father, and Married Meſſapus, a Sea-Captain, who had forced her; but to hide her Diſhonour, ſhe made the Sicyonians believe that it was Neptune, and not Meſſapus that had Violated her: She died, A.M. 1246.

CALCHUT, a certain Place in England, called Chalchutum in Latin: There was a Council held there by Gregory Biſhop of Oſtia, and Theophylact of Todi, Legate to Pope Adrian the Firſt, in 787. The holding of this Council, is the only account we have of this Place. See Labbè, Council, T. 7.

CALDAS de Pereira, (John) a Spaniſh Lawyer, living at the beginning of the 17th Century. There are four Volumes of his writing in the Law: Quæſtiones Forenſes, & Controverſiæ Civiles. Syntagma de Univerſo Jure Emphyteutico. Nich. Antonio Bibl. Hiſp. &c.

CALDERIN, (John) lived in the 16th Century to 1571. in which year he publiſhed a Book called, De Hæreticis, where he mentions all the Parts of the Function of an Inquiſitor. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 16.

CALDERINO, a famous Bath, 10 miles diſtant from Verona in Italy, commonly called the Bath of Verona: The Waters of it are counted very Medicinal, and many Authors have wrote of their Virtue for the curing of Diſtempers. Beyerlink, T. 1.

CALDERON, (John Alphonſus) a Spaniſh Lawyer of Note, who lived till about the year 1640. He wrote 5 or 6 large Volumes of the Rights of the King of Spain; which he was perſuaded to contract to half the bulk. They are publiſhed under the Title of, El Imperio de la Monarquia d'Eſpagna. Nich. Antonio Bibl. Hiſp.

CALDIUS, is a Name the Soldiers gave in deriſion to the Emperor Claudius; it was formed by tranſpoſing the Letters of that Word Claudius; as of Tiberius is made Biberius, of Nero, Mero, &c.

CALEB, Son of Jephunneh, was born A. M. 2506. He was choſen among thoſe of the Tribe of Judah, to go with the Deputies of the other Tribes to ſee the Land of Canaan: He made a true Report of what he ſaw there, and, with Joſhua, oppoſed them that diſcouraged the People; and had like to have been ſtoned by the others, had not GOD defended them from the Violence of thoſe Murmurers. They only of all that Multitude entred into the Land of Promiſe. The Country of Hebron fell to Caleb's ſhare, who promiſed he ſhould have his Daughter Achſaph who could take the Town of Kirjathſepher, which was performed by Othniel. Caleb died 113 years of Age, An. Mund. 2617.

CALECUT, or Calecat, Lat. Calecutium, a Town and Kingdom in the Eaſt-Indies, in the Country of Malabar, in the Peninſula, on this ſide Ganges. The Inhabitants call their King Samori, or Zamorin; that is, Sovereign Emperor, and God upon Earth; and they chooſe him out of the Race of Bramene, who built the Town of Calecut, if we believe them of the Country. The Riches of the Country conſiſts in Pepper and Jewels, which makes it be much frequented by foreign Merchants. The Portugueſe could never ſettle themſelves there, though they gain'd very great Victories about the end of the 16th Age. People meet with ſeveral Religions there; as, Pagans, Mahometans, Arabians, and Chriſtians of St. Thomas, and others converted by the Miſſionaries. The King has promiſed very often to embrace the Chriſtian Religion, but never did. This Prince is ſerved with great State; is not Intemperate, and takes no care to Dreſs himſelf but upon great Solemnities. The Town is commended for its good Port and great Traffick: It is ſituated between Cranganor and Cochin, which it has to the South; and Cananor, which it has to the North. The Engliſh have been eſtabliſhed here a long time, and have built them Houſes upon a Heighth to be ſecured from Inundations, which the lowneſs of the Town renders it very ſubject to. The Sands all along the Shoar are mixed with ſeveral Pieces of fine Gold, which any body may gather and turn to his own proper Uſe. The Town was formerly the Reſidence of the Camorin, or King of Calicut; but now he keeps a Governour there, which they call Rajador. The Gentlemen, who are called Nayres, wear Bracelets of Pearls and Gold Rings, to diſtinguiſh them from People of the lower Rank, who are called Polyas. Many of theſe Nayres do not marry at all, becauſe they may uſe their Companions Wives or Daughters when they pleaſe. When they go into any Houſe, they leave their Swords and Bucklers at the Door, to ſhew they are there; and if the Man of the Houſe ſhould chance to come, he paſſes by, when he ſees the Arms at the Door. All the Nayres generally bear Arms, and keep about the King's Perſon when he goes to the Wars. All the Polyas are Merchants or Tradeſmen. The King eats of nothing that is not firſt preſented to his Pagod or Idol: And this Kingdom has this particular Cuſtom, That the new Queen, as well as all other new-married Women, is put into one of the Bramen's hands, to diſpoſe of them as he thinks fit before the Conſummation of the Marriage; nor is it the King's Son, but his Siſter's Son, that ſucceeds to the Crown, becauſe they think this the ſurer way to have a Succeſſor of the Royal Blood; becauſe the Queen may have Children by others, as by the Bramen; but the Siſter's Son will be always of the Royal Blood, becauſe the Mother is aſſuredly of it. Their King is much addicted to the Worſhip of Idols, and is held in great Veneration by his Subjects. When he appears in Publick, he is carried in a Chair, or drawn by Men in a Coach, adorned with all manner of precious Stones, and environed with Trumpeters and Muſicians, and follow'd by his Nobles, a Company of Archers and Light Horſemen going before to clear the Way. None comes within three or four paces of him; and when they that wait on him reach him any thing, it's at the end of a Pole; becauſe they hold it a Crime to touch him with their Hands. He has in his Oratory the Image of the Devil, with a Crown on his Head, ſo very frightful, that the moſt Reſolute tremble at the very ſight of it: The Wall is all painted with leſſer Devils, and in each corner ſtands one of Braſs, ſo well done, that it ſeems all in Flames. The Bramens, or Prieſts, ſprinkle theſe Images every morning with odoriferous Water, burn Frankincenſe, and other Aromaticks, and adore them proſtrate upon the Ground. The King can raiſe an Army of 100000 Foot, and inſtead of Cavalry, makes uſe of Elephants. Their Arms are a Cutlace, Lance, Bow, and Arrows, &c. Mandeſlo, Olear. Dellon.

CALEDONIA, the ancient Name of Scotland, whence the People were named Caledones, or Caledonii; and the Footſteps of this ancient Name are ſtill to be found in the Word Dunkelden, which ſignifies an Hill full of Haſle-trees, wherewith that Country abounds: Hence that which is called the Deucalidon Sea, ought to be called the Duncalidonian Sea. The Caledons, or Caledonians, heretofore one of the moſt famous Nations among the Britains, compoſed part of the Kingdom of the Picts, according to Ammianus Marcellinus, who divided the Picts into two Tribes, the Caledones and Vecturions: And by the Caledones, ſo often mentioned in Tacitus, and other Hiſtorians, it's evident that the Scots are underſtood. Buchanan.

CALEDONIA, an Iſthmus or Neck of Land in the Spaniſh Weſt-Indies, lying betwixt the 8th and 10th Degrees of North Lat. and in the narroweſt place is between 60 and 80 Italian miles over; and in length, from the River Darien to Port Sorivan, about 140 miles; and might be very commodious for a ſpeedy and ſhort Communication of Trade betwixt the North and South Seas, were it not for the exceſſive Rains and unwholeſom Air, which make it not habitable. Some Ships, ſent by the Scotch Eaſt-India Company, landed there, and endeavoured to make a Settlement, in the latter end of 1698. calling it by the Name of New Caledonia; but after ſeveral Rencounters with the Spaniards, and other Diſappointments, too long here to relate, were forced to leave the ſame again, about the beginning of the year 1700. after having endured great Hardſhips, and a great loſs of Treaſure. See Wafer, Dampier, and the Hiſtory of the Scots Settlement at Darien.

CALEMBERG, or Kalemberg, Ceſius, or Ceticus Mons, a Mountain of Germany in Auſtria, which reaches from the Danube to the Save, and divides it ſelf into ſeveral Parts, which have alſo ſeveral Names.

CALEMBERG, a part of Germany in Lower Saxony and the Dutchy of Brunſwick, ſituated between Hanover, Gottinghen, Hamelen, &c.

CALENDAR, the Order and Series of the Months that make up a Year: It comes from the Word Calendæ, the Name which the Romans gave to the firſt Days of the Month. The Roman Calendar was compoſed by Romulus, Founder of Rome, who being better vers'd in Martial Affairs than acquainted with the Stars, made a year of ten Months, whereof the firſt was March, then April, May, June, Quintil, called afterwards Julius, and Sextil, called alſo in ſucceſs of time Auguſt, September, October, November, December. He gave March, May, Quintil, and October, each 31 days, and but 30 a-piece to the other 6; ſo that altogether made but 304 days. Numa Pompilius reformed this, and imitated the Grecians to allow the Year 12 Lunar Months, of 30 and 29 days each, one after the other, which made 354 days: But becauſe he loved an uneven Number, through a Superſtition that he held from the Ægyptians, he made his of 355 days, and gave it 12 Months, viz. January, February, March, &c. January was of 29 days, February of 28, March, May, July, October, of 31, and the other 6 of 29 each. He did not matter February's being an even Number, becauſe he deſigned it for the Sacrifices that were made for the Infernal Gods, to which that Number, becauſe unlucky, better belong'd. Numa would have the Month of January, which he placed at the Winter Solſtice, to be the beginning of the Year, and not March, which Romulus placed at the Equinox of the Spring: He alſo made uſe of the Intercalation of the Grecians, who added a ſupernumerary Month every ſecond Year, which conſiſted ſucceſſively of 22 and 23 days, and that to equal the Civil Year to the Motion of the Sun, which makes its Revolution in 365 days, and about 6 hours. He ordered the Chief Pontiffs to ſhew the People the time and manner of inſerting theſe extraordinary Months; but whether it was through Ignorance, Superſtition, or Intereſt, they confounded things ſo much, that the Feaſts which ſhould be kept according to this Inſtitution at certain times, fell upon quite different Seaſons, as the Feaſts of Autumn upon the Spring, &c. This Diſorder was ſo great, that Julius Cæſar, Dictator and High Prieſt, after he had won the Battel of Pharſalia, did not look upon the Reformation of the Calendar as a thing unworthy his Care. He ſent for the famous Aſtrologer Soſigines from Alexandria, who ordered the Year according to the Courſe of the Sun; and having compoſed a Calendar of 365 Days, he left the 6 Hours to form a Day at the end of every fourth Year, which Day was to be inſerted in the Month of February, after the 24th of that Month, which the Romans, according to their way of counting, called the 6th of the Calends: And hence came the Word Biſſextile, becauſe they ſaid twice Sexto Calendas. To ſupply the 10 days, by which the Solar Year of 365 days ſurpaſſed Numa's of 355, he added 2 days to January, Sextil and December, who had before but 29, and added to April, June, September, and November, a day to each, leaving the Month of February but 28 days in the ordinary Years, and 29 in the Biſſextile. And as by the Negligence of thoſe who were to order and diſtribute the Intercalary Months, the beginning of the Year was found to be 67 days before the Winter Solſtice, and that it was then alſo a Year of the Intercalation of the Month of 23 days, which in all made 90. For this Reaſon, I ſay, this Year of the Correction of the Calendar by Julius Cæſar was of 15 Months, and of 445 Days, and was therefore called the Year of Confuſion. It is of Importance to obſerve, That this Emperor, willing to accommodate himſelf to the Humour of the Romans, who were uſed ſo long to the Lunar Year, began the Julian Year upon a day of the New Moon, which followed the Winter Solſtice, and which was at that time 8 days after it; and that was the reaſon why the Year begun about 8 days after the Solſtice of Capricorn. It was not hard for the Romans, who then commanded moſt part of the Earth, to make this Correction of Julius Cæſar to be received, and bring it in uſe amongſt the remoteſt Nations. The Grecians left of their Lunar, and the Intercalation of their 45 days every fourth Year. The Ægyptians fixed their Thot, or the firſt day of their Year, which before changed from one Seaſon to another: The Hebrews did the like; ſo that it became the Calendar of all Nations. The Primitive Chriſtians kept the ſame Name of the Months, the ſame Number of Days of the Month, and the Intercalation of a Day in the Biſſextile Year; but took out of the Julian Calendar the Nundinal Letters, which marked the Days of Aſſembly, or Feriæ, and put other Letters in their place to mark Sunday, and the other Days of the Week; and inſtead of the Prophane Feaſts, and the Plays of the Romans, they placed in order the Feaſts and Ceremonies of the True Religion. About the beginning of the 6th Age, Dionyſius Exiguus, an Abbot, ſeeing the different Cuſtoms of the Eaſtern and Weſtern Churches, about the time of celebrating Eaſter, propoſed a Calendar according to the Victorian Period, compoſed of Cycles of the Sun and Moon, with reference to the Birth of JESUS CHRIST; for until then, the greateſt part of the Chriſtians counted the Years from the Foundation of Rome, or from the Conſuls and Emperors, always keeping to the Cuſtom of the Romans as to the beginning of the Year, fixed on the Firſt of January. This Calendar of the ancient Church, ſhewed preciſely enough the New Moon, and conſequently the time of the Feaſt of Eaſter; but in ſucceeding Ages it was diſcovered, that this Calculation did not agree altogether with the Courſe of the Sun and Moon; and that the Feaſt of Eaſter was no more held upon the Full Moon of the firſt Month. And this Error in Aſtronomy was of evil Conſequence, becauſe the Feaſt of Eaſter would have inſenſibly fallen in Winter, and then in Autumn and Summer. To remedy this Diſorder, Pope Gregory III. ſent Briefs to all Chriſtian Princes, and to all Famous Univerſities, to deſire them to ſeek means to re-eſtabliſh the Vernal Equinox in its right place; and after he had received the Opinions of all the Learned, he cut off 10 days in the Calendar, and confirmed it with a Bull in 1581. ſo that the day after St. Francis, which is the 4th of October, was called 15 inſtead of 5. By this Correction, what was before the 11th of October became the 21ſt; and the Equinox of Spring, which fell upon the 2d of March, was changed to the 12th, as it was in the time of the Council of Nice in 325. The ſame Pope found a way to hinder the like Diſorder for the future, in cutting off one Biſſextile day every 100 years. This Correction was received by all thoſe that are of the Church of Rome; but has not been allow'd of by the Proteſtants of England, Germany, &c. And there were ſeveral Learned Men that writ againſt this Reformation; amongſt others Mæſtlinus, Profeſſor of Mathematicks at Tubingen, Scaliger, and Georgius Germanus; and there was a new-modell'd Calendar made by Mr. Viete, and preſented to the Pope, with his Notes upon the Faults that he obſerved in the Gregorian. The Learned Clavius, who was concerned in making this Correction, thought himſelf obliged, eſpecially having Clement VIII.'s Order, to publiſh a Treatiſe of the Calendar, in which he endeavours to clear the Doubts, and anſwer the Objections againſt the Gregorian Reformation. Sethus Calviſius, who lived a good while after, pretends to prove from Tycho-Brahe's Aſtronomical Obſervations, That there ought to be made conſiderable Alterations in this Calendar: In anſwer to this, it will not be amiſs to ſet down the Words of Tycho-Brahe on this Subject: Thoſe People (ſays he) give themſelves an inſignificant Trouble, who endeavour to regulate the Courſe of the Year by the Tables of Copernicus; their Attempts to diſprove the New Gregorian Reformation, by this Scheme, being to no purpoſe; both becauſe it agrees the neareſt with the Motion of the Sun and Stars, and alſo becauſe it is difficult to come to a preciſe Exactneſs; which, to ſpeak plainly, were it practicable, is not abſolutely neceſſary. This Teſtimony is ſo much the more conſiderable, in regard Tycho-Brahe was of the Proteſtant Religion, and alſo a very extraordinary Perſon in his way. This is alſo called the New and Perpetual Calendar, becauſe the Diſpoſition of the Epacts, which are ſubſtituted for the Golden Number, will make it of uſe in all times, whatever new Appearances may be diſcovered in the Motion of the Stars. Blondel.

CALENDARIO, (Philip) a Famous Architect and Statuary: He got much Reputation at Venice, when Marin Faletri was Doge of that Republick, in the year 1354. It was he that made the fine Galleries, ſupported by Marble Pillars, which are round the Place of St. Mark; and upon theſe a Magnificent Building, embelliſh'd with Bas-Reliefs and rich Paintings. This Work, that was admired by all the World, was very well recompenced by the Republick; and the Doge, upon its account, honoured him with his Alliance. Egnat. l. 8.

CALENDERS, a ſort of Mahometan Friars, ſo called from Santon Calenderi, their Founder. This Santon was of the number of the Abdals, which ſhall be ſpoken of in this Article. He continually play'd the Name of God upon his Flute: He went bare-headed, without a Shirt, with the Skin of a wild Beaſt upon his Shoulders, a kind of Apron before, whereof the Strings were adorned with precious Stones, intermix'd with falſe Diamonds. His Diſciples now mind nothing but their Pleaſures, and are rather a Sect of Epicureans, than a Society of Religious People. They honour a Tavern as much as they do a Moſque, and think to worſhip God as much by a free Uſe of his Creatures, as others do by their greateſt Auſterities and Devotions. They are called in Perſia and Arabia, Abdals, or Abdallas, that is People conſecrated to the Honour and Service of God. Their Apparel is but a ſingle Coat made up of ſeveral pieces, and quilted like a Rug: Some others of them wear a furr'd Skin, which they keep cloſe to their Body, with a Braſs Serpent that the Doctors give them at their Promotion, as a Badge of their Learning. Theſe Preach in Market-places the Miracles of their Saints, and curſe Abu-Beker, Omar Oſman, and Hanife, who are all much honoured by the Turks; together with the Saints of the Tartars, called Usbeques, of whom they tell very ridiculous and abſurd Stories to make them deſpiſed. They eat what their Auditors give them, and receive Money if they give them any. They are generally very vicious People, given to Theft and Lewdneſs; for which reaſon they are not admitted into any Houſes to lodge, but are ſent into Chapels built deſignedly for them near the Moſques. Ricaut.

CALENIUS, (Walter) a Welſh Archdeacon of Oxford, living in the time of Henry I. about the year 1120. He added more than four Centuries to the Hiſtory of his Country, which has ſince been abridged, and tranſlated into Latin. This Book is called Auctuarium Annalium Britanniæ. He wrote likewiſe, De Rebus ſui Temporis, &c. Bale, Pitſæus de Script. Angl. Voſſius, Lib. 2. De Hiſt. Lat. Lib. 48.

CALENTER: The Perſians give this Name to their Treaſurer, and to them that receive the Rents of the Provinces: He overſees the King's Revenues; receives and gives an Account to the Council, or by the King's Order to the Cham, who is Governour of the Province. Olearius.

CALEPIN, (Ambroſius) of Calepio, a Town near Bergamo, whence he took his Name. He was an Auguſtine Monk, who in the 16th Age made a Dictionary, known under the Name of Calepin, which was afterwards augmented by Paſſerat and others. Leand. Alberti.

CALEPIO, a Borough of Italy near Bergamo, gives its Name to the Valle di Calepio, near the Lake Iſeo. It is ſituated upon Oglio, and is called in Latin Calepium, and its Inhabitants Calepini.

CALIARE Veroneſe, (Paolo) born Anno 1532. was a Diſciple of Antonio Badile, and not only eſteemed the moſt excellent of all the Lombard Painters, but, for his copious and admirable Invention, for the Grandeur and Majeſty of his Compoſition, for the Beauty and Perfection of his Draperies, together with his Noble Ornaments of Architecture, &c. he is ſtiled by the Italians the Happy Painter. He ſpent moſt of his time at Venice; but the beſt of his Works were made after he returned thither from Rome, and had ſtudied the Antique. He was highly in favour with all the Principal Men in his time; and ſo much admired by all the Great Maſters, that Titian himſelf uſed to call him the Ornament of his Profeſſion. Dryden's Tranſlation of Freſnoy, p. 299. &c.

CALIF: This Name was proper to the Succeſſors of Mahomet, which are called Califs of Syria, before there aroſe other Califs, who uſurped a Sovereign Authority in Perſia, Egypt, and Africa, in Mahomet II.'s Reign. In 814. the Mahometan Empire was divided into five Parts. Mahomet, Calif of Syria, left the Town of Damaſcus, and removed his Seat to Bagdat, which he cauſed to be built on the Ruins of Seleucia, a day's Journey from the ancient Babylon, and was therefore called Calif of Babylon. Abdala his Brother was Calif at Cairo in Egypt. There was a third Calif at Caruan, and a fourth at Fez in Barbary, beſides the Calif of Spain, who alſo took the Title of King. From time to time there have been very powerful Califs in Perſia, Cappadocia, Cilicia, and Meſopotamia. Piſaſire, who Governed in 958. was the laſt Calif in Aſia, when the Turks became Maſters of it; ſo that there was no Calif left but them of Egypt, of Africa, and Spain. There were ſome Califs ſince that time in Syria, but were not looked upon but as Sovereign Pontifs. Eliur, Son of Piſaſire, was Calif of Egypt in 990. and his Succeſſors Reigned until 1164. at which time Saladin made himſelf Maſter of Egypt, taking the Quality of Soudan, or Sultan, and leaving the Title of Calif to the High Prieſts of the Alcoran.

CALIFA, The Perſians give this Name to a Maſter who Teaches in a Metzin, or Moſque, which ſerves both for a Temple and School. The Molla is the Prieſt of the Temple, and the Principal of the College. Olearius.

CALIFORNIA, an Iſland of Northern America, in the Southern Sea, which reaches to New Spain, or New Granada, and is ſeparated from them by a Branch of the Sea. Its length is about 6 or 700 Leagues from North to South, from the Promontories called the White Cape, the Cape of St. Sebaſtian, Cabo Mendicino, to the Promontory called Cabo de St. Lucar. The narrow paſſage that ſeparates this Iſland from the firm Land is called Mar Vermejo, or the Red Sea, by the Spaniards. The Country is dry, barren, and cold, though in a Situation that ſhould rather render it hot than temperate. There are Pearls fiſhed for to the Eaſt of the Coaſts of California, as well as upon the Coaſts of New Mexico and New Granada, firſt diſcovered by Corteſius, in 1535. In 1587. Captain Cavendiſh, an Engliſh-man, took near the South Cape of this Iſland a very rich Ship. In 1620. it was found to be an Iſland, paſſing before for a part of the Continent. Sir Francis Drake, in 1577. winter'd in this Iſland, and took poſſeſſion of it for his Miſtreſs, and call'd it New Albion. Herrera.

CALIGULA, (Caius Cæſar) Son of Germanicus and Agrippina, ſucceeded his Unkle Tiberius in the Empire, the 37th year after the Birth of CHRIST. He was called Caligula, becauſe he was born in the Army, where the Soldiers wore certain Breeches which they called by that Name. His Impatience to ſee himſelf Maſter of the World, made him, as 'tis ſaid, ſmother his Benefactor Tiberius as he lay at the point of Death. The beginning of his Reign was pretty moderate; but it did not hold long; for his Cruelty furniſhing him with Pretexts to puniſh the Innocent, he employed himſelf wholly in ſhedding of Blood; and whilſt he defiled his hands with the Maſſacres of the moſt famous Men of the Empire and Senate, he diſhonoured himſelf alſo with Inceſts with his own Siſters; and ſoon laviſhed the great Treaſures which Tiberius had heap'd up for many years, which amounted according to our way of numbring to 62675000 Crowns of Gold. After which, he made no ſcruple of the moſt horrid Injuſtices, and demeaned himſelf any way to get Money. But his chief Folly was, That he would paſs for a God, and would get the Heads taken off the Statues of the ancient Gods, to put his own in their place, and uſed to ſtand between the Statues of Caſtor and Pollux, to be adored, and bragg'd of lying with the Moon, &c. He had an ardent Deſire to have his Statue put in the Temple of Jeruſalem, becauſe he knew how unwilling the Jews would be to tender him an Honour that their Law forbad them to do. A. C. 39. he ordered Petronius, who was then Governour of Syria, to get a Statue made, that ſhould repreſent him under the Form of Jupiter, and to place it in the Sanctuarium. Petronius obſerving the Jews much concerned at the Deſign, and fearing a general Rebellion, wrote to the Emperor, That the Workmen could not finiſh the Statue. Caligula underſtanding the reaſon of his writing ſo, became extraordinary incenſed againſt him. In the mean time, Agrippa, Son of Ariſtobulus, whom Herod the Great put to death, hearing of the Prince's Intention, fell in a Swoon, and afterwards writ to him ſuch a moving Letter, that he promiſed he would make no Innovations in the Temple of the Jews: But being very Inconſtant, he ſoon repented his Promiſe, and commanded a Golden Coloſſus to be made at Rome, and deſigned to place it in the Sanctuary before they could be aware of it: But GOD hindred his pernicious Deſign, and puniſhed him for his Crimes by the Hands of Caſſius Chereas, Captain of his Guards: This happened the 24th of January, A. C. 41. after he had Reigned 3 years, 10 months, and 8 days. He would not only be adored as a God, and be called the New Jupiter, but he affected to have all the Gods and Goddeſſes Worſhipped in his Perſon. Sometimes he carried a Trident like Neptune, and at another time a Caduceus, or Rod, like Mercury; ſometimes he would take a Harp like Apollo, or a Pike or Buckler like Mars, or a Club to repreſent Hercules: He would alſo very often dreſs himſelf like Venus, with a Crown of Myrtles; afterwards like Diana, with a Dart and Quiver. And when he neither appeared as God or Goddeſs, he wore a Cloak embroidered with Gold, and ſet with Pearls and Jewels. At other times, to act a Valiant Man, he would put on Alexander's Corſlet, which they had taken out of his Tomb, and walked generally with his Triumphal Ornaments; that is, a Crown of Laurel, or Gold, an Ivory Cane, a Gown bordered with Purple, and a Coat worked with Gold Flowers reſembling Palm-Trees. He had a high Chin, which ſhewed his Cruelty; a ſtaid Countenance, which was, as Tacitus ſays, but a falſe Cover of his criminal Deſigns. Suetonius ſays, He ſometimes affected a terrible and frightful Countenance to put fear into all them that approached him; which was a Mark of his Folly, whereof his ſlender Neck, his great Forehead, his ſmall Legs, and ill-proportioned Body were Signs: The Crown of his Head was bald, which ſhewed how much he was given to Women. Spon. recherche Curieuſes d'Antiq.

CALIGURITAINS, ancient Inhabitants of the Town called now Calahora, in Old Caſtile in Spain. They defended their Town ſo obſtinately againſt Pompey's Army, that after they had eat all the Beaſts, Skins, and other things that could be eat, they fed upon their Wives and Children, which they ſalted as People do Hogs. Valer. Maxim.

CALINGIANS, ancient People of the Indies towards the Sea; their Women bore Children at 5 years of Age, and hardly outlived 8, if we may believe Pliny, L. 6. c. 17.

CALIPPUS, a Mathematician of Cyzicum, was in great eſteem in Greece, obſerving that he could not make the Solar and Lunar Years exactly agree; and finding a Fault in the Order of Meton, he invented a Period, which contained 4 Metonick Sycles, each of 19 Years, and all making up 76, or 19 Olympiads. He begun it about the end of June, the third year of the 112th Olympiad, which was he 419th of Nabonaſſar, and the 4384th of the Julian Period, 424th of Rome, the 3724th of the World, the 330th before Chriſt, Ariſtophon being Archon of Athens, and the ſame year that Darius was killed by Beſſus. Ptol. Petau, Voſſius.

CALIXTINS. See Calliſtins.

CALIXTUS, (George) a famous Lutheran Divine, was born in 1586. in Holſtein at Medelburg, a Village in the Diſtrict of Sleſwick. His Father was a Miniſter, and deſigned him from his Youth for Divinity. He ſtudied in the Univerſities of Helmſtadt, Jene, &c. and travelled with Matthias Overbeck, a rich Lutheran, ſettled in Holland: This Man ſeeing Calixtus was a promiſing Youth, generouſly aſſiſted him as well as Hermanus Conringius, and others. Calixtus, after he had travelled into France, England, and Holland, returned into Germany, where he taught Divinity at Helmſtadt, in 1614. and acquitted himſelf ſo well, and ſo much to the Satisfaction of them who ſent for him thither, that Frederick Duke of Brunſwick would never ſuffer him to go thence, though he was invited, in 1633. by Erneſt Duke of Weymar, during his Travels; and by the whole courſe of his Studies he had acquired ſuch a Moderation, as made him loth to condemn thoſe that were in different Sentiments to his, eſpecially in things that were not Eſſentials of Religion, as appears by his dying Words: I deſire, ſaid he, to die under Jeſus Chriſt, Head of the Church, in the true Catholick Faith, in the Love of all that ſerve and love God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt. I will not condemn any that err in unneceſſary Truths; and hope God will pardon me, if I have committed Errors of this nature. He died the 18th of March, 1656.

CALLAO, or Calao de Lima, a little Iſland in the Southern America, upon the Coaſt of Peru, over-againſt the Town and Haven of the City of Lima. There is a little Borough in it, with a Caſtle upon the Shoar.

CALLIAS of Elaa, a Prieſt of the Sybarates in Italy, who being afraid of Puniſhment for neglecting his Duty in a Sacrifice, fled to Crotona, where he adviſed the Crotoniates to take the Town of Sybaris, and gave them Inſtructions how to compaſs it: which they did, and afterwards burned the Town. Herodot.

CALLIAS, a famous Architect and Engeneer, Native of Aradas, an Iſle of Phœnicia; he gained much eſteem at Rhodes for his new Inventions. He made an Engine wherewith he raiſed a Helepole ever the Walls: This Helepole was a kind of moving Tower, which Beſiegers made uſe of to make their Approaches with towards a Town, and engage thoſe that were upon the Rampart. Vitruv.

CALLICRATES, a Greek Hiſtorian of Tyre, who lived about the end of the Third Age, about the year 280. He writ the Life of the Emperor Aurelianus. Vopiſcus.

CALLICRATES, an Ingenious Engraver, who Engraved ſome of Homer's Verſes upon a Grain of Millet, and made a Chariot that could lie entirely under a Fly's Wing: It is not known at what time he lived. Pliny, Plutarch.

CALLICRATES, a Grecian of a conſiderable Intereſt in Achaia. He oblig'd his Country to ſubmit to the Roman Empire, and hinder'd the Achæans from making an Alliance with Perſeus King of Macedon. He manag'd the Matter ſo, that the Propoſals of the Perſian Ambaſſadors were refuſed by the Greeks, but was afterwards puniſh'd for his Treachery by Menalcides. Pauſan. Lib. 6.

CALLICRATIDAS, General of the Lacedæmonians, gained great Victories over the Athenians, and employed himſelf altogether for the good of his Country. He took the Town of Methymne, and beſieged Conon, the Enemies General in Mytelene. The Athenians came to the relief of the Town, fought a Battel near the Iſlands called Arginuſæ, wherein Callicratidas was drowned in the beginning of the 347th year of Rome. Xenophon.

CALLIDIUS, or Cornelius Callidius of Goude in Holland, lived towards the end of the Sixteenth Century. He had Learning, but all his Opinions were not as they ſhould be; for he wrote a Book, De vera & falſa Magia, which was condemn'd by others, and recanted by himſelf. His other Works were better receiv'd. The moſt conſiderable of 'em are, Illuſtrium Utriuſque Germaniæ Scriptorum Catalogus. Defenſio Urbis & Orbis. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

CALLIMACHUS, an Athenian Captain, choſen General of the Army in a Council of War held by the Athenians before the Battel of Marathon. He was of Miltiades his mind, for giving Battel to the Perſians, and was found after that Fight, all pierced with Darts, but yet upon his Feet. Suidas.

CALLIMACHUS, a famous Greek Poet of Cyrene, a Town in Africa, Son of Battus, and Diſciple of Hermocrates the Grammarian: He was one of the ableſt Men of his Age, but never affected long Works, becauſe his Word was, That a great Book was a great Evil: He taught Grammar in Egypt with much reputation; amongſt his other Diſciples the Poet Apollonius was one, who proving ungrateful, Callimachus writ a very ſharp Poem againſt him, and deſcribed him under the Name of Ibis, and made all thoſe Imprecations againſt him, which Ovid has ſince Tranſlated into Latin, in his Book, Intituled, In Ibin. We have nothing left of Callimachus, but ſome Epigrams and Hymns; his Stile is neat and manly. Voſſius.

CALLIMACHUS, a famous Architect Sirnamed Κακιζότεχνος, which ſignifies he never found any of his own Works to his liking; He was a Native of Corinth, and lived a little after the Sixtieth Olympiad; He worked in Marble with an extraordinary neatneſs; and it was he that invented the Corinthian Chapiter or Head, adorned with the Leaves of the ſmooth Thiſtle Acanthus. The manner of it was thus: A young Woman of Corinth dying, her Nurſe plac'd a Basket upon her Grave, having ſome ſmall Veſſels in it which ſhe took delight in when ſhe liv'd, and cover'd the Basket with a large Slate. It happen'd that this Basket was juſt placed upon a Root of Acanthus, which ſhooting up in the Spring, the Leaves roſe by the ſides of the Veſſels, and meeting with the Slate bent back again. Callimachus obſerving this, form'd the forementioned Chapiter upon that Model. He was alſo very good at Painting and Carving, which he addicted himſelf moſt to. It is Recorded, That he made a Lamp of Gold for the Temple of Minerva at Athens, whereof the Match or Wick was of that Flax or Cotton which is drawn from the Stone Amyanthe, and laſted a whole year lighted day and night, without any new ſupply of Oil. Vitruvius, Pliny.

CALLIMACHUS Experience, (Philip) born at San-Geminiano in the Dominions of Florence: He was very much eſteem'd in the Fifteenth Century; being fallen under the diſpleaſure of Pope Paul II. he was oblig'd to quit his Country, upon which he Travell'd into Poland, where King Caſſimer made him Præceptor to his Children. Callimachus wrote ſeveral Hiſtorical Pieces, particularly, The Hiſtory of Attila; Three Books of the Wars of Uladiſlaus the Fifth, King of Poland and Hungary, who was kill'd at the Battle of Varna. One Book of the Conduct and Management of the Venetians to excite the Tartars and Perſians againſt the Turks; and ſome other Books cited by Trithemius, Spondanus, and others, under the year 1490. in which Callimachus died. Paul. Jov. In Elog. Doct. 41. Voſſius Hiſt. Lat. Lib. 3. C. 8.

CALLINICUS, who had Care of the Conſecrated Veſſels of the Church of Conſtantinople, was made Patriarch in 691. after the death of Paul III. He was a great Enemy to the Church of Rome, which made Juſtinian the young, when he took Conſtantinople in 705. to get his Eyes put out, and ſent him in that condition to Rome. Baronius.

CALLINICUS, Native of Heliopolis in Syria, invented in 670. that kind of Fire, commonly called the Fire of Greece, which the Emperor Conſtantine Pogonat uſed with great ſucceſs in burning the Saracens Fleet, as Zonaras and others have writ. The Curious may conſult Valturius, who teaches how to prepare this Fire. Zonaras, Valturius.

CALLIOPE, one of the Muſes, the Goddeſs of Rhetorick, and Heroick Poetry, was for this Reaſon invoked by the Ancients when they deſcribed Heroick Actions. They repreſented her very young, Crowned with Flowers, wearing upon her left Shoulder ſeveral Garlands of Lawrel, and holding in her Right Hand Three Books, the Odyſſes, the Iliads, and the Æneids.

CALLIPATRIA, a Woman of the Country of Elis. She tranſgreſſed the Law, that forbad any Womans going over the River Alpheus during the Olympick Plays; ſhe was diſcovered, though ſhe had dreſſed her ſelf up like a Wreſtler, and was pardoned for her Father and Brother's ſake, who had carried the Prize in Wreſtling: But there was a Law made then, that all Wreſtlers ſhould thenceforth enter the Liſts naked. Pauſanias. Cæl. Rhodig.

CALLIPPE, Tyrant of Sicily, who killed Dion the Deliverer of that Country, and became himſelf the Tyrant of it: This happened in the 400 year of Rome, about 354 years before Jeſus Chriſt; but God ſuffer'd him to periſh by the ſame Knife which he made uſe of to deſtroy Dion. Plutarch.

CALLIRHOE, a Fountain of Judea beyond Jordan; Its hot Waters ran into the Lake Aſphaltites, and were not only Medicinal, but alſo very agreeable to the Palate. Joſephus, who ſpeaks of this Fountain, remarks, That Herod falling very ill came thither to drink the Waters, but received no benefit by them. Pliny, Pauſanias.

CALLIRHOE, Daughter of Scamander; She Married Tros Third King of Dardania, which took from him the Name of Troy, and had Three Sons, Ilus who left his Name to that ſame Town, Ganymedes taken away by Jupiter, or according to others, by Tantalus King of Mæonia or Paphlagonia; and Aſſaracus Father of Capis, and Grandfather of Anchiſes. Meſſala Corvinus, Homer.

CALLIRHOE, Daughter of Lycus, Tyrant of Libya; She delivered her Husband Diomedes from the Ambuſhes that were laid for him by her Father; he forſook her afterwards, which troubled her ſo much, that ſhe Hang'd her ſelf for deſpair, deteſting his ingratitude.

CALLIRHOE, Daughter of the River Achelous; She Married Alcmeon, who being murthered, Achelous obtained of Jupiter, that his Children ſhould grow elder on a ſudden, that they might revenge their Father's Death. Ovid, Lib. 9. Metam.

CALLISTHENES of Olynthus, a Philoſopher and Scholar of Ariſtotle, followed Alexander's Court, but his ſeverity and humour made him be little regarded by that Prince, who finding how much he was againſt the deſign his Courtiers had of adoring him after the Perſian manner, and the liberty he took to ſpeak againſt it, accuſed him of having a hand in the Conſpiracy againſt his Perſon, of which his Pages were convicted, and got him expoſed to Lyons in the 427 of Rome, the One hundred and thirteenth Olympiad, and three years before Alexander's death. Plutarch, Quintus Cur. Some Authors believe, that the Conſpiracy was no more than a Pretence to deſtroy Calliſthenes.

CALLISTINS, or Calixtins; a Name given to them of Prague, who oppoſed the Thaborites in the Fifteenth Age; they followed the Doctrine of the Church of Rome in all things, but in the depriving Laicks of the Chalice or Cup: There are ſome of this Sect in Poland. Spondan.

CALLISTO, Daughter of Lycaon King of Arcadia, one of Diana's Nymphs, debauched by Jupiter, which Juno took ſo ill, that ſhe turned her and her Son Arcas into a Bear; but Jupiter placed them afterwards among the Stars.

CALLISTUS, the Firſt Pope of that Name, a Roman born, whom ſome Authors call Domitius Callixtus; he ſucceeded Zephirin in the Popedom in 219. The bounty the Emperor Alexander Severus, Son of Mammea, had for Chriſtians, and the Judgments he pronounced in their favour againſt the Inn-keepers of Rome, concerning a place that belonged to them, put him upon building a Church in that ſame place, which is now our Ladies Church beyond the Tiber; and according to a Tradition, abundance of Oil ſprung up out of the place at the ſame time; but ſo little certainty have the Roman Catholick Writers concerning theſe things, that they do not agree either in the manner or time of his death; ſome alledging, that he was famiſhed in Priſon, and every day, during his confinement, whip'd with Rods, and Baſtinado'd by the Emperor's Command, whom others give out to have been ſo great a Friend to the Chriſtians, but that his Councellors not being ſo favourable as himſelf, put Calliſtus into Priſon, where they kept him to the 14th of September 224. and then threw him into a Well, after he had been Pope

Five years, one month, and twelve days. Baronius, Genibrard.

CALLISTUS the Second, one of the greateſt Popes that ever was, a Frenchman; he was Archbiſhop of Vienne in Dauphine, his Name was Guy of Burgundy, and he was Fifth Son to William the Great, and Brother to Rainaud and Stephen, Counts of Burgundy; he was choſen Pope in the Abby of Cluni, where he aſſiſted at the Burial of Gelaſius II. his Predeceſſor, and took the Name of Callixtus, becauſe he was Crowned the 14th of October, which is the day upon which the Church of Rome keeps the Feaſt of Callixtus I. At firſt he oppos'd his own Election, leſt the Cardinals of Rome not approving of it, there might follow a Schiſm in the Church, whereof they had had a freſh Example before, by King Henry the Fifth's making Gelaſius to fly into France, and ſubſtituting Maurice Burdin Archbiſhop of Braga in his place. Before Callixtus left France, he held Councils at Vienne in Dauphine, Toulouſe and Rheims, and a little after went to Rome, where he held the Firſt General Lateran Council in 1123. to ſettle a Peace between the Popes and Emperors, and Impriſon'd the Antipope Burdin, who endeavoured to hinder this Agreement. He died the 13th of December 1124. having been Pope 5 years, 10 months, and 13 days. Baron. St. Mart.

CALLISTUS the Third, Pope, called before Alphonſus of Borgia, a Spaniard, Native of Xativa in the Dioceſe of Valencia, was choſen Pope in 1455. after the death of Nicholas the Fifth, he was 76 years old at his Election. One Vincent Ferrier foretold him he ſhould be Pope, which made him Vow to make War againſt the Turks; but thô he kept his Promiſe, and perſwaded the moſt part of Europe to Arm againſt them, yet this had not the ſucceſs that was expected. Some time after, he Canoniz'd the Prophet that foretold he ſhould be Pope. He died in the year 1458.

CALLISTUS, Antipope. The Emperor Frederic's Party, who raiſed Octavianus, Cardinal of St. Cecile, againſt Alexander III. and gave him the Name of Victor, and afterwards choſe Guy of Crema, whom they named Paſchal III. and after the death of both the Famous Pontiffs, John Abbot of Struma was put in their place in 1170. under the Name of Caliſtus III. He had this Title until he was degraded by the Council of Venice in 1177. there being then an Agreement made between the Popes and Emperors. Caliſtus came afterwards to Freſcati, and caſt himſelf at Pope Alexander's Feet, who received him very charitably, and made him ſit at his Table. Baronius.

CALLOT (James) a famous Engraver, Son of John Callot, Herald of Arms in Lorrain, was born at Nancy in 1593. He learned to Deſign, and Engrave at Rome, from Philip Thomaſſin of Troye in Champagne, who had ſettled in that City; he came afterwards to Florence, where the Great Duke employed him and ſeveral other Excellent Workmen. Callot at that time began to Draw in Miniature, and had ſo good a Genius for it, that he became incomparable therein. He quitted his Graver, and uſed Aquafortis, becauſe this was both the quickeſt way of Working, and gave more Strength and Spirit to the Performance. After the Duke's death, Callot began to have thoughts of returning to his own Country; about that very time, Prince Charles came through Florence in his Journey from Rome, and ſeeing ſome of Callot's Curious Pieces, was ſo much taken with them, that he perſwaded Callot to go along with him into Lorrain, promiſing him a good Salary from his Father-in-Law Henry Duke of Lorrain. This Duke received him joyfully, and gave him a very conſiderable Penſion. Whilſt he reſided at Florence, he obſerved that the Varniſh, which thoſe who made Lutes made uſe of, did dry and harden a great deal ſooner than the ſoft Varniſh which he uſed himſelf, and by conſequence, was proper for his Buſineſs; for this reaſon he carried a great deal of it home with him to Nancy, and was the firſt who uſed that ſort in Graving with Aquafortis. His Reputation ſpread it ſelf ſo much over all Europe, That the Infanta of the Low-Countries ſent for him to Bruxelles, when the Marquiſs of Spinola laid Siege to Breda, that he might Draw, and then Grave the Siege of that Town. Thence he went into France, where Lewis XIII. made him Deſign, and grave the Siege of Rochelle, and the Iſle of Re in 1628. and after he had received a large Recompence from the King, he returned to Nancy, where he applied himſelf ſo cloſely to his Work, that he left 1380 Pieces of his own making. When the late Duke of Orleans, Gaſton of France, withdrew into Lorrain, he made him Engrave ſeveral Silver Stamps, and went to his Houſe two hours every day with the Count of Maulevrier, to learn to Draw. When the King had reduced Nancy in 1631. he ſent for Callot to Engrave that new Conqueſt, as he had done Rochelle; but Callot beg'd to be excus'd, for that being a Lorrainer, he thought he ought to do nothing that would be againſt the Honour of his Country or Prince. The King was not diſpleaſed at his Anſwer, but ſaid, The Duke of Lorrain was happy to have ſuch faithful and affectionate Subjects; ſome of the Courtiers ſaid, That he ſhould be forced to do it; to which Callot made Anſwer, That He would ſooner cut off his Thumb, than be obliged to do any thing againſt his Honour. But the King, inſtead of forcing him, endeavoured to draw him into France, and promiſed him a 1000 Crowns per Annum if he would ſerve him; Callot anſwered, That he could not leave his Country and Birth-place, but that there he would be always ready to ſerve his Majeſty. Nevertheleſs, when he found the ill Condition Lorrain was in, after the taking of Nancy, he had thoughts of going with all his Family to Florence, but died before he could execute the Deſign, in 1635. being 43 years of Age. Felibien entretiens ſur les vies des Peintres.

CALMAR, a Town of Swedeland in Oſtro-Gothia, Capital of Smallandt, upon the Frontiers of Denmark. It is a Port of the Baltick, regularly fortified, the Cittadel being very much eſteemed over all the North. Calmar was almoſt quite burn'd in 1647. but it was rebuilt ſince, and is now the place where the Swedes embark for Germany: It gives its Name to that Chanel that is between it and the Iſle of Gotland called Calmarſund.

CALNE, a Market-Town in Wiltſhire, Capital of its Hundred, ſituate upon a River of the ſame Name, which runs from Eaſt to Weſt into the Briſtol Avon. A Synod was held here in 977. where it's ſaid the Clergy preſented Complaints againſt St. Dunſtan for his Partiality to the Monks; but whilſt the Caſe was in Debate, the Roof of the Houſe fell, and St. Dunſtan alone eſcap'd unhurt. This Corporation returns Two Burgeſſes to Parliament. From London 87 Miles.

CALO, (John) or Beau John, King of the Bulgarians in the Thirteenth Century, ſubmitted to the Roman Church under Innocent III. In 1202. made War againſt the Emperor Baldwin, whom he took Priſoner in an Ambuſcade, which he laid for him, and kept him confined above a year at Trinobis Capital of Bulgaria, and then put him to death in 1206. He hated the Greeks ſo much, who followed the Emperors, that he took great pleaſure in putting them to death, for which he was called Romanicide. He died of a Pleuriſy at Theſſalonica. John George, Nicetas.

CALOCERUS, chief Keeper of the Camels in the Iſle of Cyprus; he had the Impudence to proclaim himſelf King; but being overcome, and taken by Conſtantine the Great's Nephew Dalmatius, the Emperor cauſed him to be flead alive, and burnt in a Town of Tarſus in Cilicia, in the beginning of the Fourth Century.

CALOMNY, or rather Calumnie, a Goddeſs, to which the Athenians conſecrated Altars, ſhe was called by the Greeks Διαβολὴ, whence came the Name of Devil, which we give to him who is the Father of all Calumny. This Goddeſſes Picture made by Apelles, is eſteemed one of his beſt Pieces, for there Calumny is repreſented with all its Attendants: Credulity appeared with great Ears like Midas, ſtretching out her Hands to Calumny, which was coming towards her; on both ſides of Credulity was Suſpicion and Ignorance, this laſt under the form of a Blind Woman, and the other appearing like a frowning unconſtant Fellow, but nevertheleſs repreſented ſo, that his Countenance expreſſed a kind of Satisfaction for the diſcovery of ſome hidden thing: In the middle of the Picture was Calumny with her Face towards Credulity, ſhe appeared very fair and well-dreſſed, with a fierce Look, and blazing and angry Eyes. In her Left Hand ſhe carried a lighted Torch, and in the Right ſhe held a Child, who by his Tears ſeemed to implore aſſiſtance from Heaven; ſhe had before her Envy, under the Shape of a lean and dry Man devoured by his Cares and Troubles; and Two Women behind her that ſeem'd to wait on her. Theſe Two Attendants were Impoſture and Flattery, within ſight was Truth, which ſeem'd to walk towards the place where Calumny ſtood; and behind Truth was Repentance in a very Mournful Habit. It was thus Apelles ingeniouſly repreſented Calumny, and made a preſent of the Picture to Ptolemæus, one of Alexander the Great's Generals, to revenge himſelf of the Calumny of a Painter, that had unjuſtly accuſed him of Plotting againſt the King. It is eaſie to comprehend what every part of this Work meant; Calumny tears and deſtroys Innocence, and is received by a fooliſh or malicious Credulity, which proceeds from Ignorance or Suſpicion. The Calumniator dreſſes and orders all things by the help of Impoſture, and uſes Flattery to inſinuate himſelf into the Hearts of the Hearers. But Truth appears ſoon or late, which diſcovers the Malice of the Lye; and there is nothing left to Calumny for her labour, but a ſharp and bitter Repentance. Theophraſtus.

CALOYERS, Greek Monks of St. Baſil's Order, or of the Order of St. Elias, or St. Marcellus, who almoſt all follow the ſame Rule, and wear the ſame Habit throughout all Greece, without the leaſt Change, or leaving out of any of their ancient Conſtitutions. They lead a very retired, poor, and auſtere Life, and never eat Meat. Beſides this continual Abſtinence, they obſerve Four Lents in the year, and ſeveral other Faſts, which all the Greek Church keep very ſtrictly: And in theſe Faſting times, they neither eat Eggs, Butter, nor Fiſh. And the Armenians abſtain, beſides all this, from Oil; yet give very good Treats to thoſe that viſit them in Lent. And they who ſcruple to eat Fiſh, do nevertheleſs eat Oiſters and all Shell Fiſh, and make ſeveral kind of Diſhes of Eggs and the Milt of Fiſhes, that are far beyond the Fiſh it ſelf; neither will ſome of them ſcruple to eat between Meals, ſo what they eat be neither Fleſh, Fiſh, Eggs or Butter. The Armenians do neither uſe Butter nor Oil in their Sauce, but Almonds and Peel'd Nuts pounded in a Mortar, and warm'd in a Chaffing-Diſh, which does far exceed our Butter; but there are others ſo auſtere, that they content themſelves with a Morſel of Bread, and ſome Herbs, and drink only Water. Grelot's Voyage to Conſtantinople, Ricaut.

CALPE, a high Mountain of Andaluſia, one of Hercules's Pillars, oppoſite to the Abila of the Ancients, on the Coaſts of Africa, which the Spaniards call Sierra de las Monas, Mountain of the Apes, becauſe there is abundance of thoſe Beaſts ſeen upon it.

CALPURNIA, Julius Cæſar's Wife, Daughter to L. Piſo; She Dreamed the day before Cæſar was Murthered, That the Roof of the Houſe was fallen down, and her Husband ſtab'd in her Arms, and all of a ſudden the Doors opened of themſelves. She withdrew after his death to Mark Anthony, carrying a conſiderable Sum of Money, and all her Husband's Papers along with her, which turned to a good Account to the ſame Mark Anthony. Suetonius, Plutarch.

CALPURNIA, a certain Roman Woman, who pleaded her own Cauſe with ſo much Paſſion before the Magiſtrates, that they made a Decree, That no Woman ſhould Plead for the future. Antoninus Auguſtinus de Legibus.

CALPURNIA, a Law amongſt the Romans againſt the Theft and Cheating of Magiſtrates; It was called Calpurnia Repetundarum: And there were Two other, viz. Calpurnia de Ambitu, and Calpurnia Militaris.

CALPURNIANS, a Family very conſiderable at Rome, and divided into Two Branches, whereof one was Sirnam'd Frugi, or honeſt People; both had alſo the Name of Piſo. About 494 M. Calpurnius did the Republick conſiderable Service in Sicily; for the Conſul Attilius being engaged in a narrow Paſſage, Calpurnius, then a Military Tribune, with 300 Men, Marched directly to the Enemy, and fought 'em with ſuch Courage and Reſolution, That the Army had time to diſingage it ſelf and take more Ground. Fortune crowned his Courage and Conduct, for he not only ſaved the Army, according to the Project he propoſed to himſelf, but alſo, making uſe of the occaſion, acquired all the Glory of a great Action. Valerius Maximus mentions one Calpurnius Piſo, Conſul, who, after he had delivered Sicily from the fury of the fugitive Slaves, recompenced the Soldiers with all ſorts of Military Rewards, eſpecially ſuch as behaved themſelves well; and gave his Son only the Character of having deſerv'd a Golden Crown of Three Pound weight; the value of which he left him in his Will, ſaying, That a prudent Magiſtrate ought never to give any thing that might return into his Houſe. Pliny.

CALPURNIUS, (Titus) a Sicilian Latin Poet, living under the Emperor Carus, and his Sons Carinus and Numerianus. He wrote Eclogues, which he Dedicated to Nemeſianus of Carthage, another Poet: We have Seven of theſe Eclogues remaining. Lilius Giraldus Dial. de Poet. Voſſius de Poet. Lat. Cap. 4.

CALSERY, a little Town of the Eaſt-Indies, in the Territories of the Great Mogul in the Kingdom of Jamba, about 25 or 30 Leagues off Ganges; ſome Authors take it to be Batan Cæſara of Ptolemæus, formerly Golgotha.

CALVARY, a Mountain near Jeruſalem whereupon our Saviour ſuffered. The Emperor Adrian out of ſpight to the Chriſtians, placed the Idols of Jupiter and Venus upon it in 131. but they were demoliſhed by Conſtantine the Great and his Mother Helena, and Churches built in their places. The greateſt part of this Mountain was walled in, and in the Incloſure was the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, ſurrounded with many Chapels, ſmall Churches, and Lodgings, inhabited by Catholick Greeks, Armenians, Syrians, Coptes, and Abyſſinians. At the entrance, which is towards the South, there is a great Court, on the Right Hand of which are the Lodgings of the Armenians and Coptes, and a Chapel of our Lady, called Stabat Mater; On the left is the Habitations of the Greeks, with a great ſquare Tower which was formerly a Belfrey; Againſt the Entry of the Court is the great Portail of S. Sepulchres Church, near which is a Garriſon of Turks. At the foot of this Portail are a great number of Nails driven into the Ground to the head, by the Command of the Patriarch of the Grecians, who Excommunicated the Roman Catholicks or Latins every year, and as a Sign of the Excommunication, he got Nails beat into the Ground with a great Beetle, forbidding to pull them up upon pain of Five hundred Baſtinadoes, or paying a great Fine to the Bacha or Cady of the Town. Ten or 12 Steps within the Church is the Stone of Unction where our Saviour was imbalmed according to the Cuſtom of the Jews. Over-againſt this Stone are 3 Tombs of Kings of Jeruſalem without any Inſcriptions, the Schiſmaticks having raz'd 'em out. At the right is a Chapel, where is the Tomb of Godfrey of Bouillon I. King of Jeruſalem, and of his Brother Baldwin I. who ſucceeded him in the Kingdom. Theſe Two Tombs are very plain, ſupported by four little Stone Pillars of a foot high. Near this is the Chapel where Chriſts Croſs was made, and where he was tied to it. St. Jerom ſays, that this Place was hid from the Emperor Adrian's time until the Reign of Conſtantin the Great, which was about 180 years, for the Pagans through Malice had covered it with Earth, and placed there the Idol of Venus, that the Chriſtians ſhould not come near it. But St. Helena got this encloſed with the Holy Sepulcher where the Idol of Jupiter was. This Chapel is very magnificent, its Vaults and Walls being all covered with Moſaick Paintings, compoſed of little Stones as clear as Chriſtal, the different Colours of which are extream lively, but ſomewhat blackned with the ſmoak of the Lamps that always burn there. From this Chapel of the Croſs there is a Way round the other Chapels, which encompaſs the Church, to that of the Apparition, which is on the North ſide, in the place where our Saviour is ſaid to have appeared to his Mother after his Reſurrection. This Chapel belongs to the Chriſtians, and the Monks of St. Saviour celebrate Divine Service there night and day after the Roman manner; they have extraordinary rich Ornaments beſtowed upon 'em by Chriſtian Kings and Princes, eſpecially by the Kings of France and Spain; and the Monks have the Privilege to Ring to Office with a ſmall Bell, which is very rare in all the Holy Land. To the Weſt are the Chapels that belong to the Syrians, Coptes, and Abyſſinians. This is moſt of what is remarkable about the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. As to the Building, the Body of the Church which is to the Weſt, is round, the Dome is of pure Cedar, covered with Lead, and receives light by a Hole in the Roof that has a kind of Wire Grate, it is environed with four great ſquare Stone Pillars, and 6 Marble ones, which in all form 17 Arches that ſupport a fair and great Gallery; in the middle of the Body of the Church is the Holy Sepulcher covered with white Marble, and environed with 10 ſmall Marble Pillars which ſupport a Platform, upon which are 12 little Pillars joined two and two, making ſix Arches that bear a Dome covered with Lead; under theſe Arches are 18 lighted Lamps, beſides one in the middle of the Vault. Within this Building is the Rock wherein our Saviour's Sepulcher was wrought, it conſiſts of two ſmall Grotto's or Hollowneſſes joined together. The firſt is called the Angels, becauſe it's thought to be there where the Angel appeared to the Holy Women who went to ſeek after our Saviour's Body. The ſecond is the Sacred Tomb of Jeſus Chriſt, which is 6 foot long, 6 foot wide, and almoſt 8 foot high. At the right Hand Northward is an Altar which covers the Coffin wherein our Saviour's Body was laid, it is ſix foot long, three foot wide, and about two and an half high. The inſide of theſe Chapels and the Altar are of grey Marble, much blackned by the ſmoak of 60 Silver Lamps that burn there continually. There are 44 in the Holy Sepulcher, and 18 in the Angels Chapel; of theſe 30 belong to the Friers, and the reſt to the Chriſtian Greeks and other ſeparatiſts from the Church of Rome, who are privileged to perform their Devotions there, but have not leave to ſay Maſs, the Roman Catholicks only having this Privilege. In the firſt Grotto, at the ſide of the Holy Sepulcher, was the great Stone ſix foot and an half long, three foot and two inches large, and nine inches and an half thick, which ſerved to ſhut up the Sepulcher, and was ſeen in St. Cyril's time about 380; and St. Jerom, who died 40 years after, writes, that it was in being in his time. But it has been tranſported ſince to the Church built in the place where Caiaphas's Houſe was upon Mount-Sion. Out of the Body of the Church People paſs into the Quire, which is towards the Eaſt, ſurrounded with a Wall as Monaſteries are, the chief Door is over-againſt the Holy Sepulcher, and is parted in two by a fine Balaſter of Wood gilt with Gold, which has three Doors, a great one in the middle, and two leſſer ones at the ſides. In the firſt part, which is the Quire of the Greeks, there is on one ſide a Marble round Stone 4 Inches hollow, which the Eaſtern People ſay is the middle of the Earth. In the ſecond part, which is the Quire of the Roman Catholicks, over-againſt the great Door of the Balaſter, is the great Altar, with a little one at the ſide of it, where the Prieſt prepares all things neceſſary for Maſs. In the bottom is the Pope's Seat, which has 6 Steps up to it, and at the right Hand, a little lower, is the Seat of the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and on the left Hand, that of the Patriarch of Alexandria, which has 4 Steps to it. The Seats of the Patriarchs of Antioch and Jeruſalem are on the other ſide of the Balaſter towards the Greeks Quire. All the Quire is covered with a fine Dome of Carved Stones, ſupported by ſeveral Pillars. Almoſt in the middle of both is an Altar from whence the Patriarch of the Greeks diſtributes his Celeſtial Fire every Saturday. This Ceremony was eſtabliſhed by reaſon of a Miracle which is ſaid to have been formerly done in the Holy Sepulcher, where the Night before Eaſter a Flame deſcended viſibly, and lighted the Lamps that were quenched on Good Friday. The Order of the Ceremony is thus: All the Lamps of the Church being put out, the Holy Sepulcher locked, and guarded by Six Janiſaries hired for that purpoſe; About One in the afternoon the Greeks, Armenians, Syrians, &c. begin to run round the Church by four and five, holding each other by the Arms, and crying from time to time Eleeſon, Eleeſon, and as the People gather, the Confuſion and Diſorder increaſes more and more. The Women ſeated in Galleries and upon Scaffolds make great Exclamations, lifting up their Hands, with many other ridiculous Geſtures. After all this ſtrange Confuſion they go in Proceſſion, the Patriarch walks after the Prieſts, Biſhops, and Archbiſhops, who are all very richly Cloathed after the Greek Faſhion. There are Four Deacons who go immediately before the Patriarch, and walk backwards cenſing him as he comes along. He is dreſſed up in a Velvet Coat with a Gold ground, has a Cope of Cloth of Silver, his Mitre is almoſt all of Gold, he carries his Paſtoral Staff in his Left Hand, and in his Right has a little Croſs, with which he gives the People his Benediction. After they have walk'd round the Church thrice, the Patriarch goes in with two Biſhops, charging the Janiſaries to ſuffer none to come near; then they ſtrike Fire with an Inſtrument hid in the place, or that they carry in with them, and light one of the Lamps, with ſome Bundles of ſmall Candles which they diſtribute as they go out, and then immediately all the Lamps in the Church and Chapels are lighted, ſo that all ſeems of a Fire. Conſtantine the Great walled in Mount Calvary, and built the Church of the Sepulcher with all poſſible magnificence, giving the Charge of the Work to the Biſhop Macarius, to whom he writ, That he would have that Church ſurpaſs all others in Beauty and Riches, as it did in Holineſs. About Nine years after the ſame Emperor had it Dedicated, and gave it the Name of Martyrion, that is, the Place of Martyrdom or Witneſs, becauſe there our Saviour ſuffered, and manifeſted the Greatneſs of his Love for Mankind. In 615 Choſroes King of Perſia conquered Judea, plundered the Town of Jeruſalem, deſtroyed the Church of St. Sepulcher, and took away the Croſs. But the Emperor Heraclius overcame this Infidel 12 years after, and obliged him to bring the Croſs back upon his Shoulders, and ſet it in the ſame place whence he took it in 628; and the ſame Emperor afterwards gave Orders to the Biſhop Modeſtus, Succeſſor to Zacharias, to rebuild the Church, but the Building was hardly begun, when the Arabians made themſelves Maſters of the Town. Nevertheleſs the Emperor Conſtantin Monomachus got leave for the Chriſtians to rebuild the Holy Sepulcher, and other Churches, which was done in 1044. The Biſhop of Tyre ſays, that they built but the Round which covers and environs the Holy Sepulchre, and that Godfrey of Bouillon, firſt King of Jeruſalem, rebuilt the Quire which is now ſeen there, in 1099. Several of the Ancients have writ that Adam was buried on this Mountain, but others think that it was a Giant of that Name. Here it was alſo, according to ſome, that Abraham was to have ſacrificed his Son Iſaac. And St. Jerome and Sozomen ſpeak of a Shining Croſs ſeen here at Mid-day in 351 and 353, when the Emperor Conſtantius was moſt Zealous for the Arrians, whereupon St. Cyril, Patriarch of Jeruſalem, wrote an Account thereof to that Prince, to let him underſtand that it was by that Sign that Jeſus Chriſt, whoſe Divinity he attack'd, had overcome the World, and that it was by him alone that he could be Victorious upon Earth. Doubdan. Thevenot.

CALVERT, (George) Lord Baltimore, was born in the laſt Age at Kypling near Richmond in Yorkſhire, and bred in Trinity-College in Oxford, from whence he Travelled beyond Sea to improve his Knowledge. At his return in King James his Reign, he was made Secretary to Sir Robert Cecil, who in his greater Preferments retain'd him ſtill for his Prudence and Faithfulneſs in many weighty Matters. At laſt by the means of the ſaid Sir Robert he was made one of the Clerks of the Council, and Knighted at Hampton-Court in 1618. He ſucceeded Sir Tho. Lake in the Office of Principal Secretary of State, which he diſcharged with great Prudence, until becoming Roman Catholick he reſign'd it of his own accord. The King however continued him Privy-Councellor all his Reign, and ſoon after created him Lord Baltimore of Baltimore in Ireland. He had the Property of the Province of Avalon in Newfoundland granted him by King James, for the improvement whereof 'tis ſaid he laid out 25000 l. and went thither twice in Perſon, but the French did ſo annoy it, that he was at laſt forced to give it over. Then he went to Virginia, and having viewed thoſe parts, obtained at his return a Patent to him and his Heirs for Maryland on the North of Virginia, with the ſame Title and Royalties as in Avalon aforeſaid, which proves a hopeful Plantation. This he obtain'd from King Charles I. who had as great an Eſteem of him as King James I. had before him. He died at London, An. 1632. in the 53d year of his Age, leaving his Eſtate and Honour to Cecil Calvert his Son, and was buried in the Chancel of St. Dunſtans in the Weſt, of whom theſe Memorable things are recorded. Though a Roman Catholick, yet he kept himſelf ſincere and diſengaged from all Intereſts, behaving himſelf with ſuch moderation that all Parties were taken with him. He was a Man of great Senſe, but none leſs wedded to his own Opinions, and could better bear a moderate Cenſure than an affected Applauſe. Whilſt he ſerv'd the King, he brought him every Night a well digeſted and exact Account of Affairs; And as to the Foreign Plantations, Judge Popham and he agreed as to the deſign, but differ'd in the manner; the firſt was for extirpating the Indians, he for converting 'em, and would ſtock it with the ſobreſt not the lewdeſt People, granting Liberties with great caution, and leaving every one to provide for himſelf by his proper Induſtry.

CALVI, a Town of Italy in the Terra di Lavoro in the Kingdom of Naples, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Capoua. The Ancients called it Cales, and pretended that it was built by Calais Son of Boreas. It is 5 or 6 Leagues from Capoua. The French and Turks laid Siege to it to no purpoſe in 1555.

CALVI, a Town of the Iſle of Corſica, belonging to the Genoeſes; it is ſituated on the Sea to the Weſt of the Iſland, where there is a Gulf called Golfo di Calvi. The Town has a good Port, with a conſiderable Fortreſs.

CALVIDA, King of the Scythians, Son of Gnure, reigned together with his eldeſt Brother called Saulie, and alone after this Brothers death. Hiſtorians ſay Calvida had no hand in the death of his youngeſt Brother Anacarſis, who was killed by Saulie. Calvida liv'd in Solon's time, and conſequently in Cyrus's days, or a little before, which might perſwade that Thomyris was Calvida's Wife, that ſhe reigned after him, and that her only Son Sargapiſes being killed by Cyrus, as Juſtin relates it, ſhe left the Crown by her death to the Son of Saulie, called Idathyrſus. See Saulie

CALVIN, (John) born at Noyon in Picardy, in the year 1509. He Studied Humanity at Paris, was afterwards ſent to Orleans, where he applied himſelf to the Civil Law, under Petrus de Stella, and afterwards continued this Study at Bourges, under Andrew Alciat, in which he made a great progreſs: He likewiſe Studied the Greek Tongue at Bourges, by the aſſiſtance of Wolmar, the Profeſſor. After the death of his Father, he went to Paris, and wrote Remarks upon Seneca de Clementia. The Reformation in France being roughly handled, he retir'd to Bazil, where he Studied Hebrew; Here he Publiſh'd his Inſtitutions, and Dedicated them to Francis I. from thence he went to the Dutcheſs of Ferrara, where he was well receiv'd: He came to Geneva, and was made Profeſſor of Divinity there in 1536. the year following he made all the People ſolemnly Swear to a Confeſſion of Faith, containing, amongſt other things, a Renunciation of the Popes Authority; but proceeding farther than was agreeable to the Town and Government, Farellus, himſelf, and another Miniſter, were ordered to depart the Town within two days, becauſe they refus'd the Communion to the People, unleſs they came up to Calvin's Plan. From Geneva he retir'd to Strasbourg, where Bucer and Capito eſteem'd him extreamly; he ſet up a French Church in Strasbourg, and was the firſt Miniſter of it, and likewiſe was choſen Profeſſor of Divinity in that Town: His affection for the Church of Geneva ſtill continued, as is evident, among other things, by the Anſwer he wrote to the Florid and Artificial Letter of Cardinal Sadolet Biſhop of Carpentras. Two years after, the Divines of Strasbourg deſired him to aſſiſt at a Diet, which the Emperor had conven'd at Worms and Ratisbon, for Compoſing the Differences in Religion: He complied with their Requeſt, and had a Conference, at that meeting, with Melanchton: By this time the Town of Geneva was very preſſing for his Return; at laſt he yielded to their Importunity, and came thither in September 1541. to the great ſatisfaction of the Magiſtracy and People. The firſt thing he did, was to ſettle a Form of Diſcipline, and a Conſiſtorial Juriſdiction, with a Power to inflict Cenſures, and Canonical Pennances, even to Excommunication: This Method was, by a great many Perſons, interpreted over rigorous, and too near a-kin to Roman Tyranny; notwithſtanding, the Matter was carried; and this new Canon was legally paſs'd, by an Aſſembly of all the People, Novemb. 20. 1541. the Clergy and Laity ingaging themſelves to an unalterable Conformity to it. Calvin got himſelf a great many Enemies by his inflexible Severity, in maintaining the Rights and Juriſdiction of his Conſiſtory, theſe Rigours being ſometimes the Occaſion of Diſorders in the Town. He was a Perſon of indefatigable Induſtry, great Parts, and conſiderable Learning; had a good Memory, and a fine Pen; and was very Zealous, and much in Earneſt for his Perſuaſion; Even Maimburg and Moreri allow him to be a Perſon of Senſe and Learning, of a very Regular Life, as to Sobriety, and ſo far from Covetouſneſs, that he did not die worth above Fifty Pounds, Library and all; but then they pretend, that he was extreamly troubled with Choler and Chagreen, and that his Friends (particularly Martin Bucer) charge him with being over Satyrical. Thoſe who have a mind to enquire farther into the Truth of theſe Imputations, may conſult his Juſtification, publiſh'd by Monſieur Drellingcourt, a Miniſter in Charenton, in 1667. He died in the 56th year of his Age, in 1564. Bayles Dict. Hiſt. Maimburg. Hiſt. Du Calviniſm. His whole Works are Nine Volumes. Commentaries upon the Old and New Teſtament, &c.

CALVINISM, the principal Opinions of the Calviniſts, are drawn from the Writings of Calvin, contain'd in the 40 Articles of their Chriſtian Faith, which they preſented to the King of France, in their Catechiſms and Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline. They oppoſe the Sacrifices of the Maſs; the Merit of Good Works; the Real, or rather Corporal Preſence of our Saviour, in the Euchariſt: They reduce the Number of the Sacraments to Two; Reject Evangelical Councils and Monaſtick Vows; Defend Imputative Righteouſneſs, and diſpute againſt the receiv'd Notion of Juſtification. Calvin maintains, That God has created the greateſt Part of Mankind, on purpoſe to Damn 'em, without any foreſight of their Sins, or Prevarications, being ſo hardy, as to affirm, That God has made ſome People *in Contumiliam & Pœnam. CALVISIUS, a Roman who lived under Tiberius, the 35th year after Chriſt; He accuſed Agrippina, Nero's Mother, at the ſollicitation of Julia Silana; but ſhe being found Innocent, Calviſius was Exiled, but was recalled ſome time afterwards. There have alſo been Calviſius Tullus, and C. Calviſius Sabinus, Roman Conſuls.

CALVISIUS, (Seth) a German, he was of Grosbeb, a little Borough in Turingia, lived in the beginning of this Age, and publiſhed ſeveral Books of Chronology, viz. in 1605. his Latin Chronology, according to the Principles of Joſeph Scaliger, who gave him great Commendations. He printed a Piece in 1611. againſt the Gregorian Calender, under the Title of Elenchus Calendarii a Papa Gregorio XIII. comprobati. The beſt Edition of his Chronology was Printed in 1620. He died in 1617. Scaliger, Voſſius.

CALUS, called by others Aualus or Attalus, Nephew of Dedalus. He was the Inventer of the Saw and Compaſs, which made Dedalus ſo jealous of him that he killed him, and this was the reaſon that he quitted Athens, and went to Creet. Pauſanias.

CALYDON, a Town of Ætolia which has given its Name to the Foreſt, wherein Poets feign that Meleager killed the Prodigious Boar. There is alſo a Foreſt of this Name in Scotland, and a Borough that thoſe of the Country call Dunkeld. There is alſo a part of the Sea thereabouts, called Oceanus Caledonius. The Town of Calydon in Ætolia, was the Seat of a Biſhop, and was Capital of the Country. Strabo.

CALZA, or Galza, a Military Order of Venice, inſtituted upon the Model of the Bande in Spain, to exerciſe Youth in Military Affairs, as well by Sea as Land. It was renewed in 1562. which made ſome Authors think that it was eſtabliſhed at that time. Giuſtiani Hiſt. Venet.

CALZADA, or Calzade, or St. Domingo de la Calzada, Calciata, a Town of Spain in Old Caſtile, and the little Country of Rivia, formerly Navarre. It has a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Burgos, united to that of Calahorra in 1236. It is ſituated in the Mountains, and famous for St. Dominick's Devotion.

CAMALDOLI, a Religious Order founded by St. Romuald about the end of the 10th Age. This Saint gave his Monks the Rules of St. Benet's Order, with ſome particular Conſtitutions, and a white Habit, after a Viſion he had of ſeveral Perſons Cloathed ſo, who were going up upon a Ladder to Heaven. He was of a Noble Family of Ravenna, and having found in the Appennin Mountains near Arrezo a frightful ſolitary Place, called Campo Maldoli, he began to build a Monaſtery there about the Year 1009. and this Monaſtery gave its Name to all the Order. The Congregation of Hermits of St. Romuald, or of Mount Couronne, is a Branch of that of Camaldoli, to which it joined in 1532. Paul Juſtinian of Venice began its Eſtabliſhment in 1520. and founded the chief Monaſtery in the Appennin, in a Place called the Mount of the Crown, 10 miles from Perugia, and Dedicated it to our Saviour in 1555. Baronius in Annal. Rainald. Spond.

CAMARINA, a Town of Sicily, built according to Euſebius, in 150 of Rome, in the 44th Olympiad. The Syracuſians demoliſhed it 50 years after, but it was rebuilt by one Hipponas. It was ſince quite ruined, and has left its name to a River of Sicily; Yet is ſtill famous for what has happened to its Inhabitants, upon the occaſion of ſeveral ſtinking Bogs that incommoded them, for having conſulted the Oracle, they were Anſwered, That if they dried them they would be the more annoyed. Looking upon this Anſwer as ridiculous, they Drained the Bogs, and ſo gave their Enemies means to enter the Town, whence came the Proverb, Movere Camarinam, when one would expreſs a Misfortune occaſioned by him that it happens to. Herodotus, Leander Alberti.

CAMB, or Kamb, Cambus, a River in Germany in High Auſtria. It has its Source about the Frontiers of Bohemia, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Danube.

CAMBADAGI, the Diſciple of Xaca, he taught the Japonians to adore the Devil, charmed this Nation with the ſtrange effects of his Magick. Cucuboa help'd him to introduce the Worſhip of the Devil in Japan.

CAMBAIA, Cambaie, or Guzarate, a Town and Kingdom of the Eaſt Indies in the Territories of the Great Mogul. Part of this Kingdom is a Peninſula between the Gulphs of Indus and Cambaia, and part is firm Land towards Decan. The chief Town is Amedebad or Amadabad; the others are Cambaia, Surate, Baroch, Diu, &c. The Town of Cambaia is ſituated at the end of a Gulf to which it gives its Name, where the River Carari diſcharges it ſelf into it; and gives its Name alſo to that Kingdom, and is ſo conſiderable that it is commonly called the Cairo of the Indies. It has good ſtrong Walls with 12 Gates, the Houſes are great and well built, and the Town is altogether rich, and of great Commerce. Guzarate is a Province of this Country, and is ſo conſiderable that the whole is called by its Name. The Inhabitants are either Pagans or Mahometans, Lovers of Learning, make uſe of all ſort of Arms, and are very Ingenious. The Country abounds with all the Proviſions that are brought out of the Indies, and has Mines of Cornelians, Diamonds, and other Precious Stones. It abounds alſo in all ſorts of Grain, Fruit, Beaſts, Cotton, Aniſeed, Opium, Oils, Soaps, Sugars, has Manufactures of Linen, and Cotton, Carpets, Cabinets, &c. which are all well wrought by the Inhabitants; and ſold by them likewiſe, for they are the ableſt Merchants in the Indies, Cambaia has above 30 good Towns of great Traffick, and it's ſaid its Revenues amounted formerly to 20000000 of Gold a Year, for then there were Kings that brought great Armies to the Field. Mandeſlo ſays, That Cambaia is one of the Greateſt, the Richeſt, and beſt Traded Cities in the Eaſt-Indies; that it's Wall'd with a fair Wall of Free-Stone, greater than Surat, being 10 Leagues in compaſs, hath three Bazars or Market-Places, and four Noble Lanks or Ciſterns able to find the Inhabitants Water all the Year: Though there is ſeven Fathom Water in the Haven at High Water, yet at Low Water the Ships lie dry in the Sand and Mud. Linſchot, Maffeus.

CAMBALU, a Town that moſt Geographers made Capital of Catay, which they thought one of the principal Parts of Tartary, but it has been ſince diſcovered that Cambaul and Peking are the Names of the ſame Town, and that Catay is the moſt Northern part of all China. It was the Hollanders in their Voyage to China, and Father Kircher the Jeſuit, that firſt found out this Truth, for that Father in his Relation of China, tells us, That Peking, Capital of China Septentrionalis, is that which the Saracens and Moſcovites call Cambalu. It is true, that the Profil, or Draught of Cambalu, which the Portugueſe have at Lisbon in the Cuſtom-Houſe, differs from that of Peking, which the Hollanders brought along with them. But that proceeds from this, That the Hollanders repreſented Cambalu in another proſpect, and of another ſide; for all the reſt agree, the Buildings are the ſame; and it is well known, that the Tartars that live to the North of China are wandring Vagabonds, who have neither Palaces, Pagodes, Temples, Triumphant Arches, nor Publick Monuments, with that extraordinary Magnificence that thoſe Places of Peking are ſaid to have. Embaſſy of the Hollanders to China.

CAMBDEN, (William) the Learned Antiquary of the Britiſh Iſlands, was born in London, An. 1553. At 15 years of Age he went to Magdalen College in Oxford, as Choriſter or Servitor, from whence he removed to Broadgates-Hall, now Pembroke-College, and at laſt to Chriſt-Church; in 1571 he was made Second Maſter of Weſtminſter School; in 1582 he took a Journey through Suffolk into Yorkſhire, and returned through Lancaſhire in order to the Compleating of of his Britannia, which he publiſhed the ſame Year, and has got him an Eternal Fame in the Common-wealth of Learning; This he writ in Latin, of which there have been three Editions in Quarto, and two in Folio, with Maps of every County. The Folio Edition, Printed in 1607. was put into Engliſh by Philemon Holland of Coventry, and publiſhed twice in our Language, viz. An. 1610. and 1637. He was made Prebendary of Salisbury in 88. In 159$\frac{2}{3}$ he was chief Maſter of Weſtminſter School, in the place of Dr. Edward Grant. In 97 he publiſhed his Greek Grammar. The ſame year he was created Firſt Herald, and then Clarenceux King of Arms, in the place of Richard Lee Eſq; deceaſed. *An.*1606. he began his conſtant Commerce of Letters with Thuanus that famous Hiſtoriographer of France, Styl'd by him, Galliæ Lumen & Hiſtoricorum noſtri ſæculi Princeps. In 1618 he began to compile his Hiſtory of Queen Elizabeth, and three years after he founded the Hiſtory-Lecture of the Univerſity, to which he gave the Mannor of Boxley in Kent. Thus having lived many years in Honour and Eſteem, he died November 9. 1623. being 74 years of Age, and was buried in Weſtminſter Abby with this Latin Epitaph:

Qui fide Antiquâ & operâ aſſiduâ Britannicam Antiquitatem

Simplicitatem innatam honeſtis ſtudiis excoluit
Animi ſolertiam candore Illuſtravit
Gulielmus Cambdenus, ab Elizabetha Regina

Q

Obiit Anno Domini 1623. 9 Novembris, Ætatis ſuæ 74.

He was much admired, not only by the Chiefeſt of the Nobility, and the moſt Learned of the Nation, but alſo beyond the Seas, particularly by Ortelius, Lipſius, Scaliger, Thuanus, Caſaubon, Pontanus, Swertius, &c.

CAMBOJE, or Camboge, a Kingdom of the Peninſula of the River Indus, or of the Gulf of Bengala, ſituated upon the Southern Shore between the Kingdoms of Siam, Chiampaa, and of Cochin-china. Its Capital, which is of its own Name, and is alſo called Ravecca, is 60 Leagues off the Sea, upon a Branch of the River Mecon, which overflows every Year like the River Nile, and Manam in the Kingdom of Siam. It begins to ſwell and increaſe in the Month of June, and in July and Auguſt overflows all the Neighbourhood. For this reaſon the Town of Camboje was built upon a riſing Ground, where it makes but one Street, and is of great Commerce; there being ſome from Japonia, Cochin-china, Malais, and many from Portugal that Trade there; Its King is Tributary to the King of Siam, and his Palace is fortified with a Palliſado inſtead of Walls, with ſome Cannons from China, and 24 that belonged to two Dutch Ships which were caſt away upon the Coaſt. The Lords of the Court are diſtinguiſhed into Okinas, Tonimas, Namprας, and Sabandars, who are all of different qualities, but are commonly without any particular Office, except the firſt, which are the moſt conſiderable, and as it were Councellors of State. There is but one Pagode in the Town, near which all the Prieſts have their Dwellings. It is a very fertile Country, and the Inhabitants are much inclined to the Chriſtian Religion, which ſeveral of them have already embraced, as we underſtand by modern Relations. Proviſions are ſo cheap there, and in ſuch abundance, that the Inhabitants ſell for little or nothing, very good Deer, Oxen, Hogs, Hares, and all ſorts of Wild Fowl, as alſo Citrons, Oranges, Coco's, and all other Fruits of the Country. The Portugueſe are ſo well ſettled there, that they have hinder'd the Dutch to Trade in that Country. The King's Palace is fortified, not only with a great many Cannon, but likewiſe with two Regiments of Guards and 16 Elephants. The Councellors of State, called Okinas, when they go to their publick Aſſemblies or Meetings, carry a Bag Embroidered with Gold, which contains three Gold Boxes filled with Cardamums, and other well ſcented things, and when they are in the King's Preſence they ſit round in a half Circle, and have behind them the Toni or Great Men of the Kingdom. The Prieſts come neareſt the King's Perſon. And when an Ambaſſador comes to have his Audience, he ſits below the Okinas 25 Paces from the King. Embaſſy of the Hollanders to Japan.

CAMBRA, Sirnamed the Beautiful, was Daughter to Belin King of the Britons, the ancient People of what we now call England. This Princeſs had ſo much Wit and Prudence, that the King and the Great Men of the State conſulted her as their Oracle, and followed all her Advice. The Sicambrians were ſo called from her Name Cambra: She governed theſe People about 40 years, according to the Laws ſhe gave them; She alſo invented the Manner of Fortifying Citadels, and afterwards died, An. M. 3590. after ſhe had gained much Reputation. Pitſæus de illuſt. Angl.

CAMBRAY upon the Schelde, a Town in the Low-Countreys with an Archbiſhoprick, is Capital of the Country called Cambreſis. It's the Cameracum of the Ancients, four Leagues from Douay, and ſeven from Valenciennes, and from St. Quintin. It is great, fair, well built, and one of the ſtrongeſt Towns of Europe, with two Citadels in it. Some Authors write, That Camber King of the Sicambrians, was the Founder of it. Ado remarks, That Claudion, King of France, conquer'd it in 445. and afterwards it fell to Charles the Bald in 843. and 870. after the Death of Lothaire II. and ſometimes after it became the Subject of War between the Kings of France, the Emperors of Germany, and the Counts of Flanders. Baldwin I. Count of Flanders took it, and gave it to his Son Raoul. The Emperors declared it a Free Town, but for all that the French never quitted their Claim to it. In 1542. Francis the Firſt of France, conſented it ſhould be Neuter. But the Emperor Charles V. took it the Year after, by the Intelligence he had given him by the Biſhop who was of the Houſe of Crouï, and Garriſon'd it, and kept the Inhabitants in awe by a Citadel built at their own Expences. It changed Maſters ſome time after, when the Duke of Alençon, Brother to K. Henry III. was made Count of Flanders in 1582. He was alſo Maſter of Cambray, and left it to John Montluc Sieur of Balagny, who ſoon after joined himſelf to the League, and made Peace with Henry IV. who made him Prince of Cambray, and Mareſchal of France in 1594. But the Spaniards ſurprized this Town ſoon after, and forced him to deliver them the Citadel the 9th of October 1595. The Inhabitants acknowledged Philip II. of Spain, but the Archbiſhop made ſuch Complaints, and ſhewed ſuch Reaſons, that he was himſelf made Lord of Cambray, the King being ſatisfied with being Maſter of the Citadels, and Protector of the Country, leaving all other Juriſdiction to that Prelate. The Spaniards fortified this Town very well, and kept ſuch a ſtrong Garriſon in it, that it was looked upon to be impregnable. Yet the King of France, having taken Valenciennes in the beginning of 1677. laid Siege to Cambray, whereof he made himſelf Maſter in a ſhort time, and ſoon after forced the Citadel to Capitulate. This Town is ſituated upon the River Schelde, which runs through a part of it. The great Citadel is upon a height which commands all the Town; the Ditch is wrought in a Rock which has help'd to raiſe its Walls. The Ramparts of the Town are alſo environ'd with deep Ditches, chiefly to the Eaſt, and defended with many good Baſtions. It reaches to the River, and has another Fort to defend it on that ſide, which lying low, may be ſoon drowned by drawing the Sluces which keep in the Water. The Chapter of this Town is one of the moſt conſiderable of the Low-Countreys, conſiſts of 48 Canons, and 95 Eccleſiaſticks which Officiate in our Lady's Church. It's affirmed, that Diogenes, a Grecian by Nation, was the firſt Prelate of Cambray, ſent into France by Pope Siricius about 408. Pope Paul II. made it an Archbiſhop's See in 1559. upon the Requeſt of King Philip II. of Spain: The Biſhopricks of Arras, Tournay, St. Omar, and Namur, were given it for Suffragans. The Archbiſhops take the Title of Dukes of Cambray, Counts of Cambreſis, and Princes of the Empire. The Streets of this Town are wide, and very neat, and the Chiefeſt and Richeſt end in a great Square, where the Town-Houſe is built, which has a very curious Clock. There are alſo very good Manufactures at Cambray, and eſpecially Linen; it was a Place of conſiderable Commerce before the Wars, and now begins to have good Trading again. Guichardin deſcript. du Pais bas, &c.

CAMBRESIS, a Country between Picardy, Artois, and Hainault, almoſt 10 Leagues long, from the Villages Or and Chatillon to the Town of Arleux. This Country is very fertile, and has a Caſtle called Caſtel Cambreſis, where in 1559. there was concluded a Peace between Spain and France, which laſt gave 98 conſiderable Places for S. Quintin, Ham, and Catelet.

CAMBRIDGE, Lat. Cantabrigia, anciently Camboritum, or Camboricum, is not only the chief Place of Cambridgeſhire, and that from whence the County is denominated, but alſo a moſt famous Univerſity. It lies by common computation 44 miles from London North-eaſt-ward, and is ſo called from the River Cam, upon which it is ſeated, which River in its Northern courſe meets with the Ouſe, and falls into it three miles above Ely. The Colleges are built in the Skirts of the Town, which afford 'em the better and more delightful Walks and Gardens about 'em. The Town is of that large extent, that it contains 14 Pariſhes; but whereas there are in Oxford 18 Endow'd Colleges and 7 Halls, here are but 12 Colleges and 4 Halls. Their Names, and thoſe of their Founders, with the time of their Foundation, you have in the following Table.

In the time of the Romans, Cambridge, known amongſt them by the Name of Camboritum, was a Roman Colony, had then its Schools, wherein the Roman and Britiſh Youth were inſtructed, until the Wars of the Saxons and Danes occaſioned a diſcontinuance; but they began to flouriſh again in the Reign of King Henry I. above two hundred years after King Alfred re-eſtabliſhed Oxford. Cambridge has not only been Dignified with the Title of an Earldom in ſeveral Eminent Perſons, but alſo with that of a Dukedom, in Four Sons of King James II. when Duke of York; Three of them by the firſt Dutcheſs, Charles, James, and Edgar, who all died very young; and the Fourth by the Queen. Mr. Cambden ſays, It's called Cambridge, becauſe ſituated upon the Eaſt Banks of the River Cam, near which it has a Bridge. It ſends four Burgeſſes to Parliament, two from the Town, and two from the Univerſity.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE, an inland County of England, is bounded Eaſtward both with Norfolk and Suffolk, Weſtward with Bedford and Huntington-ſhires; Northward with Lincolnſhire and Norfolk, and Southward with Eſſex and Hertfordſhire. It reaches from North to South about 35 miles; in breadth from Eaſt to Weſt 20; the whole divided into 17 Hundreds, wherein are 18 Market-Towns, and 163 Pariſhes. This County, together with Norfolk, Suffolk, and Huntingtonſhire, was the Seat of the Iceni in the time of the Romans; a Member of the Kingdom of the Eaſt-Angles in the time of the Heptarchy; and now makes up the Dioceſe of Ely. The South Parts of it are Champaign and Plentiful, both of Corn and Graſs. The Northern Parts are fenny, unhealthful, and therefore thinly Peopled; but repleniſhed both with Fiſh and Fowl. This Country yields excellent Saffron, the deareſt Commodity that England produces; and the Herb called Scordium, or Water-Germander, grows alſo here very plentifully.

CAMBYSES, Second King of Perſia, was the Son of Cyrus, whom he ſucceeded, A. R. 225. He invaded and ſubdued Egypt, and intended to make War againſt the Æthiopians; but a great part of his Army being buried under the Sands, as he marched to deſtroy the Temple of Ammon, he changed his Deſign. His Reign was of 7 years and 5 months; for having put his Brother Tanioxares, or Smergeis, to death, he became frantick, and died of a Wound he gave himſelf in his Thigh. This happened A. R. 232. in the 64th Olympiad, 532 years before Chriſt. Valerius Maximus relates a very ſevere Action of this Prince's Juſtice, in the Perſon of a Judge that did not diſcharge his Office; for he cauſed him to be flea'd alive, and ſpread his Skin upon the Juſtice-Bench, to put his Son, to whom he gave that Office, in mind of exerciſing his Charge better. Herodot. Juſtin.

CAMBYSES, a Perſian of a midling Birth, who lived in the 50th Olympiad, about the year of Rome 174. and 3474th of the World. Aſtyages, laſt King of the Medes, married his Daughter to him, hoping by ſo diſproportioned a Match, to ſhun the ill Conſequences of a Dream that he had, which threatned him, as he imagin'd, with ill Luck; for he ſaw a Vine ſpring from the Princeſs, whoſe Branches covered all Aſia; which was interpreted by Aſtrologers, That his Daughter Mandane would have a Son that ſhould dethrone him. Cambyſes begot Cyrus, who put himſelf upon his Grandfather's Throne. Herodot. Lib. 1.

CAMELFORD, a conſiderable Borough and Market-Town in Cornwal, ſituate on the River Camel; Governed by a Mayor. From London 184 miles.

CAMERARIUS, in High Dutch Cammermeiſter, (Joachim) was of Bamberg, a Town of Germany in Franconia, where he was born in 1500. His Family was ancient and conſiderable; but he made it more eſteemed by his great Merit. He made great Progreſs in all kind of Learning, as in Languages, Hiſtory, Mathematicks, Phyſick, and Politicks; beſides which, he was naturally ſo Eloquent, that he could perſuade what he pleaſed. Theſe great Qualities endeared him to all the famous Men of his time, and the greateſt Princes Honoured him with their Friendſhip; as, Charles the Fifth, the Emperor Maximilian the Second. He taught with great Applauſe at Nuremberg, Tubingen, and at Leipſic. He died in 1574. having juſt entred upon the 75th year of his Age. He compoſed theſe Verſes on his Death-bed:

Morte nihil tempeſtivâ eſſe optatius, aiunt,
Sed tempeſtivam quis putat eſſe ſuam?
Qui putat, ille ſapit; namque ut fatalia vitæ,
Sic & quiſque ſuæ tempora mortis habet.

Camerarius was married to Anne of Truches of Grunſperg, deſcended of a Noble Family, and had nine Children by her, 5 Sons and 4 Daughters. He tranſlated out of Greek into Latin the Works of Herodotus, Demoſthenes, Xenophon, Euclid, Homer, Theocritus, Sophocles, Lucian, Theodoretus, Nicephorus, and of St. Gregory of Niſſe, &c. Beſides this, he writ the Life of Philip Melancthon, who was his Friend; writ alſo the Life of Eoban of Heſſe, and publiſhed a Catalogue of the Biſhops of ſeveral Churches, and Letters in Greek. He likewiſe publiſhed Plautus from two ancient Manuſcripts. Melch. Adam. Thuan.

CAMERARIUS (Joachim) a famous Phyſician, Son of the other Joachim Camerarius: He was of Nuremberg, where he was born in 1534. He upheld the great Reputation his Father had acquired by his great Learning. He ſtudied in the beſt Univerſities of Germany, and afterwards went to Italy, and ſtudied at Padua and Bononia, where he made himſelf many Friends amongſt the Learned Men; as, Fallopius, Aquapendente, Capivaccio, Aldrovandus, Vincent Pinelli, &c. At his return thence, the Reputation of his great Learning made ſeveral Princes court him to live with them; but he loved his Studies too well to yield to any ſuch Solicitations. He applied himſelf chiefly to Chymiſtry and Botanicks, and not only kept a Garden furniſhed with the moſt curious Simples, but alſo bought the Botanick Library of Geſnerus; ſo that he wanted nothing to make him perfect; but was much interrupted by the many Viſits he received from People of the higheſt Quality. He left Children by three Wives, and his Hortus Medicus: De re Ruſtica: De Plantis Epiſtolæ, &c. He died in 1598 Melch. Adam.

CAMERARIUS, (Philip) a conſiderable Lawyer of Nuremberg. He died in the year 1621. He wrote Hiſtorical Meditations, tranſlated into ſeveral Languages, with other Works.

CAMERINO, a Town of Italy, formerly in Ombria, but now belonging to the Marquiſate of Ancona, with a Biſhop's See, Suffragan to the Holy See. Latin Authors call it Camerinum, and Camarinum, and the Inhabitants Camerices. It's ſituated between Macerata and Spoletto, and had in former times the Title of a Dutchy. It is ancient; for Titus Livius mentions, in his 9th Book of the Roman Hiſtory, That Marcus Fabius's Brother, being ſent to obſerve the Enemies of Rome, was very well received by thoſe of Camerino.

CAMERON, (John) a Scotch-man of Glaſgow, was one of the moſt famous Divines amongſt the Proteſtants of France. He came very young from his own Country, and arrived at Bourdeaux in 1600. where ſome of his Religion obſerving his great Qualities, and the Progreſs he had made in Learning, ſent him, at their proper Expences, to ſtudy Divinity; and he was afterwards a Miniſter of their Church. The place where he got moſt Reputation was at Saumur, where he taught Divinity for 3 years. He was Author of a new Syſtem of Grace; the Calviniſts being then ſomewhat divided amongſt themſelves, by reaſon of the new Opinion of Arminius, to which Cameron inclined very much: And the Great Men of their Party, as Amaraut, Cappel, Bochart, Daillé, and others, followed his Opinion, being perſuaded that Calvin's Tenets upon Grace, Free-will, and Predeſtination, were ſomewhat harſh. This was the reaſon that the other Calviniſts ſpoke of the School of Saumur, as of a Party oppoſite to the true Calviniſts. Cameron publiſhed but few of his Books himſelf, beſides his Conference with Tilenus, Entituled, De Gratiæ & voluntatis humanæ concurſu in vocatione Leydæ, Anno 1622. And another Book alſo in Latin, Printed at Saumur in 1624. wherein he maintains his Opinion concerning Free-will and Grace. After his Death were Printed his Prelections, or Leſſons of Divinity, which contains the Explications of ſeveral Paſſages of Scripture, in form of common Places, after the Method of Controverſiſts, and in a copious and neat Style. There were alſo Printed at Geneva, Learned and Judicious Remarks of his upon the New Teſtament, with the Title of Mirothecum Evangelicium, which were afterwards inſerted in the Criticks of England. Memoires Hiſtoriques.

CAMERONIANS, a Party of Presbyterians in Scotland, ſo called from one Mr. Archibald Cameron, a Field-Preacher, who was the firſt that ſeparated in Communion from the other Presbyterians that were not of his Opinion, concerning the Miniſters who had accepted of an Indulgence from King Charles II. which he alledged to be a Countenancing of the Supremacy in Church-Affairs; and they ſaid, That it was only a making uſe of the Liberty to exerciſe the Paſtoral Function, from which they had been unduly reſtrained. The Debate and Heats encreaſed on both ſides, which the other Presbyterians adviſed to lay aſide, until the Controverſie could be determined by a General Aſſembly: But the Cameronians, by a furious Zeal, did ſeparate from them; and ſome who aſſociated with them, ran into the laſt Exceſſes of Frenſie and Diſloyalty. They declared, That King Charles II. had forfeited his Right to the Crown and Society of the Church, by his breaking the Solemn League and Covenant, which were the Terms on which he received the former; and his vicious Life, which, de Jure, ſaid they, excluded him from the latter; they pretended both to Dethrone and Excommunicate him; and broke out into a Rebellion, which was ſuppreſſed by the Duke of Monmouth at Bothwell-Bridge. They chearfully complyed with his preſent Majeſty King William on the Revolution, and on all occaſions have witneſſed their Zeal for him with no ſmall Gallantry; as at Dunkell, Steinkirk, &c. under their Brave Officers, Cleland, Fullerton, and Major Ker of Kerſland, the latter being Repreſentative of the ancient Family of the Name in Scotland, and very inſtrumental in bringing thoſe People to concur with the preſent Government in Church and State; but was untimely ſnatched away by his early Fate, and died of the Wounds which he received as fighting gallantly at Steinkirk. As for their former Differences in Church-Matters, they are alſo laid aſide, the Preachers of their Party having ſubmitted to the General Aſſembly of the Church of Scotland in 1690.

CAMILLA, Siſter of Pope Sixtus V. She was Wife to one that lived in a little Village of the Grottes, near the Town of Montalto, in the Marquiſate of Ancona. When her Brother Felix Peretti, called afterwards Cardinal of Montalto, was made Pope by the Name of Sixtus V. ſhe was ſent for to Rome, whither ſhe came accompanied with her Kindred and Daughter. When ſhe came near the City, ſhe was met by the Cardinals of Medicis, Eſte, and Alexandria, who led her into a Palace, where they cauſed her to be dreſs'd like a Princeſs, thinking thereby to oblige the Pope, who they knew had a great Kindneſs for her. The ſame Cardinals conducted her after this, and preſented her to the Pope, who ſeeing her in that rich Dreſs, pretended he did not know her, and withdrew into another Chamber: But when ſhe came the next day to the Vatican in her ordinary Garb, he embraced her, ſaying, Now you are my Siſter; and I do not pretend that any but my ſelf ſhall make you a Princeſs. Then lodged her in the Palace of Mary Major, allowing a conſiderable Penſion for her Maintenance; but he forbad her to meddle with any Buſineſs, or to ask him for any Favour; which ſhe obſerved ſo punctually, that ſhe contented her ſelf with a Grant of Indulgences for a Confrery in the Church of Refuge in Naples, whereof ſhe her ſelf was choſen Protectreſs. Greg. Leti.

CAMILLE, Queen of the Volſci; ſhe was killed as ſhe was leading Succour to Turnus, and to the Latins againſt Æneas. It was Aruntius, or Aronce, that killed her, and he was puniſhed immediately for it. Virg. Æneid.

CAMILLI, was the Name which the ancient Romans gave the young Boys that ſerved the Prieſts of Jupiter in their Sacrifices. They alſo called young Girls Camillæ, who were employed in any of their Sacred Myſteries. And hence it was that Mercury, in the ancient Language of the Hetrurians, was called Camillus, that is, Miniſter, or Servant of the Gods, as Plutarch mentions it in the Life of Numa. Bochart remarks, That the Augurs, or Soothſayers, and the Miniſters of the Gods, were called Koſemins by the Hebrews, as the Romans call them Caſmilles, from the Hebrew Words Coſme-el, which in the Holy Tongue ſignifies the Miniſters of God. Bochart. de Animal Sac. Part. 1. l. 2.

CAMILLUS, (M. Furius) Conſul, Military Tribune, and Roman Dictator. He defeated the Faliſques; and after a Siege of 10 years, took the Town of Veji, in the 358th year of Rome, whence he brought a great Booty, which he diſtributed amongſt the Soldiers againſt his Vow; wherefore he was baniſhed ſome time after: But before this, he conſecrated the Temple of Juno, and that of Maluta, or Leucothoe. During his Exile, the Galli Senones beſieged Rome; he came to its Relief, and defeated the Enemy, which got him the Name of a Second Romulus, and Deliverer of his Country, hindring the Romans from quitting their City, and retiring to Veſes. After this, he put the Laws in their former force, ſubdued the Volſci, and defeated the Tuſcans and other neighbouring People. Laying Siege to Faleria in 360. a Schoolmaſter brought him the Children of the moſt conſiderable Families of the Town, whom Camillus received, but without ſtaining his Honour with the Baſeneſs of this Man; for he ſent him home again bound, and the Children along with him; which charmed the Inhabitants ſo, that they ſurrendred to their Generous Enemy. The Noiſe of a new Incurſion of the Gauls into Italy, made him be choſen Dictator for the 5th time. In 387. he defeated the Enemy, who were come as far as the Plains of Alba, and returned in Triumph to Rome 23 years after he had delivered her from the laſt Extremity before; and died of the Plague 2 years after, in the 389th of Rome, and the 365th year before the Chriſtian Æra. Plut. T. Liv. Flor. Aur. Victor.

CAMILLUS, (L. Furius) a Roman Conſul and Dictator, Son to the firſt, and worthy of ſuch a Father. He was named Dictator in 404. and the year after choſen Conſul with Appius Claudius Craſſus, who dying ſoon after, Camillus was forced to reſiſt the Gauls alone. He had the good Fortune to defeat them; and it was in this Rencounter that Valerius killed one of the Gauls, through the Aſſiſtance (as 'tis ſaid) of a Crow that flew about his Head; which is the reaſon that he is called Corvinus. In 416. being Conſul with C. Menenius Nepos, they overthrew the Latins, and were honoured with their Statues on Horſeback, which was allowed none before them. Camillus made himſelf alſo Maſter of the Town of Antium; and taking away all the Gallies he found in the Port, he had their Braſs Prows carried to the great Place of Orations, or Publick Speeches, which were for that reaſon afterwards called Roſtra, and pro Roſtris. In 429. of Rome, he was again Conſul with Decius Junius Brutus Scæva; the laſt marched againſt the Pelignians, Marſi, and Veſtinians; but being taken very ill upon the way, he named his Dictator, the moſt famous General of his time, which was L. Papirius Curſor. T. Liv. Plin.

CAMILLUS Scribonianus, was choſen Emperor by the Romans, being tired of Claudius's Reign; but he was ſoon forſaken by his Party, and afterwards murthered; and his Wife Arria, unwilling to ſurvive him, killed her ſelf A.C. 42. Tacit.

CAMIN, Lat. Caminum, a ſmall City in the farther Pomerania, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Ginſen, whereas heretofore it belonged to Magdeburg. It ſtands on the Eaſtern Shoar of the River Diwenow, overagainſt the Iſland of Wolenſche, not above a mile from the Baltick Sea, and about ſeven from Stetin to the North. This belongs to the Duke of Brandenburg by the Treaty of Weſtphalia, and has embraced the Auguſtan Confeſſion. Long. 39. 30. Lat. 54. 12.

CAMIS, Idols which the Japonians adore, and chiefly the Bonzi, or Miniſters of the Sect of Xenxus. Theſe Idols repreſent the Principal Lords of Japan, to whom the Bonzi erect magnificent Temples, as to Gods, and invoke them to recover their Health, and to gain Victories over their Enemies. Kircher de la Chine.

CAMMA, a Lady of Galatia, married Sinatus, who was much eſteemed in that Country. This diſguſted Sinorix ſo much, who was mightily in love with Camma, that he got Sinatus killed. In the mean time the Widow retired to the Temple of Diana, to lament her Loſs, where ſhe was followed by Sinorix, who employed all his Care and Friends to gain her Love. The Lady feigned to be ſomewhat pleaſed with the Services of the one, and ſeeming to give ear to the continual Requeſts of the others, promiſed to accept of him for her Husband; ſo ſent for him to the Church, where ſhe preſented him the Nuptial Cup, wherein ſhe had mixed Poiſon; and finding that he drank one half of it, ſhe took the other off her ſelf, proteſting ſhe was not in the leaſt concerned at her Death, ſince ſhe had revenged her Husband's. Plut. des Vertues des Femmes.

CAMOENS, (Lewis) a famous Poet, called by his Country-men the Virgil of Portugal. He was born of a good Family, and gave great Proofs of his great Genius for Poetry in his very Youth, whilſt he ſtudied in the Univerſity of Coimbra; but having no Eſtate to maintain him, he went into the Army, where he behaved himſelf with a great deal of Honour: But being ſent to Ceuta in Africa, he loſt one of his Eyes in its Defence againſt the Moors. From thence he returned to Portugal, and from Portugal he went to the Indies. He was in ſome Eſteem with the Officers of the Navy for his Wit; but being ſomewhat Satyrical upon one of the Chief Commanders, he was forced to withdraw out of the reach of his Anger. He then went to the Frontiers of China, where he lighted of a Conveniency to come to Goa; and coming thence to Portugal, he was caſt away, loſt all his Goods, and had much a-do to ſave his Life. At laſt he made a ſhift to come to his Country, but very poor, not having wherewithal to ſubſiſt. It was then he ended his Poem, Entituled, As Luſiadas, which he Dedicated to Dom Sebaſtian, then King of Portugal; but that Prince being then young, and thoſe that were about his Perſon no Admirers of Poetry, the unfortunate Poet was much diſappointed, and was forced to live the reſt of his days miſerably in Portugal, where he died in 1579. Beſides that Poem of his, which has been tranſlated into divers Languages, we have a Collection of divers Pieces, under the Name of Rimus de Luis de Camoens. His other Works are loſt. He is accuſed of mixing Fables of Paganiſm with the Truth of Chriſtian Religion, and of having ſpoken, without Diſcretion, of Prophane Deities in a Chriſtian Poem. Nicolas Antonio Bibl. Hiſp.

CAMPAGNA, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples in the furthermoſt Principality, with the Title of Marquiſate and Biſhop's See, Suffragan of Conza, to which has been joined that of Saby, now a ruined Town. Campagna is of Salern ſide, three or four Leagues from the Sea.

CAMPAGNA di Roma; Pliny, in his Natural Hiſtory, Lib. 2. Cap. 5. ſaith of this Country, What Pen is able ſufficiently to diſplay the Beauties of theſe Shoars, the bleſſed and raviſhing Pleaſantneſs of this Soil! So that Nature ſeemed to to have prodigally ſpent all her Skill in the Enriching and Adorning this one Spot of Land. She alone enjoys a lively, ever healthful Air. How fertile are her Fields! How ſoft and eaſie are her Hills! How innocent and harmleſs are her Foreſts! How dark the Shades of her Woods! How vaſtly numerous are the Kinds of Trees, and how uſeful to Mankind! How pleaſant are the Breezes from her Mountains! The abundance of her Fruits, Vines, and Olives, the noble Fleeces of her Flocks, her fat and lovely Bulls, the Beauty and Plenty of her Lakes, Rivers, and Fountains, which water her in all places, are all of them inexpreſſible. Her large Bays, ſafe Ports, quiet Creeks, and Boſom always open to receive the Commerce of the whole World; and the many Promontories which ſhe thruſts into the Sea like Arms, ſeems to aſſure Mankind how ready and deſirous ſhe is to ſuccour thoſe that approach her, and ſecure them in her Arms, from the Violence of the Waves. Thus elegantly the Naturaliſt deſcribes the State of it in his time. Campagnia, ſaith Florus, is the moſt beautiful Vale not only in Italy, but in the whole World. There is in Nature nothing ſofter than its Air, which makes the Flowers to ſpring twice in one year. There is nothing more fruitful than the Soil, which is ſaid to be the Stage on which Bacchus and Ceres try their utmoſt which ſhall be Conqueror. There is nothing more kind to Paſſengers than her Seas: Here are the Noble Ports of Cajeta and Miſenus, and the warm Baths of Baiæ; the ſmooth Lakes of Lucrinus and Avernus, into which Neptune retires to enjoy a ſweet Repoſe. Here the Mountains called Gaurus, Falernus, and Maſſicus, are covered with excellent Vines. Veſuvius imitates the Flames of Ætna. This Province came to the Popes, as Sovereigns of Rome, to which, for many Ages, it has been annexed. It was the Seat of the ancient Latins, who were conquered with great difficulty by the Romans, in the year of Rome 296. They revolted after the City was ſacked by the Gauls, and were again conquered in the year of Rome 414. But whatever it was then, it is now one of the moſt deſolate Countries in the World, (as Dr. Burnet aſſures us) there being not an Houſe to be ſeen as far as one's Eyes can carry one, though it is a moſt rich Champaign Country; nay, the very Air too is become unhealthful for want of Inhabitants and draining the Ground. This he aſcribes to the Rigour of the Government, which hath driven away the Inhabitants, and made the Country almoſt not habitable.

CAMPANELLA, (Thomas) a Friar of St. Dominick's Order, was of Stilo, a little Town of Calabria: He became famous in the Art of making Syllogiſms, and got much Reputation in Diſputing at the Publick Act; but having anſwered ſomewhat ſourly to an old Profeſſor of Divinity, of his own Order at Naples, the old Man got him into the Inquiſition, under Pretence of Hereſie, and of being about to deliver that City to their Enemies. He was kept in the Inquiſition for 25 years, and treated very cruelly, being put 24 times to the Queſtion; but at laſt Pope Urban VIII. got him his Liberty, and he came to Paris in 1634. where he taught Philoſophy with ſome Reputation, and was in ſome Eſteem with the Cardinal of Richelieu. He died in 1639. being the 71ſt year of his Age. He compoſed ſeveral Books, and had this Character from one of his own Country: That he had a great deal of Wit, but little Judgment, and that he wanted Solidity and Diſcretion. He wrote Phyſiologia. Quæſtiones Phyſiologicæ. De Senſu rerum. Atheiſmus Triumphatus. Opuſcula Phyſica, Mathematica, Poetica. Tractatus Aſtrologicus. Monarchia Hiſpaniæ, &c. Gaſſendi. Lorenzo Craſſo.

CAMPASPE, or Pantaſté, the Name of a very handſom Woman, which Alexander the Great loved, and commanded Apelles to draw her Picture; which he did; but fell in Love with her in the Work; which when Alexander perceived, he conſented that he ſhould have her. Pliny.

CAMPATOIS, a Heretick Sect, which St. Jerome, writing againſt the Luciferians, calls Montois. They roſe againſt the Church in the 4th Age, and followed the Doctrine of the Donatiſts and Circuncellians. Prateole.

CAMPDEN, a Market-Town in Glocceſterſhire, in the Hundred of Kiſtgate. The Earl of Gainsborough, Viſcount Campden, has a Seat here.

CAMPECH, a Town in the Yaccatan, in the Bay of Mexico, on the North Shoar, in 19. 00. North Lat. 50 Leagues from Merida, having a large but ſhallow Haven. This Town was taken by William Parker, an Engliſh-man, by ſurprize, in the year 1596. and plundered by a ſingle Ship's Company, together with a large Frigat, that had taken in the King of Spain's Tribute for that Year.

CAMPEGI, or Campeius, (Laurence) Cardinal: He lived in the 14th Age, and was of Bononia, where he ſtudied in the Law, and after roſe by degrees, until he got a Cardinal's Hat in 1517. In 1524. he was ſent Legate into Germany againſt the Lutherans, Clement VIII. being then Pope, where he made ſome Ordinances for the Reformation of Manners. He was afterwards ſent Legate into England, to be Judge of the Divorce of Henry VIII. who had a mind to annul his Marriage with Catharine of Spain, that he might marry Anne Bullen. The Pope recalled him the year after, finding that nothing could be concluded to his Mind in that Buſineſs. He was Biſhop of Bononia in the year 1523. and aſſiſted at the Coronation of Charles V. in that City, whence he went Legate into Germany, and aſſiſted at the Diet of Augsburg; and at his return, the Pope being dead, he gave his Voice for Paul III. who named him his Legate at the ſitting of the Council of Vicenza, which was afterwards continued at Trent. He died in 1539. Onuphr. Sleidan. Sigon. in Epiſc. Bonon. Lib. 3. Spondan. in Annal.

CAMPEN, a Town of the Low Countries, in the Province of Over-Yſſel, ſituated upon the left Bank of Yſſel, within 5 Leagues of Deventer. It's a very pretty Place, and can drown all the Neighbourhood, which lies lower. Latin Authors call it Campi. It gave its Name to Heimeric of Campen, known under the Name of Heimericus de Campo. He lived in the 15th Age, and taught Philoſophy at Cologne. He was afterwards at the Council of Baſle, where he was much eſteemed by Cardinal Cuſanus, a Man of great Learning, who perſuaded him to write ſome Treatiſes, whereof that De Authoritate Coucilii, was the moſt conſiderable. Afterwards he ſtuck to Eugenius IV. and publiſhed the Reaſons that made him act ſo, in an Apology which we have of his. He died afterwards in the Low Countries, in 1460. Beſides the Works before mentioned, he writ Compendium Quæſtionum. Super Sententias, Lib. 4. De Eſſe. De Eſſentia. Compendium Divinorum. Quæſtiones variæ, &c. Campen (John) commonly called vanden Campen, was of the ſame Town, and lived in the beginning of the 16th Age, was a great Maſter of Languages, which he afterwards taught at Louvain. Pope Leo X. ſent for him to Rome, where he gave him a Canonicate; and as coming back again into the Low Countries, he died of the Plague at Fribourg in Briſgaw, in 1538. He left a Hebrew Grammar, and a Paraphraſe on the Pſalms, &c. This Author is not the ſame with John Campen the Carmelite, that lived about 1404. who compoſed Commentaries upon the Sentences; Quodlibetorum Opus; and, Summulæ artium. In 1520. there was a War between the Inhabitants of Campen and Zwol, for the Cuſtoms to be paid upon the Yſſel, both Cities claiming them: They of Zwol called Charles the Fifth to their Aſſiſtance, who overpowered both the Parties, and poſſeſſed the thing in controverſie, to the great Diſſatisfaction of the Inhabitants of Zwol. This City enjoyed the Liberty of Minting their own Moneys till 1553. when that Privilege was taken from them by Charles the Fifth. Though this Town ſtands in the Veluwe, yet it belongs to Over-Yſſel, and is a Rich and a Beautiful City, and ſeated near the old Roman Port. It was built ſince the times that Chriſtianity was ſettled here by Charles the Great. It became a Free Imperial City in 1394. with Zwol and Deventer. In 1578. the Garriſon of this Town refuſing to ſubmit to the States, and declaring for John Duke of Auſtria, the Spaniſh Governour, the Count de Remeberg beſieged and took it for the States. This Place was ordered to be fortified by the States in 1688.

CAMPIAN, (Edmund) a Jeſuit, born in London, and living till towards the end of the 16th Century: He was a Polite and Good-natured Perſon: His Education was at Oxford, where he was Proctor, and afterwards took Deacon's Orders in the Church of England; which not long after he renounc'd for the Romiſh Communion, and turned Jeſuit at Rome in 1573. In 1581. he was indicted for High Treaſon, for adhering to the Biſhop of Rome, Queen Elizabeth's Enemy, and for raiſing Forces to abett that Intereſt. He was caſt at his Trial, and afterwards executed, perſiſting obſtinately to the laſt to defend the Pope's Authority againſt the Queen. He had ſome time before, in a written Paper, challenged the Engliſh Clergy to a Diſputation. He wrote a Book in Latin, called, Decem Rationes, in Defence of the Doctrine of the Church of Rome; and a General Cronology. Cambden's Eliz. Spondan. An. C. 1580, 1581.

CAMPIANO, a little Town in the Village of Taro, which is called by thoſe of the Country Stato di val di Taro. It is ſituated near the River Taro; and becauſe it is an important Paſs, the Dukes of Parma, to whom it belongs, take care to fortifie it well.

CAMPOBASSE, a Neapolitan Count, who being in the Service of Charles Duke of Burgundy, Son to Philip the Good, conſpired againſt him, and got him murthered, in 1477.

CAMPO-LONGO, (Æmilius) a Profeſſor of Phyſick at Padua, 1578. His Works are, Methodus Conſultandi. De Variolis. De Arthritide. Thomaſin in Elog. Illuſt. Viror. p. 1.

CAMPSON-CAURI, Soldan of Egypt, was raiſed to that Dignity by the Mammelucks about 1540; he was againſt it himſelf in the beginning, when he conſidered the Misfortunes that happened to the Princes of Egypt in ſo ſhort a time before, by the Faction of the moſt conſiderable of the State. Fortune, that drew him from Miſery and Slavery to place him among the Mammelucks, helped him with the chiefeſt Employments about the Soldans, and at laſt ſettled him upon the Throne. He Governed with great Prudence, quieted the Troubles of the Kingdom, by putting to Death the principal Fomenters of them. Afterwards he ſent an Army into the Indies, to drive the Portugueſes thence, that he might poliſh and refine his own Subjects with Commerce. It's true, his Deſigns had not the ſucceſs he propoſed to himſelf; for the Portugueſes worſted his Fleet the 13th of February 1509. Nevertheleſs, Campſon was a great Man in the Eaſt, and was, as it were, the Counterpois of Two great Monarchs, Iſmael King of Perſia, and Selim Emperor of the Turks; but was at laſt oppreſſed by the laſt, and by the Treachery of one of his own Subjects, called Caierbey, Governor of Aleppo and Comagena; for Selim pretending to march againſt Iſmael, came againſt Campſon, who expected him with his Army. Both met in Comagena, in the ſame place where the Turks defeated the Perſians the year before; Caierbey deſerting to Selim, the Mammelucks were routed, and Campſon being 70 years of Age, being Corpulent, and having a Rupture, fell from his Horſe, and was trod to Death. Leunclavius, Paul. Jov.

CAMPUS-PIORUM, a famous Place in Sicily, near Catane, where the Two Brothers, Amphinomus and Anapus carried their Father and Mother upon their Backs, and ſaved them from the Flames of Mount Ætna; as Valerius Maximus has it in his Fifth Book.

CAMUS, (Stephen) Biſhop of Grenoble, named by Lewis the Fourteenth to that Biſhoprick, but became Cardinal without the Nomination of his King, by the proper Motion of Innocent XI. in 1687. He leads an Exemplary Life, and of all the French Biſhops, was the moſt againſt the Dragoon Perſecution, and moſt unwilling that the pretended Converts ſhould be forced by Methods of Severity. He is alſo very moderate upon the Points of Religion, and has publiſhed a Letter ſome years ago to the Prieſts of his Dioceſs, upon the Worſhiping of Images, and the Invocation of Saints, which has made a great Noiſe.

CAMUSAT, (John) a famous Printer of Paris, and one of the Ableſt and moſt Underſtanding Bookſellers there. As he was a Man of great Senſe, and a good Judge of Books, he never Printed any but what was very good; ſo that at laſt it became an infallible Sign of the Worth of a Book, to be Printed by him, which was the reaſon the French Academy choſe him for their Bookſeller. Relat. de L. Acad. Françoiſe.

CAMUSAT, (Nicholas) Canon of Troy in Champaigne, liv'd in the Seventeenth Century, and was Eminent for his Learning. He wrote ſeveral Things, particularly, a Book, Entituled, Promptuarium Sacrarum Antiquitatum. Tricaſſini Diœceſis, &c.

CANA, a little Town of Galilee, in the Tribe of Zabulon, where Chriſt wrought his firſt Miracle, changing Water into Wine at a Wedding that he was at, and afterwards coming to this Town, he cured the Son of one of the King's Officers. John the Evangeliſt mentions this in chap. 2. and 4. for it is of it that he ſpeaks thus; It was there that Jeſus Chriſt wrought his ſecond Miracle, i. e. the ſecond which he did at Cana, for it's ſo St. Auguſtin explains it, when he makes the Evangeliſts agree in his Treatiſe upon this Subject. Cana is now but a poor Village, inhabited by Mahometans, and the Church which the Empreſs Helena built, where the Houſe was that our Saviour did this Miracle in, does not belong to the Chriſtians. The Building is ancient, all of hewen and wrought Stones, and conſiſts of the Church, ſupported in the midſt by Pillars, and the Houſe the Eccleſiaſticks live in, between which and the Church is a ſpacious Court, that has a great Door to it; the great Stone that ſerves as Lintel to this Door, has three Pitchers raiſed in Relief, and an old Inſcription half blotted out, which ſhews that this is the Place where Jeſus Chriſt changed Water into Wine. The Church is now prophaned by the Infidels, who have turned it into a Moſque, and the Apartments are taken up by the Santons, or Mahometan Clergy. Doubdan Voyage de la terre Sainte.

CANAAN, Palæſtina, Judea, Terra Sancta, or The Land of Promiſe, was the nobleſt part of Syria, extended in a long Tract of Land, from the South-Weſt to the North-Eaſt; on the Eaſt it had Syria and Arabia, on the South the Deſert of Pharan and Egypt, on the Weſt the Great and Mediterranean Sea, and on the North Mount Libanus, which ſeparated it from Phœnicia. From Berſheba in the South, to Dan, afterward called Cæſarea Philippi, in the North, it ſtretched 67 German Miles, or 288 Engliſh Miles, ſaith Hornius, Fuller only 160 Engliſh Miles; according to Ptolemy 180 Miles, from the Mediterranean Sea to the Mountains of Syria: In Breadth it was 16 German Miles, 64 Engliſh Miles; according to Fuller 80. It had the Name of Canaan from one of the Sons of Ham, who firſt Peopled it ſoon after the general Deluge. Beſides thoſe, there were many other Nations that inhabited this Land before the Children of Iſrael conquered it. The Amorites lived on the Eaſt of Jordan, from Arnon to Jabock, a populous and potent Nation, and the firſt that were conquered by Moſes. The Philiſtins were deſcended of Miſraim the Son of Ham, and dwelt from Cæſarea Palæſtina to Gaza on the Mediterranean Sea. The Hittites dwelt about Hebron, on the Eaſt of the Philiſtines, with whom Abraham and his Poſterity for many years converſed. The Jebuſites were next them to the Weſt, and built Jeruſalem, Anno Mundi 2023. The Perizzites were next theſe to the Weſt from Bethel to Samaria. The Girgaſhites lived to the North Eaſt of the Lake of Tiberias, towards Cœlo-Syria. The Sidonians lived at the Foot of Mount Libanus, upon the Mediterranean Sea. All theſe Nations were become Pagan Idolaters to the utmoſt degree, when God gave them up into the Hands of the Iſraelites, after their return from Egypt. God deſcribes the Fertility of this Land, by ſaying it flowed with Milk and Honey; denoting the Abundant of Plenty of all that was neceſſary or pleaſant, ſo that indeed it was the Paradiſe of the whole Earth. Its preſent State in its Deſolation and Deſertion is no leſs miſerable; ſo that Travellers that now ſee it, wonder how ſuch Numbers of Men, and ſo many potent Cities could heretofore ſubſiſt in ſo ſmall and barren a Spot of Ground. The Lands beyond Jordan were divided between the Tribes of Reuben, Gad, and the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, in the year of the World 2493. The ſame year Moſes died, and the Iſraelites went over Jordan under the Conduct of Joſhua, to the Conqueſt of Canaan on this ſide Jordan; ſix years that War laſted, and the 7th the Diviſion was made; ſo that in the year 2500 every Man was peaceably ſetled in his Inheritance, and the Land divided among the Tribes. Aſher.

CANADA, a great Country in America Septentrionalis, which is alſo named New France, becauſe the French poſſeſs the better part of it, and have divers Colonies there. Beſides this, it was they that diſcovered it in 1504. and John Verrazan, a Florentine, took Poſſeſſion of it in 1525. in Francis the Firſt's Name. After Verrazan's Death, who was taken and devoured by the Savages, James Cartier, of St. Malo, ſubdued this ſame Country in 1534. The French, who had neglected theſe Navigations, were again engaged in them, by reaſon of their Commerce in Florida, in the Reign of Charles IX. and Henry IV. In 1604. the Colony ſent thither increaſed conſiderably, and has given the Names of the Towns in France to them that they have built in this Country. Under the Name of Canada is comprehended all the Country that lies along the great River of Canada, or of St. Lawrence, from the Iſlands which are over againſt its Mouth, up as far as we know, and from the Gulphs and Streights of Davis and Hudſon to New Spain; ſo that this Name may comprehend all the Iſlands of Terra Nova or Newfoundland, the Land of Labrado, and the particular Canada, which gives its Name to the Country. The Acadia, Seguenay, Iroquois, Hurons, the Algonquins, and a great number of other People not yet known. The Europeans have given particular Names to the Parts of the Country they are Maſters of; ſo that there are in Canada (beſides a New France) a New England, a New Holland, and a New Swedeland. The Land is Woody, and of a cold Temper. We have Caſtors, Train Oil, and Green Fiſh or Cod thence. The Savages are divided into ſeveral Nations, under the Government of their Samagos, who are the eldeſt of their Families, and ſpeak ſeveral Tongues. They are moſt of them wild, count their Years by the Courſe of the Sun, their Months by the Moon, the Seaſons by what happens conſiderable in them. In cold Weather they cover themſelves with Elk, Caſtor, Otter, and Bear Skins, much after the Faſhion that the Ancients have repreſented Hercules, and that we paint St. John Baptiſt. They wear great Stockings in Winter, and go always bare-headed; and the Women wear, as Ornaments, the Trifles that we carry them out of this Country. They have their Feaſts at Marriages, and at their Victories, and when they receive their Friends; and they take a great quantity of Tobacco, which is the reaſon perhaps why their Merriments are called Tabagies. Here they eat the Enemies they have taken in War: They Marry many Wives, who are for the moſt part barren, for they eat of a certain Root to make themſelves Miſcarry when they find they are Breeding, becauſe their Husbands forſake them as ſoon as they find they are with Child: Young Women are not very diſcreet, but Married Women are forc'd to be, for the Savages mark them in the Face that have ſinned for the firſt Puniſhment, at the ſecond time they cut a Piece of the Fleſh of the Face; and if they find them do amiſs the third time, they put them to Death without any Mercy. They have ſeveral Exerciſes, and have many ſingular ways of Hunting. Their Religion is very odd too. The People the French Traffick with, beſides thoſe of Canada, are the Hurons, the Algonquins, the Attiquameques, Nipiſirians, Montagnets, thoſe of Seguenay, of Acade, &c. and all this Trade conſiſts in Exchange; they give us Caſtor, Otter, Martin, and Sea-Wolves Skins, and we give them Bread, Peaſe, Beans, Prunes, Pots, Kettles, Bills, Awls, Bodkins, Rugs, &c. The particular Canada is on the Right, and above the lower Part of the long River; and the French have many Colonies in it, viz. at the Holy Croſs at Todenſac, at St. Joſeph at Quebec, where are a Hoſpital and a Monaſtery of Urſelins. This Colony of Quebec, eſtabliſhed in 1608. is the moſt conſiderable. There are others in St. Joſeph of Sillery, another of Conception at Richelieu, Montroyal, &c. Nothing is neglected to make theſe poor Savages become Chriſtians; ſuch of them who have embraced Religion are very Faithful and Good. Linſchot. du Val.

CANADA, or St. Laurence, a great River of Northern America, and one of the faireſt in the World. It is 200 Fathoms deep, and is 25 or 30 Leagues large at the Mouth, where are the Gulph of St. Laurence, and the Iſlands of Newfoundland. That part that is known of its length is near 500 Leagues, and ſome People pretend that a Way may be found through the Lakes, whence this River is ſaid to ſpring, to go to the Eaſt-Indies by the Weſt. This River has its Source in the Weſt of America, and afterwards receives Two very conſiderable Rivers, which come from the North, which are the Seguenay, and that which is called the Three Rivers; and it diſcharges it ſelf in the Gulph of St. Lawrence, towards the Iſle of Natiſcotec, and an Iſland of Newfoundland. It abounds not only with freſh Water Fiſh, but alſo with Sea-Fiſh. Its banks are very pleaſant, being bordered with wild Vines; and its Chanel, which is very large, contains many great Iſlands. The Nut-Tree Iſland is Three Leagues long, and Two broad. The Iſle of Orleans, formerly called the Iſle of Bacchus, by reaſon of the great quantity of wild Vines that grow in it. It is ſix Leagues long, and one and a half broad, which, with all the Country that borders upon the Rivers of Canada, is inhabited by Savages, who, though they ſeem of a melancholick and dull Humour, are yet very merry; they ſpeak ſlowly, and ſeem to think firſt. They who live near Quebec, fiſh for Eels from September to the end of October, and keep them dry for Winter; and in time of the great Snows, which ſometimes is three foot high over all the Ground, they Hunt Caſtors, and tye a kind of Racket to the Soles of their Feet, to go the better upon the Snow. When they have eaten their dry'd Eels and their Veniſon, they look for Snails, and if they are much bit with Hunger, they feed upon their Dogs. Theſe People are very Revengeful, and exerciſe extraordinary Cruelty upon their Enemies; they are alſo very Treacherous, and there is no truſting to their Promiſes, the moſt part of them living without either Law, or Religion. They have ſome Magicians and Witches, which they call Pillotoas, who pretend, they ſpeak very familiarly with the Devil, and receive from him the Knowledge of Things to come. Some repreſent them to be very ugly and deformed, though the People are well enough, but of a middle Stature, a kind of Olive-Colour, cauſed by certain Drugs which they rub themſelves with, not that it is their natural Dye; and ſome of them mark their Skins with Figures, made with the Points of certain Inſtruments. In Summer they go quite naked, but in Winter they wear wild Beaſts Skins. Their Arms are a Bow and Arrows, a great Wooden Club, and a Buckler covered with Leather. The Women, when they come to be 14 or 15 years old, proſtitute themſelves to them they like, and after they have ſpent a year in this Laſcivious Liberty, chooſe a Husband, with whom they live very chaſte all the reſt of their Lives. If they be found Barren, it is lawful for their Husbands to repudiate them, and take others. When they bury their Dead, they put their Cloaths, their Arms, and what they loved moſt in their Life-time, by them in the Grave. They who have any kind of Religion, believe the Immortality of the Soul, and that there's a Place of Pleaſure in the other World, where the Dead live with their Friends. The Savages, who live between the Cape of St. Lewis, to the Mouth of the River, and are called Montaineers, Canadois, and Souriquois, do not Till the Ground, but live very poor; but thoſe who live above the Leap, as the Algoumequins, Ochaſtagnins, and Iroquois, ſow their Land, and have pretty good Corn. The Attigouantans, who live towards the Lake of Champlain, dwell in Places made in form of Ovens, covered with the Bark of Trees, 30 yards long, and 6 wide; on both ſides are a kind of Lofts, raiſed 3 or 4 foot from the Ground, upon which they reſt, during the great Heats of Summer, and in Winter they lie upon Mats near the Fire, which they kindle in ſeveral places of their Houſes, according to the number of the Families that live in the ſame Dwelling, which are ſometimes above 20 in all. Their ordinary Food is Indian Wheat, or Turky Beans; they look upon Dogs and Bears Fleſh to be very delicate, and dreſs it in their great Feaſts with that of other Wild Beaſts. Several of them paint their Faces with Black or Red, mixt with Bears Greaſe; and the Men hardly apply themſelves to any thing but Hunting, Fiſhing, and Traffick. Women follow their Husbands to the War, and carry their Baggage for them. Their greateſt Laws or Religion is, that ſometimes they aſſemble a Council of the ancienteſt People in each Village, to deliberate what they are to do, and ſuperſtitiouſly Honour a certain Deity, which they call Oqui, which is a Name they give to all they admire more than ordinary, and call their very Magicians ſo, which other Savages call Manitons. The Magicians practiſe Phyſick and Chirurgery, and pretend to foretel what is to come. Their way of practiſing Phyſick is very extravagant, for they do nothing elſe but Dance, Sing, and Drink by the Sick, to Cure them, as they ſay, with this Mirth. In Winter, which laſts from the beginning of December to the end of March, they make good Chear, and invite the next Village to their Feaſts; ſo that ſometimes there are 500 Savages, with their Wives and Children, all in a Company, whereof ſome diſguiſe themſelves, and run through the Villages Dancing and Singing with the young Women, who upon ſuch Occaſions are extraordinary well Dreſs'd. De Laet Hiſtoire du Nouveau Monde.

CANAL, an Artificial Cavity to receive part of the Sea or a River: The Ancients have often taken a great deal of Pains to no purpoſe, to cut through Iſthmuſſes, with a deſign to make a Communication by Water, from one Place to another. Herodotus reports, that the Gnidians, Inhabitants of Caria in Aſia Minor, attempted to dig through the Iſthmus, which joins the Peninſula of Gnidius to the Continent, but were diſſuaded to proceed by the Oracle, the Enterprize being likely to be of dangerous Conſequence: Several Kings of Egypt have endeavour'd to join the Red-Sea with the Mediterranean, by a Canal, open'd from the Red-Sea to one of the Arms of the River Nile, which diſcharges it ſelf into the Mediterranean. Cleopatra likewiſe was for attempting this Project; and the Turkiſh Solyman the Second employ'd 150000 Men upon this Buſineſs to no purpoſe. The Greeks and the Romans had a mind to make a Canal croſs the Iſthmus of Corinth, which joins the Morea to Achaia, with a deſign to make a Communication between the Ionian Sea and the Archi-Pelago. King Demetrius, Julius Cæſar, Caligula, and Nero, made their Experiments, but without ſucceſs; and 'tis obſervable, that all the grand Projectors came to an unfortunate end. In the Reign of Nero, Lucius Verus, one of his Generals in Gaul, endeavoured to join the Saone and the Mozelle by a Canal, drawn from the one to the other, and to make a Communication between the Mediterranean and the German Sea, by an uninterrupted Navigation on the Rhone, the Saone, the Mozelle, and the Rhine, but this Deſign was dropt, being hinder'd by Helius Gracilis, who envied Lucius Verus the glory on't. King Lewis the Thirteenth made the Canal of Briare to join the Loire and the Seine together by the River Loine; and King Lewis the Fourteenth has made the Canal of Languedoc for a Communication between the Mediterranean and the Ocean, by the Garonne. Bergier Hiſtoire des Grands Chemins. Bernard de la Conjunction des Mers.

CANANOR, a Town and Kingdom in the Peninſula of Indus, on this ſide the Ganges in Malabar; it ends at the River Gancerocora, where Malabar begins, and reaches to Puripatan. Beſides the Capital City, which gives this Kingdom its Name, there are alſo the Towns of Cota, Mongate, Marabis, Caroba, &c. Cananor is about 25 Leagues in length, all by the Shore ſide. The Hollanders have ſome time paſt taken the Capital City, and the King of this Country has poſſeſſed himſelf of the Iſles, Divanduron and Malicut, amongſt the Maldives. Maſſeus Hiſt. de Indes.

CANARA, a Kingdom of the Peninſula, on this ſide the Ganges, and the Gulph of Bengala, upon the Weſtern Coaſt in Narſingue of Biſnagar. Barboſa calls it Tulamar. The River of Gangerocora, which it has to the South, parts it from Malabar, as that of Aliga, which is to the North of it, divides it from the Kingdoms of Cuncan or Cunkan; and Eaſtwards there are Mountains that ſeparate it from Biſnagar Proper, and to the Weſt of it is the Indian Sea. It comprehends the Kingdoms of Onor and Baricala upon the Coaſt, and farther in the firm Land, Borcopa which reaches to the Mountains of Gate. The King, and great part of his Subjects, are Pagans, and the reſt are Mahometans. The Canarians are Enemies to the Malabars, and in continual War with them; they are all good Soldiers, and underſtand Mining very well; their Ways and Cuſtoms are much the ſame with the Subjects of the Great Mogul, to whom the King of Canara is Tributary. Their fantaſtical way of ſolemnizing their great Feaſt is very ſtrange and ſurpriſing. Their Idols are carried in Triumph upon Carts adorned with Flowers; the Wheels have great Hooks faſtned to the Spokes, upon which, ſuch as are minded to ſignalize their Zeal, caſt themſelves to turn with the Wheel, and others lay themſelves upon the Ground to be cruſhed to Death by the Chariot, and ſo periſh in the fooliſh thoughts of becoming Immortal, for undergoing that Death for the Glory of their Gods. The manner of puniſhing Criminals in Canara is alſo very remarkable. They are ty'd Hand and Foot, and ſtrip'd naked, then plac'd upon Sand, and expoſed to the Heat of the Sun, that by this, and the Biting of Flies, they may die a lingring Death. Though this Kingdom is but ſmall, it is nevertheleſs very fertile, for it furniſheth the greateſt part of Europe with Rice, beſides what it ſends into the Iſlands of the Sunde, and other Parts of the Eaſt. Dellon Relation des Indes Orientales.

CANARIES, Iſlands of the Atlantick Sea, to the Weſt of Africa, the Ancients call them fortunate Iſlands, oppoſite to Mauritania, and almoſt over-againſt the Capes of Boyador and Non. They are Seven in Number, though the Ancients knew but Six. The moſt conſiderable is Canary, which has a Town of the ſame Name. This Iſland has 18 or 20 Leagues Circuit, and is not only the Chief for its great fertility, but alſo becauſe it is the Place the Governour reſides in. The Town of Canary, or City of Palmes is Great, Fair, and well Peopled; the other Towns are Tedle, Galder, and Guja. There are alſo 12 Sugar Mills in this Iſland. Their Corn is gathered twice a year, in February and May, and they have great abundance of Fruit in all Places. The other Iſlands are Tenariſe, the Iſle of Palma, the Iſle of Ferte, Ventura, Gomora, and Lancelotè. Pliny ſays, That the great Number of Dogs that were found in theſe Iſlands, was the Occaſion of calling them Canaries, from the Latin Word Canis. They were diſcovered by a Frenchman, called Bothencourt, in the time of Pope Clement VI. who gave them, in 1343. to Lewis Count of Clermont, Son of Alfonſus of Cerda, Sirnamed the Diſ-inherited, who was deſcended of the Royal Blood of France and Spain. Since that time they have often changed Maſters, and belong now to the Spaniards. The Inhabitants are Roman Catholicks, and have a Biſhoprick in the Canaries. The Land is very fertile, eſpecially in good Wine, whereof there are near 16000 Hogſheads tranſported every year into England. The Iſland of Ferrera is very famous for a Tree which is ſaid to furniſh the Inhabitants with Water, there being no Spring in the whole Iſland; this Water comes from a Cloud which is ſeen always over the Tree, and diſſolves into Water upon the Leaves, and drops continually into Reſervatories, whither the Inhabitants come to take it; the Girt of the Body of this Tree, which the Spaniards call Saint, is of 12 Foot. Its Height from the Foot is 40, and the Diameter of its Branches is 25. It bears a Fruit with a Kernel like an Acorn, which is of an excellent Aromatick Taſte. Canary Iſles, They are in number Twelve, though the Ancients mention only Six; their Names are, Canaria, Laucharota, Fuerteventura, Hierco, Palma, Gomera, Sta, Clara, Lobos, Roca, Gratioſa, Alegranza & Infierno. They yield plenty of Barly, Sugar, Honey, Goats, and Cheeſe, and Orchel for Dying. The natural Inhabitants are of a good mild Diſpoſition, very nimble, but ſo rude when they were diſcovered, that they knew not the uſe of Fire. They all agree in one God the Creator of the World, and in nothing elſe; nor had they any Iron, which yet they valued afterwards above Silver or Gold. Canaria, the greateſt of them, is 90 Miles in Circuit, and hath about 9000 Inhabitants. Their principal Trade is their Wines, heretofore wonderfully valued in England, but ſo much adulterated, that they are not now enquired after. George Clifford, Earl of Cumberland, in 1598. put out a Fleet of Eleven Ships at his own Charge: He took Lancerata and Boriquena, and Porto Riceo, in which he intended to have ſetled a Colony of Engliſh, but was forced to give over the Deſign by a Sickneſs amongſt his Men. Cambden. The firſt Diſcoverer was Lewis de Cerda, but they were not attempted to be Conquered till the year 1393. Brachamantius, a French Gentleman, in the year 1405. began another Conqueſt, by Grant from Henry Third, King of Caſtile. The Old People that were found here, abhorred the Killing of a Beaſt as diſhonourable, and therefore impoſed it on their Priſoners. Herbert, P. 3. They were attempted by the French in 1417. and Conquered by the Spaniards in 1418. Hackl. T. 2. Part. 2. P. 1.

CANATHE, a Fountain near Nauplia, called now Napoli di Romania. Pauſanias aſſures, that Juno, by waſhing her ſelf every year in this Fountain, became a Maid again.

CANAUESE, or il Canaueſe, a Country of Piedmont in Italy, between the Town of Juree and the River Po. It was heretofore of Montferrat, but now it makes a part of Piedmont; ſince it was left to the Duke of Savoy by the Treaty of Queraſque in 1631.

CANAYE, (Philip) Sieur du Freſne, Privy Counſellor to Henry the Fourth of France. He was Ambaſſador to this Prince at Venice, where he had the ſatisfaction to contribute towards adjuſting the Difference betwixt this Republick and Pope Paul the Fifth. He died in the year 1610. He was a Voluminous Author, but there's none of his Works publiſh'd, excepting his Embaſſies, which are Three Volumes in Folio, where his Life is ſet before them.

CANCER, a Crab, one of the Twelve Signs of the Zodiack, conſiſting of Nine Stars, which are ſaid to repreſent the Figure of a Crab. The Sun enters this Sign in June, and then makes the Summer Solſtice, beginning then to come back again towards the Æquator, which is the likelieſt Reaſon why this Conſtellation was called Cancer, becauſe the Sun, when it enters it, ſeems to go backwards like a Crab. Poets feign that it was the Crab Juno ſent againſt Hercules, when he fought againſt the Hydra of Lerna, and which bit him by the Foot, and that to recompence it for this Service, ſhe placed it in Heaven amongſt the Conſtellations. Hyginus Aſtronom. Poetic.

CANCER, known by the Name of Jacobus Cancerus, a Spaniard living in the end of the Sixteenth Century. He ſettled at Barcelona, where he Practis'd, Pleading at the Bar. He has left an excellent Performance in Three Volumes, Intituled, Variæ Reſolutiones Juris Cæſarei, Pontificii, & Municipalis, Principatus Cataloniæ. Nicholas Antonio Bibl. Hiſp.

CANCHE, or the Canche, a River of Picardy in France, ſprings in Artois near Blaincour, and paſſes by Liguey upon Canche, and at Heſdin, where it receives the Ternois, and afterwards at Montrevil and Eſtaples, where it joins the Sea.

CANCHEU, a great Town in the Province of Kiangſi in China, it is Capital of a Territory of the ſame Name, and governs Eleven Cities. It is a Place of great Commerce and Reſort; and the Reſidence of a Vice-Roy, who commands ſome Towns of the Provinces of Tokien, Quantung and Huquang, which are near Cancheu. This Vice-Roy is not leſs Powerful than the Vice-Roy of the Province of Kiangſi, and was eſtabliſhed in this Country to hinder the Incurſions of Robbers, who continually robb'd upon the Borders of theſe Four Provinces, and afterwards would retire to the Mountains. There is a fine Bridge at Cancheu, built of 130 Boats, faſtned together with Iron Chains, and on the River are Three Mills, like to thoſe of Italy and Germany, which ſerved to water their great Fields ſowed with Rice. Martin Martini.

CANDACE, a common Name to all the Queens of Meroe. An Eunuch of one of theſe Princeſſes returning from Jeruſalem, whither he went as a Proſelyte to make his Vows at the Temple, met the Deacon Philip, and was Baptized by him, as it is mentioned in the 8th Chapter of the Acts of the Apoſtles. This new Convert became JESUS CHRIST's Apoſtle in Æthiopia, according to the Teſtimony of St. Jerome, St. Cyril of Jeruſalem, Euſebius, and of ſeveral other Holy Doctors. St. Dorotheus adds, That he Preached alſo in Arabia Fœlix, and in the Iſle of Taprobane, and that he was at laſt Honoured with a Crown of Martyrdom. As for Candace in particular, Strabo ſpeaking of the Victories which Petronius gained in Africa, ſays, That Queen Reigned in his time in Æthiopia; That ſhe was of a Maſculine Courage, and had but one Eye. And continuing to ſpeak of that Roman, he makes mention of Ambaſſadors which that Queen ſent him, and that becauſe ſhe would not conſent to let him have what he deſired, he took the Town of Napata, from whence one of her Sons made his eſcape. By comparing the times, this Queen ſhould be ſhe we ſpeak of; yet Caſaubon is not of this Opinion, which notwithſtanding Marmol and John of Barros eſteem to be very reaſonable, and is confirmed by the teſtimony of Pliny, St. Irenæus, St. Jerome, St. Cyril.

CANDAHAR, a Town and Province in Aſia, which formerly belonged to Perſia, but is now in the Territories of the Great Mogul. It is pretty forward in Perſia, which is to the Weſt, South, and North of it, and it has Hajacan to the Eaſt. It's ſaid that this Province is fertil enough, eſpecially the Southern Part, but that it wants good Water, that which it has being either brackiſh, or of an ill ſmell. The Pattans, Aguans, and Couli's, famous Robbers, make many incurſions into this Province, to wait for the Caravans that generally come through here from the Indies to Perſia, and this Paſſage renders the Town of Candahar conſiderable, by reaſon of the Duties that Merchandice pay there. The Town is not big, but is very ſtrong and advantageouſly ſituated. It often occaſions War between the Perſians and the Mogul. Cusbeſcunnan is another Town of this Province; the reſt are not of great importance. It was Conquered firſt by Scha-Abas the Great, Revolted from Scha-Sephi his Succeſſor, to the Great Mogul, by the means of Ali-Merdan-Kan, Governor of it; and was retaken by Scha-Abas the Eleventh, in 1650. It ſubmitted to the King of Perſia, on Condition that the Governor ſhould ever be of the Regal-Line. In 1651. Scha-Gehan the Great Mogul, ſent his eldeſt Son with an Army of 300000 Men, who loſt the greateſt part of them, and yet could not take it. The two following years it was beſieged with no better ſucceſs, and ſince has remained in the Hands of the King of Perſia. Tavernier. Bernier in his Hiſtory of the Empire of the Mogul, p. 57. has almoſt the ſame Account, calling it, That Strong and Important Place, which is the Capital of this Noble and Rich Kingdom of Candahar, which yields a great Revenue to the Prince that has it.

CANDAULES, which the Greeks call Marſilus, according to Herodotus; he was Son to Mirſus or Meles, deſcended of Alieus, Son of Hercules, and was the laſt King of Lydia of Heraclides's Family; the beginning of his Reign is fixed upon the 3323 year of the World. Candaules doted upon his Wife ſo much, that he thought her the Handſomeſt Woman in the World; This fooliſh Fancy made him to ſhew her to one of his Favourites called Gyges, quite naked. The Queen was ſo concerned at this Action, which render'd her ſcandalous according to the Cuſtom of the Lydians, that ſhe conceiv'd an extraordinary hatred for her Husband, inſomuch, that ſhe commanded Gyges to kill him, or elſe to prepare for death himſelf; Gyges preferring his own Life before all others, killed the King, An. M. 3340. afterwards Married the enrag'd Queen, and became King of Lydia, from whom began the Line of the Mermnades, which laſted to the defeat of Crœſus in the 210 year of Rome. Candaules Reign'd 18 years. Euſebius, Herodotus.

CANDE, or Candes, Candæum & Candenſis vicus, a Borough of France in Touraine, upon the Frontiers of Anjou, ſituated upon the River Loire, where it receives the Vienne, famous in the Writing of Salpitius Severus, and of Gregory of Tours, for St. Martin, who died in this Borough the 11th of November, An. 400.

CANDEA, or Candi, a Town and Kingdom of the Indies, in the Iſle of Ceilan; This Kindom is ſituated in the middle of the Iſland, and is the moſt conſiderable of any of that Country. The Town upon the River of Trinquilemale is pretty big and populous.

CANDEENS, ancient People of the Arabick-Gulf, they were called Ophiophages by ſome, becauſe they uſed to feed upon Serpents.

CANDELARO, a River of Italy in the Kingdom of Naples; It has its Source in the Appennine Mountains in the Capitanata, and joins the Adriatick Sea near Manfredonia. It muſt not be confounded with Candelora, a Town and Principality of Anatolia in Caramania.

CANDIA, or Crete, an Iſland and Kingdom of Europe in the Mediterranean Sea, Long. 51. Lat. 34. ſituated at the Entry of the Archipelago, and ſtretches from Eaſt to Weſt, one ſide towards Aſia, and the other towards Africa: It has the Egean Sea to the North, and a Sea which, from its own Name, is called the Cretick, or the Sea of Candia, to the South, the Mediterranean, which has no other Limits but Libya and Egypt. It's greateſt length is from Cape Solomoni to Cape Cornico, which is 70 German Miles, and its breadth is but about 15. The Country is good and fertil, and has divers ſmall Rivers and Mountains, whereof Mont-Ida, now called Pſiloriti, is the higheſt, from the top of which both Seas may be ſeen. It's Inhabitants were the firſt that made themſelves powerful at Sea by Navigation, and on Land by the uſe of Arrows. Beſides their Experience at Sea, they taught the way of ordering Squadrons of Horſe, and bringing Horſes up for Manage, and were alſo the firſt that recorded their Laws, and are thought to be the firſt Inventers of Muſick. This Iſland was alſo very famous for the Labyrinth of Minos invented by Dædalus, and for the Ship called the Bull, wherein Europa was carried away; 'twas likewiſe famous for the Amours of Paſiphae; and for the Birth of Jupiter, to whom this Iſland was conſecrated. It is now divided into Four Territories, which bear the Names of ſo many principal Towns, which are Candie, Canea, Rettimo, and Sittia. The Ancients reckon'd above 100 Towns in it, and call'd it Hecatompolis. It's Inhabitants have always had the repute of being Vicious, Lyars and Pyrates. They were firſt of all under Kings, then they lived under Captains, in form of a Republick. The Lacedæmonians, under the Conduct of their King Agis, took Candie in Darius his Name, in the 422 year of Rome: But they did not keep it long, for L. Cælius Metellus being Conſul in 686 of Rome, 68 years before the Chriſtian Æra, made himſelf Maſter of it. Afterwards this Iſland was ſubject to the Emperors of Rome, and thoſe of Conſtantinople, until 823. that it was taken by the Saracens, who built the Town of Candie, that gave its Name to the Iſland. Nicephorus Phocas retook it in 962. and St. Necon re-eſtabliſhed the Catholick Faith here: Boniface Marquiſs of Montferrat was Maſter of it, and after Conſtantinople was taken by the French and Venetians, ſold it to the latter in 1204. The Venetians fortified this Iſland in ſome places, becauſe the Candiots were very ſubject to Rebel; for in 1364. they had a mind to bring in the Genoeſes, but they were diverted by the Wiſe Politicks of the Republick. The Turks under pretence of Beſieging Maltha in 1645. to be revenged for the great Prize that the Knights under the Command of Bois-Baudran, had taken in 1644. with a Sultana and an Ottoman Prince, fell into Candie, where they continued the War until 1669. They made themſelves Maſters of Canea in 1645. and after laid Siege to the Town of Candie. Pope Clement IX. imployed himſelf to get help to reſcue it from the endeavours of thoſe Barbarians. The French upon his requeſt croſs'd the Seas, to ſhew their Zeal for their Religion, and their Concern for the Venetians againſt the Common Enemy of Chriſtendom: But after a very deſperate War of 24 years, Candie was forced to yield to the Turks, but made Honourable Conditions. Some ſay that Gortina, in the Valley of Meſaree, was formerly the Capital. This Valley is to the South of the Iſland, where there are yet the Plains of Liſe, Laſcilo Campo, Omal Campo; and of this ſide all along the Shoar, are the Town of Gierapetra, Antropoli, Stramatali, Girotela, Sfacia, Fenice. The Towns towards the North are Sittia, Mirabel, Candie, Rettimo, Canea. The Towns of the firm Land are, Certoneſe, Cinoſa, Gortina, Olerno, &c. It's aſſured, that towards the Source of the Brook called Lene, which is to the North of Mount Ida or Pſilori, there is a Grotto cut out of a Rock, which is ſaid to be the Labyrinth of Minos, made according to Dædalus his Directions. The chief Fortreſſes of Candia are Grabuſer, the Suda and Spina Longua, that were left to the Venetians by their laſt Treaty with the Port. As for Religion, the Noble Venetians are Roman Catholicks; but the other Inhabitants of the Iſland are of the Greek Church. Pliny, Strabo, Pomponius Mela, Du Cange.

CANDIE, a Town of the Iſle of Candia, which gave it its Name, ſituated in the moſt Northern part of the Iſland, over-againſt the Iſle of Standia, and is very ſtrong both by Art and Nature: It was the Seat of an Archbiſhop who had Nine Suffragans. The Turks laid Siege to it in 1645. after the Battel of Carvaca, but were forced to raiſe it, after they had loſt the beſt of their Army; but left it block'd up very cloſe until 1667. and then they renewed their Siege again in the Month of May, and took it by Compoſition in 1669. It is generally thought that the Turks loſt 5 or 600000 Men at that Siege, which expoſed their Government to Rebellions, often begun in the Town of Conſtantinople.

CANEA, a Town of Candie, Capital of a Territory with a Biſhoprick: It was formerly called Cydon by the Grecians, and was the Mother of Towns. It was taken by the Turks in 1645. and was Beſieged by the Venetians about the 18th of July 1692. with very promiſing hopes of Succeſs, but the Baſha of Rettimo, with the Turkiſh Army, coming ſuddenly to the Relief of it, the Chriſtians abandoned the Enterprize, embarked the Troops, and ſailed away for Napoli di Malvaſia.

CANICULUS, a Celeſtial Sign which riſes the 16th of July, and appears upon our Horizon for ſix weeks, all which time is called Dog-days. The Greeks call this Sign Procyon, or Foredog, becauſe there is another Conſtellation call'd the Dog, before which the Caniculus riſes a whole day. Poets feign, that this Dog was left by Jupiter to guard Europa, and that his Truſtineſs procur'd him this Preferment in the Skies. Hyginius, Caſius.

CANINIO, (Angelo) born at Anghari in Italy, in the Sixteenth Century. He was a very Eminent Linguiſt, and particularly, a great Orientaliſt; for, as Thuanus obſerves, in the Nineteenth Book of his Hiſtory, he was a perfect Maſter not only of Greek and Latin, but likewiſe in Hebrew, Syriack, and all the Eaſtern Languages: All that's Printed of his Works, is a Greek Grammar, and a Method for the Learning the Oriental Tongues call'd, Inſtitutiones Linguarum Syriacæ, Aſſyriacæ & Thalmudicæ, una cum Æthiopicæ & Arabicæ Collatione.

L. CANINIUS Gallus, a Roman, Conſul with Vipſanius Agrippa, in the 717 of Rome, and 37 before the Chriſtian Æra, the ſame year that Jeruſalem was taken by Herod aſſiſted by Caius Soſius.

C. CANINIUS Gallus was made Conſul in M. Plautius Silvanus his place, and died in the exerciſe of this Charge, in 742 of Rome, which is the year that Onuphrius, Sigonius, Pererius, Salian, Salmeron, &c. think our Saviour was born in.

C. CANINIUS Rebilius, Conſul with Julius Cæſar in the 709 year of Rome. C. Tribonius dying the laſt day of the year, this Rebilius was put in his place for ſeven hours only, which made Cicero ſay, that the City was obliged to him for his vigilance, for that he did not ſleep all the time of his Conſulſhip.

CANISA, a City of Hungary, ſituate towards the Frontiers of Stiria, near the River Drave and Fort-Serin. This place was taken by the Turks, A. C. 1600. notwithſtanding the endeavours of the Duke of Mercœur to the contrary. Ferdinand Archduke of Auſtria laid Siege to it in September the year following, aſſiſted with the Forces of the Pope, and other Princes of Italy; but was fain to raiſe the Siege again, after two Months ſpent in vain before it. In 1664. Count Serini being entred into Hungary in the Month of January, took Funfkirken and ſome other Places, burnt Sagetz, and afterwards laid Siege to Caniſa, and had taken it, but that he was diſappointed of his expected Succours. The Grand Vizier underſtanding that this important Place was beſieged, haſtned thither with an Army, Raiſed the Siege, and afterwards took Fort Serin, Komorrha the leſſer, &c. In 1688. June 30. the Count Budiani Blockaded Caniſa with a Body of 6000 Hungarians, and 1000 Heydukes, which continued till April 13. 1690. when, in purſuance of a Capitulation that the Emperor had ratified, the Keys of the Gates, hanging upon a Chain of Gold, were delivered to the Count de Budiani, by a Turk; ſaying, I herewith conſign into your Hands, the ſtrongeſt Fortreſs in the Ottoman Empire. The Imperialiſts found in it great ſtore of large Artillery, taken heretofore from the Chriſtians, and ſome with old German Inſcriptions. It is ſituate on a River towards the Frontiers of Styria, near the Drave, and not far from the Fort Serin; It is alſo environed on all ſides with a Moraſs or Marſh, that no Army can lie near it, which renders the Town almoſt impregnable and inacceſſible.

CANISIUS Henry of Nimeguen, was not only a famous Lawyer, but alſo was very able in all other parts of Learning. He publiſh'd *Summa Juris Canonici. Commentarium in regulas Juris. Prælectiones Academiæ. De Decimis, Primitiis, Oblationibus & Uſuris. In Lib.*3. Decretalium. De Sponſalibus, & Matrimonio, and divers other Treatiſes of the Canon Law, with ſix Volumes of a Work, Entituled, Antiquæ Lectiones, Ancient Lectures, that is, a Collection of divers curious Pieces, and a Treaſure for the Hiſtory of the Middle-Age, and for the Chronology: He publiſhed them in 1601, 2, and 3. which ſhews the time he lived in. This Collection is become very ſcarce, and is now hardly to be found but in Libraries. Du Cheſne, P. Sirmond.

CANISIUS, (Peter) Born at Nimeguen in the Low-Countries, a Monk, and firſt Provincial of the Jeſuits in Germany, was one of the greateſt Scholars in the 16th Century. His Works are ſufficiently known: The moſt conſiderable of them, are, Summa Doctrinæ Chriſtianæ. Inſtitutiones Chriſtianæ Pietatis, &c. Matthew Raderus and Francis Sacchinus have written his Life. Miræus in Elog. Belg. Alegamb. & Reibadineira Bibl. Script. S. J. &c.

CANIUS, a Latin Poet; he was of Cadiz, and lived under the Reign of Domitian, was an intimate Friend to Martial, who tells us, That this Poet was of ſo gay an humour, that he Smil'd always, and made others Laugh. It is in the 19th Epigram of his third Book, that he ſhews what Work Canius applied himſelf to; for thus he ſpeaks:

Dic, Muſa, quid agat Canius meus Rufus,
Utrum-ne chartis tradit ille victuris
Legenda temporum acta Claudianorum,
An quæ Neroni falſius aſtruit Scriptor,
An æmulator improbi jocos Phædri? &c.

This Poet Married two Wives, Theophila who was Learned, but over-free; and Sapho that was not ſo Witty, but was more Diſcreet, as Martial ſays of them:

Caſtior hæc, & non Doctior illa fuit, &c.

CANNÆ, a little ruinated Town of Apulia, called now Cannata de Strutta. It became famous by the Victory which Hannibal got there by the defeat of 40000 Romans, conducted by the Conſul Paulus Æmilius, whom the Raſhneſs of his Colleague Terentius Varro engaged in a Fight. This happened in 538 of Rome, in the 141 Olympiad, and about 216 Years before the Chriſtian Æra. Paulus Æmilius was killed upon the Place, and Hannibal ſent three Buſhels full of Rings that belonged to the Roman Knights that were kill'd in the Battel, to Carthage. Tit. Livius, Florus, Polybius.

CANNARES, Savages of the Province of Quito in Peru in Southern America; they are very well made, and very active, they wear their Hair long, but they weave and bind it about their Heads in form of a Crown, which diſtinguiſhes them from other Savages. Their Cloaths are made of Wooll, or Cotton, and they wear fine faſhion'd Boots. Their Women are handſom, but too great Lovers of the Spaniards and other Strangers; they generally are at work abroad in the Fields, Tilling and Manuring the Ground, whilſt their Husbands at home do all the Work of the Houſe, and Card and Spin Wooll and Cotton: This Country had very many rich golden Mines, now drain'd by the Spaniards. The Land bears good Wheat and Barly, and it has very fine Vineyards. The Magnificent Palace of Thomebamba was in the Country of the Cannares. De Laet. Hiſt. de Nouveau Monde.

CANNES, a Borough of France in Provence, ſituated upon the Sea, in the Dioceſe of Graſſe, over againſt the Iſlands Lerins. Clavier thought that the Oxibius Portus of Strabo, which he calls Ægyptina, was at Cannes, but is miſtaken, for this Village has but a ſhallow Shore, and no Port. And moreover, the Country of the Oxybians was upon the River of Var.

CANNIBALS, or Caraibes, People that inhabited the Antille Iſlands, but have now only ſome of them. They us'd to eat the Priſoners they took in War, after they had made them faſt three Days, and devoured their dead Enemies in every place of Battel: They had no Religion, yet were much againſt Avarice. Their Commerce with the Europeans, but eſpecially with the French, has render'd 'em more civil and tractable. Rochefort.

CANO, or Ghana, a Town and Kingdom of Africa in Nigritia. It has the River Niger to the South, Caſſena to the Eaſt, the Agades to the Weſt, and the Deſart to the North. The Town of Cano is the Capital of the Country; the others are Taſſaua, Germa, &c. Cano is ſituated near a Lake, and environed with a Wall of Wood and Earth, and the Houſes are made of the ſame Materials; the Inhabitants of the Country are moſt of them either Shepherds or Labourers. The King was formerly very powerful, and kept a great Army on foot to make the Kingdoms of Zegzeg and Caſſena Tributary to him. But King Yſchia, under pretext of Aſſiſting the Owners of theſe Kingdoms, made them away by Treachery, and three years after made War againſt the King of Cano himſelf, and after a long Siege forced him to Marry one of his Daughters, and to pay him a Third of his Revenues. Sanut. Marmol.

CANO, Sebaſtian, Born at Biſcaye, Embarked with Magellan, who ſailed from Spain the 10th of Auguſt, 1519. and gave his name to the Streights of Magellan, and after he had paſs'd it, died in the Iſle of Malan, one of the Philippines. After the Death of this famous Voyager, Cano came to the Iſlands of the Sonde, thence by the Cape of Good Hope he returned into Sevill the 8th of September, 1522. having gone round the World in three Years and four Weeks. The Emperor Charles V. gave Cano for Deviſe a Terreſtrial Globe with theſe Words, Primus me circumdediſti, You are the firſt that went round me. Sir Francis Drake, an Engliſhman, went the ſame Voyage in 1580. in leſs than three years. Oliver Vander North, a Hollander, went it in 1601 in three Years and eight Weeks. And in our days Francis Pala, Biſhop of Heliopolis, Apoſtolical Vicar of China, in his Voyage to the place of his Miſſion, was driven by a Storm to Manille, one of the Philippine Iſlands, whence the Spaniards ſent him back into Europe by Mexico, and ſo went round the World againſt his will. It is remarkable, that he is the firſt who went round by the Eaſt. Choiſy Hiſt. de Salomon.

CANO Melchior, or Cantus, a Spaniſh Dominican, and Biſhop of the Canaries, was very Learned, and wrote with a great deal of Spirit and Vehemence. He was ſent to the Council of Trent under Paul III. He was mightily in favour with Philip II. of Spain, and poſſeſſed him with an Opinion, that he might make War upon any Prince he pleaſed, in purſuance of his Right, which diſpleaſed the Court of Rome mightily, for the deſign was againſt the Pope. He died in 1560 at Toledo, and left 12 Books, call'd, Loci Theologici, &c. His other Works are, Prælectio de Pænitentia. De Sacramentis, &c. Sixtus Senenſis, Lib. 4. Bibl. Sanct. Poſſevin in Appar. Sacr. Nicholas Antonio Bibl. Script. Hiſp.

CANON is a Greek word which ſignifies a Rule, and is applied to many things, as the Canon of the Maſs, the Canon of the Scripture, the Canonical Books, i. e. the Books contain'd in the Canons of the Bible, the Canons of the Councils, &c. The Canon of the Maſs is what the Prieſt reads low to himſelf, and begins by theſe words, Te igitur, becauſe they are the Rule or Form for Conſecration. In the Councils, the Deciſions that ſerve as a Rule, are called Canons, yet the Canonical Books of Scripture only can be relied on as a Sacred and Divine Rule. The Jews have their Canons different from the Chriſtians, for they do acknowledge only for Canonical and Divine the Books of the Old Teſtament, which are written in Hebrew, whereas the Chriſtians receive both the Old and the New Teſtament, and the Roman Catholicks many Books written in Greek, and later than the Canon of the Jews. The Canons of the Apoſtles are a Collection of Eccleſiaſtical Laws which are attributed to St. Clement, Biſhop of Rome, and Diſciple of St. Peter, but it's more probable that it is the Work of ſome Biſhops of the Eaſt, who about the middle of the Third Century, collected into one Body the things that were moſt in uſe in the Churches of their Country, part of which might be handed down by Tradition, from the Times of the Apoſtles, and part of them introduced by Provincial Councils. There is ſome difficulty, as well about the Number as Authority of theſe Canons: The Greeks generally count 85. but the Latins receive but 50. nor do they obſerve all theſe neither. The Grecians count the firſt 50 much after the ſame manner that the Church of Rome does; but they add others, in the moſt part of which there are things little conformable to the Diſcipline or Belief of Rome, and it's for this that that Church rejects the 35 laſt Canons. As touching theſe Canons, they are rang'd among Apocryphal Writings by Pope Gelaſius, in a Council held at Rome in 494. This Judgment was paſt upon 'em before, by Pope Damaſus, who ſeems to have been the firſt Determiner of what Books ought to be either receiv'd or rejected; according to this Precedent Iſidore cenſures the Apoſtles Canons likewiſe, as Gratian cites him in his 16th Diſtinction. On the contrary, Pope Leo IX, excepts the firſt 50 Canons from the Apocryphal Number: Before his time Dionyſius Exiguus placed theſe 50 at the Head of his Code of Eccleſiaſtical Canons. Antoninus Auguſtinus, Archbiſhop of Tarragon, is of opinion, That the firſt 50 Canons of the Apoſtles ought to be receiv'd, and that the remaining 35 have no Authority in the Weſtern Church, as being either made or Interpolated by Hereticks. See Beveridge in his Preface to theſe Canons, &c. Doujat Hiſt. du Droit Canon.

CANNON, a Piece of Ordnance or Artillery. It's thought that the firſt Inventer of Cannon was a Fryar, called Bertholde Schwartz, or Conſtantine Anklitzen, a famous Chymiſt. They began to make uſe of it on the Sea of Denmark in 1350. but it was not much uſed until the War between the Genoeſes and the Venetians in 1380. See Platina, Life of Urban V. Six years after, the Uſe of it paſſed into England, two French Ships, which had ſome Pieces of Cannon and Caſks of Powder in them, being about that time taken by the Engliſh, as Walſingham ſays. After that, about the Sixteenth Age, the Engliſh caſt ſome Iron Cannons, and now the effect of theſe Machines are ſo known, that all the Coaſts of Europe are bordered with them, ſo that they are become terrible both by Sea and Land.

CANOPUS, a certain God of the Egyptians, much honoured by the Superſtitious People. The Chaldeans adored Fire, and maintained that all other Gods did it Homage, becauſe it conſum'd all things. This Diſpute brought the Prieſts of both to make their Idols fight. The Egyptians put upon the Idol of their Canopus a great Pot inſtead of a Head, and pierced it with holes, which they afterwards ſtopp'd with Wax, and then fill'd the Pot with Water. In the mean time the Chaldeans kindled their Fire, which when it melted the Wax the Water run out at the Holes and put it out, ſo that they were forced to acknowledge that the God of the Egyptians was more powerful than theirs. Ruffin.

CANOPUS, a Town of Egypt, ſtanding upon the Mouth of one of the Arms of the Nile, poſſibly ſo call'd from the Worſhip of the Idol Canopus. Some Authors believe it to be the Modern Bochira, near Alexandria. 'Tis a Town of great Antiquity, and was formerly a Biſhop's See. Strabo, Pliny, &c.

CANOSA, upon the River Ofanto, a Town and County of Italy in the Kingdom of Naples, and the Land of Bari, with a Biſhoprick united to the Archbiſhoprick of Bari. The Prelate of Bari bears the Title of both the Churches. Canoſa is ſituated upon the ſide of a Hill, five miles from the Ruines of Cannæ. Strabo, Pliny, and other ancient Writers ſpeak very often of this Town, which is not to be confounded with Canoſa, a County in Modena near Parmeſan. Canoſa was formerly called Canuſium, and was in great eſteem for its Wooll of Gold colour, whereof it made very rich and fine Cloth, and ſuch as wore it were called Canuſiali. It was in this Town that the Emperor Henry IV. who was Excommunicated by Pope Gregory VII. ſubmitted himſelf, and was abſolved in 1077. Horace calls the Inhabitants of Canuſium, Bilingues, whether it was becauſe they ſpoke Greek and Latin, or whether becauſe they ſpoke neither, but made a Medly of both, is uncertain.

CANSLAT, a Town of Germany in the Dutchy of Wirtemberg, upon the River Necre, between Eſlinguen and Stugard.

CANTABRES, or Cantabrians, ancient People of Spain, properly the Inhabitants of Guipuſcoa and of Biſcaye, rebelling in Auguſtus's time againſt the Romans; this Emperor went in Perſon to Spain to reduce them, and after he had worſted them in ſeveral Rencounters, he forced them to fly to Mountains and Deſarts, and at laſt beſieged them in a Town, where they killed themſelves, preferring Death to Servitude. This happened in the 728th year of Rome, and 25th before the Chriſtian Æra. Auguſtus falling ſick during this War, gave the Management of it to Caius Antiſtius. Silius Italicus ſpeaks thus of the Cantabers Manners:

Cantaber ante omnes, hyemiſque, æſtuſque, famiſque
Invictus, palmamque ex omni ferre labore:
Mirus amor Populo, cum pigra incanuit ætas,
Imbelles jam dudum annos pervertere ſaxo,
Nec vitam ſine Marte pati, quippe omnis in armis,
Lucis cauſa ſita eſt & damnatum vivere paci.

Strabo, Florus, Pliny.

CANTERBURY, Lat. Cantuaria, the chief Place of Kent, an Archbiſhop's See, is ſeated on the River Stoure, 53 miles Eaſtward from London. 'Tis a City of great Antiquity, and was formerly the Royal Seat of the Kings of Kent. King Ethelbert, upon his Embracing the Chriſtian Faith, beſtowed it upon Auſtin the Monk, the firſt Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and removed his Seat to Reculver, a Town by the Sea-ſide. The Buildings of it are for the moſt part but mean, and the Walls which encompaſs it, in a decaying Condition, whereas our Chronicles do ſufficiently teſtifie, that both in reſpect of Private Mens Houſes, and the Magnificent Structure of its Churches, it anciently exceeded the fineſt Cities of England. But there have ſince happened ſeveral things which have contributed to the loſs of its Greatneſs and Beauty. As the Vicinity of London, the Ruine of St. Auſtin's Monaſtery, the Loſs of Calais, and the pulling down of Archbiſhop Becket's Shrine, things which occaſioned a great concourſe of People, one only Ornament thereof ſurvives, viz. the Cathedral, which having been a Church before in the Britains time, was by Archbiſhop Auſtin repaired, and dedicated to the Name of Chriſt, which it ſtill retains, though a long time together it was called St. Thomas, in honour of Thomas Becket. In this Church lie interr'd the Bodies of eight Kings of Kent, of Edward the Black Prince, Henry IV. Queen Joan his Wife; a Church noted beſides for the Coronation of King John and Queen Iſabel his Wife, and the Marriages of King Henry III. and Edward I. but unhappily ſtain'd with the Blood of the foreſaid Thomas Becket Archbiſhop hereof, murther'd in this Church in the Reign of Henry II. And this ſuppoſed Martyr being afterwards Canoniz'd for a Saint, upon a Preſumption of Miracles wrought by him, had ſo rich and glorious a Shrine in this Church, that Gold was the meaneſt thing thereof, amongſt which was a Stone of ſpecial Luſtre, called the Royal of France, offer'd by Lewis VII. with a great Maſſy Cup of Gold. An. 1179. the Spoil of this Monument fill'd two Cheſts in King Henry VIII's time, whereof each was ſo very heavy, that it requir'd Eight Men to carry it. Canterbury, if taken as the Seat of the Metropolitan, has under it 21 ſuffragan Biſhops, whereof 17 are in England, and the other four in Wales; Thoſe in England are London, Wincheſter, Ely, Lincoln, Norwich, Hereford, Worceſter, Bath and Wells, Chicheſter, Lichfield, Exeter, Salisbury, Rocheſter, Oxford, Glouceſter, Peterborough, Briſtol. In Wales, St. Aſaph, St. David, Bangor, and Landaff; whereas the Archbiſhop of York has no ſuffragan Biſhops but Durham, Cheſter, and Carliſle, beſides the Biſhop of Man. But Canterbury, as Seat of a Dioceſan, contains only a Part of Kent, to the Number of 257 Pariſhes, the reſidue being in the Dioceſe of Rocheſter. 'Tis true, there are belonging to it ſome particular Pariſhes belonging here and there to ſeveral Dioceſes. It being an ancient Privilege of this See, that whereſoever this Archbiſhop had either Mannors or Advowſons, the Place came thereby exempted from the Ordinary, and was reputed of the Dioceſe of Canterbury. The Biſhop whereof is Primate and Metropolitan of all England, and the firſt Peer of the Realm, having precedency of all Dukes that are not of the Royal Blood, and all the great Officers of the Crown. The Title of Grace is given him, and he writes himſelf Divinâ Providentiâ Epiſcopus Cantuarienſis, where other Biſhops only uſe Divina Permiſſione. In the King's Books this Archbiſhoprick is valued at 2816*l.* 17*s.* 9*d.* and the Clergy's Tenths come to 651*l.* 18*s.* 2*d.* Auſtin the Monk held a Council at Canterbury about 604 or 605. for the Regulation of the Time of Eaſter: King Ethelbert V. and Bertha his Queen, together with Eadbald their Son, were at the holding of it. There was a ſecond Council held there in 820. under Wulfret the Archbiſhop, and Beornulfe King of the Mercians. Thomas Becket held a Third there in 1299. for the Reformation of Manners, and for what they call'd the Defence of the Liberties of the Clergy: And laſtly, Henry Chichley, the Archbiſhop of that Place, held a Council there in 1419. At this Council Richard Walecher was accuſed of tampering with Magick; upon hearing of the Cauſe, he was put under Penance, and his Magick Book burnt.

CANTERUS, (William) Born at Utrecht, in 1542. He was a good Philologer: His Works are, Novarum Lectionum, Lib. 8. Syntagma de Ratione Emendandi Græcos Authores, &c. Suffridus Petri de Script. Friſ. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

CANTERUS, (Theodore) Brother to William abovemention'd. He was Scholar to Lambinus in Paris, and was a great Linguiſt. He wrote *Variarum Lectionum, Lib.*2. &c. Suffridus Petri de Script. Friſ. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

CANTICLES, The Cantiques, one of the Canonical Books of the Old Teſtament, made by Solomon Divinely inſpired. It contains in Eight Chapters the Myſtical Union of Jeſus Chriſt with his Church. Divers Authors have made Commentaries upon this Excellent Book.

CANTIUNCULA, (Claude) Born at Metz, and living to about the Year 1550. He was a Learned Lawyer, and Eraſmus mentions him to advantage. He wrote, De Poteſtate Papæ, Imperatoris & Concilii. Paraphraſes in tres priores Lib. Inſt. Juſtiniani. De Officio Judicis, Lib. 1. &c. Eraſmus in Ciceron. Melchior Adam in Vit. Germ. Juriſc. &c.

CANTON, a Town in China, Capital of the Province of Quantung. See Quantung.

CANTONS, a Name that is given to the Confederate Body of the Swiſſers Commonwealth; they obſerve this Order in their publick Aſſemblies, according to Plantin. Zurick, Berne, Lucerne, Uri, Schwitz, Underwald, Zug, Glaris, Bale, Fribourg, Soleurre, Schaff-hauſe, Appenzel. In which this is remarkable, that though the Canton of Zurick was but the Fifth that Leagued it ſelf with the others, nevertheleſs in conſideration of the Antiquity and Nobleneſs of that Town, the other Cantons of one accord yielded her the firſt Place in their Diets, Embaſſies, and other ſolemn Actions. Berne is but the Second in order, yet is the biggeſt and powerfulleſt of all the reſt: It almoſt environs that of Lucerne, for it is to the North, South, and Weſt of it. Uri, Schwitz, and Underwald, give precedency to Zurick, Berne, and to Lucerne alſo, though they were the chief Inſtruments of the Liberty of Swiſſerland, and were Allied together before all the reſt. They have no Towns, but Villages that are well built. Schwitz has given its Name to all the other Cantons, whether it was becauſe they fought for their Liberties in that Canton Schwitz, or whether their Confederacy began here, is uncertain. Zug and Glaris are but ſmall, and have, beſides the Town of Zug, nothing but Villages. Bale is without the Bounds of the Old Swiſſerland, yet becauſe of its Alliance it's reputed a Part of it. The Canton of Fribourg is, as it were, nail'd in that of Berne, which environs it on all parts, and furniſhes it with Wine. The greateſt Part of Soleurre is in Montjura: Schaff-hauſe on Germany ſide near the Rhine and the Black Foreſt: And Appenzel is above St. Gal, towards the Frontiers of the Griſons. The Cantons are firſt diſtinguiſhed into Great and Small. The Great are Zurick, Berne, Lucerne, Baſle, Fribourg, Soleurre, and Schaff-hauſe; the Small are Uri, Schwitz, Underwald, Zug, Glaris, and Appenzel. They are again diſtinguiſhed in reſpect of Religion into Romiſh and Proteſtant: Zurick, Berne, Baſle, and Schaff-hauſe are of the latter; And Lucerne, Fribourg, and Soleurre, and all the ſmall Cantons of the other, except Glaris and Appenzel, where both Religions are mixed. And as for Intereſt the Great Cantons have always appeared moſt for France, and the Little for Spain. The Allies of the Cantons are of two ſorts, ſome have a common Confederacy with moſt part of the Cantons, and others a more Particular with ſome Cantons only. The Abbot of St. Gal has for Allies and Protectors the Cantons of Zurick, Lucerne, Schwitz, and Glaris: And the Town of St. Gal of its ſide is Allied to Zurick, Berne, Lucerne, Schwitz, Zug, and Glaris. The Griſons make three Leagues, the League of Griſe; that of the Houſe of GOD, and the Ten Communities; who alſo have the Sovereignty of the Valtoline, and of the County of Chaveane, and are alſo Allied to the firſt ſeven Cantons, viz. Zurick, Berne, Lucerne, Uri, Schwitz, Underwald, and Zug. The Walleſans and their Biſhop made a particular Alliance, firſt with the Canton of Berne, and afterwards with the ſeven Popiſh Cantons, as Lucerne, Fribourg, Soleurre, Zug, Uri, Schwitz, and Underwald: And the Town of Mulhauſe was Allied to the thirteen Cantons, but is now particularly with the four Proteſtant. And ſome are Leagued with one or two only, as the Town of Geneva, with Zurick and Berne, and the Towns of Bienne and Neufchatel, with Berne alone. Davity.

C. CANULEIUS, Tribune of the Roman People, he was beloved for his Complaiſance to the Meaner ſort, and for his Care to reſiſt and oppoſe the Nobles. He aſſembled the People upon the Mountain Janiculus, *A. R.*309. and was Author of that Sedition which obtained, That the Families of the Meaner ſort might make Alliances with the Patricians, which was not allowed them before.

CANUT the Firſt, King of Denmark in the Ninth Century, ſucceeded to Eric III. his Father, who became a Chriſtian. He alſo was Baptized, but being deluded by ſome Pagans, he cowardly Apoſtatized again, and renounced the Religion which Froton his Succeſſor re-eſtabliſhed. Saxo Grammat.

CANUTE, the firſt Daniſh King of England, a ſecond Son of Sueno King of Denmark, ſucceeded to Edmund, Sirnamed Ironſide, in the Crown of England, which being divided by Agreement betwixt him and Canute upon their ſtruggling for the Crown; Edmund dying, Canute laid Claim to the whole, notwithſtanding Edmund's two ſurviving Sons, the one named Edward, and the other Edmund. For no ſooner was Edmund deceas'd, but Canute intending to Reign ſole King of England, calls to him all the Peers and Biſhops of the Land, of whom he cunningly demanded, Who were Witneſſes of the Agreement made between him and Edmund when the Kingdom was divided? And, Whether the Sons and Brothers of Edmund were to Govern after him, Canute living? His meaning being underſtood, the Fear of his Power wrought in 'em ſuch a Compliance, that the Peers ſwore Fealty to him, but received from him no other but the Pledge of his bare Hand. Thus the Houſe of Edmund was renounced, and Canute Crown'd; Who, not thinking himſelf ſecure in his Poſſeſſion whilſt Edwin, Brother of Edmund, and the young Princes Edward and Edmund his Sons lay in his way, took care in the firſt place that Edwin ſhould be made away, which was done accordingly; and the two Princes, being ſent out of the Land, went into Hungary, where Edmund died, but Edward had the fortune to Marry Agatha, Daughter to the German Emperor. Thus Canute ſettled in his Throne, and his former Wife being dead, he Marries Emma the Widow of King of Ethelred. Having now made uſe of Duke Edric's Treaſons as much as ſerved his turn, and fearing to be next betray'd himſelf, he cauſed him to be ſlain. And whereas he had promiſed him, for the Murder of King Edmund, to exhalt him above all the Peers of England, to make good his words, he ordered his Head to be fixed on a Pole, and ſet upon the higheſt Tower of London. Nay, for his ſake, he cauſed ſome great Men to be put to death, only becauſe he knew 'em to be great with him, ſuch as Duke Norman the Son of Leofwin, Ethelward Son of Duke Agelmar. Though he lived in Peace, yet he would not part with his Army; to maintain which he oppreſs'd the Country. As he was King of Denmark he took that Kingdom into Conſideration, and went thither to repreſs the Swedes, An. 1019. There he had a Body of Engliſh, under the Command of Earl Goodwin, who, the Night before a Battel to be fought with them, ſtole with his Men out of the Camp, aſſaulted the Swedes, and had got the Victory before Canute knew of any Fight. For which bold Attempt, though againſt Diſcipline, he had (ſays my Author) the Engliſh in more eſteem ever after. Anno 1028. he went to Norway, and having ſubjected it to his Power, returned the next year King of England, Denmark, and Norway. Anno 1031. he ſailed again into Denmark, from whence he went to Rome, where he offered to St. Peter great Gifts of Gold and Silver, and other precious Things, beſides the uſual Tribute of Peter-pence; which was not indeed, Nudato Petro Paulum, but rather Nudato Paulo Petrum tegere. Backwards and forwards he gave great Alms by the way, with great Expence, freeing many Places from Cuſtom and Toll where Strangers were wont to pay, having vowed great Amendment of Life at the Sepulchre of Peter and Paul, and likewiſe to his whole People, in a large Letter that he writ unto them from Rome. Thus, having eſtabliſhed himſelf by Oppreſſion and Bloodſhed, he now becomes all of a ſudden a great Saint; and having attain'd the height of his Ambition by the utmoſt Violences, he thinks now to bribe God with a ſhare of his Spoils. He grows zealous of doing Juſtice, when he thinks himſelf under no neceſſity of doing any more wrong; and ſeeks the Love of his Conquered Subjects, for the Love of his own Quiet. As for his Marriage with Emma, his Aim in it doubtleſs was, that Richard Duke of Normandy, her Brother, might the leſs care what became of Edward and Alfred her Sons by King Ethelred. However, Canutus was famous all over Europe, and much honoured of Conrade the Emperor. He did one thing to the ſhame of Court-Flatterers, which is worth our taking notice of: While the Tide was coming in, he cauſed his Royal Seat to be put on the Shore; and, with all the State that Majeſty could put into his Countenance, ſaid thus to the Sea: Thou Sea, belongeſt to me, and the Land whereon I ſit is mine, nor has any one unpuniſhed reſiſted my Commands; I charge thee come no further upon my Land, neither preſume to wet the Feet of thy Sovereign Lord. But the Sea, as before, came rowling on, and without reverence did both wet and daſh him: Whereat the King quickly riſing, wiſhed all about him to behold and conſider the weak and frivolous Power of a King, and that none properly deſerved to be ſo called, but he whoſe Eternal Laws are obeyed all over the World, by the Heaven, the Earth, and the Sea: And 'tis ſaid, that from that time forth he never would wear a Crown. At laſt, King Canute paid his Tribute to Nature in the 18th year of his Reign, and died at Shaftsbury, but was Interred at Wincheſter in the old Monaſtery. To inherit his three Crowns of England, Denmark, and Norway, he left three Sons, Harold, Canute, and Sueno. Harold ſuceeeded him here, Canute in Denmark, and Sueno in Norway. Harold and Sueno were his reputed Sons by Algiva his firſt Wife, Duke Alfhelm's Daughter, and Canute (commonly called Hardi-Canute) by Emma his ſecond Wife.

CANUTE, or Hardi-Canute, King of England, ſucceeded to Harold his Half-Brother. He was poſſeſſed of the Crown of Denmark, when that of England fell to him; being at Bruges in Flanders with his Mother, when he was invited to accept of it as his Right, which happen'd Anno 1040. Being come over ſome time before Midſummer, with 60 Ships, and many Soldiers out of Denmark, he was ſeated in the Throne with great Acclamations. A Prince Intemperate in his Diet, Exorbitant in his Taxes, Cruel in his Reſentments: So great a Lover he was of good Cheer, that he uſed to ſit at Table four times a day, with all the variety of Diſhes the Seaſon could afford. Under colour of ſetting out and maintaining his Fleet, he levied ſuch heavy Taxes, that they who had been ſo forward to call him over had enough of him, when they found that he had too much of theirs. His Cruelty appeared firſt upon his deceaſed Brother King Harold, whoſe Body he commanded to be digged up, and thrown (like a Dog's Carkaſs) into a Ditch, but by a ſecond Order into the Thames. 'Tis true, he balanced pretty well that piece of Cruelty by his tender Regard to his Brothers Alfred deceaſed, and Edward living, the Sons of Queen Emma by King Ethelred, though being Rivals of his Crown. As to Alfred's death, whereof you will find an Account in the Reign of King Harold, he called to an Account for it Godwin Earl of Kent, and Leving Biſhop of Worceſter. The firſt took his Oath before him, that he was forced by the Command of Harold to do what he did, as to the putting out of Alfred's Eyes. And, to incline the King to Pardon him, he made him a ſumptuous Preſent, which the King was pleaſed to accept: 'Twas a Galley with a Gilded Stem, finely Rigged, with 80 Soldiers in her, every one with Bracelets of Gold on each Arm, weighing 16 Ounces, the Helmet, Corſlet, and Hilt of his Sword gilded, a Daniſh Curt-Ax liſted with Gold or Silver hung on his Left Shoulder, a Shield with Boſs and Nails gilded in his Left Hand, and a Lance in his Right. With this rare and coſtly Preſent Godwin made his Peace with the King. The Biſhop, whom the King deprived of his Biſhoprick, made his with a round Sum of Money. As for Pr. Edward, who was ſtill living, the King received him out of Normandy with unfeigned Kindneſs, and entertained him honourably in his Court. Worceſter was a great Sufferer in this Reign, and felt ſeverely the King's Indignation, for the Death of two Houſecarles or Collectors, who were ſlain at Worceſter by the People, in the Performance of their Office. For this Fact, committed by a few, he ordered the City to be plundered and burnt, and the Citizens to be put to the Sword. The News whereof made all the People fly, the Countrymen where they could, the Citizens to Beverege, a ſmall Iſland in the Severn, which they fortified and defended ſtoutly, till they had leave to return in Peace. But their City they found ſacked and burnt, wherewith the King was appeaſed. Thus Reigned King Canute II. till at two years end Death ſnatched him away in the midſt of his Mirth, at a Daniſh Wedding kept in Lambeth; where, as he was drinking, he fell down ſpeechleſs, and died upon it. His death put a period to the Tyranny of the Danes, who, for above 200 years after their firſt Invaſion, had cruelly haunted this Kingdom. And now the Saxon Blood being Re-inthron'd in the Perſon of Edward, Sirnamed, The Confeſſor, the Danes that remained here, mixing with the Engliſh, became one Nation with them. This King Canute was buried at Wincheſter by his Father Canute. He had a Siſter, which was Earl Godwin's firſt Wife.

CANUTE the Fourth of this Name, King of Denmark, called the Saint and Martyr, he was Brother to Herald or Herold the Lazy, to whom he ſucceeded in 1074. and came into England, where this Devout Prince was killed in St. Alban's Church. This happened in 1085. A Son of his, and of his own Name, kill'd with him at that time, was Canonized by Pope Alexander IV. in 1164. and the Roman Church celebrates his Feaſt the 19th of January.

CANUTE the Fifth, King of Denmark, ſucceeded to Eric V. about 1147. and was killed by Suenon, at a Feaſt in 1155. Pontanus.

CANUTE the Sixth, Son of Valdemar I. and of Sophia Siſter to Canute V. Reign'd ſome time after his Father, to whom he ſucceeded in 1185. He Warr'd againſt the People of Pomerania, oppoſed ſome Seditious People, and died about 1210. It's ſaid he Married Mathilda, Daughter of Henry of Lion Duke of Saxony. Pontanus.

CANUTE, King of Swedeland, in the 12th Age; he was Son to Eric IX. Sirnamed, the Saint. He killed Charles VII. who was ſuſpected to have had a Hand in his Father's death, and Reign'd 23 years with much Glory and good Succeſs, and died about 1292. Magnus.

CANUTIUS, (Tiberinus) Tribune of the People, he inveighed againſt Anthony, who was held an Enemy to the Commonwealth. But the great Liberty he took after Cicero's Example coſt him his Life, as his did that famous Orator. When Anthony and Cæſar accuſed him of following Iſauricus's Inſtructions in the Adminiſtration of his Charge; He anſwered, That he had rather be his Diſciple, than Scholar to the Calumniator Epideus. Velleius Paterculus.

CAPACCIO, or Capaccio Nuevo, Caput Aqueum, a Town of Italy, in the hithermoſt Principality in the Kingdom of Naples, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Salerno. This is a new Town ſituated in a Plain, but was formerly built upon a Mountain; where its Ruines are yet, and bear the Name of Capaccio Vecchio.

CAPANEUS, one of the Captains that were at the Siege which Polynices laid to Thebes, about the Year of the World 2833. and the firſt who put the Ladder to the Walls of the Town; whence Poets feign'd that he made War againſt Jupiter. Apollodorus.

CAPAX, in the Order of Malta, is a Name given to the Knights that have reſided five years at Malta, and have made four Caravans, or Sea Campaigns, and are in a condition of coming to a Command.

CAP-D'AGUER, or Saint Cruz, a Town of the Province of Sus in the Kingdom of Morocco in Africk, ſituated near the Sea, at the Foot of a Promontory form'd by Mont Atlas, between the Towns of Meſſa and Teſtane. This Place owes its beginning to a Portugueſe Gentleman, who about the Year 1500. built at his own Charges a Caſtle of Wood, to ſecure them who Fiſh'd for Cod and other Fiſh, which are in great quantities in that Sea: He call'd it Saint-Cruz, or The Caſtle of the Holy-Croſs; and the Moors call it, Dar Rumia, that is, Houſe of the Chriſtians. The King of Portugal ſeeing the Importance of this Place for the Navigation of them Seas, and for the Conqueſt of Africa, purchaſed the Caſtle, and built a well Fortified Town there, Garriſon'd and furniſhed it with Artillery. The Portugueſes making frequent Courſes hence, with a great number of Africans and Arabians, who had made themſelves their Vaſſals, would ſoon have become Maſters of the Country, had not the Diſcovery of the Indies ſeem'd more advantageous to them. This Town was taken by the Cherif of Sus, which prejudiced the Portugueſes conſiderably, who had a very convenient Place of it to refreſh themſelves in their Voyages to Guinea and the Indies. Marmol.

CAPE of Good Hope, a Promontory at the Point of the Coaſt of Cafres in Africa. The Hollanders have a Fort near this Cape with five Baſtions, and about 100 Houſes for Inhabitants within Musket Shot of the Fort; Theſe Houſes are as clean within, and on the out ſide, as any in Holland are. The moſt part of the Inhabitants are Catholicks, though they have not the liberty of their Religion. The Situation is Pleaſant, and the Climate very Temperate: Their Spring begins in October, their Summer in January; their Autumn in April, and their Winter in July. Their Summer is extream Hot, but there are Breezes that cool the Air. The Holland Eaſt India Company have a very Beautiful Garden here, where are to be ſeen in four different Plots, or great Beds, the moſt rare Trees and Plants of the Four Parts of the World. Beyond a Neighbouring Mountain, which is full of great Monkeys or Apes, is a Plain 10 Leagues long, where the Hollanders have built other Towns. The Ground is very good, and bears plenty of Corn, and all other Things. The Natives have Senſe in their Faces, but none in their Heads. They go Naked, wearing only a Skin upon their Backs, and another before to hide their Nakedneſs. Their ordinary Food is Butter and Milk, and a Root that taſtes like a Nut, which they Eat inſtead of Bread. They are their own Phyſicians and Chirurgeons, making uſe of the Simples they know to Cure their Diſtempers and Wounds. The greateſt Lords among them are they that have moſt Cattel, which they keep themſelves. Theſe People are divided into divers Nations, who have all the ſame way of living. Each Nation has its Hereditary Captain or Leader, to whom they ſhew great Reſpect. The Right of Inheritance belongs to the Eldeſt, who are ſerved by the Younger Brothers, who do not ſhare at all in the Inheritance, Their Cloaths are Sheep Skins with their Wooll on, dreſs'd with Cow-Dung, and a kind of Greaſe that renders it inſupportable to the Sight and Smell. They have no Knowledge of the Creation of the World; yet they Adore GOD, to whom they Sacrifice, ſometimes to obtain Rain, at other times for fair Weather, according as they have occaſion, for they expect no other Life after this. But withal this they have ſome Good Qualities; for they puniſh Adultery and Theft as Capital Crimes. The chiefeſt of them are the Songuas, which the Europeans call Hotentots, perhaps, becauſe their People have always that Word in their Mouth when they meet with any Strangers; they live towards the Southern and Eaſtern Coaſts, and being Nimble, Strong, Bold, and more Expert than the reſt in handling of Arms, they are hired by them for Soldiers; ſo that beſides them of their own Country, every Commander has ſome Songuas to ſerve under him. They are much given to Hunting, and are very good at killing of Elephants, Rhinocerots, Elks, Deer, Wild Goats, Dogs, and other wild Beaſts, which are in great numbers about the Cape; for the Hotentots being perſuaded that there is no other Life beſides this, they endeavour to give themſelves all the Pleaſures it can afford. To hear them ſpeak, even when they ſerve the Hollanders for a little Bread. Tabaco, or Brandy, you would think they look upon them as Slaves that come to Till their Ground with a great deal of Pains, inſtead of diverting themſelves by Hunting, as they do: Yet, notwithſtanding this their great Opinion of themſelves, they are very miſerable, and naſty to that Exceſs, that one might well think they make it their Buſineſs to render themſelves Frightful: When they have a mind to Dreſs themſelves to advantage, they beſmear their Faces and Hands with the Soot of their Pots, or with a black kind of Greaſe, which renders 'em hideous, and of an inſufferable Smell; they alſo Greaſe their Hair with the ſame, and hang pieces of Leather and Glaſs on the naſty Locks: The greateſt Men amongſt them wear Ivory Rings above and below their Elbows. The Women, beſides this Dreſs, wear pieces of Skins, or Guts twiſted round their Legs; and make themſelves Bracelets and Girdles of Bones of different Colours. When a Woman loſes her firſt Husband, ſhe muſt cut off ſo many Joints of her Fingers, beginning with the little Finger, as ſhe Marries other Husbands. The Men cut out one of their Teſticles, in their Youth, thinking that that will make them more active. Their Cabins are made of Branches of Trees, covered with Skins and Mats, in form of Tents. The Second, or next Nation of the Inhabitants of the Cape are the Namaquas, towards the Weſtern Coaſts; They have the Reputation of being Warriors, and powerful in their Country, though their greateſt Army hardly ſurpaſs 2000 Fighting Men: Theſe for the moſt part are of good Stature, and Robuſt, and do not want Wit; laugh ſeldom, and ſpeak but little. The Third Nation is that of the Ubiquas, who are in the middle of the Land, and make Profeſſion of Robbing and Stealing: Though they cannot raiſe 500 Men, yet it is not eaſie to ſuppreſs them, becauſe they retire to inacceſſible Mountains and Faſtneſſes. The Gonriguas live near the Eaſtern Coaſts, towards the North, and have no great ſpace of Land. The Gaſſiguas, who live about the Mouth of the River without end, are rich and powerful, but are unskilful Warriors. The Giriguas, on the contrary, who live towards the Weſtern Coaſts, are very expert in War. The Seventh Nation is that of the Souſiquas, who live neareſt the Cape, and are allied to the Odiques. In a Voyage that the Governour of the Cape of Good Hope made in 1685. along the Weſtern Coaſt, he diſcovered ſome different Nations about the 28th Degree of Latitude, in a pleaſant Country, abounding with all kind of Fruit and Beaſts: Theſe People are much more tractable than the others; they are well-made, and ſtrong of Body, and wear their Hair ſo very long, that it covers all their Shoulders: Their Arms are a Bow and Arrows, with a Zagaye or long Dart: Their Apparel is a Cloak of Tyger-Skins, which hangs to their Heels; and amongſt them are ſome as white as the Europeans; but they make themſelves black with Greaſe, and the Pouder of a black Stone, which they rub over all their Body. Some of them are very skilful in Minerals, which they underſtand to melt and prepare; but put no great Value upon them, becauſe they have a great many Gold, Silver, and Copper Mines in their Country. The Women are naturally very white, but to pleaſe their Husbands they black themſelves like them: They that are married have the top of the Head ſhaved, and painted Shells hanging at their Ears. The Governour of the Cape had Trumpets, Hautboys, and 5 or 6 Violins along with him: When theſe People heard the Sound of thoſe Inſtruments, they came in great Numbers, and ſent for their own Muſick, which conſiſted of 30 Perſons, who had for the moſt part different Inſtruments: He that was in the middle had a muſical Horn, and the reſt Flagelets and Flutes. This Symphony was accompanied with Dancing and Leaping, whilſt the Muſick-maſter beat the Meaſure, and ſhew'd to keep Time, with a great Stick that could be ſeen by all. See Cafres. P. Tachard.

CAPE de Non, a Promontory upon the Coaſts of the Province of Sus, in the Kingdom of Morocco: It was called ſo, as if one ſaid Cape de non ultra; becauſe 300 years ago it was thought there was no Land beyond it to the Weſtward.

CAPEL, (Sir William) Lord Mayor of London, An. 1504. (20 Hen. VII.) built a fair Chapel on the South-ſide of the Church called St. Bartholomew's, wherein he was buried: From him deſcended Arthur Capel of Hadham in Hertfordſhire, Eſq; a Perſon of great Merit, who being advanced to the Dignity of Baron of the Realm, by the Title of Lord Capel of Hadham, An. 1641. 17 Car. I. put himſelf in Arms, and raiſed ſome Troops of Horſe at his own proper Charge for His Majeſty, throughout the long continuance of thoſe unhappy Troubles; and the King being Priſoner in the Iſle of Wight, courageouſly adventured himſelf, with all the Strength he could raiſe, to reſcue him; but miſcarrying, ſuffered Death for the Glorious Attempt, March 9. 1648. He left four Sons; Arthur, Henry, made Knights of the Bath at the Coronation of King Charles II. Edward and Charles: And as many Daughters; Mary, married to Henry Lord Beauchamp; and ſurviving, to Henry late Marquiſs of Worceſter; Elizabeth, to Charles Earl of Carnarvan, Theodoſia, to Henry, then called Lord Cornbury, now Earl of Clarendon; and Anne, to John, Son and Heir Apparent to Giles Strangways of Melbury-Sandford, in the County of Dorſet, Eſquire Arthur ſucceeding, was both for his Father's Eminent Actings and Sufferings, and his own Perſonal Merits, advanced by King Charles II. to the Title of Viſcount Maldon in the County of Eſſex, and Dignity of Earl of Eſſex, by Letters Patent bearing Date the 20th of April, in the 13th year of his Reign; and ſome time after, conſtituted Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, where his Behaviour acquired him much Reputation. In the latter end of King Charles II.'s Reign, this Lord was committed to the Tower for Treaſon, where he unhappily murthered himſelf with a Razor, as appears both by a Coroner's Inqueſt, who brought him in Felo de ſe, and likewiſe by the Silence of a Committee of Lords ſince the Revolution; who upon Enquiry into the ſaid Murther, let it drop without coming to any Reſolution; which is a plain Evidence of their being ſatisfied with the Verdict above-mentioned.

CAPELAN, a Mountain twelve day's Journey from Siren, Capital of Pegu in the Peninſula of the Indus, the other ſide of the Gulph of Bengala. There is a Mine in it, which has a great quantity of Rubies, yellow Topazes, blue and white Sapphires, Jacinths, Amethiſts, and other precious Stones of different Colours. Tavernier.

CAPELLA, a Learned Orator that lived in the ſecond Age, and was one of thoſe which the Emperor Marc. Arel. Antoninus, the Philoſopher, choſe for the Education of his Son Commodus, who profited but very little for his Maſter's Care. Lamprid.

CAPELLA, or de Capilla, (Andrew) Biſhop of Urgel in Catalonia, was a good Linguiſt, equally skill'd in Latin, Greek, and Hebrew, and applied himſelf particularly to the Study of the Holy Scriptures. He compoſed ſome Commentaries in Latin upon the Prophet Jeremiah, and writ ſeveral other Works in Spaniſh; as, Conſiderations upon the Sundays of the Year, upon the Days of Lent, &c.

CAPELLA, (Martianus Minaus Falix :) 'Tis not certainly known in what time he lived, nor whether he was a Roman or Carthaginian; however, 'tis probable he lived in the beginning of the Sixth Century, being cited by Boethius. He wrote De Nuptiis : Philologiæ, Lib. 7. The beſt Edition of his Works was publiſhed by Hugo Grotius, in 1599. 8º. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Lat. De Math. & de Poet. Lat.

CAPELLE, a Fortreſs of France in Picardy, in that part called Tierache, towards the Frontiers of Hainault, about a League from the River of Oyſe, between Landreu, Auſne, and Guiſe. Capelle was built in the Sixteenth Age, to hinder the People of the Low Country to make Incurſions into Picardy, and was often taken and retaken in the laſt Age. The Spaniards took it in 1636 but it was retaken again the next year by the Cardinal de la Valette, who loſt the Sieurs Buſſi, Lamet, and Rambures, in the Siege.

CAPELLIANUS, Præfect of Mauritania for the Emperour Maximin, about the end of the Third Century: He attacked the two Gordiens, the Father and Son, who had got themſelves proclaimed Emperours in Africa, and had the Senates Approbation of their Election. The Son at forty ſix years of Age was killed in the Battel, and the Father ſoon after killed himſelf for Grief. Jul. Capitolin.

CAPERNAUM, or Caphernaum, one of the ten Cities of Decapolis, and a famous Mart-Town, ſeated on the Banks of the River Jordan, upon the North end of the Lake of Tiberias, in the Tribe of Napthali; and made more Illuſtrious by our Bleſſed SAVIOUR's chuſing it for His Habitation, and on that ſcore often mentioned in the Holy Goſpels, many of His moſt Illuſtrious Miracles being wrought here; for which cauſe, he ſeverely threateneth the Inhabitants for their Infidelity, Matth. 4. 9. Mark 1. 2. 3. 7. 9. Luke 4. 3. 7. 8. 10. Matth. 8. 11. It is at this day a ſmall Village, conſiſting only of eight or ten ſmall Fiſhermen's Cottages. To the Weſt of it lies a Mountain, called The Mountain of Chriſt, becauſe He often Preached there whilſt He lived, and appeared there after His Reſurrection, to Peter, Thomas, Nathanael, James, and John, Joh. 21. Out of this Mountain of Capernaum ſpringeth a very noble Fountain, mentioned by Joſephus, 3 de Bello 18. as very apt to generate and breed up Fiſh. It falls into the River of Dothaim, and with it ſoon after entreth the Lake of Tiberias. This Mountain is placed nearer Bethſaida than Capernaum, though it has the Name from the latter, viz. Capernaum. The preſent Inhabitants are Moors, and exact Money from Pilgrims who come to ſee the Place. It is alſo Famous for the Calling of St. Matthew, who was a Publican here.

CAPES, a River of the Kingdom of Tunis in Africa, comes from Mont Atlas, and diſcharges it ſelf in the Mediterranean, near the Town of Capes, where is a Gulph of the ſame Name. Its Water is brackiſh, and ſo hot when it is drawn up, that it is left to cool for an hour in the Air before it can be drank. Marmol.

CAPET, the Sirname of Hugues, Count of Paris, and Duke of France, Son of Hugues the Great. See Hugues Capet.

CAPETANS, or Capetiens, a Name given to the Kings of France, of the Third Race, which began in Hugues Capet in 987. Lewis XIV. is the Thirtieth King of this Family.

CAPETUS, Sixth King of the Latins, deſcended of Æneas, Reigned 26 years, from A. M. 3064. Others call him Atys Ægyptus, and Capetus Sylvius: It's ſaid he left Capys Sylvius, who Reigned 24 years; and that this was ſucceeded by another of the ſame Name, who Reigned but 13. Titus Livius.

CAPHAREUS, a famous Promontory in the Iſland of Eubœa, and is now called Capo del Oro, or, Il Capo Figera, in the Eaſtern Point of the Iſle of Negropont. It is very dangerous for Ships, by reaſon of the great number of Rocks that lie before it. It is twenty miles from the Iſle of Schizo, twenty from Cariſto, and ſeventy from the Town of Negropont. Here Nauplius, King of Eubœa, revenged the Death of his Son Palamedes, who was killed by the Treachery of Ulyſſes; for as the Grecians were coming from the Siege of Troy, Nauplius got a Light made on the top of this Mountain, which occaſioned the loſs of many of their Ships upon the Rocks thereabouts. Virgil. Priſcian.

CAPI-AGA, or Capou-Agaſi, Great Maſter of the Seraglio, the Chiefeſt in Credit and Dignity of all the White Eunuchs, is always about the Grand Signior's Perſon, where-ever he is: It's he introduces Ambaſſadors to his Audience; and all Buſineſs of Moment paſſes through his hands, before they come to the Prince's Knowledge: His Place makes him neceſſary to all others, and gets him a great many rich Preſents. None can either enter into, or come out of the Emperor's Apartment, without his Order; and when the Grand Viſier has a mind to ſpeak to him, it's this Capi-Aga that preſents him. He wears the Turban in the Seraglio, and goes always a Horſeback by the Privilege of his Charge. He bears the Grand Signior company to the Sultaneſs's Apartments, but ſtays at the Door. His Table is furniſhed at the Grand Signior's Expences; and he has 10 Sultanins a day, which make 60 Livres, or 20 Crowns; and there have been ſome Capi-Aga's who have died worth 2000000, which returns all into the Grand Signior's Coffers. If the Capi-Aga quits his Place, and leaves the Seraglio, he cannot be a Baſſa. Tavern.

CAPILUPI, (Lælio) a famous Poet of Mantua, where he died in 1560. being ſixty two years old. He was ſo good at turning the Senſe of Virgil's Verſes, that he has quite effaced the Glory of Auſonius, Proba Falconia, and others, who have exerciſed themſelves upon the ſame Subject: For, beſides other things, he hath made two or three Cento's of that Poet's Verſes; upon the Origin of Friars; upon their Lives, Rules, and the Ceremonies of the Church; upon the Diſtemper of Naples, or French Diſeaſe, &c.

CAPILUPPI, (Camillo) an Italian. In the year 1572. he printed a Book at Rome, called, The Stratagems; in which he mentions at large the Maſſacre of St. Bartholomew: There are very remarkable and ſingular things in this Book, concerning the Reaſons and Motives which carried the Court of France to this Act of Violence. Thuan. Hiſt. lib. 22. & 53. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 16.

CAPITANATA, a Province of Italy in the Kingdom of Naples. It's ſaid it derived its Name from a famous Captain, ſent thither by the Emperor Baſileus. To the Eaſt and North of it is the Adriatick Sea; to the Weſt the County of Moliſſe; and to the South the Land of Barri, the Baſilicate, and the farther Principality. The Capitanata is the Apulia Daunia of the Ancients. Its Towns are Mont St. Angelo, an Archbiſhop's See, united to that of Manfredonia, Aſcoli, Lucera, Ardona, Boſvano, Arpi, Florenzuola, Troya, Siponte, &c. Mount Gargan, famous for the pretended Apparition of St. Michael. This Province is very fertile, and one of the moſt conſiderable of the Kingdom of Naples. Leand. Alberti Deſcript. Ital. Merula.

CAPITANES, a Name that was given to the Governours of ſome Places of Apulia and Calabria, when the Greek Emperors held theſe Provinces under the Emperours of Germany; and it is for this reaſon, that a Province of the Kingdom of Naples is called Capitanata to this very day. Sigon.

CAPITANIES, Little Governours in the Kingdom of Braſil, according to the Diviſion that the Portugueſes, who are Maſters of the Coaſt, made of it: There are Fourteen, the Captains whereof Command each in his own Territory.

CAPITO, an Hiſtorian of Lycia, lived in the end of the 4th Age. He writ 8 Books of Iſaurium; of his own Country, and of Pamphylia; and tranſlated the Abridgment of Eutropius; which ſhews that he lived after Julian, becauſe it was under his Reign that Eutropius compoſed his Abridgment. Voſſius.

CAPITO, known under the Name of Wolfangus Fabricius Capito, a German, born in Haguenaw in Alſace, in 1478. He ſtudied at Baſle, and, to pleaſe his Father, became a Doctor of Phyſick; but having a greater Inclination for Divinity, he applied himſelf to that Study after his Father's Death, and took the Degrees of Doctor in that Faculty alſo. After this, he learned the Tongues, but particularly the Hebrew; and Cardinal Albertus of Brandenburgh, Archbiſhop of Mayence, inviting him to live with him, he paſſed Doctor in the Canon Law. Being well vers'd in ſo many different Sciences, he made himſelf very great Friends: The Cardinal procured a Patent of Nobility for him and his Family; after which, Capito embraced the Proteſtant Religion, and withdrew to Strasbourg, then to Baſle, and thence to Haguenaw, and became intimate with Bucer and Oecolampadius, married the Widow of this laſt, and wrote his Life. After this Wife's Death, he married another called Agnes, a very Learned Woman; but he died ſome time after, in the year 1542. leaving ſeveral Books of his Works; as, Inſtitutionum Hebraicarum, Lib. 2. Enarrationes in Habaccuc & Oſeam. Vita Joannis Oecolampadii, &c.

CAPITOL, the Name of the Fortreſs of Rome, where there was a Temple built for Jupiter. Tarquinius Priſcus laid the firſt Foundation of it in the 139th year of Rome, and Tarquin the Proud finiſhed it in 221. It has the Name of Capitol from the Latin Word Caput, becauſe a Head was found in digging its Foundations, according to Dionyſius Halicarnaſſæus. It was burnt under the Reign of Vitellius, and rebuilt by Veſpaſian, at the time that the Temple of Jeruſalem was deſtroyed: But being conſumed again by a Fire from Heaven, under Titus, Domitius got it made up again with great Pomp, and ordained Plays, which were celebrated every 5 years, they reckoning their Time by theſe Plays of the Capitol, after the manner of the Olympiads. The Chriſtians have ſince that time built a Church in the place where it ſtood, called Ara Cœli. Dion. Halicarn. Baron. Annal.

CAPITOLINUS, a Name that was given to Jupiter, by reaſon of the Temple he had in the Capitol. This Jupiter Capitolinus is different from Thundering Jupiter, to whom Auguſtus Dedicated a Temple, in remembrance of his Delivery from a great Danger, when one Night on his March, in his Voyage of Spain, a Thunder-bolt fell upon his Litter, and killed him that guided it. Sueton.

CAPITOLINUS, (Julius) an Hiſtorian, who lived in the latter end of the 3d, and beginning of the 4th Age, under the Reign of the Emperor Diocleſian, to whom he Dedicated the Lives of Verus and Antoninus Pius, and Dedicated the Lives of Claudius, Albinus, Macrinus, and the two Maximins and three Gordians, to Conſtantine; wrote alſo the Lives of Balbinus and Maximus, but addreſſed them to none; with divers others that have periſhed through the Injury of the Times. Voſſius.

CAPITOULS, a Name which thoſe take at Toulouſe, who have care of the Buſineſs and Government of the Town. At Paris, Lyons, Rouën, Orleans, Rheims, Troyes, Poictiers, Rochelle, and in all the other Towns of France, between the Garonne and Somme, a River in Picardy, they are called Sheriffs; at Bourdeaux they are called Jurats; and in the other Towns of Guienne, Languedoc, Dauphiné, and Provence, they are called Conſuls, a Word taken from the Romans, but uſed by them in a different ſence. In ſome of the Great and Rich Towns of the Kingdom, the King makes them Gentlemen after the Performance of their Office. They have great Privileges; the Chiefeſt of them is called Provoſt of the Merchants in Paris, Lyons, and Rouën, &c. and Mayors in other Towns, as at Bourdeaux, Rochelle, &c.

CAPITULAIRES, Ordinances of the Kings of France, wherein are many Articles or Heads which regard the Government of the Church, and were made by the Advice of an Aſſembly of Biſhops. The Original of this Word comes from Capitula, which were Articles that the Prelates made and publiſhed, to ſerve as Inſtructions to the Clergy of their Dioceſe; ſo that at laſt the Name of Capitulaires, or Ordinances, was given to all the Articles that concerned Eccleſiaſtical Affairs. Thoſe of Charlemaigne and Lewis the Meek, were collected into Four Books by the Abbot Angeſiſus. Thoſe of King Lothaire, Charles and Lewis, Sons of Lewis the Meek, were collected by Bennet the Levite, or Deacon, into Three Books, to which there has been ſince four or five Additions; and Father Simon has publiſhed, in our times, thoſe of Charles the Bald in particular. And Mr. Baluze has lately publiſhed a Treatiſe on this Subject, which is much perfecter than any we had before.

CAPITULATION of the Empire, is a ſort of Contract which the Emperor makes with the Electors, in the Name of all the Princes and States of the Empire, before he is declared Emperor, and which he ratifies before he is raiſed to that Sovereign Dignity. The uſe of theſe Capitulations was introduced ſince Charles V.'s time; for before, the Ordinary Conſtitutions of the Empire ſerved in ſome meaſure inſtead of theſe Capitulations; but the vaſt Dominions which that Monarch poſſeſſed beſides the Empire, giving the Electors reaſon to fear that he ſhould at ſome time or other encroach upon their Privileges, they thought fit to propoſe ſome Conditions to him; which he ſubmited to: And this has been obſerved at the Election of all the other Emperors ſince his time; which is a kind of Reſtraint upon their Authority, hinders their Government from being altogether Monarchical, and renders it a Mixture of Monarchy and Ariſtocracy. When the Emperour is choſen, the Electors lead him to the Church, and place him upon the Great Altar, where the Archbiſhop of Mayence gives him the Capitulation to Sign, with a Promiſe to confirm, immediately after his Coronation, all the Liberties and Privileges which the Electors, and other Princes of the States and Empire, enjoy before. This Promiſe he executes preſently after, and diſpatches his Letters Patents, Signed and Sealed with the Great Seal, to each Elector, and other Parties concerned. By the Capitulation of Leopold, choſen in 1658. this Emperor obliged himſelf to obſerve and maintain the Golden Bull; The Agreement made at Augsburg in 1555. The Treaties of Munſter and Oſnabruck in 1648. and ſeveral other Articles, which make in all 47, and run chiefly upon Changing nothing in Matters of Religion; and to hinder him from Aboliſhing any Laws; Declaring of War; Impoſing Taxes or Contributions; Making of Peace or Alliances, or Building any Fortreſs, or doing any other thing that relates to the General Good of the Empire, without the Conſent of the States of the Empire, and the Advice of the Electors and other Princes of it. Hitherto theſe Articles or Capitulations were preſented to the Emperor by the Electors only, without the Concurrence of the other States, who have complained from time to time againſt ſuch Proceedings: And in the time of the Weſtphalian Treaty, it was propoſed to deliberate, in the following Diet, upon a Way of making a perpetual Capitulation; but it had no effect. Some German Authors own, That this Capitulation limits the Emperor's Power; but maintain, That it does not weaken his Sovereignty: Tho' the moſt part maintain, That he is not Abſolute, becauſe he receives the Empire under Conditions, which ſet Bounds to an Abſolute Authority. Severinus de Monſambanos's Preſent State of the Empire.

CAPIVACCIO, (Jerom) of Padua, one of the chiefeſt Phyſicians of the 16th Age: He was a good Linguiſt, able Scholar, and prime Philoſopher. He died in his own Country in 1589. It's ſaid, That an Aſtrologer foretelling him that he ſhould die if he undertook any Journey in his old Age, he laughed at the Prophecy; but at his return from viſiting the Duke of Mantua, who was ill, he fell into a violent Fever, whereof he died in few days. He compoſed ſome Books; as, Medicina Practica, Lib. 7. De Methodo Anatomica. De Differentiis Doctrinarum, &c. Vander Linden, &c.

CAPO, or Cabo d'Iſtria, Juſtinopolis, Ægida, & Caput Iſtriæ, a Town of Italy, in the State of Venice, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Aquileia: It's the Capital of the Province of Iſtria, ſituated upon the Adriatick Sea, between Trieſte and Parenzo. It's thought the Emperour Juſtin rebuilt it, and that from thence it was called Juſtinopolis.

CAPORALE, (Cæſar) an Italian Poet of Perouſe, who lived in the Sixteenth Age: He compoſed a Poem of the Court; and deſcribed a Courteſan's Life ſo well, that all People took delight in reading it. He had naturally a great Fancy, and much Vivacity; was alſo Merry, and ſo great a Maſter of Words, that he delivered his pleaſant Thoughts with ſuch Grace, that all People were taken with them, and eſteemed his Poems mightily. He compoſed another of Mæcenas's Life, which he divided into ten Parts; but not living to compleat this Work, his Son publiſhed it after his Death, which happened in 1601.

CAPOU-AGASI, the Maſter of the Turkiſh Port, who Commands all the other Officers belonging to the ſame.

CAPOUTAN-BACHA, the Name of the Turkiſh Admiral, or Baſcha of the Sea.

CAPPADOCIA, a great Country in Aſia Minor, which had the Title of a Kingdom. It'sdivided now into 4 Chief Provinces; as, Genech, Suas, Anatolia, and Amaſia. It has Armenia Minor to the Eaſt, Cilicia to the South, Pamphylia and Galatia to the Weſt, and Pontus to the North. Its moſt conſiderable Towns were, Comana, Sebaſta, Neocaſarea, Trebizonde, Cæſarea, Amaſia, Strabo's Country, &c. but now the face of Affairs is changed under the Tyranny of the Turks. Ariarates was one of the ancient Kings of Cappadocia: Pharnaces Ruled before him, and had ſeveral Succeſſors that were Friends to the Romans. Ariobarzanes, driven out by Mithridates, was re-eſtabliſhed by Pompey, about the 690th of Rome. And after this Prince and his Brother Ariarathe's Death, Archelaus obtained the Crown by Anthony's Favour, and matched his Daughter Glaphyra to Alexander, Son to Herod the Great. This Kingdom held about four hundred and ſeventy ſix years, and afterwards the Romans reduced it into a Province,and Governed it by Proconſuls. Iſaac Commenus, who fled from Conſtantinople when it was taken by the French in 1204. eſtabliſhed an Empire in it called Trebiſonde, becauſe of the Capital of that Name, which laſted until David, Sirnamed Cale-Johannes, or Fair John's time, who was taken by Mahomet II. Emperor of the Turks, in 1461. and led Priſoner into Greece, where he and his Children were put to death a little after. This Province in Aſia is bounded to the Eaſt by Armenia the Greater; to the North by the Euxine Sea; to the Weſt by Galatia; and totheSouth by Cilicia, ſeparated from it by Mount Taurus, as Armenia is by the Euphrates. The Turks now call this Province Tocat, from the principal City. The Hebrew Writers called it Caphtor, or Caphtorum, Gen. 10. verſ. 14. It was peopled at firſt by a Son of Miſraim; the Son of Chus and the Philiſtines of Canaan were a Colony of this People. In after-times they were called Leucoſyri, i. e. white Syrians and were Governed by a Race of Kings deſcended of Archemenes King of Perſia; the firſt of which was Mithridates, one of the Competitors for Perſia, after the death of Cambyſes. One of his Succeſſors of the ſame Name was conquered by Sylla, Lucullus, and Pompey the Great. It had Kings till Nero's time, and then was made a Roman Province.

CAPPEL, a Family. Denys Cappel, buried at Paris in 1472. in St. Innocent's Church-yard, left Gervaſe Cappel, who had a Son called James Cappel, that was a Councellor and the King's Advocate in 1536. His Sons were James, William, Lord of Preigny, Phyſician and Curate of Planoy; Lewis, Miniſter and Profeſſor at Sedan and Leiden; Ange, one of the French King's Secretaries; and ſeveral Daughters. James was Councellor of Rennes in Britany; but was obliged to quit his Office becauſe he was a Proteſtant, and withdraw himſelf to a place which belonged to him in Brie, whence he went in 1585. to Sedan, where he died the year after. The Abridgment of his Life is writ in his Son's Preface to his Commentaries upon the Old Teſtament, Printed at Amſterdam in 1689. He had many Children, eſpecially the two following, who continued to render the Name of Cappel famous.

CAPPEL, (James) Lord of Tilloy, and Profeſſor of Divinity at Sedan, Son to James Cappel, Councellor of the Parliament of Rennes; was born in 1568. and ſtudied Divinity at Sedan, where he was received to beMiniſter. He began to exerciſe his Miniſtry in the Land of Tilloy, but was called to Sedan by the Duke of Bouillon in 1599. and died in 1624. He has writ ſeveral Treatiſes of Divinity, ſome critical Obſervations upon the Holy Scriptures, with Controverſies and Hiſtorical Books, ſome whereof are Printed, and the reſt are in the hands of James Cappel, his Nephew, who is now in England. His Notes upon the Old Teſtament were Printed at Amſterdam in 1689. which have at the Head of them the Abridgment of his Life, and the Index of all his Works.

CAPPEL, (Lewis) born in 1585. was a Miniſter and Profeſſor of Hebrew at Saumur: He has publiſhed many Works, in which he ſhewed a depth of Judgment and Skill in all that belonged to the Criticks of the Holy Scripture. He is alſo Author of that excellent Treatiſe, Entituled, Arcanum punctationis revelatum; which was Printed in Holland by Tho. Erpenius, becauſe Gappel could get no body in France nor Geneva to approve it: On the contrary, thoſe of his own Country oppoſed its Publication, imagining the Reformed Religion would be prejudiced by it. This Book proves the Modernneſs of the Hebrew Points to a Demonſtration. This Learned Man has alſo compoſed a Work, Entituled, Critica Sacra, Printed at Paris in 1650. This made more noiſe than the other, and got him the Ill-will of his own Party, as if he had made it his only Buſineſs to maintain the Opinion of the Roman Church againſt the Authority of Scripture, and to undermine the Hebrew Text. They oppoſed the Printing of this Book at Geneva, Sedan, and Leiden, for 10 whole years; but at laſt Father Petau a Jeſuit, Father Morin of the Oratory, Father Merſenne a Mimim, got leave of the King of France to have it Printed at Paris. This appeared ſtrange to the Court of Rome, which was ready to condemn it; becauſe it was a thing unheard of, That a Proteſtant's Book, treating of Divinity, ſhould be Printed with the King's Leave at Paris. But it was Cappel's Son, a Roman Catholick, who overſaw the Impreſſion; for the Father did not appear in it at all. Father Simon quotes a Letter, that Father Morin writ to Cardinal Francis Barberin, upon this Subject; wherein he intimates, That they would do Cappel a Kindneſs in condemning his Book, becauſe it had got him the Hatred of all his own Party; but that at the ſame time it would be prejudicial to the Roman Catholick Cauſe, to which thoſe Criticks were ſerviceable. This Letter was Printed in England, and added to a Collectionof Letters, Entituled, Bibliotheca Orientalis; wherein alſo is the Cardinal's Anſwer to Father Morin. This Work has nothing elſe in the ſix Books it conſiſts of, but ſome Readings, and a Catalogue of the Faults that have ſlipp'd into the Copies of the Bible, thro' the Fault of the Copyiſts; and theſe he accompanies with his Critick Reflections. This Critick was cenſuredby ſeveral Proteſtants; but Grotius, with ſome others of the greateſt Sufficiency, were ſatisfied with it, as appears by Grotius's Letter to him: Contentus eſto magnis, potius quam multis Laudatoribus. He has alſo writ ſome Apologies to defend his Book: But that which deſerves moſt to be conſidered, is, his Apologetical Letter, addreſſed to Archbiſhop Uſher againſt Betius, who accuſed him of having combined with Father Morinus to deſtroy all the Originals of the Bible. He ſhews to the contrary, That in his [illegible]riticks he was much againſt the Opinion of Father Morin; but that Father being concerned in the Publiſhing his Book, with his Son John Cappel, had ſuppreſſed that which made againſt himſelf; which is all Printed with this Apologetical Letter, and may be ſeen at large in the 19th and following Pages. Cappel alſo publiſhed ſeveral other Works, which are very conſiderable. Walton has Reprinted this Author's Sacred Chronology, that was Printed at Paris in 1655. in the Prolegomena, which are at the beginning of the Engliſh Polyglot; as alſo his Deſcription of the Temple of Solomon. His Theological Commentaries and Criticks upon the Old Teſtament, with his Arcanum, in Folio, were Printed at Amſterdam in 1689. He died at Saumur in 1658. having made the Abridgment of his Life in his Work De Gente Cappellorum.

CAPRAIA, a little Iſland between Corſica and Italy, in the Sea of Genoua. It was formerly inhabited by Monks; but is now ſubject to the Genoueſes, who have a Garriſon in it. The Ancients called it Ægitlon, or Ægilium, Caprarin, and Capraſia.

CAPRAROLA, a famous Palace of Italy, belonging to the Duke of Parma, and built in the Sixteenth Century by Cardinal Alexander Farneſe. It's in St. Peter's Patrimony, in the County of Ronciglioni near Viterbo, and about 25 miles from Rome. Caprarola is the Work of the famous Architect Vignole, and is eſteemed one of the moſt magnificent Palaces of Italy for its Structure. It's over-againſt a Mountain, built in a Pentagone, with 5 Fronts, all equal and high, with a round Court in the middle, as are alſo the Corridors and Galleries that environ it; yet the Halls are ſquare and proportionable. The chiefeſt was painted by Peter Orbiſta, who was in great Reputation under Paul III. There is one of the Chambers, where 4, each in a corner, with their Ears turned to the Wall, may hear one another, though they ſpeak but very low, and thoſe that are in the middle do not hear a word. There is another, where if one ſtamps with the Foot in the middle of the Chamber, they that ſtand abroad think it a Piſtol-ſhot. And all the other Apartments have each their particular Beauty: And the Gardens and Fountains are proportionably Magnificent.

CAPREE, or the Iſle of Capri, Capræa, and Capreæ, an Iſland of the Tyrrhen or Tuſcan Sea, over-againſt Puzzoli, in the Kingdom of Naples, on which it depends. This is the Iſland whither Tiberius withdrew to commit his Crimes, which were not kept ſo private, but Suetonius knew them, and tranſmitted them to Poſterity, to raiſe an Averſion againſt him, who committed them without Shame. It's about 8 miles from the Cape of Campanella, and is about 12 in compaſs. The chief Town of it is called by the ſame Name, and is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Amalfi; the Biſhop's beſt Revenue comes from Quails, which twice in the year reſort to this Iſland, and whence ſome have call'd him Biſhop of Quails.

CAPREOLUS, a Native of Breſcia in Italy, an excellent Lawyer and Hiſtorian, was in great Eſteem in the beginning of the Sixteenth Age. He compoſed ſeveral Works which gain'd him great Reputation, as the Hiſtory of Breſha in Fourteen Books, whereof Twelve were Printed; Defenſio Statuti Brixienſium. De Ambitione & ſumptibus funerum minuendis. Dialogus de confirmatione Fidei. Leand. Albert. Deſc. Ital.

CAPREOLUS Biſhop of Carthage, ſent the Deacon Beſula to aſſiſt in the Council of Epheſus in 431. the miſerable Condition that the Vandal War brought the Churches of Africa into, hindering the Prelates themſelves from being there in Perſon. He writ a Letter of Excuſe, which is to be ſeen amongſt the Acts of the Council of Epheſus, and ſomething of Incarnation, quoted by Cardinal Baronius.

CAPREOLUS, (John) a Dominican living in the Fifteenth Century. He wrote Four Books of Commentaries upon the Maſter of the Sentences, and was a great Champion for Thomas Aquinas. Bellarmin. Trithem.

CAPRICORN, one of the Twelve Signs of the Zodiack, conſiſting of 28 Stars, which are ſaid to repreſent the Figure of a Goat. The Sun enters this Sign in the Month of December, and then makes the Winter Solſtice, when the Sun begins to return to the Æquator. Poets ſay, that it's Amalthea's Goat, which had nouriſhed Jupiter with its Milk, and that this God, to recompence this good Office, has made it a Conſtellation. Others feign'd that the God Pan, fearing the Giant Typho, diſguis'd himſelf into a Goat that had a Fiſhes Tail, and that he was afterwards taken up into the Skies by Jupiter's Order, who much admir'd this Cunning. Auguſtus Cæſar was born under this Sign, and therefore had ſome Gold and Copper Pieces coin'd that bore its Figure. Pliny ſays, that thoſe that lived towards the South of Attica, had a Day which they called Caprificiel, and dedicated it to Vulcan, on which they began to gather their Honey.

CAPROTINA, is the Name that the ancient Romans gave Juno, and to the Nones of July, upon which they celebrated a Solemn Feaſt, whereof the Original is as follows. After the Gauls had left Rome, the neighbouring People, who knew that the Forces of the Republick were drained, found the Occaſion favourable to make themſelves Maſters thereof, and gave the Command of their Troops to Lucius, Dictator of the Fidenates, who ſent a Herald to the Senate, to declare, that he was willing to preſerve the Remains of Rome, ſo that the Romans did but ſend them their Wives and Daughters. The Senators ſeeing their Ruine at hand, and not knowing what to reſolve upon, a Slave, call'd Philotis, aſſembled all the other Women Slaves, and dreſſing themſelves in their Miſtreſſes and Daughters Dreſſes, they went directly, in this cheating Garb, into the Enemies Camp, where they were no ſooner come, but the General diſtributed them amongſt the Officers and Soldiers, whom the cunning Females invited to Drink and make Merry with them, under pretence, that on that Day they celebrated a Solemn Feaſt; and when they found that they had drank hard, and began to droop, they made a Sign from the top of a wild Fig-tree, to which the Romans ran and put all to the Sword. The Senate, to recompence this good Office, gave theſe generous Slaves their Liberty, and aſſigned each of them a Portion out of the Publick Revenues. The Romans call'd this day of their Deliverance Nonæ Caprotinæ, and eſtabliſhed an Annual Feaſt to Juno Caprotina, called ſo from Caprificus, which ſignifies a wild Fig-tree. Plutarch.

CAPSA, a Town in the innermoſt Libya, in the middle of her vaſt Deſarts, which environ it on all ſides, and thence it has its Name, according to the Learned Bochart. Caphas in Hebrew, whence he takes Capſa, ſignifying to preſs, incloſe, and lock in. Florus and Saluſt ſpeaking of the Inhabitants of Capſa, ſay, they are in the midſt of their Sands and Serpents, which defend them better from thoſe that would attack them, than their Armies and Ramparts would.

CAPUA, a Town of Italy in Terra di Lavoro, with an Archbiſhoprick. It's built upon the Vulturnus, two Miles from the Ruines of the ancient Capua, which was compared to Rome and Carthage, and deſerved to be called the Town of Pleaſures. Some attribute its Foundation to the Oſcians, and others to the Trojan Capys. In 330 of Rome, the Samnites made themſelves Maſters of it in the Night, it being then a Colony of Tuſcans, and Maſſacred all the Inhabitants. Hannibal, after the Battel of Cannæ, which was fought in the 538th of Rome, wintered his Army in this Town, which weakned and made his Soldiers ſo Lazy, that they could never after make Head againſt the Romans, who re-took Capua in 543. and it being debated whether it ſhould be demoliſhed or no, it was carried in the Negative, becauſe it did the Commonwealth that conſiderable Service in ſoftning the Courage of the Carthaginians by its Pleaſures, and it became a Colony afterwards; it was deſtroyed by Genſericus King of the Vandals, but re-built in the Sixth Age by Narſes, General to the Emperor Juſtinian. The Lombards ruined it a ſecond time, and its thought they laid the Foundation of New Capua upon the Vulturnus. Pope John IV. erected it into an Archbiſhoprick in 968. Capua is now very different from what it was formerly, and decreaſes daily, ſo that there is nothing but its Name which renders it conſiderable. It's defended by a ſtrong Caſtle, and ſome other Fortifications. Pope Sericius aſſembled a Council at Capua in 389. to put an end to the Diviſions of the Church of Antioch, which had alſo created ſome Trouble in the Weſtern and Eaſtern Churches. St. Ambroſe preſided in it, and it was ordained that Anicius of Theſſalonica ſhould examine the Buſineſs of Bonoſus Biſhop of Macedonia, who taught ſome Errors. The Second was held in 1087. for the Election of Victor III. who, after a great deal of Oppoſition, was at laſt led to Rome, where he was Crowned. Pope Gelaſius II. held another in 1118. where the Emperor Henry V. was Excommunicated, with Maurice Burdin, who was Anti-pope in Pope Gregory the Eighth's time, and there were others of leſſer Note.

CAPUCHIATI, one of the Names given to the Wicclevites in England.

CAPUCINS, a ſort of Franciſcan Fryars; called Caputins from their great Capuchon, which is an odd kind of Cap or Hood ſow'd to their Habit, and hangs generally down their Back. It's ſaid that the firſt Convent of this Order was built at Camerino by the Dutcheſs Catharine Cibo. In Charles the Ninth's Reign, theſe Fryars were received in France, and had firſt of all a Convent built them at Meudon by the Cardinal of Lorrain. Henry III. built them another in the Fauxbourg of St. Honore. They have Nine Provinces in this Kingdom, or Ten, counting that of Lorrain, and a great number of Monaſteries. Gratian. Spondan.

CAP-VERDE, a famous Promontory of Nigritia, in the Weſt of Africa, South of the Mouth of the River Senega. This Coaſt is frequented by the Europeans. The Iſlands of Cape-Verde were diſcovered in 1440. They are in Number Nine, the greateſt, St. Jago, is 70 Miles long. The Portugueſe have built a Town upon it, by a pleaſant River, which contains 500 Families. The Iſlands of Cape-verd are in number Ten, St. Antonio, St. Vincent, St. Lucia, St. Nicholas, de Sal, St. Jago, de Fuego, de Brava, de Mayo, and de Bona Viſta. This laſt is the neareſt to the Cape, and in the Sea Chart of Anth. Jacob is placed 100 Leagues from it to the North Weſt, whereas in Maps they are all placed to the South Weſt of the Cape, Bona Viſta is placed by him in 15. 42. The Air of theſe Iſlands is unwholſom, ſo that the Inhabitants are very ſubject to Fevers, Aches and Fluxes. Their Rains are in June. The Inhabitants are Portugueſe, Mulattoes, and Negroes; at St. Jago there is a Biſhop to take care of theſe Iſlands. They were diſcovered in 1440 by Antonio de Noli, a Genoueſe. Del Fuogo was taken by Sir Antho. Shirly, in 1596. Theſe are ſuppoſed to be the Gorgades of the Ancients. Herbert our Countryman ſaith, they were found in 1495. P. 6. ſo ſuppoſeth they were the Heſperides of the Ancients.

CAP-VERDE; This Cape is called by Ptolemy Arſinarium, and is one of the moſt famous Head Lands in Africa. It is embraced by the Branches of the Niger; the South Branch is called Gambræ Gambea, and the North Branch Senega, Sanega, Pory, Pag. 43. Juſt upon this Cape is a Knot of Seven ſmall Iſlands, utterly deſtitute of Inhabitants, and called the Barbacene; for the greater Iſlands, ſee the Iſlands of Cape-Verde. This Cape was firſt diſcovered by Alovis de Gadamoſta, a Venetian, for the Portugueſe, in 1455. Lat. 14. 43. Hackl.

CAPYS, Sirnamed Sylvius, Seventh King of the Latins, and of the Family of Æneas, ſucceeded Capetus, Anno Mundi 3090. and Reigned 28 years; others ſay but 24. Some Authors think that this Capys cauſed the Town of Capua to be built. Suetonius ſays, that there were Braſs Plates found in Capys's Tomb the ſame year that Julius Cæſar was kill'd, with Inſcriptions in Greek, that when Capys's Bones came to be diſcovered, one of Julius's Deſcendants ſhould be killed by his own Party. Dion. Halicarn.

CAR, Son of Phoroneus, King of Argos, Reigned at Megara; he called this Town and Province Caria, from his own Name, built a Temple for the Goddeſs Ceres, and is ſaid to be the firſt that found the Art of Divination, by the Flight and Singing of Birds. Herodotus, Lib. 1.

CARA Muſtapha, the Grand Viſier. The Prime Viſier Coprogli, or Cuperly, his Uncle, got him brought up among the Itchoglans, or young Men of the Seraglio; his good Qualities gain'd him the Love of the Eunuchs, and in leſs than Ten years, he was made one of the Officers of the Treaſury. The Sultaneſs-Mother Valida having gone thither one day with her Son Mahomet the Fourth, was much taken with Muſtapha's Air and good Mien, and made him a Preſent of a very fine Emerald, which the Sultan had given her. It's ſaid ſhe had him very often afterwards into her Chamber, to ſatisfie her great Paſſion for him, and took care to help him to the greateſt Imployments in the Empire, and at laſt to be Grand Viſier. She firſt got him made Maſter of the Horſe to the Grand Signior. Some time after he killed Aſſan Baſcha, who had revolted in Aſia, which procured him the entire Eſteem of his Prince, who recompenſed him with the Place of Baſcha Capoutan, or Admiral at Sea. He was afterwards Kaimacan, which is the Second Dignity in the Empire, and was at laſt made Grand Viſier, and had the Grand Signior's Daughter in Marriage. He had been happier in his Miniſtry, if he had concerned himſelf leſs with the Intreagues of the Seraglio. The Princeſs Baſch-Lari, Widow of the Unfortunate Aſſan, and Siſter to the Emperor Mahomet, was innocently the Cauſe of his Fall. For he became ſo deſperately in Love with her, that he would have undertaken any thing to enjoy this Princeſs; but to no purpoſe, for the Sultan Valida being irritated at his Diſdain, whom ſhe her ſelf had raiſed, made all his Deſigns miſcarry; and he, to be revenged of her, got her deprived of the Part ſhe had in the Government of the Empire. This was enough to raiſe the Empreſſes Indignation, and make her ſtudy by all means to ruine him. She repreſented to the Grand Signior the many Complaints which the great Men of the Port made againſt his Tyranny, blam'd his ill Conduct in the War of Hungary, accuſed him of Cowardice for ſhamefully raiſing the Siege of Vienna, after he had loſt the beſt Troops of the Ottoman Empire; and at laſt made uſe of the loſs of Gran, to animate the Janiſaries to a Rebellion, thereby to oblige the Grand Signior to ſacrifice that inſolent Miniſter to their publick Hatred. Mahomet, in the beginning, had ſome difficulty to conſent to this, becauſe he loved the Viſier very well; but ſeeing himſelf forced to it, after he had got him Condemned by the Mufti, or Head of Religion, he ſent a Warrant for his Execution by Two Aga's of the Janiſaries, who ſtrangled him at Belgrade the 25th of December 1683. His Head was brought to Conſtantinople, where it was a pleaſant Sight to the People. None wept for his Death but the Princeſs Baſch-Lari; who got his Head ſecretly taken away, not being able to ſuffer that the Head of one ſhould be expoſed as a publick Spectacle, whom ſhe had honoured with her Eſteem. Hiſtory of his Life.

CARACALLA (Marcus Aurelius Anthoninus Baſſianus) Emperor, ſucceeded his Father Severus in February 211. He was Born at Lyons in the Palace of Antiquaile, when his Father governed this Province; and he was proclaimed Emperor near Vims, now the Marquiſate of Neufville. At his return to Rome, he got the Phyſicians put to Death, becauſe they had not diſpatched his Father as he would have had them. He killed his Brother Geta in his Mother's Arms, put the great Lawyer Papinianus to Death, becauſe he would neither excuſe nor defend his Parricide, and all his Father's and Brother's Servants; ſo that the Hiſtorians of that Time, number 20000 that were Maſſacred by his Order. He alſo had the Impudence to Marry Julia his Father's Widow. Then going to the Eaſt, he filled the Town of Alexandria with the Blood of the Inhabitants, and conſulted none but Magicians and Aſtrologers, and yet he boaſted of imitating Alexander the Great. So many Cruelties haſtned his Death; ſome Officers conſpired againſt him, and as he went from Edeſſa to Carra of Meſopotamia, one of his Captains, called Martian, killed him by Macrinus's Order, who ſucceeded him. The Captain took his time to do this as Caracalla quitted his Horſe to eaſe Nature, having for that end withdrawn himſelf from his Guards. Which was a juſt Puniſhment for his Crimes; for he was become the Object of the Hatred of the Empire, and all neighbouring Princes, being neither Humane to his Subjects, nor Honeſt to his Allies. Abagarus, King of Edeſſa, came to ſee him as an Ally, but he ſeiz'd him, and made himſelf Maſter of his Country. He did the like to the King of Armenia, and to his Children, and to Artabanus, King of the Parthians; all which he Treated the ſame way, after he had ſcandalouſly deceiv'd them, with a great deal of Diſſimulation and Foul Play. His Anger againſt thoſe of Alexandria proceeded from a Report that thoſe People ſpoke ill of him. Caracalla Reigned ſix years, two months, and ſix days; from the 2d of February 211. to the 8th of April 217. He was Twenty nine years old; or according to Spartan Forty three. He had the Name of Caracalla given him, becauſe of a certain Garment which he brought from Gaul, and would have the People to wear it. He alſo aſſumed the Name of Germanicus, after he had ſubdued ſome People of Germany which had revolted, he would have Parthicus and Arabicus joined to his Title, which made Helvius Pertinax, Son to the Emperor of that Name, ſay, That they ſhould alſo add Geticus, becauſe he killed his Brother Geta, and that the Goths are call'd Getæ. Spartian. Herodian. Dion. Caſſius.

CARACCIO, one of the moſt Noble Families of Naples, which has produced Great Men.

CARACCIOLI, (Charles Andrew) Marquis of Torrecuſi, Duke of St. George, &c. was of the Family of that Name at Naples, where he was born in 1583. He was hardly out of his Childhood when he bore Arms in Africa, and begun a Calling which gained him much Reputation afterwards. At his return he commanded a part of the Infantry in the Fleet that was ſent to Braſil, and ſo advanced himſelf by little and little in the Army. He bore the Cardinal Infant Company into the Low-Countreys, and was at the Battel of Norlinguen in 1634. After this he was Maſter of the Artillery in Alſace, and in 1635 he put Succours into Valence in Lombardy, then beſieged by the Mareſchal de Crequy, jointly with the Dukes of Savoy and Parma. This Succour ſaved the Place. Caraccioli came next into the Franche County, whence he went to Navarre, and thence to Biſcaye, where he reſcued Fontarabia in 1638. and re-took Salſes the next year. In 1641. he loſt his Son at the Siege of Barcelona, and the King of Spain writ him a Letter with his own Hand to comfort him, and afterwards gave him the Command of his Armies in Rouſillon, Catalonia, Portugal, and in the Kingdom of Naples. But he withdrew himſelf from theſe Publick Affairs, and lived at Home at his Eaſe and Pleaſure; until he was forced to take the Field again, to go to the Relief of Orbitello, which was beſieged by the French. He compaſſed it happily, put Succours into the Place, and raiſed the Siege in July; and returning thence in the great Heat into Italy, he was taken with a violent Fever, whereof he died the 5th of Auguſt 1646. He was a very honeſt Man, a good Captain, free-hearted, and worthy of the Reputation which he had acquired. Galeazzo Gualdo. Priorato Scena de gli Huom. Illuſt.

CARACCIOLI, (John) Prince of Melphi, Duke of Venouſa, Aſcoli, and Soria, great Seneſchal of the Kingdom of Naples, and Marſhal of France: He was born at Naples, Son to John Caraccioli Prince of Melphi. He adhered to France under the Reign of Charles the Eighth, and continued under Lewis the Twelfth, and was at the famous Battel of Ravenna in 1512. But afterwards the Revolution of Naples made him take new Meaſures, and declare for the Emperor Charles V. The Sieur Lautrec, who commanded the Armies of France, took him and all his Family Priſoners at Melphi in 1528. and in this Condition, ſeeing himſelf abandoned by the Emperor Charles V. who refuſed to help him with what he wanted for his Ranſom, he ſubmitted himſelf to the Generoſity of Francis I. who being the civileſt and moſt obliging Monarch in the World, gave him his Liberty, and made him Knight of his Order, and ſome time afterwards choſe him to be Lieutenant General of his Armies; and in conſideration of the good Service he did him, and of the Loſs of his Lands in Italy, he gave him ſome in France, as Romorentin, Nogent, Brie-Comte-Robert, &c. John Caraccioli did very good Service againſt the Emperor in Provence in 1536. and the year after was at the taking of the Caſtle of Heſdin, and continued afterwards to make himſelf admired for his Bravery and Fidelity. The Enemy endeavoured to corrupt him; but it was to no purpoſe. In 1543. he relieved Luxembourg and Landreci. In 1544. the King gave him the Mareſchal's Battoon at Fontainbleau; and in 1545. named him to be his Lieutenant General in Piedmont, where he continued until 1550. Count Charles of Coſſe, Duke of Briſſac, being on his Journey to Piedmont, John Caraccioli, Prince of Melphi, ſays Thuanus, reſolving then to return into France, after he had governed that Province with a great deal of Glory, and had re-eſtabliſhed Military Diſcipline, repreſſed the Soldiers Inſolency, who committed a great deal of Diſorder in all Places, dy'd at Suſa in 1550. aged 70.

CARACCIOLI, (Galeazzo) Marqueſs of Vic, eſteemed at Charles the Fifth's Court, who made his Father a Marqueſs. He was Gentleman to Philip the Second's Son, but converſing with ſome Proteſtants in Germany and Italy, he learned their Religion, and went to Geneva in 1550 to make Profeſſion of what he believed. His Wife would not come after him, wherefore he had leave given him at Geneva to take another. His Life is publiſhed in Italian, French and Engliſh. See Galeacius.

CARACCIOLI, (John Anthony) he was Son of John, the Prince of Melphi abovementioned. He had a great deal of Elocution, underſtood the Tongues, and did not want other Learning. Theſe Qualities made him no leſs eſteemed than his Birth. He was intended for the Church, and preached with great Applauſe, and frequented none but Learned Men. In conſideration of his Father's Merit, he was made Abbot of St. Victor, and it was at this time that he compoſed a Work, Intituled, The Looking-Glaſs of true Religion. Afterwards, Lewis, Cardinal of Lorrain, reſigned him the Biſhoprick of Troyes in Champagne, and he was conſecrated the 15th of November 1551. This Prelate always had a ſecret Inclination for the Proteſtant Religion, and in 1561. after the Conference at Poiſſy, not only declared himſelf the Protector thereof, but after being choſen by the People, preached its Doctrine publickly; whereupon he was bereft of his Dignity, and withdrew to Chateau Neuf upon the Loire, which was part of the Land that Francis I. gave to his Father, and there he died in 1569. Thuanus.

CARACCIOLI, (Cæſar Eugenius) liv'd in the Seventeenth Century, and publiſh'd a Book call'd, Napoli Sacra. Antonius Caraccioli Printed a Treatiſe, De Sacris Eccleſiæ Monumentis in 1645. And Metello Caraccioli, a Jeſuit, wrote Three Volumes of Commentaries upon Iſaiah, with ſome other Pieces. Sanſovin Famil. Ital. Alegamb. Hiſt. Script. S. J.

CARACHE, or Caracci, (Ludovico) Uncle to Hannibal and Auguſtin of that Name hereafter mention'd, Studied at Parma after Coreggio, and excell'd in Deſign and Colouring, with ſuch a Grace, and ſo much Candour, that Guido the Scholar of Hannibal, did afterwards imitate him with great ſucceſs. There are ſome of his Pictures to be ſeen, which are very beautiful, and well underſtood. He made his ordinary Reſidence at Bononia, and it was he who put the Pencil into the Hands of Hannibal his Nephew. Freſnoy's Art of Painting.

CARACHE, (Hannibal) in a little time excell'd his Maſter in all Arts of Painting. He imitated Coreggio, Titian, and Raphael, in their different Manners as he pleas'd, excepting only, that you ſee not in his Pictures the Nobleneſs, the Graces and the Charms of Raphael; and that his Out-lines are neither ſo pure nor ſo elegant as his; in all other Things he's wonderfully accompliſh'd, and of an Univerſal Genius. Freſnoy, Art. P.

CARACHE, (Auguſtino) Brother to Hannibal, was alſo a very good Painter, and an admirable Graver. He had a Natural Son, call'd Antonio, who dyed at the Age of 35 years, and who, according to the general Opinion, would have ſurpaſs'd his Uncle Hannibal, for by what he left behind him, it appears that he was of a lofty Genius. Freſnoy, Ibid.

CARACTACUS, a Britiſh King, who Reigned jointly with Tododumnus his Brother. He proved to be one of the braveſt Kings of Britain, who held out Seven years, or, as Tacitus ſays, Nine, againſt the Roman Forces in this Iſland, with great Courage and Prudence. The Seat of his War was among the Ordovices, on the Weſt Borders of Shropſhire, where the Odds were all on his Side, and the Difficulties on the Roman. All the Avenues, and the very Hills themſelves, he fortified with Heaps of Stones, and ſtrong Guards of Men; and to come at him, a River muſt be waded, the Paſſage whereof was unſafe. Oſtorius, with the Roman Forces, being come up to him, he went up and down animating his Officers and Soldiers, telling them, That this was the Day, and this the Field where they muſt venture their Lives to defend their Liberty. He put them in mind of his glorious Anceſtors, whoſe Valor had hitherto preſerved them from Bondage, their Wives and Children from Reproach, Oſtorius the Roman General, by this time took all the Precautions poſſible, ordered his Army to paſs over the River, who being come within reach, the Britains ſlew abundance of them with Arrows, Darts and Stones; but the Romans cloſing their Ranks, and holding their Targets over their Head, threw down the looſe Rampires of the Britains, and broke in amongſt them with ſuch Fury, that having neither Helmet nor Cuiraſs to defend them, they were ſoon overcome. In this Battel the Wife and Daughter of Caractacus were taken, and he eſcaping to Cartiſmandua, Queen of the Brigantes, was betray'd by her to the Romans, who ſent him to Rome. At his Entrance into the City, his Servants came firſt in order, bearing his Trophies won in other Wars; then his Wife and Daughter, and himſelf laſt of all, who alone, bearing a reſolute Countenance in this Diſgraceful and Captive Condition, ſpoke to this purpoſe to Claudius, ſtanding before his Tribunal: If my Mind, Cæſar, had been as moderate in the heighth of Fortune as my Birth and Dignity was eminent, I might have come a Friend rather than a Captive to this City. Nor couldſt thou have diſliked him for an Ally, who is of ſo Noble a Deſcent, and who has ruled ſo many Nations. My preſent Eſtate is to me Diſgraceful, to thee Glorious. I had Riches, Horſes, Arms and Men, and 'tis no wonder if I ſtruggled hard to keep them. But if by Fate yours muſt be the only Empire, then of neceſſity Ours amongſt the reſt muſt ſubmit. Had I ſooner been forced to yield, my Misfortunes had been leſs Notorious, and your Conqueſt leſs Renowned. In the ſevereſt Determining of me, both will be ſoon forgotten. But if you grant that I ſhall live, by me will live to you for ever, that Praiſe, which is next to Divine, the Clemency of a Conqueror. Cæſar, affected with his Speech, as he was with his Countenance, freely granted him and all the reſt their Pardons, for which they returned him their Thanks in a moſt ſubmiſſive manner. Tacit.

CARADOCUS, a Welſhman, living in the Reign of King Stephen, about 1150. He wrote a Treatiſe of the Succeſſion of ſeveral Petty Kings of England, De Situ Orbis; Commentaries upon Merlin's Prophecies; The Life of the Abbot Gildas, &c. Pitſ. De Script. Angl. Voſſius De Hiſt. Lat. Lib. 2. Cap. 15. The following Diſtick was made of him:

Hiſtoriam Britonum doctus ſcripſit Caradocus,
Poſt Cawalladrum regius ſceptra notans.

CARAFFA, one of the moſt Noble, and moſt Illuſtrious Families of the Kingdom of Naples, where it is divided into the ſeveral Branches of Ariano, Montorio, De Ruvo, Monte-Negro, and Anza. Authors ſpeak differently of the Original of this Family. They ſay that it came from a Neapolitan Knight, of the Houſe of Caraccioli, in great Eſteem with Otho Emperor of Germany, in the Tenth Age, whom he followed where-ever the Intereſt of the Empire made him turn his Arms; and that this Emperor engaging himſelf once too far amongſt his Enemies, ſo that he was in great Danger of his Life, this Knight faced them with an undaunted Courage, ſuſtained all their Efforts, and gave time to the other Troops to come to his Relief; ſo that he ſaved the Emperor's Life with the Loſs of his own in a glorious manner, receiving ſeveral Wounds, whereof one was in the Heart. The Emperor, after he had put his Enemies to Flight, came himſelf to the Place of Battel to ſearch for this generous Knight's Body amongſt the Dead, and as ſoon as he found it, he quitted his Horſe, and laid his Hand upon his dead Heart, crying (O Cara fe!) intimating, that his Fidelity coſt him dear. Since that time, that Family this Knight was deſcended of, took the Name of Carafe, from the Emperor's Word Cara fe. Others ſay, That the Prince ſeeing his Armour all bloody, laid his three Fingers upon it, ſaying, Cara fe M'è la noſtra; and that the Fingers wiping off the Blood, and leaving three white Stroaks behind, is the reaſon of the three white Bars in their Coat of Arms. Memoires du Temps, &c.

CARAFFA, (Anthony) Cardinal, was Native of Naples, of the Family of Caraffa: He came to Rome very young, and was brought up near Pope Paul IV. his Great Uncle, who made him his Chamberlain, and gave him a Canonicat at St. Peter's. He was perſecuted by the ſucceeding Pope, but re-called to Rome by Pius V. who made him Cardinal. Some time afterwards he made him Chief of the Congregation, eſtabliſhed for the Correction of Bibles, and of that which was held for the Explication of the Council of Trent. His Learning rendred him fit for theſe great Employments: He was alſo made the Apoſtolick Library-Keeper under Gregory XIII. and died in 1591. Cardinal Caraffa Tranſlated ſeveral Works out of Greek into Latin. As Catena veterum Patrum in Cantica, veteris & novi Teſtamenti. Comment. Theod. in Pſalm. S. Gregorii Nazianzeni Orat. &c. He alſo corrected the Bible of the Septuagint, and added Notes of his own making; collected the Popes Decretals into Three Volumes, reduced St. Jerom's Epiſtles into common Places, and left ſeveral other Works, which ſhew the depth of his Knowledge, and withal, that he was very laborious. Baron. Spondan.

CARAFFA, (Charles) Cardinal, Nephew to Pope Paul IV. was Third Son of John Alphonſus, Count of Montorio: He was born at Naples the 29th of March 1517. He ſerved under the Marquis of Guaſt in Piedmont, and bore Arms under the Duke of Parma in Germany. But at laſt John Peter Caraffa, his Uncle, being choſen Pope in 1555. all things changed to his Advantage, for he was made Cardinal, and ſent Legat into France in 1556. to ratifie the Articles, made privately at Rome, for a Truce between the Pope and King Henry II. but the Cardinal kept Correſpondence with the Spaniards, and in 1557. went Legat for Peace to Philip II. who kept his Court at that time at Bruſſels. There were many Complaints made againſt him, which obliged the Pope to baniſh his Kindred out of Rome, and ſend them into ſeveral Parts. This fell out in 1559. and the Pope died about the latter end of the ſame year. Pope Pius IV. ſucceeded him, who made the Cardinal, the Duke of Palliano, his Brother, Count Aliffe, their Brother-in-Law Leonard Cardini, Priſoners, but miſſed the Count of Montebello of the ſame Family, whom they deſigned to ſerve as they did the others. Theſe Proceedings ſeemed the more ſurpriſing, becauſe Pius IV. ſeemed willing to favour the Caraffa's. After this he brought them to Trial, and having aſſembled the College, after the Proceſs had laſted Nine Months, he made them report their Proceeding on Monday the 3d of March 1561. and afterwards, without adviſing with the Cardinals, he pronounced Sentence of Death himſelf on the four Priſoners. The Duke of Palliano was accuſed of putting his Wife to Death, whom he had ſurpriſed in Adultery, and the reſt were charged with being his Accomplices, and of having a Hand in the Cardinal's Tyrannies. The Duke, the Count of Aliffe, and Leonardo Cardini, were beheaded, and the Cardinal was Strangled. This Inflexible Severity of Pius IV. ſays Onuphrius, was a greater Blot to his own Memory than to that of the Caraffa's. Spondan. Sacchini. &c.

CARAFFA, (Jerome) Lieutenant-General of the King of Spain's Armies, he was Marquis of Monte-Negro in the Kingdom of Naples, where he was born in 1564. He was Son to Renald Caraffa, and Nephew of Cardinal Anthony, who had him brought up in Learning and the Knowledge of Tongues, which he ſpoke with a great deal of Facility. From 1587. he ſerved in the Low-Countreys under the Duke of Parma, where he acquired a great Reputation upon many Occaſions. He was at the Aſſault of Lagni in 1590. at the Succour of Roan in 1592. at the Surprize of Amiens in 1597. and at ſeveral other Rencounters after. He defended this laſt Town after the Death of Porto-Carrero, and ſurrendred it to Henry IV. He alſo ſerved under the Archduke Albertus, augmented his Fame in 1620. and in Milan in 1621. It was in this year that Philip IV. King of Spain being about ſending him into Sicily as Commander of his Horſe, he was beg'd of him by the Emperor, who imploy'd him to good purpoſe in Sileſia, Bohemia, Hungary, Alſace, and afterwards made him Prince of the Empire. Being return'd into Spain in 1628. the King made him Viceroy and Captain General of the Kingdom of Arragon. Afterwards the Cardinal Infant coming Governor to the Low-Countreys, and deſiring very much to have him along with him, the Marquis follow'd him, but died in Genoua in 1633. being then 69 years of Age.

CARAFFA, (Oliver) Cardinal Archbiſhop of Naples, Biſhop of Oſtia, &c. was Son to Francis Caraffa, and Nephew to Daniel Count of Matalone. Paul II. made him Cardinal in 1467. and as he had a great deal of Courage, and much Experience in what belonged to Peace and War, Sixtus IV. made him General of the Fleet which he was ſending againſt the Turks, conſiſting of 19 Galleys. In 1472 he join'd the Venetians who had 47 Galleys, and then Ferdinand's Fleet which was of 17, making in all, with the two Galleys of Rhodes, 85 Sail: And yet this great Fleet did no memorable thing, except the taking of the Port of Satalia and the Town of Smyrna. This Cardinal died at Rome the 20th of January in 1511. being then Eighty years old.

CARAFFA, (Peter Lewis) Cardinal-Biſhop of Tricarico, was Son to Don Octavio Marquis of Anza, and born at Naples in 1581. He was a Perſon much valued for his Learning and Probity. The King of Sweden, Prince of Orange, and other Proteſtant Princes, had a particular Eſteem for this Prelate: So great is the Force of real Worth, that it makes a Man admir'd, even by his Enemies. He was offer'd the Archbiſhopricks of Capua and Urbin, both which he refus'd, ſaying, he was contented with the Spouſe God had given him, notwithſtanding her Poverty. He was afterwards made Cardinal by Pope Innocent X. and after the death of this Pope, he died in the Conclave in 1655. when every body expected to have ſeen him Elected. Galeazzo Gualdo Priorati. Sen. Du Huom. Illuſt.

CARAITES, a Sect of the Jews now contrary to the Rabbiniſts, that is, to thoſe who admit the Talmud of the Rabbins. The Caraites were ſo call'd about the Eighth Age, a little after the publication of the Talmud, becauſe they kept to the Books of the Bible, and would not receive the Traditions that the Rabbins had invented. Carai ſignifies a Man throughly Read in the Study of the Holy Scripture, and therefore they who build their Belief upon the Bible are called Caraites: And ſome call'd them pure or refined Jews, becauſe they make profeſſion of preſerving the purity of their Religion. The Author of the Caraite Commentary, call'd Aaron Son of Joſeph, liv'd about the end of the Thirteenth Age, whoſe Manuſcripts are kept in the Library of the Fathers of the Oratory at Paris, whither it was brought from Conſtantinople. It approves all the Books of the Bible which are in the Jewiſh Canon, and reckons their number 24, as the other Jews do, but it recites Human Traditions, that is the Fables of the Talmud, and the Dreams of the Rabbies, not receiving any but what are conſtant and conform to the Holy Scripture. There are ſome of theſe Caraites at Conſtantinople, ſome at Cairo, and in other places of the Eaſt; There are alſo ſome in Muſcovy, who have their Synagogues apart, and call themſelves the only true Obſervers of Moſes's Law, as perhaps they really are. It were to be wiſh'd, that they who ſend for Books to the Eaſt, ſhould get ſome of the Rabbi Caraites Books brought, whereof the moſt part are very Learn'd, and there are but few of theſe Books in Europe, eſpecially in France. Selden ſeems to have read moſt of them. There are many of their Works in the Library of Leyden in Holland, but not much valued.

CARAMAN or Great Caraman, a Sovereign Prince in Caramania, whom the great Turk deprived of his Eſtate about 200 years ago.

CARAMANIA, a Country of Aſia in Anatolia, which formerly had the Title of a Kingdom. It comprehends Pamphylia, and a great part of Cilicia, Piſidia, and Cappadocia. Leunclavius thinks that it had this Name from a Turk called Caraman, who drove the Armenians out of it. It is divided into great Caramania, where is Cogni upon Cydnus or Caraſa, Aiſarat, Caola, Tianée, &c. and into Caramania properly ſo call'd, which is between Mount Taurus and the Mediterranean Sea over-againſt the Iſle of Cyprus. Here are alſo Chiolſar, Patera, Salatia, Side, Soale, Mure, &c. The Princes of Caramania defended themſelves againſt the Turks for ſome time, but were wholly diſpoſſeſs'd by 'em in the Fourteenth Century. There is another Caramania, which is a Province of Perſia, lying Eaſtward of it, and is now call'd Kirman.

CARAMIT, Cara-Hemid, a Town in Meſopotamia or Diarbeck, with an Archbiſhoprick that has Seven Suffragans; It's the Amida of the Ancients, famous by the Wars of the Romans againſt the Perſians, and for the Merit of many of its Prelates. Mereas was at the firſt Council of Conſtantinople in 381. and Simeon aſſiſted at that which was called the Brigandage or Concilium Leſtricum of Epheſus, and afterwards at the General Council of Epheſus. Theodoret ſpeaks of it in his Third Epiſtle, wherein he calls it the Metropolitan of its Province. The Emperor Conſtantine the Great augmented it, and gave it the Name of Conſtantina. Cedrenus and Curopalates write, that the Saracens gave it the Name of Emet. It's now very conſiderable, ſurrounded with Walls and 360 Towers.

CARAMUEL of Lobkowitz, (John) Biſhop of Vigevano, was born in 1606 at Madrid in Spain; his Father was of the Low-Countreys, and his Mother of Germany. It's pity that this Prelate imploy'd the great Wit which Nature beſtow'd upon him, and which his very Adverſaries could not deny him, in fruitleſs barren Studies. The Author of the Anti-Caramuel writes, that he heard a Man of great Judgment ſay, that Caramuel was Witty to the Eighth or higheſt degree, Eloquent to the Fifth, but that his Judgment did not exceed the Second. He that inſerted a Diſcourſe of Mathematicks in this Author's great Volume upon the Architecture of the Temple of Solomon, ſpeaks more advantageouſly of him; for he aſſures us, that if God did ſuffer the Sciences of all the Univerſities of the whole World to periſh, the only Book of Caramuel would ſuffice to re-eſtabliſh or revive them again. Nicolas Antonio Bibl. Hiſp. He wrote a Cabbaliſtical Grammar, Printed at Bruſſels in 1642. and in 1651 he Printed his Grammatica Audax in Folio at Frankfort. Towards the latter end of his Life he Printed a Book at Vigevano, call'd, Λεπτότατος, i. e. Subtiliſſimus or Nova Dialecto Metaphyſica.

CARANUS the Firſt King of Macedonia, the Seventh of the Family of the Heraclides after Hercules. The Fabulous Hiſtory ſays, that this Prince being minded to found a Monarchy, was adviſed by the Oracle to eſtabliſh one where he ſhould be conducted by the Goats; and accordingly he found ſome in Emathia now Macedonia, call'd ſo then from Emathius Contemporary to Cadmus King of Thebes, and afterwards Macedonia from the Name of Macedon, who liv'd in Belochus's time the Ninth King of the Aſſyrians. When Caranus had lighted on the Goats, he followed a great Herd that ran to the Town of Edeſſa, which he ſurpris'd, and drove Midas out of a great part of this Province, which he held, ſo that he became the only Maſter of the whole, and eſtabliſh'd that Family, An. M. 3240. He reign'd 30 years. They commonly count 23 Kings from Caranus to Alexander, who are not much renown'd in Hiſtory, if we except Amyntas and his Four Sons that reign'd ſucceſſively. Philip, who was the youngeſt, laid the firſt foundation of the Greek Monarchy, which his Son Alexander eſtabliſhed upon the ruine of that of Perſia. This Kingdom of Macedonia held until the death of Alexander in 490. and to the fall of Perſeus its laſt King in 646.

CARAQUES, Savages of the Province of Quito in Peru, who live towards the Coaſts of the South Sea; they have but little Wit or Addreſs, though they that live upon the ſame Coaſt towards the North of the Province, are Ingenious, and very fit for Mechanick Arts. Theſe paint their Faces with certain Marks drawn from the Ears to the Chin, and wear Golden Chains wrought with ſuch Artifice, that the Spaniards admir'd them very much when they firſt arriv'd in that Country. De Laet. Hiſt. du Nouveau Monde.

CARATACUS, the Eighteenth King of Scotland, ſucceeded Metellanus, he ſubdued the Rebels of the Weſtern Iſlands, but not without much difficulty. Oroſius, Eutropius, and Bede ſay, that the Orcades were ſubdued by Claudius Cæſar in his Reign, but Buchanan diſſents from them, becauſe Tacitus affirms, that before the coming of Julius Agricola into Britain, that part of Britain was utterly unknown to the Romans. Caratacus died in the Twentieth year of his Reign, An. Chr. 27. Buchan.

CARATCHOLI or Karakioles, the People of Mont Caucaſus between the Eaſt and North of Mingrelia. Some call them Caraquirquez, that is black Circaſſiens, though they have very white Skins; but perhaps they were call'd black becauſe the Air of their Country is always dark and covered with Clouds. They ſpeak the Turkiſh Tongue, but ſo quick, that they can hardly be underſtood. They derive their Original from the Humns, who inhabited the Northern part of Mount Caucaſius, whence alſo came the Turks.

CARAVAGGIO, a Borough of Italy in the Dutchy of Milan, ſituated towards the Frontiers of Bergamaſque, famous for the Victory that Francis Sforza, afterwards Duke of Milan, gained over the Venetians in 1446. It's alſo renowned for being the Birth-place of Polydorus of Caravaggio.

CARAVAN, a Company of People that meet together to Travel with more ſafety; though this Name is chiefly given to the Pilgrims of Mecha: For every year there are five Caravans of Mahometans who go to viſit the Tomb of their Falſe Prophet at Medina, and the Moſque of Mecha his Birth-place: Which are that of Great Cairo, which conſiſts of Egyptians, and of all them that come from Conſtantinople and the Neighbourhood; that of the Magrebins, which comprehends them of Barbary, Fez, and Morocco; one of Damaſcus for the Pilgrims which come from Syria; one of Perſia; and that of the Indies or Great Mogul. There are very often great Lords who go this Journey with the Pilgrims. The Emir Adge is the Chief, and has generally 1500 Camels to carry his Baggage, and to ſell or hire to them that ſhould want any, for they die abundantly upon their way. The Caravan of Morocco takes its Rout by Taffilet, Tegorarin, Tripoli, Quibriche, and Alexandria, whence it paſſes to Cairo, and thence to Suez, which is a very long Journey, and takes up a whole Year. The Grand Signior ſends every year great Preſents to Mecha, they conſiſt in Ornaments and Silver. Theſe Ornaments are made at Cairo and Damaſcus, and are ſome great pieces of Crimſon Velvet Embroidered, with great Arabick Letters wrought in Gold, a great Tent of Crimſon Satin Embroidered, with ſome Arabick Figures; it ends in a Point like a Steeple, and has a great Golden Ball at the top, and four leſſer ones round about; there is another ſquare Canopy, but of leſſer Price. Theſe Preſents are carried upon a great Camel very richly Harneſs'd, with another after him to carry the Burthen, if the firſt ſhould chance to tire. For the greater ſecurity of theſe valuable things, the Emir Adge has ſix ſmall Field Pieces along with him all the Journey. The Caravan of Cairo parts commonly 57 days after the beginning of Ramazan, that is about a Month after it is ended. That of Barbary begins its Journey not till a Day after, having a diſtinct Commander. The Caravanes of Aſia take this following way; they that come from the Eaſtern Iſlands, as Macaſſar, or Celebes, Java, Sumatra, and the Maldives, and thoſe which come from the Indies on this ſide of Ganges, come by Sea to Mocha, a Sea-Port of Arabia-Felix, and thence on to Mecha upon their Camels. The Perſians that live along the Sea-ſide, come down either to Ormus or Bander, then croſſing the Gulf, which is but 12 or 13 Leagues broad, they croſs Arabia, and arrive at their Prophet's Town. But they of the Uppermoſt Perſia towards the Caſpian Sea, and all the Tartars, come to Taurus, and go thence to Aleppo, whence the great Caravan marches which croſſes the Deſart; ſome take the way of Bagdad, but very ſeldom, becauſe the Bacha there exacts a Tribute, eſpecially of the Perſians, whom the Turks look upon to be Hereticks, which makes the King of Perſia to forbid his Subjects going that way. They take the way of Bagdad for Devotion ſake to ſee the Tomb of their Prophet Ali, which is but eight days Journey thence in a Deſart, where there is no Water but what is very bad, the Chanel which Cha-Abas made from the Euphrates being quite ruined; for the Princes of Arabia they have no great Journey either to go to Mahomet's Tomb, or Mecha. The Mahometans of Europe go to Aleppo to join the Caravan from High Perſia, and thoſe of Africa go by Great Cairo, whence they take their way by Suez, and meet the Caravan of Aleppo in the Deſart, 18 Leagues from Medina, where there is Water which runs to that Town, and as the Mahometans believe, ſprung out of the Earth by pure Miracle in favour of their Prophet, who happened to be thirſty in this Place, and drinking of this Water, made it ſweet, though bitter at firſt. The Caravans travel in the Night, and reſt in the Day, to avoid the great Heats; and when the Moon does not ſhine, they have Men who carry Lanthorns at the end of great Sticks; their Camels are tied one to another, ſo that there is but little trouble in guiding them. Amongſt them that go to Mecha, there are many that go for Devotion; ſome go to Traffick, and many to ſhun the Puniſhment which they have deſerved for ſome Crime, for this Journey abſolves them from all things; for whatever Wickedneſs a Man has committed, if he can 'ſcape, and go this Pilgrimage, he is never ſought for afterwards, but is look'd upon to be an Honeſt Man. During the Journey they ſing ſome Verſes of the Alcoran, and give ſome Alms according to their Abilities. Two days before they come to Mecha they ſtrip themſelves quite Naked, and take only a Napkin about their Neck, and another round their Loins. Such as are out of order or ſick, keep their Cloaths on, but inſtead of this Ceremony they diſtribute ſome Alms. When they come to Mecha, they ſpend three days there in praying and viſiting ſome Places which they call Holy. Afterwards they go to Minnet, where they arrive at Little Bairam's Eve. The next day, which is the Feaſt of Bairam, they ſacrifice ſome Sheep, and then take their Cloaths as they were eight days before; then they go to Mount Arafat, where they pray for three days; and all theſe Ceremonies being ended, Sultan Sherif, or the Prince of Mecha, who accompanied them to this Mountain, gives them the Benediction or Bleſſing. Thence the Pilgrims go to Medina, where Mahomet's Sepulcher is, and the Kiabe or great Moſque. About a Month and a half after the Caravan of Cairo has begun its Journey, there comes an Aga from the ſame Town with freſh Proviſions that their Friends ſend after them, and meet 'em about half way. This Caravan performs the Journey in 45 days, and takes up as much time in their return, and are as many days there about their Devotions, &c. Emir Adge gains much by this Voyage, for beſides a thouſand leſſer Advantages, the Goods of all thoſe who die by the way fall to him, and during this Pilgrimage he is abſolute Maſter, and acts as he pleaſes. Thevenot, Tavernier.

CARAVAN of Merchants, is, as it were, a great Convoy of many Merchants which meet at certain Times and Places to travel more ſafely, becauſe of the Robbers who are ſometimes in great Troops in the Countreys which they croſs. The Merchants chuſe a Captain among themſelves, who is call'd Caravan-Bachi: It's he that orders their March, fixes their days Journey, and that with the other Principal Men of the Caravan, judges the Differences which happen during their Journey. One might travel with 10 or 12 Men only, and go a great way, but it is ſafer to go along with the Caravan, whereof there are ſome compoſing 1000 Camels, and ſo many Horſemen, which look like an Army, becauſe the Camels walk as if in File or Rank. Each Camel-driver leads ſeven Camels, which are tied together by a little Cord. This Caravan goes more always in the Night than in the Day in Summer, to avoid the great Heats; and in the Winter and other Seaſons, to come in Day-time to the place where they Camp, becauſe it would be hard to pitch their Tents, dreſs their Camels, and provide all other Neceſſaries in the Night. Nevertheleſs, in the depth of Winter and great Snows, they hardly march before the break of Day, but then they go but a very little way, becauſe they Encamp again immediately after Sun-ſet. The Chaoux, which are poor Turks or Armenians, guard about the Camp, and watch the Goods. When they go from Conſtantinople, from Smyrna, or Aleppo, they dreſs according to the faſhion of the Country they travel into, otherwiſe they would ſeem very ridiculous; ſo when they go into Turkey, they put on a Turkiſh Garb, &c. Nevertheleſs, if one wears a Waſtecoat after the Arabian faſhion, with ſome kind of Belt, and a Coat made after the French faſhion over it, he may go where he pleaſes without any fear. To wear a Turban, one muſt of neceſſity ſhave their Hair off, for it would not hold on elſe; but as for their Beards they never cut them, but eſteem the greateſt to be handſomeſt; yet in Perſia they ſhave their Chin, but leave a Muſtache, which they value moſt when it's thickeſt and longeſt. Tavernier.

CARAUSIUS, Citizen of Menape, and Governor of England for the Emperors Diocleſian and Maximilian. He uſurp'd the Sovereignty, allied with the Gauls, and maintain'd himſelf upon the Throne, and oblig'd the Cæſars to make Peace, but was killed by Alectus, one of his own Captains, the ſeventh Year after his Rebellion, A. C. 293.

CARAZOLE, (Joannin) Native of Ombria in Italy, one of a mean Family, but a great Example of bad and good Fortune. Being Secretary to Joan II. Queen of Naples, he had the good Fortune to pleaſe her, who loved him extraordinarily, and gave him the Dutchy of Melfi, and made him Lord High Conſtable of the Kingdom; but this great Elevation had a very Tragical end, for ſhe deprived him of all his Goods and Honours, and put him to Death with as much Cruelty as ſhe had Love for him before.

CARBANDA, or Carbaganda, Brother of Caſſan King of the Tartars, and his Succeſſor in 1304. He was born of a Chriſtian Mother, who had him Baptiz'd, and nam'd Nicholas; He made profeſſion of the Chriſtian Religion whilſt his Mother lived, but after her death he turn'd Mahometan, and ruin'd the Concerns of all the Chriſtians in the Eaſt. Spondan.

CARBILIUS Ruga was the firſt of the Romans that Divorc'd his Wife for being Barren, in the 523d year of Rome, under the Conſulſhip of M. Attilius, and of P. Valerius; He proteſted to the Magiſtrates, that though he loved his Wife very well, yet he quitted her without reluctancy, becauſe ſhe would bear no Children, and that he preferr'd the Commonwealth's Good to his own particular Pleaſure. Others call him Carvilius Maximus, who was Conſul with L. Poſthumus Albinus in 520 Aul. Gell. Lib. 4.

CARBO, a great Orator in Cicero's time, who ſpeaks of him. It's ſaid, that not being able to ſuffer the Inconſtancy or Lightneſs of the Roman People, after he had endeavoured ſeveral times to redreſs it, he voluntarily kill'd himſelf. We muſt not confound him with divers other Magiſtrates of this Name, as C. Carben, Triumvir, with Grachus and Flaccus in the 633d of Rome. They differed about the Diviſion of the Fields. One who was Conſul three times. He that follow'd the Party of Marius and Sertorius in 667. and was killed in Sicily by Pompey's Order. An Orator, Brother to the firſt, endeavouring to make the Soldiers quit their Debauches and Diſorders, and to revive the ſtrict Military Diſcipline, was murthered.

CARBURY, a Town and Barony in the County of Kildare in Ireland, and another Town in the County of Cork.

CARCANO, (Archilao) a Phyſician, born at Milan, and Profeſſor in the Univerſity of Pavia, lived in the Sixteenth Century, and was much eſteemed for his Learning. He wrote ſeveral Tracts upon the Aphoriſms of Hippocrates: De Peſte, &c. Ghilini. Theat. de Huom. Letter. Vander Linden de Script. Med.

CARCANOSSI, a Country of the Iſle of Madagaſcar, towards the Southern Coaſt, where the French have lately eſtabliſhed ſome Colonies, finding the Country fertile, and pretty well manured.

CARCASSONNE upon Aude, a Town of France in Languedoc. It's a Biſhop's See, Suffragan to the Archbiſhoprick of Narbonne, and is of the Parliament of Tolouſe: It's the Carcaſſo, Carcaſſum Volcarum, or Tectoſagum, of the Ancients. It conſiſts of two principal Parts, the Town and the City, in which laſt is the Cathedral: It has alſo a Caſtle, wherein are kept very ancient Acts of a particular Character upon the Bark of Trees, and upon Linen, whereof many are thought to be brought thither by the Viſigoths after the ſacking of Rome. Here are alſo a Seneſchalſhip and a Preſidial. Pliny ſpeaks of Carcaſſonne; Cæſar, Ptolemy, and ſeveral other Authors make mention of it. St. Guimera is thought to have been the firſt Biſhop of it, who died in the year 300. Hilarius and Valerius are received there as Saints. The Town is large, ſtrong, and pretty well built. The River is divided into two parts; and beſides the Cathedral of St. Nazaire, there are many other Religious Houſes. Some Authors think that the Goths fortified Carcaſſonne; that they built the Caſtle to preſerve there the Spoils of the City of Rome. However it is, as the Situation of the Place rendred it very Important, the French beſieged it, after the Defeat of Alcaric in 507. but were forced to take other Meaſures. King Gontran inveſted it afterwards to no purpoſe; yet took it ſome time after by Treachery: But his Army not keeping a good Watch in their Camp, was defeated by Recarede, King of the Goths. This happened about 587. or 88. It fell afterwards to the French, who keeps a Count there to Govern it. The firſt of theſe that we know of was Bernard the Second, Count of Toulouſe, who lived in 871. Carcaſſonne is Capital of a little Country called the Carcaſſes; there are divers Manufactures in it. St. Marthe. Gregor. Turon.

CARDAMUS, a certain King of the Bulgarians in the Eighth Age. It's ſaid, That having obliged the Emperors of Conſtantinople to pay him Tribute, he would force Conſtantine Porphyrogennetes to augment it, that Prince promiſed to ſatisfie him; and entring with a powerful Army into Bulgaria, which he found unprovided for defence, he put all to Fire and Sword. This hapned in 796. Cardamus died ſoon after. Baron.

CARDAN, (Jerom) a Phyſician and Aſtrologer of Milan, who lived in the Sixteenth Age, and is well known by the Works he publiſhed; as, his Commentaries upon the Four Books of Ptolemy. Judgment upon the Stars. The Reſtoring of Time. The Aphoriſms of Aſtronomy. De Subtilitate: And ſeveral other things, which we have in ten Volumes. He has writ his own Life, which is to be ſeen at the beginning of his Works, under the Title of Vita propria, where he relates things with the ſincerity of a Man of Parts. He was born on the 13th of Auguſt, 1501. his Father being then pretty old, had him by a certain Wench called Clara Micheria: And Cardan himſelf acknowledges in his Life, That his Mother took ſeveral things to make her Miſcarry; and in his third Book of Conſolation, he acknowledges that the College of Phyſicians of Milan would not receive him, becauſe they ſuſpected he was not lawfully begotten. Julius Scaliger was his mortal Enemy; and when he began to write againſt him, he ſought to contradict him in all things. Yet thoſe that have no Intereſt in their Diſpute, agree, That tho' Scaliger was perhaps the better Humaniſt of the two, yet that this latter had penetrated farther into the Secrets of Natural Philoſophy. He died at Rome in 1576. being then 75 years of Age. It's ſaid, That having foretold the Year and Day of his Death, when he came to the time, he let himſelf die of Hunger, to preſerve his Reputation. Thuan writ ſo, according to the common Opinion of thoſe Times; and ſome ſay that Cardan himſelf compoſed this Epitaph:

> Non me terra teget, Cœlo ſed raptus in alto,
> Illuſtris vivam docta per ora virûm:
> Quicquid venturis ſpectabit Phœbus in annis,
> Cardanum noſcet, nomen & uſque meum.

Voſſius, Vand. Linden.

CARDERON, (Roderic) Son of Francis Carderon and Mary Sandalin, Concubine to his Father, who was in Garriſon at Antwerp. After he had been Page to the Vicechancellor of Arragon, he entred into the Service of Sondoval, Duke and Cardinal of Lerma, and Firſt Miniſter of Srate to Philip III. King of Spain, whom he got in Favour with, and was preferred by him to Great Offices. He was firſt of all Ayde of the King's Chamber; afterwards Secretary of State; and marrying Ignes of Vergas, a Lady of Oliva, he received the Collar of St. James's Order, was made Commander of Ocagna, and obtained the Place of Captain of the German Guards. This Poſt, and the Credit he had with the King, made him ſo Inſolent, that he deſpiſed the Greateſt Lords of the Kingdom, and abandoned himſelf to all ſorts of Vice, which occaſioned his Diſgrace. He was ſeized in 1619. and carried to the Caſtle of Montachez near Portugal, where he was Tried, and Condemned to have his Head cut off in the common Place of Execution, whither he was to be led on a Mule. His Sentence contained above 240 Articles of Accuſation. The 19th of October, 1621. he was put in mind to make his Will, and diſpoſe of 2000 Ducats, and to prepare himſelf for Death: After which, he was ſtripp'd of his Knight's Habit, and on the 21ſt of the ſame Month, he was led to the place of Execution, with a black Caſſock, Cloak, and a Monk's Cowl of Frize. After the Execution, his Body was laid on a piece of Frize, with a Croſs upon the Stomach, and four Torches at the ſides, and was watched in this Condition upon the Scaffold by four Archers. The Clergy that came to make his Funeral Pomp, were ſent back, and forbidden to accompany the Corps, which, according to the Cuſtom of the Country, was attended by the Confreries, and carried to the Carmelites Church, as he ordered it himſelf. Some aſſure it as a Certainty, That he had above 200000 Ducats yearly Rent; and that his other Goods were valued at 400000. Du Puy Hiſt. des Favor.

CARDIFF, Lat. Cardiffa, the chief Town of Glamorganſhire, in South-Wales, ſtands in the S. E. part of the County, on the E. ſide of the River Tave, within leſs than 3 miles of its Fall into the Sea. This Town and County fell under the Power of William Rufus, the Norman Conqueror's Son, by whom it was ſoon after encompaſſed with a Wall, and fortified with a great and ſtrong Caſtle, wherein Robert Duke of Normandy, eldeſt Son of William the Conquerour, being routed out of his Dukedom by his younger Brother, K. Henry I. of England, was impriſoned, his Eyes being firſt put out, where he led a miſerable Life for the ſpace of 26 years. It's 163 miles from London.

CARDIGAN, Lat. Ceretica, the chief Place of Cardiganſhire in South-Wales, ſtands in the utmoſt South-Weſt part of the County, bordering upon Pembrokeſhire, and not above three miles from the Iriſh Sea: 'Tis ſeated upon a ſteep Bank; the South-ſide guarded by the River Twy, over which it has a Stone Bridge with ſeveral Arches. The County being firſt wreſted from the Welſh by William Rufus, and wholly conquered by Henry his Succeſſor, King Henry beſtowed it upon Gilbert de Clare, who preſently fortified Cardigan with a Wall and ſtrong Caſtle. In 1661. it was Honoured with the Title of an Earldom, in the Perſon of Thomas Brudenel, Baron Brudenel of Stoughton, who was created by King Charles II. to whom ſucceeded, three years after, his Son Robert Brudenel, the preſent Earl of Cardigan. See Brudenel. Beſides the Town, there is an Iſland of that Name at the River's Mouth. It's 162 miles from London.

CARDIGANSHIRE, Lat. Ceretica, a Maritime County of South-Wales, ſo called from Cardigan, the chief Place thereof. The River Dovy parts it from Merionethſhire Northward; the Twy from Pembrokeſhire Southward; the Twy from Brecknockſhire Eaſtward; and on the Weſt it is bounded with the Iriſh Sea: In length from North to South 32 miles; in breadth from Eaſt to Weſt 15. The whole divided into five Hundreds, wherein are 64 Pariſhes, and 4 Market-Towns, anciently the Seat of the Dimetæ, and now making part of the Dioceſe of St. David: Here the Soil is, like all Wales, hilly, yet leſs towards the Sea than in the Eaſt and North parts. Beſides the great and high Hill called Plinlimon in the North-Eaſt parts, out of which the Severn riſes, here is a ridge of leſſer Hills, which ſpread themſelves almoſt over all the Country: But their Valleys are rich in Corn and Paſturage, being well watered with Springs from the Rocks, which branching themſelves as Veins in the Body, make the Soil very fruitful all along their Courſe. According to Giraldus Cambrenſis, the River Twy did formerly breed abundance of Beavers, whoſe Breed is now quite deſtroyed. The Market-Towns are Cardigan the County Town, Abereſtwith, Llanbeder, and Tregaron; but Cardigan is the only place privileged to ſend Burgeſſes to Parliament, beſides Knights of the Shire.

CARDINAL: This Name ſignifies at this time an Eminent Dignity in the Roman Church. Among the Latins the Word Cardinalis ſignifies Principal; and in this ſenſe were Venti Cardinales, four Cardinal or Chief Winds: Princeps Cardinalis, a very Sovereign Prince; Miſſa Cardinalis, and Altare Cardinale, for the Great Maſs, or Great Altar of a Church. It was alſo a Name that was given to certain Officers of the Emperor Theodoſius; as, to Generals of Armies; to the Præfecti Prætorio in Aſia and Africa, becauſe they poſſeſſed the Chiefeſt Offices in the Empire. As for the Cardinals of the Roman Church, this is their Origin: There were two ſorts of Churches in Towns; one ſort was as our Pariſh-Churches of theſe times, and were called Titles; the others were Hoſpitals for the Poor, and were called Diaconia: The firſt were taken care of by Prieſts, and the other governed by Deacons. The other Chapels in the Towns were called Oratories, where Maſs was celebrated without adminiſtring the Sacraments. The Chaplains of theſe Oratories were called Local Prieſts, that is, Prieſts that belonged to ſome particular Place: And to put a greater diſtinction between theſe Churches, the Pariſh-Churches were called Cardinales, or Cardinal Titles; and the Prieſts that officiated in them, and adminiſtred the Sacraments, were called Cardinals. This was chiefly uſed at Rome, where the Cardinals attended the Pope whilſt he celebrated Maſs, and in the Proceſſions; and therefore Leo IV. calls them Presbyteros ſui Cardinis. In the Council held at Rome in 853. the Deacons, who looked after the Diaconia, had alſo the Title of Cardinals, either becauſe they were the chiefeſt Deacons, or becauſe they aſſiſted with the Cardinals, i. e. Prieſts at the Pope's Maſs. The greateſt Function of the Roman Cardinals was to go to the Pope's Council, and to the Synods, and to give their Opinions concerning Eccleſiaſtical Affairs. It was one of them that was generally choſen Pope; for it was rare that any Biſhop was choſen in thoſe days; it being recorded in the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, That Pope Stephen VII. choſen in 896. cauſed his Predeceſſor Formoſus to be dug up again, and annulled all his Ordinances, alledging, That he was made Pope againſt the Diſpoſition of the Holy Decrees, in the time that he was Biſhop of Oſtia. Finally, theſe Cardinals have engroſſed to themſelves the Power of chuſing a Pope, ſince the Council, celebrated at Rome in 1059. under Nicholas II. In proceſs of time, the Name of Cardinal, which was common to all Titulary Prieſts or Curates, was appropriated to them of Rome, and afterwards to ſeven Biſhops of the Neighbourhood of Rome. All theſe Cardinals were divided under five Patriarchal Churches; as, St. John of Lateran, St. Mary Major, St. Peter of the Vatican, St. Paul's, and St. Lawrence's. The Church of St. John of Lateran had ſeven Cardinal-Biſhops, which were called Collaterales, or Hebdomadarii, becauſe they were the Pope's Aſſiſtants, and celebrated Divine Office for him each his Week: Theſe were the Biſhops of Oſtia, of Porro, Sylva Candida, or St. Rufine, Albano, Sabina, Fraſcati, and Paleſtrina. The Biſhoprick of St. Rufine is now united to that of Porro. St. Mary Major's Church had alſo ſeven Prieſt-Cardinals; as, that of St. Philip and St. James, of St. Cyriacus, St. Euſebius, St. Prudentia, St. Vitalis, of the Saints Peter and Marcellin, and of St. Clement. The Patriarchal Church of St. Peter had the Prieſt-Cardinals of St. Mary of the Tiber, of St. Chryſogonus, St. Cecile, St. Anaſtaſia, and St. Lawrence in Damaſo, of St. Mark, and of the Saints Martin and Sylveſter. The Church of St. Paul had the Cardinals of St. Sabinus, St. Priſcus, St. Balbina, and the Saints Nerea and Achilea, of St. Sixtus, St. Marcellus, and St. Suſanna. The Patriarchal Church of St. Lawrence without the Walls, had alſo its ſeven Cardinals; them of St. Praxede, of St. Peter ad vincula, St. Lawrence in Lucina, and of the Saints John and Paul, of the four Crown'd Saints, of St. Stephen in Mont Cælio, and of St. Quiriſcus. Baronius makes mention of a Ritual, or Ceremonial, made in 1057. which was extracted out of the Vatican Library, and contains this number of Cardinals. In following times, the Pope gave the Title of Cardinal to other Biſhops, beſides theſe already mentioned: And, 'tis ſaid, the firſt that had this Honour conferred upon him, was Conradus Archbiſhop of Mayence, who received it from Pope Alexander III. who alſo conferred the ſame Honour on Gardin of Sala, Archbiſhop of Milan, in 1165. And ſince that, ſome Biſhops were created Cardinal-Prieſts of Rome, with one of the Titles thereof; ſo William, Archbiſhop of Rheims, was made Cardinal, with the Title of St. Sabina, by Pope Clement III. or, according to others, by Alexander III. And, finally, Clement V. and his Succeſſors, gave the Title of Cardinal-Prieſts to many other Biſhops, which Cuſtom has been followed ſince. As for the Deacon-Cardinals, it muſt be obſerved, That in the beginning there were ſeven in the Church of Rome, and in the other Churches: This Number was augmented at Rome to fourteen; and at laſt they created eighteen, who were called Cardinal-Deacons, or Principal, to diſtinguiſh them from others that had not the Care of Deaconries. After this were counted twenty four Deaconries in the City of Rome; and now there are fourteen affected to the Deacon-Cardinals. The Prieſt-Cardinals are to the number of fifty, which, with the ſix Cardinal-Biſhops of Oſtia, Porro, Sabina, Paleſtrina, Fraſcati, and Albano, who have no other Titles but thoſe of their Biſhopricks, make generally the number of ſeventy. Innocent IV. gave the Cardinals the Red Cap in the Council of Lyons, held in 1243. Paul II. the Scarlet Habit, in 1464, Gregory XIV. beſtowed the Red Cap upon the Regular Cardinals, who wore but a Hat before. Urban VIII. gave them the Title of Eminence; for they had before but that of Moſt Illuſtrious. When the Pope has a mind to create any Cardinals, he writes their Names that he deſigns for this Dignity, and gets them read in the Conſiſtory, after he has told the Cardinals, Fratres habetis; that is, You have for Brothers, &c. The Cardinal-Patron ſends for them that are at Rome, and conducts them to his Holineſs to receive their Red Caps from him: Until then, they are Incognito, and cannot come to the Meeting: And as for them that are abſent, the Pope diſpatches one of his Chamber-men of Honour to carry them their Cap: But they are obliged to receive the Hat at his own hands. When they come to Rome they are received in Cavalcade. The Cardinals Dreſs is a Sattane, a Rochet, a Mantelet, or ſhort Purple Mantel over their Rochet; the Mozette and a Papal Cape over the Rochet in Publick and Solemn Actions. The Colour of their Garment differs according to the Times; either it's Red, or of the Colour of dried Roſes or Violets. The Regular Cardinals wear no Silk, nor any other Colour but that of their Order; but the Red Hat and Cap are common to them all. When Cardinals are ſent to Princes Courts, it's in Quality of Legates à Latere; and when they are ſent to any Town, their Government is called Legation. Their are five Legations, viz. that of Avignon, of Ferrara, of Bolonja, of Ravenna, and of Perugia. Here follows Fr. Maimbourg's curious Remarks upon this Subject: When the Cathedral Church was vacant, the Popes ſent one of the Neighbouring Biſhops to Govern it, until another Biſhop was choſen, who took poſſeſſion of it as of his proper Church, and received its Title, which the adminiſtring Biſhop, or he that took care of it during the Vacancy, had not. This was what they called a Cardinal-Biſhop in thoſe times, from the Word Cardo, which ſignifies a Hinge; ſhewing by that, That the Titulary Biſhop was tied to his Church, to exerciſe continually, of his proper Authority, all the Functions of his Biſhoprick. This is what the Word Cardinal ſignifies in its natural and true Interpretation, as can be clearly ſeen in many Letters of St. Gregory the Great; for this Pope underſtanding that the Church of Aleria, in the Iſle of Corſica, was vacant, he writ to a Biſhop of Corſica, called Leo, to go to Govern it, and afterwards eſtabliſhed Martin there, to be the Cardinal-Biſhop thereof; ſo here is a Succeſſion of two Biſhops, whereof the one was but Viſitor, or Adminiſtrator, and the other Titular. The ſame Gregory ſatisfied the Clergy and Nobility of Naples, that he approved their Deſire of having Paul Biſhop of Neri, and their Viſitor made their Cardinal-Biſhop: Whence it is eaſie to ſee, That in this Pope's time, and before him, all Titular Biſhops, who by their Ordination were tied to their Church, were all called Cardinal-Biſhops. The ſame may be ſaid of the Prieſts and Deacons, to whom their Biſhops had given ſome Benefice or Charge that tied them to any Church in their Dioceſe: And alſo the Archdeacons and the other Dignities were Cardinals of the Churches they Governed. The other Prieſts and Deacons that had no ſuch Tie, were not called Cardinals. And it was for this reaſon, that thoſe the Pope's ſent into Provinces, and the Nuncio's he ſent to Conſtantinople, were indeed Deacons of the Roman Church, but not Cardinals. By this ſame reaſon, all the Curates, tied by their Titles to the Pariſhes wherein they Adminiſtred the Sacraments, were Cardinal-Prieſts. He was alſo call'd a Cardinal-Prieſt, who officiated in chief in any Great Man's Chapel or Oratory; ſo that there were Deacon, Prieſt, and Biſhop-Cardinals in all the Dioceſes of the World: And as for the Church of Rome, there was no other Cardinal-Biſhop in Pope Gregory's time but he himſelf, who, in Quality of Proper Biſhop of the particular Church of Rome, was tied there as to his Title. The Prieſt-Cardinals were all the Curates of Rome, and all the other Prieſts that officiated in any other Chapel or Oratory. The Deacons and Cardinal-Archdeacons, were ſuch as had a Title where to exerciſe their Functions. This is what the Cardinals of the Church of Rome were in St. Gregory's time, and near 400 years after him: But in the Eleventh Age, the Popes, whoſe Grandeur was much increaſed, taking Crowns, which was begun the firſt time by Pope Damaſus II. in 1048. They begun alſo to ſettle a Court, and a Regular Council of Cardinals, Biſhops, Prieſts, and Deacons, different from thoſe that had this Title before. The Cardinal-Biſhops were they that were Suffragans of the Pope as Metropolitan. The Prieſt and Cardinal-Deacons were choſen by the Pope, at pleaſure, in all the Provinces of Chriſtendom, whether Biſhops, Prieſts, Abbots, Princes, Commanders, Monks, or other Religious, to whom he gave the Title of Churches, without obliging them to officiate in them. And ſo as the Name of Pope, which in the 5 or 6 firſt Ages was common to all Biſhops, was afterwards appropriated to the Roman Pontiff; ſo likewiſe the Name of Cardinal, which had been common to all Titulary Biſhops, Prieſts, and Deacons, in regard of the Churches they were linked to, as St. Gregory ſpeaks, does now belong only to the Cardinals of the Church of Rome, who are in the higheſt Rank of that Church. Neverthelesſs it is obſerved, That even ſince the Eſtabliſhment of this College of Cardinals, the Biſhops maintaining their Preheminence, have had the firſt Place in Aſſemblies and Publick Meetings in the Pope's own preſence. This is ſeen in the Act of the Dedication of the Church of Marmoutier by Pope Urban II. in 1090. when he came to France to keep the famous Council of Clermont: For in that Ceremony, Hugo, Archbiſhop of Lyons, was next to the Pope, and after him followed the other Archbiſhops and Biſhops, followed by the Prieſts and Deacons that were Cardinals, and of the Pope's Retinue. In 769. the Council of Rome, held under Pope Stephen IV. Decreed, That none ſhould be choſen Pope but a Prieſt or Deacon-Cardinal. In 1130. the Cardinals began to be Maſters of the Pope's Election under Innocent II. and made themſelves the ſole Chooſers, to the Excluſion of the reſt of the Clergy of Rome, under Alexander III. in 1160. So raiſing more and more, they are at laſt come to that, that though they be but Prieſts and Deacons, yet the Dignity of Cardinal alone places them above Biſhops. We muſt add here a thing that is very important concerning the Prieſt-Cardinals: Hiſtory informs us, That there has been of theſe Prieſt-Cardinals in France as well as at Rome, and were nothing elſe but Curates: This appears by two ancient Titles; one of Thibauld, Biſhop of Soiſſons, confirming the Foundation of the Abbey of St. John of Vignes, made by Hugo, Lord of Caſtle-Thierry, wherein he reſerves to himſelf, That the Cardinal-Prieſt of the Place, Presbyter Cardinalis ipſius loci, (that is to ſay, the Curate of the Pariſh within whoſe Precincts the Abbey of St. John of Vignes was founded) ſhould be liable to give the Biſhop of Soiſſons an account of his Care of the Pariſhioners, or to his Archdeacon, as he uſed to do before. This Cardinal-Prieſt, ſays Gris, Canon-Regular of the Order of St. Auguſtine in that ſame Abbey, was Curate of St. James's, and one of the Twelve Curates of the Town of Soiſſons, or its Neighbourhood. The other is the Confirmation of this Foundation by Philip I. in 1076. where the ſame Terms are repeated. The ancient Manuſcript Pontificial, which was uſed by the Biſhops of Troyes above 400 years ago, ſhews, That in all times the Biſhops of Troyes had Cardinal-Prieſts, who were no other but the Thirteen Curates mentioned in the Manuſcript Ritual of the ſame Church, who do now alſo aſſiſt the Biſhop when he Conſecrates the Chriſm and the Unctions of Holy Thurſday, and at the ſolemn Benediction of the Fonts on the Eves of Eaſter and Pentecoſt. They are called in the Pontificial, Sacerdotes Cardinales. Paſquier reports upon this Subject, That in a Council held at Metz under Charlemaign, it was ordered, That Biſhops ſhould diſpoſe Canonically of the Cardinal-Titles, eſtabliſhed in the Towns and Suburbs, that is, the Pariſhes. And it may be alſo remarked upon this Subject, That in the Abbey of St. Remigius at Rheims, four of the Monks were always called Cardinals, or Chief, becauſe it was they that officiated at the Great Altar upon ſolemn Feſtivals: Neverthelesſs, it is ſeen in ſome of St. Gregory's and Adrian II.'s Letters, that Cardinalis Sacerdos may be taken for a Biſhop; and that Cardinalem conſtitui in Eccleſia Bituricenſi, ſignified to make one Archbiſhop of Bourges, tho' for the moſt part, as I have already obſerved, the Pariſh-Prieſts of the Gauls were called Presbyteri Cardinales. Maimbourg.

CARDONA, a Borough of Spain in Catalonia, with the Title of a Dutchy, ſituated upon a River of this Name, about two Leagues from Solſona, and ſeven or eight from Montferrat: It has Salt-Mines which render it famous; yet it's more renowned for giving its Name to Lords of the Houſe of Folch, who raiſed themſelves by their proper Merit, and whereof there have been many Cardinals and other Prelates, and ſome who have had very Illuſtrious Alliances with the Royal Houſe of Arragon, and with the greateſt Families of Spain, Mr. Willoughby, in his Travels in Spain, p. 470. placeth Cardona two Leagues beyond Montferrat; and ſaith the Mountains of Salt yield a yearly Revenue of 30000 Pieces of Eight; and that the Dukedom of Cardona contains three or four Villages beſides the Town; the Duke being one of the richeſt Grandees in Spain, and poſſeſſing beſides it three Dukedoms, four Marquiſates, and two Earldoms, &c. and he lives moſtly at Madrid, but ſends hither every three years a new Governour, the King of Spain having nothing to do with this City. This City is the freeſt in Spain, and beſides the 10th of the Corn and Wine paid to the Duke, it never payeth any Tribute to him or the King. It is Governed by a Council and Four Conſuls choſen every year by Lot; ſo that no Man of the Council can ſerve again till three years are expired.

CARDONA, (John Baptiſt) Biſhop of Tortoſa in Catalonia, living till towards the end of the Sixteenth Century: He was very much valued by Gregory XIII. and had an excellent Talent in reſtoring the Paſſages of old Authors. His Works are, De Regia St. Laurentii Bibliotheca. De expurgandis Hæreticorum propriis Nominibus. De Diptycis, &c. Andreas Scotus Bibl. Hiſp. Gaſpard Eſcolanus, Lib. 5. Hiſt. &c.

CARELLIA, or Karelen, a Province of Sweden in Finland; it lies partly upon the Gulph of Finland: Its Capital is Viburg. The Muſcovites were formerly poſſeſſed of part of this Province; but it now remains wholly in the Swede.

CAREMBOULE, a part of the Iſle of Madagaſcar upon the Southern Coaſts, between the Country of the Ampatres and the Mahafales: This place is ſomewhat too dry for Corn, but is good Paſture-Land. It abounds in Cattel, and Cotton grows alſo in great quantity there. Flacourt Hiſt. de Madagaſcar.

CARENCIA, a Town of the ancient Rugians, Inhabitants of a part of Pomerania, upon the Coaſts of the Baltick Sea in Germany. There were three Temples in this City, where three monſtrous Idols were adored: The firſt, which they called Regevithe, had ſeven Faces to one Head; ſeven Swords in their Scabbards hanging on the ſame Belt, and a naked Sword in its Right Hand: They believed that this God preſided over War, as well as Mars. Their ſecond was called Porevithe, with five Heads, but without Arms. The third, which they called Porenuce, had four Faces to his Head, and a fifth at his Stomach, covering his Chin with his Right Hand, and his Forehead with the Left. Saxo. Crantz, de Vandal.

CARENTAN, a Town of France in Low Normandy, ſituate upon the River Douve, or Ouve, which receives there that of Carentan, or Carentei, 3 Leagues from the Sea, and 7 or 8 from Coûtances. The greateſt Barks come up thither with the Tide, which makes the Town of pretty good Trade: It has two great Suburbs, a good Caſtle, and is pretty ſtrong, having good Ramparts, Ditches filled with Water, and environed with Marſhes. This Town has a Bailiwick Election, and Title of Viſcount. The Country-People ſay it was built by Caros, one of Cæſar's Colonels. This place ſuffered much in the Civil Wars of the Sixteenth Age. The Count of Montgomery, one of the Chief Commanders of the Proteſtant Party, took it in 3 days in 1574. and the Count of Malignon, the King's Lieutenant in Normandy, and Commander of his Troops, retook it ſoon after, and made De Lorges, Montgomery's Son, who Commanded in the Town, Priſoner. Pap. Maſſon.

CARETTE, (Fabricius) the 42th Great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, whoſe Convent was in the Iſle of Rhodes : He ſucceeded Guy of Blanchefort in 1513. made a League with the Sophy of Perſia, againſt Selim I. The Turkiſh Fleet returning from Egypt at the end of Autumn, preſented it ſelf before the Port of Rhodes, with their Banners diſplay'd, and Trumpets ſounding. The Baſſa who Commanded this Army, ſent the Great Maſter an Officer to acquint him, That Selim gain'd a Battel of the Soldan of Egypt, and to deſire him to partake of the Victory. To which the Great Maſter made anſwer, That he was obliged to the Baſſa for his Civility, and would ſerve him, if there were occaſion. In the mean time put himſelf in good poſture of defence : After he had done all that the Exerciſe of his Charge obliged him to do, he died in 1521. Boſio.

CAREY, (William) deſcended of the Noble and Ancient Family of Cokkington in Devonſhire, being Eſquire of the Body to King Henry VIII. took to Wife Mary, Daughter to Thomas Bullen, Earl of Wiltſhire, Siſter to Anne, ſecond Wife to King Henry VIII. by whom he had a Son called Henry, who, in regard of his near Alliance to Queen Elizabeth, was Knighted ſoon after her coming to the Crown, and afterwards advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Hunſdon ; ſent to carry the Garter to the King of France ; at his return made Governour of Berwick ; and after the Execution of the Queen of Scots, ſent to pacifie her Son. He left by Anne his Wife four Sons ; George , John , Edmund, and Robert, afterwards Earl of Monmouth ; and three Daughters. George, his eldeſt Son, Knight of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter, Lord Chamberlain of the Queen's Houſhold, and one of her Privy Council, dying without Iſſue Male, the ſecond Son, John, ſucceeded in the Honour ; his Son Henry ſucceeding him as Lord Hunſdon, was advanced to the Dignity of Viſcount Rocheſter, 19 Jac. and to the Title of Earl of Dover, 3 Car. I. John, his Son and Heir, died without Iſſue Male. Robert, third Son to the firſt Henry Lord Hunſdon, being Warden of the Marches towards Scotland, 40 Eliz. was created in 19 Jac. Lord Carey of Lepington , in Com. Ebor. alſo Earl of Monmouth, 1 Car. I. His Son Henry ſucceeding him in Honour, had two Sons and eight Daughters. Dugdale.

CARFAGNANA, which the Latin Carferoniana, and Grafiniana, a Valley of Italy, between Mont Appennine in the Dutchy of Florence, Luquois, the State of Regio, and Modena.

CARGAPOL, a Town and Weſtern Province of Muſcovy, which has the White Sea to the North, the Province of Wologda to the South, the Lake of Onega to the Weſt, and the River Dwina to the Eaſt. This Town is not very conſiderable.

CARIA, a Province of Aſia Minor, now called Aidinelli, which has belonged to the Turks ſince the 14th Age: It is bounded on the Eaſt with Lycia, now called Menteſeli ; on the Weſt and South with the Mediterranean and Archipelago , and on the North with the River Mader. This Province had formerly the Towns of Magnaſca, Alabanda, Stratonice, Minde, Priene, Miletus , now Malazo , or Milaſſo, which laſt ſent forth eighty Colonies at ſeveral times. It was the Birth-place of Thales,Halicarnaſſæus,&c. Its Mountain Latmus gave occaſion to the Fable of Endymion and the Moon. The Macedonians called a Council here, which conſiſted of thirty four Biſhops, who rejected the Term Conſubſtantial, and approved the Formule or Profeſſion of Faith made by the Aſſemblies of Antioch and Seleucia. Sozom. Baron.

CARIATI, a Town of the hithermoſt Calabria, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of St. Severinus, and Title of Principality. It is not very conſiderable. It's ſituate upon the Ionian Sea, at the mouth of the Gulph of Tarentum , towards Umbraccio and Strongoli.

CARIBES, or Caraibes, People of America Septentrionalis, who were formerly Inhabitants of the Antilles. See Antilles and Cannibals.

CARIDIE, a ſmall Borough and Gulph of Romania, upon the Archipelago : It was formerly an important Town, known under the Name of Cardiopolis ; but now it's but an inſignificant Borough, 10 or 12 Leagues from Gallipoli.

CARIE, Lat. Carya, a Town of Peloponneſus, deſtroyed by the Grecians, to be revenged of the Treachery of its Inhabitants, who joined with the Perſians that were in War with the reſt of Greece. The Men were all put to the Sword, and the Women led away Captives : To treat them ſtill with more Ignominy, after they had led them in Triumph, they would not ſuffer them to put off their fine Robes, nor other Ornaments, that they might have the Confuſion of appearing always as Great as they did in the Triumph. And the Architects of that time made uſe of their Statues in their Publick Buildings, inſtead of Pillars and Pilaſters, to tranſmit to all ſucceeding Ages the Puniſhment that was inflicted upon them for their Infidelity. Theſe Statues were called Caryatides, and there were ſome in the ſumptuous Building at Bourdeaux, which were called the Pillars in Tuteles. In the Great Hall of the Swiſs Guards in the Louvre , are four Caryatides that ſupport a Tribune, or Muſick-Room, enriched with Ornaments ; they repreſent Women that have their Arms cut off, and are covered with a Robe that hangs down to their Feet. Vitruvius.

CARIGNAN, a Town of Italy in Piedmont , with the Title of Principality, ſituated upon the Po, over which is a fine Bridge between Turin and Carmagnole : It has a ſtrong Caſtle, and its Soil abounds with Mulberry-Trees for the Silk-worms. Thomas Francis of Savoy , fifth Son of Charles Emanuel , firſt of that Name, Duke of Savoy, and Katharine Michelle of Auſtria , bore in the 16th Age the Title of Prince of Carignan. He was Great Maſter of France, and died in the year 1656. In 1625. he married Mary of Bourbon, Daughter to Charles of Bourbon, and Anne Counteſs of Montafie, &c. and begot on her Joſeph Emanuel ; John, who died in 1656. Eugen Maurice , Count of Soiſſons ; Amadeus Ferdinand, Charlotte Chriſtine, both died young ; and Louiſe Chriſtine, married to Ferdinand Maximilian.

CARINÆ, certain Women in great Vogue, and hired to make Moan for the Dead at Burials. They derived their Name from Carie, the Country they came from. There were alſo Buildings in Rome in form of Ships, which were called Carinæ, from the Latin Carina ; and others ſay there was a Street of this Name in that City, wherein Pompey's Palace was. Virg.

CARINGTON, (Lord.) See Smith.

CARINOLA, called Carenum, and Carinula, a Town of Italy, in Terra di Lavoro, with the Title of County, an Archbiſhop's See, Suffragan to Capua. It's ſituated upon a little River 4 or 5 miles from the Sea, between Capua and Seſſa. Some Authors take it to be the Celenum of the Ancients, mentioned by Strabo, Pliny, and others, though it's certain it was built 2 or 3 miles from the Ruins of this other.

CARINTHIA, called by the Germans Karnten, a Province of Germany, belonging to the Archdukes of Auſtria, with the Title of Dutchy : It divides into Higher and Lower by the Drave, and lies between the Biſhopricks of Saltzburg , Stiria , Friouli , Carniola , and Tyrol. Its Chief Towns are, San-veit, Villach, Volcmark, Judenburg, Claghenfort, which laſt is its Capital. This Country fell to the Archdukes of Auſtria, Henry, its laſt Duke, dying without Iſſue. It's ſaid that the Boors of Carinthia have the Privilege of inveſting their Sovereigns always when they change their Prince ; and that the Duke, dreſſed up like one of themſelves, aſſiſts at a certain Ceremony they perform abroad in a Meadow. This Privilege was allowed them becauſe they were the firſt that embraced the Chriſtian Religion. A Country-man preſents the Duke two Oxen, one a fat, and the other a lean one. The Duke accepts this laſt, and receives a light Blow on the Ear from the Boor. Carinthia is a hilly Country ; its Inhabitants abhor Theft mightily ; they uſed formerly to hang thoſe they only ſuſpected to have ſtolen, and judged them three days after. If they were found guilty of the Crime they were accuſed of , they let them hang until they rotted ; but if they were found innocent , they were buried publickly, and their Souls pray'd for. Æneas Silvius, Cluvier, Monſtrelet.

CARINUS, (Marcus Aurelius) Son of the Emperor Carus, who made him and his Brother Numerianus Cæſars, about 283. and taking this laſt with him to the Eaſt, he ſent Carinus to Gaul, where he gave himſelf over to all manner of Vice. He married nine Wives, and put ſeveral to death upon bare Suſpicion ; which made his Father diſown him, if we believe Vopiſcus. After the death of both the Sons, the Emperor oppoſed Diocleſian, and ſlew in the Plains of Verona, Sabinus Julianus, who would invade the Empire ; but was at laſt killed by one of his Captains, whoſe Wife he had debauched. This hapned at Margus , a Town of Mæſia , in 285. Vopiſcus, Aurelius Victor.

CARION, (John) a German, born in 1499. He was a good Linguiſt and a great Scholar, well skill'd in the Mathematicks, which he taught with great Applauſe at Wirtemberg and elſewhere , and publiſhed ſeveral Works that gained him Reputation ; as,his Practico-Aſtrologicæ Ephemerides : A Chronicle, which Peucer and others have continued, &c. This Carion died in 1538. that being but the 39th year of his Age. Melch. Adam.

CARIUS, Son of Jupiter and Torrhebia. The Ancients ſay, That as he walked about the Lake Torrhebia, and heard the ſweet Voice of the Nymphs, he learned the Muſick, and taught it afterwards to the Lydians ; and in acknowledgment of this good Office, they worſhipped him as a

God, and built him a Temple upon a Hill, which was afterwards called Carienne, and in Latin Mons Carius, from this Hero's Name.

CARLINFORD, a Sea Port in the County of Louth, in the Province of Ulſter in Ireland, about 30 Engliſh Miles Eaſt of Armagh, and 5 North of Dundalk.

CARLISLE, the chief Place of Cumberland, and a Biſhop's See, in the Province of York, ſituate on the South Banks of the River Eden, 235 Miles North Weſt from London. Beſides the Eden, which about 16 Miles lower falls into the Iriſh Sea, this City is Watered with Two leſſer Rivers, the Cawda and the Pettrell, mixing here their Waters with the Eden's. In the Roman time this City flouriſhed under the Name of Luguvallum, as ſtanding near the Picts Wall, by them called Vallum Picticum, and made to defend theſe Borders from the Picts; ſo that it ſeems to have been of old the Boundary between the Two Nations, which the Northumbers afterwards extended to the Bank of Dunbriton Fryth. After the Romans had quitted this Iſland, this City felt the Fury of the Picts, but was Walled about in the Reign of Egfrid King of the Northumbers. Afterwards the Danes conſumed it into Aſhes, and it lay un-repaired in Rubbiſh till William Rufus rebuilt it. Henry, his next Succeſſor, made it a Biſhop's See, Anno 1133. Thus it recovered it ſelf to that degree, that it is now a fine City, well inhabited, and a Place of good Trade. The Cathedral was founded by Walter, Deputy of theſe Parts for King William Rufus, and by him Dedicated to the Bleſſed Virgin, but finiſhed and endowed by King Henry, out of the Wealth Walter had amaſſed for that purpoſe; upon which Ethelwolf was made the firſt Biſhop thereof. The Dioceſe contains all Weſtmorland, and part of Cumberland, in all 93 Pariſhes; but theſe exceeding large, as generally they are in the North. In the King's Books 'tis valued at 513 l. 4 s: 11 d. the Clergies Tenth amounting but to 161 l. 1 s. 7 d. As for Honorary Titles, this City has given that of Earl to ſeveral Families, and is now injoy'd by the Right Honourable Charles Howard, the preſent Earl of Carliſle, derived to him from his Grandfather Charles Howard, deſcended from William Howard, Third Son of Thomas Duke of Norfolk, and created Earl of Carliſle by King Charles the Second, Anno 1661.

CARLOMAN, King of France, Son of Lewis the Liſper, was Crown'd with his Brother Lewis III. at Terriers in Gatinois in 879. Some paſſionate Hiſtorians write, that theſe Two Brothers were Baſtards, others hold the contrary, and ſay the King begot 'em on Anſgarde, whom he Married in his Youth. It's true his Father got them Divorc'd, becauſe ſhe was of mean Birth, and he had not given his Conſent to their Marriage, but this does not make the Children Baſtards. The Two Brothers divided their Eſtate at Amiens, Lewis had Neuſtria, and Carloman Aquitany and Burgundy. The Normans Boſon, who had made himſelf King of Arles and Burgundy, and Lewis King of Germany, being Leagued againſt 'em, they won the laſt to their ſide, defeated Boſon in a pitch'd Battle, and afterwards laid Siege to Vienne in 881. where he had left his Wife. The Normans made ſuch continual Incurſions into their Territories, that Lewis was forc'd to go to oppoſe them, but died at St. Denis in 882. Carloman quitted preſently the Siege of Vienne, and left the Command of his Troops there to Count Richard, and came himſelf to Command the Army in Picardy. He worſted thoſe Barbarians in ſeveral Rencounters, and at laſt obliged them to leave his Country. Some time after being a Hunting at the Foreſt of Iveline near Montfort, he was wounded by a Wild Boar, or by ſome of his Attendance, and died a few days after in 884. Reginon in Chron.

CARLOMAN, King of Auſtraſia, Burgundy, and of a part of Aquitany, Crown'd at Soiſſons the 9th of October 768. he was Son of Pepin the Short, and Brother to Charlemaign, with whom he ſhar'd his Father's Eſtate. Some Wicked People, Enemies to Peace, labour'd to ſet them at variance. Carloman was inclin'd to it, but he died ſoon after, and was buried at Reims. He left Two Sons by his Wife Gerberge, Pepin and St. Siagre Biſhop of Nice in Provence. St. Marthe. Mezeray.

CARLOMAN, Duke and Prince of the French, eldeſt Son of Charles Martel by his firſt Wife Crotrude, commonly call'd Rotrude, who died in 724. He had for his Share Auſtraſia, Germany, and Thuringia. He took the Field with his Brother Pepin againſt Hunaud Duke of Aquitany, whom they drove beyond Poictiers, and forced to an Agreement after they had taken the Caſtle of Loches. After this they divided the Kingdom at the place call'd Old Poictiers, and thence march'd into Germany againſt Thibaud Duke of the Germans, whom they ſubdued in 742. After which Carloman ſubdued Odilon, and then Thierry, Dukes of Bavaria and Saxony, having before revenged himſelf of Hunaud for his Treachery. Then recommending to his Brother Pepin a Son of his call'd Dreux, he went to Rome, where having taken the Habit of St. Benet, in 747. he retired to Mont Sorate, but being too much importun'd with Viſits there, he went to Mont Caſſin. He came afterwards to France to interceed for Aſtulfe King of the Lombardians, who feared Pepin II. then Protector of Pope Stephen II. and the Holy See, though the pretext of this Journey was to demand St. Benet's Body, which was at Fleury upon the Loire, but not meeting with the Reception he expected, he retired to Vienne in Dauphine, where he died the 17th of Auguſt 755. His Body was carried to Mont Caſſin. Reginon, Eginard.

CARLOMAN, eldeſt Son of Lewis Sirnamed Germanicus, Brother of Lewis II. and of Charles the Burly, had to his Share the Kingdom of Bavaria, to which Pannonia, Carinthia, Bohemia, and Moravia belong'd, and was Honour'd beſides with the Title of King of Italy; He took the Field to join this Kingdom to the Empire, but a Panick Fear ſeiz'd him, and made him alter his Deſign. He gained Two Victories over Raſtie Duke of Moravia, and Gondacre Count of Carinthia, but was afterwards worſted by the Rebels of Moravia. He fell into a Palſy, whereof he died, in 880. and was buried at Ottinghen in Bavaria in a Monaſtery that St. Maximilian founded there, and left Two Baſtards, a Son and a Daughter. Arnoul, who had Carinthia, and was afterwards Emperor, and Giſete Married to Zuendipold King of Moravia in 890. whom ſome Authors for this reaſon take to be Carloman Son of Charles the Bald by Ermentrude his firſt Wife. See Bodenſtein.

CARLOMAN, Son of King Charles the Bald and Ermentrude his firſt Wife. He Rebell'd againſt his Father, and Heldegard Biſhop of Meaux Ordain'd him Deacon whether he would or no; Afterwards he was poſſeſs'd of ſeveral Abbies: He Rebell'd again, and was thrown into Priſon, from whence he was afterwards enlarg'd at the Inſtance of Pope Adrian II. But theſe Favours were thrown away upon him, for being at Liberty, he relaps'd into his old Seditious Practices; Upon this the King got him ſeiz'd, and degraded by the Biſhops at Senlis; and in the year 866. he had his Eyes put out, and was thrown into the Abby of Corbie for further Pennance. Flodoard Hiſt. Remen. Lib. 3. C. 28. &c.

CARLOVINIANS, a Name that was given to the Kings of the Second Race of France, which began in 752 in Pepin the Short Son of Charles Martel, and ended in Lewis the Fifth, in 987. There were Fourteen Kings of this Family.

CARLOWITZ, is a little Town in Sclavonia, ſituated upon the Danube, about five Engliſh Miles to the North-weſt of Peter-Waradin, render'd of late very Memorable by the Peace that was there concluded in the year 1699. after a Bloody War, firſt and laſt of 17 years continuance, between the Emperor, King and Republick of Poland, the Republick of Venice, and Czar of Moſcovy, on the one Part, and Muſtapha XI. Emperor of the Turks, on the other, whereby the latter yielded to the Emperor all his Conqueſts in Hungary, and Protection over Tranſilvania; To the Venetians the whole Country of the Morea, and a great many Places in Dalmatia; To the Poles, Caminiec, and all Podolia and Ukrania; and made a Truce only for Two years with the Muſcovites, which expires at Chriſtmas 1700. leaving them in the mean time in Poſſeſſion of the almoſt impregnable Fortreſs of Aſaph, Keſikermen, and all the reſt of their Conqueſts upon the Black Sea.

CARLSBOURG, Lat. Caroloburgum, a little Town in Germany, in Low-Saxony, in the Dutchy of Bremen, ſituated upon the Weſer, lately built by the Swedes, and called ſo from their King Charles X. It's a ſtrong Place, yet was taken by the Danes, aſſiſted by the Inhabitants of Lunebourg, in 1676. They reſtored it again in 1679. by the Mediation of the King of France, and the Peace that was concluded the ſame year at Fontainbleau. Baudrand.

CARMAGNOLE, a Town of Italy, in the Marquiſate of Saluſſes, belonging to the Duke of Savoy, ſituated about two Miles from the Po, and eight or nine from Turin. It's of Importance for its good Fortreſs. Charles Emanuel, Duke of Savoy, made himſelf Maſter of it in 1588. during the Civil Wars of France, and alſo ſubjected the Marquiſate of Saluſſes, now incorporated into Piedmont, it being left to Savoy in Exchange of Breſſe and Bugey, &c. by the Peace made in 1601. The French took it in 1691. and it was retaken from them the ſame year by the Duke of Savoy.

CARMAGNOLE, (Francis) a famous General, who took his Name from the Town Carmagnole in Piedmont. He was a Boor's Son, and kept Pigs all his Youth, at laſt Liſted himſelf a Soldier, and mounted by degrees, until he became General under Philip Viſconti, Duke of Milan, who had ſeen Proofs of his Courage and Conduct. Carmagnole continuing to ſignalize himſelf by ſeveral brave Actions, this Duke gave him a Couſin of his in Marriage, and honoured him with a conſiderable Government, which Height got him the Envy of ſeveral Powerful Men, who miſ-repreſented him to the credulous Duke, which occaſioned his Retreat for Security to the Venetian Territories, where he was received very honourably, and made General of their Army againſt the Duke of Milan, whom he worſted in ſeveral Battels; but neglecting to make the Advantage vantage he might, of a Victory he had gained, in order to reconcile himſelf with this Duke, the Venetians got him brought to Venice, where he was Beheaded in 1422. Pompil. Tot. Elog. de Capitain.

CARMANIE, or Kirman, a great Country of Perſia, which has Gedroſia, or Corcan to the Eaſt, Farſi to the Weſt, Subleſtan to the North, and the Gulph of Ormus, and the Indian Seas to the South, and comprehends the Provinces of Guadel, Dulcinde, and Ormus. Its Capital is Cherman, upon the River Baſſiry; its other Towns are Berſil, Bem, Bermaſil, Chabiz, Tzireſt, Bander-Gamron, Ormus, &c. It's pretty barren towards the North, in the Place where Carmania the Deſart was; but about the middle of the Country, it has fertil Valleys, all covered with Fruit and Flowers, but eſpecially with Roſes: Hence we have ſome Turquoiſes, and Tutie, or Flower of Braſs. Sanſon. See Caramania.

CARMARTHEN, Lat. Maridunum, the chief Place of Carmarthenſhire, in South-Wales, is pleaſantly ſeated on the Weſt-ſide of the River Towy, which runs through the midſt of this Shire, and falls South, about ſix Miles from hence, into the Sea; over the River there is a fair Bridge of Free Stone, with a large Caſtle built over it upon a ſteep Rock; from which Stone Wall, another intermingled with Brick, rangeth about the Town. Upon the Norman Conqueſt, this Town was brought under their Obedience, and for a long time oppreſſed with the Calamities of War, yet it was made by the Engliſh Monarchs the Chancery and Exchequer for all South-Wales. This was the Birth-Place of that famous Britiſh Apollo, called Merlin. Since the late Revolution, this Town ſtands Honoured with the Title of a Marquiſate, in the Perſon of the Right Honourable Thomas Osborn, Earl of Danby, and Marquiſs of Carmarthen, Lord Preſident of Their Majeſties moſt Honourable Privy-Council. It's 206 Miles from London.

CARMARTHENSHIRE, Lat. Maridunenſis Comitatus, is a Maritime County of South-Wales, ſo called from Carmarthen, the Chief Place thereof. 'Tis bounded on the North with Cardiganſhire, on the South with the Severn Sea, Eaſtward with Brecknock and Glamorganſhires, and Weſtward with Pembrokeſhire; in Length, from North Eaſt to South Weſt, about 35 Miles; in Breadth, from Eaſt to Weſt, 30: The whole divided into Six Hundreds, wherein are 87 Pariſhes, and 8 Market Towns; anciently the Seat of the Dimelæ, poſſeſſed of this with Pembroke and Cardiganſhires. This Shire is not ſo over-grown with Hills as her Neighbours are, and what Hills ſhe has, are much better for Corn and Paſturage. Beſides the Tivy, which parts it from Cardiganſhire, here is the Tovy, that runs from North to South into the Sea, the Tave, and ſeveral others. On the Eaſt ſide of the Tovy is a Place called The Golden Grove, wonderfully Pleaſant and Fruitful, belonging to the Earl of Carbery; Not far from which, to the Southward, are the Ruins of Careg-Caſtle, upon a high Hill, under which are to be ſeen many Vaults and ſpacious Caves, conceived to be the Refuge of the routed People in the Civil Wars. Where alſo, ſays Giraldus, is a Fountain, which, like the Sea, ebbs and flows twice in 24 Hours; of the Market Towns, Carmarthen the County Town only is Privileged to ſend a Member to Parliament, beſides the Knight of the Shire.

CARMEL, or Mount Carmel, a Mount of Galilee in Palaſtina, 12 Miles from Nazareth, towards the Weſt, upon the Coaſt of the Mediterranean Sea: It's ſeparated from the other Mountains, has 30 Miles in circuit, with a great number of little Hills and Valleys that are always green, Foreſts of high Trees, Groves, Gardens, Springs, pleaſant Fountains, and quantity of Vines. Its Air is very good, its Fruit excellent, as well as its Wines, with Game in abundance. A ſteep Path lying between the Rocks, with Steps wrought with a Chizle leads to Carmelites Hermitage. This Hermitage conſiſts in Five little Cells wrought in a Rock upon the ſide of the Cape that looks to the North, the Weſt and South, whence is a fair Proſpect of the wide Sea, of the Towns of Caiphas, and of St. John of Acre, and all the neighbouring Country; one of the Cells is a Chapel, another their Refectory or Dining-Room, with Three Stone Tables, and Seats of the ſame for Eight or Ten Perſons: There are Two other that are Dormitories, and the Fifth is where the Pilgrims lodge; before the Door of this Cell the Fryars have made a little Platform upon the Rock, which is ſhaded by Branches of Trees, where they Treat the Viſitors ſometimes with a Collation, which conſiſts in Dates, dry'd Raiſins, Figs, and Bisket, with Ciſtern Water, for they drink no Wine there. Towards the Foot of the Mountain is Elias's Grotto, much honoured, not only by Chriſtians and Jews, but alſo by Infidels, Turks, Moors, and Arabians, who hold by Tradition, that it was the ordinary Reſidence of the Prophet Elias; this is kept by a Santon or Mahometan Monk who has the Phyſiognomy of a Holy Anchoret, and looks as if he was waſted away with Auſterities; he receives Alms of all them that go to Pray there, for giving them Leave to enter it. Somewhat higher is Eliſha's Grotto, and Grotto's which belong to the Hermitage above-mentioned. There is another Grotto at the top of the Mountain, which is call'd Elias's Grotto, near which are the Remains of a ruin'd Monaſtery, which was built of Free Stone, more like a Fortreſs than a Religious Houſe; 40 or 50 Perſons might lodge in this ruined Building ſtill, and there are Four or Five poor Families of Moors that live in ſome of the Chambers now. Between this Monaſtery and the Grotto, was a little Chapel, whereof there remains nothing now but the Walls, and the Altar leaning back upon the Grotto. There are alſo the Remains of another Monaſtery in a Valley towards the Weſt, held to be the firſt that was built in the Eaſt for the Anchorites of Mount Carmel; Here are beſides great Buildings ſtill entire, of good Free Stone, formed into many Stories, with a large Hall, which is thought to have been the Oratory that was to the Chapel. A little higher is Elias's Fountain, ſaid to have ſprung out of the Ground by Vertue of this Prophet's Prayers. There were formerly ſeveral Towns at the Foot of this Mountain, amongſt which, Strabo makes mention of that of the Sicamins, of the Bouviers, and Crocodiles. Pliny adds another, which he calls Carmel and Ecbatane. Suetonius mentions, that in Veſpaſian's Time, An. Chriſti 82. there was a little Temple upon Mount Carmel, ſo very famous, that this Emperor conſulted the Oracle they adored there, which aſſured him of good Succeſs in all his Deſigns. It's not known whether this was any Remains of the Idolatry of Baal or Beelzebub, which was formerly worſhipped in the Town of Acre or Eckron, or whether it was a Chapel of the true God, ſerved by the Succeſſors of Elias, under the Conduct of the Prophet Agabus, whom perhaps the Emperor conſulted about the Event of his Enterpriſes. The Town of Caiphas is at the Bottom of the Mountain, near the Port of St. John of Acre, and Acre is over-againſt it, on the other ſide of the Port; from Caiphas to Acre or Eckron are four or five Leagues, to go round the little Neck that forms the Port. In 1259 St. Lewis, King of France, in his return from the Holy Land, paſſing through Mount Carmel, begg'd Six of the Monks of the Abbot, and brought them to Paris in their white Habits, and white Cloaks Laced at the bottom with a kind of Liſt; but Pope Honorius IV. made them take the Minims Habit with the White Cloak, which they wear to this very time. Doubdan voyage de la terre Sancte.

CARMEL, or our Lady of Mount Carmel, a Military Order, which is alſo called of St. Lazarus, eſtabliſhed by Henry IV. of France in 1608. He received none but French into it, to diſtinguiſh it from that of St. Lazarus of Savoy, which conſiſts of none but Italians and Savoyards. This Order conſiſted of 100 Gentlemen of the Kingdom, who, in War time, were to keep about the Kings Sacred Perſon, to guard him. Monſieur Philibert of Nereſtang, was choſen Great Maſter of this Order, and took the Oath to the King at Fontainbleau, in Preſence of the Princes and Lords of the Court, ſwearing Allegiance and Fidelity to him and all his Succeſſors, Kings of France. Then the King put him on the Collar, which is a kind of tawny coloured Ribband, with a Golden Croſs hanging at it, with our Lady's Image engraven on it, ſurrounded with a Golden Glory; afterwards put on his Cloak, with the Golden Croſs of the ſame Order, which Pope Paul V. approved, or re-eſtabliſhed. Lewis XIV. revived this Order. Spond. Anno Chriſti 1608.

CARMELITES, or our Lady of Mount Carmel, a Religious Order, which begun in the Twelfth Age in Syria, where ſeveral Weſtern Pilgrims lived in different Hermitages, expoſed to the Violence and Incurſions of the Barbarians. Aimeric, Legate of the Holy See in the Eaſt, under Alexander III. and Patriarch of Antioch, brought them together, and placed them on Mount Carmel, formerly the Retreat and Reſidence of Elias and Eliſha, whoſe Succeſſors they ſtile themſelves. They derived their Name of Carmelites from this Mountain. Albert, Patriarch of Jeruſalem, Native of the Dioceſe of Amiens, and Kinſman of Peter the Hermite, gave them Rules in 1205. which Pope Honorius III. confirmed two years after. Their Habit was at firſt White, and their Cloak Laced at the bottom with ſeveral Liſts. But as this manner of Apparel did not agree very well with their State, Pope Honorius the Fourth commanded them to change it. So they ſtrip'd theſe Laces off, and to looſe nothing of their Colour, they took the Habit of the Minims under their White Cloak. Pope Innocent IV. mitigated the Severity of the Rules that were given them in 1245. They came into Europe in 1238. and have now Seven Provinces in France. This Order has flouriſhed very much in the Romiſh Church, which it has furniſhed with a great number of Biſhops, Preachers, and Learned Writers. Onuphrius, Genebrard.

CARMELITES, or Diſcalceated, a Congregation of Fryars, eſtabliſhed in the Sixteenth Age. After the Mitigation of the Rules of the Carmelites made by Pope Eugenius IV. the Order was reformed by St. Thereſa, a Nun thereof, belonging to the Convent of Avila in Caſtile, her Birth-place. She began with the Women, then afterwards undertook to reform the Men, being aſſiſted with Two Fryars of the Order, Father Anthony of Jeſus, and Father John of the Croſs; and theſe new Reformed had a Convent near Avila. Part of the Profeſſion of theſe Monks is to go bare-foot, which makes 'em call 'em Diſcalceated Carmelites. Pope Pius V. approved their Deſign, Gregory XIII. confirmed their Reformation in 1580. and Clement VIII. ſeparated their Congregation in Italy from that of Spain in 1598. and gave them large Privileges. They came into France about 1605. and have 44 or 45 Convents in that Kingdom. The Carmelites were there Two years before by Cardinal Berule's Care. Theſe Fryars are divided into Two Congregations, whereof each has its general and particular Conſtitutions. Theſe Two are the Congregation of Italy, which comprehends all the Convents that are not in the Territories of Spain, and the other that of Spain, which reaches to Six Provinces. Spond. Anno Chriſti 1568.

CARMENTA, Mother of Evander; ſhe left Arcadia with her Son, and arrived in Italy, where they were civilly received by Faunus King of the Country; this was about 60 years before the taking of Troy, and about the year of the World 1810. They called her Nicoſtrata and Carmenta, becauſe ſhe prophecy'd in Verſe. Carmen in Latin ſignifying Poetry. The Roman Matrons built a Temple to her Memory, and celebrated Feaſts that were called Carmentales. Plutarch reports the Subject of that Feaſt to have been as follows. The Roman Matrons having taken a Reſolution not to ſee their Husbands until they had the Privilege of Riding in their Coaches as before, and that new Decree of the Senate, that deny'd them that Conveniency, were recalled, the Senators were forced to reſtore them to their former Liberty, which appeaſed them; and being come to a good Underſtanding with their Husbands, they found the Effects of an extraordinary Fruitfulneſs in the great number of their Children; for which, being willing to thank the Goddeſs Carmenta, they built her a Temple to Sacrifice in, and offer their Preſents. Ovid. Lib. de Faſt. Plut. In Queſt. Rom.

CARMIDES, which others call Carmadoes, and others Carneades, was a Grecian, of ſuch a prodigious Memory, that he would ſay any Book he had but once read, by Heart. Pliny, Lib. 7. Cap. 24.

CARNA, or Carnee, a certain Goddeſs of the ancient Romans, which preſerved the inward Parts of Men. Junius Brutus, when he drove Tarquinius Superbus from Rome, Sacrificed to this Goddeſs upon Mount Cælius the firſt Day of the fourth Month, which from his Name was called June. The Ancients alſo celebrated Feaſts in Honour of Apollo Carneus, or Carnien, whoſe Prieſts governed the Kingdom of the Sicyonians after Leuxippus's Death; their 26th, and laſt King Archelaus was the firſt of theſe Ruling Prieſts, and Caridemus the laſt, who being unable to ſupply the Expences that were to be made, quitted the Government.

CARNARVAN, Lat. Arvonia, the chief Place of Carnarvanſhire in North-Wales, was built by King Edward I. out of the Ruines of old Segentium, at the Fall of a River into the Iriſh Sea, which being called to this Day Seiont, ſhews its Derivation from the Word Segentium. This Town heretofore was very ſtrongly Walled and Fortified with a fair Caſtle, was the Birth-place of the firſt Prince of Wales of the Engliſh Line, afterwards King of England, by the Name of Edward II. and from Carnarvan, called Edward of Carnarvanſhire. Here the Princes of Wales had their Chancery and Exchequer for all North-Wales, which was no ſmall Improvement to it. King Charles I. conferred the Title of Earl of Carnarvan, Anno 1628. on Robert Dormer, who being ſlain at the firſt Fight near Newbury, 1643. left it to his Son Charles Dormer, the preſent Earl thereof. It's 186 Miles from London.

CARNARVANSHIRE, Lat. Arvonienſis Comitatus, is a Maritime County of North-Wales, ſo called from Carnarvan the chief Place thereof; Northward 'tis parted from Angleſey by an Arm of the Sea; it is bounded Weſtward with the Iriſh Sea, Southward, partly with the Sea, partly with Merionethſhire, and Eaſtward with Denbighſhire and Merionethſhire. From Ormſhead Point Northward to Pevenkel Point Southward, it extends about 40 Miles, and from the River Conway Eaſtward to the Llenoy Weſtward, about 20: In which Compaſs it has 68 Pariſhes and 5 Market Towns, anciently inhabited by the Ordovices, and now in Bangor Dioceſe. Here the Air is ſharp and piercing, and the Soil not very fruitful, except the Weſtern Sea Coaſt, which is the beſt part of it. This is by Nature it ſelf the moſt defenſible County in Wales, by reaſon of its high and craggy Hills, among which Snowdon Hill is the higheſt. Carnarvan is the only Town privileged to ſend a Burgeſs to Parliament, beſides a Knight of the Shire.

CARNEADES, an Academick Philoſopher, Native of Cyrene in Libya, Founder of the Third, or New Academy, Succeſſor to Chryſippus, and one of the Eloquenteſt Perſonages of his Time. He did not apply himſelf much to Phyſick, but cultivated Morals with particular Diligence, and gave himſelf ſo much to that Study, that he neglected all other things; ſo that he ſometimes ſate at Table and forgot to eat, until his Maid Meliſſa rouzed him from his Thoughtfulneſs. When he underſtood that Antipater had poiſoned himſelf, he did the like, and died the fourth year of the One hundred ſixty ſecond Olympiad, according to Diogenes Laertius, in the Eighty fifth year of his Age, 3925 of the World, 625 of Rome, and 129 before the Chriſtian Æra. And there was at that time an Eclipſe of the Moon, according to Apollodorus, quoted by that ſame Diogenes. Cicero, who ſpeaks of him as of the moſt Eloquent Man in the World, makes him Ninety years of Age, which makes it difficult to determine preciſely what year he died in. This Philoſopher was ſent Ambaſſador to Rome along with Diogenes the Stoick, and Critolaus the Peripatetick, under the Second Conſulſhip of P. Cornelius Scipio Naſica, and of M. Claudius Marcellus, in the Five hundred and ninety ninth year of Rome. His Buſineſs was about the Town of Athens, which was Taxed in 500 Talents, becauſe the Inhabitants were the Occaſion that the Town of Oropus was plundered, as Panſanias, Aulus Gellius, and Cicero report. Carneades ſurpriſed the whole Roman Senate ſo much with the Force of his Eloquence, that Cato the Cenſor, adviſed them to ſend him away immediately after he had his Audience, becauſe his Speech had wrought ſo upon their Underſtanding, that they could not diſtinguiſh Truth from Falſhood after he had ſpoken. And Ælian reports, that the Senators complained that this Philoſopher came to inſult over them, even in the very Senate, by the force of his Diſcourſe. And Cicero adds, that he perſwaded People to whatever he pleaſed; and indeed it may be ſaid, that never any had a better Talent for it than himſelf, which with his making Profeſſion of following Plato's Doctrine, gained him an extraordinary Eſteem at Rome. Finally, the new Academy, whereof this Philoſopher is acknowledged the Chief, differs from the middle in this, that Arceſilaus, Author of the laſt, denied the Truth of the very Things themſelves; which Carneades allowed, but maintained that our Underſtandings were not fine or piercing enough to diſtinguiſh this Truth from Falſhood. He alſo taught, that Material and Senſible Beings were as Shadows of the Truth. He proceeded no farther in denying the probability of things, though he did not pretend to be govern'd by it. Diogenes Laert. Aul. Gell. Valer. Maxim.

CARNIOLA, a Province of Germany, with the Title of a Dutchy, belonging to the Houſe of Auſtria. It's part of the ancient Carnia, or Country of the Carnians, which comprehends alſo Friuli, and is divided into the Upper, which is called Dry, where Czernicz lies, and into the Lower, about the River Save. The Germans call this Country Kraim. Its Capital is Laubach, with a Biſhoprick. There are alſo Krainburg, Cillei, Comté, Menſprug, the Marquiſate of Vindes, &c. The Inhabitants are partly Slavonians, and partly Germans. Cluvier, Ortelius. This Country lies between Iſtria, Friuli, and Carinthia.

CAROBERT, or Charles Robert, whom the Hungarians call Charles II. of that Name, King of Hungary, Son to Charles I. Sirnamed Martel, who was Son of Charles, called the Lame, King of Naples and Scicily, Count of Provence, &c. Martel inherited the Kingdom of Hungary by his Mother, who was Daughter to King Stephen V. Siſter and Heireſs of Ladiſlaus IV. both Kings of Hungary. This Prince died before his Father Charles the Lame, and left this Son we ſpeak of. Robert, Brother of Charles Martel, raiſed a great Diſpute upon the Point of Succeſſion, that is to ſay, whether the Eldeſt Brothers Son, or the Uncle, were to be preferr'd, in the Caſe of Proximity, and whether the Son repreſented his Father to Inherit from his Grandfather, All the famous Lawyers of that time, together with Pope Boniface VIII. were for Carobert, who was inveſted by this laſt in 1299. though he was then but a Child, but was not received by the Hungarians, who choſe Andrew, called the Venetian, for their King after Stephen's Death; yet he put himſelf upon the Throne by Force, and was Crowned by Pope Clement the Fifth's Legate, and afterwards gained a Victory in 1312. over Matthew, Palatin of Trichinia, Chief of the Rebels; this rendered his Subjects very ſubmiſſive, his Government was ſo eaſie, that they acknowledged there was not a milder Prince in time of Peace, nor a more Couragious in War. After he had joined Dalmatia, Croatia, Servia, Lodomeria, Ruſſia, Comania, Bulgaria, and Boſnia, to his Territories, he died at Belgrade in 1342. at 50 years of Age, and was buried at Alba Regalis, in the Tomb of the Kings of Hungary. This Prince took for his firſt Wife Mary of Poland, Daughter of Caſimir, Duke of Cujavia: She died without Children in 1315. His ſecond Wife was Beatrix of Luxembourg, eldeſt Daughter of the Emperor Henry VII. and of Margaret of Brabant, who dying about the latter end of the ſame year, he Married Elizabeth of Poland, Siſter to Caſimir III. called the Great, and of Ladiſlaus III. called Laſtic King of Poland; this Queen bore him Two Sons, who died young, and Lewis King of Hungary, Andrew King of Naples and Sicily, and Stephen Duke of Sclavonia. Bonſinius, Cromer.

CAROLINA, a Country of Florida, in the North, lying South of Virginia, extending it ſelf from the 29th to the 36th Degree of Northern Latitude, and watered on the Eaſt by the Atlantick Sea; firſt called Carolina, not from King Charles II. as our Authors give it out, but from Charles IX. King of France, in whoſe Reign, this Country was by one Ribaut, a Frenchman, wreſted from the Spaniard, which Ribaut gave not only the Name of Carolina to this Part of the Continent, but named the Rivers there by the Name of the Seine, Loire, Somme, Garonne, and others of more Note in his Country. But the French were ſoon diſpoſſed by the Spaniards, who enjoyed it till 1627. when they were routed out again by the French, who quitting the Country after this their Expedition, the Engliſh took Poſſeſſion of it. Anno 1663. King Charles II. granted it by Letters Patents in Propriety to Edward Earl of Clarendon, George Duke of Albemarle, William Earl of Craven, John Lord Berkeley, Anthony Lord Aſhly, ſince Earl of Shaftsbury, Sir George Carteret, and Sir John Coleton, Knights and Baronets; and Sir William Berkeley Knight, by which Letters Patent the Laws of England are always to be in force in Carolina; only the Lords Proprietors have Power, with the Conſent of the Inhabitants, to make ſuch By-Laws as may be thought neceſſary for the better Government of the Province. The two Colonies of Albemarle and Aſhly River, are now in a very thriving Condition,for the Soil is generally good, yields plenty of Corn and Paſture, eatable Roots and Herbs, and excellent ſorts of Fruits. The Vines thrive here to Admiration, and its plenty of Mulberry-Trees makes it capable of a good Silk-Trade; nor does it want Tame or Wild Fowl, or any ſort of Game. The Air is very temperate, conſidering its Southern ſituation. For the Benefit of Trade and Navigation, there is ſcarce a Country better accommodated with good navigable Rivers, ſo that one cannot fix any where farther than ſeven Miles diſtant from ſome River or other, many of them Navigable, even againſt Stream, for the ſpace of 300 Miles. The two Principal Colonies now planted there, are at Albemarle and Aſhly River, that lying in the moſt Northerly Part towards Virginia. This is in the Latitude of 32 Degrees, and ſome odd Minutes, both ſettled at the Charge of the Lords Proprietors; the firſt in 1670. and the laſt ten years after. Charles-Town, the chiefeſt Place of the whole Country, is the Port Town for both.

CAROLINS, or Libri Carolini, the Name of a Work made in 790. to refute ſeveral Propoſitions drawn from the Acts of the ſecond Council of Nice, and called Carolin, becauſe Charlemaigne countenanced the making it. It conſiſts in four Books, wherein are propoſed 120 Heads of Accuſations againſt the Council: Theſe lay dormant and in Darkneſs, until a Lutheran found an ancient Manuſcript of them in 1549. and publiſhed them with a Preface of his own; wherein he is very home againſt the Worſhip of Images, and ſtiles the Author Eli. Phili. Hincmar, Archbiſhop of Reims, acknowledged he had ſeen this Work; Beſides, it's apparent by the Anſwers Pope Adrian made to the Objections that this Book contains, that it is the true Work which was attributed to Charlemaigne. Maimbourg Hiſtoire des Iconoclaſtes.

CAROLSTADT, Lat. Caroleſtadium, a Town of Croatia, built by Charles Arch-Duke of Auſtria, and well fortified againſt the Turks; ſeated at the Confluence of the Rivers Kulp and Mereſwiz, and is the Empire's Bulwark on Croatia ſide.

CAROLSTADT, a Town of Swedeland, in that Part of Gothia called Vermeland. Charles IX. King of the Swedes, gave it his Name. The Danes have almoſt utterly ruined it in 1644.

CARPATHIA, now called Scarpanto, an Iſland of the Archipelago, which gave its Name to the Sea of Scarpanto, between the Iſles of Rhodes and Candie. It's the Carpathus of the Ancients. Here are ſeen ſeveral Pieces of Antiquity, and the Ruines of ſeveral Towns. The Turks keep a Cadi in this Iſland to adminiſter Juſtice. The Inhabitants are Chriſtian Grecians. The Coral of Scarpanto is ſtill in requeſt, and the Iſland renowned for Philo a Biſhop, ordained by St. Epiphanius. The Carpathian Hills, Montes Sarmatici, Capes, Sarmaticæ, Carpates, are called by the Germans, Wurtzgaten, the Herb-Garden; by the Hungarians, Tarchzal; by the Sclaves, Tatri; by the Ruſs, Bieſcid; and by the others, Crapack. It is a long chain of cragged Mountains, beginning at Presburgh, and ending at the Euxine Sea, dividing Poland to the North from Hungary, Tranſilvania, Moldavia, and Wallachia; and in ancient times, the Sarmatians from the Roman Empire. It has the Name of Carpathian from the Greek Word Καρπὸς. Fruit, becauſe more Fruitful than the Mountains in theſe Northern Countries uſually are. It is of more Length than Fame in Story, and is now only regardable as a Boundary, and the Mother of many Rivers. Heylin.

CARPENTERIE, or Carpenteland, the Name of a vaſt Country in Southern America, lately diſcovered by Carpentier, a Hollander, who gave it his Name, which is all we know of it yet.

CARPENTRAS, upon the River Ruſſe; a Town of Provence, Capital of the County of Venaiſſin, belonging to the Holy See, and ſuffragan to Avignon. It's the Carpentoracte Meminorum, mentioned by Pliny, built upon the Ruines of Venaſque, Vindauſca, or Vendauſca, as appears by Petrarchus's Letters to Guy, Archbiſhop of Gennes. The Town is very pleaſant, ſeated in a fertile Country, and environ'd with good Walls. It's the Juſtice-Seat of the County of Venaiſſin. The Cathedral is a Noble Structure,with a great open Place to the Front, and the Biſhop's Palace ſideways, built after the Modern way. And there are beſides this, many Religious Houſes, and a College of Jeſuits. There has been a Council held here in 527. under the Pontificate of Pope Felix IV. and the Conſulſhip of Mavortius, though Baronius places it in 529. S. Cæſarius of Arles, preſided in it, and ordained, that ſuch Biſhops as had a competent Maintenance of their own, ſhould take nothing from the Pariſhes of their Dioceſes; but if he could not ſubſiſt without this Contribution, that then the Prieſts, having ſecured a Competency for their own Support, ſhould give him the reſt. There is alſo a Letter of this Council to Agracius Biſhop of Antibe, who was ſuſpended there for a Year from celebrating Maſs, becauſe he had ordained a Prieſt againſt the Canons, and did neither come nor ſend to this Aſſembly. Baronius, Anno Chriſti 529.

CARPI, a Town of Italy, in the Dutchy of Modena, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Bononia, and Title of a Principality: It's ſeated upon the Canal of Sethia, about 6 or 12 Leagues from Modena, and 4 or 5 from Regio. It's a ſtrong Town, with a Caſtle, good Walls, and Ditches full of Water. This Principality was poſſeſſed by the Family of Pio, from 1319. until about 1550.

CARPOCRAS, or Carpocrates, an Hereſiarch, Native of Alexandria, in the Second Century; and a Diſciple of Simon Magus in the Firſt Century. He held that the Son of GOD was but meer Man, and Son of Joſeph, and that his Soul had nothing above the reſt, only that it received more Virtues and Energy from GOD, whilſt it dwelt with him, before its Union with the Body, than other Souls did; and that GOD was thus liberal to it, to the end it might be able to overcome the Devils, who had created the World. He rejected the Old Teſtament, deny'd the Reſurrection of the Dead, perſuaded himſelf that there was no ſuch thing as Evil in Nature, but only in Peoples Fancy; He added ſeveral other Impieties; left a Son called Epiphanius, that inherited his Crimes, and held his abſurd Sentiments. Irenæus, Tertullian.

CARRANZA, (Alphonſus) a Spaniſh Lawyer, living to about the Year 1630. He wrote, De Partu Naturali & Legitimo. Diatriba Super Doctrina Temporum Dionyſii Petavii, &c. Nich. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp.

CARRANZA, (Bartholomew) called Miranda from his Birth-place in the Kingdom of Navarre, a Dominican, and Archbiſhop of Toledo: He took the Habit of that Order in Caſtile, where he made great Progreſs in Learning, and taught Philoſophy with that Applauſe, that he was choſen to aſſiſt at the Council of Trent, where he pronounced the Oration which we have of his the firſt Sunday of Lent in 1556: This Speech is very Eloquent. Before this time, Philip II. King of Spain, Marrying Mary, Queen of England, in 1554. carried this Father along with him into England, where the Queen choſe him for her Confeſſor. King Philip himſelf, who was a good Judge of Men, raiſed him to the Archbiſhoprick of Toledo in 1557. and made him Primate of all Spain, which contributed more and more to render his extraordinary Qualities known and eſteemed. The Emperor Charles V. then in his Retirement at St. Juſt, was well ſatisfied with this Election, and had ſo particular an Eſteem for him, that he made choice of him for his Director in his latter Minutes, and conſulted him in whatever belonged to his Conſcience. Notwithſtanding all which, this Prelate found himſelf expoſed to the Perſecution of ſome Members of the Inquiſition, his Enemies, who treated him with the greateſt Rigour imaginable; and not being ſatisfied to pull him out of his Archiepiſcopal See, and drag him to Priſon, they charged him with Hereſie, and withal, that he poſſeſſed the Emperor with his Erroneous Doctrine at his Death. To be eaſed of ſo enormous a Perſecution, he appealed to Rome, whither he was led in 1567. and ſuffered much under Pius V. and Gregory XIII. which laſt forced him to make a publick Abjuration of the Errors he was accuſed of in 1576. and delivered him to them of his Order of the Monaſtery of Minerva, where he died the Second of May the ſame Year, being then 72 years old. All the Learned Men of the laſt Age ſpeak very advantageouſly of the Merit of Carranza. Thuanus ſpeaks of him in his Hiſtory of the Inquiſition, ſaying, That Spain it ſelf was not free from this Evil, for that Bartholomew Carranza, A.B. of Toledo, was taken Priſoner upon this Subject, and had all his Goods confiſcated: Thô, ſays he, He was a great Man, and worthy of his Dignity for his great Learning and good Morals. Martin Aſpileveta, known by the Name of Nattarus, went to Rome at 80 years of Age, to defend this Prelate, his Friend. All in general admired his Patience and Humility, during this long and rigorous Perſecution. He has left us many Books, as, The Sum of the Councils and Popes, from St. Peter to Julius III. A Treatiſe of Patience : Another in Latin, concerning Reſidence of Biſhops, and other Guides of Souls: He likewiſe publiſhed a Spaniſh Catechiſm for the Uſe of his Dioceſe. Antonio, Herrera.

CARRARA, a Town in Italy with the Title of a Principality. It belongs to the Marquis of Maſſa, of the Houſe of Cibo, and lies between Maſſa and Sarzana.

CARRERI, (Alexander) Born at Padua, one of the moſt Eminent Lawyers of his time. He was firſt Rector of the Pariſh of St. Andrew's, and afterwards reſign'd his Benefice that he might have more leiſure to Study. He died in the year 1626. and wrote De Sponſalibus & Matrimonio, Lib. 5. Defenſio pro Libris ſuis. Thomaſin Vir. Illuſt. Elog.

CARRES, a Town of Meſopotamia, where Craſſus, led by a treacherous Syrian, called Mezera, was defeated by Sillaces and Syrena, Lieutenants of the Parthian Kings. This happen'd in the 701 of Rome, about the Month of June. Some Authors think that Carres is the Cars of this time, though there is more likelihood that it is Caran in Diarbec. Others place a Town of this Name in Arabia, and pretend it's that which has the Name that is given to the other; but it's certainly the ſame that is ſeated upon the River Charra, which empties its ſelf into the Chabouas, and had a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Edeſſa. Tobie.

CARRETO, (Fabricius) of the Family of the Marquiſſes of Final, a Genoueſe by Nation, was afterwards Admiral of the Order of Rhodes, and ſince choſe Great Maſter in 1523. He made Peace with the Sultan of Egypt, in 1516. and fearing the Arms of Selim, Emperor of the Turks, he fortified Rhodes, which was nevertheleſs taken by Soliman, Son and Succeſſor of Selim, under the Government of the Great Maſter Liſle Adam, choſen in 1521. Boſia, Baudoüin.

CARRICK, the Name of a County or Bailiwick in the Weſt of Scotland, which lies upon Dumbarton Firth. It abounds with freſh Paſtures, and Commodities of Sea and Land. The Earl of Caſſills is Hereditary Bailiff of this Country. It had formerly Earls, but the laſt Heireſs, Martha, falling in Love with Robert Bruce, a handſome young Gentleman, ſhe Married him, and by this Marriage they had Robert Bruce, the Famous King of Scotland: Since which time the Title hath been in the Royal Family. Cambd.

CARRICKFERGUS, otherwiſe called Knockfergus, a Borough, Market, and Sea-Town of Ulſter, in the North-Eaſt parts of Ireland, about 90 miles North of Dublin. It lies in the County of Antrim, whereof it's the chief Place, having a good Harbour, defended by a Caſtle. This Place, after few days Siege, ſurrender'd to the late of D. Schomberg, upon his Landing at Bangor from England. It took its Name from Fergus King of Scotland, who was Shipwrack'd near it.

CARRILLO, (Martin) a celebrated Spaniſh Lawyer, living in the 17th Century. He wrote the Hiſtory of the Archbiſhops of Saragoſſa; He wrote Annals likewiſe. Itinerarium Ordinandorum. Manuel de Confeſſarios, &c. Nich. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp.

CARROUAGES, (Bernardin) an Italian, an Apprentice to a Clock-maker in Pavia. He made Alciat a Clock, which was ſo contriv'd that when the Hammer ſtruck the Bell, it likewiſe ſtruck Fire out of a Flint, which lighted a Match firſt, and afterwards a Lamp, ſo that the ſame Movement gave a Man an account of the Hour of the Night, and alſo furniſh'd him with a Light to riſe by. Bernard Sav. Lib.8. Ticin. Hiſt.

CARROUSEL, a Courſe performed with Chariots, Machines, Speeches, and Horſe-Dances. There's nothing to be met with in Antiquity, more Noble, and more Ingenious, than this Cuſtom. When the People were intent upon theſe Diverſions, the Idolatrous Prieſts offered Sacrifices to their Gods; the Soldiers were Exerciſed; and the Men of Learning held forth in their way; all which was both very Agreeable and Inſtructive. The Romans at the beginning had no Circus, or very convenient Place for their Courſes or Carrouſels, but a wide Space between the Banks of the Tiber on one ſide, and a Paliſſado of Swords, with their Point upward, on the other, which render'd the Courſes dangerous. Tarquin was the firſt that built a great Cirque between Mont Aventin and the Palace. The Cenſor Flaminius gave one of his Parks without the Town to make another of, which from his Name was called Circus Flaminius. Dion. Chryſoſtom ſpeaks of them of Alexandria; and there were others at Conſtantinople, Athens, Jeruſalem, and ſeveral other Cities. Now there are no ſuch Places as were formerly, but upon occaſion ſuch Places are choſen as can be beſt fitted for the Repreſentations that are to be made. All the great Towns in Spain have places for ſuch Courſes. Florence has the place of Santa Croce. At Naples there is the place of Palazzo Reale. At Paris is the place Royale, and another place in the Tuilleries; and at Verſailles, there is a place in one of the Courts of the King's Stables. In former times there were Cirques for Carrouſels at Paris and Soiſſons. The ſeveral Troops that compoſed the Carrouſels are called Quadrilles, from the Italian word Squadriglia, diminutive of Squadra, which ſignifies a Company of Soldiers ranked in order. In great Carrouſels, Princes head theſe Quadrilles, their Number is determined; the leſſer is of four, and the greateſt does not exceed twelve; for if there be only two Troops, it's properly but a Tilting, and if but one, it is a Tournament, or a Courſe. Theſe Quadrilles are known one from the other by their Apparel, or at leaſt by the Colours they make choice of; for among the Greeks and the Romans, the Courſers diſtinguiſhed themſelves by four Colours; whence aroſe the White, the Green, the Red, and Blue Quadrilles, ſo famous in ancient Hiſtory, by the Factions they often cauſed. And though there were four Quadrilles, nevertheleſs they compoſed but two Parties, under the Names of Green and Blue, which occaſioned ſo much Trouble at Rome, Conſtantinople, Egypt, and in all other Parts of the Empire. The Cuſtom of theſe Quadrilles, which is univerſally received in all places where they run Courſes, or do Feats on Horſeback, was introduced but a ſhort time ago in France. For as they preferred there the Exerciſes of Valour to thoſe that are of Invention and pure Skill or Slight, ſo they exerciſed themſelves more at Juſts and Tournaments, than in Carrouſels, and ſtrove more to become good Soldiers and Horſe-men, than to appear expert Courtiers, which is the reaſon the French were not much for Quadrilles, or the regulated Troops or Numbers now in uſe. The firſt beginning of theſe Sports, was under Henry IV. in 1606. in the great Court of the Louvre. It was a Carrouſel of the four Elements, repreſented by four Quadrilles, or Squadrons of Knights, that came out of the Palace of Bourbon. The Carrouſel being always an Allegory or Emblematick Invention, deſigned for the Honour of Princes, and Inſtruction of the Beholders and Actors, there is care taken to Explain the Particularities of the Pompous Appearance, and of the moſt conſiderable Machines that compoſe it; and for this purpoſe there are Nymphs, little Cupids, falſe Gods, Victors, Heroes, Genius's, &c. who rehearſe and ſing Verſes; nor is there ever wanting ſome Harmony, becauſe theſe are Feaſts of Shew, and publick Mirth. This Harmony is of two ſorts, one a Military and Warlike; the other Soft and Pleaſant. The firſt puts it ſelf in the Front of each Quadrille, to encourage the Knights, to declare their coming into the Liſts, and their Courſes. The other is us'd in Recitals, and accompanies the Pomp. Their Inſtruments are different, according to the different Qualities of them that are introduced: For the Germans have Kettle-Drums, and other ordinary Drums; the Perſians, Clairons, a ſort of Wind-Muſick; the Satyrs have Flutes, the Shepherds Bag-pipes; Apollo and Orpheus, a Harp, &c. Military Machines have Warlike Inſtruments; the Country Machines, alſo Impliments of their kind; Ships, Marine Trumpets, &c. At the Sound of theſe Inſtruments, are Horſe-dancing, firſt invented by the Sybarites, Inhabitants of the Southern Italy. Upon which Athenæus made this Remark, That the Crotaniates, who made War againſt them, obſerving their Cuſtom of Training their Horſes up to Caper and Dance at the Sound of Trumpets, made their own Trumpeters learn their Tunes; and when they came to engage, ordered them to play them, which ſet the Sybarites Horſes a Dancing and Capering inſtead of Fighting; ſo that the Riders not being able to manage them, were ſoon put in Diſorder, which gave the Crotoniates the means of Cutting them in pieces without much difficulty. It's not ſtrange that Horſes can be brought up to Dance, ſince Dogs, Monkeys, Bears, and even Elephants, the moſt heavy of Beaſts, are trained up to keep Time, and obſerve the Difference of Sounds. The Pomp of the Carrouſel conſiſts of ſeveral ſorts of Perſons, as the Meſtre de Camp, his Aids, the firſt Challengers, the Aſſaulters, the Heads of the Quadrilles, the Heralds, Trumpeters, Pages, Foot-men, Waiters; they that make the Speeches; that direct the Machines, Muſicians, Pleaders, and Judges. The Meſtre de Camp leads all the Pomp, regulates the March, and introduces them into the Liſts. The Challengers make the Overture, and proclaim a Defiance by their Heralds. The Aſſaulters take them up, anſwer their Challenge, and maintain the contrary. The Pages on Horſeback carry their Maſters Bucklers, their Devices and Lances. Their Grooms have their Led-Horſes, and are diſguiſed into Turks, Moors, Slaves, Savages, Monkeys, Bears, &c. The God-fathers in former times were young Men, who led the Chariots, with the Repreſentations and Images of the Gods. And in Duels it is they were given to the two Combitants to plead for them, and for Form-ſake, there are yet ſome received in the Carrouſels; each Quadrille has two, four, or ſix, according as the Ceremony is Auguſt and Great. The Judges are generally old experienced Knights, named to preſide in theſe Exerciſes, and to adjudge the Prize to thoſe that deſerve it. The Comparte is much the ſame in Carrouſels, as Entries in great Balls, or as Scenes in Comedies and Tragedies; that is, it's the coming in of the Quadrille into the Barrier or Liſts, which they go round to be ſeen by the Spectators, and to go to their Tents, and other places ordered them: And it's then People have a Sight of their rich Dreſſes; of the Beauty and Pride of their Horſes; of the Invention of the Machines; and of all the Pomp of the Train. The moſt ordinary Exerciſe is, Firſt, The breaking of Lances in the Liſts one againſt another. 2. The breaking them againſt a piece of Wood, or wooden Statue. 3. The Running at the Ring. 4. The Courſe of Heads. 5. Fighting on Horſeback with Sword in Hand. 6. The Lancing of Darts. 7. Running all in a Ring one after another. Since the Miſchance that happen'd to Henry II. of France, when he was mortally Wounded by a Splinter of the Count of Montgomery's Lance, the Conflict of Lances was given over, which was much uſed before. That way of Fighting was thus, two Horſe-men, armed Cap-a-pee, ſet forth at the ſame time from both ends of the Liſts, to meet in the middle, where they paſſed their Lances with ſuch Force each againſt the other, that ſometimes it put them out of their Saddles, and bore them to the Ground. Secondly, The Exerciſe of breaking Lances a la Quintaine, is ancient, and ſaid to be invented by Quintus. This Quintaine is the Stump of a Tree, or a Pillar, which they ran againſt, to accuſtom them the better to hit their Enemies where they aim. In France, it's generally a piece of Wood, ſhaped like a Man, and hung upon a Spindle, or kind of Hinge: It does not move when hit right in the Forehead, or middle of the Face; but when it is touched in any other place, it turns round ſo briskly, that it hits the Horſe-man if he be not quick enough to avoid the Blow with a wooden Sword, or a Bag of Earth, which is no ſmall Diverſion for the Spectators. Thirdly, The Running at the Ring is much in uſe, becauſe it's the eaſieſt, leaſt dangerous, aud moſt pleaſant to the Sight, of all the Exerciſes that are performed on Horſeback. Fourthly, The Courſe of Heads is but of late uſed in France, but is of more ancient Date in Germany, where it's very like their Wars with the Turks has brought it in Faſhion; for it is the Cuſtom of that barbarous Nation, to recompence the Soldiers that bring them the Heads of thoſe they kill; which the Germans endeavour often to take away from them, and do therefore exerciſe themſelves in Running at Turks and Moors Heads, againſt which they caſt their Darts, and ſhoot off their Piſtols; others they raiſed upon the Point of their Swords, inclining their Bodies in the Courſe, with a great deal of Addreſs and Activity. To perform this, three or four Heads are placed at certain diſtances in the ſame Liſt, to the end, that in the ſame Courſe they may lance a Dart at one, ſhoot a Piſtol at another, cleave a third with an Ax, or batter it with a heavy Club; and finally, that they lift the fourth upon the Top of their Sword or Lance. The Fight with the Sword is performed by two armed Horſemen, that wheel twice one to the other, and at each time ſtrike upon their Head-pieces. The High Conſtable Montmorency, whilſt he was but Mareſchal of France, made himſelf very famous in this Exerciſe in two Tournaments; the firſt at Bayonne, when the Queen of Spain came thither to meet her Brother Charles IX. there he ſtruck a Prince that fought againſt him, and laid him upon his Horſe's Crooper. The ſecond was at Paris, for the Wedding of Anthony of Croui, Prince of Portian; and here he threw from his Saddle a Perſon of Quality, who had the Reputation of being one of the Beſt Horſemen of his time. The Throwing of Darts is called by the Spaniards the Canneplay, and is an Exerciſe they learned from the Moors, which, turning their Horſes round, caſt Cannes at one another, and defend themſelves with their Shields. This paſt into France when Charles VI. viſited the Count of Foix, who diverted his Majeſty with that Paſtime, then much uſed by the Gentry of that Country: La Foule, which the Italians term la Fola, is when all the Knights take their Courſe one after another without Interruption; after which the Feaſt or Play ends with Artificial Fires, &c. P. Menetrier.

CARS, a Town of Turcomania in Aſia, towards the Source of Euphrates, and the Frontiers of Georgia. It's ſo conſiderable, that the Grand Signior puts amongſt his other Titles, that of being Lord of Cars. A modern Traveller thinks that this is the Town of Carres, of which I have already ſpoke, where Craſſus was defeated by the Parthians; but Carres, as I have ſaid before, was in Meſopotamia. Sanſon.

CARSISTS, or Carciſts, the Name of certain Seditious People, who joining with another Troop of Mutineers, called Razats, cauſed a great deal of trouble in Provence, when Queen Catharine De Medicis made her Progreſs through the Southern Provinces of France: Theſe Carſiſts were abetted by the Nobles, and the Razats were ſupported by the Commonalty and the Parliament. Mezeray Abregé Chronolog.

CARTALO, Son to Maleus or Mazeus, General of the Carthagenians: This Maleus ſet down with an Army before Carthage, having been unjuſtly Baniſhed his Country. His Son Cartalo was Prieſt to Hercules, and having viſited his Temple at Tyre, in his return he paſſed through his Father's Army in his Pontificalibus, without ſaluting him. But after having enter'd the Town, he deſired the Senate that he might have leave to viſit his Father; which being granted, the General received his Son coldly, making no allowance for his Obedience to the Magiſtracy, but puniſh'd him for his Omiſſion, in not taking notice of him before. Juſtin. Oroſ.

CARTHAGE, called the Great, was the chief Town of Africa, upon the Coaſts of Barbary, near Tunis, with an Archbiſhoprick and Primacy. Some Authors report, that it was built by Dido. And Bochart ſhews, in *Lib.*1. *Cap.*24. of his Canaan, that all the Greek Etymologies of the Word Carthage, are falſe, and that it was called in the Phœnician Tongue Karthachadtha, that is, a new Town, and its Citadel Botſra, which ſignifies a ſtrong Place. The ſame Author has likewiſe the Deſcription of this Town. Joſephus aſſures, after Menander, who compoſed the Hiſtory of the Kings of Tyr and Phœnicia, that this Place was built in 144. after the Foundations of the Temple of Solomon were laid, which was in the 3825 of the Julian Period, 3466 of the World, 296 after the Town of Troy, 114 before the firſt Olympiad, 137 before Rome, and 887 before Jeſus Chriſt. The Carthaginians render'd themſelves very famous in War, they were the Inventers of the Battering Ram, and the firſt that armed Galleys with four Ranks of Rowers. They ſubdued Lia, carried their Arms into Sicily and Sardinia, and paſſed their Conqueſts as far as Spain, yet gained themſelves more Credit by the Wars they maintained againſt the Romans. The firſt laſted 24 Years, from the 490 year of Rome, to the 513. and begun upon the Account of the Mammertins, Lords of Meſſina, who being attacked by King Hiero, and the Carthaginians asked Succour of the Romans. The ſecond Punick War begun in the 536th of Rome, by Hannibal taking the Town Saguntum, a faithful Ally to Rome. This War laſted 17 years, and was both Fatal and Glorious to the Romans, by the Loſſes they ſuſtained by Hannibal in Italy, and the Advantages gained by Scipio in Africa. The third Punick War laſted but three Years, from 605 to 608. for then Scipio the Younger took and ruined this beautiful City. It was afterwards built by the Romans themſelves under C. Graccus, Tribune of the People in 631. and under the Emperor Auguſtus, who ſent a Colony of 3000 Men thither. Genſericus, King of the Vandals, took it in 432. or 39 of the Chriſtian Æra; but it was re-taken again for the Romans by Beliſarius, in 523. and at length falling to Mahomet's Succeſſors, about the Year 685. it was utterly ruined by the Arabians. This City was Capital of the Dioceſe of Africa, which conſiſted of ſix Provinces: It was alſo a Primacy, with the Title of Metropolis, in the Proconſulary Province, or Africa Propria, which is now part of the Kingdom of Tunis. There remains nothing now of this great Town, once eſteemed the Third of the Roman Empire, but the Ruines, which are ſtill conſiderable, for the Situation, Antiquity, and vaſt Extention of the Foundation; the Circuit is ſaid to have been 360 Furlongs, as that of Babylon was, and all well Peopled by warlike Inhabitants. At the beginning of the laſt Punick War, the Conſul Martius having commanded them to bring him their Arms, they delivered in 200000 Pair of compleat Arms, as uſed in thoſe Times, and 2000 Machines for caſting of Stones and Darts, with an infinite Number of Pikes, Arrows, &c. When Martius had ſecured theſe, believing them then in no Condition to defend themſelves, he declared he had Orders to demoliſh the Town, and endeavoured to perſuade them that they would gain by it, for that the Romans promiſed to build a New Carthage in the firm Land, 4 Leagues from the Sea. This bitter Speech afflicted the Carthaginians mightily, and the more, when they ſaw they were inveſted both by Sea and Land, deſtitute of Arms to defend themſelves, or Means to loſe their Lives Fighting in defence of their Churches, Wives, Children, and Liberties. Nevertheleſs, taking a Reſolution to ſtand it out, they made new Arms, built other Veſſels, and the Women and Maids cut their Hair to help to furniſh them with Cables, ſo defended their Towns three Years; and when they were forced to yield, there were but 5000 of both Sexes that marched out, the poor Remains of that great and famous City, once Rome's Rival. St. Auſtin, in his Book of the Unity of the Church, Chap. 5. aſſures, That the Church of Africa, and conſequently that of Carthage, was Founded by the Preachers which the Apoſtles ſent thither. It ſuffered much through the Schiſms of Feliciſmus and Novatus, againſt St. Cyprian, by that of the Donatiſts, by the Vandals, and laſt of all by the Mahometans, that quite ruined it. Agrippinus, Biſhop of Carthage, aſſembled all the Biſhops of his Province, and of Numidia in 215. under the Pontificate of Pope Zephirin, where they decreed, That Children Baptized by Hereticks, were to be Rebaptized. This we underſtand by St. Cyprian, in his 71ſt Epiſtle. St. Cyprian himſelf held two Councils, in 252. and 253. againſt the Schiſmaticks Novatus and Feliciſſimus, and aſſembled many in Pope Stephen's time, for the Baptizing of Hereticks. The Donatiſts held two Councils againſt Cecilian, lawfully choſen after the death of Menſurius, Biſhop of Carthage, and ordained by Felix Aptungitanus, a neighbouring Biſhop. The Firſt was aſſembled in 306. where 70 of the other Party diſplaced Cecilian, and put one Majorinus in his room, a Reader in the Family of a very wealthy Spaniſh Lady. The Second conſiſted of 270 Schiſmatick Biſhops, aſſembled in 308. Gratus, Biſhop of the Town, ſeeing the Schiſm of the Donatiſts quite diſappear, through the Care of Paul and Macarius, ſent by the Emperor Conſtance, aſſembled a Council in 348. which was called the Firſt of Carthage, wherein the Reiteration of Baptiſm, practiſed by the Donatiſts, was condemned; and they who killed themſelves, or put others upon doing it, and were eſteemed Martyrs by thoſe Hereticks, were deprived of the Honour of that Name. After this, were made 14 Canons for the regulating the Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline. The Second, in 390. under Genethlius, has 13 Canons. The Third, celebrated in 397. has 50. 214 Biſhops held the Fourth, in 398. and made 104 Canons: Theſe ſent to the Emperor Honorius, to pray him to aboliſh the Remains of the Idolatry of Africa; which they obtained. Aurelius called a Provincial Council in 401. to ſend to Pope Anaſtaſius, and Venerius Biſhop of Milan, for Clergy-men to ſerve in Churches, which the Donatiſt Schiſm had left unfurniſhed. There were 32 Canons publiſhed in this Synod; and another was appointed for the Month of September, which was held in the Baſilique of the Sacriſtie. St. Auguſtine was the chief Promoter of the Reſolution that was taken in this Aſſembly, of reſtoring the Donatiſts, that ſhould return into the Boſom of the Church, to their former Dignities; which Uſage brought many of them back again. There were two others held againſt the Donatiſts; and Deputies ſent in 404. and 405. to the Emperors Arcadius and Honorius. Others were alſo held in 407. 408. 410. and 412. The Biſhops, to the number of 64, held one againſt Pelagius and Celeſtius in 416. And that which is called the Firſt, about the Pelagians, was aſſembled in 417. to undeceive Pope Zozimus, whom Celeſtius had prepoſſed with a falſe Submiſſion: And the year following the Prelates met to the numbe of 214. in the Sacriſtie of the Baſilique of Fauſtus, againſt the ſame Innovators: This is called the Sixth. The other, that is called the Seventh, was held in 419 for the Appeals to Rome. There is one ſaid to be held in 424. under Celeſtine, and another in 446. againſt the Monothelites. St. Cyprian, St. Auguſtine, Baronius.

CARTHAGENA, Carthago Nova, is a City of Murcia in Spain, built by Aſdrubal, one of the Carthaginian Generals in Spain, to the end that it might be the Seat of the Punick Nation, who were then entred into a War for the Conqueſt of Spain. This Aſdrubal was the Son-in-Law of Amilcar, and was ſucceeded by Hannibal, who led his Country-men againſt the Romans, in the ſecond Punick War. It was ſituated in a Peninſula, in a large Bay, having a Moraſs on the Weſt, a Harbour on the Eaſt and South, ſecured by a ſmall Iſland called then Scomberia, (now Eſcambera) ſo that it was ſecure againſt all Winds. The City was only approachable on the North; ſo that when it was afterwards brought under the Dominion of the Romans by Scipio, it was more owing to his Wit than Valour. It was twice Sack'd by the Goths and Vandals, and the Moors. In the time of the Nubian Geographer, it was regardable only for its Antiquity, and as it was the Port of Murcia. Four Things render it conſiderable: Firſt, That it is the beſt Port in Spain. Second, That they fiſh for Mackeril about an Iſland over-againſt the Port. Third, The great quantity of Ruſhes which they call Eſparto, and whereof they make Cabats, or Frails. Fourth, Its Mines of Precious Stones. It's a Town of great Traffick, has a ſtrong Fortreſs, and many beautiful Churches. Silvius Italicus gives a very high Deſcription of it. Strab. T. Liv.

CARTHAGENA Nueva, Lat. Carthago Nova, a City of New Granada in Southern America, with a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhoprick of Santa Fe de Bogola, ſeated 10. 59. Lat. No. 70. from the Meridian of Toledo Weſt, upon a Peninſula, having a large Plain to the North: To the South it has a Moraſs; ſo that it is approached by a Cauſey of 250 Paces length. The City ſtands on a ſandy Ground, full of Freſh-water Springs, at two Fathom depth. It is more healthful than Nombre de Dios, or Porto Bello, or any Sea-Town on this ſide. It is well built, has a Biſhop's See, ſubject to the Archbiſhop of New Granada, and in Herrera's time had above 500 Spaniſh Families. The Haven was thought then one of the beſt in America. This City was Founded in the year 1532. by Petro Heredia. Sir Francis Drake found not in it that Wealth he expected, becauſe they had notice of his coming before-hand a Month, and ſent moſt of it away to the Mountains, and an inland Town called Tolu; ſo he burnt part of it, and ſold the reſt to the Inhabitants for 120000 Ducats. Laet. p. 364. In 1587. it had 450 Spaniſh Families, and moſt of the Houſes were built with Stone, being vaſtly Traded to by all the other Plantations of the Spaniards in America About this time the Spaniards firſt fortified it; and about the year 1630. it was encreaſed to 4000 Spaniards and 14000 Negroes, and was the beſt Mart in America, encompaſſed with a Wall 18 Foot high above the Level, and guarded with Baſtions, and filled up within with Earth, and armed with 70 Braſs Guns. See Hackl. T. 3. pag. 549. This important Place was taken by our Famous Drake in the year 1585. The Engliſh landed five miles from the City, and marched directly to it, the Spaniards having ſufficient time to provide for their Security by Sea and Land; and as to the firſt, they defended themſelves ſo well, that Drake could not break into the Harbour with his Ships by Sea, nor the General by Land, till the Sea retiring opened him a way into it. The Spaniards then fled, and were forced to pay 110000 Ducats to redeem the City from Fire, which was forthwith divided amongſt the Soldiers and Seamen: The reſt of the Prey was little, becauſe the Inhabitants had ſent away all that was valuable to other places: Yet the Terrour of this Expedition dwells ſtill upon the Inhabitants of this City, as Mr. Gage ſaith in his Travels. Carthagena loſt to Sir Francis Drake 230 Pieces of Ordnance; yet it is now well fortified, and is a fair and gallant City, and very rich in Pearls, and the Treaſures of Nova Granada, ſent by this Place to Spain in their great Fleet. This Place in 1697. was attacked by a Squadron of French Men of War, under the Command of Monſieur Ponti, who had ſome Regular Troops, and divers Bucaniers that engaged with him in the Expedition; and on the 6th of May was delivered up to him, with all the Wealth in it, upon a Capitulation: but the Booty was not near ſo much as the French expected; Notwithſtanding they ſpared neither Churches nor Religious Houſes, though they were pleaſed to ſoften that part with ſaying, They gathered only what was for the Decoration of them. For the Place having taken the Alarm before, the greateſt part of the moſt precious Movables were conveyed upon Mules backs, far enough out of their way. But the French did not think fit to hold it; and therefore on the laſt of May, having firſt ruined the Fort of Bocca Chica, left it.

CARTHAGENA, a Province of the Golden or New Caſtile; in Southern America: It has taken its Name from its Capital, which is called Carthagena, from the Reſemblance of its Port with that of Carthagena in Spain. This Country furniſhes Liquors and Aromatick Gums, and Balſoms of great Value, which drop of themſelves, or are drawn by the Savages from Trees, by cutting, or heating, and ſcorching of the Bark. Here grows alſo a kind of long Pepper, which is more biting and ſharp than that of the Eaſt, and is much ſtronger than the common, generally called Pepper of Braſil. There are but few Mines of Gold, yet in former times there were great quantities gathered in the Torrents that ran from the Mountains. The Capital City is ſeated in a Peninſula, upon the Coaſts of the Northern Sea. Its Port is one of the moſt convenient of all America, ſheltered by a little Iſland formerly called Codego, and now Carex. There is a Bridge 250 Paces long, that reaches from the Town to the firm Land. The Houſes are very well built, and the Ramparts fortified with ſtrong Baſtions. It's the Seat of a Biſhop, Suffragan of the Archbiſhoprick of Santa Fee de Bogota. The Cathedral is Magnificent, and there are two very fine Convents of St. Dominick and St. Francis. The Inhabitants are computed to be 18000, whereof 4000 are Spaniards, the reſt Negroes. The ſmall Town of Tolu, Dedicated to St. James, is twelve Leagues from Carthagena, famous for its excellent Balſom, called Balſom of Tolu, much eſteemed in Europe. Laet.

CARTHAGENA, (John) a Spaniſh Franciſcan, employed by Pope Paul V. to write againſt the Venetians. He publiſhed a Quarto, Entituled, Pro Eccleſiaſtica Libertate & Poteſtate tuenda verſus injuſtas Venetorum Leges. Propugnaculum Catholicum. De jure Belli Romani Pontificis adverſus Eccleſiæ Jura Violentes. He likewiſe wrote upon the Maſter of the Sentences. Homiliæ Sacræ & Morales, &c. He died at Naples in An. 1617. Wadinge de Script. Minor. Nich. Ant. Bibl. Hiſp. &c.

CARTIER, or Quartier, (James) born at St. Maloes, one of the Learned'ſt and moſt Experienced Pilots of his time: He lived in the 16th Age, under the Reign of Francis I. The Baron of Lery having diſcovered in 1518. a part of Canada, which we now call New France, and deſigned to eſtabliſh a Colony in the Sandy Iſland to the South, over-againſt the River Canada, in 1534. ſent James Cartier thither, who being a very underſtanding and curious Man, he viſited all the Country with a great deal of Care, and gave us an exact Deſcription of the Iſlands, Rivers, Streights, and Promontories, that he diſcovered there; and moſt part of our Mariners to this day uſe the Names given by him to theſe different Places.

CARTISMANDA, Queen of the Brigantes in England, under the Empire of Claudius: She with a great deal of Affection ſupported the Roman Intereſt; took their Enemy Caracticus Priſoner; and for the ſame reaſon ſhe ſlighted Venuſius, her firſt Husband, to marry his Gentleman of the Horſe; which ſow'd a Diſſention in the Kingdom, ſome being for the baniſhed Husband, others for their Queen. The Husband raiſed a powerful Army, worſted this Princeſs, and would have taken her, if ſhe had not been aſſiſted by the Romans, who made themſelves Maſters of her Eſtate for a Recompence of their Service. Tacit. Annal. l. 2. & Hiſt. l. 3.

CARTULARIES: Jerome of Coſta ſays, are Papers wherein the Contracts, Sales, Exchanges, Privileges, Immunities, Exemptions, and other Acts that belong to Churches and Monaſteries, are collected, the better to preſerve the ancient Deeds, being much later than the Facts mentioned in 'em. R. Simon Traite des Benefices.

CARVAGAL, (John) a Spaniſh Gentleman, who having been unjuſtly caſt in an Indictment for Murther, and ſentenced to be thrown down from the Top of the Rock Martos, by Ferdinand King of Caſtile, in the year 1312. 'tis ſaid, That before his Execution, he ſummoned this over-credulous Prince to appear with him at the Bar of Heaven within 30 days; and that Ferdinand died ſuddenly upon the laſt day of that Term. Lewis de Mayerne. Turquet Hiſt d'Eſpagne,

CARVANSERA'S, Inns in the Eaſtern Countries very different from ours: There are two ſorts of them; ſome are Rented, and in theſe People are lodged and ſerved gratis: In the other kind there are but Lodgings. They are built ſquare, much after the manner of Cloiſters, and generally are but one Story high. There is a great Gate to the Court, where there are Chambers for Travellers on every ſide: In the middle of the front and ſide, are great Halls and Chambers for the moſt Conſiderable; and behind the Chambers are Stables for their Horſes, and Houſes for Waggons and other things. In Turkey none have the Privilege to found theſe Free Carvanſera's, but the Mother and Siſter of the Grand Signior, or the Viſiers and Baſſa's that have been thrice engaged againſt the Chriſtians. There are many Carvanſera's between Buda and Conſtantinople; but from Conſtantinople to Perſia there are but empty Chambers in the Carvanſera's, and there People muſt provide themſelves with all Neceſſaries; which they may do at cheap Rates; for the Country-people bring them Lambs, Fowls, Butter, and Fruit, according to the Seaſon of the Year; nor do they want Straw, and other Accommodations for their Horſes. Abroad in the Country there is nothing paid for Lodging in theſe Carvanſera's; but in Cities there is ſome ſmall thing given. The Caravans ſeldom lodge in ſuch places, becauſe there is hardly any that can entertain more than 100 Horſemen; therefore thoſe great Companies lie for the moſt part abroad in the Fields in Tents. Firſt Comers have the Privilege of chooſing their Places and fitting themſelves. At night the Steward ſhuts the Door, ſets a Watch, and is reſponſible for all that is given him in charge. In Perſia theſe Buildings are generally fairer, and more convenient than in Turkey, and are at reaſonable diſtances one from the other throughout all the Country. If theſe Carvanſera's do not ſuit the Rich as well as our Inns of Europe, at leaſt they are convenient for the Poor, ſince they pay nothing for Lodging in them, and are not obliged to ſpend more than they pleaſe. Tavernier.

CARVILIUS Maximus, (Spurius) a Roman Commander, who was Conſul with L. Papirius Curſor, in 461. of the Foundation of Rome. Whilſt this laſt made War againſt the Samnites, and defeated them near Aquilonia, Carvilius took Amiterno, killed 2800 Men, and made 4000 Priſoners, and afterwards made himſelf Maſter of Cominium, Palumbi, Herculanum, &c. Theſe Succeſſes made the Neighbourhood begin to fear for their Liberties, ſeeing the Samnites almoſt ruined: The Taliſques and Tuſcans ran to Arms; Carvilius made head againſt them both, whilſt his Colleague took Spino. Afterwards both returning to Rome, were Honoured with a Triumph. Spurius Carvilius Maximus had a Son of the ſame Name, who was Conſul in 520. with L. Poſthumus Albinus, and is thought to be the ſame that repudiated his Wife in 523. See Carbilius Ruga.

CARVILIUS Marinus, a Captain which the Militia raiſed to the Empire in Pannonia, after the death of the Philips, about 249. But his Qualities not anſwering their Expectations, he was murder'd by the very ſame that proclaim'd him Emperor.

CARUS, Marcus Aurelius, Emperor, was Native of Narbonne, as Eutropius, Aurelius Victor, and others have remarked, though Vopiſcus ſeems to aſſure that he was a Carthaginian. He was choſen Emperor after the death of Probus, in 282. He had two Sons, Carinus and Numerianus, both which he made Cæſars; ſending the firſt into Gaul, he carried the other along with him to the Eaſt, where he defeated the Sarmates and Perſians, and was afterwards killed with a Thunderbolt at the Town of Cteſiphonte in Meſopotamia, in 283. having Reigned a year or two, according to Aurelius Victor.

CASAL, or Cazal of S. Vas Caſale, or Bodincomagus, a Town of Italy in Montferrat, belonging to the Duke of Mantua. It has a Biſhop's See, Suffragan of Milan, and is ſeated upon the Po, between Turin and Valence, and is one of the ſtrongeſt Places in Italy. P. Sixtus IV. made it a Biſhop's See in 1474. at the Solicitation of Will. Paleologue, Marquiſs of Montferrat; then it became Capital of the Country, and the Reſidence of the Marquiſſes of Montferrat, who before that reſided at Occimian. Its ſituation upon the Po is very advantageous; the Land about it is very fertile in all manner of things. It is defended on one ſide with a good Citadel, one the other ſide with a ſtrong Caſtle, and is environed with Ditches, Ramparts, ſtrong Walls, and many Baſtions and Half-moons. The Caſtle has four great Towers, and as many Half-moons which cover the Flanks, with a large Ditch, a Counterſcarp, and a Corridor faced with Bricks; beſides this, the Lodgings are very convenient, there being very fine Apartments. The Citadel conſiſts of 6 Baſtions. The Town it ſelf is pleaſant enough, and has ſeveral fair Churches. The Spaniards beſieged it, under Gonçales, in the beginning of 1629. but the approach of Lewis XIII.'s Army made them retire in the night. The next year they laid ſiege to it under Spinola; but it was vigorouſly defended by Mareſchal Toiras. He that writ this General's Life, obſerves all the Circumſtances of that Siege. The Spaniards beſieged it again under the Marquiſs of Leganez, in 1640. but the Count of Harcourt drove them from before it, took their Colours, Artillery, and all their Baggage, killed 2000 Men, and took as many Priſoners. They were more ſucceſsful during the Diſorders of France; for they made themſelves Maſters of this important Place in 1652. but it was afterwards rendred to the Duke of Mantua, of whom the King of France bought it in 1681. In 1695. it was beſieged by the Duke of Savoy, the Emperor, and the Spaniards, and ſurrendred by the French to the Duke of Mantua.

CASAL, or Cazal Maggiore, a little Town of Italy in the Dutchy of Milan and Territory of Lodi near the Po, and towards the Eſtates of Parma and Mantua; was block'd up a long time by the Confederate Troops during the late War, and in the year 1695. actually beſieged by the Imperialiſts, Piedmontois, and Spaniards, to whom it was yielded by a Capitulation, ſigned on the 11th of July in the ſame year; by virtue of which, the Fortifications of the City, Caſtle, and Citadel, were utterly demoliſhed and deſtroyed, and only the Walls of the City left to ſtand, and the Place it ſelf given to the Duke of Mantua.

CASALIUS, (Gaſpar) a Monk of the Order of St. Auguſtine, and Biſhop of Conimbria, or, as others ſay, of Santandren in Portugal: He was Præceptor to John III. Prince or Infant of Portugal. His Works are, De Sacrificio Miſſæ, l. 3. De Cœna & Calice Domini, l. 3. De uſu Calicis, l. 3. Axiomata Chriſtiana. De Quadripartita Juſtitia. Andr. Schotus. Nich. Ant. Bibl. Hiſp.

CASAS, (Bartholomew) Biſhop of Chiapa in America: He made ſeveral Voyages to and from the Indies to Spain, and expoſed himſelf to the Hatred of all his Country-men, to put a ſtop to the Cruelties the Spaniards exerciſed upon the poor Indians, and procure them ſome kind of Liberty. His zealous and continual Remonſtrances had that Succeſs, that he at laſt obtained, in 1543. particular Laws for the Indians, which the Governours themſelves ſhould be obliged to obſerve, and ſee executed. The Court was then at Valladolid, where Dr. Sepevelda, and ſome others maintain'd, That People might abuſe the Indians without Sin: Againſt which this Good Man wrote ſix or ſeven Treatiſes; and in ſome of them deſcribed the Rigour and Tyranny the Spaniards exerciſed over them poor Creatures, uſing them in the moſt cruel and barbarous manner imaginable; for, beſides the plundering and taking their Eſtates from them, they kept them under a moſt ignominious Slavery, making them dig in the Mines, carry unreaſonable Burthens, or drudge in Pearl-fiſhing, without allowing them any time to refreſh themſelves. Caſas refuſed ſeveral Biſhopricks that were offered him in America; but was at laſt forced to accept that of Chiapa, which is in New Spain: Here he kept his Reſidence until 1551, when being very ancient and weak, he returned to Spain, and gave his Biſhoprick up to the Pope. He withdrew to Madrid, where he died in 1596. 92 years of Age. He compoſed many Works, which were not all publiſhed: Amongſt others he made a General Hiſtory of the Indies, which Antonio of Herrera made uſe of in compoſing his. Spond. Thuan.

CASAUBON, (Iſaac) a Freuch-man, born in 1559. at Bourdeaux, a ſmall Town in Dauphine in Diois, and not at Geneva, as ſome write. His Family is yet extant under the Name of Caſebonne. This Man was one of the beſt skill'd in the Greek Tongue of his time, according to the Judgment of Joſeph Scaliger, who ſeldom praiſed any. But tho' Scaliger had not given him this Commendation, his Works manifeſted the Truth. Caſaubon taught a long time at Geneva, and was Profeſſor of the Greek Tongue at Paris, where K. Henry IV. gave him many Marks of his Eſteem, and made choice of him to be his Library-Keeper. Afterwards James I. enticed him into England, where he made good uſe of him, until he died in 1614. being 55 years of Age. We have ſeveral of his Works, all well ſtored with profound Doctrine. The moſt important are upon Suetonius; upon Diogenes Laertius, Strabo; his Epiſtolæ, Animadverſiones in Athenæum, Strabonem, Polybium, &c. He alſo publiſhed Polyænus in Greek, after he had bought the Manuſcripts very dear. He alſo compoſed a Critique upon the Beginning of Cardinal Baronius's Eccleſiaſtical Annals, which he Entituled, Exercitationes 16 ad Cardinalus Baronii Prolegomena in Annales, &c. James Capel, Profeſſor of Divinity at Sedan, writ an Apology for him againſt Fr. Roſweidus a Jeſuit.

CASAUBON, (Merick) Son to Iſaac, and Prebendary of Canterbury. His Works are, De Quatuor Linguis, Hebr. & Saxon. Notæ in Optatum Milevitanum. In Diogenem Laertium. In Epictetum, &c. He likewiſe tranſlated Marcus Antoninus Philoſophus's Book into Engliſh; and was a Perſon of very great Learning; but had not ſo fine a Pen as his Father. Pontanus in Orig. Franc. Caniſius, Voſſius, &c.

CASAUX, (Charles) one of the two Conſuls of Marſeilles, and Colleague to Lewis of Aix; having by his Violence offended a great many at Marſeilles, and ſeeing he could expect no Security amongſt People hard to be appeaſed, he choſe to treat with the King of Spain, who promiſed him great Lordſhips in the Kingdom of Naples, rather than to have recourſe to Henry IV. his Natural Prince. He ſent for this purpoſe three of his Confidents to Madrid, having in the mean time obtained a Succour of 1200 Men from John Andrew Doria, under the Command of his Son Charles, with promiſe of more in a ſhort time after. But this did not hinder his Ruine; for one of the Burgeſſes, by Name Peter Libertat, Native of Corſica, a ſtout and bold Man, who was truſted with the keeping of the Royal Gate, and ſought all occaſions of raiſing himſelf by ſome memorable Action, treated privately with the Duke of Guiſe, and let him into the City, and kill'd Caſaux with his own Hand; but his two Sons and his Colleague made their eſcape to Genoua. Mezeray.

CASBIN, or Caſwin, a Town of Perſia in the Province of Airach, taken by ſome Authors for the ancient Ecbatane. It's ſeated at the foot of the Mountains, between Iſpahan and the Caſpian Sea. Casbin is held to be one of the greateſt and moſt populous of all Perſia, and was the Reſidence of Schah-Tamas, after the Turks had taken Tauris. There is a fine Palace, a great number of Moſques, and many Bazars, or covered Streets, well ſtored with all kind of Merchandice.

CASCAR, or Kaſghar, a Town and Kingdom of Aſia in Tartary, bordering upon the Kingdom of Thibet, which is to the South of it; others call it Chazalg. There are, beſides Kaſghar and Jarchan, which is its Capital, the Towns of Taraz, Chotan, Jecel, &o. Jarnc. l. 5. &c.

CASE, (John) an Engliſh Phyſician, living in the 16th Century: He profeſſed this Faculty in the Univerſity of Oxford. He wrote Super Ariſtotelis Organum. Oeconomica. Encomium Muſices, &c. Pitſ. de Illuſt. Angl. Script. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 16.

CASE, (John) Archbiſhop of Beneventum, living in the 16th Century, under the Pontificate of P. Paul III. Marcellus II. and P. Paul IV. He was very much eſteemed by theſe Popes, and had ſeveral Honourable Employments under them. He had much Learning and a great deal of Spirit and Delicacy in his Writings. He wrote the Lives of Cardinal Bembo, and Cardinal Conterini; and a Treatiſe called Galathée, which has been tranſlated into ſeveral Languages; and the French Verſion of it is a very fine one. Johan. Imperial. in Muſæo Hiſt. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 16. Thuan. &c.

CASERTA, a ſmall Town of Italy in the Kingdom of Naples and Terra di Lavoro, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Padua, and Title of Principality, belonging to the Family of the Gaetans: It's ſituate at the Foot of the Mountains near the River Vulturnus, between Cera and Capua.

CASHEL, a Town in Ireland upon the Seure in the County of Tipperary in Munſter: This Town is alſo the Seat of one of the four Archbiſhops of Ireland, and had a Council held in it in 1171. It's now meanly inhabited, having ſuffered much by the Engliſh. It ſtands 23 miles North of Waterford.

CASIMAMBOUS, People of the Iſle of Madagaſcar, called otherwiſe Zaffe-Caſimambous, who are very powerful in the Country of Matatane. Their Hiſtory tells us, That they are deſcended of a Troop of Arabians, which the Califf of Mecque ſent in the great Indian Boats, about 200 years ago, to inſtruct the Inhabitants of this Iſland: That the Chief of theſe married the Daughter of a Negro Prince, upon this condition, That the Offspring ſhould take the Mother's Name Caſimambou; for it's the Cuſtom in the Southern part of that Iſland, that the Name of the Family ſhould come by the Mother's ſide. They are white, but ſomewhat more ſwarthy than the Zaffe-ramini's; and their chief Profeſſion is to be Ombiaſſes, that is, Writing-Maſters, that teach to Write and Read the Arabick Tongue in the Villages where they keep School. They Command the Zaffe-ramini's in the Matatane; and theſe Whites dare not kill their own Cattel or Fowl, but muſt ſend for a Caſimambou to do it. Flacourt.

CASIMIR the Firſt, King of Poland, Son of Mieczſlaus, or Miciſlaus II. who died in 1034. and left this Son under the Guardianſhip of his Wife Riſkche, or Rixa, Daughter to Rhienfroy, Palatine of the Rhine, and Niece by the Mother's ſide to the Emperor Otho III. This Princeſs put German Officers in all Places of Truſt; which irritated the Polanders ſo much, that they revolted, and made her fly into Saxony, whither ſhe brought all the Treaſure of Poland. Caſimir came incognito to France, under the Name of Charles, and ſtudied at Paris; after which, he became a Monk at Cluni, under St. Odilon, where he took the Order of Deacon. Seven years after, the Polanders underſtanding where he was, obtained of Pope Benet IX. upon ſome particular Conditions, That their Prince ſhould come to Govern their Country, and Marry. He took to Wife Mary, or Dobrogneue, Daughter of Ulodormir, and Siſter to Joriſlaus, Duke of Ruſſia; Governed the Kingdom very well, and ſubjected ſeveral Provinces to the Crown; civilized the Polanders; was a great Benefactor to the Church, founded many, and ſent for ſome of the Religious of Cluni to Poland. He defeated Maſſas, Duke of Muſcovy, in 1044. took Siliſia from the Bohemians, and eſtabliſhed the Epiſcopal See at Breſlaw. His Reign held 18 years. He died 1058. Boleſlaus the Bold, or the Cruel, and Ladiſlaus called Herman, ſucceeded him, the one after the other; theſe he had by his Wife Dobrogneue, beſides Mieſche and Otho, who died young, and Suentochna, married to Primiſlaus, Prince of Bohemia. Cromer, Longinus.

CASIMIR the Second, called the Juſt, Son to Boleſlaus III. called Crivouſt. He was put, in 1177. in the Place of Mieczſlaus, or Miciſlaus III. his Brother, called the Old, who was dethroned for his Covetouſneſs. Caſimir eaſed his Subjects of Taxes, and would have rendred the Crown to his Predeceſſor, if the Polanders had not oppoſed it. His Piety made him undertake a War againſt the Pruſſians, whom he overcame, and obliged to take to the Chriſtian Religion, which they had baſely quitted. He Reigned 17 years, and died in 1194. being 67 years of Age. Lesko V. his Son, called the White, was choſen after him, whom he begot of his Wife Helena. Some ſay that this Caſimir II. died ſuddenly in a Feaſt that he made for his Nobles, being poiſoned by a Woman which he loved paſſionately. Cromer, Guagnini.

CASIMIR the Third, Sirnamed the Great, was born in 1309. and was Crowned after the death of Ladiſlaus Loctick his Father, in 1333. He received the Crown with his Wife Anne, Daughter of Gedemin, Great Duke of Lithuania; and after the death of this Princeſs, he married Adelaide, Daughter to Henry Landgrave of Heſſe; but ſoon confin'd this to a Monaſtery becauſe of her Uglineſs, and kept a Jeweſs. John King of Bohemia made War againſt him; but Caſimir got the better, and took ſeveral Places from him; and after that ſubdued all Ruſſia at ſeveral times; and his Queen being dead, he married Hedwige, Daughter of Henry Duke of Glogovia. He deſerved the Name of Great, not ſo much for his Military Exploits, as for his great Love for Peace, by his Magnificence in the Churches and Hoſpitals he Founded; by the great number of Fortreſſes and Caſtles he built; and eſpecially by the Addreſs he had to gain all People's Love, and to render every body impartial Juſtice. He died of a Fall he had off his Horſe at a Deer-Hunting, being ſixty years of Age, and that the thirty ſeventh of his Reign, in 1370. He had by his laſt Wife, Elizabeth, married to Boguſlaus, Duke of Pomerania; and Anne, married to William, Count of Cilie. Caſimir is the laſt King of Poland of the Family of Piaſt. Lewis, King of Hungary, Son of his Siſter Elizabeth, ſucceeded him. Michou, Cromer.

CASIMIR the Fourth, before Duke of Lithuania, was Son to Jagelon, called Ladiſlaus IV. He was called to the Crown after the Bloody Battel of Warnes, or Varna, in which Ladiſlaus V. his Brother and Predeceſſor, loſt his Life in 1440. But his Death being doubted of by ſome, Caſimir would not take his Place, until the Meſſengers he ſent into Thrace and Greece aſſured him he was dead, and until the Polanders ſeemed inclined to receive Boleſlaus, Duke of Maſſovia, if he tarried longer. He was Crowned in 1443. three years after his Brother's death. A little afterwards, the Tyranny of the Teutonick Knights forcing the Pruſſians to have recourſe to his Protection, Dantzick ſubmitted it ſelf to him; but he loſt a conſiderable Battel in 1454. by the great Opinion his Commanders had of their Forces, and the little Value they put upon their Enemies. This loſs enraged him, and he recovered it, and forced the Knights, after they had loſt Marienbourg, and their other beſt Towns, to ſue for Peace, which he agreed to upon the Requeſt of the Pope. His Son Ladiſlaus being choſen King of Bohemia, in 1471. was oppoſed by Matthias Corvinus, which occaſioned a War. After the death of this Matthias, who was King of Hungary, the States of that Kingdom were for putting John Albert, Son of Caſimir, upon the Throne, who rendred himſelf famous by the Victory he gained over the Tartars; but ſome of them having given their Suffrages before to Ladiſlaus, King of Bohemia, it occaſioned another War, where John Albert was worſted, and forced to come to an Agreement with his Brother. Caſimir ſtood neuter, and died the 7th of June, 1492. being 64 years of Age, whereof he Reigned 45. He married Elizabeth of Auſtria Daughter of Albert of Auſtria and Elizabeth of Luxemburg, Queen of Hungary, of whom he had Elizabeth of Luxemburg, Queen of Hungary, and Ladiſlaus, King of Hungary and Bohemia, who died in 1516. John Albert, who died a Batchelor in 1501. Caſimir, who died in 1482. Alexander and Sigiſmund, Kings of Poland; Frederick, Cardinal-Biſhop of Cracovia, and afterwards Archbiſhop of Gneſne, who died in 1503. Hedwinge, married to George, Duke of Bavaria; Sophia, Frederick the Marquiſs of Brandenburgh's Wife; Anne, allied to Bogiſlaus, Duke of Pomerania; Elizabeth, Wife to Frederick II. Duke of Legnicia; Barbara, married to George Duke of Saxony; John, Margaret, &c. Michou, Cromer.

CASIMIR, (John) the Fifth, Son to Sigiſmund III. by his Second Wife Conſtance of Auſtria: He was choſen after the death of his Brother Ladiſlaus IV. who died in 1648. This Prince having deſigned himſelf for the Church, and having ſeen moſt of the Courts of Europe, and being two years at the Jeſuits College at Rome, Pope Innocent X. gave him a Cardinal's Hat. But the Condition of Poland obliged him to mount the Throne, and to get a Diſpenſation to marry Louiſe Mary of Gonzague, Widow of the King his Brother, on whom he begot a Daughter that died the year after. Charles Guſtavus, King of Sweden, made a cruel War againſt him, and did much harm in Poland. Caſimir, tho' defeated in the beginning, took Courage, and beat him out of his Territories; and after that Prince's death, he made Peace with Charles his Succeſſor in 1660. After this, his Army defeated the Muſcovites in Lithuania, the 5th of November, 1661. but made no better uſe of the Victory, than to rebel againſt their King, and abuſe the Clergy. The King nevertheleſs ſubdued theſe Rebels, eſpecially after the death of Lubomirski, Head of the Faction, who died at Breſlaw the 31ſt of July, 1667. and having loſt his Queen, he provided for the good of his Country, and made a voluntary Abdication of the Crown, to paſs the remainder of his Life in Peace and Quiet. The States of Poland choſe Michel Koributt Wieſnowiski the 19th of June, 1669. who was Crowned the 29th of September the ſame year. John Caſimir came to France, where he met with a generous Reception, and had a Penſion from the King to maintain himſelf like a Perſon of Quality; but being but ſickly, he fell ill at Nevers in his return from the Waters at Bourbon, and there died in 1672. His Body was carried to Warſaw in Poland, and his Heart was buried in the Abbey of St. Germain des Prez (whereof he was Abbot) at Paris. The Monks built him a Magnificent Tomb. This King was Prudent and Courageous, but ſomewhat unlucky, though he eſcaped ſeventeen or eighteen Battels, which he for the moſt part gained.

St. CASIMIR, Prince of Poland, was Son to Caſimir III. King of Poland, and Great Duke of Lithuania: He vowed himſelf to God from his Youth, and lived in his Palace as in a Holy and Retired Place. He obſerved an untainted Chaſtity, notwithſtanding the Advice of Phyſicians, who excited him to marry; and ſhewed an extraordinary Zeal for the Catholick Religion, in employing all poſſible means to root out the Schiſm of the Ruſſians. He died at 25 years of Age, the 4th of March, 1489. and his Body was carried to the Cathedral of Vilna, Capital of the Dutchy of Lithuania.

CASIUS, a Mountain of Egypt upon the Coaſt of the Mediterranean Sea, near the Lake of Stirben, upon the Borders of Paleſtina, whence it reaches Southward towards the Frontiers of Arabia Petræa; now it's called Lariſſa; and the Lake of Stirben is called the Gulph of Teneſe, or the Baranguerlis. At the foot of this Mountain there was formerly a Town called Caſium, famous for the Tomb of Pompey, and a Temple Dedicated to Jupiter. Strab. Liv.

CASLONA, a Borough of Andaluſia in Spain, upon the River of Guadalimar: It was formerly a conſiderable Place, called by the Latins Caſtulo, which was a Biſhoprick Suffragan to the Archbiſhoprick of Toledo. There are Mountains near this Place which derive their Name from it, and are famous in Hiſtory for the memorable Defeat the Chriſtians gave the Moors there in the year 1202. where they killed two hundred thouſand of theſe Infidels, under the Reign of Alphonſus King of Caſtile. Baudrand.

CASMIR, a Province of the Empire of the Great Mogul, near the River Indus, where it's ſaid the Climate is very temperate, the Soil fertile, and the Trees ſo much abounding with Fruit, that there is hardly any place in Europe that has all things in ſo great plenty.. It's remarked that there are flying Cats in the Mountains here; but theſe Cats are nothing elſe but a ſort of great Batts, whoſe Bodies are furr'd, and are headed like Cats. Their Wings are not compoſed of Feathers, but of Cartilages full of little Bones joined together by Nerves. Theſe are as big as Hens or Geeſe, and the Country-people make a delicate Meſs of them. Theſe Animals, in the Night, ſet upon whole Herds of Cows, or great Flocks of Sheep, to ſuck their Blood and Milk. There are alſo many of them in China and Braſil. Kirch. Bern.

CASONI, (Guy) born at Saravalla in Marca Treviſana, lived in the beginning of the Seventeenth Century: He was a good Linguiſt and Lawyer. He ſettled himſelf at Venice, and was Inſtrumental in the ſetting up the Academy De Gl' Incogniti. He wrote ſeveral Tracts in Italian, as, The Life of Taſſo. La Magia D' Amore. Diſcorſa del Impreſe. Il. Theatro Poetico, &c. Lorenzo Craſſo. Elog. de Huom. Letter.

CASPIAN, or Caſpian Sea; though properly it's but a Lake that neither ebbs nor flows, and has no communication with other Seas, unleſs it be by ſubterranean Conduits, by which it's thought to empty part of its Water, either into the Black Sea, the Gulph of Balſora, or the Indian Sea; and this muſt be the reaſon why it does not grow ſenſibly bigger, though it receives very conſiderable Rivers, as the Volga, Aras, and others. It has the Kingdom of Usbeck, or Mauralnahar, to the Eaſt, Perſia to the South, Georgia to the Weſt, and the Deſart Tartary to the North. Thoſe of the Country, as well as other People, call it a Sea, after the Cuſtom of the Ancient and Modern Geographers, who call all great Waters, confined with the Land, ſo: As, the Lake Aſphaltites, the Lake of Tiberias in Paleſtina, are vulgarly called Seas; the firſt called the Dead Sea, and the ſecond the Sea of Geneſareth, or Galilee. The ſame is ſaid of the Lake of Geneva and Conſtance, which the Germans call Genſerzee and Conſtantzerzee; that is, Sea of Geneva and of Conſtance. And the Hollanders call Harlem-Sea, the Lake of Harlem, which has but about 8 or 10 Leagues circuit. As for the Situation, the Ancients ſtretch it from the Weſt to the Eaſt, and the Modern from the South to the North, making it of an oval Figure, and of about 600 Leagues circuit; others make it 800 miles long, and 650 large, and aſſure that the greateſt part of it is frozen in Winter. It was alſo called the Sea of Hyrcania, from the Name of a Province of Perſia, now called Ghilan, which is to the South of it, and now it is called the Sea of Tabriſtan, Bachu, and Sala, from the Countries and Towns that lie near its Coaſts. The Caſpian Ports, or Gates, are certain Streights, or difficult Paſſages, between very ſteepy and high Mountains near the Caſpian Sea, towards the Town of Berbent, in the Province of Schirvan, which depends of the Kingdom of Perſia. The Name of Derbent ſignifies a narrow Gate; and the Turks call this Town Demir-Capi, that is, Iron-Gate; which agrees with the Name of Caſpian Gates. It is reported, That this famous Paſſage was worked with the Hand all in a Rock, eight hundred Paces through; and that in the wideſt part, there is hardly room enough for a Chariot to paſs. Some Moderns call theſe Paſſages the Gates of Teflis, which is a Town of Gurgiſtan, otherwiſe of the particular Georgia.

CASPIANS, People of Scythia, neigbouring upon the Hyrcanians, and near that great Lake which is called the Caſpian Sea from their Name. It's ſaid of them, That they uſed to ſhut up their ancient Parents in ſome narrow place, and there ſtarve them to death. Strab. l. 2.

CASPIAN Mountains, are a ridge of Mountains in Aſia, that ſtretch from the North to the South, between Armenia and the Caſpian Sea.

CASSAN, or Caghan, King of Perſia, lived about the end of the Thirteenth Century: He was Son of Aragon, who was alſo King of that Country, and came to the Crown in this following manner: Raithe, Succeſſor of Aragon, being killed, Baiton was put in his Place; this laſt being a Chriſtian, always favoured that Party, and perſecuted the Mahometans; which Proceeding incenſed his Subjects, and made them riſe in Rebellion againſt him, and preſent the Crown to Caſſan, who was a Chriſtian, upon Condition that he would change his Religion, and follow their Prophet's Law. He accepted the Offer, and fulfilled the Conditions, gained a Battel of his Rival in 1294. Then ſeeing himſelf well ſettled upon his Throne, he laboured altogether for the Propagation of Chriſtianity, made a League with the Catholick Princes of the Eaſt, overthrew Melechenazer, King of Egypt in Syria, and gained very conſiderable Advantages. Carbenda his Brother ſucceeded him in 1304. Sanut. Haiton.

CASSANDER, Son of Antipater, ſucceeded Aridæus, who had Eſtabliſhed Polyſperchon in his place. He was ſecond King of Macedonia after Alexander the Great, in 437 of Rome, and made ſeveral Conqueſts in Greece, abrogated the Democracy at Athens, and conſtituted the Orator Demetrius Phalereus Governor of the City. Being at the Siege of Tegea, a Town of Arcadia, when the News was brought him that Olympias, Alexander's Mother, had cauſed Aridæus, Eurydices his Wife, and 100 other Macedonians, his Friends, to be put to death; he quitted his Enterprize, returned into Macedonia, laid Siege to Pydne, whither the Queen had retired, and after he had gained the Town by corrupting the Epirotes and Polyſperchon's Soldiers, he put that cruel Princeſs to death to revenge his Friends. This happened in the 438 of Rome. After this he Married Theſſalonice, Siſter to Alexander, and returned to proſecute his Conqueſts in Macedonia. And, it's ſaid, that it was at this time he re-built the City of Thebes. In 443 he put Roxane, Daughter of Oxiarthes, and one of Alexander's Wives, to death, with a Son ſhe bore that Prince after he was dead, and was called by his Name, leſt his Enemies and Rivals ſhould make uſe of them to gain People of their ſide, that might diſpute the Crown with him. He likewiſe perſuaded Polyſperchon to make away another of Alexander's Sons called Hercules, whom they would have to bear his Father's Name. After this he entred into a League with Seleucus and Lyſimachus, againſt Antigonus and his Son Demetrius; when he joined his Forces with them of his Allies, they made up an Army of 76000 Foot, 10500 Horſe, and 6000 Armed Wagons. With this he gained a memorable Victory of his Enemies, who had 70000 Foot, 10000 Horſe, and 75 Elephants; The Battel was fought near the Town of Ipſus in Phrygia, An. M. 3753. and the Third year of the One hundred and nineteenth Olympiad. Caſſander died Dropſical three years after this Victory, when he had Reigned Nineteen, and left Three Sons by his Wife Theſſalonice, Philip who Reigned but one year, Antipater and Alexander who made War about the Succeſſion. Juſtin. Diodorus. Euſebius.

CASSANDER, (George) of Bruges, or, according to others, of the Iſle of Caſſandt, was much eſteemed in the Sixteenth Age for his Skill in the Languages, and his univerſal and profound Knowledge. After he had taught at Gant, Bruges, and other Places, he applied himſelf to the Controverſies of his time concerning Religion, and publiſhed a Book under the Title of the Godly Mans Duty in the Diſpute of Religion; he did not put his Name to it, which made ſome take Francis Baldwin, that firſt brought it into France, for its Author. Prince William of Cleves invited Caſſander to his Country, to oppoſe the Anabaptiſts, and he was at Duisbourg in 1564. when the Emperor Ferdinand writ to him to come to Vienna; and when Caſſander let him underſtand, that the Gout confined him to his Chamber the greateſt part of the year, that Prince writ to him, and deſired, that ſeeing his Health did not permit him to labour by his preſence for the re-union of the Diſſenting Parties, that he at leaſt might contribute to their Agreement by his Writing and good Advice, and begged that he would make an Abridgment of the Chriſtian Doctrine, and that beſides the Articles of Faith that are comprehended in the Confeſſion of Ausbourg, and are not diſputed of, he would explain and clear ſuch as were Debated. He finiſh'd His Conſultation, which he Printed, and ſent to Maximilian II. for Ferdinand was dead. This, ſays Thuanus, was the laſt Work of this Excellent Man, who was far from all Paſſion, and ſincerely profeſſed the Truth that Jeſus Chriſt left; yet there were ſome Errors found in his Works, which were put in the Index of Prohibited Books, or Index Expurgatorius. He publiſhed the Works of Vigilius Biſhop of Trente; and likewiſe another of Honorius of Autun, De Prædeſtinatione & Gratia. His own Works are, Commentarium; De duabus in Chriſto Naturis; De Baptiſmo Infantium; De Origine Anabaptiſticæ Sectæ; Liturgica Traditionum Veteris Eccleſiæ Defenſio; Epiſtolæ; Supputatio rei Nummariæ Romanorum & Græcorum ad Monetam Flandricam, &c. Caſſander died in February 1566. Thuanus gives him the following Character, in his Hiſtory of the ſame year. ‘I ſhall only ſay (ſaith he) in Com‘mendation of this good Man, who was a conſiderable ‘Maſter in Greek and Latin, well vers'd in the Learning of ‘Antiquity, and had gone to the Bottom of the Diſputes in ‘Religion, I ſhall only ſay, That he was Modeſt beyond ‘the common Example of this Age, and therefore I think ‘him fit to be propoſed as a Pattern to thoſe who are ‘concerned in adjuſting the Differences in Religion, that ‘ſo they may ſtand clear of all Animoſity and Satyr, in the ‘Manage of the Controverſie; for Caſſander, though he had ‘ſo many good Qualities to recommend him, had not the ‘leaſt Tincture of Vanity or Self-conceit: It was not his ‘way to return Evil for Evil; and no Man could ever ob‘ſerve, either in his Writings or Converſation, that he had ‘any thing of Arrogance or Magiſterialneſs in his Temper. Thuan. &c.

CASSANDRA, Daughter of Priamus King of Troy, once Beloved by Apollo, who gave her the Gift of Prophecy; but finding her unworthy of that Favour, he ordered it ſo, that ſhe was never Credited, ſo her Predictions were Laughed at when ſhe foretold the Misfortunes that were to befall Troy. After the Deſtruction of this City, ſhe was violated by Ajax in the Temple of Minerva, and was made Slave to Agamemnon, to whom ſhe foretold the Death that his Wife was preparing him, but was not believ'd. Homer.

CASSANDRA, (Fidelis) a Learned Woman of Venice; She lived in the Sixteenth Century: Her Family was of Milan, but came to ſettle at Venice, where Caſſandra was born about 1465. She Learn'd Things with ſo much Facility in her Youth, that it was ſoon ſeen ſhe had a great Genius for Sciences, wherein ſhe made ſuch progreſs, that beſides her Skill in the Greek and Latin Tongues; She was well Vers'd in Hiſtory, Philoſophy, and Divinity, and became ſo famous, that Pope Julius II. Leo X. King Lewis XII. Ferdinand King of Arragon, Elizabeth Queen of Caſtile, the Duke of Milan, and ſeveral others of the higheſt Rank, took pleaſure in manifeſting their Eſteem of her. The Learn'd themſelves admir'd her Abilities, conſulted her, and many came to pay her Viſits to Venice. She maintain'd ſome Theſes of Philoſophy at Padua, and pronounc'd an Oration that was Printed. Angelus Politianus calls her the Ornament of Italy, and others give her as great Encomiums. She Married Mario Marpelio, a Phyſician of Vicenza, who died about 1521. as appears by her Letter to Pope Leo X. She was Fifty ſix years of Age at his Death, and lived a Widow all the reſt of her Life, which was pretty long, ſhe being about 102 years old when ſhe died. We have a Collection of Letters of hers, and other Works that are attributed to her, as, De Literarum Laudibus, De Scientiarum Ordine, &c. Fulgoſius, Thomaſin.

CASSANDT, or Caſſant, a ſmall Iſland of the Low-Countries, upon the Coaſts of Flanders, over-againſt the Eclaſe, or Sluces: There is alſo a Village and Fortreſs of this Name. The Hollanders are Maſters of it, having taken it in the beginning of this Age, during the Siege of Oſtend. The Iſland was much bigger formerly than it is now, for the Tempeſts and beating of the Sea has made it leſs by one half.

CASSANO, a Town in the Kingdom of Naples in Calabria, with the Title of a Principality, and a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Coſenza. It ſtands near the little River Lione.

CASSEL, or Keſſell, Caſtellum, Cattorum, Caſſilia, and Caſella, a Town of Germany in Franconia, Capital of the Landgrave of Heſſe, ſeated upon the River Fulde, between Marpurg and Paderborne, and is the Reſidence of the Landtgrave of Heſſe Caſſel, now William the Seventh of the Name. The Town is very well Fortified, and has a ſtrong Cittadel: It's alſo great and well built, and of good Commerce, eſpecially for Wool. Some take it for the Stercontium of Ptolemy; but this is not the Opinion of Bertius.

CASSEL, or Mont-Caſſel, Caſtellum, and Caſtellum Morinorum, a little Town of the Low-Countries, ſeated upon a Mountain four Leagues from Bergue S. Vinox, and much at the like diſtance from Aire and Terouanne. It's well Fortified, and has a conſiderable Juriſdiction. Caſſel is an Ancient Town, has two Fairs, one in Auguſt, the other in January. King Philip Auguſtus took it in 1213. and it was taken and retaken ſince upon ſeveral Occaſions. This Town of Mont-Caſſel is remarkable for a Battel fought there April 11. 1677. between the French commanded by the Duke of Orleans, and the Dutch and Spaniſh Armies commanded by the Prince of Orange. The Prince attack'd the French with a deſign to Relieve St. Omers, but the Dutch Infantry being broken, and wanting Courage to renew the Charge, his Highneſs was obliged to Retreat, and leave St. Omers to the French, who had it ſurrender'd to 'em in a few days. Temple's Memoirs.

CASSEMIR, or Chiſmere, a Province of the Great Mogul's Empire, on this ſide the Ganges towards Tartary. It's obſerved, that in this Country, Women have no Hair, and that Men have but very little on the Chin. Tavernier.

CASSERIUS, (Julius) a Phyſician and Chirurgeon living in the beginning of the Seventeenth Century. He was born at Placentia in Italy, and Studied under Aquapendente. His Works are much eſteem'd, and are, De Vocis, Audituſque Organis. Hiſtoria Anatomica. Pentæſtheſeion, hoc eſt, De Quinque Senſibus, Liber. Thomaſin. f. 1. Part. Elog. Doct. Vir. Vander Linden, De Script. Med. &c.

CASSIAN, which others call Caſchan, a Town of Perſia in the Province of Airach, or Heirach. It's great, fair, well Peopled, and of great Traffick, ſituate in a Plain, about three days Journey from Hiſpahan, towards the Caſpian pian Sea. Here are ſumptuous Houſes, fine Gardens, good Fruits, and a great Commerce for Silks; but there is no good Water, and the Inhabitants are much incommoded by Scorpions, whoſe Bitings are very dangerous.

CASSIEN, (John) a Scythian Originally, and an Athenian by Birth, as it's believed; He lived in the Fifth Age, paſſed the firſt years of his Youth in the Monaſteries of Paleſtina, where he became very intimate with the Abbot Germain, with whom he went into Egypt, and there lived ſeven years after. He was Diſciple to St. Chryſoſtom, who made him a Deacon; And when this Holy Biſhop was Baniſh'd from his Church by the Faction of his Enemies, the Church of Conſtantinople having addreſs'd it ſelf before to Pope Innocent I. deputed afterwards in 403. Caſſien and Germain to repreſent the Violence and Injuſtice they did its Paſtor. After this Saint's Death, in 407. Caſſien came to Rome, where he contracted Friendſhip with Leo, who was afterwards Pope; And when the City was taken by Alaric in 410. Caſſien came to Provence, and ſettled at Marſeilles: Here he was Ordained Prieſt by the Biſhop Venerius; founded two Monaſteries, one for Men, and the other for Women, and appeared a great Maſter of a Monaſtick Life; and it was then he writ his Conferences, or Collations of the Fathers of the Deſert, in 24 Books; whereof he Dedicated the firſt Ten to St. Leontius Biſhop of Frejus, and to Helladius; Seven others to Honorat and Eucherius; And the Seven laſt to Jovinian, Minervus, Leontius, and Theodorus. He had already made the Inſtitutions of a Monaſtical Life, and Writ Remedies againſt the Eight Capital Sins, in Twelve Books, which he Dedicates to Caſtor, Biſhop of Apt. And at Pope Leo's Requeſt, he wrote a Treatiſe of the Incarnation of the Word, againſt the Errors of Neſtorius: This Work of his is in Seven Books, Dedicated to the ſame Pope. Notwithſtanding all which, this great Man's Reputation remains low, by the ill Doctrine that appears in the Thirteenth Conference; wherein, under the Name of the Abbot Cheremon, he ſpeaks like a Semipelagian. This made St. Proſper Write thoſe Books againſt him, which are call'd, Contra Collatorem, or the Author of Conferences. However, we cannot call him a Heretick, becauſe he never defended his Opinions with Obſtinacy, neither have they been formally and explicitly condemn'd by the Church. He Writ all his Works in Latin, but ſome were afterwards Tranſlated into Greek. Baronius, Bellarmin.

ST. CASSIEN, Martyr, was the firſt Biſhop of Siben, whoſe Seat is now at Brixen, or Breſſenon, in the County of Tyrol in Germany, towards Italy, where after he had built a Church to the Honour of our Lady, he was Conſecrated Biſhop by Fortunatus, Patriarch of Aquileia, in 350. but was Baniſh'd by the Infidels: He retir'd to Rome, afterwards went to Cornelium, called now Imola, in Romania, where he kept a publick School, but was taken in 365. by Julian the Apoſtate's Order, and expos'd to his Scholars, who kill'd him with the ſame little Braſs Pencils he us'd to write with on Wax'd Tables. Petr. de Natal.

CASSIERE, (John Biſhop of) Fifth Great Maſter of St. John of Jeruſalem's Order, when the Convent was at Malta, and Succeſſor to Peter of Mont in 1572. He was Great Marſhal before, and Chief of thoſe who belong'd to the Quarter of Auvergne. Some years after, the Council of Order Interdicted him from his Office, and choſe as their Lieutenant General Maurice of Eſco, Sirnamed Romegas. The Biſhop of Mayole, who was at Rome all the time of the Conteſtation between Caſſiere and Romegas, mentions the Succeſs of that Buſineſs, as a very remarkable thing. For the Plaintifs and Defendants, the Judges and Witneſſes, all died before the Judgment paſs'd, nor was there any Act of all the Proceſs left to be ſeen, which happened thus. The Great Maſter being cited to Rome, to anſwer before Pope Gregory XIII. the Accuſation made againſt him upon Points of Faith, his Holineſs ſent Judges to hear Witneſſes in the very Iſland of Maltha; but in the mean while the Great Maſter, and Romegas his Accuſer, arriv'd at Rome, where they both died ſoon after. The Judges alſo, with the Notaries and Acts, together with the Witneſſes, were caſt away as they came to Rome, as if God had a Mind to reſerve to himſelf the Judgment of that Buſineſs: Yet People were well ſatisfied of the Great Maſter's Innocence, and of the Falſhood of Romegas's Accuſations, which were ſufficiently deſtroy'd by the Marks of the Great Maſter's Piety that are yet to be ſeen at Maltha, in the City of Valette, where he built a Church, Dedicated to St. John Baptiſt, and ſettled 1000 Crowns of Rent upon it. He alſo built the Palace of the Great Maſters, the Chatellenie, or Palace of Secular Juſtice, an Infirmery, and ancient Hall of Arms, and ſeveral other Buildings that will render his Name Immortal: He had for Succeſſor, Hugues de Loubens Verdale. Naberat.

CASSIN, or Mont-Caſſin, a famous Abby of Italy, in the Kingdom of Naples, built by St. Benet, Patriarch of the Weſtern Monks. The Town of Caſſin, or Mont-Caſſin, Caſinum, or Mons Caſſinus, was in Terra di Lavoro, at the foot of the Mountain where the Monaſtery is, and was a Biſhoprick of the Roman Province. The Town of St. Germain is encreas'd by the Ruine of Caſſin, whoſe Name is only preſerv'd in the Monaſtery. The Chronicle of Mount Caſſin, publiſh'd in 1603. contains all the moſt remarkable Paſſages relating to this Order, and indeed relating to the whole Church, from the year 542 to 1138. It is Printed in Four Books; the Three firſt were written by Leo Oſtienſis, and Petrus Diaconus added the Fourth, which begins in 1086.

CASSIODORUS, (Magnus Aurelius) Secretary of State to Theoderick King of Italy, ran through all the Honourable Imployments of the Government, and in the year 514 was Conſul by himſelf; perceiving the Affairs of the Goths Embarraſs'd under their King Vitiges, he retir'd into a Monaſtery which he had built at the farther end of Calabria. In this Retirement he entertain'd himſelf with ſeveral Curioſities, ſuch as Sun-Dials, Water-hour-Glaſſes, Lamps that never went out, and a ſelect Library. He wrote a Commentary upon the Pſalms, the Canticles; Two Books of Divine Inſtitutions; Twelve Books of Epiſtles, wrote in the Reign of King Theoderick; And Twelve of the Hiſtory of the Goths, abridg'd by Jornandes; An Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, extracted out of Socrates, Theodoret and Sozomen, for this reaſon call'd, Hiſtoria Tripartita; A Chronicon, ſeveral Treatiſes of Grammar, Rhetorick, Logick, Arithmetick, Muſick, Geometry, Aſtronomy, and Orthography. He died about the year 562. almoſt a Hundred years old. There are ſeveral Editions of Caſſiodorus, as that of 1491, 1588, &c. Greg. Magn. Lib. 7. Ep. 31. 33. Paulus Diaconus, Lib. 1. Cap. 25. Hiſt. Longobard. Baron. A. C. 562. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Lib. 2. C. 19. &c.

CASSIOPE, a ſmall Town of Epirus in the Mountains, and towards the Frontiers of Macedonia, in that Country which the Ancients call'd Caſſiopee. It was formerly a Biſhoprick, and is different from Pliny and Ptolemy's Caſſiopee, which truly is in Epirus, but on the Sea ſide, and is now call'd Joannina.

CASSIOPEA, or Caſſiopé, Wife to Cepheus King of Æthiopia, and Mother of Andromeda; She was vain enough, as Poets ſay, to think her ſelf more Beautiful than the Nereides, which ſo enraged the Sea Nymphs, that they pray'd Neptune to Revenge the Contempt. This God ſent a Monſter into the Country, who did much harm; and when they conſulted the Oracle to know how to appeaſe the Gods, anſwer was made, that they ſhould expoſe Andromeda, the Kings only Daughter, to a Sea Monſter; But ſhe was deliver'd from this danger by Perſeus, who alſo obtain'd of Jupiter, that Caſſiope might be plac'd after her Death amongſt the Stars: This is a Northern Conſtellation, which conſiſts of 13 Stars. In Charles the IX's Reign, in 1572. People begun to obſerve a new Phænomenon in the Skies, which reſembled a fixt Star, becauſe it was very clear, and that it had a fix'd place amongſt the Stars; That it ſeem'd in the ſame height, and ſeem'd always to have the ſame motion; It form'd a Lozenge, with the Thigh and Breaſt of the Conſtellation, Caſſiopea. Firſt of all it was as big as the Planet Jupiter, but it diminiſh'd by little and little, and diſappear'd quite at the end of eighteen Months. Mezeray.

CASSITERIDES, Iſlands of the Weſtern Ocean upon the Coaſts of Hiſpania Taraconaiſa. They were call'd by that Name by the Greeks, becauſe they had a great quantity of white Lead thence, which they call'd κασσίτερος. The Phœnicians Traded thither firſt, and Midacritus was the firſt that brought Lead thence: Herodotus ſays, there was alſo Tin in theſe Iſlands, which according to Cluvier, and other Geographers, are near the Northern Coaſts of Galicia, over-againſt Cape d'Orte Guere, where that which is towards the Weſt is called Zigarga, and the other towards the Eaſt, called the Iſle of St. Cyprian.

CASSIUS, (Avidius) a Roman Captain, Son of Heliodorus, a Syrian, Governor of Egypt. He was bred up in the Army, and gain'd great Reputation by his Conduct, Courage, and the Care he had of the Military Diſcipline; which Qualities render'd him in great Eſteem with the Emperors, Marcus Antoninus Pius, L. Verus, and Marcus Aurelius: Yet ſome aſſure, that his Courage was accompanied with a Brutal Severity, which ſometimes proceeded to Cruelty: This appear'd in the Puniſhments he inflicted, wherein was more of Paſſion and a Capricious Humour, than Juſtice and Reaſon. He was of an Ambitious Temper, which always found ſomewhat Ill in the Government. In his very Youth he would have rais'd himſelf againſt Marcus Antoninus Pius, had not his Father Heliodorus, who was a very Prudent Man, hindred him. After this, he gain'd great Advantages over the Parthians and the other Barbarians that were Enemies to the Empire. L. Verus ſuſpecting his Deſigns, Writ to Antoninus the Philoſopher about him. Notwithſtanding, after the Death of the firſt, which happen'd in 169. Avidius manag'd his Intreague ſo well, that he got himſelf Saluted Emperor, but was kill'd three Months after, and his Head ſent to Antoninus about the year 172. M. Dacier. Dio in Antonin. Julius Capitolin.

CASSIUS, (Brutus) who at a time that the Romans were in War againſt the Latins, would have betray'd his Country to the Enemy, being ſurpriz'd as he was opening them a Gate to enter by, he ran to the Temple of Pallas, thinking to find there a certain Shelter ; but his Father Caſſius, willing to puniſh his Son's Treaſon himſelf, ſhut the Temple Door ; and after he had Starv'd him to Death, drag'd his Body thence, which he would not ſuffer to be Honour'd with a Burial. Plutar. in Parallell.

C. CASSIUS, call'd Longinus, deſcended of one of the beſt Families of Rome : He was Queſtor for Craſſus in Syria, in 701 of the Æra of Rome. After the Death of this General, he gather'd together the Remains of his Army, and overthrew Oſaces, the King of Parthia's Lieutenant General, near the River Orontes. Afterwards having ſided with Pompeus, in the height of the Civil Wars, he was overcome by Cæſar, who yet received him into his Favour, which did not hinder Caſſius from becoming the chief of the Conſpiracy that was carried on againſt him ; and it's ſaid, that when one of theſe Conſpirers could not reſolve to Murder ſo brave and great a Perſon, Caſſius bid him rather than fail, to ſtrike through his own Head ; ſo the thing was done in 710. And when Auguſtus, Marc Anthony, and Lepidus, joined together to Revenge Cæſar's Death, Caſſius went to Syria, and join'd Brutus, who Governed Macedonia. They were ſet upon near Philippi, where Caſſius believing that Brutus was overcome, got himſelf kill'd by one Pandorus, in the 712 of Rome. Velleius Paterculus took pleaſure to compare Brutus and Caſſius one with the other. One may ſay, ſays he, of Brutus and Caſſius, That the laſt was the beſt Officer, but the firſt the Honeſter Man ; ſo that it were better have Brutus for a Friend, and more reaſon to fear Caſſius for an Enemy. The one had more Vigour, the other more Virtue ; and had they remain'd Victorious, as much as it was Advantageous to the State to have Cæſar for its Prince rather than Anthony, by ſo much would it be to their Profit to be Govern'd by Brutus rather than Caſſius : This is Velleius Paterculus's Opinion. Caſſius was a Learned Man, and loved all ſuch as made profeſſion of Learning : He followed the Sect of Epicurus. We have ſome of his Letters amongſt Cicero's, and ſome of this Orator's directed to him. Cicero ſpeaks of him in other places of his Work. Sueton. Tit. Liv. Cic. 2. Orat. Philip.

CASSIUS, (Longinus) a famous Roman Lawyer, who flouriſhed in the firſt Age of the Church, under the Emperors of Rome. Such as follow'd his Doctrine were call'd Caſſians, as they were call'd Proculains that adhered to Proculus, whence ſprung the Two Famous Law Schools at Rome. Bertrand.

CASSIUS, (Scæva) a Valiant Captain, under Julius Cæſar, who gave extraordinary Marks of his Valour, both by Sea and Land : Being beſieged by one of Pompey's Lieutenants, in a Caſtle wherein he Commanded, he fought with incomparable Obſtinacy, and ſuſtain'd all the Enemies Efforts with invincible Courage : Nor did he ſhew himſelf leſs Valiant at Sea ; For in Cæſar's Enterpriſe againſt the Britains, when he rendered their Iſland Tributary to Rome, he put himſelf, with four of his Companions, into a Boat, which he tied to a Rock near the Shore, that was all bordered with great numbers of the Enemies, whom he received with extraordinary Manhood, though his Companions had Cowardly left him, and defended himſelf, until finding he was much wounded, he leap'd into the Sea, and Swam off. Cæſar came to take him aboard his own Ship, Commending his Valour in preſence of the whole Army, and in Recompence thereof, gave him a Company of 100 Men. Cæſar. Valer. Max.

CASSIUS, (Severus) a Famous Orator, but of Mean Birth. His Writings being Diſadvantageous to the Reputation of ſeveral Men of Quality, were the occaſion of Auguſtus's making a Law to puniſh Defamatory Libels. It's ſaid he was one of them that conſpired againſt Cæſar, and that after Brutus and Caſſius's Defeat in 712 of Rome, he followed young Pompey, and afterwards Anthony, but was put to Death at laſt by Varus, who receiv'd a Commiſſion from Auguſtus to make him away, which he did ; for finding him in his Study, he put Fire to it, and burn'd him, together with his Books : Yet Tacitus ſays, that he was ſent to the Iſle of Crete by Tiberius's Order, where he ſtirr'd up the ancient Feuds, and created new, ſo that he was deprived of all his Goods, and confin'd to the Iſle of Seriphus, where St. Jerome ſays, He died very Poor, after 15 years Baniſhment, and had not where-withal to cover his Nakedneſs, Vix panno verenda contectus. He mentions him in the Fourth year of the Two hundredth Olympiad, that is, about the Three and thirtieth year of the Chriſtian Æra. Voſſius, Macrobius. We muſt take care not to confound this Perſon with Caſſius of Parma, a great Verſifier mention'd by Horace.

CASSIUS Viſcellinus (Spurius) a Roman Conſul, one of the greateſt Men of his time, yet more unlucky than deſerving ; he was Conſul the firſt time in 252 of Rome, with Opiter Virginius Tricoſtus ; at which time he reduced the Sabines, and puniſhed rigorouſly them of Camerin, who had withdrawn themſelves from the Alliance of the Romans in that War. In 261 he was Conſul a ſecond time with Poſthumius Cominus Auruncus, and in 268 with Proculus Virginius Tricoſtus Rutilus, when he plundered the Country of the Herniques, and compell'd them to ſue for Peace. The Senate did Caſſius the Honour to ſend him the Herniques Ambaſſadors, acknowledging thereby, that he was better acquainted with their Meſſage. This Conſul ſued for a Triumph. It's ſaid of him, that his unconſtant Humour made him at firſt propoſe a Law that ſhould ordain all the Lands acquired by the Sword to be divided amongſt the People. The year after the Queſtors Fabius, Cæſo, and L. Valerius joined againſt Caſſius, whom they accuſed of having aſpired to be King, for which he ſuffered. Some aſſure, that his own Father was one of his ſevereſt Judges, which makes People think that he was the ſame that was ſpoken of before, notwithſtanding Valerius Maximus his Words that ſeem to perſuade the contrary. However it's ſure this Sp. Caſſius Veſcellinus, who was twice Conſul, and had twice deſerved the Honour of a Triumph, was accuſed of Aſpiring, as was ſaid before, and was therefore precipitated from the Tarpeian Rock in 296 of Rome. Monſieur Bayle affirms with a great deal of probability, that Caſſius Spurius, and Caſſius Viſcellinus, are but one and the ſame Perſon, but Valerius Maximus ſeems to aſſert the contrary. The Family of the Caſſians, Caſſia gens, was very famous at Rome, and has furniſhed the Republick with ſeveral Magiſtrates ; as Q. Caſſius Longinus, Conſul in 590 of Rome ; A. Manlius Torquatus, his Son, was Conſul in 630. and this Sons Son in 647 with C. Marius, and was killed by the Swiſſers of the Canton of Zurich or Tigurians, who had advanced as far as the Frontiers of the Allobroges. It would be tedious to Name others that were Conſuls in 658. &c. and after our Saviour's Birth, as Caſſius Apronianus, who was Conſul in the 191 year of Grace, and many others that have had the ſame Dignity.

CASSOPO, a Town to the North of the Iſle of Corfou. It was formerly call'd Caſſiope, and was famous by its Temple Dedicated to Jupiter Caſſien, but is now but a decay'd Fortreſs, with a Church Dedicated to Panagia, that is the Bleſſed Virgin, ſerv'd by Caloyers or Greek Monks. There is in this Church an Image of our Lady painted upon a Stone, ſpoken of as a Miraculous thing ; for the Travellers that deſire to know whether any of their Friends be dead, hold a Penny of the Braſs of Corfou, or of Dalmatia to it, which if it ſticks to, it's a ſign, as they ſuppoſe, that he they thought of is living, but if it falls, it denotes the contrary. M. Spon ſays he ſaw many Pence that ſtuck to it, and that he ſtuck ſome to himſelf, and that others dropt, which he attributed to their not being flat and even. Spon.

CASSOVIE, or Caſchaw, Caſſovia, a Town of Upper-Hungary, Capital of the County of Abamwivar. It's very well fortified, ſeated upon the River Kunnert, which empties it ſelf into the Teiſs 5 or 6 Leagues from the Carpathian Mountains, between Eperies and Borſanie. This Town owns the Emperor as King of Hungary, though it's free, and has conſiderable Privileges

CASSUBIE, or Caſſuben, Caſſubia, a Country of Germany in Pomerania with the Title of a Dutchy, between the Baltick Sea, Pruſſia, and the Dutchy of Stetin. Its principal Towns are Colberg, Coſlin, Belgard, &c. all which of late belong to the Elector of Brandenburg.

CASTABALA, otherwiſe Peraſia, an ancient Town of Lower Cilicia on the Confines of Syria. Its Inhabitants, according to Pliny, when they went to the Wars, carried whole Troops of Dogs with them ; which is not very incredible, ſeeing, that at St. Malo's in Britany, they have no other Watch without the Gates but Dogs. Some Authors mark, that theſe Dogs of Syria and Phænicia were as big and ſtrong as our Engliſh Dogs. Here was alſo a Temple of Diana Peraſienſis, whoſe Prieſts are ſaid to have gone into it upon live Coals quite barefoot.

CASTALIO, (Joſeph) born at Ancona in Italy, liv'd till towards the end of the Sixteenth Century. He was an excellent Orator, and a good Poet, and raiſed the Reputation of his Countrymen ; The Italians, before that time, not being look'd upon as any ways conſiderable for Polite Learning ; He wrote a Treatiſe upon the Triumphal Pillar of the Emperor Antoninus, which he Dedicated to Sixtus Quintus. Variæ Lectiones ; De Prænominibus Romanorum. De Nomine Virgilii, &c. Eryth. Pinacoth. Vir. Illuſt.

CASTALIO, or Caſtilio, (Sebaſtian) born in the Mountains of Dauphine in the Sixteenth Century. He taught a School at Geneva, and was a great Linguiſt, and particularly a great Hebrician. This Talent put him upon Tranſlating the Bible, where he is blamed for taking too much liberty in his Verſion; His over-fondneſs for Phraſeology and Polite Latin, put him upon this Latitude. Father Simon's Critical Hiſtory of the Old Teſtament, Lib. 2. Cap. 21. Thuan. Hiſt. Lib. 35. Spondan. A. C. 1563.

CASTEL-BOLOGNESE, a Borough of Italy in Romania, belonging to the Holy See, between Imola and Faience.

CASTEL-DURANTE, a Town of the Dutchy of Urbin in the Church Lands in Italy, was much eſteem'd in the laſt Age for its fine Earthen Works like them of Faience a Town of Romania. The Painter Baptiſta Franco drew the Draughts, and the Workmen of Caſtel-Durante finiſhed them with ſo much addreſs, that the Duke of Urbin ſent as many to Charles the Fifth as furniſhed two great Side Boards. The Veſſels as to the Quality of the Earth were like them that were made in former times at Arezzo, but ſurpaſs'd theſe laſt mightily in the Paint, both by the fine luſter of their Enamel, and diverſity of their colours. Felibien.

CASTEL-GANDOLFE, Borough of Italy in Campania di Roma, it's the Popes Pleaſure-Houſe towards Albano and Velitri, finely ſeated upon a little Hill, having the Wood and Lake of Albano, call'd Lago di Gaſtel Gondolfo of one ſide, and Campania di Roma, and the City it ſelf on the other, at 12 miles diſtance from it.

CASTEL a Mare, or Caſſella Mare di Stabia, Stabia a Town of the Kingdom of Naples in Terra di Lavoro, with a Biſhops See Suffragan of Sorrento. It's ſituated upon the Gulf of Naples, and has a pretty convenient Port, was taken by the French under the Duke of Guiſe in 1654. Ancient Authors make mention of this Town, and Modern take it to be Pompeii, a ruined Town now call'd Torre dell Annunciata.

CASTEL-NUOVO, a Town of the Dutchy of St. Saba, or of the Province of Herzegovine in Dalmatia, ſeated upon the Canal of Cattaro, three Leagues from its Mouth, and over-againſt the Eaſtern-Sea. The Caſtle of Sulimanega, which is joined to the place on the North-ſide, is built upon a very rocky place, and is commanded by the Mountain of St. Veneranda, whence alſo the Tower of Faſtagick, which is partly built upon the Rock, and partly upon the joining Ground, can be batter'd. This great Tower is us'd by the Turks as a Magazine fot Powder. The high Fortreſs called Goringrad is 650 paces from the Town of Caſtel-Nuovo on the Northern ſide, and this may be battered to pieces from the top of Mont-Sliebi which is nigh it. This Place was attack'd in 1538 by the Popes, the Emperors, and Venetian Army, and taken by them, and Garriſon'd with Spaniards, but put Three Colours into it, one for the Pope, one for the Emperor, and a Third for the Republick: They did not enjoy it long, for the very next year Barbarouſſe came into the Chanel with 90 Galleys, and 30 Fuſtes or Ketches, and having landed 80 Pieces of Cannon, and ſome Men, that were joined by the Sangiac of the Province, he batter'd the place, and carried it by Aſſault. The Spaniards ſuſtain'd a great loſs in this occaſion, for there were 4000 of them either killed or put in Irons. The Venetians endeavoured to retake it in 1572. but were forced to give over the Enterprize, yet have at laſt made themſelves Maſters of it in 1687. jointly with the Popes Troops, and them of the Order of Malta, which fell out thus; Count Herbeſthein, great Prior of Hungary, and General of the Galleys of Malta, and Commander of the Popes Seven Galleys, received Orders from his Holineſs to join the Venetian Army in the Morea, commanded by the Generaliſſimo Moroſini, to undertake ſome conſiderable Enterprize in Dalmatia, which he did upon the 7th of Auguſt 1687. and with General Cornaro reſolved upon the Siege of Caſtel-Nuovo. The Chriſtian Army conſiſting of above 100 Sail appeared before the place the 2d of October, the Venetian Army was of 6 or 7000 Men, the Popes and them of Malta, that were both in one Body, made but 1500 Men; beſides which there were 120 Knights under the Command of the Knight Mechatin, and the Count of Montevecchi. The Turks quitted the Town the 29th of the Month, and the next morning them of the Caſtle yielded, upon Condition, that they might part with their Arms, and might have with them what they could carry upon their Backs, with Veſſels to tranſport them into Albania; all which was executed the firſt of October. The Turks came out, being 900 Men well Armed, and about 1000 Women and Children. This Place was confirm'd to the Venetians by the Peace of Carlowitz in 1699. P. Cornell. Memoirs du Temps.

CASTEL-TORNESSE, a little Town in the Province of Belveder in the Morea, near the Cape of Torneſſe, and not far off the Gulf of Chiarenza, built upon a height, about three Leagues from the Sea. After the taking of Patras and Lepanto in 1687. Moroſini, Generaliſſimo of the Venetian Army, ſent to Summons this place, which the Aga delivered preſently, though it was conſiderable, becauſe it defended 200 Villages in the moſt fertile part of all the Morea, who all ſubmitted upon the ſurrender of that place; 50 of the Turks received Baptiſm, and the reſt went to Achaia. There were 9 Braſs Cannon found in the place, and 20 Iron ones.

CASTELLANE, (Peter) a Phyſician, born at Grand-Mont in Flanders, call'd by the Inhabitants Geertsberg, in 1585. He was a Maſter in the Belles Lettres, and the World expected great things from him, but he died young. His Works are, De Græcorum Feſtis. Vitæ Illuſtrium Medicorum, &c. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

CASTELLANA, or Civita Caſtellana, a Town of Italy, in the Patrimony of St. Peter. 'Tis a Biſhops See, join'd with Otri, and immediately depending upon the Pope.

CASTELLANE, a Town of France in Provence, in the Dioceſe of Zenoz, with the Title of a Barony, Bailiwick, and a Seneſchal's Seat of the Province; it's ſeated in the Mountains, and is taken by ſome Authors to be the Civitas Salinientium; it was formerly built upon a Rock, and in 1260 the Inhabitants rebuilt it near the River Verdon, which has a Bridge over it there.

CASTELLANETA, a Town of Italy in the Kingdom of Naples, in the Province of Otranto, with a Biſhoprick, under the Archbiſhop of Tarentum. It lies upon the little River Talvo, 7 or 8 miles from the Gulph of Tarentum, between Matera and Motula.

CASTELLESI, known under the Name of Adrian of Corneto, Cardinal and Biſhop of Hereford in England; He was of Corneto, where he was born of poor Parents, yet was one of thoſe of his time that made the greateſt progreſs in the Latin Tongue, and beſt imitated Cicero. Beſides his Skill in this Tongue, he was well vers'd in Greek, Hebrew, Divinity, and other Sciences, and more particularly in the Works of the Holy Fathers. This Learning made him much eſteemed at Rome by Pope Innocent VIII. who ſent him Nuncio to Scotland. It was in this laſt Voyage that he made himſelf great Friends in England, and got into Henry the Seventh's favour, who firſt made him Biſhop of Hereford, and then of Bath. Upon his return to Rome Pope Alexander VI. Succeſſor to Innocent, imployed him in his Buſineſs, made him Secretary, and afterwards a Cardinal in 1503. the very year that this Pope poiſon'd himſelf in Cardinal Corneto's Garden. This Cardinal was of the number of the Baniſh'd, for Cæſar Borgia was too jealous of his Power, and had too great a mind to his Wealth to let him live quiet. He quitted Rome under the Pontificate of Pope Julius II. who perſecuted Alexander the Sixth's Favourites, and afterwards fled in Leo the Tenth's time, being then convicted of Conſpiring with Cardinal Alfonſus Pettruci, who had a mind to make the Pope away. He was then declared uncapable of his Cardinalſhip, and that he had forfeited the Character of Prieſt and Clergyman. After this Misfortune, he hid himſelf for ſome time at Venice, and afterwards at Ricca in the Dioceſe of Trent, where he made this following Epitaph for his intimate Friend Polydorus Caſamicus:

> Exulat Adrianus: tu jam Polydore quieſcis
> Æternumque vales, nobis dira omnia reſtant.

After this, he withdrew to Conſtantinople, where he died a little after. He compoſed ſome Works, and amongſt the reſt one, Entituled, De Vera Philoſophia, drawn out of the Writings of St. Jerom, St. Ambroſe, St. Auguſtin, and St. Gregory. Onuphre. Polydorus Virg.

CASTELNAU, (Michael) Lord of Mauviſſiere and Concreſſau, Baron of Joinville, &c. He liv'd in the Sixteenth Age, under the Reign of Francis II. and Charles IX. he was much imploy'd in the Affairs of theſe times, being Counſellor of State, and Ambaſſador in England in 1571. He was alſo Knight of the King's Order, and Governor of St. Dizier: It was he that left the Memoirs of the moſt conſiderable things that he had ſeen in England and France, under the Reigns of thoſe Two Kings I named, which were firſt Printed in a Volume in Quarto in 1621. and afterwards in Folio.

CASTELNAUDARI, a Town of France in Languedoc, Capital of the County of Lauragais, where King Henry II. eſtabliſh'd a Preſidial in 1553. Latin Authors call it Caſtellum Arianorum, or Caſtellavium Auracium, between Toulouſe and Carcaſſonne, near St. Papoul, in a very fertile Territory; here are a great many Manufactures, eſpecially Woollen. The Town is remarkable for the Battel fought there in 1632. between Mareſchal Schomberg and the Duke of Orleans's Army, wherein Count Moret was kill'd, and Henry Duke of Montmorency wounded and taken, who was afterwards beheaded in Toulouſe.

CASTEL-ZARAZIN, a little Town of France upon the Frontiers of Languedoc and Quercy, towards Montauban and Moiſſac, about the place where the Tarn and Garonne meet; Its ſituation is low, but yet is ſtrong, being renown'd from Charles Martel's time; for it was thence he took his Name, and thereabouts he had ſeveral conflicts with the Saracens: This Town alſo ſhar'd in the Civil-Wars.

CASTELVETRO, (Lewis) born at Modena in the Sixteenth Century. He wrote Notes upon Ariſtotle's Book of Poetry, which are very much eſteem'd. Thuanus Hiſt. Lib. 50. Lorenzo Craſſo. Elog. de Huom. Letter.

CASTIGLIONE, a Town of Italy, in the hither Calabria, with the Title of a Principality.

CASTILE, a Kingdom of Spain in Europe, ſituate in the Twelfth Degree of Longitude, and the Thirty ninth of Latitude, between Biſcay, Navarre, Aragon, and the Kingdom of Valencia, which it has to the Eaſt, Galicia and Portugal to the Weſt, the Aſturies and Biſcaye along the Cantabrick Ocean to the North, and Andalouſia, Granada and Murcia to the South. It's generally divided into Old and New-Caſtile: The Capital of the firſt is Burgos an Archbiſhops See; its other Towns are Valadolid, the Reſidence of ſome Kings of Spain formerly; Palanca, Salamanca, whoſe Univerſity is very famous. Numantia, that made ſo great a Reſiſtance againſt the Romans, was in this Province, but there is not the leaſt ſign of it now. The Capital of New-Caſtile is Toledo, the Archbiſhop whereof is Primate of Spain: The other Cities are Madrid, the ordinary Reſidence of the Kings of Spain, from which the Monaſtery of St. Laurence, called the Eſcurial, a very Magnificent Structure built by Philip II. is but at 5 Leagues diſtance to the Weſtward. Alcala of Henarez is alſo famous for the Univerſity founded by Cardinal Ximenes. Caſtile was Govern'd by Counts in Ferdinand Gonzales's time, who liv'd in 930. until Garcia's days, who died in 1029 Iſſueleſs, and left the Sovereignty to Nunna his Siſter, Wife to Sancho the Great King of Navarre, who made this a Kingdom; and Ferdinand the Second, King of Leon, Heir to his Nephew Henry King of Caſtile, united the Two Kingdoms about the year 1217. It was united to Arragon under Ferdinand and Iſabella in 1474. if we count after the death of Henry King of Caſtile, or in 1479. to begin from the time that Jean, Daughter to Henry IV. became a Nun in the Convent of the Conumbrienſes, when ſhe obſerv'd that the Portugueſes, from whom ſhe expected Succour, had agreed with Ferdinand and Iſabella. It's ſaid, That the Ancient Caſtile had its Name from a Caſtle that was made to oppoſe the Moors; both theſe Kingdoms have good Cities, but the Country is full of Mountains. Mariana. Turquet.

CASTILE D'OR, or New-Caſtile, a Country in Southern America, which has the Country of the Caribbes and Guiana to the Eaſt, the Pacifick-Sea to the Weſt, Peru to the South, and the Kingdom of the Amazones to the North. It was called New-Caſtile, becauſe it was the Caſtilians that diſcover'd it in Columbus's Third Voyage to America, and it's nam'd Caſtile d'Or, or Golden Caſtile, from the Golden Mines that are found in it, eſpecially in the Province of Uraba. Its principal Provinces are Panama, Carthagena, Uraba, the Province of St. Martha, of Rio de la Hacha, of Venezuela, Comana, Paria, New-Andaluſia, and New-Grenada. The moſt conſiderable Rivers are, San-Juan, or, Rio Grande del Darien; Rio Caucha, or, Rio Grande de Santa Martha; Rio Grande de Santa Madalena; and Rio de Paria, or, Orinoque. The Places near the Sea are not ſo healthful becauſe they are moiſt, as the Places farther in the Country that lie drier. There are ſome Places ſo very fertile, that they yield two Crops in a year; The Trees bear excellent Fruit, and extraordinary good Balſam, if People will take the pains to make Inciſions in due times: This Balm is in as great eſteem amongſt the Spaniards, as that was formerly which was brought out of Egypt. There are alſo many Lakes, Fountains and Rivers, which yield very wholeſom Waters, but there are ſome alſo that are very dangerous. The Water of Darien in Panama engenders Toads when it's ſpilt upon the Ground. In the Foreſts, and upon the Mountains, are great numbers of Lions, Tigers, and other wild and fierce Beaſts. There were alſo ſome Gold Mines, but the Spaniards have quite drain'd them, ſo that there are now but ſome Silver, and thin ones; formerly alſo People Fiſh'd very fine Pearls along the Shoar, but now they are very rare. The Inhabitants are Tawny, their Hair very Black and Curl'd, went formerly quite naked, hiding only their Privy Members in Shells or Gourds which they tied round their Reins; but now they are much civiliz'd, and hang a piece of Cloath before them. They love to Carouſe and Dance, and are naturally very Violent and Paſſionate: There are ſome that live on Crows, Bats, Graſhoppers, and upon the very Spiders. The Women Houſewife their Buſineſs at home, and Till the Land, whilſt the Men make War againſt their Neighbours, and paſs their time in Fiſhing and Hunting. Their Arms are Bows and Arrows, which they dip in the Juice of certain Herbs, and ſome Serpents Blood to Poiſon them; ſo that whomſoever they wound, if he does not immediately cut off the infected part, it ſwells all the Body, and he dies mad ſoon after. Thoſe that live in the Mountains are Idolaters ſtill, and worſhip the Sun and Moon, taking one for the Husband and the other for the Wife; yet they believe the Immortality of the Soul, That there is a Reward for the Good, and a Puniſhment for the Evil. Their Prieſts whom they call Piaces, are their Phyſicians too. The Spaniards, though they are Maſters of this Country, yet they were never able to reduce the Mountaniers, but were forc'd to build Forts round about the Hills to ſecure themſelves from their Incurſions: It's remarkable that theſe Forts are not cover'd with Stone, becauſe the Earth has that property, that after it's wetted it dries and hardens like a Stone. Herrera. Laet.

CASTILLON, a ſmall Town in Perigord in France, near Dordogne Saint Foy, Puy Normand, and Libourne, it's famous for the Victory gain'd by the French over the Engliſh under Charles VII. The firſt had beſieged Caſtillon, and Sir John Talbot, one of the beſt Officers of thoſe days, endeavouring to ſuccour it, was kill'd with a Son of his the 17th of July 1453. The remainder of the Engliſh Body was alſo routed; ſo that this ſerv'd to drive them all together out of Guienne, whereof they were Maſters a long time before.

CASTINUS, General of an Army, was ſent into Spain by the Emperor Honorius, to oppoſe and put a ſtop to the Violence and Oppreſſion of the Vandals and Alains; where his haughty Spirit render'd him inſupportable to Count Boniface, a Man that had gain'd much Credit in the War, and who for this Reaſon withdrew into Africa. Caſtinus ſoon experienc'd his loſs of ſo neceſſary a Companion for a good ſucceſs of the buſineſs truſted to him; for a ſhort time after, having beſieged his Enemies, inſtead of taking them upon compoſition as they deſir'd, he came to a Battel ſo unſeaſonably, that near 20000 of the Roman Soldiers were defeated, and he himſelf forc'd to fly to Tarragona. This happen'd in 423. and the year following Honorius dying of a Dropſie, the chief Secretary of State, and Præfectus Prætorio, uſurp'd the Empire by Caſtinus's aſſiſtance; but loſt his Life in 425. and Caſtinus was exil'd, who in that ſad condition went into Africa, where Count Boniface, who was then Governor there, receiv'd him at the Inſtance of St. Auguſtin.

CASTOR and Pollux, believed to be Brothers to Helena, and Sons of Jupiter, and Leda, Wife to Tyndarus; they follow'd Jaſon to Colchis for the Conqueſt of the Golden Fleece, where they ſignaliz'd themſelves very much: Jupiter made Pollux Immortal; but Caſtor being killed, and Pollux deſiring that he might have part of his Immortality, Jupiter ſhar'd it between both, ſo that they Liv'd and Died by turns, and were plac'd in Heaven, and made the Sign of the Twins, or Gemini. This Fable was grounded upon this, That theſe two Stars are never both ſeen at a time. The Romans built them a Temple, and look'd upon them as their Protectors, believing that they had defended them upon ſeveral Occaſions; They were alſo Honour'd as Gods of the Sea, becauſe they had clear'd it of Pirates. Antiquity alſo took them for a kind of Meteor or Ignis fatuus, which ſhin'd like a Star, and promiſed well when they appeared both together, but were an ill Omen when they appear'd ſingly. Thô the Ancients ſeem to have never taken notice of more than one or two of theſe Fires, yet it is known by Experience, that People in the ſame Fleet, and ſometimes in the ſame Ship, have obſerved four or five of them, which are now called St. Elme's Fire by the Spaniards, who keep a ſolemn Feaſt for this Saint, eſpecially in Guipuſcoa in Biſcay, and at Thuy in Galicia, becauſe they look upon him as the Guardian and Protector of Seamen. Alex. Roſs, in his Treatiſe of the Religions of the World, makes this Obſervation, That by Caſtor and Pollux, the Ancients underſtood the Sun and Moon, which may be ſaid to divide Immortality, ſince one generally ſucceeds the other, and live and die to us according as they are over or under our Horizon.

CASTOR, an Amphibious Animal, otherwiſe called a Beaver, in Latin Fiber, or Canis Ponticus. It lives half the time in Water, and the other half on Land, is of a White or Aſh-colour, has very ſharp Teeth; Its Fore-feet are like a Dog, and its hindermoſt reſemble Geeſes Feet, having each five Toes. What was formerly ſaid, That this Beaſt being purſued, did uſe to tear its own Stones out, is found falſe; for beſides that Pliny ſays, That Seſtius a famous Phyſician, very well skill'd in the Secrets of Nature, denies this Particular; Mr. Gendron's Letter writ from Canada, which is to be ſeen in Davity, at the end of the Tome of America, gives us theſe following Particulars of this Beaſt: That it's the chiefeſt Wealth of the Country, its Fleſh ſerves the Inhabitants for Food, its Skin for Raiment, and they have ſo many of them, that they Truck and Exchange them for the other Commodities they want: And finally, That what is ſold the Apothecaries for the real Stones or Cods of Caſtor, is nothing but certain Glands that are found near the Flank and Share, the true Stones being cut out and thrown away by the Huntſmen as ſoon as they catch the Beaſt, that they ſhould not infect either the Fleſh or Skin. He adds, That this Animal builds his Cabin or Lodge upon the Banks of Lakes and Rivers with an admirable Induſtry; forming it of Wood and Earth, with two or three Stories ſo cunningly contriv'd, that it can hardly be ſurprized, having a Paſſage into the Water, if the Huntſman comes on the Land ſide, and a Place to take to the Land, if the Enemy comes on the Waters ſide.

CASTOR of Rhodes, a Greek Hiſtorian and Rhetorician at Marcelles. Strabo, and ſome other Authors, affirm, That this Caſtor was Son-in-Law to Dejotarus King of Galatia, who put him and his Wife to Death: Suidas adds, That this Prince would not have gone to this Extremity, had not Caſtor caluminiated and miſrepreſented him to Cæſar. The Criticks are at a loſs, whether this Caſtor, againſt whom Cicero pleaded for King Dejotarus, is the Perſon above-mentioned, or whether it was his Son, or his Grandſon: The Inquiſitive Reader may conſult Voſſius, where the Controverſie is diſintangled. *Voſ.Hiſt.Gr. C.*24.*P.158.&c.*

CASTORIUS, a certain African Biſhop, living in the Fifth Century. He's mentioned in the Acts of the Council of Milevus, conven'd in 402. where he was made Biſhop upon the following Account: Maximianus, who had quitted the Schiſm of the Donatiſts, perceiving himſelf unacceptable to his People, becauſe he had formerly been engag'd in a Schiſmatical Party, very Chriſtianly reſolv'd to give them ſatisfaction, and deſired the Fathers of the Council, that he might have liberty to reſign his Biſhoprick; the Prelates approved of his Reſolution; and to ſhew their reſpect to him, made this Caſtorius, who was his Brother, Biſhop in his place. St. *Auſtin. Epiſt.*217.

CASTRATIUS was Magiſtrate at Plaiſance in Sylla's time, when the Conſul Cneius Carbo came from Marius thither to require Hoſtages, leſt that Town ſhould take the part of Sylla his Enemy. The better to frighten Caſtratius into a Compliance, he told him he had many Swords; to which Caſtratius made anſwer, That he himſelf had many Years, intimating, without doubt, that he would oppoſe his Prudence and long Experience to that Strength and the Forces he was threatned with. Valerius Maximus.

CASTRES, a Town in the Upper Languedoc in France, with a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Albi, and ſtands upon the River Agout. St. Marthe. Gall. Chriſt. &c.

CASTRO, a Town and Dutchy in Italy, towards the Patrimony of St. Peter. The Town belong'd to the Duke of Parma, and had a Biſhoprick depending immediately on the Holy See, and was ſituated 10 or 12 miles off the Sea, near Toſcanello and Corneto, ſurrounded with Precipices that rendered the Avenues very difficult. Pope Innocent X. ſent a Biſhop to reſide and Govern the People of this Town; but this Prelate was kill'd, which made the Pope ſend the the Count of Videman, General of his Troops, to demoliſh it in 1646. The Biſhoprick was transferred to Aquapendente. The Dutchy of Caſtro, or Statio di Caſtro, belonging now to the Holy See, derived its Name from this Town: It has the Patrimony of St. Peter to the Eaſt, the Siennois to the Weſt, the Mediterranean to the South, and the Land of Orviette to the North. Pope Paul III. gave the State of Parma and Plaiſance to Peter Lewis Farneſe his Son, Duke of Caſtro, who was kill'd in 1541. by Charles V's Party; for though that Duke was Married to the King's Natural or Baſtard Daughter, yet this Prince could not ſuffer that he ſhould poſſeſs Plaiſance, which he pretended did belong to Milan, and for that reaſon ſeiz'd it immediately after that Murder. Peter Lewis left four Sons, Octavius Duke of Parma, Horace Duke of Caſtro, Alexander Cardinal, and Rainuccio alſo a Cardinal and Archbiſhop. Since this time, the Popes pretended that theſe States were feudatory to the Church, which occaſion'd great Wars under Pope Urban VIII. and Innocent X. The laſt demoliſhed the Town of Caſtro, as it was ſaid before, and in 1649. agreed to let the Duke of Parma have that Dutchy, upon payment of a conſiderable Sum of Money, which being not paid, the Eſtate was as it were forfeited to the Apoſtolical Chamber until the Treaty of Piſa, between Pope Alexander VII. and Lewis XIV. that Pope bound himſelf to revoke that Incameration or Forfeiture, and to allow the Duke of Parma eight years to releaſe his Lands. Caprarola, the fine Palace, built by Cardinal Alexander Farneſe, is in this Dutchy.

CASTRO, a Town of Italy, in the Kingdom of Naples, and Land of Otranto, which has a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Otranto, ſituated upon the Ionian Sea, between Otranto and Alezano, and is taken by ſome for the Caſtrum Minervæ of the Ancients. The Turks very often Plundered and made ſad havock in it, as in 1537. when they Pillag'd the Town, kill'd and made Slaves of the greateſt part of the Inhabitants. Yet it is pretty well recovered ſince. There are ſome other Towns of this Name, as Caſtro Vilare, a Dukedom of the hithermoſt Calabria near Caſſano. Caſtro, a Town in the Iſle of Meleos. Caſtro Novo in Abbruzo. One in the Campagnie or Plain of Rome: And another in the Baſilicata.

CASTRO, (John of) a Portugueſe, and one of thoſe that ſignalized himſelf moſt in the Conqueſt of the Eaſt-Indies, being once pinch'd for Money, he cut off one of his Muſtachio's, and deſired to borrow 20000 Piſtoles upon it of the Inhabitants of Goa; They lent him the Money, which he ſoon repaid, and ſo releaſed the valuable Pawn.

CASTRO, (Alphonſus) a Spaniard, born at Zamora, in the 16th Century, and a Franciſcan Monk: He was much eſteemed by the Emperor Charles V. and attended Philip II. into England, when he Married Queen Mary; He was nominated Archbiſhop of Compoſtella, but died at Bruſſels before he had received his Inſtruments. He is counted a conſiderable Author by thoſe of the Church of Rome. His Works publiſhed by Feuardentius, are, *Adverſus Hæreſes Lib.*14. De juſta Hæreticorum Punitione. De Poteſtate Legis Pænalis. In Pſalmum 50. Homiliæ 25. In Pſalmum 31. Homiliæ 24. The Life of this Author is ſet before his Works. Eiſengreinius Teſt. Verit. Andreas Schottus. Nich. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp.

CASTRO, (Ann) a Spaniſh Lady, famous in the Writings of Lopez de Vega; She had a great deal of Wit, and wrote ſome things very ingeniouſly: Amongſt others, a Book called, Eternidad del Rey D. Felippe III. Printed at Madrid 1629. Lopez de Vega in Lauro Apollin. Nich.Anton. Bibl.Hiſp.

CASTRO, (Ferdinand) Died at Compoſtella in 1633. and left a Book of Morality in three Volumes, called *Operis Moralis de Virtutibus & Vitiis, Tom.*3. Ribadineira & Alegamb. De Script. Soc. J. &c.

CASTRO, (Leo) Canon of Valladolid in Spain, lived in the 16th Century. He was very much eſteemed at Salamanca, for his Skill in Hebrew and Greek, and for the Application of his Skill in theſe Languages upon the Holy Scriptures: He maintained againſt Arrius Montanus, that the Vulgar and Septuagint Tranſlations were preferable to the Hebrew, which oblig'd him to write an Apology, call'd, Apologeticus pro Lectione Apoſtolica, pro vulgata D. Hieronymi, Pro Tranſlatione Septuaginta Virorum, Proq; omni Eccleſiaſtica Lectione contra earum Obtrectatores. He wrote likewiſe Commentaries upon Iſaiah and Hoſea. *Miræus, De Script. Sæc.*16.

CASTRO, (Roderick) a Portugueſe Phyſician, living in the beginning of the 17th Century. He practiſed in his Faculty, at Hamburg. His Works are mentioned with Commendation, by Zacuti and other Authors; They are, his Medicus Politicus. De Univerſa Mulierum Medicina. De Natura & Cauſis Peſtis. Nich. Anton. Script. Hiſp. Vander Linden de Script. Med. There was another Phyſician of the ſame Name, born at Lisbon in Portugal, who profeſſed Phyſick at Piſa in Italy, and was much valued for his Learning. He died in the Year 1637. His Works are, De Meteoris Microcoſmi. Lib. 5. De Complexu Morborum. De Potu refrigere rato. De Animalibus Microcoſmi, &c. Nich. Bibl. Hiſp. Zacutus, &c.

CASTRO, (Lewis) a Divine and Franciſcan, born at Liege, in the 17th Century. He wrote, The Diſ-union of the United Provinces of the Low-Countreys. The Examination and Confutation of the Synod of Dort, &c. Monſieur Morery makes him a conſiderable Man. Valer, Andr. Bibl. Belg. &c.

CASTRUCCIO Caſtracani, one of the moſt famous Commanders of his time, lived in the 14th Age, was of Lucca, and deſcended of the Family of Antelminelli; he bore Arms in his youth in favour of the Gibelins, and was therefore Baniſhed afterwards by the Guelphs; then he came to France, and in 1317 Liſted himſelf in King Philip the Long's Army, who was in War at that time with the Flemins, but ſoon after return'd into Italy, join'd with Uguecione Faggivota, chief of the Gibelins of Tuſcany, and made himſelf Maſter of Lucca, Piſtoia, and ſeveral other Towns, made Alliance with the Emperor Lewis of Bavaria, againſt Pope John XIII, Robert of Naples, and the Florentines. Lewis of Bavaria gave him the Inveſtiture of Lucca, under the Title of a Dutchy, and beſides this, made him Senator of Rome; ſo that nothing ſeem'd to oppoſe his Succeſs and Courage. Cardinal John Cajetan of Urſins, was at this time Legate in Italy, and endeavoured to take Caſtruccio Caſtracani, but not being able to compaſs his deſign, he Excommunicated him in 1326. which did but augment the Evil that did not end before the Death of the Tyrant of Lucca, in 1330. the 47th of his Age. He left two Sons who were not as ſucceſsful as he himſelf. Machiavel writ his Life, which is Tranſlated into French. S. Antonin.

CATACOMBS, Burying Places in Caves, near Rome, where the Primitive Chriſtians buried the Martyrs, and ſometimes abſconded there, to avoid the Perſecution of the Roman Emperors. There were ſeveral of theſe Catacombs, both within and without the Town; the moſt conſiderable, are thoſe of St. Agnes, St. Pancrace, Caliſtus, and St. Priſcilla. When the Lombards beſieged Rome, they deſtroy'd the greateſt Part of theſe Catacombs, which made Pope Paul and Paſchal remove the Saints Bones, and bury them in the Churches of St. Stephen, St. Silveſter, and St. Praxede. Roma Subterran. Some Learned Authors are of Opinion that theſe Catacombs were publick burying Places, for Slaves, poor People, and Malefactors, and made by the Heathens. See Dr. Burnet's Travels into Italy.

CATADUPI, People of Æthiopia, who live about the Cataracts or falls of the Nile, whoſe Noiſe gave them this Name, for δοῦπος ſignifies a Noiſe. Cicero mentions this Place in his Somnio Scipionis, and ſays, That the great Noiſe made by the fall of the Waters of the River Nile, from great heights upon Rocks, renders the People that live thereabouts, all naturally Deaf, by diſordering the Organs of Hearing. Senec. Quæſt. Nat. 4. 2.

CATALONIA, a Province of Spain, with Title of Principality. It's thought this Name is come from the Catti and Alani that lived there. The Pyrenees, and ſome Provinces of France, border it to the North; the Kingdoms of Arragon and Valencia are to the Weſt of it, and the Mediterranean to the Eaſt and South. Its Capital is Barcelona, which has a very fine Port. The other Towns are Tarragone, an Archbiſhoprick, Tortoſa, Gyronne, Lerida, Roſes, Solſona, Urgel, &c. The Country is very fertile, though full of Mountains: There are alſo ſeveral fine Ports, good Rivers, and a Commerce that enriches it mightily. In Catalonia are alſo the Dukedoms of Rouſillon and Cardonna, with the Monaſtery of Montferrat, famous for the great numbers of Pilgrims that come thither out of moſt parts of the World. Charles Martel aſſiſted the Catalonians againſt the Moors, who had eſtabliſhed their Empires in Spain. Lewis the Debonnair took Barcelona from theſe Infidels; and Catalonia had its particular Princes, until it was united to Arragon: Some pretend that it was made a County in 873. by Charles the Bald, and others think Charles the Burley erected it into a County in 884. Godfrey, or Wilfred the Hairy, firſt Hereditary Count of Catalonia, is the Stock or Head of the Family of the Princes who poſſeſſed that Country, as was ſaid before. The People of this Country put themſelves under the French in 1640. Joſeph Margarit being a great Inſtrument of the Revolution, in ſhaking off the Spaniſh Yoke, and ſubmitting to the Moſt Chriſtian King's, who kept their Viceroys and Governors there; but this Province became the Theatre and Seat of War for 20 years, until it was ordered by the 42 and 43 Articles of the Treaty of Peace, concluded between the Crowns of France and Spain in 1659. That the Pyrenean Mountains ſhould part both the Kingdoms; by which Agreement, Catalonia, and the County of Cardonna that are beyond the Mountains, were adjudged to the Spaniards; and the Counties of Rouſillon and Conflans, which are on this ſide, left to the French. Peter de Marca, Archbiſhop of Paris, has given a Deſcription of this Country in a Poſthumous Work, Printed at Paris 1688. called Marca Hiſpanica: In this Book, the Situation and Antiquity of the Towns are accounted for.

CATAMELITA, a Baker's Son of Nani in Italy, being ſent by his Father to cut Wood in the Foreſt, loſt his Ax, and being afraid to come home without it, follows a Horſeman that chanc'd to ride by to the Army; He behaved himſelf with ſuch great Courage upon all occaſions, that he got a Captain's Place, and was at laſt made General. The Venetians, to reward the great Service he did them in the War againſt Philip Duke of Milan, about the middle of the 15th Age, erected his Statue on Horſeback, which was a greater Honour than they ſhew'd the other Officers. Pontan.

CATANA, or Catania, a Town of the Iſle of Sicily, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Montreal: This was ſo conſiderable a Town the 287 year of Rome, that King Hiero died in it the 78th Olympiad, and at this very time one may ſee the remains of an Amphitheatre, with many Inſcriptions and other ſigns of its Antiquity. This Place, which Latin Authors call Catana, and ſome Catina, is in that part of Sicily, called Val de Demonia, upon a Gulph to which it gives its name, at the Mouth of the River Judicello, and is one of the greateſt Towns in Sicily; has a Caſtle built upon a high Rock, that ſecures the Entrance of the Port. Moſt of the Streets are long and ſtrait, and all lead to a fine large Place, where there are very fair Buildings. The Cathedral is a very ſumptuous Structure; its Portal being ſupported by 10 Marble Pillars; and though all this contribute to render Catana a very good Town, with its great Trade, and the Fruitfulneſs of its Soil; yet the Neighbourhood of Mount-Ætna is very prejudicial to it. This Mountain is 20 Miles off the Town, yet it has much damaged it at ſeveral times. Catana was almoſt deſtroy'd by an Earth-quake in 1693.

CATANEUS, (John Mary) of Novara, in Italy: He publiſhed Pliny's Epiſtles, with fine Notes upon 'em, which were printed at Milan in 1506. Paul. Jov. in Elog. Doct. c. 79. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat.

CATANZARO, a Town of Italy in the Kingdom of Naples, and farthermoſt Calabria, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan of Regio: Latin Authors call it Catacium and Catanzara, ſituate two or three miles from the Sea, between Squillace and Nicaſtro.

CATAONIA, a Town and Country of Aſia Minor, between Cilicie and Cappadocia, according to Cornelius Nepos his deſcription. Strabo, Lib. 12. ſays, That when he Travelled in them Parts, there was a Temple in this Town dedicated to Bellona, which they call'd Comana; and that though the Inhabitants were Subjects to the Kings of Cappadocia, yet they alſo paid Obedience to their Sovereign Prieſt, who had 60000 both Men and Women at his Command, all devoted to that Goddeſſes Service: He alſo adds, That this Sovereign Prieſt was the next Man in the State to the King himſelf, and was generally of the Royal Race, and that likely Oreſtes and his Siſter Iphigenia brought this kind of Worſhip from Schythia.

CATAPHRYGES, Hereticks that begun to appear in the ſecond Age; this Name was given them, becauſe the chiefeſt Promoters of this Hereſie came out of Phrygia. They followed Montanus his Errors, laughed at the Ancient Prophets, to gain a greater Credit for their own Doctors, corrupted the Form of Baptiſm, Chriſtened the Dead, and made up the Bread of Communion, or Euchariſt, with young Childrens Blood; They prick'd theſe poor Innocent Babes with Needles, and when the Children died in the Torment, which happened very often, the Cataphryges invoked them as Martyrs, and Liſted thoſe that 'ſcap'd in the Number of their Prieſts. St. Epiph. St. Auguſt.

CATARACTS, a Name the Ancients gave the high and broken Places whence Waters fell, and thus they call the fallings of the Water too, as of the Nile, of the Rhine below Schafhauſe. There is alſo a Place in the Danube very dangerous for Navigation, which has been formerly called Cataract, and is now called Sewreſſel, according to Lazius: It's below Lintz in Auſtria; Caſcati di Tivoli in Italy, was alſo called by this Name.

CATARO, or Catarro, a Town of Dalmatia belonging to the Venetians, well Fortified againſt the Turks, and is the Seat of an Archbiſhoprick, ſuffragan of Raguſa; Latin Authors call it Catharum and Cathara; and Le Noir takes it to be the Aſcrivium of Ptolemy and Pliny; yet it's more likely that was Caſtle-novo, or ſome other Place. Let it be what it will, Cataro is ſeated upon a Gulf, to which it gives its Name, and is defended by a Caſtle built upon a Hill: The Turks have often endeavour'd to carry it.

CATAY, the Northern part of China, which comprehends the ſix Provinces of Pekin, Xantung, Honan, Suchuen, Xenſi and Xanſi; the Southern Part that comprehends nine Provinces, is called Mangin. Theſe are the Names that the very Moors and Tartars give both theſe Parts of China. In former times People thought that Catay was a Kingdom of great Tartary; but our late accounts make appear, that all which was heretofore written of Catay, agrees exactly with what has been lately publiſhed of the ſix Northern Provinces of China, and that the Town of Cambalu is what is now commonly called Pekin. Martin Martini.

CATECHISE, a Word derived from the Greek κατήχησις, which ſignifies an Inſtruction, or teaching by word of Mouth, is a ſhort and methodick way of teaching the Myſteries of Faith, or Religion; for in former times, theſe Myſteries were not delivered in writing, leſt they might fall into the hands of Infidels, who might ridicule and laugh at them for want of the Knowledge of their true Meaning. John Gerſon, Chancellor of the Univerſity of Paris, amongſt his other Occupations, gloried in Inſtructing and Catechizing Children; and uſed to anſwer thoſe that adviſed him to apply himſelf to ſome more conſiderable Employments, That he believed there was none ſo neceſſary and glorious as what he did. Gerſon.

CATECHUMENS, a Name given, in the firſt Ages of the Church, to the Gentiles and Jews who were prepared and inſtructed to receive Baptiſm: This Name comes from the Greek Word κατηχεῖν, which ſignifies to teach by word of mouth, or viva voce; and of that word is formed this other, κατηχούμενος, which denotes him that is taught ſo: Theſe had People a purpoſe to learn them. Euſebius, in his Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, makes mention of Pantenus, Clemens, and Origen, who were Catechiſts in the Church of Alexandria, and had a particular Place in the Church, where they uſed to Teach, which was called the Place of the Catechumens, as appears by the Canons of the Council of Neocæſarea. The Catechumens were not permitted to aſſiſt at the Celebration of Maſs; for immediately after the Goſpel was read, the Deacon cried with a loud Voice, Withdraw in peace, you Catechumens; as appears by the Book of Apoſtolical Conſtitutions. The Service, from the beginning to the Offertory, was called Miſſa Catechumenorum. The Catechumens had only ſome of the Panis Benedictus given them; for, not being Baptized, they were not to receive,nor not ſo much as permitted to ſee the conſecrated Elements in the Euchariſt. They were not allowed to pray with the Faithful, or thoſe in full Communion, as appears by a Canon of the Council of Orange. There were ſeveral Degrees of Favour in the State of the Catechumens: At firſt, they were inſtructed privately, or by themſelves, and afterwards admitted to hear Sermons in the Church: Theſe latter were called Audientes. There was a third Rank of Catechumens called Orantes, or Genuflectentes, becauſe they were preſent, and concerned in ſome part of the Prayers. Theſe three Diſtinctions are explained by Albaſpinæus, Biſhop of Orleans, in his ſecond Book of Obſervations of the Ancient Rites of the Church. To theſe we may add a fourth Degree of the Catechumens, which is the Competentes; for ſo they were called when they demanded Baptiſm. St. Aug. Serm. de Temp. 116. 237. Morin. de Pœnitentia.

CATELET upon Eſcaut, a little but ſtrong Town of France in Picardy, upon the Frontiers of Hainault and Cambreſis: The Spaniards,that took it in 1557. reſtor'd it again in 1559. and being Maſters of it alſo in the laſt Age, yielded it up by the 40th Article of the Peace of the Pyrenées, in 1659.

CATERLAGH, Catherlough, Carlough, a Town in the Province of Leinſter in Ireland, on the Weſt-ſide of the River Barrow, thirty miles South-Weſt of Dublin; which Lionel Duke of Clarence began to Wall, and Bellingham, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, fortified with a Caſtle. This is alſo the Head of a County of the ſame Name.

CATHANCE, a Name that the Novatian Schiſmaticks choſe in the Third Age, to expreſs, by this Term, which ſignifies Purity, That they had no hand in the Crime of thoſe unfortunate and wicked People who denied their Faith in their Torments, and refuſed to admit of them to do Penance. They wore a white Habit, or Robe, as an Apparel that became the Purity of their Conſcience, and denied that the Church had the Power to Remit or Forgive Sins. Baronius, Euſebius, Socrates.

CATHEDRAL: By this Word is underſtood the Epiſcopal Church of any Place, and it comes of the Word Cathedra, or Epiſcopal See; for in former times the Prieſts compoſed the ancient Presbyterium with their Biſhops, and were ſeated in Chairs after the faſhion of the Jews Conſiſtories; and the Biſhop that preſided in the Aſſembly, ſat in a Chair raiſed above all the reſt; whence to this very time they obſerve the Feaſts of St. Peter's Chair at Rome and Antioch. But theſe Cathedrals of ancient times are not to be confounded with ours; becauſe the Word Church in them ſignified an Aſſembly of Chriſtians, and not Temples as they are built now; for the Chriſtians were not privileged to have any ſuch before Conſtantine the Great's time.

CATHERINE, a Virgin-Saint of Alexandria: She is ſaid to have been ſo Learned, that at the Age of 18 years, ſhe diſputed againſt, and got the better of 50 Philoſophers, and ſuffered at laſt in the year 307. under Maximin's Reign. Baron. Bede, &c.

St. CATHERINE of Sienna, a Nun of the Third Order of St. Dominick: She lived in the Fourteenth Age, came to Avignon to bring the Florentines to a good Underſtanding and Agreement with Pope Gregory XI. who had Excommunicated them. This Holy Virgin gained upon him ſo much, that he immediately left France, and paſſed into Italy, and arrived at Rome in 1377. re-eſtabliſhed there the Pontifical Seat, ſeventy years after Pope Clement V. had tranſported it to France. There are ſeveral Printed Letters attributed to this Saint, with ſome little Treatiſes of Devotion. She died in 1380. being the thirty third year of her age, and was Canonized by Pius II. in 1461. Bzovius.

CATHERINE of Medicis, Queen of France, was the only Daughter and Heireſs of Lawrence of Medicis, Duke of Urbin, and Madelaine de la Tour of Auvergné: She was born at Florence the 13th of April, 1591. Her Marriage was treated of and concluded at Marſeilles in 1513. with Henry of France, then Duke of Orleans, and ſince Dauphin, and after King, and Second of that Name. All this Buſineſs was concluded during the Interview of Pope Clement VII. and King Francis I. She was Crowned after the King her Father-in-Law's death, at St. Denys, the 10th of July, 1549. and after 10 years Barrenneſs, bore 10 Children, the Eldeſt whereof being Francis II. was but 16 years of age when his Father Henry II. was unfortunately killed in 1559. One of her Sons and two of her Daughters died very young: Four Sons ſurvived, viz. Francis, Charles, Alexander, and Hercules: Theſe two laſt had their Names changed when they were confirmed, the firſt being then named Henry, the ſecond Francis. The firſt three Reigned one after the other, and neither continued his Poſterity. The three Daughters were, Iſabella, who was Married to Philip II. King of Spain; Claude, Married to Charles III. Duke of Lorrain; and Margaret, that was Wife to Henry of Bourbon, King of Navarre, and afterwards of France, under the Name of Henry IV. This Princeſs was thrice Regent of the Kingdom; the firſt time, during her Husband's abſence when he went to Lorrain in 1552. the ſecond time in Charles IX.'s Minority; the third time was after this Prince's Death, until Henry III. came back from Poland, where he was choſen King. The Civil Wars, the Uneaſineſs and Diſcontent of the Great Men, together with the Corruption of the Commonalty, gave her ſo much Subject of Trouble, that her Management of Things was not liked by all People. She permitted a Conference at Poiſi between the R. Catholicks and Proteſtants, in 1561. publiſhed an Edict for Liberty of Conſcience the year after; which, with the Privileges ſhe allowed them, and her readineſs to yield them what they deſired, got her the Hatred of the other Party, and the Cenſure of the Writers, who accuſed her of much Ambition, little Devotion, and to be the cauſe of all the Evils that befel the Kingdom. She died at the Caſtle of Blois of Grief, if we believe ſome People, for the Maſſacre of the Duke and Cardinal of Guiſe, January 5. 1589. which was the ſeventieth of her Age. Her Body was not carried to St. Denys until the year 1610. and then it was entombed in the fine Chapel which ſhe began to build there her ſelf. Thuan. Mezeray.

CATHERINE of Arragon, or Spain, Queen of England, was Daughter to Ferdinand V. King of Arragon, and Elizabeth, or Iſabella, Queen of Caſtile, who bred her to Learning, Piety, and the Knowledge of Sciences, in which ſhe made conſiderable Progreſs. She was married the 14th of November, 1501. to Arthur Prince of Wales, Son of Henry VII. King of England, and apparent Heir to the Crown: This Prince dying five Months after, without conſummating the Marriage, as ſome ſay, ſhe was promiſed to Henry VIII. Arthur's Brother, which Pope Julius II. diſpenſed with; yet Henry VIII. when he aſcended the Throne, would hardly compleat the Marriage, until his Council made him ſenſible how important it was to effect it. He married Catherine in 1509. who brought him a Son the next year; but this young Prince lived but three Months: Some time after ſhe was brought to bed of a Daughter, named Mary, which Reigned after King Edward VI. ſo that this Marriage continued pretty happy at firſt, until the King began to think of Divorcing the Queen. The Pope refuſed to authorize his Proceeding, alledging ſome Scruples of Conſcience, as Reaſons of his refuſal, though he had promiſed to licence it ſeveral times before. This Juggle and Breach of Word, put Henry upon ſeparating from the Communion of Rome, and publiſhing an Edict to forbid any one's calling Catherine a Queen, but only the Prince of Wales's Widow. Then this Princeſs being baniſhed to Kimbolton, one of the King's Houſes in the County of Bedford, compoſed Meditations upon the Pſalms, and a Treatiſe of the Sinner's Complaints; and died in 1536. being the third year after the Divorce. To ſay the Truth, this Queen's Age and Inclinations bore no juſt Proportion with King Henry's; for as ſhe was four or five years elder than him, ſo ſhe ſurpaſſed him much in Virtue and Purity of Life. She bore her Misfortunes with great Patience and Conſtancy, imputing them to Cardinal Wolſey, as ſhe had juſt reaſon, when he came to ſee her along with Cardinal Campegi, Legate then in England. When ſhe felt the approach of Death, ſhe writ the King a Letter, which forced ſome Tears from him in the reading. Sanderus, Pol. Virgil. Burnet.

CATHERINE of Poland, Queen of Sweedland, Daughter of Sigiſmond I. King of Poland, and of Bonne S. Force, his ſecond Wife. King Sigiſmond Auguſtus gave her in Marriage to John, Prince of Sweedland and Duke of Finland, Son of Guſtavus I. and Brother to Eric XIV. King of the Swedes. This King, ſomewhat jealous of his Brother's Merit, impriſoned him in the Caſtle of Wiburg, whither Princeſs Catherine his Wife came and kept him company the ſeven years he was confined there, until at the end of that term, Eric ſet him at liberty, made him Viceroy of Sweedland, and gave him the famous Pontus of Gardie to be his Counſellor. A little while after, new Differences aroſe, and the Sweeds, diſſatisfied with their King's proceeding, impriſoned him, and placed Prince John upon the Throne. This Revolution happen'd in 1568. Hilar. de Coſte.

CATHERINE of Auſtria, Dutcheſs of Savoy, Daughter of Philip II. King of Spain, and of Elizabeth of France: She was promiſed in 1588. to Emanuel I. of that Name, Duke of Savoy, who went the next year to Spain, married her in Saragoſſa, and three Months afterwards brought her into his own Country: This Journey was very ſumptuous, which gave ſome Hiſtorians occaſion to ſay, That the Dutcheſs's Portion was leſs than the Charges the Duke was at in his Voyage to fetch her. She died at Turin in 1597. being but 30 years of age, and left 5 Sons and 4 Daughters. Guichenon Hiſt. Savoy.

CATHERINE of Portugal, Dutcheſs of Bragança, Daughter to Edward II. of that Name, King of Portugal: She married John of Portugal, ſecond of that Name that was Duke of Bragança, and had a happy Iſſue, amongſt the reſt Theodoſius II. Father to John IV. King of Portugal, in 1640. Catherine being Right Heir of this Eſtate, diſputed the Poſſeſſion with Philip II. of Spain, in 1580. She was a Courageous and very Witty Princeſs, well skilled in the Greek and Latin Tongues, as alſo in the Mathematicks and other curious Sciences, which ſhe carefully inſtructed her Children in. She died in 1582. Nicholas Antonio.

CATHERINE of France, Queen of England, youngeſt Daughter of Charles VI. of France, and Iſabella of Bavaria. In the year 1420. ſhe was married to Henry V. of England; this Prince died two years after, and the Queen privately married Owen Tudor, a Welſh-man. By her firſt Husband ſhe had Henry VI. King of England; and by her ſecond ſhe had Edmond Earl of Richmond, Father to Henry VII. King of England. Du Cheſ. Hiſt. d'Angl. &c.

CATHERINE of Auſtria, Queen of Portugal, Daughter to Philip Duke of Auſtria, and Joan Queen of Caſtile, and Siſter to the Emperor Charles V. She was married to John III. King of Portugal, in 1525. She was a Princeſs of great Probity and Devotion, and Governed the Kingdom very prudently under the Minority of her Grandſon Sebaſtian. Franciſc. Andrada. Vida de D. Juan III. &c.

CATHOLICK is a Greek Word which ſignifies Univerſal, and is a Sirname which is given to the True Church, as may be ſeen in the Apoſtle's Creed, Credo Sanctam Eccleſiam Catholicam. It ſhews the Univerſality of the Church ſpread in all Times, Places, and amongſt all the Nations of the Earth, according to what our Saviour ſaid to the Apoſtles after His Reſurrection, when He ſent them to Preach His Doctrine throughout all the World, Acts 1. 8. See St. Aug. Epiſt. 107. againſt Petilian. And tho' this Title of right did belong to no other than the True Church, nevertheleſs the Donatiſts did attribute it to their Sect, as have ſeveral Hereticks after them. In ancient times, the Word Catholick was a Title of Dignity, which ſignified a Primate, or Patriarch, according to Tyrius and other Authors. In ſucceeding Ages the King of Spain aſſumed this Title, for defending the True Religion. Ricaredus, King of the Goths in Spain, after he had driven the Arrians out of his Territories, in 585. was the firſt that was proclaimed Catholick, and this by the Council of Toledo. (Mariana, l. 7. c. 4. Vid. in his Chronology.) After him, Alphonſus, Pelagius's Son-in-Law, when he had gained ſeveral Victories over the Saracens, and re-eſtabliſhed the Chriſtian Faith in his Country, was Honoured with this Title in 738. (Vaſæus in his Chron. of Spain.) From this time we cannot obſerve that the Kings of Spain have been called Catholick, until Ferdinand, King of Arragon, after he had cleared all his Kingdom of the Moors, reaſſumed that Sirname in 1492. which is ſince that time become hereditary to his Succeſſors. But the Kings of Spain were not the only Princes to whom this Name was given; for we read in the Eighth Book of Paulus Æmilius, and the Firſt Book of Froiſard, That Philip of Valois, King of France, bore that Name, for defending the Rights of the Church. And it's thus the King of France takes the Title of Moſt Chriſtian King, and of Eldeſt Son of the Church: The King of Poland, that of Orthodox: The King of Navarre, of Moſt Faithful: And the Kings of Great Britain have retained the Title of Defender of the Faith, conferred upon Henry VIII. by Pope Leo X. before he ſeparated from the Communion of Rome.

CATILINE, deſcended of a Noble Family of Rome; a Man of ſo diſſolute and lewd a Life, that his extravagant Expences, in the frequent Debauches he made, reduced him to great neceſſity: This put him upon a Deſign to oppreſs his Country, exterminate the Senate, plunder and rifle the Publick Treaſury, and finally to ſet the City a-fire, the Roman Army being then abſent, and employed at the end of the World. To go on with this Enterprize, he corrupted Perſons of no mean Birth, and of conſiderable Employments, and made them Accomplices of this Madneſs, drinking, as an Earneſt of their ſtrict Union, Human Blood ſerved up in Cups. In the mean time, the Conſuls Cicero and Anthony came to hear of this Conſpiracy, in the 691ſt year of Rome, the wicked Undertaking being then diſcovered by Fulvia, a Lady of Quality. Cicero aſſembled the Senate, and in an eloquent Speech accuſed Catiline of the Deſign, and made it out to his Face; yet this ſerved for little elſe but to mind Catiline of ſaving himſelf; which he did, threatning publickly, That he would ſet fire to every Corner and Street of Rome. Then he went to Tuſcany, to Head the Troops he had raiſed there; but was defeated in the Field by Anthony, in the 692d year of Rome, at the very ſame time that his Accomplices were puniſhed in the Town. Plut. Flor Saluſt. Cicer.

CATILLUS, Biſhop of Lincoping in Sweedland, who generouſly delivered his Country from the Daniſh Yoke in the 15th Age. Which happened thus: Chriſtiern, King of Denmark taking the Advantage of the Diſgrace and Abſence of Canutus, who was baniſhed by a Faction of his Subjects, enters into Sweedland; upon which that Zealous and Dexterous Prelate goes to his Church, puts on his Pontifical Habit, as if juſt ready to officiate; but immediately pulls off all again, and lays them on the Altar, making a Solemn Vow, in the preſence of the Canons, never to retake them before he had reſtored his Country to its former Liberty; and at the ſame time takes Arms, and putting himſelf at the Head of the Canons, augments that ſmall Body with what Loyal Swedes he could bring together in haſte. Then feigning to fly away from the Danes, he drew them into narrow Paſſes amongſt the Ice, where they were never able to get clear, until they were moſt of them cut in pieces. After this bloody Battel, King Canutus was re-eſtabliſhed upon his Throne. Joan. Magnus.

CATIVULCUS, King of part of the Eburones, a People of the Old Gallia Belgica, now the Country of Liege: This Prince finding himſelf concerned in the Revolt of Ambiorix, and not being able to undergo the Fatigues of War, upon the account of his Age, nor willing to diſentangle himſelf diſhonourably, poiſoned himſelf with Yew, to prevent his falling into the hands of Cæſar. Jul. Cæſ. de Belg. Gall.

CATO, (Marcus Porcius) Sirnamed the Cenſor, Native of Tuſculum. Before he went to the Wars, he lived in the Country of the Sabines, where he had a very fine Houſe, but came to Rome at the ſollicitation of Valerius Flaccus, where he was choſen Tribune of the Soldiers for the Province of Sicily, about the 549th, or 50th year of Rome; and was afterwards made Quæſtor; in which Office he behaved himſelf very modeſtly under Scipio in Africa; yet diſagreeing with him afterwards, he came back to Rome, to accuſe him to the Senate. Afterwards he was raiſed to the Dignity of Prætor, which he rendred Venerable by his Juſtice; ſubdued Sardinia in 556. where ſome ſay he was inſtructed in the Greek Tongue by Ennius, and Ruled that Province with much Moderation. In 559. he was choſen Conſul with the ſame L. Valerius Flaccus that adviſed him to come to Rome, and uſed all his Endeavours to maintain the Oppian Law. The next year he reduced ſome People of Spain, and afterwards Commanded a Legion in the Wars of Syria; poſted himſelf at the Streights of Thermopylæ, whence he had beat the Enemies Garriſon; and gave great Proof of his Courage in his Engagements againſt Antiochus the Great; which got him a particular Veneration, eſpecially amongſt the Grecians; and at his return was made Cenſor, which was one of the moſt important Offices in the Commonwealth, wherein he behaved himſelf with farmore Integrity than any of his Predeceſſors before him: He accuſed the Bad, was much againſt their Luxury and Exceſs, and condemned Offenders without the leaſt Partiality; ſo that his Enemies, who did very often, and were always ready to accuſe him, were never able, with their Calumnies, to ſtain his Innocence in the leaſt. He was pretty well in years when he began to learn the Greek Tongue. He commonly repented for three things: 1. For ſpending a Day without learning ſomewhat. 2. For imparting a Secret to a Woman. 3. For going by Water, when he could as well go by Land. At 80 years of age he married a young Woman called Salonia, and had a Son by her. In his very Youth he compoſed fine Orations, and in his Old Age writ Seven Books of Hiſtory, according to Cornelius Nepos, in the ſmall Fragment that we have of his Life. The Firſt Book contained the Actions of the Kings of Rome; in the Second and Third he treated of the Origin of the Cities of Italy; and this is the reaſon why he Entituled all his Books Origines: The Fourth ſpoke of the Firſt Punick War, and the Fifth of the Second. Annius of Viterbo publiſhed a Work under the Title of Cato's Origines; but was looked upon by all the Learned as a ridiculous Cheat. Cato made ſome other Works, and had this Commendation from Cicero, That he was an excellent Orator, a good Senator, and an experienced and worthy General. He was always for deſtroying Carthage, and expoſed and ſacrificed himſelf upon all Occaſions for the Good of the Commonwealth. It's not well known what year he died in; yet moſt fix his Death in the 606th year of Rome, which was the 86th of his Age, the 3906th of the World, the 148th before our SAVIOUR's Birth, and the 158th Olympiad, during the ſecond Punic War. Plut. Cicer. Corn. Nepos.

CATO the Prætor, called Uticenſis, Great Grandchild to the Cenſor above-mentioned: His Father having left him a young Orphan, he was brought up, together with his Brother Cepio and his Siſter Porcia, in the Houſe of Livius Druſus, his Unkle by the Mother's ſide. He begun in his very tender Age to give ſuch Proofs of his Generoſity and Affection for the Commonwealth, that being but 14 years old, he deſired he might have a Sword, to kill Sylla, Tyrant of his Country. He was alſo a great Admirer of Philoſophy, and applied himſelf moſt of all to the Sect of the Stoicks, whence he had that Strength of Soul which he ſhewed upon ſo many Occaſions. His firſt Campagne, which he undertook for his Brother Cepio's ſake, was in 681. in the time of the War of the Rebellious Slaves, Commanded by Spartacus; and immediately after led 1000 Foot into Macedonia: Whence he travelled into Aſia; but ſo meanly attended, that Peopled laughed at him; which troubled him very little; nor did he take great notice of the Honour and Reſpect Pompey and Deiotarus ordered to be ſhewn him. At his return he was made Quæſtor, which Charge he exerciſed with a great deal of Care, reforming the Officers, and impoſing Taxes and other Puniſhments upon the Murderers, that were paid out of the Publick Treaſury in Sylla's time. He put in for a Tribunate, purpoſely to hinder an ill Man, who ſought to have it; and when Catiline's Conſpiracy was diſcovered in 690. he joined with Cicero to puniſh the Accomplices, and oppoſed Cæſar in the Senate. Finding that Hortenſius was in Love with his Wife Martia, he yielded her to him, and retook her again when Hortenſius died; which gave Cæſar occaſion to ſay, That he parted with her when poor, with a deſign to have her again when ſhe became richer. When he was Quæſtor in 698. his Enemies, who had no mind he ſhould live near them, removed him by an Honourable Commiſſion, procuring an Order to have him ſent to Cyprus, to ſeize upon this Iſland, which the Romans had made King Ptolemy forfeit, without any juſt ground, imagining that he ſhould never compaſs that nice and ticklish Buſineſs; but would do ſomething that ſhould render him odious to the Commonwealth: But he carried the matter on with ſo much Prudence, that they could charge him with no Miſmanagement. His own Friends had moſt reaſon to complain of his Severity, in refuſing them the Wealth, which he preſerved for the Publick Treaſury. He always had a watchful Eye upon the Intrigues of Cæſar and Pompey, when theſe were united; and endeavoured all he could to bring them to an Agreement during the Civil Wars, until finding he laboured to no purpoſe, he ſtuck to the latter, whom he conſidered as the Defender of the Commonwealth. After the Battle of Pharſalia and Pompey's Death, in 706. he went into Africa, joined with Juba and Scipio, and left the Conduct of the Army to the laſt, and withdrew to Utica, where when he heard that Cæſar purſued him, he adviſed his Friends to be gone, and bid his Son try the Conqueror's Mercy; as for himſelf, he lay down upon his Bed, ſent for Plato's Book of the Immortality of the Soul, and having read it over twice, thruſts a Sword through his Body; but the Wound not being mortal, was dreſſed up, which he ſoon undid again, and died in the 708th year of Rome, which was the third of the 183d Olympiad, and 48th of his Age, and about 45 years before CHRIST's Birth. The firſt Cato the Cenſor had a Son of his own Name, who gave ſuch great Proofs of his Valour in Macedonia under Paulus Æmilius, in 586. that this General gave him his Daughter Tertia in Marriage. This Son died a Prætor before his Father, who married as was ſaid, at eighty years of age, and had another Son Sirnamed Salonius, from his Mother Salonia; this died alſo a Prætor, and left a Son that was Conſul in 540. with Manius Acilius Balbus, and was Grandfather of Cato Uticenſis, who left another Cato, that was killed fighting againſt Auguſtus and Anthony, the 712th year of Rome. Plutarch.

CATO, (Marcus Valerius) a Poet, living about the 700th year of Rome. He wrote ſeveral Poems, amongſt others, one called Lydia; and another, Diana. He is likewiſe the Author of the Diræ in Virgil's Catalecta, Printed by themſelves at Leiden, with Notes. Suet. de Illuſt. Grammat. Voſſ. c. 1. de Poet. Lat. &c.

CATOLICA, or La Catolica, a Borough of Italy in Romania, between Peſaro and Rimini; called ſo, becauſe amongſt the four hundred Biſhops who were aſſembled in the Council of Rimini, in 359. by Pope Liberius, there were ſome few Orthodox and True Catholicks, that ſeparated from the Arrians, to celebrate their Holy Myſteries in this place, which was from that time called Catolica. Baron.

CATTI, ancient People of Germany, in the Country of Heſſe and Modern Thuringia, where Caſſel, or Caſtellum Cathorum is. They fought a great Battel in Tiberius's Reign againſt the Hermondures, for a little River, whoſe Water turned into Salt, and which both Parties would have in their own Country. The Catti were worſted, and their Misfortune was the greater, that the Conquerors vowed their Spoils to Mars and Mercury, which was a kind of Conſecration, or Vow, by which all was to be deſtroyed, Men, Horſes, and Cattel. The Catti paſſed into the Iſle of the Batavi, now called Holland, where is yet Catwick-op-zee upon the Sea-ſide, and Catwick-op-den Rhein upon the Rhine.

CATULLUS, (Caius, or Quintus Valerius) a Poet, born at Verona. St. Jerom thinks he was born in the Peninſula of Sirmion, which ſtretches into the Lake of Benacus, now called Lake di Garda, and is not far off Verona; and that it was under the ſeventh Conſulſhip of Caius Marius, and of Lucius Cornelius Cinna, 86 years before the Birth of CHRIST, 666 after the Foundation of Rome, and in the 163d Olympiad. He was intimate with Cicero, Plancus, and moſt of the other great Men of his time. Julius Cæſar had a great Kindneſs for him, and invited him to Supper, after he had ſeen his Verſes againſt himſelf. Catullus was a great Admirer of Ipſitille, who was of his own Country; and alſo loved one Claudia, whom he calls Lesbia, both very famous in his Writings, eſpecially the laſt. We have 117 Epigrams of his; his other Works are loſt. He died at 30 years of age, in the 698th year of Rome. Scaliger is of Opinion he lived much longer, and moſt of the Learned think ſo too. Sueton. Voſſ.

CATUMSYRITUS, (John Baptiſt) a Grecian, who ſtudied at the College, for that Country, at Rome; made a great Noiſe in Italy, at the publiſhing Arcudius's Book, which endeavoured the Reconciliation of the Greek and Latin Churches. He preſented a Petition to the Spaniſh Ambaſſador at Rome, to inform the Pope, That Arcudius's Book was full of Hereſies, and abetted Lutheraniſm and Calviniſm. He puſh'd the Point ſtill farther, and Printed a Book at Venice, in 1632. againſt Arcudius, Entituled, De vera Utriuſque Eccleſiæ Concordia. He falls upon Bellarmine, and ſome other Jeſuits, and repreſents them as if they knew nothing of the Controverſie in Queſtion. He makes frequent mention of the Euchologion, found in the Monaſtery called Cripta-Ferrata, and pretends this Manuſcript, though eſteemed in Italy, and followed by Arcudius and the Jeſuits, was faulty. He cenſures it in ſeveral places, as if ſome of the Sacraments were not to be found in it; and accuſes Arcudius, and the Greeks of the College at Rome, as Favourers of new Hereſies, in following this Euchologion. But then, on the other ſide, it muſt be ſaid of Catumſyritus, That he wrote with more Heat than Judgment. Memoir. Schavans.

CATUS, (Elicius) or, according to others, Ælius, a Roman Conſul, renowned both for his Virtues and Victories; yet was ſo modeſt, that he eat in earthen Veſſels, having but two ſilver Goblets, or Tumblers, which his Father-in-Law, L. Paulus, preſented him with, after he had beaten King Perſeus, and could not refuſe from him; yet would not receive ſome that were offered him by the Deputies of the Ætolians, when they ſaw him ſerved in his earthen Veſſels. Plin.

CATZENELBOGHEN, or Catzenellebogen, Catti Meliboci, a County of Germany in Veterania, belonging to the Landtgrave of Heſſe-Caſſel, and was part of what the ancient Catti poſſeſſed, who gave it their Name.

CAVA, or La Cava, a little Town in the hither Principality of the Kingdom of Naples, with a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Salerno.

CAVAGNE, (Arnaud) Maſter of the Requeſts, being declared an Accomplice of the Crime Admiral Châtillon was accuſed of, in the Reign of Charles IX. King of France: He was drawn upon a Sledge to the Greve, or Place of Execution at Paris, where he and an old Gentleman, called Briquemant, were executed together; and becauſe the Admiral was killed ſome days before, he was repreſented in Straw, and ſerved like the reſt. Mezeray.

CAVAILLON, a Town of Provence, in the County of Venaiſſin, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Avignon: It is the Cabellio Cavarium of Strabo, called by others Cabellicum, or Urbs Cavallicorum, and is ſeated upon the River Durance, in a very fertile Plain. It was formerly built upon a little Hill, where ſome Remains of Houſes are yet to be ſeen. This Town is but ſmall, and ill built: The Cathedral bears the Name of St. Veran, who lived in the 6th Age. S. Marth. Gall. Chriſt.

CAVALCANTI, (Guido) born at Florence, and lived till towards the end of the Thirteenth Century: He was both a Poet and Philoſopher; and amongſt other Works he left one of Directions for Polite Writing. Leand. Albert. Deſc. Ital. &c.

CAVALIERI, (Bonaventure) a Jeſuit of Milan, counted one of the greateſt Mathematicians of the Seventeenth Century: His Worth procured him the beſt Employments in his Order. He wrote ſeveral very ingenious Treatiſes; as, his Directorium Generale Uranometricum, publiſhed in 1632. Geometria Indiviſibilium continuorum, nova quadam ratione, promota. Lo Specchio Uſtorio, &c. Voſſ. de Scient. Mathem. c. 58. ſec. 13. Ricciol. Chron. Reform. &c.

CAVAN, a Town and County in the Province of Ulſter in Ireland, where the Duke of Berwick had his Horſe ſhot under him, and his Troops defeated by a Party of K. William's Army, in 1689. The Town is defended by a pretty ſtrong Fort.

CAUCASUS, a Mountain in Mingrelia, or Colchide, which begins towards the Mouth of the Phaſis, and ſtretches by a long Chain or Ridge thro' all Aſia, which it divides from one end to the other. The three higheſt Parts of theſe Mountains are called Caucaſus, Taurus, and Imaus. The Caucaſus, towards the Mouth of the Phaſis, is full of Rocks and frightful Precipices; the top always covered with Snow, and uninhabited. The Guides of the Country have certain Sandals or flat Shooes, proper to go upon the Snow with; the Sole like a Racquet without a Handle, but not quite ſo large; the Strings are ſlacker, and Wood round: This hinders them from ſinking into the Snow, ſo that they hardly go into it an inch deep, and leave but a very light track or footing. Under the top of this Mountain the Land is fertile, and abounds much in Gom, (a Grain that reſembles Millet, and is ſown like Rice) in Corn, Honey, Wine, Fruits, Hogs, and great Cattel. The Water is very good; and here are ſeveral Villages. The Vines grow round the Trees, and riſe to the higheſt Branches; this makes the Wine very good, and ſo cheap, that in ſome places 300 Pound weight is ſold for a Crown. The common ſort live in Cabins made of Wood, and each Family has four or five, and make their Fire in the middle of the greateſt, and ſit all round it. They bake their Bread in hollow Stones, which they heat before they put in the Paſte or Dough, and then cover them with Aſhes and live Coals. Their Wine they keep in great earthen Urns, as in Mingrelia. The Inhabitants are moſt of them Chriſtians of the Georgick Rite; are of a freſh and lively Complexion, and their Women very fair, and are far better provided of Neceſſaries than the Mingrelians, and other People of Mount Caucaſus, that are not Subject to the Turks: Being come to the top of the Mountain, by ſeveral winding and ſteep ways, People deſcend of Akalziki-ſide, for four Leagues together; in the middle of this Deſcent, are ſeen on ſome Heighths, the Ruines of Caſtles and Churches, which the Country-people ſay were deſtroyed by the Turks. At the foot of the Mountain is a fair and pleaſant Valley, about three miles broad, which is very fruitful, and well ſtocked with Villages. The River Kur runs through the middle of it, and the little Hills that environ it are cover'd with Cattel. 5 Leagues forward, in the Plain, is the Fortreſs called Akalziki, ſituate in a very low place, between twenty Heighths that command it, and whence it may be battered on all ſides: Near this Fortreſs is a Borough, conſiſting of 400 Houſes, and inhabited by Turks, Chriſtians, Armenians, Georgians, Greeks, and Jews. The Chriſtians have Churches, and Jews their Synagogue. The Baſſa lives in the Fortreſs; the Principal Officers and Soldiers keep in the neighbouring Villages. The Fortreſs was built by the Georgians, and was taken from them about the end of the 16th Age. At three Leagues from Akalziki, the Plain grows narrow, and the Mountains are but at half a League's diſtance the one from the other: Hereabouts is a ſtrong Fort, called Uſker, built upon a Rock on the right-ſide of the River Kur; at the foot of this Rock is a ſmall Town, that takes up all the Ground between the Fort and the oppoſite Mountain. Here is a Sangiac with his Militia, and a Cuſtom-houſe. 2 Leagues beyond Uſker, is a Mountain that parts Perſia and Turkey on that ſide. Chardin. The Macedonians, and thoſe that wrote the Hiſtory of Alexander the Great, miſtook Caucaſus for Paropamiſus, a Mountain in India: This was well obſerved by Erotoſtanes of Cyrene, as we may learn from Strabo and Arrian. Strab. Lib. 11. Arrian Lib. 5. The Reader, if he pleaſes, may ſee more of this matter in a Book called Ars Critica, part 3. ſec. 3. c. 2.

CAUCUS, (Anthony) a Venetian Lord, and Archbiſhop of Corfu, being ordered by Pope Gregory XIII. carefully to look out the Errors of the Greeks, collected them to the number of 30 in a Latin Book, which he Dedicated to the ſame Pope; but was never Printed. It's in Manuſcript in the French King's Library, where it's like M. Simon took what he publiſhed in his Hiſtory of the Belief and Cuſtoms of the Eaſtern Nations. Leo Allatius, in his Third Book of the Agreement of the Eaſtern and Weſtern Churches, handles Caucus very roughly, calling him an Ignorant, a Slanderer, and a Man of no Judgment, who thought to oblige the Popes, by multiplying the Errors of the Greeks, and attributing to the whole what he only ſaw at Corfu. To ſay the truth, it were more proper to diminiſh their Errors, than either to add to, or aggravate them, as Caucus did in ſeveral places, nevertheleſs M. Simon excuſes him, and undertakes his Defence againſt Leo Allatius, in the Book that we mentioned above. R. Simon.

CAUDEBEC, a Town of France in Normandy, in the Country of Caux, near the Bar of the Seine, which is a Name that is given this River, where it grows broad towards the Sea. Caudebec, which Latin Authors call Calidobecum, is 7 Leagues below Roan, towards Harfleur and Havre de Grace. Here are ſeveral Manufactures, and eſpecially of Hats, that are called Caudebecs from the Town's Name.

CAVE, or Caba, Daughter of Julian, Count of Ceuta and Conſuegra, was violated by Roderic King of Spain: This Injury incenſed Julian ſo much, who was then Governour for that King in Africa, that he joined with the two Sons of Vitiza, the former King, whom Roderic had blinded, and excluded his Children from the Crown, and called the Saracens into Spain in the year 712. where he defeated King Roderic the following year, and ſubjected the whole Country to their Tyranny. Vaſæus Chron. Mariana.

CAVENDISH: This Noble Family derives its Deſcent from a Younger Branch of the Gernons, Men of great Note, ſome Ages paſt, in the Counties of Norfolk and Eſſex; which being ſeated at Cavendiſh in Suffolk, aſſumed that Place for their Sirname. The firſt that laid the Foundation of the Greatneſs this Family now enjoys, was William Cavendiſh of Chatſworth, in the County of Derby, Eſq; who in 31 Hen. 8. upon the great Diſſolution of Religious Houſes, was one of the Auditors of the Court of Augmentation, and afterwards made Treaſurer of the Chamber to that King, and alſo one of his Privy Council. King Edward VI. continued him in the ſame, and Queen Mary advanced him to the Dignity of Knighthood. He left by his Wife Elizabeth, one of the Daughters of John Hardwick of Hardwick, in the County of Derby, Eſq; Siſter and Coheir to John her Brother, three Sons, Henry, William, and Charles; and three Daughters, Frances, married to Sir Henry Pierpoint Kt. Elizabeth, to Charles Stuart, Earl of Lenox; and Mary, to Gilbert, Earl of Shrewsbury. Elizabeth the Mother, by her ſucceſsful Marriages after the Father's Death, firſt with Sir William St. Lo, Captain of the Guard to Q. Elizabeth, and Poſſeſſor of divers fair Lordſhips in Glouceſterſhire; and afterwards with George Earl of Shrewsbury, enlarged the Eſtate very conſiderably, and built the Noble Houſes of Chatſworth, Hardwick, and Old-Cotes, all in Derbyſhire. Henry, the eldeſt Son, dying without Iſſue Legitimate, in 1616. William, the ſecond, inherited his fair Eſtate, and was by Letters Patents, bearing Date 3 Jac. advanced to the Dignity of Baron Cavendiſh of Hardwick, and 16 Jac. created Earl of Devonſhire. This William dying, in 1625. was ſucceeded by William his Son and Heir; and this by another William, his Son and Heir, made Knight of the Bath at the Coronation of King Charles I. who married Elizabeth, Daughter to William Earl of Saliſbury, by whom he had Iſſue two Sons; William, advanced by His preſent Majeſty King William III. to the Dignity of Marquiſs of Hartington and Duke of Devonſhire, and is Lord Steward of the King's Houſhold; and Charles, who died unmarried; and one Daughter, called Anne, firſt married to Charles Lord Rich, only Son to Charles Earl of Warwick, and afterwards to John Lord Burleigh, only Son to John Earl of Exeter. William Lord Cavendiſh, now Duke of Devonſhire, married Mary, a Noble and Virtuous Lady, Daughter to James late Duke of Ormond, by whom he had Iſſue William, Henry, and Elizabeth; which Lord Henry, a Gentleman of the greateſt Hopes, died in 1700. very much lamented by all that knew him. Of this ſame Family was Sir William Cavendiſh, in 18 Jac. I. advanced to the Degree of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Ogle; as alſo of Viſcount, by the Title of Viſcount Mansfield; and upon the 17th of March, 3 Car. 1. to the Dignity of Baron Cavendiſh of Bolſover, and Earl of Newcaſtle upon Tine, and choſen to be Governour to Prince Charles. In the beginning of the Troubles, he manned and fortified the Town and Port of Newcaſtle for His Majeſty's Service; and afterwards levying other Forces, took many ſtrong Holds, gained the Victories of Gainsborough in the County of Lincoln, Cheſterfield in Derbyſhire, Pierebrig, Cecroft, Tankerſley, Tadcaſter, Sheffield, Rotherham, Tarum, Beverley, Cawode, Selby, Hallifax, Leeds, and Bradford; in which laſt, having vanquiſhed the Rebels greateſt Northern Army, (himſelf valiantly led on) he took twenty two great Guns, and many Colours: For which, and other Services, he was by Letters

Patents, bearing Date at Oxford the 27th of October, 19 Car. I. advanced to the Dignity of Marquiſs of Newcaſtle; and in 16 Car. II. to the Dignity of Earl Ogle and Duke of Newcaſtle. Dugdale.

The CAVES in Wiltſhire, between Luckington and Great Badminton, upon the edge of the County, 9 in number of a row, of ſeveral dimenſions, the leaſt 4 foot broad, and 9 or 10 foot long; are credibly ſuppoſed to be the Tombs of ſome Heroick Men among the ancient Romans, Saxons, and Danes, becauſe Spurrs and pieces of Armour have been digged out of them.

CAUMONT la Force, or James Nompar of Caumont, Duke of la Force, Peer and Mareſchal of France, General of the King's Army, Son of Francis of Caumont, and Philippa of Beaupoil: He bore Arms from his very Youth, and ſtuck to Henry IV. whom he ſerved very well upon ſeveral Occaſions, as in 1589. at the Engagement of Arques. He alſo ſerved in Lewis XIII.'s Reign, defended Montauban in 1621. and having afterwards ſubmitted himſelf to the King, was made Mareſchal of France at St. Foy, in 1622. and Lieutenant-General of the Army in Piedmont. He took Pignerol, and defeated the Spaniards at Carignan in 1630. The year after, he ſerved in Languedoc; afterwards, in 1634. he was ſent to Lorrain, and into Germany, where he raiſed the Siege of Philipsbourg, ſuccoured Heidelberg, and took Spire the 21ſt of March, 1635. He alſo did conſiderable Service upon ſeveral other Occaſions. The King erected his Patrimony of la Force to a Dukedom and Peerage in 1637. He died at Bergerac the 10th of May, 1652. being about 90 years of age.

CAUNUS, Son of Miletus of Crete, obſerving his Siſter Byblis's unlawful Love for him, he left his Country, and built a Town in Caria, to which he gave his own Name. *Ovid.Met.*9. This Town is now called Roſſa, and is upon the Coaſt of the Gulph of Macre. Strabo makes mention of it, and ſays, that the exceſſive Heats render it a very dangerous place for Health, during Summer and Autumn. Herodotus, in his Firſt Book, ſays, That thoſe of Caunus were much given to Wine and Women; and that they baniſhed out of their Town the foreign Gods, with the Prieſts that ſerved them, and kept none but the Gods of their own Country.

CAUSSIN, (Nicholas) a Jeſuit of Troyes in Champaigne: He was counted a Perſon of great Probity and Reſolution. He endeavoured to puſh at Cardinal Richelieu; but this Miniſter being too hard for him, got him baniſhed; ſo that he returned not to Paris till after the Cardinal's Death. Cauſſin died in the year 1655. His Works are, Theſaurus Græcæ Poeſeos. De Symbolica Ægyptiorum Sapientia. La Cour Sainte, or The Holy Court, &c. Alegamb. Bibl. Soc. Jeſu. Life of Cardinal Richelieu, Printed at Amſterdam in 2 Vol.

CAUVRESTAN, a great Village between Car, a Town of Perſia, in the Farſiſtan, and the Iſle of Ormus, which is at the Mouth of the Gulph of Balſora. This Place is remarkable for its Muſmelons, which are as big as our Gourds, and are the beſt of all Perſia: The Pulp is of a pure Red, and as ſweet as any Sugar. Here are alſo ſome Radiſhes that weigh 30, and ſome 35 pounds, and are of an exquiſite Taſte. Tavern.

CAUX, or Pas de Caux, a Country of France in Normandy, thought to be the Reſidence of the ancient Caletes: It is a Bailiwick of the Parliament of Roan, between the Seine and Ocean, comprehending Diepe, Havre de Grace, Aumale, Harfleur, Caudebec, St. Valery, &c. There is alſo the Promontory of Caux, with a Borough of the ſame Name.

CAWOOD, a Market-Town in the Weſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, and the Hundred of Barkſton.

CAXAMALCA, a Country of America Meridionalis in Peru, in the Province of Lima, near the River Vagna, and 30 Leagues from the Pacifick Sea. It is remarkable in Hiſtory, becauſe it was there that Atabalipa, King of Peru, was defeated and taken by Francis Pizarro, General of the Spaniards, who put him to death afterwards, in An. 1533. Here were formerly ſeveral Palaces of the Ynca's, or Emperors of Peru, and of the Great Lords of their Court.

CAXTON, a Market-Town in Cambridgeſhire, in the Hundred of Slow.

CAXUME, Capital of the Kingdom of Tigremahon in Abyſſinia. Marmol calls it Tigray, takes it for the Teneſis of Strabo, and that it was the Seat of the Queen of Sheba, who viſited Solomon, and the Cuſtom of that Place to be Govern'd by Women. Marmol, l. 10. c. 23.

CAYENNNE, an Iſland of Guiana, upon the Coaſt of the Northern Sea, in Southern America. To the South of it is the Mouth of the River Cayenne, which runs between the Country of the Caribbes and that of the Galibis, about 7 Leagues long, 3 Leagues broad, and its Circuit is about 18 or 20. It forms ſome Promontories, whereof the moſt remarkable are thoſe of Fort Loüis, of Seperou, and Mahury. Here are alſo fine Meadows and Paſture, which the Savages call Savanes. The principal Dwelling-places of the Iſland are Mahury, Armine, Bourg, and Maſhoury, without comprehending thoſe of the Savages. The Air is very temperate, though it is but four Degrees North of the Equinoctial Line, which makes the Days and Nights to be almoſt of a length. The Woods are full of Game, and the Rivers abound as much in Fiſh. The Chief Commerce of the Country conſiſts in Tabaco. It belongs to the French, who built Fort Loüis in a place called Bourg, or Borough, becauſe it has no Walls, and conſiſts only of two hundred Lodges, or little Houſes, which form two Streets. The Fort was named from Lewis XIII. who gave Orders to build it. It's placed upon a Heighth, with its Batteries always ready to fire upon the Borough and the Sea. The Port has very good Anchorage, and the Entrance into it is defended by 4 great Pieces of Cannon. De Laet.

CAYERBEY, Baſſa or Governour of Aleppo and Comagena. To revenge his Brother's Impriſonment, he betray'd his Prince, Campſon, Soldan of Egypt, and maliciouſly engaged him in a War with Selim, Emperor of the Turks; in which himſelf being Chief Commander, he turned his Arms againſt his Maſter, and was the Occaſion of his Death, and the Defeat of his Army. This hapned on the 14th of Auguſt, 1516. and opened the Turks a Paſſage into all the Places of Syria; and afterwards all Egypt ſubmitted, and the Cayerbey, and ſome of the Chief Mammeluc's joined with them, who for all that never got but a very limitted Power. Davity.

CAYERNITES, little Iſlands near the Weſtern Coaſts of the Iſle of Eſpagnole: Theſe Iſlands are frequented for their Tortoiſes, which are in great numbers, and very big; one of them will weigh 200 weight of Fleſh, without counting the Fat, which they melt, and which the French and Spaniſh Inhabitants eat with their Pulſe, and ſome will yield 30 Quarts of Oil. Their Fleſh is of a very good Taſte, and very nouriſhing; the Adventurers Feaſt of it. Theſe Beaſts are taken, ſome with Nets, which the Iſlanders call Falbes, and lay on the Graſs, where they feed commonly; and ſome are taken by ſtriking an Iron Hook into their Backs; others by turning them upon their Backs; which is done thus: There is a Stick laid under the Sand where they are to paſs, when they come on the Land to lay their Eggs, which is lifted up, when they put their two Forefeet beyond it; being thus thrown upon their Backs, they can by no means get up again: When they are thus taken, they beat them with the Handles of their Knives upon their Noſe, which is above their Mouth, in form of two ſmall Holes, by which they reſpire; this makes them bleed abundantly, whereof they die ſoon after. They muſt of neceſſity be ſtruck in this place; for if they were beat upon their Head, or elſewhere, they could not be kill'd, tho' it were with a Leaver, or other ſuch-like maſſie Body. Wyfflet, Oexmelin.

CAYET, (Peter Victor) was firſt a Hugonot Miniſter, and officiated in the Chapel of Catherine, Siſter to the King of Navarre: He afterwards went over to the Church of Rome. In 1605. he publiſhed his Chronologie Septennaire, beginning at the Peace of Vervines, which was concluded in the year 1598. This Work was ſo much valued by ſome of the Great Lords at Court, that they perſuaded him to add the 9 years War of K. Henry IV. which he had managed from his firſt coming to the Crown, in 1589. to the Concluſion of the Peace at Vervines. This he perform'd in the 3 Tomes of his Nine Years Chronology, which was Printed at Paris in 1608. In which Book, before he proceeds to the Reign of Henry IV. he premiſes an Abridgment of the moſt conſiderable Paſſages of the League, to the Death of Henry III. Mnimb. Hiſt. de la Ligue.

CAYMADAN, the 24th Califf, or Succeſſor of Mahomet, who Reigned after Oſman in 873. He was in great Wars with the Perſians, who implored the Turks Aſſiſtance, and ſo gave them way into the Mahometan Empire: But he ſubdued theſe Rebels; and after he had waſted their Provinces, he turned his Arms againſt the Emperotir of Conſtantinople. He had no good Succeſs in this Undertaking, and ſuffered great Loſſes during the thirty years of his Reign. After his Death, the Empire of the Arabians was divided between Four Califfs, which ſhall be ſpoken of in the Article of Coſdar. Marmol.

CAYM-BEARMILA, Califf of Carvan in Barbary, ſucceeded Califf Abdala in 986. and with the Aſſiſtance of the Arabians, made himſelf Maſter in a ſhort time of Africa Orientalis; whence paſſing towards the Weſt, he ravaged ſeveral Provinces of the Kingdom of Fez. Afterwards, by the Valour of a Sclavonian Captain, he conquered all Barbary, Numidia, and Libya, where now is Biledulgerid; and gathering immenſe Riches in Carvan, he became the Powerfulleſt Prince that had ever Reigned in Africa. After this, he aſpired higher, and ſent the Sclavonian to Conquer Egypt and Syria: This brave Officer took Great Cairo, which he environed with new Walls, and good Fortifications, and drew the Califf Caym thither, and put him in poſſeſſion of all the Wealth of Egypt. But as he was thinking of beſieging Babylon, News was brought him that Abulbagex, Governor of Carvan, had raiſed a Rebellion in his Abſence, and ſent to the Califf of Elvir, to put himſelf under his Protection; This broke his Deſign upon Babylon, and put him upon giving the Arabians Leave to go into Africa, which his Predeceſſors would never permit. He publiſhed throughout all Arabia, that all were free to go to Africa, and carry their whole Train and Equipage along with them, paying but a Ducat a-piece at their going out of Egypt, for which they were promiſed Proviſions for their Voyage, and Swearing to make War againſt Abulbagex. This was no ſooner publiſhed, but Three Arabian Tribes, or great Families, who had no Settlement in their Country, began to march, to the number of above a Million of Souls, in which great Company, there were above 500000 fighting Men; as ſoon as they entred into Barbary, they marched to Carvan, where they took Abulbagex, whom they put to Death with cruel Torments. The Town was demoliſhed in 1001, and then the Victorious Arabians divided the Country amongſt themſelves, acknowledging Caym for Califf, who remained in Egypt, where his Succeſſors Reigned after him for 160 years, until Hadoc, the laſt Califf, who was killed by Saladin I. Soudan of Egypt, in 1164. Marmol.

CAYPHAS, a Town of Paleſtina, ſeated upon the Mediterranean, at the foot of Mount Carmel, and but two Leagues by Water from St. John of Acre, which is over-againſt it upon the oppoſite Shore. It's now but a Village inhabited by ſome Moors, Jews, and Greeks; the Caſtle and Walls lay ruin'd ever ſince; Saladin demoliſhed the Town in 1191. together with Jaffa or Joppa, Cæſarea, and other Seaports and Maritime Towns, for fear the Chriſtians, who had taken St. John of Acre, ſhould alſo become Maſters of theſe, and fortifie themſelves in them. Cayphas had its Name from Caiphas High Prieſt of the Jews, who re-eſtabliſhed it in our Saviour's Time. Doubdan.

CAYT-BEY, Sultan of Egypt and Syria, originally of Circaſſia, and born a Slave; but his Wit and Courage made him to be ſo highly conſidered by the Mammeluks, that with a general Conſent, they choſe him for their King. He defeated Bajazet's Army near Tarſus, commanded by Querſole his Son-in-Law, a ſtout Man, who was taken Priſoner. After this Victory, he beat Aſſimbeck back, who Reigned in Meſopotamia; and being Maſter of Bir upon the Euphrates, made Incurſions very far into Syria. He alſo ſubdued the Arabians, diſperſed the Ethiopian Slaves, who aſſembled in great numbers to deſtroy the Mammeluks, and threatned Egypt with a terrible Revolution.

CAZAN, a Kingdom of the Tartary of Aſia, with a Town of the ſame Name, belonging to the great Duke of Muſcovy. This Kingdom lies between Bulgaria and Czermiſſi. Caza, its Capital, is upon a ſmall River of its own Name, which a little below the Town empties it ſelf into the Volga. This Place John Baſileus, great Czar of Muſcovy, took from one of the Kings of the Tartars. The other Towns are Kackſago, Nova, Allateur, Saluch, and others, known but very little by the Europeans.

CAZAN, or as others write Hazan, an Officer in the Jews Synagogues, who repeats aloud the Prayers the Jews ſay in their Synagogues, and ſings when they ſing. He is in a high Place above all the reſt, where the Rabbin ſeats himſelf to preach. All this is done in great diſorder, the Jews interrupting each other, and diſcourſing of their Affairs. The Cazan goes on always, and raiſes his Voice now and then. This Word is found in St. Epiphanius, which in his time ſignified a Miniſter of the Synagogue. It's probable the Jews called this Officer by that Name, becauſe he ſees all that done in the Synagogue, and has a particular Care of the Reading of the Law, and of all the Office. P. Simon.

CAZARES, People that made a part of the Huns, and joined themſelves to the Avares. See Avares.

CEADRAGUE, Son of Thraſicon, Prince of the Aborites, Subjects to the French. This Thraſicon was aſſiſted by the Danes during the Reign of Charlemaign his Protector, and when Lewis the Meek had baniſhed Sclaomir, who was odious to the People, Ceadrague was named Duke, but being convinced of correſponding with the Daniſh Princes, he was degraded of his Dignity, and Sclaomir re-eſtabliſhed. The laſt dying in 818. Ceadrague came to the King at Compiegne to juſtifie himſelf, and obtained the Principality which he had before.

CEBA, (Aufaldo) a Genoueſe, living in the Seventeenth Century. He had a great deal of Wit, and a good Genius for Poetry: He wrote ſome Epick Poems, and ſeveral Plays, amongſt others, Ill Furio Camillo, & la Regina Eſter. This laſt Piece is ſtuff'd with Fables, which make an unſuitable mixture with the ſolemn Hiſtory of the Holy Scriptures; and for this reaſon, this Play of Ceba was rang'd among the Prohibited Books. He wrote likewiſe a Roman Hiſtory in Italian; Eſſercici Accademici. Dialoguo d l Poema Heroico, &c. Giuſtiniani & Soprani, Script de la Lig. Janus Nicius Erythræus. Pin. III. Imag. Illuſt.

CEBARES, or Oebares, the Name of Darius's Gentleman of the Horſe, by whoſe Addreſs and Contrivance that Prince became King of Perſia. For after the Death of the Smerdi's, who had made themſelves Maſters of that Monarchy, the Great Men that pretended to the Crown, being puzled about the Choice of a Monarch, bethought them at laſt to leave the Election to Fortune; wherefore they agreed to come all on Horſeback before the Palace, and conſented he ſhould have the Crown whoſe Horſe ſhould firſt neigh before the Sun was up, for the Perſians held the Sun to be a Deity, and uſed to conſecrate Horſes to it. Darius, Son of Hyſtaſpes, one of the Pretenders, breaking his Head to find the Means of becoming King, Cebares, his Gentleman, promiſed to do him good Service on this Occaſion, and the Night before the Day appointed for the Meeting, he leads Darius's Horſe and a Mare to the Place where that Prince was to ſtand before the Palace. The next day, when all the Competitors met at the appointed Hour, Darius's Horſe finding that was the place where he had ſeen the Mare the day before, immediately falls a Neighing before all the reſt; whereupon his Maſter was ſaluted King, and acknowledged by all the Aſſiſtants and Spectators. It was thus that Buſineſs hapned, though others ſay, that Darius's Gentleman ſtroaked a Mares Buttock, and held that Hand to the Horſe's Noſe, who moved by the Smell, fell immediately a Neighing. Juſtin. Herod.

CEBARSUSSI, a Borough near Carthage, famous for a Council held by the Donatiſt Prelates of Africa there about 394. againſt Primianus Biſhop of Carthage, who was choſen after Parmenian, who ſucceeded Donatus. This Prelate, accuſed by a Deacon called Maximin, whom he Excommunicated, was cited before the Council held at a Place called the Cavernes or Grottos of Suſes; but refuſing to appear, and abuſing them who were ſent to him, he was depoſed in this ſecond Synod of Cebarſuſſi, held a little time after the firſt. Maximin was choſe in his Place, and was ordained by Two Schiſmaticks. S. Auguſtin. Cont. Creſcon.

CEBES, a Theban Philoſopher, and Diſciple of Socrates. He wrote Three Dialogues, one call'd, Hebdomas, another Phrynicus, and the Third Pinax, or his Table; which contains an account of the Birth, Life and Death of Mankind: This Piece was thought imperfect till lately, but now James Gronovius has publiſh'd it intire, from a Manuſcript of the King of France's Library, Printed at Amſterdam in 1689.

CECCI, or Ceccus, Francis, Native of Aſcoli, a Biſhoprick of Italy, in the March of Ancone: He was Aſtrologer to the Duke of Florence, and was put in the Inquiſition, and burned at Bologne in 1327. becauſe it was ſaid that he made a Treatiſe De Sphæra, wherein he taught that Evil Spirits were engendred in Heaven, who could work ſtrange things under certain Conſtellations, and that Jeſus Chriſt coming upon Earth, was born under one of theſe Conſtellations, that rendered him poor of neceſſity; and that Anti-Chriſt would come into the World under a Conſtellation that would make him rich. He writ more ſuch ſcandalous Stuff. Others pretend, that the Biſhop of Averſa, this Duke's Chancellor, put him to Death, moved to this Violence by Dinus, a Learned Phyſician, who was jealous of Cecci's great Reputation, and Dinus himſelf died 15 days after his Execution. Deſc. Ital. Leander.

CECILIAN, Deacon of Menſurius, Biſhop of Carthage, who lived in the Fourteenth Age, and was choſen Biſhop in 306. after the other Prelate's Death, by the unanimous Conſent both of the Clergy and People. Botrus and Celeſius, Prieſts of the ſame Church, ſeeing themſelves deprived of this Dignity, formed a Schiſm, which was hatched, and begun to appear when Cecilian demanded the Holy Veſſels of the Church, which during the Perſecution, were put in the keeping of ſome that were thought to be Honeſt and Faithful. Theſe would not deliver them upon Demand, but joined with the Two ambitious Clergymen to diſquiet their new Paſtor, and ſeparate themſelves from his Communion. They alledged his Ordination was null, accuſed him of ſeveral Crimes, and at laſt drew a rich Dame, called Lucilla, to their Side; this Lady was a Native of Spain, and one that hated that Prelate. Theſe Schiſmaticks called themſelves Donatiſts, from Donatus, Succeſſor of Majorinus; they divided themſelves afterwards into Two Parties, and imbroiled the Church of Africa for almoſt 200 years. Yet Cecilian was cleared of the Crimes they imputed to him at the Synod of Rome, which Pope Melchiades held in 313 at Conſtantine the Great's Requeſt; beſides, the Pro-Conſul of Africa protected him, and the Council of Arles, aſſembled in 314. undertook his Defence, and condemned the Donatiſts; which Conſtantine did likewiſe by a more particular Sentence. Cecilian aſſiſted at the General Council of Nice in 325. and died a little after. Auguſtin, Baronius, Optat. Lib 1.

CECILL, (David) of Stanford, in Com. Linc. being in conſiderable Imployments in the Reign of Henry the Seventh and Eighth, obtained for Richard his Son and Heir, the Office of Page of the Crown. This Richard was afterwards advanced to be Groom of the Robes to King Henry the Eighth, and obtained ſeveral conſiderable Grants of that Prince, and a Legatee in his Will. Departing this Life of 34 H. 8. his Son William ſucceeded him in the King's Favour; and being a Perſon of great Learning, ſingular Judgment, and other great Endowments, was, through the Favour of the Duke of Somerſet, advanced to the Office of Cuſtos Brevium; and in the 5 E. 6. conſtituted one of the Principal Secretaries of State, and of the Privy-Council. Queen Mary, notwithſtanding his differing in Religion, had a great Eſteem for him; and Queen Elizabeth, in the Firſt of her Reign, choſe him of her Privy-Council, and in the Third, conſtituted him Maſter of the Wards; and though ſome of the Nobility ſtomached his Preferment, advanced him to the Degree and Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Burleigh; and in the 14th of her Reign, conſtituted him Lord Treaſurer of England; ſupported him againſt all the Deſigns formed againſt him, and valued him as her ableſt Miniſter of State: She would make him always ſit down in her Preſence, ſaying, My Lord, We make uſe of you, not for your bad Legs, but for your good Head. And viſiting him when ſick of the Gout, at Burleigh-Houſe in the Strand, the Lord's Servants conducted her in at the Door, deſir'd her Majeſty to ſtoop: She anſwered, For your Maſter's Sake I will ſtoop, but not for the King of Spain. His Saying was, Prudens qui Patiens; his Maxim, Nolo minor me timeat deſpiciatve major, My Inferior ſhall not fear; my Superior ſhall not deſpiſe me. Parting this Life in 1598. Thomas, his Son and Heir, ſucceeding him, in 3 Jac. was by Letters Patents bearing Date the 4th of May, created Earl of Exeter, and was ſucceeded in the Honour by William, his Son and Heir, whoſe Iſſue Male being extinct, that Honour fell to David Cecill, Son and Heir to Sir Richard Cecill, ſecond Son of Thomas Earl of Exeter, which David, by Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter to John Earl of Bridgwater, had Iſſue, John, the preſent Earl of Exeter; who by the Lady Francis his Wife, Daughter to John Earl of Rutland, hath had Iſſue John, now Earl of Exeter. Dugdale.

CECILL, (Robert) Son to the before ſpecified William Lord Burleigh, being a Knight in 38, was made one of the Queen's Principal Secretaries of State, ſent afterwards to France to mediate a Peace betwixt the Spaniard and the French in 1 Jac. created Lord Cecill of Eſingdon, in 2 Jac. Viſcount Cranborne (being the firſt of that Degree that ever uſed a Coronet) and in 3 Jac. advanced to the Dignity of Earl of Saliſbury, ſoon after made Lord Treaſurer, Knight of the Garter, and Chancellor of the Univerſity of Cambridge. Departing this Life in 1612. William his Son and Heir ſucceeded, who took to Wife Catharine, the youngeſt Daughter to Thomas Howard, Earl of Suffolk, by whom he had Iſſue Seven Sons, James, who died young, Charles, Robert, Philip, William, Algernon, and Edward; and 5 Daughters. Charles, who died in his Father's Life-time, Married Jane, Daughter and Co-heir to James Maxwell, one of the Grooms of the Bed-Chamber to King Charles I. afterwards made Earl of Darlton in Scotland, and by her had Iſſue Seven Sons, viz. James, who ſucceeded his Grandfather, as alſo Robert, Charles, William, Edward, Henry, and George, all dead unmarried. William Earl of Saliſbury being Knight of the Garter, dying in 1668. the forementioned James, his Grandſon, ſucceeding him, Married Margaret, one of the Daughters of John Earl of Rutland, and by her had Iſſue Four Sons, James the preſent Earl, Robert, William, and Charles, and Four Daughters, Catharine, Francis, Mary and Margaret. Dugdale.

CECROPIUS, Biſhop of Sebaſtia aſſiſted at the General Council of Chalcedon in 451. and maintained in its ſecond Seſſion, that Pope Leo had propoſed a Model of Faith in his Letter to Flavian upon the Diſpute raiſed by Eutyches. The Council deputed him and Two other Prelates to Summon Dioſcorus, and carry him a Writing; and when that Hereſiarch deſired Secular Commiſſioners, the Holy Biſhop anſwered, That ſince it was a buſineſs that touch'd his own Perſon, it was not fit Laymen ſhould be preſent at it. In the Fourth Seſſion he fell in a Paſſion againſt the Biſhops of Egypt, who refuſed to ſubſcribe to St. Leo's Letter, and ſaid, it was unjuſt 1200 Prelates ſhould be deſpiſed, and 10 Hereticks heard. In the Fifth Seſſion, to remedy ſome Diſorders, he deſired the Synod would be pleaſed to aboliſh all the Pragmatiques made in the Provinces againſt the Holy Canons, which the Aſſembly conſented to. See the Acts of the Council of Chalcedon. Baronius.

CECROPIUS, Biſhop of Nicomedia in the Fourth Century, and an Abettor of the Arrians, and Perſecutor of St. Athanaſius: This Biſhop ſucceeded to the Hereſy, as well as to the See of Euſebius, and periſhed miſerably in the Ruines of this Town, occaſioned by an Earthquake; which is deſcribed by Ammianus Marcellinus. Ammian. Marcellin. Lib. 17. Socrat. Lib. 2. Sozomen Lib. 4.

CECROPS the Firſt of this Name, an Egyptian by Nation, was the firſt King of the Athenians; he built, or, as others will have it, Ornamented the City of Athens, which from his Name was called Cecropia. He Married Agraule, Daughter of Actus, chief Lord of Attica, where he founded his Kingdom. He was Sirnam'd Diphyes, either becauſe he ſpoke Two Languages, the Greek, and that of his own Country; or becauſe it was he that firſt brought in Marriage, and aboliſh'd the Cuſtom of having Women in common, which was till then tolerated amongſt the Grecians. And it's for this reaſon that all Antiquity thought that King had Two Faces. He inſtituted the firſt Sacrifices that were perform'd at Athens, and begun by his Ordinances to bring his Subjects under Government. His Reign continued 50 years. Euſebius thinks it begun in the 35th year of Moſes; which was the 2496 or 98 of the World, and 1556 before Chriſt. Cecrops had 16 Succeſſors in the ſpace of 487 years until Codrus's time, who was the laſt. The unknown Chronologer of the Iſle of Paras, publiſhed by Seldenus, begins his Epocha from this King. We may obſerve, that there are ſeveral things in Cecrops's Laws, agreeable to the Conſtitution of the Jews, occaſion'd by the Hebrews imitating the Egyptians in a great many things; which Egyptian Cuſtoms were brought by Cecrops into Attica. Samuel Petitus has collected and commented upon the Laws of the Athenians. Pauſanias, Torniel, Salian.

CECROPS the Second, Seventh King of the Athenians; he ſucceeded his Brother Erectheus in the year of the World 2705. and Reign'd 40 years. Euſeb. Chron.

CECULUS, Son of Vulcan, conceived, according to the Poets, of a Spark of Fire that flew into his Mother Preneſte's Boſom, and as a Mark of what gave him his Being, he had always an inflammation on his Eyes. He built the Town of Preneſti in Italy, and took Turnus's part againſt Æneas. Poets, to ſtrengthen, or add to this Fable, ſay, that upon ſome People's Diſpute with him about the Honour of his Deſcent, his Father Vulcan rais'd Thunder, and made the Thunderbolt to fall upon them. Others ſay, that Shepherds found Ceculus newly born in a Fire, and that it's becauſe he received no hurt by the Flames that he was believed to be Vulcan's Son. Virg. Æneid. 7.

CEDES, a great and ſtrong Town of Upper-Galilee upon the Mountain Nephalim, in the Tribe of that Name, four Leagues from Cephet and Cepharnaum. Joſhua having kill'd the King hereof, gave the Town to the Prieſts and Levites for their dwelling-place. It was a ſhelter and Place of Refuge for all ſuch as committed unwilful Murders. Joſeph. Lib. 10.

CEDITIUS, (Quintus) Tribune of the Soldiers, ſeeing the whole Roman Army ſurrounded by the Enemy in Sicily, without any hopes of ſafety, freely offer'd the Conſul Attilus Calatinus to put himſelf at the Head of 400 young Men, to fall upon the Enemy that coup'd them up ſo cloſe. He well foreſaw, that neither he himſelf nor any of his Company ſhould eſcape, but was confident, that whilſt he engaged part of the Enemy, the Conſul might attack the reſt, and by that means reſcue the Army from the impending danger. The thing happened as Ceditius projected it, and the Romans were rid of the danger as he expected, but all his Party periſh'd to himſelf, who was preſerv'd by extraordinary good Fortune, for he was found lying among the dead, all cover'd with Wounds, but ſtill reſpir'd, and was taken care of by the Generous Enemy, who admir'd his Courage and Vertue. Several Authors make mention of him, eſpecially Aul. Gellius, who in his Third Book and Seventh Chapter ſays, that Cato compared him with the famous Leonidas, who at the Head of a Handful of Lacedæmonians fought after the ſame manner at Thermopylæ to ſave Greece from the Perſian Incurſion.

CEDOGNA, Cedegma, or Cedonia, a Town of Italy with a Biſhoprick, Suffragan of Conza, in the farthermoſt Principality, a Province in the Kingdom of Naples. Some take it for the Aquilenia of Tit. Liv. where he ſays the Conſul L. Papirius made the Samnites Swear Fidelity or Allegiance. Latin Authors call it alſo Laquedonie.

CEDRENUS, (George) a Grecian Monk who lived in the Eleventh Age, about the year 1057. and writ Annals from the beginning of the World to the Reign of Iſaac Comnenus Emperor of Conſtantinople, who ſucceeded Michael VI. in 1057. There is alſo another Hiſtory attributed to him, which Knowing Men think was made by John Curopalates, and add, that Cedrenus did nothing but Tranſcribe it. We have an Edition of Cedrenus his Annals Printed at Paris in 1647. with the Latin Tranſlation of William Xylander, the Notes of Father James Goar, a Dominican, and a Gloſs of Charles Hannibal. Fabrot. Poſſevin. Geſner.

CEDRON, a Torrent or Stream that runs through the middle of the Valley of Joſaphat near Jeruſalem, which it waſhes in Winter time, and when it Rains much. This little River is but narrow, being but Three Paces broad, and does not run but in Rainy Weather. Before the Valley was fill'd with the Ruines of the Town, as it is now, there were ſome Springs in the Church of our Ladies Tomb that furniſh'd this River with Water, which is now loſt, and ſinks in the Ground. Here are two little Bridges, each of an Arch only upon this Brook, one towards our Ladies Sepulchre, the other towards Joſaphat's Sepulchre. This Torrent is much ſpoke of in Scripture, Jeſus Chriſt paſs'd it ſoon after his death, John 18. David went over it likewiſe when he fled from his Son Abſalom, Sam. 2. 25. It was in the Valley through which this little Stream runs, that King Aſa cauſed the Scandalous Idol to be broke in pieces, and burnt, which his Mother Maacha, whom he deprived of the Regency, had put up in a Grove, Kings 13. and it was here that King Joſias got the like done to all the Veſſels and Utenſils that were made for the Service of Baal, Kings 23. the ſame was done near Cedron by King Ezechias, 2 Chron. 29. Doubdan.

CEDWELL, King of the Weſt-Saxons, in the Sixth Century. He attempted to Conquer the Kingdom of Kent, after the death of the Uſurper Edric, put to death by the People. Cedwell made Two Expeditions for this purpoſe, but miſcarry'd in 'em both. Bede, & Du Cheſne, Hiſt. Angl.

CEE, or Cea, one of the Cyclades, now call'd Zee or Zie; The Greeks, according to Pliny, call'd it Hydruſſa. Julid or Julis is the Capital, famous for the Birth of the Two Poets, Simonides and Bachillides. Plin. Lib. 4.

CEFALONIA, Cephalenia, an Iſland of the Ionian Sea belonging to the Venetians, is near the Iſle of Zant, which is Southward of it, and the Morea and Gulf of Patras to the Eaſt. Ceſalonia is about 100 Leagues round, having a Town of its own Name built upon a Hill, and well fortified. The reſt are but Boroughs. The Port of Argaſtoli is of Zant ſide. The Inhabitants of this Iſland follow the Religion of the Greeks.

CEFALU or Cifalu upon the Sea, a Town of Sicily, call'd by the Latins, Cephalædis or Cephaludium, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan to the Archbiſhoprick of Meſſina. Some Authors think its Name comes from the Greek Word Κεφαλὴ, which ſignifies a Cape or Promontory, becauſe it's built in the North of Sicily, upon a Cape that ſtretches into the Sea, and has a good Port. The Town is well built, and defended by a Caſtle that ſtands upon a Hill, the Cathedral Church has a ſtately Front. Ceſalu is near Termini.

CEILAN, Ceilon, or Zeilan, an Iſle of Aſia in the Indian Sea, on this ſide Ganges, near the Cape of Comori, upon the Streight of Manar or Quiloa. This Iſland is one of the moſt remarkable of theſe Seas, and it is not to be forgot that Bochart has proved by ſeveral Reaſons, that it is not only the Ophir of Salomon, but alſo the Taprobane of the Ancients mentioned by Pliny, Strabo, Ptolemy, &c. though we muſt confeſs, that the laſt makes Taprobane far bigger than we find Ceilan is; which nevertheleſs does not weaken Bochart's Reaſoning, ſince the Iſlanders aſſure, that the Sea has gain'd upon and overflown a great part of the Land. The Air of this Iſland is the pureſt and wholeſomeſt of all the Indies, and it's therefore the Indians call this place Temariſin, that is, Land of Pleaſure. It is about 100 Leagues from South to North, and about 60 from Eaſt to Weſt. Some divide it into Seven Kingdoms, others into Nine. The moſt conſiderable are Candea or Candi, which is the beſt of the Iſland, Jala, Batecala, Cayatauaca, Colombo, Jafanapatan, Chilao, Trinquilemale, and Galo, which have all Towns of the ſame Names. The Hollanders are Maſters now of moſt of the Maritime Towns that were formerly poſſeſs'd by the Portugueſe. The Figure of the Iſland reſembles the form of a Pearl. Its Fruits, Flowers, and Plants, have a moſt pleaſant ſmell. Here is ſome Cinamon, that is the very beſt of the whole World, and all kind of other Drugs, with Precious Stones, Gold, and Pearls, which are fiſh'd in the Streights between Ceilan and the firm Land. The Mountain or Pic of Adam is in the midſt of this Iſland, and is eſteem'd the higheſt in all the Indies. Bochart, Strabo, Ptolemy.

CEJONIUS, (Lucius Elius Verus Commodus) a very beautiful young Man adopted by Adrian, and made Cæſar, though he was Son in Law to Nigrinus who had attempted the death of that Prince. Cæſar made him Prætor, gave him the Government of Pannonia, and named him Conſul in 136. yet all theſe Honours were not able to preſerve him from a cruel Diſtemper that rendered him uncapable of performing the Functions of ſo great a Charge, ſo that Adrian ſeeing him ſo ill, told his Friends, that he loſt the Money he gave the Soldiers, and People for his Adoption, and that he thought to prop and ſupport the Republick with a Wall which ſunk by its own weight. Cejonius died at his return from his Government of Pannonia, which was in 138. And then Adrian Adopted Antoninus Pius, but it was upon condition, that he ſhould do the like in favour of Annius Verus Son of this Cejonius, who was aſſociated to the Empire with Antoninus the Philoſopher. Spartian.

CEIX, Son of Lucifer, King of Trachinia, and Uncle of Chirone, whoſe Tongue Diana Shot through with an Arrow, which afflicted his Father Dedalion to that degree, that he threw himſelf down a Precipice. Ceix was diſturb'd with ſtrange Viſions after the death of Dedalion, and having conſulted Apollo's Oracle at Claros, upon the Occaſion, was caſt away in his return, Alcione his Wife drown'd her ſelf upon hearing the News, and both of 'em were turn'd into Kings-fiſhers. Ovid. Metam. Lib. 11.

CELER, a Captain who commanded in the place where Rome was a building, and had Orders from Romulus to kill any one that ſhould dare croſs the Ditch, or mount the Ramparts. It happened that Remus ſeeing this new Town, leap'd upon the Walls, and laugh'd at ſo inconſiderable a Fortification againſt an Enemy. Celer obſerving this, through a blind Obedience to his Prince's Orders, immediately kill'd Remus, ſo ſpilt his Blood upon the Foundations of Rome that ſhould have govern'd it with his Brother. Ovid. L. 4. Faſt.

ST. CELESTIN the Firſt of this Name, Pope, and Roman by Nation, ſucceeded Boniface I. in 423. and held the Seat Eight years, five months, and three days. When he underſtood that ſome Innovators began to riſe in the Provinces of Narbonne, and Viennois, who inſiſted upon this Paſſage of Scripture, Let your Reins be girt, perſuaded the Clergy to change their former Dreſs, and obliged them to wear great Cloaks, with Belts about their Reins. He writ in 428 a long Epiſtle to the Biſhops of them Two Provinces, wherein he condemned this Abuſe. He alſo condemned Neſtorius in a great Synod aſſembled at Rome in 430. and ſent his Legates to the Council of Epheſus in 431. He writ to the Biſhops of France in favour of St. Auguſtin, to the Prelates of the Council of Epheſus, to the Emperor, and ſeveral others. Soon after he was made Biſhop, the great Diſpute about Appeals of the African Clergy to the Pope of Rome, which had made ſo much noiſe in the time of Zoſimus and Boniface, was brought upon the Vote again. The Biſhops of the African Synod having ſent their Legates into the Eaſt, to inſpect the Council of Nice, theſe Legates brought a Copy of that Council back with them, which clearly deſtroy'd the Pretence of Appeals to Rome, and determined the Controverſy on the ſide of the African Biſhops; upon which they wrote a Letter to Pope Celeſtin, defended the Privileges of their Churches, and tax'd the Pope's inſiſting upon Appeals, as a Piece of Secular Vanity and Encroachment. Concil. Tom. 2. Pag. 1674. Cave. Hiſt. Liter. Part 1. Pag. 319. Baron.

CELESTIN the Second, before called Guy Du Chaſtel, becauſe he was Native of the Town of Tiferne called Cita Caſtello, and Studied under Peter Abaillard. Honorius II. in 1128 created him a Prieſt Cardinal of the Title of St. Mark. He ſucceeded Innocent II. the 25th of September 1143. and he died five months and thirteen days after. St. Bernard, and Peter the Venerable Abbot of Cluny, wrote him Two Letters. That of the firſt is the 234th, and the ſecond is the 17th of the Fifth Book. Platina, Du Cheſne, Ciaconius.

CELESTIN the Third, a Roman, call'd Hyacinthe Bobo before he was made Pope. He was made a Deacon Cardinal in 1145 by Eugenius III. and was employed in ſeveral Legations in Germany and Spain, and ſucceeded Clement III. in 1191. being made Prieſt on Holy Saturday, conſecrated upon Eaſter Sunday, and the Monday following he Crown'd the Emperor Henry V. and his Wife Conſtance. His great deſire of the Conqueſt of the Holy Land made him deeply engaged for Richard King of England, againſt ſome of his Factious Peers, who had rebelled whilſt that Prince was buſie againſt the Infidels in the Eaſt. For the ſame Subject he made uſe of his Eccleſiaſtical Cenſures againſt the Emperor and Duke of Auſtria in 1195. And after the Emperor's death in 1197. gave Sicily to his Son Frederic, upon Condition that he ſhould pay a Tribute to the Church. When he found himſelf very weak, and ſaw death at hand, he propoſed to the Cardinals the putting John of St. Paul, a Cardinal Prieſt of the Title of St. Priſque in his place, offering upon that Condition to relinquiſh the Popedom; but this Propoſition was rejected. Celeſtin Canoniz'd St. John Gualbert in 1194. he was Pope Six years and nine months lacking two days, and died in 1198. The Seat was not vacant one day, as Cardinal Baronius aſſures, who ended with this year the Twelfth and laſt Tome of his Annals of the Church.

CELESTIN the Fourth, who was call'd Geofrey before, of the Houſe of Caſtiglione in Milan, Son of John and Caſſandre Cribelli Siſter to Urban III. He was choſen the 22d of September 1241. 30 days after the death of Gregory IX. by Ten Cardinals only, the reſt being kept Priſoners by the Emperor Frederic, a great Enemy to the Church. Celeſtin, when his Uncle Urban lived, was Canon and Chancellor of the Church of Milan, and afterwards became a Friar of the Ciſtercian Order. Gregory made him Prieſt Cardinal of the Title of St. Mark, and afterwards Biſhop of the Title of Sabine, and foretold, when he heard that he made himſelf Protector of the Poor Clergy, that he would be raiſed to the Popedom; Nevertheleſs Celeſtin died 18 days after his Election, and was never Crowned, and then the Seat was vacant 21 months, the Wiſer ſort of Men not thinking it fit to chooſe a Pope until Frederick had ſet the Cardinals at Liberty. Platina. Spondan.

CELESTIN the Fifth of Iſernia in Abruzzo, call'd before Peter of Mourrhon, was Founder of the Order of the Celeſtins. He was born in 1215. and at 15 years of Age withdrew into a Solitude; afterwards he came to Rome, where he received the Order of Prieſthood, and became of the Order of St. Benet, and about the year 1239 retired into one of the Grotto's of Mount Morron, whence he received the Name of Peter of Morron or Mourrhon. In 1244 he went to Mount-Majella, where they built the Monaſtery of the Holy Ghoſt, and here he eſtabliſhed his Order, which was confirmed by Gregory X. at the Second Council of Leon in the year 1294. He was choſen Pope after Nicholas IV. the Chair being vacant Two years, three months, and ten days, and the Cardinals being met at Perugia, where they could not agree about the Election of a new Pope until Latin Cardinal of Oſtia propoſed this Holy Man, who was choſen the 5th of July 1284. He was ſo ſurpriſed at this himſelf, that he deſigned to run away; but at laſt,upon the Requeſt of the Prelates, and of Charles II. King of Sicily, he accepted this Dignity. He came upon an Aſs to Aquila, where he was Conſecrated in the preſence of above 200000 People, who flock'd thither from all parts to ſee this ſight. In the beginning of his Reign he created Twelve Cardinals, moſt Frenchmen; one was John le Moine Founder of the College of that Name at Paris: Yet becauſe Celeſtin was not fit for Court Affairs, they began to talk of Depoſing him, eſpecially after Cardinal Latin's death, who ſupplied that want in him. Benet Cajetan, who ſucceeded him under the Name of Boniface VIII. thinking that he himſelf would become the Popedom better, perſuaded him to abdicate it voluntarily, which he did five months after his Election; and as he was retiring into his Solitude again, Boniface got him confined in the Caſtle of Fumon, where he died the 13th month after his Demiſſion in 1296. After the death of Caliſte II. Thibald Cardinal of the Title of St. Anaſtaſius was choſen Pope under the Name of Celeſtin II. and as Te Deum was ſung for his Election, Robert Frangipani proclaimed Lambert Biſhop of Oſtia Pope, who aſſiſted at the Ceremony, ſo that Celeſtin, who was choſen againſt his own deſire, freely yielded the Dignity to Lambert who was call'd Honorius II.

CELESTINS, a Religious Order which derived its Name from its Founder Celeſtin V. a Hermit that followed the Rules of St. Benet, and got the Inſtitution confirmed by Pope Gregory X. in 1273. at the Second General Council of Lyons, whither he himſelf came a-foot. This Order ſoon multiplied in Italy, and was brought into France by King Philip the Fair, who ſent to Peter of Sorre, a Singer of the Church of Orleans, or, according to others, of that of Amiens, his Ambaſſador then at Naples, to beg Twelve of this Order of the Abbot General of it, to be ſent into France, where when they were come, the King gave them Two Monaſteries, one in the Foreſt of Orleans, at a Place call'd Ambert, and the other in the Foreſt of Campiegne at Mount Chartres. Charles, Dauphin and Regent of France, in 1352. whilſt King John his Father was Priſoner in England, ſent for Six of theſe Religious of Mount Chatres, to eſtabliſh them at Paris at a place called Barres, where there is a Monaſtery of that Order ſtill, and this Prince in 1358 gave 'em every month a Purſe under the Seal of the Chancelery, which Gift was confirmed by a Patent in 1361. at King John's return. When Charles came to the Crown himſelf, he made 'em a Gift of 10000 Livres of Gold, with 12 Acres of the beſt Timber in the Foreſt of Moret to build their Church, where he himſelf laid the firſt Stone, and had it Conſecrated in his preſence; afterwards he ſettled a conſiderable Parcel of Land upon the ſame Monaſtery. This Convent is the Head of the Order in France, and has 21 under it, governed by a Provincial, who has Power of a General in that Kingdom, where they chooſe a new one once every three years. Beurier.

CELICOLI, i. e. Heaven-Worſhippers; certain Vagabonds, condemn'd in 408. in the Reſcripts of the Emperor Honorius amongſt Heathens and Hereticks; Their being placed under the Title of Jews in the Theodoſian Code, makes ſome Authors believe that they were Apoſtates from the Chriſtian Religion, but declin'd to take the Name of Jews upon the account of its being odious; however they were not rang'd under the Juriſdiction of the Jewiſh Patriarch, but had a ſort of Superiors whom they call'd Majores, and without doubt had particular Errors of their own. Lib. 12. Cod. Theod. & 16. Cod. Juſtinian de Jud. Celic. Baron. A. C. 408.

CELLITES, a certain Religious Order which has Houſes at Antwerp, Louvain, Malines, Cologne, and in other Towns of Germany, and the Low-Countreys. The Founder of this Order was one Alexius, a Roman, mentioned in the Hiſtory of Italy, where theſe are alſo call'd Alexians.

CELIUS, call'd by others Clodius of Terracine, of an Illuſtrious and ancient Family, being found murdered in his Bed, his Two Sons that lay in the next Room to his, were accuſed of the Parricide, there appearing no Grounds to ſuſpect that any of the Domeſticks did that Evil Action. Yet the young Men were acquitted, becauſe the Judges conſidering that they were found aſleep with their Chamber Door open, concluded that an infallible ſign of their Innocence, it being altogether unlikely that Nature ſhould ſuffer Children to reſt ſo ſoon had they bath'd themſelves in their Father's Blood.

CELME, or Celmis, Foſter Father of Jupiter, was, according to the Fable metamorphoſed into a Diamond upon this following Occaſion. When Jupiter was young he lov'd Celme mightily, but after he had baniſh'd his Father Saturn, and call'd to mind that Celme had told ſome People he was Mortal, he changed him into a Diamond. Ovid. Met. 4. F. 7. This Fable is interpreted two different ways; ſome ſay that Poets feign'd Celme was turn'd into a Diamond, becauſe, that for ſpeaking ill of his Prince, he was ſhut up in a Tower that was as impenetrable as that Stone, and perhaps for that reaſon was call'd a Diamond. The others ſay, that his being Metamorphos'd was a Recompence rather, and hold, that Jupiter to requite the great Care he took in bringing him up, gave ſo much Riches, and ſetled ſo ſure an Inheritance upon him, that it was thence feign'd he was chang'd into a Diamond, becauſe, that as this Stone is the moſt precious, ſo it's the moſt durable of other valuable ones. In whatever ſenſe we take the Fable, it learns us, that we ought to honour our Kings, and ſerve them faithfully, they being the Maſters of Rewards and Puniſhments. Some will have it that Celme was a very moderate and even tempered Man, and that from the difficulty of putting him in a Paſſion he was ſaid to be changed into a Diamond, becauſe this receives no impreſſion. And that if we believe Pliny, lib. 37. ch. 10. there is a ſort of it has the vertue to moderate Anger, and ſuppreſs the Violence of our Paſſions.

CELOSYRIE, a Name that is given to that ſpace of Ground that lies between Libanus and Anti-libanus, where the River Orontes has its Source, which is now call'd Farfare or Tafar. Upon whoſe Banks are ſeen the Ruines of the famous Town of Antioch, formerly the Metropolitan of all Syria.

CELSUS, a Philoſopher of the Epicurean Sect; he lived in the Second Century, in the Reign of Adrian. It's to him that Lucian Dedicated his Pſeudomantis. He writ a Work againſt the Chriſtians under the Title of a True Diſcourſe, which was anſwered by Origen in another of Eight Books. Celſus promis'd another Work, wherein he undertook to teach how ſuch ſhould live that would follow the Rules of Philoſophy. When Origen ſent Ambroſe his Anſwer to Celſus's Book, he deſired him to ſend him that other Book if there was any ſuch to be found, but it's not known whether Celſus made his Promiſe good, or that he has work'd at all upon this Subject. Origen contra Celſ. Lib. 8. Euſeb. Hiſt. 6. C. 26. &c.

CELSUS, Cajus Titus Cornelius, a Tyrant that got up in Africa in the time of Galienus the Emperor, about the year 265. The Africans perſuaded him to take the Empire,and put him on a Veil of one of their Statues for an Imperial Cloak; but he was killed ſeven days after by Galiena Kinſwoman to the Emperor. The Inhabitants of Sicca left his Body to be eaten by Dogs, and as a new kind of puniſhment, tied his Effigies to a Gallows. Tribellius Pollio.

CELSUS, (Aurelius Cornelius) living under the Reign of Tiberius, was a Philoſopher, of the Sect of Aſclepiades, and is commended by Quintilian: He wrote upon the Subject of Rhetorick and Art-Military, beſides Eight Books of Phyſick, which are ſtill remaining; We have ſeveral Editions of 'em, the laſt of which was Printed at Amſterdam in 1687. with the Notes of ſeveral Learned Perſons, collected by Monſieur d'Almelovine. Quintil. Lib. 9, 10. Voſſius de Phil. Cap. 12. Sec. 4. &c.

CELSUS, (Juventius) a Lawyer living in the Second Century, under the Reign of Trajan and Adrian; He was Conſul in the year 129. and left 39 Books of Digeſts, 20 Books of Inſtitutes, and ſome others. There were ſeveral others of this Name.

CELTÆ, an ancient People that came to ſettle in Europe after the Deluge. Some will have them deſcended from Aſchenaz; others, as Appian Alexandrinus, think they ſprung from Polyphemus and Galataa, who they ſay had Three Sons, Celtus, Gallus, and Illyricus; and ſome derive their Name from Celtes IX. King of the ancient Gauls. And though ancient Greek Authors, as Herodotus, call'd the Germans and Gauls promiſcuouſly by this Name, yet others that have conſidered the thing nigher, as Polybius, Diodorus, Plutarch, Ptolemy, Strabo, Athenæus, Joſephus, &c. give it to none but to ſuch as are originally Gauls, though ſome add the Spaniards, imagining with ſome Reaſon, that the Celtes had made Alliance with the Iberians, and that it was thence the Name of the Celtiberians came. This is the Opinion of Lucian, lib. 4. Pharſ.

——— Profugique à gente vetuſta
Gallorum Celtæ miſcentes nomen Iberi.

However theſe People were more particularly Gauls. The Empire of the Celtes was famous under the Reign of Ambigat Prince of the Berruiers, who rul'd when Tarquin the Ancient govern'd Rome, as Tit. Liv. obſerves, which was about the year 164. of Rome, in the 48th Olympiad, and 591 before JESUS CHRIST. This Prince's two Nephews rendred themſelves very famous by the two great Colonies they led into Italy and Germany, the latter being conducted by Segoveſus, the other under Belloveſus. In Cæſar's time theſe ſame Celtes held all that lies between the Rhine and the Ocean, between the Mountains of Vauge and the Rivers of Marne and Seine of one ſide, and the Rhone, the Mountains of Cevennes, and the Garonne on the other. After Cæſar, this Place was called Gaule Celtique, or Lyonnois ; and Auguſtus would have it comprehended by the Rivers Rhone, Marne, Seine, Loire, and the main Sea or Ocean. Herodot. Cæſar.

CELTES Protutius, (Conrade) born at Schweinfurt upon the Maine in Franconia, lived in the Fifteenth Century : He was much in favour with the Emperor Frederick IV. who made him Poet Laureate, being the firſt German who had the Honour of this Privilege. He was famous for his Pieces in Poetry, and wrote likewiſe ſeveral Hiſtorical and Geographical Books. L. Girald. Dial. 2. de Poet. &c. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Lat. l. 3. c. 10.

CELTIBERIANS, People of the Ancient Gaul, that is the Celtes that went into Spain, and poſted themſelves all along the Ebro, making Alliances with the Iberians, firſt in Arragon, and then in Caſtile. They were very ſtout Warriors, reſiſted the Romans and Carthaginians with a great deal of Courage, which makes Florus call them The Strength of Spain.

CEMELE, a ruined Town in the Maritime Alpes, near Nice in Provence ; it was called ſo from the Neighbourhood of Mount Camenus, which comprehended all the ſpace that is from the Source of the Var, to the place where it empties it ſelf into the Sea. It was compriſed in the Gauls, and Pliny and Ptolemy call it the Town of the Vidiantins, a Word of whoſe Primitive we are ignorant. It was alſo the Capital and Reſidence of the Governour of the Maritime Alpes. The Romans did alſo ſettle there, as may be ſeen by the Inſcriptions and Tombs that ſtill appear ; but its ancient Greatneſs is more viſible by the Remains of a great Amphitheatre, by ſome Conduits diſcovered of late, and by the Ruines of the Temple of Apollo. This Town was alſo a Biſhop's Seat, and had ſeveral Prelates famous both for their Learning and Sanctity. Cemele was ruined by the Goths and Vandals in the 6th Age, according to ſome Authors ; or by the Lombards and Saracens in the 7th or 8th Century, as ſome are of Opinion. The Biſhop's See is removed to Nice, which was but inconſiderable when Cemele flouriſhed ; but is now a very rich Place, ſince the other is ruined. S. Marth. Gall. Chriſt. &c.

CENACLE of Jeruſalem, a great Building upon Mount Sion, on the South-ſide of the Town, covered with a Dome, and a Convent that belonged formerly to St. Francis's Order, but now belongs to St. Saviour. This Church is ſaid to be built upon the Foundation of the Houſe where JESUS CHRIST kept His laſt Supper with the Apoſtles. The Empreſs Helena incloſed in the Precincts hereof King David's Tomb, with them of the Succeſſors of Solomon, Roboam, and others, whoſe Burying-places were upon Mount Sion ; but this ſumptuous Building was quite demoliſhed by the Infidels about 640. and was afterwards re-eſtabliſhed by the Chriſtians about 1044. but not near ſo magnificent as before. This Church was in being in the time of Godfrey, Firſt King of Jeruſalem, who put a Prior and ſome Friars of Auguſtine's Order in it. In 1313. Robert, King of Naples and Jeruſalem, built a Convent there for St. Francis's Order, who were to be the Keepers, or the Guard of the Holy Sepulchre : But theſe Religious were driven thence by the Turks in 1560. and the Church that ſtands there now, was built upon the Foundations of that which St. Helena built. It's divided into four parts, two above, and two below : That below is 24 Paces in length , and 16 in breadth, as is the Place where JESUS CHRIST waſhed the Apoſtles Feet : Out of this People enter into another , not altogether as big as the former : And here is a Tomb held to be David's. The uppermoſt part is likewiſe divided into two great Halls, exactly equal in breadth and length with thoſe ſpoken of before. Doubdan.

CENALIS, (Robert) Biſhop of Auranches in Normandy, a Learned Prelate in the Sixteenth Century : He wrote an Hiſtory of France, and Dedicated it to Henry II. and ſoon after an Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory of Normandy. He wrote likewiſe againſt the Emperor Charles V.'s Interim ; and another concerning Weights and Meaſures, beſides one called Larva Sycophantica in Calvinum. He died at Paris in 1560. where he has a Statue of Braſs erected by his Tomb. Poſſevin. in Appar. Spond. in Annal.

CENCHRIS, Wife of Cinyras, King of Cyprus, and Mother of Myrrha , was bold to brag, That her Daughter was more Beautiful than Venus ; which that Goddeſs took ſo ill, that (if we credit Fables) to be revenged of the Mother's Pride, ſhe ſuffered the Daughter to burn with an unchaſte Flame for her Father, with whom ſhe lay without his own Knowledge, by her Nurſes Addreſs and Cunning : And finding her ſelf with Child , and willing to conceal the Guilt, withdrew into Foreſts, where Venus , moved with Pity, changed her into a Tree , of which came Adonus, which runs with Myrrh. Hygin. Fab. 58. The Scholiaſt of Theocritus, Idyll. 1. tells this Story another way ; for he attributes the Misfortune not to Cenchris's Pride, but to Myrrha's own Folly, by incurring Venus's Diſpleaſure, by bragging that her Hair was fairer than that Goddeſs's.

CENEUS, one of the Lapithæ, was firſt a Girl, called Cenis, if we believe Poets ; but finding her ſelf much beloved by Neptune, ſhe deſired him to change her into a Man, and render her Invulnerable ; which he did. She afterwards, under the Name of Ceneus, aſſiſted at Pirithous's Wedding, and fought againſt the Centaurs, who ſmotherd her, by caſting great Trees upon her Body : Yet Neptune remembring the Love he had for her formerly, that ſhe might not periſh altogether, metamorphoſed her into a Bird. Ovid. Metam. 12. Fab. 4. They that undertake to unriddle this Fable, tell us, That it was not the Nature, but the Manners and Inclinations of Ceneus that were changed, from Mean and Effeminate, as they firſt were, to a Stout and Manly Temper ; ſo that quitting Love-Affairs, he betook himſelf to the War. They feigned him Invulnerable, becauſe by his great Experience in War, and his Skill in Duels, he always eſcaped unhurt ; beſides , though the ſtouteſt Men are ſometimes oppreſſed, and forced to yield to the Number of the Enemies, which is repreſented by the great Trees the Centaurs cruſh'd Ceneus under ; yet having performed what could be expected of valiant Men, their Virtue receives no Blemiſh, but remains Invulnerable. They farther add, That Ceneus was changed into a Bird after his Death , to ſhew that the Reputations of Great Men ſubſiſt after them in the World ; and that notwithſtanding People's Endeavours to ſuppreſs it, as the Centaurs ſmothered Ceneus ; yet their Names will be Glorious, and in ſpight of Envy, Virtue will be recompenſed with Immortality.

CENIS, or Mont Cenis, the modern Name of that famous Paſſage of the Alpes which parts Savoy from Piedmont, and was called Alpes Cottiæ by the Ancients.

CENOBITES, a Name formerly given to ſuch as entered into a Monaſtick Life, and lived in Communities, to diſtinguiſh them from ſuch as paſſed their Lives in Wilderneſſes, and alone, as Hermites and Anchorites.

CENSOR, a Name given at Rome to certain Magiſtrates, whoſe Buſineſs it was to reform Manners, and to tax and value Eſtates : They degraded Senators upon occaſion, made the Princeps Senatus, inſpected the Management of private Families, relating to Education and Expence. In ſhort, they had Authority to reprimand and correct any Irregularity, and to take care that Perſons, both in a publick and private Capacity, behaved themſelves as they ought. There were two of theſe Cenſors choſen together ; one of a Patrician, and the other of a Plebeian Family : They ordinarily continued in their Office five years, unleſs one of them died within that time ; when this happened, the ſurviving Cenſor quitted, and the People proceeded to a new Election ; though this Cuſtom has been ſometimes diſcontinued. The firſt of theſe Magiſtrates were choſen in the 311th year of Rome, becauſe then the Senate obſerved, that the Conſul's time was generally taken up in Military Actions, and could not ſo well attend Private Affairs. L. Papinius Mugillanus, L. Sempronius Atratinus, begun this Office. Cic. de Leg. l. 3. Plut. in Vit. Caton. Cenſ. Liv. &c.

CENSORINUS, (Appius Claudius) a Roman Senator of great Quality, and as great a Warrior, lived in the 3d Age, was Conſul twice, and Præfectus Prætorio, and Governour of the City as often ; was alſo ſent Extraordinary Ambaſſador into Perſia and Pannonia ; and after all theſe Honours, having retired into the Country in his old Age, to be ſomewhat eaſed of a Wound he received in his Foot, when Valerian warred in Perſia, he was choſen Emperor againſt Claudius II. in 268. but being too ſevere in puniſhing all manner of Faults, he was killed by the very ſame that raiſed him to that Dignity. It's ſaid that his Tomb is to be ſeen yet near Bononia in Italy, with this Inſcription, Fœlix ad omnia infeliciſſimus Imperator ; and that after his death part of his Family withdrew into Thrace, and the reſt into Bithynia. *Trebell. BRITANNICUM

CENSORINUS, lived in the 3d Century: He wrote his Treatiſe De Die Natali, in the year 228. and Dedicated it to Quintus Cærellius. He likewiſe wrote a Book concerning Accents, frequently cited by Sidonius Apollinaris. His Treatiſe De Die Natali, is very ſerviceable for the ſtating of Chronology. 'Tis Printed with the Notes of Lindenbrogius; the laſt Edition of it is that of Cambridge, in 1695. Genebr. Voſſ. Hiſt. Lat. l. 2. c. 3.

CENTAURS, Monſters, half Men and half Horſes, believed by the Ancients to be the Sons of Ixion and the Night, or Cloud; being invited to Pirithous and Deidamia's Wedding, they quarrelled with the Lapithæ, and abuſed them; but were at laſt overcome by Hercules, who drove them out of Theſſaly. Pliny affirms, That he ſaw one of theſe Monſters, embalmed, at Rome, brought thither in the Reign of Claudius. Plutarch alſo ſays the ſame, in his Feaſt of the Seven Sages: But Palephaſus believes that this Fable of the Centaurs, was invented upon this, That ſome People of Theſſaly that lived near Mont Pelion, had admirable Addreſs and Skill in Taming Horſes, and being ſeen a horſeback by the Neighbouring People, who never ſaw any ſuch before, were called Centaurs.

CENTOBRICA, an ancient Town of the Celtiberians in Spain, being cloſely beſieged by Q. Metellus, General of the Roman Army, and part of the Walls overthrown by his Engines, which put the taking the Town quite out of doubt, and made the Beſieged, as their laſt Shift, to expoſe Rothogenes's Children before the Breach, to be battered in pieces by the Rams and other Engines, becauſe that Man had joined with the Romans. Metellus obſerving this, choſe rather to raiſe the Siege than to ſuffer that the Generous Rothogenes, who profered to ſacrifice his Family for his Glory, ſhould have the Diſpleaſure to ſee his Children maſſacred. This Clemency and Good Nature took ſo much with the Celtiberians, that they voluntarily opened their Gates for the Romans. Valer. Maxim. Lib. 5.

CENTONAIRES, certain Officers of the Roman Army, who provided Tents, and other Stuff, called Centones, made uſe of to quench the Fire which the Enemies Engines threw into the Camp. Vegetius, Lib. 4. treating of the Machine that is uſed in Camps to make covered Galleries, ſays, That its outſide was covered with raw Hides, or Centons, that is, old Rags and Cloth, proper to reſiſt Fire, and keep Darts off. Julius Cæſar, in his Commentaries, ſays, That the Soldiers made uſe of the like to ſecure themſelves from the Enemies Darts. Theſe Centonaires kept with the Carpenters and other Officers of the Artillery, as appears by old Inſcriptions.

CENTORIO de Gli-Hortenſio (Aſcanio) born at Milan, and living to about 1580. He wrote very politely both in Latin and Italian, in Proſe and Verſe. We have ſeveral Treatiſes of his; as, the Wars of his own Time; a Commentary of the War of Tranſilvania, &c.

CENTURIÆ, certain Parties of the Roman People, which conſiſted of 100 Men each, or thereabouts. It was Servius Tullius, ſixth King of Rome, that firſt made this Diviſion, when he diſtinguiſhed all the People into Six Claſſes, and ſubdivided each Claſs into ſeveral Centuries. The Firſt Claſs, which was the Richeſt of all, had 80 Centuries, whereof 40 conſiſted of young Men fit to bear Arms, and the other 40 were for their greater Age to remain in the City. The Second, Third, and Fourth Claſs, were each of 20 Centuries, divided and ordered as the former. The Fifth had 30 Centuries. The Sixth comprehended all the meaner ſort, and was counted but for one Century. From amongſt the Nobles the King choſe Eighteen Centuries of Gentlemen, which he added to the Firſt Claſs, or Rank; and added Two Centuries of Tradeſmen and Smiths to the Second; Two of Trumpeters and Players upon the Flute to the Third. Theſe all together made 139, and met always at the Creation of Magiſtrates, at the Eſtabliſhment of Laws, and when War was declared. Each Century gave its Suffrage upon theſe Occaſions, and what was approved by the greateſt Number, was ratified by the People. Here was alſo Juſtice adminiſtred; but that only in Caſes that touched the Commonwealth, or the Privileges of the Citizens of Rome. There were none that had the liberty to Aſſemble this great Body but the Chief Magiſtrates; as, the Conſuls, the Prætors, Cenſors, Dictators, and Decemvirs. Their Meeting-place was without the City, in the Campus Martius; and whilſt they were met, all the Soldiers were drawn up about the City. In the beginning their Cuſtom was to ſend the People's Reſolution to the Senate to receive their Confirmation; but afterwards the Senate was forced to approve whatever that Aſſembly thought fit; ſo that an Approbation was a Ceremony which could be well enough ſpared. This following Order was obſerved in the King's times: The Ninety eight Centuries of the Firſt Rank, voted firſt; and if they chanced all to be of one Mind, the Matter was concluded without further Debate; becauſe thoſe made up the greateſt Number, the reſt being in all but Ninety five Centuries: But if theſe did not agree, then it was put to the Second and Third, &c. until there hapned to be Ninety ſeven for the ſame ſide. In the Commonwealths time, the Names of the Centuries were drawn by Lots; and that which chanced to be drawn firſt, voted firſt. Since the 512 of Rome, that the People were divided into 35 Tribes, and that the Centuries were included in theſe Tribes, they drew Lots for the Firſt Rank of the Tribes; and afterwards the Centuries, or Companies of this Tribe, drew which ſhould have the Firſt Suffrage: And then theſe Companies were named Firſt, Second, Third, &c. according to their Rank. Roſin. Antiq. Rom.

CENTURION, was Captain of a Roman Century, or Company of an hundred Men. A Legion, when the Commonwealth flouriſhed, was of ten Cohorts, or Regiments, and each Cohort of ſix Centuries; ſo that a Legion conſiſted of 60 Companies, or of ſix thouſand Men. Roſin. Antiq.

CENULPHUS, or Kenulphus, the 14th King of the Mercians, remarkable for his Piety and Courage: He returned the See of Canterbury all the Privileges which his Predeceſſor had taken from it. He made War upon the King of Kent, took him Priſoner, and was fortunate in all his Enterprizes. He Reigned 24 years, and died about 819. Du Cheſne Hiſt. d'Angl.

CEPERANO, or Ciperano, a certain Place upon the Garillan, famous for a Council held there by Pope Paſchal II. in 1114. wherein the Archbiſhop of Cozença was reſtored to his See, which Roger Count of Sicily forced him to quit, and take a Habit in Mont-Caſſin. William was made Duke of Apuleia and Calabria; and Landulphe was accuſed of ſome Crimes, who being not able to juſtifie himſelf, fled to the ſame Monaſtery of Mont-Caſſin.

CEPHALONIA, an Iſland in the Ionian Sea, over againſt the Gulphs of Patras and Lepanto, which are between Achaia and the Morea. This Iſland has 160 miles circuit, and is divided into ſeven parts, viz. Argoſtoli, Liſcuri, Finea, Eriſſo, Pillaro, Samo, and Lucato, which have each of them many good Towns. The Inhabitants are naturally Men of Courage, and of great Wit. The Land abounds in Raiſins, which the Venetians turn to good advantage. In June they Harveſt the Corn that was ſown in the middle of Winter; and the Trees generally bear their Fruit in April and November. Their Roſes and Flowers are very common in their coldeſt Seaſon. This Iſland has ſeveral Havens, and two Ports, the beſt whereof is that of Argoſtoli, which is to the South-Weſt. Gaio, who was Lord of this Iſland, beſtowed it upon the Republick of Venice, in 1224. The Turks made themſelves Maſters of it in 1479. but were driven thence in 1499. by the Venetians, who repeopled it with Chriſtians; and in 1595. built the Fortreſs of Aſſo, to ſerve as a place of Retreat to the Inhabitants in caſe of an Invaſion, the Town of Cephalonia not being big enough to receive them all. This Fort is built upon a high Mountain all ſurrounded with the Sea, to the Reſerve of a narrow Spot about twenty Paces wide, which joins it to the Iſland. This place is Governed by a Noble Venetian, that has the Title of Providitor, and is ſent thither by the Senate: His Government holds thirty two Months. As for Religion, the greateſt part follow the Greek Liturgy.

CEPHALUS, Son of Dejon, King of part of Phocis, or, according to others, Son of Mercury, and Herſe Daughter of Cecrops, was married to Procris, Daughter to Erectheus King of Athens; but being a great Lover of Hunting, and a very comely Prince, was taken away by Aurora, who loved him mightily, but could never gain his Affection: At laſt, enraged to be denied and ſlighted, ſhe ſends him away in great Anger, and threatned him with a ſevere Revenge. So he returns to his only beloved Procris; but had a mind to make trial of her Fidelity under a Diſguiſe. He played his part very well, becauſe Aurora, deſigning to profit by this Occaſion, changed his Mien and Voice; ſo that Procris was juſt ready to yield to his Intreaties, and to the great Offers he made her, until he diſcovered himſelf, and reproached her with her Infidelity; which ſtruck her with ſo much Shame, that ſhe withdrew to the Woods, whence Cephalus, not being able to be without her, ſoon brought her back: It was then ſhe gave him the Dog and Dart Minos beſtowed upon her; ſo he ſtill followed his Hunting, until at laſt Procris becoming jealous of him, went into the Woods, and hid her ſelf in a Buſh, where Cephalus thinking it was a wild Beaſt, killed her with the ſame Dart ſhe her ſelf gave him. The Scholiaſt of Euripides ſays, That Cephalus was warned to appear before the Areopagus, to anſwer for Procris's Death; and that this was the Second Judgment of that Famous Senate, the Firſt being when Mars was accuſed by Neptune of having kill'd his Son Halirothius; the Third, when Dædalus killed his Nephew Talus; the Fourth, when Oreſtes killed his Mother Clitemneſtra. Some make this Reflection upon the Fable, and ſay, That when Procris parted from her Husband, ſhe went into the Territories of Minos King of Crete, who allowed her a Guard, the Captain whereof was called Cyon; this Captain ſhe afrerwards beſtowed upon Cephalus, when Minos reconciled her to him. It was upon this that the Fable of a Dog and Dart was grounded; for κύων ſignifies a Dog in Greek, and a Dart is taken for Soldiers. Cephalus uſed theſe againſt a Valiant and Cunning Captain called Alopex, which ſignifies a Fox in Greek, and is the reaſon he was ſaid to have killed a Fox with his Dog.

CEPHEUS, King of Arcadia, Brother to K. Aleus; he was look'd on as Invincible, on the account of one of Meduſa's hairs, which Minerva faſtned to his Head. Pauſan.

CEPHISUS, a River in Phocis, upon the Banks of which the Oracle of Themis ſtood, which was conſulted by Deucalion and Pyrrha: It riſes in Doris, and runs by Parnaſſus, and at laſt diſcharges it ſelf into the Euripus, or the Streight of Negropont. It is now called Ceſiſſo. Strab. l. 9. &c.

CEPUSZ, or Cepuſe, a County of Hungary upon the Frontiers of Poland, towards the Carpathian Mountains. There is part of this County in Poland, and part in Hungary. The chief Borough of this latter is Leutſch.

CERAM, or Ceiram, an Iſland in the Indian Seas, between the Molucco and the Land of Papous, Giolo, &c. It's pretty well ſtocked with Inhabitants, and abounds in all kind of Spices and other Merchandices of the Indies.

CERAMICUM, a famous place in Athens, or rather two; for there was one within the Town, adorned with fine Portals, the fineſt Walks of Athens, and another in one of the Suburbs, where there was a Tile-Kiln, and where Plato kept his Academy. Meurſius ſays, That the Ceramicum was a place without the Town of Athens, where they were buried who were killed fighting generouſly for their Country, and had Funeral Orations pronounced in their Praiſe, with Statues and Inſcriptions to immortalize their Memory; and adds, That there was another place of this ſame Name at Athens, where Whores lived; and that both had there Name from Κέραμος, which ſignifies a Tile, or Brick, becauſe they were built of Bricks. Suidas.

CERASUS, an ancient Town of Cappadocia, upon the Coaſt of the Euxine Sea, and is now called Chiriſſonda. Tho' formerly it was conſiderable, it's now ruined, and very thin of Inhabitants. It was hence that Cherries were firſt brought into Italy by Lucullus, according to Athenæus; which is alſo confirmed by St. Jerom's Anſwer to Marcella, one of his Diſciples, wherein he ſpeaks, I received a Basket of fine and red Cherries; which looked as if they were but juſt brought by Lucullus; for it was he, who after ſubduing Pontus and all Armenia, firſt brought this ſort of Fruit to Rome, which has retained the Name of the Country it was brought from; tho', if we believe Caſaubon, it's likelier that the Place had its Name from the abundance of this Fruit.

CERAUNIANS, a Name which the Grecians gave ſeveral Chains of Mountains, becauſe they were often ſtruck with Thunder-bolts, which is called Κεραυνὸς in Greek: But they gave this Name more particularly to a Ridge of Mountains, upon the Borders of Epirus, which end where People begin to diſtinguiſh the Ionian and Adriatick Sea. The Mountains are now called Monti di Chimera in Chaonia, and ſtretch from W. to E. and are but 50 Leagues from the Iſle of Corfu.

CERAUNUS, a Sirname that was given to Ptolemy, King of Macedonia, becauſe he was Valiant: There was alſo a Son of Ptolemy I. King of Egypt, that bore this Name.

CERBERUS, a Name which Poets gave a Dog with 3 Heads, which they feigned Door-keeper of Hell, that careſſed the unfortunate Souls ſent thither, and devoured them that would get out again; yet Hercules tied him up, and made him follow. This Dog with 3 Heads denotes the paſt, the preſent, and time to come, which receive, and, as it were, devour all things. Hercules got the better of him; which ſhews that Heroick Actions are always Victorious over Time, becauſe they are always preſent in the Memory of Poſterity. Others ſay, That this Dog with 3 Heads repreſents the 3 Enemies of Mankind; and that the Hero that chains them is the Figure of a great Soul, which generouſly ſurmounts the Deſigns of its declared Enemy.

CERCOPES, certain cheating Fellows which Jupiter metamorphoſed into Monkeys, which expreſſes God's puniſhment of the Perfidious.

CERCYON, a famous Robber of the Country of Attica: He forced Paſſengers to wreſtle with him, and killed thoſe that were thrown by him. He was afterwards worſted by Theſeus, and ſerved the ſame Sauce. Plut. in Theſ.

CERDA, a Spaniſh Jeſuit, Native of Toledo, where he took the Habit in 1574. He writ three Volumes of Commentaries upon Virgil, with Arguments, Notes, and Explications upon all Tertullian's Books. He wrote Commentaries likewiſe upon Tertullian. De Pallio. Adverſaria Sacra, &c. Nich. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp.

CERDAGNE, or the Cardagna, a little Country in the Pyrenæan Mountains, between Languedoc and Catalonia, belonging in part to the French King, and part to the King of Spain, according to the Agreement made in the year 1659. This is the Country of the ancient Ceretani, or Coretani, mentioned by Pliny, Strabo, and other ancient Authors. The Capital Town is called Pincerda upon Segro.

CERDON, a Hereſiarch of the Second Age, Diſciple of Heracleon: He ſtuck to Saturninus's and Simon the Magician's Tenets, as St. Epiphanius obſerves, ſpread his Errors in Syria, holding there were Two Gods, one who created Heaven, and the other the Earth, rejecting the Laws and Prophets, and all the New Teſtament, except a part of St. Luke's Goſpel, and ſome Epiſtles of St. Paul. He alſo taught, That JESUS CHRIST came in the Shape of Man, but had not a real Body; admitted the Reſurrection of the Soul only. He came to Rome in Pope Hyginus's time, about 152. and by a counterfeit Abjuration of his Doctrine, endeavoured to cheat the Church; but was diſcovered, and baniſhed thence. Tertull. Iren. l. 1.

CEREALES, certain Feaſts among the Pagans, in Honour of Ceres, Goddeſs of Corn, inſtituted by Triptolemus, King of Eleuſis in Attica, to whom that Goddeſs learned the Art of Agriculture. Theſe Feaſts were celebrated with ſuch Religious Worſhip, that whilſt they held, Men kept from their Wives Company. The Sacrifice was performed with extraordinary Reſpect, and no Wine was employed in it. Theſe Feaſts are called Theſmophoria, becauſe they were dedicated to Ceres Theſmophore, that is, Law-maker. Plin.

CEREALIS, Unkle to the Emperor Gratian, in the Fourth Century. He cauſed Valentinian, the younger Brother of that Emperor, to be proclaimed Auguſtus, being but 9 or 10 years old, according to Socrates; though Ammianus Marcellinus ſays he was 14. Gratian, being a very ſweet-natured Prince, let the Election paſs without any Oppoſition. Socrat. Hiſt. l. 4. c. 26. Am. Marcellin. l. 30. &c.

CEREALIS, or Petilius Cerealis, a Roman General, who was routed by Bonduica, or Boudicia, Queen of the Iceni, in Great Britain. This Defeat hapned in the Reign of Claudius. Tacit. Lib. 14. Annal.

CEREALIS, Biſhop of Caſtulum in Africk, lived in the Fifth Century, to about the year 490. about which time he wrote a Book againſt Maximianus, an Arrian Biſhop, who had engaged him in a Diſpute before the King of the Vandals: This Book is in the 4th Tome of the Bibliotheca Patrum, and is Entituled, Liber de Fide S. Trinitatis: 'Tis divided into 20 ſhort Chapters, containing Scripture-Authorities to prove the Conſubſtantiality of the WORD with His FATHER. Gennad. de Script. Eccl. c. 96. &c.

CEREMISSES, or Czeremiſſes, People of the Eaſtern Muſcovy, on both ſides of the River Volga, between Niſi, Novogorod and Gazan, which are the Tartars the Great Duke of Muſcovy ſubjected to his Empire in 1552. They have no Houſes, but live altogether in Hutts: They feed moſt on Honey and the Milk of their Cattel, with what they can kill in the Woods. Some are Mahometans; but they that live near Cazan are all Pagans, and perfect Strangers to Baptiſm or Circumciſion. Moſt of them believe that there is an Immortal GOD, who ſhould be adored; but deny the Immortality of the Soul, and Reſurrection of the Dead: And though they neither believe there is a Heaven or Hell, yet they Sacrifice to God: This they do likewiſe to Evil Angels, which they endeavour to appeaſe by this Worſhip, and hinder from tormenting them in this Life. In their Sacrifices to God, they kill an Horſe, an Ox, or a Mutton, and burn the Skin with a piece of Fleſh, pouring a Porringer of Hydromel into the Fire. They likewiſe adore the Sun and Moon. Their Language is particular; but thoſe who have occaſion to Trade with the Muſcovites, learn theirs. They get their Heads ſhaved, except Batchelors, who let their Hair grow very long, and hang upon their Backs, or buckle it up. Polygamy is very common amongſt them, there being few without 4 or 5 Wives. Olearius.

CERES, Daughter of Saturn and Ops, deſirous to find her Daughter, which Pluto took from her, lighted two Torches upon Mount Ætna, reſolving to ſeek her Night and Day throughout all the Earth. She comes to K. Eleuſis's Court in Attica, where having offered to Nurſe his Son Triptolemus, and willing to render him Immortal, fed him in the day-time with Divine Milk, and at night hid him in the Fire. The King, ſurprized to ſee the Child grow ſo faſt, watched the Nurſe one night, and ſeeing her put him into the Fire, cry'd out, and diſcovered himſelf to his own Ruine; for this Goddeſs, enraged at his Curioſity, put him immediately to death; but for young Triptolemus, ſhe learned him to Till the Earth, and Sow Corn; and having placed him in a Chariot, drawn by winged Serpents, ſent him throughout all the World to teach Men Agriculture. Ovid, Lib. 5. Fab. 6 and 7. ſays, That Ceres was the firſt that Tilled the Ground, and furniſhed Men with Corn for their Food, and by good Laws learned them Juſtice, and the manner to live in Society. He adds, That being forced to return into Sicily, the Nymph Arethuſa acquainted her that it was Pluto had taken away her Daughter Proſerpina; whereupon ſhe obtained of Jupiter, that her Daughter ſhould be reſtored, provided ſhe had eat of nothing in Hell: That Aſcalaphus, Son of Acheron and Orphne, one of the Infernal Nymphs, informed, That he had ſeen Proſerpina gather a Pomegranate in Pluto's Gardens, and ſuck ſeven of the Grains out: Which ſo irritated Ceres, that ſhe changed him into an Owl, the Meſſenger of ill News: And finally, That Jupiter, to comfort his Siſter, agreed that ſhe might enjoy her Daughter 6 Months in Heaven; and that ſhe ſhould be the 6 other with her Husband in Hell. Some Poets take Ceres for the Moon, and Bacchus for the Sun: As Virgil, in the Firſt of his Georgicks:

——— Vos O clariſſima Mundi,
Lumina labentem Cœlo quæ ducimus Annum;
Liber & alma Ceres.

Others take Ceres for the Earth, which is the Nurſe of Mankind, and call her Theſmophore, or Law-maker, becauſe that after ſhe had learned Men to Till and Manure the Land, they then began (who lived before without Law or Order) to divide the Land; and ſome People pretend that it was hence Law and Property ſprung. In ancient times Ceres was held to rule and preſide over all the Rural Oeconomy; and Pauſanias in Arcadicis makes mention of an Altar where the Fruit of Trees, Honey, Wool, and other things of this nature were offered to her, but never any Wine; which made Plautus, ſpeaking of a Wedding where there was no Wine, compare it to that of Ceres. Ceres was repreſented in a Chariot drawn by two Dragons, holding Peacocks Heads in one hand, and a burning Torch in the other, with a Sheaf of Corn upon her Head. Thoſe that have a mind to ſee more of the Mythology of Ceres, together with the Origin and myſterious Ceremonies of the Sacra Eleucinia, may conſult the Explication of the Hiſtorical Fable of Ceres, inſerted in the 6th Tome de la Bibliotheque Univerſelle, where the Reader may find a Supplement of what was wanting in Meurſius's Book, called, Eleucinia.

CERETI, or Cereta Laura of Breſce, Daughter of Bapt.Cereti, a Phyſician. She made ſuch great Progreſs in Learning, that ſhe defended Theſes of Philoſophy at 18 years of age, and afterwards taught it 7 years together. She lived about the beginning of 1600. but it's uncertain when ſhe died.

CERIGO, the firſt Iſland of the Archipelago towards Europe, to the South of Cape Maleo of Morea, and to the Eaſt of the Gulph of Colochina. The Ancients called it Cythera, and dedicated it to Venus. The Circuit is of 60 miles, all environed with Rocks. The beſt of its Ports is at 10 Leagues diſtance from the Fortreſs, and is deep and ſafe, and has room for 40 Galleys. This Iſland produces very good Wine, but in no great quantity: It does not want Corn, Olives, or ſtore of good Veniſon. There are alſo great numbers of wild Aſſes; and it's ſaid there are certain Stones found in their Heads, which help Women in Labour. The Capital, which bears the ſame Name with the Iſland, is built upon the point of a Rock, and is very well fortified, both by Art and Nature: The Sea ſerves it for a Ditch, and its Cannon are placed upon a Heighth that commands all round it. The Republick of Venice is in poſſeſſion of this Iſland, ever ſince the Diviſion of the Grecian Empire, and every two years ſends a Noble Venetian to Command there, in Quality of Governour, or Providitor. The Greeks have ſome Convents in it, the Chief whereof is that of San Giovanni della Grotta, built in a Rock to the right of the Fortreſs. The Inhabitants have the greater Veneration for this Place, becauſe they think it was here St. John began his Apocalyps. Here are four Mountains in this Iſland, which formerly had many Towns built upon them; but now there remains none but the Town of Cerigo, which is very well Peopled, becauſe many of the Inhabitants of Candie flocked thither, to be nearer the pleaſant Climate of Greece. P. Coronelli.

CERINTHUS, a Diſciple of Simon Magus and Carpocrates, a Heretick, lived in the Firſt Century: He was one of the principal Authors of the Diſſention which had like to have made a Schiſm among the Chriſtians, concerning the Obſervation of the Legal Ceremonies, which this Heretick had a mind to incorporate with Chriſtianity: He affirmed, That Jeſus was the Son of Joſeph and Mary; and that Chriſt came into his Soul in the form of a Dove when he was Baptized, from which time he began to underſtand the Sovereign Father, and received the Power of Miracles. He added, when Jeſus ſuffered, Chriſt flew up into Heaven, without being ſenſible of any Inconvenience. Some Authors likewiſe affirm the Millenary Doctrine taught by Cerinthus. St. John being returned to Epheſus, after the Death of Domitian, wrote his Goſpel to confute the Errors of this Arch-heretick. Iren. Lib. 1. Cap. 25. *Epiphan. Hær.*22. &c.

CERISANT, (Mark Duncan) Son of an Eminent Phyſician called Mark Duncan, who was a Scotch Gentleman: He was Ingenious and Handſome, but vain and Ambitious. His Latin Poetry is very much eſteemed by the Learned, the Genius and Character of it being Noble and Elevated, inſomuch that ſome of his Odes are ſuppoſed to be written up to the fineſt of Horace's. L. Aub. du Maurier. Memoires, &c.

CERISOLES, a Borough of Italy in Piedmont, ſituated upon a Hill near Carmagnole, and famous for the Battel between the French in the Reign of Francis I. and the Troops of Charles V. It was fought the 14th of April, 1544. Francis of Bourbon, Duke of Enguien, commanding the French, and Alphonſus of Avalas, Marquiſs of Guaſt, being General of the Imperialiſts. Theſe laſt were totally routed, with the Loſs of 12000 Men killed upon the ſpot, and all their Cannon and Baggage taken, amongſt which were found 4000 Chains, which the Marquiſs of Guaſt brought to put the French in.

CERNE, a Market-Town in Dorſetſhire in Totcombe Hundred, ſtanding in a Champaign Country, and watered with a fine Rivulet; conſiderable for its being heretofore an Abbey-Town. Ninety nine miles from London.

CERTITIUS, or Cerditius, a Saxon Captain, who put to Sea about 495. with five Ships full of Soldiers, and ſailed to the Coaſts of Great Britain, where he landed in ſpight of the Inhabitants, and kept there in continual War for 24 years; and, with the Aſſiſtance of ſome neighbouring Princes, eſtabliſhed himſelf in the Weſtern part of the Iſland, and was the firſt King of the Weſt-Saxons. Du Cheſne.

CERVANTES Saavedra, (Miguel) a Spaniard, born at Seville, or, as ſome ſay, at a Town near Toledo: He was a Perſon of extraordinary Worth and Parts, had a Noble Genius, and a great deal of Fire and Delicacy in his Imagination: This Character is ſufficiently made good by his Writings in Proſe and Verſe. Cervantes had been Secretary to the Duke of Alva; and afterwards retiring to Madrid, he was treated with ſome Neglect by the Duke of Lerma, Firſt Miniſter to Philip III. King of Spain. To revenge himſelf of this Stateſman, who had no value for Men of Letters, he wrote the Romance of Don Quixote; an incomparable Piece in its kind, and a very handſom Satyr upon his Nation; the Spaniſh Nobility, who are ridicul'd in this Book, being then ſtrangely ſmitten with the Fancy of Knight-Errantry. Cervantes publiſhed the Firſt Part of his Don Quixote in 1605. Beſides this Book, he wrote ſeveral Novels and Comedies. Nich. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp.

CERVARIUS, (Poculus) a Roman Knight, who joined in the Conſpiracy that Piſo was Head of; but upon his ſudden Repentance, and Diſcovery of the reſt, he was pardoned by Nero. Tacit.

CERVETERE, a Town in St. Peter's Patrimony in Italy, upon a little Hill, 3 miles from the Tuſcan Sea, and 8 from Bracciano; formerly a fair ſpacious place, called Cære, or Cerevetus, Capital of Hetruria; whence certain Regiſters were called Cærites Tabulæ, in which the Cenſors got the Name of ſuch written, who were deprived of the Privilege of Noting: For when Rome was taken by the Gauls, the Inhabitants of Cære received very civilly them that brought thither the Sacred Things, and eternal Veſtal Fire, for their greater Security. To recompence this good Service, the Commonwealth gave them all the Privileges of Roman Burgeſſes, except that of giving their Suffrages. Strabo, l. 5.

CERVIA, formerly called Ficocle, a Town of Italy towards the Adriatick Sea, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Ravenna. John Francis of Guidi, (Cardinal Bagni) Biſhop of this Place, held a Synod in it in 1634. whereof we have ſtill the Ordinances.

CESAR, a Title of Honour which the Roman Emperors gave to their Sons, or to ſuch as they adopted to be their Succeſſors. The Title of the King of the Romans now of our days, is ſomewhat like it.

CESAR, (Julius) firſt Emperor of Rome, Son to Lucius Cæſar, and Aurelia, Daughter to Cotta. Some will have him deſcended by the Father's ſide, from Iulus, the Son of Æneas, and by his Grand-Mother Marcis's ſide, from Ancus Martius, fourth King of the Romans, as he himſelf has it in his Funeral Oration for his Aunt Julia. He was born the 12th of the 5th Month, ſince called July, from his Name, the 654 of Rome, and 80th before our Saviour's Birth. At 16 years of Age he loſt his Father; and the year after he was choſen High Prieſt of Jupiter. The Dictator Sylla ſuſpecting his ambitious Humour, would have him be put to Death; but Cæſar was ſo wary in ſhifting his Lodging at Nights, though at that very time he was troubled with a Quartan Ague, and ſo cunning in Bribing thoſe that were employed to find and take him, that he ſcaped this Danger, and was at laſt received into Sylla's Favour; who, when he was overperſuaded to pardon him, told his own Friends that preſſed him to it, That he, whoſe Intereſt was ſo dear to them at that time, ſhould one day ruine their City. After this, Cæſar goes to the Army in Aſia, and at his return accuſed Cornelius Dolabella of defrauding the Publick, then ſets ſail for Rhodes to ſtudy under Apollonius Molo; but was taken by Pyrates, who proffered him his Liberty for 30 Talents; but he ſcorning it at ſo low a Price, gives them 50. As ſoon as he was out of their Hands, he takes other Ships, attacks the ſame that took him, takes them, and crucifies them all; ſo verified what he uſed to threaten them with in Jeſt, when their Priſoner. The firſt Office he was raiſed to by the Peoples Suffrages, was that of a Tribune of the Soldiers; then he was choſen afterwards Queſtor, was made an Ædilis; and here being diſappointed in his hopes of obtaining a Commiſſion to re-eſtabliſh the King of Ægypt, he puts in for the Place of Pontifex Maximus, or High-Prieſt; and it's ſaid he was ſo ſure to carry it, that he foretold his Mother, in taking his Leave of her early in the Morning, before he went to the Meeting-place, that he would never return to his Houſe e'er he had it: Which proved true, for he carried it from two powerful Competitors, who exceeded him in Age and Authority. After this he became Prætor, then Governor of Spain, where, when he ſaw Alexander the Great's Image in the Temple of Hercules in Cadiz, he could not forbear weeping, to think that he himſelf had done no remarkable thing at an Age that Alexander had ſubdued moſt part of the World. At his return, in 695. he was choſen Conſul with Bibulus, whom he depoſed, and confined to his Houſe during the reſt of his Conſulſhip, becauſe he would not conſent to the publiſhing of the Law Agraria. So that he himſelf ruled alone, which made ſome, in a joaking way, mention in their Dates, Not Cæſar and Bibulus being Conſuls, but Julius and Cæſar being Conſuls. During his Conſulſhip, being aſſiſted by L. Piſo, his Wife Calpurnia's Father, and Pompey, his Daughter Julia's Husband, he choſe the Government of the Gauls, which he formed into a Province, during the ten years he commanded the Army, and impoſed a yearly Tribute of 400000 Seſterces upon it. He was the firſt of the Romans that laid a Bridge over the Rhine to attack the Germans, over whom he gained ſeveral memorable Victories. He alſo ſubdued the Inhabitants of Great Britany, People the Romans never heard talk of before his time, and obliges them to ſend him Money and Hoſtages; but while he was thus victorious abroad, his Daughter Julia dies at Rome, and his and Pompey's Friendſhip and good Underſtanding falls with her; ſo that after this they looked upon each other as Competitors; and as the one could not ſtoop to a Superior, ſo could not the other abide a Rival. This made Pompey, then at Rome, to oppoſe all Cæſar's Deſigns, and hinder the Senate's yielding him his Requeſts; upon which he leads his Victorious Army into Italy in 705. which ſo frightned his Enemies that they fled for it, makes himſelf Maſter of ſome conſiderable Places, and takes Domitius Priſoner, who was named to ſucceed him in the Government; then paſſes along the Coaſts of the Adriatick Sea ſtrait to Brindes, or Brunduſium, whither the Conſuls and Pompey were gone to croſs the Seas; but miſſing them, returns to Rome, aſſembles the Senate upon the Affairs of the Commonwealth, and afterwards goes into Spain to engage Pompey's Army, commanded by his three Generals, M. Petreius, L. Afranius, and M. Varron; ſaying, as he went, that he was going to fight an Army without a Head or General, with an Intention afterwards to find out the General without an Army. He ſoon compaſſed his Deſign, though the Siege of Marſeilles retarded him ſomewhat; then comes back again to Rome, paſſes into Macedonia, and after four Months Encampment near Pompey, defeats him in the Plains of Pharſalia, in the 706th year of Rome, purſues him as far as Alexandria, where hearing of his Death, he turns his Arms againſt Ptolemy, who deſigned to ſurpriſe him; and though it was then in the depth of Winter, and Cæſar was unprovided of Neceſſaries, and in a City that belonged to a powerful and cunning Enemy, yet he got the better, and made himſelf Maſter of all Ægypt, which he left to Cleopatra, and marched into Syria, thence into Pontus, where on the fifth day after his coming, in one Battel of four Hours, he quite defeated Pharnaces, Son to the great Mithridates. After this he overthrew Scipio and Juba, who had gathered together the Remains of their ſcattered Troops in Africa, and overcame Pompey's Children in Spain. In all theſe Civil Wars, Fortune never proved his Enemy but twice, once at Dyrrachium, when Pompey made him fly, but did not purſue him, which made Cæſar ſay, he did not know how to Conquer; and the other in his laſt Engagement in Spain. When he put an end to theſe Wars, he went in triumph five times, was declared Dictator during his Life, was made Conſul for ten Years, and afterwards willingly embraced the Title of Emperor. The firſt, and moſt Magnificent of his Triumphs, was that of the Gauls, the ſecond of Alexandria, the third of Pontus, the fourth of Africa, the fifth and laſt, that of Spain. After this he diverted the People with ſeveral ſorts of Shews and Plays, and then applied himſelf with great care to regulate the Commonwealth. In 707. he reformed the Faſti, conformed the Year to the Courſe of the Sun, and made it conſiſt of 365 Days, reforming the Roman Calendar, by the Advice of Soſigenes and other eminent Aſtrologers, and begun that Year, which of his Name was called the Julian. He compleated the Number of Senators, ſhared the Power of chuſing Magiſtrates with the People, took a Liſt of the Citizens, and ſettled all other things with much Judgment and Prudence, particularly in what related to Luxury and Expence. He was a great Admirer of Learning from his very Youth, and compoſed ſeveral curious Pieces both in Proſe and Verſe upon different Subjects; yet his Commentaries are all we have now of his, and certain Authors pretend that he himſelf compoſed but ſome of theſe too, for they aſcribe the ſeventh Book of the War againſt the Gauls to Hirtius, who has alſo made Commentaries upon the Wars of Spain, of Africa, and Alexandria. Others think that Oppius, an intimate Friend of Cæſar's, was the Author of this Book. The Curious may conſult Voſſius, la Mothe, le Vayer, &c. upon this Subject. In his latter days, when he ſaw the Commonwealth all in Peace, he made ſeveral Projects, both for the Embelliſhment of Rome, and the Conſervation of the Empire; as, firſt, to build a Temple for Mars, the greateſt and moſt Magnificent of any then in the World; to abridge the Law; to eſtabliſh publick Libraries; to dry the Bogs and Marſhes of Pontus; to drain the Lake Fucin, and cut a good way from the Sea to the Tiber through the Alpes; but before he could begin any of theſe great Deſigns, he was murthered in the Senate-houſe the 15th of March, the 709th year of Rome, the 56th of his Age, and 43 years before the Birth of our Saviour, three Years, four Months, and ſix Days after his perpetual Dictatorſhip, and in the 184th Olympiad. As for his Perſon, he was Tall, of a paliſh Complexion, with quick and lively Eyes, which are ſigns of a Cholerick Temperament, with a Mixture of Phlegm; his Noſe was of the biggeſt, drawing much upon an Aquiline or Hawk-Noſe, which denotes great Courage, and a Deſire for Glory and Domination. His black and lively Eye, his Aquiline Noſe, and the Dent in the middle of his Forehead, ſhewed him a Man of great Deſigns, and as conſtant in his Undertaking. The good Shape of his Head, and juſt Proportion of the Eminencies before and behind, his long Neck, his quick Eye and Forehead ſomewhat ſunk in, all together concurr'd to make him an able Scholar, and eloquent Orator. The Baldneſs of his Head before, marked his Inclination to Venery; and to hide this, he asked the Senate leave to wear always a Crown of Lawrel. As for his other Qualities, he was very neat, mild, and ſoon reconciled to his Enemies; He wept bitterly for Pompey's Misfortune, pardoned ſome Poets that writ ſcurrilous Libels againſt him; and in the Battel of Pharſalia, publiſhed an Order to ſpare the Roman Citizens, and gave each of his own Soldiers leave to ſave whom he pleaſed of the Enemy; and when he heard Cato got himſelf killed in Africa, he ſaid with ſome concern, That he envied Death for envying him the Glory of giving him his Life. Beſides this, he was a good Friend, and very Magnificent; the only thing he was accuſed of, was of being over free with the fair Sex. Suetonius, Plutarch.

CESAR, (Lucius) Uncle to Mark Anthony the Triumvir: He was in the Intereſt of Pompey, and employed ſeveral times to treat of Peace. He was afterwards in Auguſtus's or Octavius's Liſt of Proſcrib'd Perſons, and given up to be Executed by his Nephew Mark Anthony, who obtain'd the Murther of Cicero from Octavius by this Conceſſion.

CESAREA, a Town of Cappadocia, firſt called Mezaca, till Tiberius chang'd it. It is mention'd by Strabo, and Stephanus Byzantius affirms, that it was anciently call'd Edeſſa Parthenæos. A Modern Traveller in this Country, pretends to prove, that this Town was called Apamea, and that Erſeron is the Name of it at preſent. St. Baſil the Great, was Biſhop of this City. *Strabo, Lib.*12. Stephanus de Urbibus, &c.

CESAREA Philippi, it was ſo called, becauſe Philip the Son of Herod built it in Honour of Caligula: It ſtood at the Foot of Mount Libanus, near the Springs of Jordan, and 'tis thought, 'tis the Modern Beline or Bolbec. It was a Biſhop's See, under the Metropolis of Tyre. *Bellon, Lib.*2. *Obſerv. C.*95.

CESAREA, a Town of Paleſtina, built by Herod the Great, by the Sea-ſide, in a very advantageous Situation, in a Place called the Tower of Straton: He dedicated it to the Honour of Auguſtus, entertained the People with fine Sights, and an incredible Magnificence. Joſephus gives a good Deſcription of the fine Buildings of this Town, of its Port, its Mole, and its other Rarities. It was afterwards the Metropolis of Paleſtina, and honoured with the Name of a Roman Colony, for the good Services it rendered Veſpaſian's Troops againſt the Jews. This is ſuppoſed to have been the Birth-place of the Prophet Agabus, and has had ſeveral Prelates of great Learning, amongſt others Euſebius, and that Theophilus, who in Pope Victor's time held a Synod concerning the Feaſt of Eaſter, and determined it ſhould be celebrated on Sunday after the Fourteenth of the Moon of March; This was about the Year 197. *Joſeph. Ant. Lib.*4. *Euſeb. Lib.*25.

CESAREA upon the Sea, a Town of Africa, very famous in the Roman Hiſtory, thought to be Jol of Pliny, Ptolemy, and Pomponius Mela. The Califes demoliſhed it in 959. yet there are ſtill ſome ſigns of its Greatneſs; and the very Remains of the Walls ſhew its Circuit was of three full Leagues. It was a very rich Town when the Arabians over-ran that Country.

St. CESAREUS, Brother to St. Gregory Nazianzenus, lived in the 4th Age, ſtudied in Alexandria, whence he came to Rome, where Julian the Apoſtate made him Over-ſeer of the Treaſury after Mammertin. Gregory writ to him, That ſuch a Dignity in an Emperor's Houſe, who was an Enemy to JESUS CHRIST, gave Scandal to all the World: That Gregory, their Father, was extreamly concerned for it; but that they had kept it from his Mother Nona's Knowledge. who, had ſhe heard it, would die for Grief: That therefore he deſired he might return to his Parents Houſe, where he might have Wealth enough for a moderate Man. This Advice moved Ceſareus ſo much, that he quitted his Place; but before he came to his Father's, he confuted Julian in a Publick Diſpute, and clearly made out, That it was Impious to Worſhip Idols. This got him the Reputation of a Learned and Courageous Man, and no Ill-will from the Emperor, who had a particular Love and Eſteem for him. After this, the Emperor Valens made Ceſareus a Quæſtor, which Office he exerciſed at Nice in An. 368. when that terrible Earthquake happened, that quite deſtroyed this City. Here he eſcaped miraculouſly; but died in the latter end of this ſame, or beginning of the next year. Photius, Suidas, &c.

St. CESAREUS, Archbiſhop of Arles, much renowned both for his Learning and Piety, lived in the 6th Age, and was brought up in the Iſle of Lerins, or Lerina, under the Abbot Porchaire, until the Air of that Place diſagreeing with his Conſtitution, forced him away to Arles, where he was made Deacon, Prieſt, and then an Abbot by Eonius Archbiſhop of this Town; and at laſt ſucceeded him in the Year 500 or 501. In 506 he preſided in the Council of Agde, at that of Carpentras in 527. at the Council of Vaiſon, and at the Second of Orange in 529. and at another, in which Contumelioſus, Biſhop of Riez, was Accuſed and Depoſed. He received the Pallium at Rome, from Pope Symmachus, and died the 27th of Auguſt 543. leaving us many Books of his own making; amongſt others, one upon Grace, and another upon Free-Will, according to St. Auguſtin's Principles. Baronius, Bellarmin.

CESARINI, (Julian) deſcended of a Noble Family of Rome, was, for his great Merit, made Cardinal by Martin V. in 1426. and afterwards ſent to preſide in the Council of Bale by Pope Eugenius IV. Martin's Succeſſor. Some time after he was ordered to Hungary, to manage a very nice Buſineſs; his Errand being to perſuade Ladiſlaus, King of Hungary and Poland, to break his Peace with Amurat the Turkiſh Emperor, there being then, as was thought, a very favourable Conjuncture to humble that Prince. Cardinal Julian abſolved Ladiſlaus from his Oath to Amurat, to obſerve the Articles of this Peace. And ſoon after was fought the Battel of Varnes, wherein the Chriſtians ſuſtain'd a Loſs they never ſince were able to retrieve. King Ladiſlaus was killed in the Fight, nor did Cardinal Julian eſcape; but it's not known whether he fell in the Skirmiſh, or in the Retreat; and ſome think he was Murthered for his Money by the Waterman that was to Ferry him over the Danube. Onuphr. Spond. Ciaconius, &c.

CESARION, a Name that was given to one affirmed to be Julius Cæſar's Son by Cleopatra. Anthony proteſted in open Senate, that Cæſar did acknowledge him to be his Child, notwithſtanding all which, Auguſtus put him to Death. Suetonius.

CESENA, a Town of Italy in Romandiola, with a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Ravenna; 'tis called, Curva Ceſena, in Antoninus's Itinerary, and ſtands upon the Savio. Strabo, Lib. 5.

CESENNIUS, (Pætus) a Roman Captain, ſent by Nero into Armenia, to Command the Army in Corbulo's Place. He made a ſhameful Peace with the Parthians, which made the Emperor welcome him with this ſharp Joak at his Return. I forgive you, ſays that Prince (as ſoon as he ſaw him) and that juſt now, leſt, becauſe you are ſo eaſily frighted, you may fall ill if you doubted longer of Pardon.

CESIS, or Ceſi (Angelo) Duke of Aqua-Sparta, a Roman, much eſteemed in Urban VIII's time: He was a good Philoſopher and Mathematician, underſtood the Belles Lettres, Mechanicks, and was particularly inclined to the Study of Natural Philoſophy; His moſt conſiderable Works are, Apicarium. De Cœlo. Metallophytum. Tabulæ Philoſophicæ. Moralia. Paradoxa. Monita, &c. This Duke of Aqua-Sparta ſet up the Academy of the Lincei at Rome, and died about the Year 1640. Erythræus Pinac. Imag. Illuſt. 3. Cap. 23. Leo Allatius in Apib. Urban, &c.

CESIUS, (Baſſus) a Lyrick Poet and Hiſtorian, who lived in Galba's and Nero's time; Perſius was his Friend, and addreſſed the 6th Book of his Satyrs to him.

CESONIA, the Emperor Caligula's Wife, was killed by Julius Lupus, as ſhe wept by that Prince's Corps after he was murdered in 41. ſhe expoſed her naked Neck to the Conſpirators, and ſuffered with great Conſtancy. Her Daughter Julia Druſilla, though then but a Child, was barbarouſly ſtrangled with her. Sueton. Joſeph.

CESSE, a River of the Dutchy of Luxemburg, which after it has paſſed Ham upon Heſſe, near Rochefort, empties it ſelf into a frightful Cavern, and runs under Ground for a League together, then appears again as fair and clear as when it entered it. The Entrance into this Place is ſo very frightful, that it daunts People from venturing into it, and the more, becauſe it has been obſerved that light Bodies thrown in, take above a days time to get through. Yet of late years, ſome deſperate Watermen took lighted Torches, went into it, and paſs'd through great Rocks, where the Fall of the Water made ſo terrible a Noiſe, that it frighted them; yet they ventured farther, until they came into a large Place like a Sea, but durſt not go farther, leſt they ſhould get into ſome narrow Paſſage or Windings, whence it would be difficult to return again. Memoires du Temps.

CESSELIUS, famous for his great Knowledge in Law, lived about 30 years before Chriſt's Birth, and could never be perſuaded, either through Love or Fear, to put any thing in his Collection of the Laws that was ordained during the Triumvirate. This ſame Perſon ſpeaking ſomewhat freely of Cæſar, and deſired by ſome of his Friends to be more cautious, anſwered, There are two things unwelcome to moſt Men, that now make me dare ſay what I pleaſe; which are, I am Old, and have no Children. Valerius Maximus, L. 6.

CESSELIUS, (Baſſus) an African, who came to Rome to acquaint Nero, that in his Lands near Carthage, he found a Cave where there was great ſtore of maſſy Gold. The Emperor, without any farther Enquiry, diſpatched two Galleys for this pretended Treaſure, but found nothing, for Baſſus did but dream it. Some ſay, that when he found the Vanity of his Dream, he choſe to kill himſelf, rather than come to a more ſhameful Puniſhment. Others ſay, that he was diſpoſſeſſed of all he had, and ſuffered nothing elſe. Tacitus.

CESTIUS, (Gallus) Governor of Syria for Nero, being invited into Judæa by Florus, he leads a mighty Army that ruined and ranſacked all Places; but at laſt, drawing near Jeruſalem, the Jews attacked him, and forced his whole Army to retreat; he afterwards, taking the Advantage of their Diviſions, beat them back to the Town, which he beſieged, and would have made himſelf Maſter of, had not he unwiſely raiſed the Siege. The Jews purſued, and killed him many Men in his Retreat. Joſeph. de Bello Judaico, Lib. 2.

CESTIUS, a malicious and fooliſh Jeerer, who had the Impudence to laugh at Cicero, but paid for it ſeverely at laſt; for Dining one day with Marcus Tullius, Cicero's Son, who then had the Government of Aſia, but nothing of his Father's Wit, and but a very ordinary Memory. Tullius having very often asked who it was that Dined at the Lower End of the Table, and one of his Servants anſwering him as often that it was Ceſtius, which Name he could never remember, until one of the Servants added, That it was the ſame who maintained that Cicero was an Aſs. M. Tullius no ſooner hears this, but he ſends for Rods, and gets Ceſtius ſeverely whipp'd in his own Preſence. Senec. Suaſor. 7.

CEVA, a little Town of Italy in Piedmont, Capital of the Country of the Langhes, a Name that is given to ſome ſmall Hills that make the beginning of the Appennine; it has a Caſtle, and is a Marquiſate. The Country about, eſpecially towards Tende and Montferrat, is full of Game, eſpecially Pheaſants and Partridges.

CEVENNES, Mountains of Cevennes, and Country of Cevennes, Gebenna, Cemmenius and Gebennici montes, Mountains of France, to the North of Languedoc, between Aquitany, and the Gallia Narbonenſis of the Ancients, reaches about 30 Leagues from the Source of the Loire to Lodeve. The Mountains of Cevennes are very Fruitful, and well Inhabited; have ſome Mines, eſpecially of Lead and Tin. This Country was a long time the Theatre of the Civil Wars, both in the latter end of the laſt, and beginning of this Age.

CEURAWATH, the Name of a certain Sect of the Benians in the Indies, who hold the Metempſycoſis with ſo much Superſtition, that they will not kill the leaſt Inſect. Their Bramens, or Prieſts, carry a piece of Linen before their Mouths, that no Flys may enter. The reſt go bare Headed and bare Foot, with a white Stick in their Hands to diſtinguiſh them from others. They drink no Water before it's boil'd, leſt they might ſwallow ſome living Creatures, and take care to keep Flies, and other ſuch Animals from burning themſelves in the Fire. They ſay God is not abſolute Maſter of Futurities, nor Diſpoſer of Good and Evil Fortune. They neither believe there is a Heaven or Hell, but hold that the Soul is Immortal, and make her paſs from one Body into another, of Man or Beaſt, according as it deſerved in its former Station. Their Moſques which they call Rale, are built ſquare ways, and the Chapels of their Pagods or Idols, in a Pyramidal Form. They burn the Bodies of their old People after their Death, but bury them of Children that die under three years of Age. Their Widows are not obliged to bury themſelves with their Husbands, but vow an everlaſting Widowhood. All theſe of this Sect may take the Orders of Prieſthood, Women as well as Men, but the Women muſt be above 20 years of Age, though the Men are received after nine; They that enter this kind of Life, muſt take the Habit, vow Chaſtity, and practiſe great Auſterities, to that degree ſometimes, that for nine Days together, they take nothing but Water with a certain bitter Wood grated in it, ſaid to be nouriſhing, which ſeems incredible, yet it is held as a certain Truth in the Indies. All other Sects of the Banjans have an Averſion and great Contempt for this, and condemn it ſo much, that they continually exhort their Auditors to ſhun the Converſation of all ſuch People. Olearius.

CEUTA, a Town and Caſtle of Africa, upon the Streights of Gibraltar, belonging to the Spaniards. It's in the Kingdom of Fez, in the Province of Habat, and was [illegible]merly Capital of Mauritania Tingitania. The Romans called it Civitas, and Pomponius Mela, Septa. It was taken from the Romans by the Goths; the Arabians were Maſters of it afterwards, and in 1415. John I. King of Portugal, took it from the Moors: Philip II. King of Spain, having gained all Portugal in 1580. and obſerving the Strength and Importance of this Place, and how near it was to his Kingdom of Spain, put a Spaniſh Governor into it, which was the reaſon that this was the only Place that was left to Spain, when in 1640. all Places which belonged to the Crown of Portugal, having all, except this, Portugueſe Governors, ſhook off in one day the Spaniſh Yoke, to acknowledge their own natural Sovereign.

CEYLAN, an Iſland in the Indies, near the Cape Comori. This Place is extreamly fruitful; for, beſide the common Product of other Countreys, here are whole Woods of Oranges and Citrons, and particularly great quantities of Cynamon, which ſmells a great way off at Sea; Precious Stones likewiſe of all ſorts, except Diamonds, are plentiful in this Country: Here's Pearl-fiſhing too, but the Pearls are not ſo fine as thoſe of Baharen in the Perſian Gulph, but as for their Ivory, it is the beſt in the World. The Mountain Pico de Adam, is ſuppoſed to be the higheſt in the Indies; and the Inhabitants are poſitive that Adam was Created on this Mountain, and lies buried under it. They likewiſe pretend that Paradiſe was in their Iſle. As to their Religion, they are Idolaters, and follow much the ſame Religion with the Bramins. The Mahometans are likewiſe tolerated among 'em; As for the Towns, under the Juriſdiction of the Hollanders, they are (as our Author Words it) of their Religion. Mandeſlo, Olearius. See Ceilan.

CHABANNES, (James II.) Lord of the Palice of Paſſi, and Marſhal of France, and one of the greateſt Generals of his time: His firſt Appearance at Court was in Lewis XI's Reign, where his Wit and good Preſence made him be much taken notice of, eſpecially by the Dauphin, who honoured him with his Eſteem: He followed this Prince when he became Charles VIII. of France, into the Kingdom of Naples in 1495. Here, and in all the other Wars of Italy, he gave ſuch great Proofs of his Courage and Conduct, that Lewis XII. made him Great Maſter of France, and Francis I. his Succeſſor, made him Marſhal. He did this Prince great Service, eſpecially when the High Conſtable of Bourbon proved falſe to him. He followed this Prince into Italy in 1525. and was killed at the unfortunate Battel of Pavia, after he had wiſely adviſed the King to retreat, as did all the other Chief Officers of the Army, excepting Admiral Bonnivet, who was for coming to a Battel. A Spaniard, called Buzarto, killed this Marſhal in cold Blood, though he was Priſoner to another Spaniard, that was a Captain, and called Caſteldo.

CHABLAIS, a Province of Savoy, which comprehends the Bailiwicks of Tarnier and Gaillard, and the Lands of St. Victor, and the Chapitre. It has the Lake of Geneva to the North, and the Country of Velay to the Eaſt, Fouſigny to the South, and is bordered with the Territories of Geneva to the Weſt. The Romans kept great Studs in this Province, which for that reaſon they called Provincia equeſtris and Caballica. From this laſt Word is thought to come the preſent Name Chablais.

CHABLI, a Town in France between Burgundy and Champaigne, towards Auxerre, 'tis famous for its excellent Wines.

CHABRIAS, an Athenian Captain, rendered his Country famous in the 376th year of Rome, gained the Sea Battel fought near the Iſle of Naxos againſt Pollis the Lacedæmonian. His Stratagem in the Battel of Thebes, when he came to the Aſſiſtance of the Bœotians againſt Ageſilaus, got him the Eſteem of all the World; for when he ſaw the Mercenary Troops give ground to the Enemy, he ordered the Remains of his own Batallion to keep firm and caſt their Darts, learning them the Invention of putting one Knee to the Ground, and covering themſelves with their Bucklers, thus to ſtand the Enemies Charge; this ſucceeded ſo well, that Ageſilaus, ſurpriſed at the Novelty dared not venture farther, but commands a Retreat. This Stratagem was ſo much admired in Greece, that Chabrias choſe that Poſture himſelf in the Statue the Athenians erected for him in their Publick Place. Cornelius Nepos.

CHABUR, or Chabor, a River of Aſia, which ſome take for the Chobar of the Prophet Ezechiel. It has its Source in Mount Mazius, which is part of Mount Taurus, upon the Frontiers of Great Armenia. It runs through Meſopotamia, paſſes by Orpha and Harran, until at laſt, after it has received ſeveral Rivers, it joins the Euphrates below Querqueſia in Arabia deſerta.

CHACABOUT, the Name of a Sect, of the Religion of the Tonquinois, between China and the Indies; The Name comes from a retired Man, who preſcribed them Ten Commandments, as Rules to live well by: In theſe he forbids, Murther, Theft, Lyes, Unchaſtity, Outrages, Perfidiouſneſs, Immoderate Deſires, Back-biting, Anger, and injoins the Study of Sciences neceſſary to every one. This Man has alſo eſtabliſhed Religious Orders, that renounce the Pleaſures of this Life, and apply themſelves to Meditation, and to helping the Poor. He has alſo poſſeſſed them with the Metempſycoſis, but promiſed everlaſting Pleaſures to the Obſervers of his Law, as he threatned thoſe that ſhould deſpiſe it with endleſs Torments; and aſſured, that ſuch as received it without obſerving it as they ought, ſhould for the ſpace of 3000 years ramble in different Bodies, to fit them for the Manſion of the Happy. This Sect has ſpread it ſelf all over the Kingdom of Siam, and in part of Japan and Tonquin. Tavernier.

CHAGAN, King of the Avari or Huns, who made Incurſions into Thrace in the Reign of the Emperour Mauritius in 598 or 601. and though he then made Peace with Priſcus the Emperor's General, yet he enters into Thrace again, where the one half of his Army died of the Plague, and Seven of his Sons in one day, a Puniſhment ſome will have inflicted upon him for burning of Alexander the Martyr's Church. He continued his Hoſtilities in the Emperor Heraclius's Reign in 623 and 26, when being joined by ſome of the Barbarians, he formed a Deſign of Beſieging Conſtantinople, which proved ſucceſsleſs. This Name Chagan was common to all the Princes of the Huns, though it ſeems in ſome Hiſtories particular to this we ſpeak of.

CHA-GEHAN, King of the Indies, called before Koaram, ſecond Son to Gehan-guir, the eldeſt being named Koſron. After Gehan-guir's Death in 1627. the Crown of right belonged to Bolak, Koſron's Son; but Aſous-kan, firſt Miniſter of State, by his Craft and Artifice, got it for Cha-gehan his own Son-in-Law; for being General of the Army, he gained the Chief Officers of his ſide, and to manage the Deſign with more ſurety, he gives out that Kourom was dead, and that his Body was to be carried to Agra, where he had deſired it might be laid with his Fathers; in the mean time perſuades the young King Bolaki to ſend his Army to meet his Uncle's Corps, and come himſelf within a League of the Town. In the mean time Cha-gehan marches incognito, and when he came near the Town, puts himſelf into a Coffin, which is carried into a great Tent, where all the Officers pretending to pay their Reſpects to the Prince, in viſiting his Body, proclaim him King in ſight of the whole Army; Bolaki hearing this ſtrange News on the Road, without farther Deliberation, makes his Eſcape, and leaves his Uncle the Poſſeſſion of his Kingdom. Cha-gehan was no ſooner on the Throne, but he exerciſes all ſorts of Cruelties to ſecure the Crown, putting all to death that ſhewed any Affection for his Nephew; yet all would not do, for as he uſurped it from the Lawful Heir, ſo he was juſtly deprived of it by one of his own Sons, named Aureng-zeb. He had Four Sons, the Eldeſt called Dara-cha, the Second Sultan Sujah, the Third Aureng-zeb, and the youngeſt Morat Bakche: Theſe he made Governors or Vice-Roys of his Four moſt conſiderable Provinces or Kingdoms, giving the firſt the Government of Dehli and Sendi; to the ſecond, the Kingdom of Bengala; to Aureng-zeb, the Kingdom of Decan; and to Morat Bakche, that of Guzarate; endeavouring to give equal Content to all his Children: But their Ambition, far from being ſatisfied with this Allowance, aſpired all Four to their Father's Throne, upon the Rumour of his being dead, when, being indiſpoſed, he withdrew for a time into the Women's Apartment, and was not ſeen for ſome days. Dara-cha, as 'twas ſaid, concealed this pretended Death, to gain time to ſettle his Buſineſs, and poſſeſs all the Places of the Empire; Upon this falſe Report the Three other Sons ſprung out into Action, Morat Bakche, the youngeſt, laid Siege to the Town of Surate, and became Maſter of it;

then he gets himſelf proclaimed King, not only of Guzerate, but of all Cha-gehan's Dominions. In the mean time Sultan Sujah ſubdues the Kingdom of Bengala, and advances into that of Lahor, but is beat back by Solyman Checour, Dara-cha's Son, who ſecured the Frontiers with ſtrong Garriſons. All this time Aureng-zeb, every whit as ambitious, but more cunning than his Brothers, leaves them to ſpend their firſt Fire, and feigns to have no Pretention at all to the Empire, as if he had forſaken the World to live as a Dervis, or a Religious Mahometan, and the better to ſpeed in his Deſign, profers to join with Morat Bakche, and help him to beſiege Agra; Dara-cha meets and fights them, but being left by a great part of his Army, is forced to retreat to Agra, where the Father then began to mend, and adviſed him to retire to the Fortreſs of Dehli, and to carry the Treaſure of Agra along with him, which he did, leaving Aureng-zeb and Morat Bakche Maſters of the greateſt part of the Kingdom. Soon after, Chaeſt-kan, Son to Aſouf-kan, Cha-gehan's Brother-in-Law, and Uncle to the Four Brothers, with moſt of Dara-cha and Morat Bakche's Chief Officers, declare for Aureng-zeb, upon which he ſeizes Morat Bakche, and confines him in the Fort of Govaleor. In the mean time, Cha-gehan, to ſecure himſelf from his Victorious Sons, gets into the Fortreſs of Agra, to ſee how far his Children's Inſolence would puſh them on. Aureng-zeb entered Agra in 1660. and feigned he was perſuaded Cha-gehan was dead, and that it was one of the Omra's, or Chief Lords, that pretended to keep the Fortreſs. Cha-gehan, on the other ſide, did what he could to ſhew he was yet alive, and to convince Aureng-zeb of that Truth, ſends him Fazel-kam, his High Steward, with his Orders to go back to his Government of Decan. Aureng-zeb made Anſwer, That he was ready to obey, but had a mind to ſee his Father firſt: When his Father conſented he ſhould, then he deſired he would diſmiſs his Garriſon, pretending he feared, that the King, miſ-informed of his Intentions, might order he ſhould be ſeized on. Cha-gehan found his Circumſtances would not permit he ſhould deny him this neither When Aureng-zeb had gained this Point, he ſent in a Garriſon of his own, commanded by his Eldeſt Son Sultan Mahamoud, whom he ordered to ſecure the King's Perſon, whilſt he himſelf looked after what Dara-cha's haſty Flight could not permit him to take along with him, and ſettle himſelf firmly on the Throne. Some time after, Cha-gehan, quite abandoned by his Subjects, who owned no other but Aureng-zeb for their Soveraign, died in Priſon in 1666. Tavernier. Bernier.

CHAGFORD, a Market Town in Devonſhire, in the Hundred of Wonford; 152 miles from London.

CHAGRE, a great River of America, that has its Source near the Southern Seas, ſome Leagues Eaſtwards of Panama, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Northern Sea. The Mouth of it is defended by a Fort, which the Spaniards call St. Laurence, and there is a Town on this River called Chagre. The Engliſh Adventurers went up this River in 1670. and plundered Panama on the Southern Sea. It would prove an eaſie Matter to make a Communication between theſe two Seas by this River and ſome others, that run into the Pacifick Sea.

CHALCEDON, or Calcedon, a Town of Aſia in Bithynia, with the Title of an Archbiſhoprick, ſituated on the Boſphorus or Chanel of the Black Sea, near Scutari, and over againſt Conſtantinople. It's affirmed that the Megareans built this City ſome years before Byzantium, and called it Proceraſtis. Strabo and Euſebius ſpeak of this Foundation, which they ſay was in the 13th Olympiad, in the 69th of Rome, and 685th year before Chriſt; ſince which time this Town was very conſiderable, and was taken by Theramenes, an Athenian, in the year 345 of Rome, whilſt Alcibiades made himſelf Maſter of Byzantium Mithridates, King of Pontus, having taken Bithynia, beſieged Cotta in Chalcedon in 680. but the Place was relieved by the Conſul Lucius Lucullus. And in the Fourth Age, in 363. Procopius, who pretended his Deſcent from Julian the Apoſtate, gained this City, entred ſecretly into Conſtantinople, and ſo made himſelf Maſter of the whole Empire; but was put to death by Valens, who alſo gave Orders to demoliſh the Walls of Chalcedon, which for all that, has not ceaſed to be famous, eſpecially ſince the great Council held there in 451. Some Authors take this Place for Scutari or Scuderet, but it's a great Miſtake, for it's certain that Scutari, which the Turks now call Iſcodar, was never called Chalcedon, but rather Chryſopolis, or Town of Gold, becauſe it was there the Kings of Perſia gathered all the Tributes they drew from Aſia. After that Neſtorius was condemned in the General Council of Epheſus in 431. Flavian Patriarch of Conſtantinople, aſſembled ſome Biſhops here in 439. upon ſome particular Buſineſs; and it was in this Meeting, that Euſebius, Biſhop of Doryleum in Phrygia, accuſed Eutyches a Prieſt, and Superior of a famous Monaſtery of Conſtantinople, for denying Two Natures in Chriſt. Eutyches ſtuck obſtinately to that Doctrine, and drew Dioſcorus, Patriarch of Alexandria, no Well-wiſher of Flavian, to his ſide, notwithſtanding the latter condemned the Error, and was murthered afterwards at Epheſus, when the Council, called The ſtollen one of Epheſus, was aſſembled in 449. After this, Marcian, Succeſſor to the Emperor Theodoſius, called a Council at Nice, but ſome urgent Buſineſs of the Empire making him alter the Deſign, he removed it to Chalcedon, whither 630 Biſhops came, according to Marcellin's and Liberatus's Chronicle. Theſe, with Pope Leo's Legates, held their firſt Seſſion the 8th of October 451. and here they condemned Eutyche's Errors, depoſed Dioſcorus, and gave the Title of a Metropolis to the Church of Chalcedon: They met 15 times, made 27 Canons, to which Anatolius added three for his own Church of Conſtantinople. See Calcedon.

CHALCIDIUS, a Philoſopher; it is not certain in what time he liv'd; all that we know of him is, that he wrote a Commentary upon Plato's Timæus. Voſſius de Sæc.Philoſ. C. 16.

CHALCIS, now called Negropont, Capital of the Iſle Eubæa. It was formerly a Colony of the Athenians, but now is one of the principaleſt that belongs to the Turks in the Archipelago. See Negropont.

CHALCIS, a Town of Etolia in Greece, formerly conſiderable, but not as much as known now.

CHALCONDYLAS, (Laconicus) an Athenian, living in the Fifteenth Century. He wrote the Hiſtory of the Turks, in Greek, in Ten Books; He begins his Hiſtory with Ottoman, who was declar'd King about 1300. and carries it on to 1463. when Mahomet II. diſappointed the Attempts of Matthias King of Hungary, and the Venetians.

CHALDEA, a Province of Aſia in Aſſyria, between the Euphrates, the Tigris, the Perſick Gulph, and Mountains of Arabia Deſerta. This Province, now called Caldar or Yerak, has many fine Towns, as Bagdad, Balſera, Couſa, Waſet, &c. it formerly belonged to the Perſians, but now the Turks are Maſters thereof. We are to obſerve that there are Two Countreys of this Name, the one is Mountainous, lies to the North of Meſopotamia, and is mention'd by Zenophon in the Third Book of his Cyropedia, and in the Twelfth Book of Strabo: This in the Scripture is call'd Ur, and was the Country of Abraham, as is evident from Bochartus. Geograph. Sac. Lib. 11. C. 6. &c. The Inhabitants of this Country were of a Warlike Temper, and liv'd upon Padding: The other Chaldea lay to the South of Babylon, and near to Arabia Deſerta, and was moſt of it Champaign; here the Chaldean Aſtrologers liv'd, and had, as Tully obſerves, a good Opportunity to make Obſervations on the Stars. Strabo in his Fifteenth Book gives a Deſcription of this Country.

CHALDEANS, or Babylonians, People that inhabit that part of Aſſyria which is now called Yerak and Diarbeck. They who follow the Opinion of Euſebius Cæſarienſis, and of Julius Africanus, concerning the Duration of the Kingdom of the Babylonians, ſay it begun in Nimrod's, Cham's Grandchild's, Days, Anno Mundi 2787. and that after many Revolutions and Changes, it ended under Nabonidas or Baltaſar in 5335. ſo that it held 2548 years; to which, if we add the 538 that paſſed between the Fall of this Kingdom, and the coming of the Meſſias, it will be found that the Babylonian Empire begun about 3086 years before the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt.

CHALDEANS, Philoſophers of Babylon, who made it their Profeſſion to ſhew the Motions of the Stars, the Viciſſitude of Seaſons, and foretel things to come; they held the World Eternal, without beginning or end, and brag'd that their Anceſtors, for 43000 years, had applied themſelves to the Starry Science, and that the Children had it by Tradititon from their Parents. Yet they divided themſelves into two different Sects, as Orchines and Borſippenes, and held each in particular ſome contrary Opinions. It's not known whether Abraham learned his Arithmetick, Geometry, and Aſtrology of theſe, or whether he taught them theſe Sciences; but it's here without diſpute, that the Egyptians and other People had them; for Herodotus remarks, that it was from them the Egyptians learned what they knew concerning the Elevation of the Pole, the Uſe of the Quart, or fourth part of the Circle, and how to divide the Day into 12 parts. Beſides, he ſays the Chaldeans year was of 365 days as the Egyptians was, and they alſo held the Æra of Nabonaſſar. 'Twill not be improper to obſerve, that the Philoſophy and Theology of the Chaldeans was very different from that of the Greeks, excepting the Diſciples of Plato and Pythagoras, who reſembled them in ſome things, and, indeed, had their beſt Notions from thence; Many Learned Perſons have endeavour'd to give an Account of the Philoſophy and Cuſtoms of the Chaldeans, but none has done it with that exactneſs and perſpicuity, as one Thomas Stanley, an Engliſhman, in his Hiſtory of Philoſophy. That part of it which relates to the Eaſtern People is Tranſlated into Latin, and Printed at Amſterdam in 1690. in Octavo. We are to take notice that the Chaldeans and the Magi were not the ſame; the Magi were, ſtrictly ſpeaking, Prieſts, Interpreters of Dreams, and Babylonian Poets: As for the Chaldeans, they applied themſelves only to Aſtrology, and pretended they could foretell every Man's Fortune, by Calculating his Nativity. But the Magi deny'd the certainty of this Science. Not. in Oracula Chaldaica, & Ind. Philolog. in Hiſt. Philoſ. Oriental.

CHALES, (Francis) a Jeſuit that compoſed a whole Courſe of Mathematicks; his Treatiſe of Navigation is in ſome requeſt.

CHALON, or Chaalons upon Marne, a Town of France in Champagne, with the Title of Biſhoprick, Suffragan to Rheims, a County and Peerage of France. It's the Catalannum of the Ancients, mentioned by Ammianus Marcellinus, in whoſe Plains Merouee, King of France, Aetius General of the Romans, and Theodoric King of the Viſigoths, with their joyn'd Forces, fought Attila in 451. and killed him about 200000 Men. I ſpeak here according to the common Interpretation of the Words in Campis Catalaunicus; for others ſay, this great Defeat was in Campis Catalaunicis, in Soulougne, near Orleans. Be it how it will, Chalon is an ancient City, ſituated in a fertil Plain upon the Marn, part whereof enters the Town, and forms a manner of an Iſle, and is of great uſe to the Inhabitants. Its Fortifications on this ſide are indiffernt ſtrong. There is a good Wall round it, and a deep Ditch, for the moſt part full of Water. The Streets are large and fair, the Houſes well built. It has ſome Squares or large Places that embelliſh it much, as that where the Town-Houſe ſtands, and another where the Collegial Church of our Lady is ſeen, St. Stephens, the Cathedral, is very famous for the great number of renowned Prelates it's ſaid to have had, and its preſent Chapter. Beſides this, there are 12 Pariſh Churches, 3 Abbeys, ſeveral Religious Houſes, and a College that belongs to the Jeſuits; all the Avenues to this Town are pleaſant. Its Walks are very fine, and it ſelf of great Commerce, for the River Marn, which has 3 Bridges over it here, carries all manner of Proviſions to Paris, whence the Parliament was removed hither in 1592. and paſſed that famous Act againſt the Pope and the League, who ſtrove, under a falſe Pretext of Religion, to deprive the right Heir of his Crown. Conon, Biſhop of Præneſte, and Pope Paſchal the ſecond's Legate in France, having held ſeveral Councils at Rheims, Troyes, and at Cologne, againſt the Emperor Henry IV. and his Adherents, aſſembled one here upon the ſame Subject in 1115. Jerome of Bourg held another in 1557. and Felix Vialart called Two here in 1642 and 57.

CHALON, or Chalons upon Soane, a Town of the Dutchy of Burgundy, with a Biſhoprick depending of Lyons, a Bailiwick, and has the Title of a County, and is an ancient Town, mentioned by Cæſar in his Commentaries, and called by Latin Authors, Cabillo Æduorum Cabillonum, Cabillonia, and Cabillonus. Its Antiquity is apparent enough in the great number of Statues, Inſcriptions, remains of an Amphitheatre, and pieces of publick Structure to be ſeen ſtill. The Town is fair and great, ſituate in a fertile Plain between Verdun and Tornuo. The River Soane forms an Iſland in it, called the Suburb of St. Laurence, which was walled and fortified, when ſome new Fortifications were added to the Place. The Town is divided into Old and New, which, beſides the Cathedral and other Churches, comprehend ſeveral fine Buildings, and the Town-houſe, the Hoſpital, the Prince's Palace, Jeſuits College, &c. The Citadel is in the New Town, flanked with five great Royal Baſtions, yet it ſuffered much in the laſt Civil Wars, being taken by the Huguenots in 1562. Here have been held ſeveral Councils, whereof the moſt ancient and conſiderable was that called by St. Patient, Biſhop of Lyons, in 470. wherein the Arch-Deacon John, ſince put into the Catalogue of Saints by Pope Paul VIII. was choſen Succeſſor to Paul II.

CHALVETTI, Founder of ſeveral Religious Orders amongſt the Turks. They are his Rules which the Mimetulahites, the Cadrites, the Calenders, Edhemites, Hizrevites, and Bactaſchites, follow. Ricaut.

CHALUS, or Chalſus, a Borough of France in Limoſin, towards the Frontiers of Perigord, between St. Hirier and Limoge; is noted for a great Horſe-Fair kept there on St. George's-Day.

CHALUS, in Latin Caſtrum Lucii, a Borough of Limoſin, at whoſe Siege Richard King of England died of a Wound he received there in 1199. The occaſion of the Siege was this; A Lord of Chalus found the Image of an Emperor, his Wife and Children ſitting at Table, the whole of pure Gold, which he refus'd to give King Richard; who thereupon beſieges his Caſtle, and is wounded with an Arrow ſhot thence, of which he died.

CHAM, one of Noah's Three Sons, and youngeſt of the Three, was born according to the more common Opinion, An. M. 1559. which was the 502 of Noah's Age. Sam. Bochart in his Phaleg, Lib. 1. has prov'd, that Jupiter Hammon of the Egyptians, is the ſame with this Cham; his Poſterity ſettled moſtly in Africk, whence the old Greek Name of Egypt was [illegible], or the Land of Cham.

CHAM, a Name of the Kings of Tartary. In Perſia, the Lords of the Court, the Governors of Provinces, and chief Judges, are alſo call'd by this Name, whom the King generally ſends upon ſolemn Embaſſies to Foreign Princes, and are obliged to entertain a certain number of Soldiers ready for Service upon occaſion. There are ſome Provinces that have no Chams, and where the Cities are govern'd by a Daruga, or particular Governor; as a part of Georgia, the Towns of Caſuin, Iſpahan, and Ormus, theſe keep no Soldiers, but pay certain Tributes to the Kings, who alſo ſends them Preſents called Kalaats, and are commonly a Veſt, a Turbant, or a Horſe all ready Harnaſſed: If this Kalaat be Red, it's thought an ill ſign to the Receiver; but this is not infallible. Thevenot.

CHAMBER of Accounts, a Sovereign Company eſtabliſh'd to receive and overſee the Accounts of the Kings Officers. There are Nine in France, viz. one at Paris, another at Roan, a third at Dijon, the reſt at Nants, at Montpelier, at Grenoble in Dauphine, at Aix in Provence, at Liſle in Flanders, at Pau in Navarre, beſides that of Blois, which is for the Appanage of the Dukes of Orleans. That of Paris, chiefeſt of the Kingdom, was Eſtabliſhed by St. Lewis; the number of its Members was but inconſiderable then, but is ſince increaſed ſo much, that now, beſides the firſt, and 10 other Preſidents, there are above 70 Maſters of Accounts, 30 Correctors, 74 Auditors, with the Kings Attorney and General Procurer, and ſeveral other Inferior Officers, who ſerve in their turns, and Examine and Judge Sovereignly of all that belongs either to the receiving or laying out of the Kings Revenues and Treaſure; for all other Chambers of Accounts are to ſend that of Paris a Copy of what relates to this Matter in their reſpective Provinces: Beſides this, it Verifies and Regiſters the Proclamations, Declarations and Ordinances, ſent thither by the King; as alſo Declarations of War, Treaties of Peace, Naturalizations, Titles of Nobility, Gifts and Gratifications, and generally all Publick Acts of any Importance. The Children of the Kings of France have the Power to Eſtabliſh a Chamber of Accounts in the chief Town of their Appanage; but this ceaſes in Caſes of Reverſion to the Crown, for want of Heirs Male, and generally they bring their Treaſurers to give in their Accounts in the Chamber at Paris. All the Members of this numerous Company wear long black Gowns, ſome of black Velvet, others of Satin, Damask, &c. according to their Places. There was another Chamber call'd the Flaming or Fiery, which was a Place of Juſtice, where in former times thoſe were judg'd that ſtood accus'd of Crimes againſt the State, it was call'd the Burning Chamber, becauſe it was hung all in black, and enlightned with Torches. This Name was alſo given to a Chamber eſtabliſh'd in 1679. to Examine ſuch as were impeach'd of making or giving Poiſon. Davity.

CHAMBERY, Capital of Savoy, Lat. Cameriacum, Camberiacum, or Camberium, the ancient Reſidence of the Duke, and Seat of a Parliament, which they called a Senate, becauſe it conſiſted of Senators and Four Preſidents: This Town is ſituated upon the little River Orbanne in a Plain environ'd with ſeveral little Hills, is great and well-built, with a good Caſtle that commands the Town. The chief Church is that of the Pariſh of St. Leger, but there are ſeveral others, which together with many fine Monaſteries, and the Jeſuits College, are a great Ornament to it. It is alſo imbelliſh'd with many fine Fountains, which diſtribute their Water into its ſeveral parts; beſides this, for the greater conveniency of the Inhabitants, there are ſeveral ſmall Channels of the River Orbanne: The Houſes in many places towards the Street are built on Pillars which form a Gallery, and are good Places to walk in in Rainy weather. Chambery to the Eaſt has the Suburb of Montmeillan, to the Weſt that of Machee vernay, and on both ſides very pleaſant Walks, amongſt which the Mall is the moſt reſorted and pleaſant.

CHAMBOR, one of the French King's Houſes, three Leagues off Blois towards Orleans, begun by King Francis I. a little before his death, and finiſh'd by Henry II. It's ſeated in the middle of a great Park, upon the Banks of the little River Couſſon, which almoſt comes round it; four great Pavillions make the Body of the Work, in the middle of which is a very curious Staircaſe in form of a Snails Shell, with Steps that wind ſo within one another, that ſeveral may go up together and ſpeak, but cannot ſee each other.

CHAMBRE, (Marin Cureau) one of the Kings Counſellors, and his Phyſician in Ordinary, a profound Philoſopher, and great Ornament of the French Academy, whereof Cardinal Richelieu made him a Member ſoon after he had eſtabliſh'd it: He alſo choſe him, amongſt a great number of Writers, to anſwer a Work, Entituled, Optatus Gallus de Cavendo Schiſmate. This Learned Man writ ſeveral curious Treatiſes that gained him much Reputation, the chiefeſt are, His Characters of the Paſſions: The Art of Knowing Men: Of the Knowledge of Beaſts: Conjectures upon Digeſtion: On the Rainbow: The Light: and A Syſtem of the Soul: Uſus Aphoriſmorum, &c. Lewis XIV. had ſuch an Eſteem for his great Parts, that he ſettled a yearly Penſion upon him, and gave him one of the chiefeſt Places in the Academy of Sciences.

He died the 29th of November, 1669. that being the 75th of his Age.

CHAMOS, Chemoſh, Idol of the Moabites, which St. Jerom believes to be the ſame with Beelphegor or Priape, but the moſt probable Opinion is, that it was Bacchus, God of Wine, who is call'd Κῶμος or Chomos by the Greeks, or the Dionyſius of the Egyptians.

CHAMPAGNE, a Province of France with the Title of County, which has Lorrain and Franche-Comte to the Eaſt, the Iſle of France and the Gatinois to the Weſt, Burgundy to the South, and part of Luxembourg and Hainault to the North. Gregory of Tours is of Opinion, that it was called Champagne from its ſpacious and fine Fields, that furniſh Corn in great abundance, and feed all kind of Cattle. It comprehends part of Brie and Sennonois, the Rhetelois, Baſſigni, Remois, the Principality of Sedan, &c. Its length from North to South being about 70 Leagues. Its breadth from Eaſt to Weſt unequal, in ſome places 30, in others 45 Leagues. The common diviſion is into Higher and Lower, though others divide it according to the courſe of the Rivers, which are the Seine, the Marne, Aine, Aube, &c. with the Meuſe and Yonne, which water part of it. Its Two Archbiſhopricks are Rheims and Sens, the Four Biſhopricks being Chalon upon Marne, Langres, Meaux, Troyes. This laſt Town upon Seine is its Capital; its other Towns are Bar upon Aube, Moaſon, Provins, Mezieres, Nogent upon Seine, Sedan, Eparnay, Vitri, Chaumont, Charleville, St. Dizier, St. Menehou, Rocroy, Chateau-Thierry, Montereau-faut-yonne, Joinville, Chateau Porcien, and Raucour, Principalities: Beaufort, Pinei, Choiſeul, &c. Dutchies: Brienne, Placi, Anglurre, &c. This Country, according to Cæſar's Diviſion, made part of Gaule Belgique, and afterwards made part of the Kingdom of Metz or Auſtraſia when Clovis the Firſt's Children divided the French Monarchy. Since this time it has had ſeveral Counts, famous for their frequent Expeditions into the Holy Land, until Henry III. Brother to Thibaud V. who died in his return from Palæſtina, left it to his Daughter Joan, who Marrying Philip the Fair, Son to Philip the Bald, in 1284. join'd it to the Crown of France, which was afterwards confirm'd by particular Treatiſes, as by that of Laon in 1317. between King Philip the Long and Eudes of Burgundy, and another on the 14th of March 1335. between Philip of Valois, and King Philip of Navarre, and Jean of France his Queen, where by this Agreement the King and Queen of Navarre quitted their whole Claim to Champagne and Brie in conſideration of ſome other Lands given 'em by King Philip of Valois. The chief Counts of Champagne had the Title of Palatins, and had Seven inferior Counts their Vaſſals, which they call'd Peers of Champagne, but when the Kings of France became Maſters of it, they chang'd this Method.

CHAMPAIGNE, (Philip of) a famous Painter born at Bruſſels in 1602. From his very youth he ſhewed a great inclination to Painting, which his Parents forwarded by ſending him firſt to learn to deſign: He firſt applied himſelf to Figures, afterwards to Land-ſhapes, in which, and in all other things he undertook, he ſucceeded ſo well, that he was adviſ'd to Travel into Italy; but coming to Paris, Mr. Du Cheſne, Painter to Queen Mary of Medicis, was ſo taken with him, that he kept him at his Houſe, and Married his Daughter to him; and he himſelf dying ſome time after, Champaigne was choſen to be the Queens chief Painter, and had an Apartment given him in the Palace of Luxembourg, where he made ſeveral Curious Pieces. This Princeſs employ'd him alſo to Paint the Vault of the Carmelites Church in the Suburb of St. James, where his Crucifix is much eſteem'd; He made ſeveral other very Curious Pieces, but the beſt of his Works is thought to be his Platform or Ceiling in the Kings Apartment at Vincennes, made on the Subject of the Peace in 1659. After this he was made Rector of the Academy of Painters ſoon after its Eſtabliſhment. He died in 1674. leaving his Nephew John Baptiſte of Champaigne, whom he himſelf brought up, Heir of his Wealth and great Parts.

CHAMPION, in former times was a Combatant that enter'd the Liſts to put an end to a Quarrel or Difference by way of Duel, but in after Ages this Name was given any that undertook to fight for any other, when Weakneſs, Youth, or Old Age excus'd himſelf from engaging; for in former Ages, Caſes that could not be decided by the common courſe of Law, were tried in ſuch ſingle Fights, which were ſometimes ordered to find the Innocence or Guilt of ſuch as were accus'd of any Crime, ſo that he who had the good fortune to Conquer, was always reputed Innocent, and to have Juſtice of his ſide. But Knights and great Lords never fought againſt them that they accus'd of Theft, Rape, or any ſuch like Crime; but ſubſtituted others for them; as did alſo Clergymen; and generally all ſuch as were impeached with a Crime that neither deſerved taking away their Lives, or cutting off any of their Members, were privileged from fighting in Perſon, and allow'd a Champion; but Parricides, Robbers, and others of this Quality, were obliged to anſwer their Challenge themſelves, if their Health and Age gave them Strength to Fight. Mercenary Champions, that fought for Intereſt, and not for Glory, or the Defence of their Innocence, were look'd upon as Infamous Perſons; theſe hired themſelves to great Lords, to ſerve them upon ſuch Occaſions, and did Homage for their Penſion, or the Fief allowed them. They fought a-foot, and never on Horſeback, their Weapons being only a Stick, and a Buckler, their Hair was cut to a kind of Crown or Round, which was left at the top of their Head. In England they call the King's Champion a Knight, who after the Prince's Coronation preſents a Challenge to any one that dares deny the new Prince Lawful King of England. Thomas Milles, Walſingham, and Froiſſart, deſcribe ſuch Challenges after the Coronation of Edward III. in 1327. of Richard II. in 1376. and of Henry the IV. in 1399. Froiſſart deſcribes it thus, A Knight (ſays he) compleatly Armed, mounted on a War Horſe, with a Horſeman before that carried his Lance, after the Second Courſe, came up to the King at Table, and preſented him a Challenge, wherein he defied any one that durſt ſay Henry the IV. was not the Lawful King of England. This the King got proclaimed by a Herald of Arms in the great Hall, and in Six different Places of the City. Some think this Champion repreſents all England, becauſe (ſay they) the King is not to fight on ſuch Occaſions, but by his Champion, which is no other but his Kingdom. Vallani ſays, that about the year 1270. there was talk of giving the Counts of Anjou and Provence the Title of Champions of the Church, that is of Defender and Protector. Du Cange.

CHAMPS de Mars; At the firſt beginning of the French Monarchy they called the General Meetings of the People by this Name. Theſe Aſſemblies were conven'd every year by the Kings to make new Laws and Orders, and to decide the bigger ſort of Controverſies between the Princes and Lords of the Court; and likewiſe to make a Review or Muſter of the Troops: Some Authors are of Opinion, that theſe Aſſemblies were call'd Champs de Mars, becauſe they were held in a Field, reſembling the Campus Martius near Rome, and almoſt for the ſame Buſineſs; Others believe theſe Meetings had this Name, becauſe they were held in the beginning of March, which was the Cuſtom under the Merovean or Firſt Line of France; but King Pepin concluding this Seaſon improper for Muſtering the Army, made choice of the Month of May about the year 755. ſo that theſe Aſſemblies were afterwards call'd Champs de May, or Fields of May: But, notwithſtanding this, they were generally called by their own Name. At theſe Aſſemblies the Kings were Preſented by their Subjects, and receiv'd their Annual or Royal Preſents, as they call them; which were deſigned to be expended in Defence of the Kingdom. Under the Second Race, theſe Aſſemblies were held twice a year, that is to ſay, in the Spring, and in Auguſt or September. Under the Third or Capetian Line, this Meeting was turn'd into that which they call the States-General. Du Cange Diſſertat. 4. Seur Hiſtoir de St. Lewis.

CHANAAN, Son of Cham, lived A. M. 1670. who was Curs'd by Noah, which makes ſome Interpreters conjecture, it was he that firſt ſaw his Grandfathers Nakedneſs, though in the Holy Scripture, Gen. 9. 22. it ſays it was not he, but his Father Cham; However Bochart in his Phaleg, l. 1. c. 2. ſhews, that Canaan was the Mercury of the Pagans.

CHANCELOR, one that poſſeſſes the higheſt place in Juſtice, appointed by the King to act in ſuch Caſes, with the ſame Power and Authority, as he would himſelf. The Romans call'd him that had much ſuch an Office under their Emperors by the Name of Quæſtor Sacri Palatii, and he was to be profoundly skill'd in the Divine and Humane Laws, that ſo he might be able to explain them for the People. This Dignity was in great requeſt under the Kings of the Firſt and Second Race, and is now in far greater under theſe of the Third, ſince the Eſtabliſhment of Parliaments; for the Lord Chancellor preſides in the Kings Councils, declares his Majeſties Will, when he goes to Parliament to hold his Seat of Juſtice, and ſits there before him on the left ſide.

CHANCELOR of the French Academy, is the ſecond Dignity of that Society, and is he that officiates as Director when this Member is abſent.

CHANCELOR, or Great Prior of France, is he that Seals the Commiſſions and Acts of the Chapter or Aſſembly of Knights; he Records their Deliberations, and delivers the Acts under the Seal of the Order. They that move to be received Knights of Maltha, receive the Commiſſions from him that are neceſſary to prove their Nobility, and when theſe are allowed of in the Chapter or Aſſembly, he ſends them Seal'd to Maltha.

CHANCELORY of the Univerſity of Paris. There were in former times Two famous Publick Schools at Paris, one in the City near the Cathedral, and the other near the Church of St. Genevieve. The firſt was Govern'd by the Biſhop of Paris, who kept his Chancelor to Licenſe ſuch as were Capable to be Maſters in any Science, that is, to give 'em leave to Teach in any Place within the Precincts of his Dioceſe. The Abbot of St Genevieve had the Direction of the other Publick Schools, and kept a Chancelor under him to give Degrees not only in Arts, but alſo in Divinity, Canon Law, Phyſick, &c. And as he depended immediately of the Holy See, the Pope gave him an Apoſtolical Privilege, to impower thoſe he Licenc'd to teach over all the World, Hic & Ubique terrarum. The Chancelor of the Cathedral obtain'd the ſame Privilege of Pope Benet XI. in the Fourteenth Age.

CHANGCHEU, a Great Town of the Province of Fokien in China, Capital of a Territory of the ſame Name, has Juriſdiction over Nine Cities; It's ſo near the Sea, that the Tide comes up to it. On the South-ſide, where the River Chanes Streams by the Town, is a magnificent Bridge of 36 great and high Arches, with Houſes and Shops built upon it, where one may be furniſhed with what is moſt rare in China, and other Foreign Countreys. The Town is well Peopled: The Inhabitants are both Witty and Induſtrious; but are naturally Cheaters, and much given to their Pleaſures. Round the Place are abundance of Orange Trees, that bear Excellent Fruit. Here have been found ancient Monuments of the Chriſtian Religion, as Croſſes, Images of our Lady work'd in Stone, and other Signs of Chriſtianity. And the Jeſuits have in their Church a fine Marble Croſs, which they had out of the Governor's Palace. Here has alſo been ſeen a great part of the Holy Scripture in Latin, writ in Gothick Letters on Parchment, which the Chinois that had it would not part with for any Price, ſaying, it was a Book he would preſerve in his Family as a Rarity left by his Anceſtors.

CHANGCHEU, another great Town of the Province of Nanking in China, Capital of a Country of the ſame Name, with Juriſdiction over Four Cities, in a fertil Soil water'd by the River Kiang, and a Canal. Upon the Key of this Town are ſeen ſeveral very ſumptuous Triumphal Arches; and in the City of Ginking, one of the four which it commands, are made Earthen Veſſels much eſteem'd for the pleaſing taſte and ſmell they give their Cha or Thea. Martin Martini in Thevenot.

CHANGTE, a great Town, Capital of ſome Land that bears its Name in the Province of Honan in China, which commands Six Cities, viz. Cu, Tangin, Linchang, Lin, Ungan, and Xe. Here is a ſort of Fiſh in this Country that cries like a Child when taken, and reſembles a ſmall Crocodile; its fat is of that nature, that when once it burns, there is neither Water nor any thing elſe can quench it. Idem.

CHANGTE, another great Town, Capital of ſome Lands in the Province of Huquank in China, commands Three Cities, which are Taoyven, Lungiang, and Ivenkiang. This little Country ſurpaſſes all others in fertility, and produces Oranges of all ſorts, whereof ſome are call'd Winter ones, becauſe they grow when the Seaſon of all the reſt is paſt. It alſo abounds in Azure Stones, and has ſome Manna. Idem.

CHANGXA, a great Town, Capital of a Territory of its own Name in the Province of Huquang in China, which has Juriſdiction over Ten Cities, viz. Siangin, Ningbiang, &c. This Country abounds with all Neceſſaries, eſpecially Rice, whereof there grows a prodigious quantity, becauſe the Ground is water'd with ſeveral Lakes and Rivers; beſides they have very many fine Inventions and Machines to Sluce and ſend the Water into the Places that want it moſt. Near Changxa is the Mountain Jumo, which has great ſtore of Iſinglaſs. Not far off the City Siangin is the River Mieto, very famous for the Feaſt of Tuonu. This Tuonu, Governor of this Country, and mightily beloved by the People, being purſued by ſome Traitors, threw himſelf headlong into this River, for whoſe Memory they keep every year Publick Plays, Battels upon the Water, Feaſts, and other Solemnities, not only about Siangin, but alſo all over China. Idem.

CHANTILLY, an ancient and fine Caſtle, eight Leagues off Paris, and two from Senlis, near the Foreſt of this Name. Its fair Gardens and Waters render it one of the pleaſanteſt Places of the Kingdom. It belongs to the Prince of Conde.

CHAOCHEU, a great Town in the Province of Quantung, upon the Frontiers of that of Fokien in China; It's Capital of a Territory of the ſame Name, and has Ten Cities under it. The Tide comes up to its very Walls, which makes it conſiderable for Traffick. Here are many ſumptuous Temples, and a Bridge that is five Perches wide, and eighty in length. Thevenot. Vol. 3.

CHAOKING, a great Town of the Province of Quantung in China, Capital of a Scope of Land of its own Name, the Viceroy's Place of Reſidence, has Ten Cities under it. Here Private Houſes, as well as Publick Buildings, are very ſumptuous. It has a Tower of Porcelan like that of Nanking, and all without the Town are rows and ſets of fine Trees. In the Country about it are great numbers of Wild and Tame Peacocks, which are very ſcarce in the other Provinces. And in one of the Rivers here are ſome Fiſh call'd the Swimming Cow, which comes ſometimes on the Land, and fights with the other Cows, but when it ſtays any conſiderable time out of the Water, its Horns ſoften, and is forced to go into the River again to recover their former hardneſs; and hereabouts grows abundance of the Wood of Aquila and Roſewood, much us'd by the Portugueſe for Tables, Chairs, and ſuch other Furniture. This Wood is blackiſh, ſomewhat inclining to red, naturally painted with very lively Colours. Near the City of Sinhing is a ſtrange Lake call'd by the Inhabitants Dragons, becauſe that as ſoon as the leaſt Stone is caſt into it, it returns as great a noiſe as if it Thundred, and immediately the Sky darkens, which is ſoon followed with Rain. Some ſay that there is ſuch a Lake as this in the Alpes. Near Teking, another of the Ten Cities, is the Mountain of Caoleang, which bears great Trees, that for their hardneſs and weight are call'd Iron.

CHAPELAINS, a ſecond Rank or State of the Order of Malte, the firſt being that of Knights. Theſe Chapelains are received Deacons in order to be promoted to Prieſthood.

CHAPELETS des Turks, a thing like the Beads Roman Catholicks uſe, which the Turks make uſe of, as they of theirs, when they Pray. Father Simon deſcribes 'em thus; The Turks Beads (ſays he) have not grains of unequal bigneſs as ours, becauſe they do not repeat different Prayers upon 'em, as we do. It's true (continues he) the hundredth Stone or Grain is ſomewhat different from the reſt, becauſe the whole is divided into thrice 33, which making but 99, there was a great Stone added to compleat the hundredth. Upon each of the firſt 33 they cry Scubhan Lallah, that is, God is Praiſe-worthy; Upon the ſecond they ſay Elhamd Lallah, which ſignifies Glory be to God; And upon the laſt 33, they ſay Allah echer, God is great This ſame Father writes, that this Bead drew its Origine from Meah Heracoth, or the 100 Benedictions the Jews are obliged to repeat every day.

CHAPERON, an ancient kind of Hood or Cap worn by Men in France during the Firſt and Second Race of their Kings, and to King Charles the Fifth's Reign of the Third. Now they are wore by none but Doctors and Batchelors, as Signs of their Degrees, according to which they vary, and are of different Colours according to the difference of Faculties.

CHAPERONS, a Name given to ſome Factious People that got up in France in King John's Reign, in 1358. and were call'd thus from a certain Chaperon or Hood they wore, which was blue and red There happened ſuch another Sedition in 1413. under Charles VI. but only that their Chaperon was white: They ſent one to the Duke of Guyenne; and John of Troy, Head of this Faction, had the Impudence to preſent the King himſelf with one as he went to our Lady's Church. Mezeray.

CHAPPARS, a Name which the Perſians give to ſuch as carry Expreſſes from the King to the Governors of Provinces, and from them back again to the King; the King's or Governor's Gentleman of the Horſe provides them a Horſe, and ſends one along to fetch it back again. They are to diſmount any Horſeman they meet, if they find their own Horſes weary, or fear they cannot be able to go through, and the Horſeman muſt either go himſelf, or ſend another for his Horſe when the Courier thinks fit to leave or change him. This was alſo the Cuſtom in Turkey, until Sultan Amurat hearing that thoſe that were diſmounted and hindred in their Journeys gave him a thouſand Curſes, eſtabliſhed Poſt-Houſes at reaſonable Diſtances, and furniſhed them with ſix or eight Horſes, each to be kept at the Countreys charge; ſo that now in Turkey a Traveller is not ſubject to the Inconveniences he muſt now and then meet with in Perſia, where there is no pardon either for a Traveller that ſhould refuſe to let a Chappars have his Horſe, or for any other that ſhould deny him the beſt Horſe in his Stable. Tavern.

CHAPPEL in the Firth, a Market Town in Devonſhire, in the Hundred of High-Peak, 154 miles from London.

CHARADG, or Gharag amongſt the Turks, is a Tribute which the Chriſtians and Jews are obliged to pay the Grand Signior. This is a kind of Poll which Men pay when they come to Nine, or according to others Sixteen years of Age; Women, Prieſts, and the Chriſtian Clergy, as well as the Jewiſh Rabbins, are exempted; There are alſo ſome Chriſtians call'd Franguis or Franks, who are not liable to it, as well as the Jews that are born and live under Chriſtian Princes. This Tax is generally a Piſtole a Head, and ſometimes four Crowns. The Chriſtians that come either to Traffick or Travel in Turkey pay it at the firſt Town they arrive at. The Greeks that come from Muſcovy pay 350 Aſpres, whereas the Armenians that come from Perſia, Georgia, Mingrelia, and other Countreys, pay but 300. And as the Turks make their year but of 12 Moons, ours being of 12 and 11 days, they raiſe a double Poll every 33th Year to have the Payment according to their Account, without loſing the 11 days of our Civil year. Ricaut.

CHARANTE, Carantonus a River in France that ſprings in Cheronoc, a Village on the Frontiers of Limoſin and Angoumois, runs by Sivray, Rufec, Angouleme, Vibrac, Jarnac, and Cognac in Angoumois, where it receives the Rivers Argens, Sonne, Tardovere, Boveme, Nay, &c. in Angoumois, afterwards it enters Zaintonge, paſſes by Taillebourg, Xaintes, Tournay, Charente Rochefort: In this Province the Chalandre, Seugne, and Boutonne joins it before it empties it ſelf into the Ocean between Soubize and Port-Lupin, over againſt the Iſle of Oleron.

CHARCAS, or Los Charcas, a Province of the Southern America to the South of Peru, under the Tropick of Capricorn towards the Pacifick Sea: Its principal Town is Plata, the leſs Conſiderable being Potoi, Oropeſa, Tobiſo, &c.

CHARDON, or N. Dame de Chardon, a Military Order inſtituted by Lewis II. Sirnam'd the Good, Duke of Bourbon. This Prince having ſent for, and Aſſembled, the Chief Gentlemen of his Dutchy on New-Years-Day, 1369. told 'em he had taken for Deviſe the word Hope, and would preſent them with an Order, call'd, The Crown of Gold environ'd with Pearl, and having this Motto, Allen, Allen, that is, Let us go together to the Service of God, and join in the Defence of our Country. It conſiſted of 26 Knights, famous for their Birth and Valour, under the Prince and his Succeſſors the Dukes of Bourbon. They were to wear always a Blue or Sky-coloured Belt lin'd with Red Satin, all Embroidered with Gold, with the word Hope Embroider'd in it. The Buckle and Tongue was of pure Gold, enamell'd with Green, repreſenting a Thiſtle's head. Their Cloak was of Blue Sky-colour lin'd with Red Satin. Their Collar of refin'd Gold, weighing ſix Marks, wrought in Lozanges, enamell'd with Green and full of Golden Lillies, with the word Hope writ in Capital Old Characters; from the Point of the Collar down upon the Breaſt hung an Oval with the Image of our Lady, bordered with a Golden Sun, and crown'd with 12 Silver Stars. Their Hats were of Black Velvet, cock'd-up and fac'd with Crimſon Silk, upon which was the Crown of Gold and Deviſe Allen, Allen.

CHARENTON, Charentonium, the Name of ſeveral places in France, whereof the moſt conſiderable is a League above Paris, near the Place where the Rivers Seine and Marne, join. This is a great Borough Wall'd in, where the Proteſtants had a Church of late Years, but it is now demoliſhed.

CHARIBERT, Cherebert, Caribert, or Aribert, King of Paris, Succeeded his Father Clotaire in 561. caſt off his Wife Ingoberge, or Nigebride, whom he Married in his Father's Life time, to take Meroflede, and afterwards her Siſter Marcoeſe a profeſs'd Nun, and both Daughters to a Wooll-Comber; a while after he took Theodegile, a Shepherd's Daughter, and kept all three together. This publick Scandal obliged St. Germain Biſhop of Paris, to forbid him the uſe of the Sacraments; ſoon after he died at Xaintonge in the Caſtle of Blaye on the Garonne, after a Reign of Nine Years, leaving by his firſt Wife a Daughter called Editberge, or Berthe, who was Married to Ethelbert King of Kent, whom ſhe converted to the Chriſtian Religion.

CHARIBERT, King of Aquitain, Son to Clotaire II. King of France. His Eldeſt Brother Dagobert I. gave him for Appanage, or Portion Xaintonge, Perigord, Agenois, Toulouzain, with the third Aquitain entire; He fixed his Reſidence at Toulouſe, where he was hardly ſettled when he Died in 630. or 31. and was ſoon followed by his Son Chilperic, a ſucking Child, thought to be made away by Dagobert. Haymo.

CHARICLE, Daughter of Hydaſpes King of Æthiopia, who was born very White, becauſe the Queen her Mother when big with her, had often beheld the Picture of a Beautiful young Woman that was extraordinary White, yet this Colour being uncommon in that Country, the Queen was in ſome fear that her Husband ſhould ſuſpect her Honeſty; but ſoon after, to her great ſatisfaction, there appeared a round Spot of the colour of Ebony upon the Princeſs's Arm, a Mark almoſt hereditary to the Family of Hydaſpes. Heliodorus.

CHARIDEMUS, the laſt of Jupiter, Cranaus's Prieſts, who was put to Govern the Sicyonians as King, but fled away being unable to ſupply the Expences of ſo high a Place. Euſebius ſpeaks of him in his Chronicle. Darius put an Athenian Captain of this Name to Death, who would put the Perſians upon Undertakings profitable indeed, but not pleaſing to them. Diodorus Sic. Lib. 17. Quintus Curt. Lib. 2.

CHARILAUS, Son of Polydectes, and King of Sparta; he begun to ſignalize himſelf by the Victory he gain'd of the Argians; afterwards he made War againſt the Tegeate; but though he obſerved the Oracle's Command, he loſt the Battel and was taken Priſoner. For the Town of Tegea being cloſely beſieged by the Lacedæmonians, the Beſieged made a vigorous Sally, wherein the Women charging with the Men, did ſo raiſe their Courage by that Generoſity, that the Beſiegers were ſoon put to flight, and Charilaus made Priſoner; but he procured his Liberty by granting of a Peace. This King was of ſo ſweet a Nature, that his Colleague Archelaus, ſpeaking one day of his great Bounty, ſaid, He did not admire he was ſo good to Perſons of Merit, ſince he was good to thoſe that did not deſerve it in the leaſt. Plutarch in Apophthegm.

CHARILAUS, King of Lacedæmon, of the Family of Proclides, or Eurypontides, Reigned about 64 Years, being beholding to his Uncle Lycurgus, both for his Life and Fortunate Reign. For his Father Polydectes dying very Young, left the Management of all his Concerns to his Brother Lycurgus, who would not accept the Crown until the Queen, who had Conceived but a Month before Polydectes's Death, was brought to Bed. This Ambitious Princeſs, that ſhe might Reign ſtill, ſends to the Uncle, that if he would promiſe to make her his Wife, ſhe would undoubtedly make him King, by taking ſomething to make her Miſcarry: Lycurgus, who trembled at this Propoſal, leſt ſo unnatural an Ambition ſhould put her upon ſome ill thing, feigns to be well pleaſed with the offer, but adviſes her to go on all her time, both becauſe a Miſcarriage is not only fatal to the Fruit, but very often to the Mother too; adding, That after her Delivery it would be an eaſie matter to diſpatch ſo helpleſs a Creature. The Queen was mightily pleaſed with this, but he, when her term was expired, ſends his Guards to take away the Child, which proving a Boy he Names him Charilaus, that is, the Peoples Joy, ſhew'd him to the Lacedæmonians, telling 'em, it was their King, and brought him up carefully until he was of Age to Govern. This happen'd An. M. 3170. 300 years after the Siege of Troy, and 108 before the firſt Olympiad. Herodotus ſpeaks of another of this Name, who made his Brother Meander take Arms againſt the Perſians. Herodotus, Lib. 3. Plutarch in Lycurg.

LA CHARITE upon the River Loire, is a Town of France in Nivernois between Nevers and Coſne, ſituated upon the ſide of a Hill over the River, which has a fine Bridge here. It has a good Market, ſeveral Churches and a famous Priory of the Order of Cluny. This Town ſuffered very much during the Wars with the Engliſh, and but little leſs in the laſt Civil Wars, in the 16th Century, for it was often taken and retaken. The Roman Catholicks were Maſters of it in 1569. under the Reign of Charles IX. when Wolfgang Duke of Deux-Ponts took it, and march'd the Succours through it which he led to the Proteſtants in Guienne; the manner of its taking was thus, the Commander of the Place, ſtealing away ſecretly by Night, leaves the Inhabitants to ſhift for themſelves, who ſeeing they were forſaken and ſtreightned, deſir'd to Capitulate; but while the Deputies of both ſides were conferring together, ſomebody in the Town gives a Signal, and hangs a Cord down, by which the Enemy having got up one after another poſſeſſed themſelves of the Town, where there was nothing but fear and confuſion; and thus it was delivered as a Prey to the Germans, to ſatisfie them for a Months pay which they grumbled for. Thuanus, Hiſt. Lib. 31. &c.

CHARITE, a Religious Order inſtituted by B. John of GOD, for to ſerve and look after the Sick, and approved by Leo X. in 1520. Thoſe of this Order do not ſtudy at all, nor aſpire to Holy Orders, and the Prieſts that are received amongſt them, can never accept any higher Dignities. Their Founder went every day to beg for the Sick, crying as he went along with a loud Voice, Do good my Brethren for the Love of GOD, for which reaſon the Brothers of the Order are called in Italy, Fatte ben Fratelli.

CHARITE Chretienne, an Order inſtituted by Henry III. King of France and Poland, for Soldiers that had loſt their Limbs, or were diſabled in the publick Service, aſſigning them a Maintenance out of the Revenues of the Hoſpitals and Infirmeries of France, with a Houſe at Paris in the Suburb of St. Marcellus. Thoſe of this Order were to wear a Cloak with a Croſs on the Left ſide of white Satin Embroidered, Hem'd and Border'd with Blue Sky-colour. In the middle of the Croſs was a Lozange of Blue Sky-colour'd Satin, charg'd with a Flower-de-Luce of Gold, with theſe words embroider'd in Gold, For having ſerved Faithfully: But King Henry's Death, hinder'd the Advantages of this promiſing Deſign.

CHARITE of our Lady, a Religious Order that obſerves St. Auguſtin's Rule, eſtabliſhed in the Dioceſe of Chalon in Champagne, by Guy Lord of Joinville, and of the Borough of St. George. This Order was approved by Boniface VIII. and Clement VI.

CHARITON of Agrigentum, who to Revenge a young Man he loved very much, called Melanippus, undertook to Kill Phalaris, Tyrant of their Country; but the Deſign being diſcovered, Melanippus goes immediately to the Tyrant, and to ſave Chariton's Life, tells him it was he that put him upon the Undertaking, which Friendſhip ſo ſurpriz'd the Tyrant, that he forgave both, on Condition that they would quit the Country. Ælian Var. Hiſt. Lib. 2.

CHARKLIQUEU, a Borough two Leagues from Tocat in Cappadocia, or Amaſia, a Province of Natolia, ſituated between very fertile Hills, upon which grows excellent Vines. This is the Place where the beſt blue Maroquins, (Goats Leather dreſs'd with Galls) are made, by reaſon of the Goodneſs of the Water. Tocat, and this Borough, are Famous for thoſe ſorts of Maroquins, or Turkey Leather, as Biarbekir and Bagdat are for Red, Moſſul and the ancient Nineve for Yellow, and Orfa for Black. At 2000 paces diſtance from the Borough is a Rock thought to have been St. John Chryſoſtom's Place of Reſidence during his Exile, becauſe on the Eaſt-ſide there are eight or nine Steps that lead to a little Chamber with a Bed, a Table, and Cupboard, all wrought in the Rock; on the Weſt ſide is a Gallery, alſo wrought in the Rock, with five or ſix Steps up to it, whence the Chriſtians of this Country ſay, That St. Chryſoſtom Preach'd to the People that flock'd thither from all Parts. The Caravans that paſs through this Country ſtop here for two or three Days, to take in Proviſion for their Journey, and that the Chriſtian Merchants, who make the greateſt part of them, may have time to do their Devotions in this Rock, whither the Biſhop, follow'd with ſome Prieſts, with each a lighted Taper in his Hand, comes to ſay Maſs. Tavernier.

CHARLEMONT, Lat. Carolomontium, a Borough and ſtrong Fortreſs of Ulſter in the North of Ireland. But how ſtrong ſoever, it was fain to yield in the Month of September, 1689. to the Duke of Scomberg, being much ſtreighten'd for want of Proviſions. It ſtands upon a Hill in the County of Armagh, at the foot whereof runs a River called Blackwater, 4 miles S.E. of Dungannon, and was Fortified by King Charles, from whom it took the Name of Charlemont.

CHARLEMONT, a ſmall Town of Flanders in the County of Namur, with a very good Fortreſs, built by Charles V. in 1555. upon the top of a Mountain, with ſtrong Bulwarks, and other regular Fortifications. The Meuſe runs at the bottom of this Mountain below Givet, three Leagues from Mariembourg, and ſeven from Namur. It's called in Latin Carolomontium.

CHARLEROY, a Town and Fortreſs in the County of Namur, upon the Frontiers of Hainault in Flanders, built upon a Mountain near the Sambre, about five Leagues from Namur, and ſix from Mons. It was taken by the French in the Year 1667. who kept it by the Peace of Aix-la-Chapelle, but gave it back again to the Spaniards in 1678. by the Peace of Nimeguen. In 1693 they ſat down before it with a numerous Army; the Marquis de Villeroy carrying on the Siege, and Luxembourg covering him; ſo that King William of Great Britain, and the Elector of Bavaria, not being ſtrong enough to Attack them, they carried the Town by Surrender, after a Gallant Defence by the Marquis de Caſtillo the Governor, who held out againſt 27 Days open Trenches, and Capitulated on very Honourable Terms, October 1. being allowed four Cannon, two Mortars, and all the uſual ſigns of Honour, with 300 Wagons, whereof 100 were Covered; and 100 conſiderable Frenchmen, who had Deſerted, were ſuffered to march out with him in Masks. This Place, by the Peace of Ryſwick in 1697. was reſtored to its right Owner the King of Spain, with its Dependencies in the Condition it was then in, with the Artillery that was in it at the time it was taken.

CHARLES, Sirnamed Borroméus. See Borroméus.

CHARLES the Firſt of the Name, Emperor of the Weſt. See Charles the Firſt, called the Great, or Charlemagne, King of France.

CHARLES the Second. See Charles II. call'd the Bald, King of France.

CHARLES the Third. See Charles the Burley.

CHARLES the Fourth, Emperor, King of Bohemia, and Duke of Luxemburg, Son to John King of Bohemia, and the Emperor Henry VII's Grandſon, was choſen upon the requeſt of Pope Clement VI. and of Philip of Valois King of France, a Year before Lewis of Bavaria's Death; this was done at Rentz, a Village upon the Rhine above Coblentz, in 1346. And though Edward King of England, the Marquis of Miſnia, and Gunter Count of Schwartzembourgh were alſo created Cæſars, yet Charles remain'd unmoleſted in poſſeſſion of the Empire. He was at the Battel of Crecy, fought by the French and Engliſh, where his Father was kill'd, and he himſelf received three wounds. In 1355. he was Crown'd at Rome by Peter Bertrand, Cardinal and Biſhop of Oſtia, and the next Year made that famous Conſtitution for the Election of Emperors, called, The Golden Bull. It is ſo call'd, becauſe it is a Seal of Gold, of around Figure, faſten'd with ſilken Strings Yellow and Crimſon; upon the one ſide the Emperor is repreſented, Sitting upon his Throne, and on the Reverſe the Capitol of Rome. This Prince had ſuch Veneration for the Church, that he was Named Emperor of the Prieſts. He added Bohemia, Luſatia, and Sileſia to the Empire, Founded the Town and Univerſity of Prague, bought the Marquiſate of Brandenbourg of his Son-in-Law Otho of Bavaria, and ſettled it upon his Son Winceſlaus, who gave it to his Brother Sigiſmond. He alſo introduced the Laws, Cuſtoms, and Faſhions of France, as much as he could poſſibly into Germany. It's ſaid of him, That as he ruined his Family to come to the Empire, ſo he undid this to re-eſtabliſh that again: That he could ſpeak ſeveral Languages, and form'd great Deſigns, but never executed any. He had four Wives, the firſt Agnes Daughter of Rodolphus, Palatine of the Rhine; the ſecond Blanche, Daughter of Charles of Valois, by whom he had four Daughters; of his third Wife Anne he had Winceſlaus and Sigiſmond, both Emperors; his fourth Wife was Elizabeth, Daughter to the Duke of Stetin; he died the 29th of November, 1378. at Prague, at the Age of 63. and after 3[illegible] years Reign. This ſame Emperor divided the Empire, and Created four Dukes, viz. of Brunſwick, of Bavaria, of Suabia, and Lorrain; four Landtgraves, of Thuringia, Heſſe, Leuchtenberg, and Alſace; four Marquiſes, of Miſnia, Brandenbourg, Moravia, and the Lower Baden; four Burgraves, of Meidenbourg, Nurembourg, Renеck, and Strombourg; four Counts, of Cleves, Schwartzembourg, Saxony, and Savoy; four Counts Captains of the Empire, to govern and look after the Army, viz. The Count of Flanders, Tyrol, Aldenbourg, and Ferrara; four Lords, of Milan, of Eſcale, Mirandole, and Padua; four principal Abbots, viz. of Fulden, Kempton, Wiſſembourg, and Murbach; four Great Marſhals of the Empire, the Lords of Pappenheim, Juliers, Miſnies, and Veſlinge; four Barons of the Empire, Lords of Limbourg in Franconia, of Tockembourg, Weſterbourg, Andelwalden; four Knights of the Empire, Lords of Andelaw, Meldinghen, Strondeck, and Frenberg; four Grand Veneurs or Maſters of the Game, Lords of Hurn, Urach, Schombourg, and Meiſth near Kur, which belongs to the Griſons; four Hereditary Officers of Suabia, the Carver Lord of Walpourg, the Cup-bearer of Radach, the Lord-Steward of Mardorff, and Chamberlain of Kemnat; four Eſquires of the Empire, Lords of Waldeck, of Hirten, Tulchen, Arnſperg, and Rabnaw; four Metropolitan Towns of the Empire, as Ausbourg, Aix-la-Chapelle, Spire, and Lubeck; the four Ruſticks of the Empire, Cullen, Ratisbonne, Conſtance, and Saltzbourg; four Poſſeſſions of the Empire, Ingelheim, Altdorff, Liechtenaw, and Denckendorff; four Boroughs of the Empire, as Aldenbourg, Meidenbourg, Rotenbourg, and Meckelbourg; four Villages of the Empire, as Bamberg, Ulme, Haguenaw, and Seleſtad; four Mountains of the Empire, Munnerberg, Friberg, Heidelberg, and Nuremberg: But the moſt part of theſe ancient Lordſhips are erected into Dukedoms, and other Titles of Honour, and this Diviſion quite neglected ſince the Empire was divided into Ten Circles. Favin.

CHARLES the Fifth, Emperor, and King of Spain, Eldeſt Son of Philip I. Arch-Duke of Auſtria, and of Jean Queen of Caſtille, was born at Gaunt the 24th of February, 1500. ſucceeded his Father in his Kingdom of Spain in 1517. and was choſen Emperor two years after by the Electors at Francfort, after the Death of his Grandfather Maximilian. He received the Imperial Crown firſt at Aix-la-Chapelle, and was afterwards Crown'd by Pope Clement VII in 1530. on the 24th of February, being the Feaſt of St. Matthias, and a Day that was obſerv'd to have been very favourable to him, for it was on this day in 1525. that his Army took Francis the Firſt Priſoner at the Battel of Pavia, with whom he was in continual War for four or five years before. This Prince purchaſed his Liberty 13 Months after, upon ſome hard Conditions which the States of the Kingdom diſapprov'd. This Emperor's Army took Rome in 1527. and plunder'd it two Months, without reſpect to the Pope, or any thing elſe; during which time it was obſerved, that the Spaniards, though Roman Catholicks, outdid the Germans, who were profeſs'd Lutherans. The Emperor pretended to be diſſatisfied at their Proceedings, but it was well known that he countenanc'd their Violences. In the mean time the Pope Ranſoms himſelf, and makes an Agreement with Charles in 1529. who alſo concluded a Peace with Francis the Firſt at Cambray, the 5th of Auguſt of the ſame year. The October following he forc'd Solyman to raiſe the Siege of Vienna, and carried an Army of above 50000 Men into Africa, where he took the Fort of Goulete, re-eſtabliſhed Mulei Haſſen in Tunis in 1535. and then came back into Italy, whence he enter'd with a powerful Army into Provence, againſt the French, where he loſt 30000 Men; but this Army was ſtop'd, and he himſelf like to be kill'd by ſome Boors, that had poſſeſſed themſelves of the Caſtle of Muy in the Dioceſs of Frejus, ſo that after he had beſieged Marſeilles to little purpoſe, he was forc'd to take his way back by the Alps; but the Peace of Nice in 1538. put an end to theſe Troubles, and he paſſed through France, to chaſtize the Inhabitants of Gent that had revolted, and ſent Ambaſſadors to Francis the Firſt, to intreat him to receive them under the Protection of the Crown of France, whereof they ſaid they were ancient Subjects, which the King refus'd by reaſon of his Peace and Friendſhip with the Emperor, who hearing of this, ſent to pray the King that he might paſs through his Kingdom, promiſing the French Ambaſſador then in Spain, that he would give 'em Milan back again, but deſired, that leſt it might ſeem that he was forced to this, it ſhould not be ſpoke of, whilſt he was within the Territories of France: Thus he gull'd the French, who received him moſt Magnificently, and ſhewed him all the Civility imaginable; for the King's Children accompanied him throughout all the Kingdom; and the King himſelf, forgetting all their former Diſputes, and his own hard Uſage whilſt he was Priſoner, came along with him to Paris, where he treated him with all manner of Kindneſs without troubling him with the leaſt Demand: Yet Charles, of his own accord, confirmed his Promiſe of Milan, and the Lord High Conſtable de Montmorency paſſed his Word to the King for the Performance. But notwithſtanding all this, when the Emperour was afterwards deſired by the Biſhop of Lavaur at Valenciennes to fulfil it, he refuſed to do it, which occaſioned new Wars, and Montmorency's Diſgrace. In 1541. he went into Africa againſt Barberouſſa; but this Undertaking proving unfortunate, he returned to Spain with great Loſs. Roman Catholicks accuſe him for countenancing Lutheraniſm in Germany, by his Edict called the Interim, which though it ordered that they ſhould follow a certain Form of Doctrine, it privileged Prieſts to Marry, and allowed Laicks the Uſe of the Chalice, until it were otherwiſe decreed by a Council; and all this that he might reap Benefit by theſe Diviſions. It's true, he perſecuted the Proteſtant Princes of Germany; but it was more through Intereſt, and a Deſign to eſtabliſh a Monarchy, than for any Principle of Religion; for he gave Luther leiſure enough to eſtabliſh the Reformation, and draw the Princes and People of his ſide that were ſince called Proteſtants, for proteſting, in 1529. againſt the Ordinance of the Diet of Spire, which obliged every one to conform to the ancient Doctrine: So that this Party being ſtrengthned by the Offenſive and Defenſive League of Smalcalde, in 1530. could neither be ſuppreſſed by Proſcriptions, nor by his great Victory over their powerful Army at Mulberg the ſame year, nor by the Confinement of the Chief of them, John Frederick of Saxony, and Philip Landtgrave of Heſſe. And when the Germans, in 1551. and 52. took Arms under the Protection of France, he was forced to come to a Peace; and by the Treaty of Paſſaw, to allow a Liberty of Conſcience, called Evangelical, and leave them the Church-Lands that they had uſurped, enlarged their Priſoners, and gave them the privilege to be received into the Number of the Judges in the Imperial Chamber. This, and his fruitleſs Undertaking upon Metz, when he beſieged it in 1552. with an Army of 100000 Men, ſhewed that there was a Limit to the Plus ultra, which was his Motto: And theſe Diſappointments made him think it was time to withdraw from the World, which he did, reſigning all his Poſſeſſions to his Son Philip, on the 25 of October, 1555. at Bruſſels; whence he himſelf went into Spain, to ſpend the remainder of his Life in the Convent of St. Juſtus, of the Order of the Jeronymites, in the Province of Eſtramadura, 8 miles from Palença; here he died upon 3 years after, about the 21ſt of September, 1558. being 58 years and 7 Months of Age, whereof he held the Empire 38 years, 2 Months, and 24 Days. He was a Prince of great Parts and Courage, but ſomewhat Cunning, and a Diſſembler, that Sacrificed all to his Ambition. He made 50 different Voyages and Journeys, 9 into Germany, 10 into Flanders, 6 into Spain, 7 into Italy, 4 into France, 2 into England, 2 into Africa, 8 upon the Mediterranean, and 2 upon the Ocean. He left three Children by Iſabella of Portugal his Wife, viz. Philip II. of Spain, Mary, Wife to the Emperor Maximilian II. and Jane, that was married to John Prince of Portugal; and before his Marriage he had, firſt Margaret, that was of one of his Concubines, married to Alexander de Medicis, and afterwards to Octavian Farneſe; and after the Empreſs's Death, he had John of Auſtria by a young Woman of Ratubonne, whoſe Name could never be known. Guichard. Thuan. Paul. Jovius.

CHARLES the Firſt, Third Son to James the Sixth of Scotland, and Firſt of Great Britain, &c. by Anne of Denmark, was born at Dumfermlin in Scotland, Novemb. 19. 1600. and at two years of Age was created Duke of Albany. In 1603. his Father ſucceeded Queen Elizabeth in the Crown of England; and this Prince, with the reſt of the Royal Family, was brought hither: His Education was committed to the Care of Mr. Thomas Murray, under whom he made a great Progreſs in Learning. His Brother Prince Henry dying, he ſucceeded him as Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwal. Feb. 18. 1622. being attended by the Duke of Buckingham, Mr. Porter, and Mr. Cottington, he embarked at Dover, and landed at Bulloigne in France, rode Poſt from thence to Spain, to expedite the Match propounded betwixt him and the Infanta. He and his Attendants paſſed through the Court of France in diſguiſe, where, at a Mask, he had a View of the Princeſs, whom he afterwards married. The French King having notice of him, a little after he left the Court, ordered him to be ſtopp'd; but his Order did not overtake him. The Motives to this Match with Spain, were, amongſt others, The Reſtitution of the Palatinate to his Brother-in-Law the Elector. The Prince ſucceeded ſo far in his Addreſs, that the Match was declared publickly: The Infanta learned the Engliſh Tongue, and ſeemed almoſt ready to embark for England, when, of a ſudden, the whole Affair was cruſh'd, whether by the Engliſh or Spaniſh Court, is ſomewhat uncertain. In the mean time, the Prince diſengages himſelf luckily out of the Spaniards hands, and arrives in England, having behaved himſelf ſutably to his Dignity in every reſpect upon this Occaſion. Not long after his arrival, a Match was propoſed and accepted with France; and King James dying, Prince Charles was proclaimed King. The Articles of Marriage between the King and Henrietta Maria of France were Signed, and the Duke of Buckingham, with the Royal Navy, was ſent to bring over the Queen, who upon her arrival, was met by the King at Canterbury. On the 18th of June, a Parliament met at Weſtminſter, the King preſſing for Supplies to carry on the War for recovering the Palatinate; but the Commons, inſiſting upon an Account of former Subſidies, and being eager for the redreſſing of pretended Grievances, diſappointed the King's Neceſſities, and left him in that War, which the former Parliament had engaged his Father in. The Plague reigning in London, the Parliament was adjourned to Oxford; and proving incompliant to the King, were ſoon after diſſolved: Upon which, Letters were directed to the Lords Lieutenants, for the Loan of Money upon Privy Seals. Another Parliament was called February 6. and a Proclamation iſſued out againſt Papiſts. The Coronation was appointed ſoon after, and a Proclamation publiſhed for thoſe who had 40 l. Lands per Ann. to come in and receive the Order of Knighthood. This Parliament fell upon the Old Subject of Publick Grievances, Miſcarriages, and Male-adminiſtrations, and refuſed to furniſh the King. The Earl of Briſtol and Duke of Buckingham impeached each other. The Duke being afterwards impeached by the Commons, makes a handſome Defence for himſelf, and inſiſts upon King James's General Pardon, and King Charles's Coronation-Pardon. This Parliament is diſſolved; and the King, by the Advice of the Privy Council, collects Tonnage and Poundage, though not ſettled upon the Crown by Parliament; which, notwithſtaningd the Complaints about it, was no more than was done by King James and Queen Elizabeth. A Benevolence was likewiſe ſet a-foot. Not long after, a War broke out with France: The Duke of Buckingham was made General, and miſcarried at the Iſle of Rhée. Several who refuſed the Loan were impriſoned, and Diſcontents run higher and higher. The Rochellers, and thoſe of Rean, declared for the Engliſh, and petitioned King Charles's Mediation in behalf of the French Proteſtants. Dr. Sibthorp and Dr. Manwaring preſſed the King's Prerogative too far in the Pulpit. A third Parliament was called, March 17. 1627. Here the King demanded Supplies with great Earneſtneſs. The Parliament petioned for a Publick Faſt, and gave in a Summary of their Grievances; as, Billeting of Soldiers, Loans, Impriſonment without cauſe ſhewed, and unparliamentary Methods of raiſing Money. To obviate theſe Inconveniencies, they bring in the Bill, called, The Petition of Right, which was Signed by the King to their Satisfaction. Not long after, the Duke of Buckingham was ſtabb'd at Portſmouth by Felton, who boldly own'd the Murther; but being ſorry for't afterwards, declared, That the Remonſtrances that the Parliament had made againſt the Duke, was that which put him upon it. This Parliament met again after a Prorogation, and Grievances in the State, together with the Danger of Religion, being altered, were as much as ever complained of by the Houſe. Mr. Selden, and ſome other Members, taking ſome unuſual Freedoms in their Remonſtrances, were committed to the Tower, and the Parliament ſoon after diſſolved. After this, the King goes into Scotland to be Crowned, and Prin, Baſtwick, and Burton, were Tried in the Star-Chamber, and Sentenced to the Pillory for their Misbehaviour. The King levies Ship-money; Mr. Hambden conteſts the Point at Law with His Majeſty. The Lawfulneſs of Ship-mony being ſent as a Quere to the Twelve Judges by the King, Ten of them gave their Anſwer in the Affirmative; and the other Two, Mr. Juſtice Hutton, and Mr. Juſtice Crook, afterwards owned it Lawful, and came over to the Opinion of the reſt. The Scots ſet up a Covenant againſt the King's Authority: The ground of their Complaints againſt the King, was ſuppoſed to be His Majeſty's Legal Revocation of ſuch things as had been paſſed away in prejudice to the Crown, during the Minority of his late Predeceſſors; which, though done by the Advice of the Counſellors of State, Learned Advocates, and according to the Precedent of former Kings, was not at all reliſhed by ſeveral Great Men there, who were likewiſe farther diſſatisfied by the King's granting out Commiſſions of ſurrender of Tithes, in favour of the Clergy and the inferior Laity, who had very hard Uſage from the Lords of the Erections, or Impropriators, in the payment of Tithes: By virtue of this Commiſſion a Rate was ſet upon Tithes, and they were purchaſed by the Owners; ſo that the Lords of the Erection had a ſufficient Compenſation for their Right. Thus the Maintenance of the Clergy was augmented, and much leſs incumbred with unreaſonable Conditions than before: The Owners of the Lands likewiſe were freed from their former Servitude and dangerous Dependance on their Fellow-Subjects. The Lay-Patrons, though ſeemingly ſatisfied, were not inwardly pleaſed with theſe Proceedings; and not being able to charge them with Injuſtice, gave out that this Commiſſion was procured at the Inſtance of the Biſhops, who meant, by it, no good to Religion. Upon this, the Scots erected Four Tables, as they call 'em, in Edinburgh, out of the ſeveral Degrees of People in the Kingdom: Theſe Tables conſulted what was to be propounded to the General Table, compoſed of Commiſſioners choſen from the Four Tables, the Reſolutions of the General Table being to be put in practice with an implicite Obedience. Their firſt Act of Rebellion, as Nalſon calls it, was their Solemn League and Covenant, which was a Combination againſt all that ſhould oppoſe them, not excepting the King. Some little time before, the Scots Service-Book was ſent down, which had been prepared in King James's time, and at the reading of it in the King's Chapel, there was great Diſturbance made by the Rabble. The Covenanters continue their Aſſemblies, in oppoſition to the Royal Authority, ſeize upon the King's Forts and Caſtles, and raiſe an Army under the Command of General Leſley. The King marches againſt them, with a Force much Superiour, to Berwick, where His Majeſty condeſcends to a Treaty with the Scots, revokes the Liturgy, the High Commiſſion, the Book of Canons, and the Five Articles of Perth. The Covenanters break the Pacification at Berwick, and ſent a Letter to the French King for his Protection; indict an Aſſembly without the King, in which they aboliſhed Epiſcopacy, Excommunicated the Biſhops, and all that adhered to them. They march their Army a ſecond time into England, and come up as far as Newcaſtle, having before repulſed ſome part of the King's Army, under the Command of my Lord Conway. The King levies another Army, and comes in Perſon, in this ſecond Expedition, as far as York, whither he ſummons the Peers to attend him. In this Great Council, the Scots having many Friends, a ſecond Treaty was ſet a-foot, and concluded at Rippon, and, as Sir Roger Manley words it, upon very diſhonourable Conditions; the Four Northern Counties being allowed the Scots for their Winter-Quarters, and 850 l. a day, during the Truce, for their Subſiſtence. So chargeable were theſe Scotch Rebellious Expeditions unto this Kingdom, that the Earl of Briſtol obſerved in Parliament, That they had coſt England 1100000 l. beſides Damages. At the raiſing this ſecond Army againſt the Scots, the King ordered the Country to furniſh Moneys for the Marching and Cloathing of the Soldiers; this Charge was called Coat and Conduct-Money, which the King promiſed to repay out of the Exchequer. Another Parliament was called in England, to meet Novemb. 3. 1640. They inſiſted upon their Old Grievances, and impeached Archbiſhop Laud, the Earl of Strafford, the Lord Keeper Finch, &c. After this, the King gave the Royal Aſſent to the Triennial Parliament. The Earl of Strafford is attainted of High Treaſon after his Trial: The Bill of Attainder had an extraordinary Clauſe in it, to prevent its being a Precedent for the future. The King paſſes the Bill againſt the Earl, though with great Reluctance, being perſuaded to it by a Letter from the Earl himſelf; though, as Sanderſon obſerves, he was much ſurprized at the King's Compliance. When the King ſigned this Bill againſt the Earl of Strafford, he likewiſe ſigned the Sitting of the Parliament, during the Pleaſure of both Houſes, which was a great Blow to the Royal Authority. The Parliament voted the Scots Army 300000 l. for their Service. The High-Commiſſion and Star-Chamber-Courts are put down by Act of Parliament. The King goes for Scotland, and in hopes of quieting that Nation, confirms their late extraordinary Encroachments upon the Crown and Church. While the King was in Scotland, the Iriſh Rebellion broke out, in which a great number of the Engliſh were murther'd: The King, upon his return to London, preſſes in Parliament for Relief for Ireland, and offers to go thither in Perſon to ſuppreſs the Rebellion. Macquire and Mac-Mahon are ſeized; the firſt of which, at the Place of Execution, clears the King of the Calumny of underhand fomenting theſe Diſturbances. Some diſaffected People, who had a mind to blacken His Majeſty, pretended the King had Authorized that Rebellion, by ſending the Iriſh his Broad Seal for that purpoſe: This Aſperſion was likewiſe taken off by Sir Philim O Neal at his Execution. This Sir Philim was offered, by the Parliamentarians, his Liberty and Eſtate, if he would prove he had the King's Commiſſion for the Riſing: He generouſly anſwered, That he neither could nor would farther burthen his Conſcience, by unjuſtly Calumniating the King; confeſſing withal, That he and his Party had forged a Commiſſion, and fixed a Great Seal to it; but that this was only the Seal of a Patent of Honour belonging to the Lord Caulfield, which Sir Philim took when he ſurprized the Caſtle of Charlemont, making uſe of this Artiſice, as he confeſſed to the Judges at his Trial, to promote the Cauſe he had ſo far engaged in. The King orders the Attorney-General to draw up a Charge of High Treaſon againſt the Lord Kimbolton, Sir Arthur Haſlerig, Mr. Pym, Mr. Hambden, Mr. Hollis, and Mr. Stroud, and ſent a Serjeant at Arms to the Parliament-Houſe to take them into Cuſtody; but the Houſe refuſed to ſend them: Whereupon the King went himſelf, attended with ſome Gentlemen of the Court, to demand them; but they having notice on't, withdrew into the City, from whence they ſoon after returned, with a pompous Guard, to the Parliament-Houſe; the Houſe of Commons having before voted the King's coming to the Houſe with Papiſts and Soldiers, a Traiterous Deſign againſt the King and Parliament. The Biſhops having proteſted againſt all Acts made in their abſence as null, were accuſed of High Treaſon, and committed. At laſt it came to an open Rebellion; for the neighbouring Counties growing troubleſome by Petitions, and the London Apprentices being worked up to a Tumult, inſomuch that the King not thinking Himſelf ſafe in London, retired into the Country. The Parliament ſeized the Militia, though declaring a little before they had nothing to do with it; and ſo forward were they in their Rebellion, that they had raiſed 20000 Men, before the King had raiſed 500. They vote His Majeſty's Commiſſions of Lieutenancy illegal. The King goes to York, and ſummons the Gentry thither, ſetting forth to them, in his Speech, the Neceſſity of his Arming, and the Juſtice of his Cauſe. His Majeſty goes from thence to Nottingham, and ſets up the Royal Standard: He is refuſed entrance into Hull by Sir John Hotham. The Parliament ſends Nineteen Propoſitions to the King, by which, in effect, they demand a Surrender of all His Regal Power. They invite the People to bring in Plate and Money to Guild-Hall, and engage the Publick Faith for the Payment on't, and forbid the Publiſhing the King's Declarations. The King marches from Nottingham towards Shrewsbury, and makes a ſort of Proteſtation at the Head of his Men at Wellington, That he would defend the Proteſtant Religion as by Law Eſtabliſhed, the Laws of the Land, and the Liberty and Property of the Subject. Upon which, his Army very much encreaſed. Eſſex goes to the Rendezvous of his Army at Northampton, conſiſting of 14000 Men. The King marches from Shrewsbury towards London, with 6000 Foot, 3000 Horſe, and 2000 Dragoons: Both Armies met at Edge-hill in Warwickſhire. Some time before this, the King had proclaimed Eſſex and his Adherents Traitors. But to return to Edge-hill, where the King's Right Wing, being Commanded by Prince Rupert, charged the Rebels Left Wing, led on by Colonel Ramſey and Scot, and routed them; but the Prince's Horſe following the Chaſe too far, ſuffered the Victory to ſlip out of their hands. The Foot were all engaged without any great Diſadvantage on either ſide. The King's Standard was once taken, but recovered by Captain Smith, who was Knighted upon the Place for that Service. Night being come, the King drew off to the Hill, where he lay all night in his Coach. Eſſex, being recruited with three freſh Regiments, lay in the Field of Battel; but thinking it not adviſeable to attempt any thing further upon the Royaliſts, retreated to Warwick, and ſuffered the King to continue his March towards London. The Earl of Lindſey, the King's General, was killed in this Fight, in which, the Slain of both ſides, upon a ſtrict Enquiry, did not amount to above a thouſand. The Members at Weſtminſter cry out againſt the King for making uſe of his Popiſh Subjects, and yet invite them to come in to the Good Old Cauſe. The Earl of Newcaſtle raiſes Forces for the King in the North, and beats the Lord Fairfax and Sir Thomas, his Son, at Tadcaſter: But the Fairfax's being afterwards recruited, take Leeds, and gain'd a Battel at Wakefield, againſt part of Newcaſtle's Army; but the Marquiſs of Newcaſtle (for ſo he was now) being reinforced, drove the Rebels quite out of the Field, and ſhut up the Lord Fairfax in Hull, before which Town, he unfortunately ſate down; whereas had he marched into the Eaſtern Aſſociated Counties, he had, in all Humane Probability, put an end to the Rebellion without any more Blood. This Year, in the Spring, being 1643. the Queen lands at Burlington, with a great many Officers of Note, and Stores of Arms and Proviſions. The Earl of Montroſs underſtanding the bad Deſigns of the Covenanters, quitted that Party, and came with 120 Horſe to wait upon the Queen at York, where he informed Her Majeſty, that the Covenanters were preparing to invade England with another Army: This Intelligence was baffled and neglected by the Counter-reports of Duke Hamilton. Sir Ralph Hopton, afterwards Lord Hopton, routed Major-General Chudleigh at Lanceſton and Chafford, and defeated both him and the Lord Stamford in a great Fight at Stratton, where, beſide a great many ſlain, the Rebels loſt their Cannon and Baggage, and had almoſt 2000 made Priſoners. Soon after this, Exeter was ſurrendred to Prince Maurice. Upon theſe Advantages, the greateſt part of the Weſt returned to their Duties to the King. My Lord Hopton, after his Victory, marched into Somerſetſhire, and charges Sir William liam Waller at Landſdown near Bath: The Fight was maintained with great Reſolution on both ſides, and continued till late in the Night: At length the Rebels drew off into the Town, their Loſs, in this Action, being greater than the Royaliſts, as well in Officers as in Soldiers. The Royaliſts loſt their Magazine by an Accident, which obliged the Lord Hopton to ſhut himſelf up in the Devizes, where he was blocked up by Sir William Waller, till the King ſent him a Recruit of Men and Stores: This Reinforcement put the Royaliſts into a Condition to fight the Enemy at Roundway-Down; in this Action the Rebels Horſe were firſt entirely routed; their Foot, ſtanding firm for ſome time, when they perceived the King's Foot marching out of Town, threw down their Arms, and diſperſed, but were almoſt all killed or taken. The Loſs on the King's ſide was very ſmall. Soon after, Briſtol was ſurrendred to the King by Colonel Fienes, who not long before had murthered Robert Yeomans and George Boutchier, two Eminent and Loyal Citizens, who were executed, upon pretence that they deſigned to deliver the City to Prince Rupert. Chaloner and Tomkins likewiſe were executed at London, for their Endeavours to Serve His Majeſty; Loyalty being then branded, by the Rebels, by the Name of Conſpiracy and Plotting. The King's Forces gained a Victory upon the Rebels at Hopton-Heath, where Colonel Gell and Sir William Brereton loſt their Cannon and the Day: But this Victory was not obtain'd without the loſs of Spencer, the Noble Earl of Northampton, who being fallen from his Horſe amongſt the Coney-boroughs, was barbarouſly murthered. The Lord Brooks, attempting to force Litchfield-Cloſe, though compleatly armed, was ſhot in the Eye upon St. Chad's Day, the Saint that gives the Name to that Cathedral: This Parliamentarian Lord had, ſome time before, deſired a Sign from Heaven, in Approbation of his Enterprize. Prince Rupert beats the Roundheads at Chalgrave-Field, where many Perſons of Note were killed and taken Priſoners, among the reſt Colonel Hambden, One of the Five Members, was ſlain in that very Field where he firſt Rendezvous'd his Men againſt his Sovereign. The Rebels invite the Scots to their Aſſiſtance The Aſſembly of Divines are ſet up, and the Scotiſh Solemn League and Covenant is taken by the Members at Weſtminſter. And here we may take notice, That moſt of the Lords, and many of the Commons, had left the Parliament-Houſe, and repaired to the King. The Juncto at Weſtminſter made Sale of the King's Lands, and made an Ordinance for Felling the Timber in his Majeſty's Chaces and Parks. The Timber belonging to the Archbiſhops, Biſhops and Chapters, being diſpoſed of the ſame way. The King ſits down before Gloceſter, though contrary to his own Opinion, which gave the Rebels time to recruit their Army; whereas, had his Majeſty been Govern'd by his own Judgment, and march'd for London, he had, in all likelihood, diſperſed the Members at Weſtminſter, and put an end to the War. Eſſex marches down and relieves this City, takes in Cirenceſter, by which his Army was furniſh'd with Proviſions: Preſently after was the firſt Fight at Newbury, where, after much Slaughter, neither ſide could boaſt the Victory, though the Earls of Carnarvan and Sunderland, and Viſcount Faulkland, were ſlain there on the Kings ſide, the noiſe of which gave the Rebels ſome Reputation with their Party. This Summer likewiſe, being 1643. his Majeſty's Forces were worſted at Wakefield by the Parliamentarians. The Scots invade England in 1643. which much revived the Spirits of the Rebellion. Henry Martin is order'd by the Commons at Weſtminſter to ſurvey the Regalia, who having broken up the Iron Cheſt where they were kept, dreſſes up George Withers, a Dogrel Poet, in the Royal Robes, and makes him ſtrut about in Antique Poſtures, with the Crown upon his Head; Afterwards they ſold the Church Plate and the Rich Copes; and being deſired to leave but one Silver Cup for the Communion, they piouſly reply'd, That a Wooden Diſh would ſerve the turn. Theſe Holy Zealots, who counted nothing too rich for the Rebellion, thought any thing good enough for God Almighty. The Clergy were uſed no better than the Churches, a Hundred and fifteen of which in the City and Suburbs only, were turn'd out, Plunder'd, Impriſon'd, and Starv'd, for the ſole Crime of adhering to their King, the known Laws, and Eſtabliſhed Religion of their Country; but to relate all the Barbarities of the Party upon this Head, would require a Volume. The Scots being enter'd England, the Marquiſs of Newcaſtle having ſtop'd their progreſs for ſome time, was oblig'd to retreat to York, the Rebels now having form'd Three Armies againſt him, the Scots under General Leſley Earl of Leven, and the other Two commanded by the Earl of Mancheſter and the Lord Fairfax. Theſe Armies came up to York and beſieg'd it, the Marquiſs's Army being in the Town: The King detach'd Prince Rupert to their relief, who, in his march, having gain'd ſeveral Advantages over the Enemy, relieves the Place; the Enemy, upon his Approach, quitting the Siege, and drawing off four Miles to a Place called Marſton-Moor: Many of the King's Officers thought it not adviſeable to fight the Enemy upon this Occaſion, but were over-ruled into a Battel by Prince Rupert, where though at firſt, he broke the Scots and the Fairfaxes, yet following the Chaſe too far, he loſt the day, by the Conduct and Courage of Cromwell; The Fight laſted from 7 till 10 at night with great Courage and Slaughter on both ſides, but the Victory, by the misfortune above-mentioned, fell to the Rebels, who took the Royaliſts Cannon and Baggage; and immediately after York was ſurrender'd. The King being in the Weſt, and ignorant how Matters went, ſends Overtures of a Treaty to London, but the Parliamentarians, elated with their late Succeſs, ſlight the Propoſal: But afterwards his Majeſty having beaten Waller at Cropredy-bridge, and perfectly routed the Earl of Eſſex at Leſtwitheil in Cornwall, they took ſome notice of the King's ſecond Meſſage of a Peace, though clogging it with unreaſonable Conditions. The Two Houſes now proceed to aboliſh the Common-Prayer, and ſet up the Directory, in Compliment to the Scotch Invaſion. This year being 1644. Archbiſhop Laud was beheaded by the Rebels on Tower-hill, Jan. 10. and ſoon after the Treaty began at Uxbridge. A little before Sir John Hotham and his Son, who kept the King out of Hull, and Sir Alexander Carew, who held Plimouth for the Parliament, were all Three Executed by their Maſters, upon the diſcovery of their Inclinations to return to their Loyalty. The ſecond Battle at Newbury happen'd likewiſe in October this year. This Fight was maintain'd with great Reſolution, the King loſing 3000, and the Rebels 2500: Upon the whole, in this Action, the King had rather the diſadvantage, where 'tis likewiſe obſervable, that none of the Rebels fought more fiercely than thoſe, who at the delivering up their Arms in Cornwall, had their Lives given 'em, upon their Engagement never to fight againſt the King. The Houſes at Weſtminſter make a Self-denying Ordinance, That no Member of either Houſe, ſhould, during that War, enjoy any Office, either Military or Civil, which had been granted or confer'd on 'em by either Houſe, or by any Authority derived from either Houſe. By this Order the Earl of Eſſex, their General, was diſcharg'd with many others of the Presbyterian Party. Cromwell was the only Perſon excepted in this General Order, having a particular Privilege to continue in the Camp: And now the Earls of Eſſex, Denby, Mancheſter, and Warwick, lay down their Arms, and leave their Poſts to the Independents. In 1645. Fairfax ſits down before Oxford, but hearing the King was ſomewhat conſiderable, after the taking of Leiceſter, he rais'd his Siege, and march'd after 'em. The King hearing of his approach, call'd a Council of War, where ſome of the Officers diſſuaded an Engagement, till General Goring had joined his Majeſty from the Weſt; but this Prudent Advice was over-rul'd, and a Battel reſolv'd; In this Action the King had the better at firſt, Prince Rupert having routed part of the Wing commanded by Ireton, but purſuing 'em too far, left the King's Foot open to the Enemies Horſe, and occaſion'd the Loſs of the Day; The King, notwithſtanding he had loſt all his Foot and Cannon, would have charg'd the Rebels Horſe again, before their Foot had come up, but the Courage of thoſe about him being leſs than his own, the Greatneſs of that Reſolve was diſappointed. In this Fight the King's Cabinet was taken, and his Private Letters to the Queen publiſh'd with unparallell'd Indecency and Inhumanity. His Majeſty's Loſs here was never recover'd, the Royaliſts after this time being never able to effect any thing to purpoſe, the Lord Goring, who had the only remaining Body of the King's Foot, being defeated by Maſſey and Fairfax at Longport; Bridgwater and Briſtol being taken ſoon after, by which the Royal Party was in a manner utterly diſabled: Affairs being in this ill Poſture, the Lord Hopton, who had a gallant Body of Horſe, being ſhut up in the Straights of Cornwall, deſpairing of Relief, accepted of fair Conditions, and disbanded his Army; And ſoon after Exeter was ſurrender'd upon Honourable Terms; Prince Rupert likewiſe and Prince Maurice Capitulated with Poynts, for Paſſes to go beyond Sea. When Exeter was ſurrender'd by Sir John Berkley, Sir John Stowell was comprehended in the Capitulation, though afterwards the Articles were broken, and he barbarouſly us'd. In Ireland the Diſturbances continued, for the Iriſh underſtanding their Eſtates were to be divided amongſt the Parliamentarian Adventurers, pretended neceſſity and ſelf-preſervation for their Inſurrection; and thus the Rebellion grew more general and better fortified. The King's Affairs being embroil'd in England, and not being in a Condition to tranſport a ſufficient Force into that Kingdom, orders the Marqueſs of Ormond to conclude a Ceſſation with the Iriſh Rebels; In which Treaty the Scotch, Iriſh, and Parliamentarians, refuſe to be comprehended. This Ceſſation afterwards improved into a Peace, but the Popes Nuncio proteſting againſt it, and threatening Excommunication to the Roman Catholicks who comply'd, the Kingdom was by this Means reimbroil'd, and the Rebellion flam'd out more than ever; This Pope's Nuncio beſieges Dublin by Land, the Parliamentarians blocking it up by Sea. The Marquiſs of Ormond, who held it for the King, acquaints his Majeſty with the ill Condition of his Affairs, and that 'twas impracticable to hinder the City from falling into the Hands either of the Iriſh or Parliamentarians; The King being more enclined to the latter Rebels than the former, ſends Orders to the Marquiſs to deliver it into the Hands of the Parliamentarians. To return to England. The King, upon a farther declenſion of his Affairs, is forced to leave Oxford, from whence he goes to the Scotch Army, who carry him to Newcaſtle. About this time Hereford, which had before baffled the Scotch Army, was taken by ſurprize, but Cheſter made a brave Defence, and at laſt ſurrender'd Honourably: This year likewiſe, being 1646. Sir Tho. Fairfax beſieges Oxford, which was deliver'd to him upon good Conditions. The Scots, while poſſeſt of the King, uſe him ill, and extort ſeveral things from him prejudicial to his Affairs, particularly they oblige him to deliver up his Garriſons to the Parliament, and to ſend his Inſtructions to Montroſe to Disband his Forces in Scotland; this Earl having with a ſmall Force made an extraordinary Progreſs for his Majeſty in Scotland, and being in a good Condition when he receiv'd the King's Orders to Disband. The Scotch Army, after ſome haggling with the Engliſh Parliament about driving their Bargain, deliver up the King to the Engliſh, upon the receipt of Two hundred thouſand Pound. The Parliament order'd the King to be ſent to Holmeby, where he was wretchedly us'd, and deny'd even the Aſſiſtance of his Chaplains. The Two Houſes Order the King's Broad Seal to be broken, and having perfectly cruſh'd the Royaliſts, were willing to Disband their Army, but found it impracticable; For Cromwell, with ſome other of the Independents, who now began to be Powerful in the Parliament Houſe, but more ſo among the Souldiery; Theſe Independents by the Management of Cromwell and Ireton, put the Army upon a Remonſtrance againſt the Parliament, making the Soldiers believe, that they were in danger of being Disbanded without Pay, or to be ſent to Ireland to be Starv'd; Upon this the Soldiers enter'd into an Aſſociation among themſelves, taking upon them not only the Military, but the Civil Power. They took the King from the Parliament into their own Cuſtody, upon pretence of Treating him better, but making themſelves Maſters of the City of London, acted at Diſcretion: But their Reſpects to the King was all pretence, for ſoon after they perſuaded their Party in the Two Houſes to Treat with his Majeſty no longer. Upon this many of the People, ſeeing through their Deſign, and unwilling to bear their Tyranny, take up Arms in the Royal Cauſe, but were diſperſed by Cromwell, who alſo beat the Scots at Preſton in Lancaſhire, who came into England to aſſiſt the King. During the abſence of Cromwell, who went to fight the Scotch Army under Duke Hamilton, the Parliament had re-aſſum'd the Treaty with the King, and by his Majeſty's large Conceſſions, the Buſineſs was carried on ſo far, that there was great hopes of an Accommodation: The Two Houſes having Voted the King's Preliminary Compliance a good foundation for a Peace: But this Complexion of Affairs was ſoon changed by the Army; who, Headed by Ireton, Cromwell's Son in Law, over-aw'd the Houſe to break off the Treaty, by their Vote of Non-Addreſſes; And now the Army being wholly at Cromwell's Devotion, he ſets the Agitators on work again to make a Remonſtrance in the Houſe of Commons, wherein they Require, Firſt, That the King be brought to Juſtice; Secondly, That the Prince and Duke of York be Summoned to appear at a day appointed, and proceeded with according as they ſhould give Satisfaction; Thirdly, That the Parliament ſettle the Peace and future Government, and ſet a reaſonable Period to their own Sitting, and make future Parliaments Annual or Biennial. Fourthly, That a Competent Number of the King's Chief Inſtruments be Executed. This they demanded to have done, both by the Houſe of Commons, and by a general Agreement of the People, teſtified by Subſcriptions; nor did they ſtay for an Anſwer, but preſently ſet a Guard of Soldiers at the Parliament Houſe Door, and other Soldiers in Weſtminſter-Hall, ſuffering none to go into the Houſe but ſuch as would ſerve their turns; all others were frighted away, or made Priſoners; and ſome upon divers incompliances, ſuſpended; the remaining Juncto being perfectly in the Intereſt of Cromwell: This Remainder of a Parliament being nicely cautious to avoid Perjury, declared the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance void, and preſently after made another Ordinance to bring the King to his Tryal. They likewiſe Vote, That the Houſe of Commons have the Supream Power of the Nation, and that whatſoever the Members of that Houſe Enact, is Law; all this paſt into an Ordinance, Nemine Contradicente: After this they Erected the High Court of Juſtice, conſiſting of a certain Number of Commiſſioners, of whom any Twenty had Power to Try the King, and to proceed to Sentence and Execution according to the Merit of the Cauſe. The generality of the People look'd upon this Court as an abominable Inſolence, ſome Presbyterian Miniſters cry'd out againſt it in their Pulpits: The Scots Proteſted againſt it, and the Ambaſſadors of ſeveral Princes did their utmoſt to oppoſe it. Before this pretended Court the King was accuſed of High Treaſon, and of all the Calamity and Bloodſhed occaſioned by the late War. The King maintaining his Character, and refuſing to acknowledge the Authority of theſe pretended Judges, had Sentence of Death paſt upon him; and after a great many Abuſes by the Soldiers, was beheaded upon a Scaffold, erected for that purpoſe, before the Banquetting-Houſe at Whitehall. This Execrable Murder was committed upon the 30th of January 1648. This King, to ſpeak a Word of him by way of Character, was a Prince of great Abilities for the Functions of Government, of great Regularity of Life, and Equality of Temper: Well furniſh'd both with Capacity and Reſolution to adviſe in the Cabinet, and Execute in the Field. His greateſt Misfortune ſeems to have lain in his too Modeſt Senſe of his own ſufficiency; This Diffidence made him ſometimes over-rul'd by other Mens Opinions, worſe grounded than his own. To Conclude, His Works Printed in Folio, ſhew ſufficiently the Extent of his Knowledge, the Strength of his Reaſon, and the Noble manner of his Expreſſion; There being a peculiar Force and Delicacy in his Compoſitions, hardly to be met with in the Age he liv'd in. He died with great Compoſedneſs and Chriſtian Fortitude, and declared himſelf of the Communion of the Church of England, as it was ſettled in the time of his Father King James. Nalſon's Collections. Dugdale's Short View of the Troubles of England. Hobs's Behemoth. CHARLES the Second, King of Great Britain, was Son to Charles I. by Henrietta Maria, Daughter to Henry IV. of France. He was born May 29. 1630. Being at the Hague when his Father was Murther'd, was Honourably Entertained by the States of Holland. The Engliſh Rebels forbid the Proclaiming him King on Pain of High Treaſon: They Vote the Houſe of Lords Uſeleſs and Dangerous, giving the Peers at the ſame time, leave to ſit in the Houſe of Commons, provided they were Elected. The Rump Parliament who now ſits at the Helm, aboliſh'd Kingly Government, and choſe a Council of State, with whom they lodge the Executive part of the Rebellion. They make a new Great Seal, and take down the Kings Statue from St. Paul's and the Old Exchange. They Erect a pretended High Court of Juſtice, by which Duke Hamilton, the Earl of Holland, and the Lord Capel, are Try'd and Murther'd: The Lord Capel behaving himſelf upon the Scaffold with great Bravery and Chriſtian Fortitude, telling the People, That he was brought thither for obeying the Fifth Commandment, &c. And now to make the Uſurpation more eaſie, they abſolve the People from all Oaths made to their Soveraign and his Poſterity: This is a Piece of Law, which Mr. Hobs ſays, he could not underſtand, That when many Men Swear ſingly, they may, when they are Aſſembled, if they pleaſe, Abſolve themſelves. From whence they proceed to Obtrude the Engagement upon the People, by which they promiſe to be true to the Commonwealth of England without King or Houſe of Lords. The Scots now ſeem to repent of their Infamous Delivering the King up to the Engliſh, which they found was but a leading ſtep to his Murther, and, as they had Proteſted againſt the Kings Tryal, and the Barbarous Conſequence of it, ſo they acknowledge the Succeſſion of his Son Charles II. and Proclaim him King with great Pomp and Solemnity, diſpatching Commiſſioners at the ſame time, to acquaint his Majeſty with their Duty, who was then at the Hague. The Dutch, tho' the King had the freedom of their Country, did not receive him with Publick Ceremony, the States, 'tis likely, being not willing to diſoblige the Engliſh Rumpers; but the Daniſh and Swediſh Ambaſſadors, having as yet none of theſe fears, ſaluted the King with the uſual Reſpects of Condoleance and Congratulation. His Majeſty was likewiſe Nobly Treated by the Arch-Duke Leopold, Governor of the Low-Countreys; and having ſtay'd ſome time in Flanders, he went for France, and was Honourably received by the French King at Compiegne: While the King was in France, his Siſter, the Lady Elizabeth, died at Carisbrook Caſtle, being denied the Aſſiſtance of ſuch Phyſicians as ſhe deſir'd. Cromwell having over-run the greateſt part of Ireland, and left Ireton to compleat his Victories, comes for London. The Scotch Covenanters take advantage of the King's Neceſſities, and ſend Windram to his Majeſty, with the following Propoſals, That he ſhould take the Covenant, Revoke his Commiſſion to Montroſe, Renounce his Negative Voice in Parliament, with ſome others not very reaſonable. The King having Deliberated with his Council, reſolves not to break with them, and for the better Management of the Treaty, removes from Jerſey to Breda; During this Treaty, the Noble Montroſe being, by the King's Commiſſion, landed in Scotland, and raiſing Forces there, was after a Defeat, brought to Edenburg, and there put to Death with all the Diſreſpect and Infamy imaginable: The King being in no Condition to Reſent this Uſage, conſents to the Scotch Articles with ſome little Qualification and Reſtriction; and ſo ſetting Sail from Scheveling in Holland, arrives in the Spey, and upon his Landing, is the ſecond time Proclaimed King of Scotland, England and Ireland. The Engliſh Rebels being inform'd of the Tranſactions in Scotland, prepare for Reſiſtance; and being apprehenſive of a Scotch Expedition againſt them, reſolv'd to be before-hand, and carry the War into their Enemies Country; and General Fairfax refuſing to March againſt his Brethren and Confederates, the Scots, he is oblig'd to lay down his Command, which was immediately beſtow'd upon Cromwell, who march'd with a good Army for Scotland: The Scots in the mean time were well provided for Defence, and being confident of their Succeſs againſt Cromwell, the Council of War and the Miniſters manag'd the Army without the King, fearing his Intereſt ſhould improve too much amongſt the Soldiers, and at laſt oblige him to remove from the Camp. But the Scots quitting their Poſts of Advantage, marching down into the Plains, and unſeaſonably fighting the Engliſh, were the occaſion of their being entirely defeated at Dunbar; However the Covenanters continue Extravagant and Troubleſome in their Behaviour, impoſed new Conditions upon the King; pretend to Reform his Family, and endeavour to extort a Declaration from him againſt himſelf, and ſuch who were faithful to him: Provok'd with theſe Indignities, the King withdraws and retires towards the Northern Provinces; But the Scotch Parliament perceiving themſelves ruined, unleſs ſupported by the King's Preſence and Authority, and being grown much better Natur'd ſince the Mortification given them by Cromwell, ſend after the King, and humbly deſire his Return: This Requeſt, his Majeſty was pleas'd to hearken to, upon the promiſe of better Conditions. The King, being now at the Helm, and Orders given for new Levies, he was Crown'd at Scone with as much Solemnity as the Circumſtances of Affairs would admit. Cromwell with his Army continuing in Scotland, having advantage of the King's Forces, and over-running the Country; His Majeſty perceiv'd the continuance of the War there impracticable, and therefore, while Cromwell was buſied in the Siege of St. Johnſton, takes hold of the Opportunity, and marches for England. His Army, conſiſting of about Twelve thouſand Effective Men, came up to Carliſle about the beginning of July 1651. from thence advancing into Lancaſhire, after ſome Skirmiſhes with Lambert and Harriſon's Cavalry, they forc'd their Paſſage at Warrington-Bridge, and came at length to Worceſter. The King was of Opinion to have march'd from Warrington directly to London, but the Army was too much fatigued for ſuch an Attempt. Cromwell appears before Worceſter, ſix days after the King; his Army was about Threeſcore thouſand, his Majeſty's amounting to not above Fourteen Thouſand. Upon the 3d of September the Rebels attack'd the King's Forces: His Majeſty in Perſon, with a ſmall Party, charg'd the Van of the Enemy with ſo much Bravery, that he made them give ground, and took their Cannon, but could not maintain the Advantage by reaſon of their numerous Reſerves; ſo that having perform'd the Part of a great Commander, by rallying his Troops, and encouraging them by his Preſence and Example, he was forc'd to give way to the numbers of the Enemy; and retiring to the City, when he ſaw the Day was abſolutely loſt, ſlipt away in the Croud. The Slaughter in the City was very Barbarous, Citizens and Soldiers being ſlain without diſtinction, and all Places filled with Rapine and Murther. After his Majeſty had left the City, he was oblig'd to diſcharge his Guards, and having avoided his Purſuers, by many Providential Eſcapes, he embarks at Bright-Hamſted in Suſſex, and being attended with the Lord Wilmot, arrives ſafely at Roan in France. By this time the Scots were perfectly ſubdued by Cromwell, the Adminiſtration of Civil Affairs is moſtly in the Hands of the Engliſh, they being oblig'd to ſubſcribe to the Engliſh Government, and unite into one Commonwealth; To this purpoſe they are ordered to ſend 30 Commiſſioners to the pretended Parliament in London; which Commiſſioners themſelves were all Engliſh, except the Marquiſs of Argile and Laird of Swinton; The uſe of Arms is likewiſe denied to that Nation, nay, and Horſes too, unleſs for ſome extraordinary Ends and Uſes. The King is ill us'd by the French Court, who clap up a Peace with Cromwell, upon which his Majeſty removes to Cologne: About this time, being 1655. Royal Commiſſioners began to be appointed all over England, to Manage the King's Affairs, and to Promote his Reſtoration, but are diſcover'd by Cromwell's Intelligencers, and diſappointed; ſeveral Perſons of Quality being Impriſon'd, and ſome put to Death. The year before, the King being at Cologne, and hearing the Duke of Glouceſter was in danger of changing his Religion, ſends for him from the Court of France. The Spaniards having declared War againſt Cromwell, his Majeſty and the Duke of York go into Flanders by the Invitation of Don John of Auſtria, where his Majeſty had a Penſion of Nine thouſand Pounds per Annum ſettled upon him, and the Duke was made General of the Engliſh, Scotch and Iriſh Forces. Oliver Cromwell dying upon the 3d of September 1658. the Old Republican Officers, who menac'd Richard Cromwell into a Reſignation, reſtor'd the Rump Parliament, to which Henry Cromwell Deputy in Ireland, and Monk Governor of Scotland, ſubmit. In 1659. Sir George Booth took the Field with a Party of 2000 Horſe and Foot, expecting to be joyn'd by the Aſſiſtance of moſt other Counties. This Appearance of an Army was a great ſurprize to the Rump, who immediately order'd Lambert againſt it, who encountering Sir Geo. Booth in Lancaſhire, defeated him, and cruſh'd the Deſign; Upon this Succeſs, the Rump ſuſpecting the Ambition of Lambert, Desborough, and ſome other Officers, Caſheers 'em, and inſtead of a General, appoint a Supream Council of War over the Army, conſiſting of Fleetwood, Monk, &c. to the Number of Seven Perſons. Lambert, with the reſt of the Caſheer'd Officers, conſpire againſt their Maſters the Rump, and ſoon after Lambert, at the Head of a ſtrong Body, ſets Guards upon the Parliament Houſe, and turns the Members out of Doors. Upon this ſudden Revolution, the Victorious Officers conſult about ſettling the Government; And, having firſt Modell'd the Army, appoint a Committee of Safety, conſiſting of Three and twenty Perſons for the Managing of Civil Affairs: The Iriſh and Scotch Armies, as 'twas before obſerv'd, Declar'd for the Rump, and Monk having ſettled Affairs in Scotland, prepares for an Expedition into England. Fleetwood, Lambert, and their Party, apprehending the Conſequences of his Motion, endeavour to take him off by a Treaty; however, in the mean time, Lambert goes, as General, againſt him; Monk, being not ſtrong enough to Fight, is willing to delay the time by Treating, and in order to this purpoſe, ſends Commiſſioners to London, who, after ſome Debate upon the Matter, ſign the Pacification, but the Conditions being diſliked by Monk, he Impriſons Wilks, one of his Agents, for exceeding his Commiſſion; He likewiſe ſends Letters to Fleetwood, objecting his Exceptions againſt ſome of the Articles, and deſiring a new Treaty to be ſet a-foot at Newcaſtle; Theſe Propoſals are impoliticklу agreed to by Fleetwood and Lambert. In the mean time the Garriſon of Portſmouth declares for the Rump, as likewiſe did Vice-Admiral Lawſon. Upon this Fleetwood ſubmits, and reſigns to Lenthall the Speaker, and the Committee of Safety is diſſolv'd. The Rump, being once more in the Saddle, countermand Lambert from Newcaſtle; And this General wavering between Submiſſion and Reſiſtance, was, like Fleetwood, baſely deſerted by his Soldiers. Things ſtanding in this Poſture, Monk marches for England, procures Fleetwood's Forces to be removed out of London, and then enters the City, having been Addreſs'd to in his March, by a great many Petitions for a free Parliament, to which he return'd ambiguous, tho' not diſobliging Anſwers. The Rump make an Oath of Abjuration, both of the King and the whole Royal Family; This Oath the Council of State, ſet up by the Rump, tenders to Monk, which he prudently avoided, under pretence of taking time for further Conſideration. The Londoners refuſe to pay the Taxes, rais'd by the pretended Parliament. This unexpected Refuſal enraged the Rump, who order Monk to March into the City, and pull down the City Poſts, Gates, Chains, and Portcullices. Theſe unacceptable Orders are executed by the General, but being much diſpleas'd with the rigour of the Expedient, he ſends an angry Letter to the Speaker, and a day or two after returns into the City, and explains himſelf to the Mayor and Common Council, to their ſatisfaction. Monk having, as it were, preſcrib'd the Rump a very ſhort time for their ſitting, they endeavour'd to Caſheer him, but he ſtrengthening his Intereſt by re-admitting the Secluded Members, gain'd his Point ſo far upon his Enemies, that the moſt Violent and Abjuring Party left the Houſe. The Parliament being joined with the Secluded Members, made Monk the General of the Forces of the Three Kingdoms: Being in this Advantageous Poſt, he receives Letters from the King, and promiſes his Aſſiſtance towards a Reſtoration. About this time Lambert eſcaping out of Priſon, conſults with the Heads of his Party, who reſolve to try their Forune once more in the Field, and having got a Body of the Disbanded Soldiers together, rendezvous about Northampton: This News coming to London, Lambert is proclaimed Traytor by the Council of State, and Col. Ingolsby diſpatch'd againſt him; Lambert ſeeing the Enemy appear, draws up his Men, but ſome of his Troops deſerting him, he ſurrenders himſelf to Ingolsby: Not long before this time, on the 17th of March 1660. the long Rebellious Parliament diſſolv'd it ſelf, and on the 25th of April a new Parliament, or rather Convention, conſiſting of Two Houſes, Lords and Commons, met at Weſtminſter. In the mean time the King at Breda grants Liberty to Tender Conſciences, and is Proclaim'd by the Members at Weſtminſter. The Houſes and City ſend Commiſſioners to the King, together with conſiderable Preſents to his Majeſty, and to his Royal Brothers, the Dukes of York and Gloceſter. Admiral Montegue delivers up the Fleet to the King, who coming on Board the Admiral, lands at Dover, and makes a ſplendid Entrance into London upon the 29th day of May, being his Majeſty's Birth-Day. An Act of Indemnity and Oblivion is paſt. This year the Duke of Glouceſter died of the Small Pox: Not long after the Regicides were brought to their Tryal, who died obſtinate and unrepenting: The Regicides, who came in upon the Proclamation, were Impriſon'd during Life. The Princeſs of Orange falls ſick of the Small Pox at London, and dies December 24. On the 23d of April 1661. the King was Crown'd with great Solemnity, and the next month a new Parliament met at Weſtminſter, where the Treaſonable Solemn League and Covenant, that Religious Bond of Iniquity, was by the Parliament condemn'd to be burnt by the Common Hangman: The King Marries a Daughter of Portugal, of the Houſe of Braganza. Sir Henry Vane is Executed for Treaſon. In 1660. Venner, at the Head of about Fifty deſperate Fifth-Monarchy-Men, makes an Inſurrection in London, in the Night-time; they fight the Train'd Bands and the Guards, and continued their reſiſtance till greateſt part of them were wounded or killed. The Madneſs of theſe Rebellious Enthuſiaſts was ſo extravagant, that they propos'd the Conqueſt of the Kingdom with this Handful of Men; and this year, being 1662. there was another Plot diſcover'd, by the Confeſſion of one concern'd in it; Philips, Tong, Gibs, and Stubs, were Executed for High Treaſon: By the Scheme of their Rebellion, they had projected a new Form of Government; Ludlow the Regicide, was deſign'd to be their General, and their Secret Cabal was a Junto of Six: The King and Duke were mark'd out for deſtruction, and the Conſtitution to be melted down into a Common-wealth. The Faction ſtill continued plotting and unquiet, and in 1663. there was a Deſign laid to ſeize the Caſtle of Dublin and the Duke of Ormond being Lord Lieutenant, in the Diſguize of Labourers; The Tower of London and Whitehall being to be ſecur'd about the ſame time: This Conſpiracy conſiſted of Sectaries, Cromwellian Soldiers, and Abettors of the Long Parliament: But 15 of the Conſpirators, being confronted and convicted of Treaſon, and Executed in Yorkſhire, this Plot, like the reſt, was diſappointed. In 1664 the Party renew their Attempts, and endeavour the ſurprizing of Carliſle, but ſome of 'em failing to appear at the Place of Rendezvous, the reſt were forc'd to ſeparate, and Three of 'em, being old Conſpirators, were Executed for Treaſon at Appleby in Weſtmorland; their Names were Waller, Wetherhead, and Petty. As to Foreign Affairs, the Dutch took a great many Engliſh Ships upon the Coaſts of India and Africa, Impriſoning the Seamen, and making Prize of the Ships: This Uſage, and the Complaints of the Merchants, made a War with that Republick neceſſary. The Parliament highly Reſented the Injuries and Affronts of the States, and Voted the King a Supply for the War. However his Majeſty being willing to prevent a Rupture, demands Satisfaction by his Ambaſſador Sir George Downing; but the Dutch could not be brought to any reaſonable Terms of Reparation. Upon this Refuſal the King prepares a Fleet, which, being commanded by the Duke, engag'd the Dutch on the 3d of June in 1665. In this Fight, Opdam, the Dutch Admiral, was blown up, and their whole Fleet beaten and forc'd to fly, about Five thouſand of the Enemies being killed or taken, Four of the Chief Commanders loſt in the Engagement, with about Eighteen of their Ships burnt, ſunk, and taken. After this Victory, the Royal Navy, having Intelligence that the Dutch Eaſt-India Fleet had put into Bergen, a famous Harbour of Norway, ſet Sail thither, and attack'd 'em under the Protection of the Caſtle; The Engliſh had in all probability ſucceeded in their Attempt, had not the Danes interpos'd, and fir'd from their Fort upon them: This Succour preſerv'd the Dutch, ſo that the Engliſh after having done them ſome damage, thought it adviſable to draw off. This year the Plague broke out in London, occaſion'd, as was probably conjectured, by Infected Goods brought over from Holland; This Contagion carried off in London only, above Sixty eight thouſand Perſons. The French King coming in to the Aſſiſtance of the Dutch, War is proclaim'd againſt that Crown at London. In 1666. Prince Rupert and the Duke of Albemarle are pitch'd upon for the Command of the Navy, and put to Sea, but Prince Rupert's Squadron being order'd by the Privy Council to ſtand over to the Coaſt of France, to hinder the French Fleet from joining the Dutch; This Diviſion of the Navy prov'd ſomewhat unfortunate to the Engliſh, for the Dutch, taking advantage of the Opportunity, engag'd the Duke of Albemarle's Squadron, being almoſt twice his number. The Duke reſolves upon an Engagement, and fights 'em with great Reſolution on the 4th of June. In this Engagement Four Dutch Ships were burnt, and a Vice-Admiral, with another of leſs value, ſunk. The Dutch taking Three Engliſh Ships, who were ſeparated from the reſt of the Fleet. The next morning the Fight is renewed, though the Dutch were now reinforced with a freſh Squadron, which made 'em double to the Engliſh. The Engagement was very obſtinate, continued till night, but the next day 'twas reſolv'd in a Council of War to ſend off the diſabled Ships, and draw off with the reſt; but Prince Rupert coming in, at the Report of the Cannon, they fall again upon the Dutch, ſink and burn ſome part of 'em, and give chace to the reſt: July the 25th the ſame Summer, Prince Rupert and the Duke of Albemarle engaged the Dutch on their own Coaſt, and after a hot Diſpute for ſome hours, the Enemy ſheer'd off, and having got behind their Banks, the Engliſh could purſue them no further. Soon after Sir Robert Holms ſails to the Vly, and burns a Hundred and fifty Sail of Merchantmen. This year, in September, a dreadful Fire happen'd in London, which, beſide an ineſtimable loſs in Goods, burnt down Thirteen thouſand Houſes. In 1667. the Kings of France and Sweden Mediate a Peace between England and Holland, and his Majeſty agrees to ſend Ambaſſadors to Breda to put an end to the Quarrel; and now the Engliſh, truſting to a Ceſſation, grow ſecure, and ſend their Guard-Ships out of the way, and the Dutch, taking advantage of the Juncture, enter Chattam River with their Fleet, break the Chain, and fall upon the King's Fleet Unrigg'd and Unmann'd, and beſides other Damage, burnt the Royal Oak, and carried off the Royal Charles. The King, notwithſtanding this Piece of Treachery, was reſolv'd to perform his Promiſe, diſpatch'd his Ambaſſadors to Breda, and concluded the Peace upon Honourable Conditions. In 1668. the Theatre at Oxford was finiſh'd at the Charge of Archbiſhop Shelden; and in 1669. the Queen Mother and the Duke of Albemarle died. The Triple League with England, Swedeland, and Holland, was concluded; and the Dutcheſs of Orleans, the King's Siſter, returns for France in the beginning of Summer 1670. and died ſoon after at St. Clou. In April 1671. Lieutenant Colonel Blood and Three more attempt the Stealing the Crown out of the Tower, and had almoſt paſt all the Sentinels before they were diſcover'd with it. The King diſengages himſelf from the Triple League, and the Exchequer is ſhut up, by the Advice, as 'twas ſaid, of the Earl of Shaftsbury. The Dutch refuſe Striking to the Kings Ships, and Affront his Majeſty by their Medals, which brings him to a Reſolution of breaking with them; Upon this his Frigats fall upon the Smyrna Fleet, and afterwards a Declaration of War is publiſh'd; And now in 1672. the Dutch are Attack'd by the Engliſh at Sea, and by the French at Land; And in the latter end of May the Engliſh Fleet commanded by the Duke, had like to have been ſurpriz'd by the Dutch in Soulbay, however cutting their Cables, and having juſt time to ſtand out to Sea, they engag'd the Enemy, and after a ſharp Diſpute of Eight Hours, made the Dutch retire. In this Action we loſt the Earl of Sandwich, with ſome other Officers, and the Royal-James was burnt; The Dutch loſt an Admiral, and had ſeveral ſunk. In 1673. there were ſeveral Sea-fights betwixt us and the Dutch, without much advantage on either ſide. This year the Duke Married the Princeſs of Modena, the Ceremony of Marriage being perform'd by the Biſhop of Oxford. Duke Hamilton is made High Commiſſioner of Scotland, and calls a Parliament there upon the 22d of November, but the Kirk Party growing troubleſome, his Majeſty's Affairs were diſappointed. The King concludes a Peace with the Dutch, and Prorogues the Engliſh Parliament. This Parliament was afterwards Prorogued from November 1675. to February 1676. The Members meeting again, debated whether this long Prorogation did not Diſſolve them, but this Diſpute was dropt by the Houſes, excepting that the Duke of Buckingham, Earls of Saliſbury, Shaftsbury, and Lord Wharton, offer'd to maintain before the Judges, that the Prorogation had Diſſolv'd the Parliament; for which theſe Four next morning were ſent to the Tower, for refuſing to Recant their Opinion, and ask Pardon of the King and Houſe of Lords. The Parliament granted a Bill of Six hundred thouſand Pounds for Building of Ships. At their next Meeting they Voted an Addreſs for a League Offenſive and Defenſive with Holland: This the King Cenſur'd as an Encroachment upon his Prerogative. Three of the Four Lords above-mentioned are ſet at Liberty upon their Petition, Shaftsbury ſtill remaining in Cuſtody. A Peace concluded with the Algerines. The Prince of Orange in 1677. comes to Whitehall, and ſoon after Marries the Lady Mary, Eldeſt Daughter to the Duke. The Duke of Lauderdale goes for Scotland, and by an Order of Council Diſarms ſome of the Mutinous Counties, which, at the Inſtigation of the Field-Preachers, were grown very Troubleſome, and had formerly broke out into a Rebellion at Pendland-Hills; and for the better Security of the Peace of that Kingdom, ſome of the Highland Forces were brought down into Places moſt turbulent and ſuſpected; where, notwithſtanding the Clamours of the Kirk-Faction, they were kept under good Diſcipline. In 1678. a Treaty was ſet a-foot at Nimeguen, where the Dutch ſurpriz'd their Allies, by making a ſeparate Peace with France. This Winter a Popiſh Plot was Voted by the Parliament at Weſtminſter, upon the Teſtimony of Titus Oates, and the Producing of Coleman's Letters: The Jeſuits, &c. who ſuffer'd upon the account of being in a Plot againſt the King's Life, declar'd their Innocency at their Death. The Parliament Preſs the Duke's Removal from the King's Preſence and Councils, and Impriſon Secretary Williamſon without his Majeſty's Knowledge; which Liberty the King Reſented to that degree, that he Diſſolv'd this Parliament, after it had continued Seventeen years. Upon the Diſſolution of this Parliament, the King Summons another; and, to remove all Pretences of Diſſatisfaction, the Duke, at his Majeſty's Command, retires into Flanders; and to carry his Compliance farther, the King alters his Privy Council, and makes the Earl of Shaftsbury Preſident in 1679. but theſe Conceſſions fail'd the King's Expectation, for this new Parliament fell upon the old Subject of Grievances, attack'd the Duke of York, (though abſent) and Vote A Bill of Excluſion. This unexpected Uſage alarm'd the King's Apprehenſions, put him upon a Diſſolution of this Parliament; though he ſummon'd another to meet in October following. While Affairs ſtood thus in England, in Scotland the Tide run higher, for this Summer Sharp, Lord Archbiſhop of St. Andrews, was barbarouſly Murther'd in his Coach, by a Party of Covenanters. This Aſſaſſination happen'd in the beginning of May, at the latter end of which began their Rebellion at Ragland, at which Place, being well Mounted and Armed, they Proclaimed the Covenant, burnt ſeveral Acts of Parliament, and afterwards fix'd a Declaration to the Market Croſs. In a ſhort time the Rebels increas'd to about Sixteen hundred Horſe and Four thouſand Foot, which in June following were defeated by the Duke of Monmouth at Bothwell-Bridge: The Slaughter was not great, nor the Purſuit vigorous, ſo that moſt of 'em eſcaping, only ſome few of the Priſoners were Executed for their Treaſon. The next year, June the 22d, the Scotch Covenanters endeavoured to renew their Rebellion, and after a Solemn Proceſſion and Singing of Pſalms, they publiſh a Paper at Sanchar, by which they diſown Charles Stewart, as they call him, in Opprobrious Language, and declare his Government forfeited for his Perjury and Breach of Covenant with God and his Church: Upon this they proceeded to Excommunicate and Depoſe his Majeſty, and Seventy Perſons took up Arms againſt him; The Chief of which were Donald Cargile, and one Hall, who were actually in the laſt Rebellion. Theſe Men Swore to each other, that if any Perſon joining with them, ſhould afterwards own or ſubmit to the King, upon any account whatſoever, the reſt ſhould Butcher the Party ſo ſubmitting; And at laſt, ſeveral of 'em being taken, and found guilty of this horrid Conſpiracy, choſe rather to ſuffer as Traytors, than own the King, or ask his Pardon. After the Rebellion at Bothwell-Bridge, the King fell ſick of a Fever at Windſor; And in 1680. his Majeſty is Crouded with Petitions for the Sitting of the Parliament; The Loyal Party, call'd, Abhorrers, declare againſt this Method, as being unlawful by the Thirteenth of Char. 2. Cap. 5. However the Commons Voted it the Subjects Right in general Terms; and this year they likewiſe Vote, That if his Majeſty ſhould come by any Violent Death, (which God forbid) they will revenge it to the utmoſt upon the Papiſts. The ſame year, January the 7th, they Vote, That whoſoever ſhould Lend the King any Money upon the Branches of the Cuſtoms, Exciſe or Hearth-Money, ſhall be adjudg'd to hinder the Sitting of Parliaments, and Reſponſible for the ſame in Parliament. The Duke of Monmouth Cabals, is outed of his Offices, and Declar'd Illegitimate by the King in Council. The Earl of Shaftsbury is remov'd from being a Privy Councellor. The Bill of Excluſion is paſs'd in the Houſe of Commons, but thrown out in the Houſe of Lords. The Lord Stafford is Tryed and Caſt by his Peers, and Executed as concern'd in the Plot. This year, being 1680. the Parliament was Prorogued on the 24th of March, and afterward Diſſolv'd by Proclamation; the King intimating his Pleaſure of Calling another in the March following. This Parliament meeting at Oxford, and having much the ſame Sentiments with the former, the King thought himſelf oblig'd to Diſſolve 'em, being apprehenſive that his Prerogative was not only in danger, but likewiſe inform'd of a Deſign to ſeize his Perſon. Upon this account Rouſe, Haines, White, Colledge, and the Earl of Shaftsbury, were committed to Priſon, Colledge and the Earl of Shaftsbury were brought to their Tryals, but notwithſtanding the ſeeming force of the Evidence, were acquitted by their Juries. However Colledge was afterwards Tryed at Oxford and Executed. The King brings a Quo Warranto againſt the Charter of London, and it being declared forfeited, (upon a full Hearing) he takes it into his own Hands. This Legal Advantage gave a turn to Affairs, and ſunk the Faction; And Shaftsbury, not likeing the Conduct of his Party, retreats to Holland. Soon after this, in 1683. the Rye-Houſe Plot, for Aſſaſſinating of the King and Duke, was diſcover'd: Keeling gives the firſt Information, and aftewards Hone, Rouſe, Bourn, and ſeveral other of the Conſpitors, confeſs the Plot. Hone was Executed for this intended Aſſaſſination; And afterwards the Lord Ruſſell and Mr. Algernon Sydney ſuffer'd for another Species of Treaſon, i. e. for Plotting to ſeize the King's Guards, and Concerting an Inſurrection. The latter, in his Speech on the Scaffold, owns himſelf engag'd in the Good Old Cauſe, and Thanks God for't. The King declares, That had he not excuſed the Duke of Monmouth from being a Witneſs, in the Matter relating to the Lord Ruſſell and Mr. Sidney, neither Mr. Hambden Jun. nor many others, had eſcap'd death. Sir Tho. Armſtrong, who had been Outlawed for High Treaſon, being ſeized in Holland, is brought to London, and Executed in 1684. Sometime before this, the Duke of Monmouth upon his Submiſſion, was, by the Duke of York's Mediation, reſtor'd to the King's Favour; And in a Letter to the King, owns himſelf concern'd in the Conſpiracy, excepting in that part of it which related to the Murther of the King and Duke. About this time ſeveral Charters were ſurrendred into the King's Hands, to prevent Republican Elections. This year, upon Monday, Febr. 2. the King fell Sick of an Apoplexy, died on the Friday following, in the 55th year of his Age, and was buried in Henry the Seventh's Chapel. *Bate's Elenchus Motuum. CHARLES the Firſt, called the Great, and commonly Charlemaine, King of France, and Emperor of the Weſt, born about the year 742. or according to others 747. at the Caſtle of Ingelheim near Mayence, was Crowned at Noyon in 768. after the death of his Father Pepin the Short or Little, and begun his Reign by the defeat of Hunaud, Son and Succeſſor of Gaifre Duke of Aquitain, and of Loupus Duke of Gaſcony, whom his Brother Carloman, that had Auſtraſia for his Share, raiſed againſt him through a Jealouſie he bore his eldeſt Brother, which ending with his Life in 771. Charlemaine became the ſole and abſolute Monarch of France. The next year he overthrew the Rebellious Saxons near Oſnabrug, and taking the advantage of this Victory, he took the Caſtle of Eresbourg, and demoliſhed the famous Temple dedicated to their falſe God Irmenſul. About this time Deſiderius, King of the Lombards, continuing his Predeceſſor's deſign of humbling the Roman Pontiffs, abus'd Pope Stephen, and Adrian his Succeſſor, who begs Charlemaine's Aſſiſtance; whereupon this Prince leads a powerful Army into Italy in 771. divides his Men into 3 Bodies, cuts Deſiderius's Army in pieces, their General Hunaul, occaſion of all this Miſchief, being Ston'd to death by the Women. After this he takes Pavia and the King in it, whom he ſends Priſoner into France; In whoſe Perſon ended the Kingdom of the Lombards in 776. 200 years after its foundation. In the mean time the Victorious Prince viſits the Pope, confirms the Gift his Father made the Church by the addition of the Territory of Sabina, the Dukedom of Spoleto and Beneventum, particularly taken notice of by Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius in his Life of Pope Adrian. After this he turns his Arms a ſecond time againſt the Saxons, whom he forc'd to embrace the Chriſtian Religion, and their King Witikind to receive Baptiſm, after they had reſiſted him 33 years. The ſame Zeal for Religion ſet Charlemain upon a Journey into Spain againſt the Saracens in 778. from whom he took Hueſca, Barcelona, Gironne, Pampelune, with ſeveral other conſiderable Places, and ſent Succours to Alphonſus the Chaſt, to aſſiſt him in ſhaking off the Saracen Yoke, which encumber'd him with a Tribute. But as he himſelf was returning from Spain with a very rich Booty, his Army was ſet upon, and ſuffered much in the narrow Paſſages of the Pyrenees by the Gaſcoigns that then liv'd on Theft and Robbery, and being aſſembled in great numbers, cut him off a great many Men and good Officers in the Rear. After this Charlemaine returns a ſecond time into Italy againſt Adalgiſus, Didier's Son, who began to be troubleſom, being put on by Taſſilon Duke of Bavaria. It was in this Journey that Pope Adrian Crown'd his Son Pepin King of Italy, and his other Son Lewis King of Germany. Afterwards, to puniſh a Third Rebellion of the Saxons, he beheads 4000 of 'em, ſubdued the Britons, vanquiſh'd Aragiſus Duke of Beneventum, and Taſſilon Duke of Bavaria, whom he confin'd to a Monaſtery, together with his Son Theodon. In 788 and 89 he quite defeated the Huns, and Sclavonians. The following years were no leſs remarkable for ſome other Victory or Monument of his Piety, until at laſt he was Crown'd Emperor at Rome in 800 by Leo III. Adrian's Succeſſor, who being abus'd by the People of that City, came to Paderborn to beg his Protection, and made him take a Third Journey, or according to others a

Fourth, into Italy. The Eaſtern Emperor Nicephorus conſented to this Choice, and agreed that the State of Venice ſhould be the Limits of both Empires. Charles took the Name of Caſar and Auguſtus the Two firſt Emperors of Rome, with the Spread and Two Headed Eagle to make the Roman and German Empire, which he then poſſeſs'd in great part, after having ſtretched the Limits of his Dominions by his continued Victories for 47 years: For to the Kingdom of France, which then comprehended that part of Germany that lies between Saxony, the Danube, and the Rhine, he added Aquitain, Gaſcony, the Country about the Pyrenees, and Catalonia, and all Italy, excepting the Lower Calabria, with Suabia, Bavaria, Franconia, all Saxony, Hungary, Tranſilvania, Croatia, and Dalmatia, except ſome Maritime Towns which he left to the Emperors of Conſtantinople, to preſerve their Friendſhip and Alliance; alſo part of Poland, and all the Country along the Baltick Sea, ſo that he became a Terrour to Neighbouring Nations, who all ſought his Friendſhip and Alliance, eſpecially Aaron the Haughty King of Perſia, who to ingratiate himſelf with him, though he deſpiſed all other Princes, ſent him great Preſents, and knowing he had great Devotion for the Holy Land and for Jeruſalem, he beſtowed 'em upon him, contenting himſelf with the Title of his Lieutenant in that Country. Thus by his Glorious Actions he gained the Veneration of all People, and ended his ſucceſsful Life at the Age of 72 years. He was of a very good Stature, good Humour'd, Liberal, and a great Enemy to Flattery and Lyes. Always when he ſat at Table, he had the Hiſtory of the Kings his Anceſtors, or ſome Book of St. Auguſtin read to him. He ſpent the Spring and Summer in War, paſs'd part of Autumn in Hunting, and gave himſelf the Winter to diſpatch the Affairs of the Government in. He collected all the Laws and Cuſtoms of all the Places that were ſubject to his Empire, and made Capitularies or Ordinances, collecting likewiſe all the Ancient Poems and Verſes, which were made upon the Noble and Military Actions of the Germans and French, deſigning 'em as Memoirs, to furniſh a Hiſtory of thoſe Nations, which he intended ſhould be written. He was a great Lover of Learning, as appears by the deſire he had to have all the Eminent Men of his time into France; and particularly he ſent for Alcuimus out of England, and made him Abbot of St. Martins of Tours: His Eſteem for Learning appear'd further, by the many Univerſities he founded, as alſo by ſome of his own Works, as Obſervations upon the Stars, &c. his Writing againſt the Hereſie of Felix of Urgel, againſt whom he aſſembled a Council as well as againſt Helipand. He was alſo Charitable, and poſſeſs'd other Vertues in an eminent degree, but his glory was nevertheleſs ſtain'd by the Diſorders of his Incontinency, for which he was afterwards Penitent. He died at Aix la Chapelle the 28th of January 814. after he was King of France 45 years 4 months and 22 days, King of Italy 41, and Emperor 13 years one month and ſome days. He had Four Lawful Wives, Hermengarde Daughter of Deſiderius King of the Lombards, which he put away the ſecond year of his Reign, ſaid to be his firſt Wife, though it may be ſeen by Pope Stephen 3d's Letter, that both Charles and Carloman were Married in their Fathers Lifetime; his others were Hildegarde, Faſtarde, and Ludgarde. He had Four Sons and Five Daughters by Hildegarde. The Sons were Charles, Pepin, Lewis the Debonnaire, and Lothairius, theſe laſt were Twins, Lothairius died young, Charles King of Eaſtern France or Auſtraſia, in 811. and Pepin died in 810. ſo that Lewis inherited all. The Daughters died all young, excepting one who liv'd to be Married to the Count of Angilbert who was afterwards Abbot of St.Riquier. Paul. Diacon. Baronius. Eginhard. Ado Viem. &c.

CHARLES the Second, call'd the Bald King of France, and afterwards Emperor, was youngeſt Son to Lewis the Debonnaire, and his only Child by Judith his Second Wife, Daughter of Velfe Count of Bavaria, he was born at Francfort upon Mein the 13th of June 823. and ſucceeded his Father in 840. The year after he join'd his Brother Lewis, and in the Plains of Fontenay in Auxerrois overthrew his other Brother Lothairius, and Pepin that deſigned to invade both their Patrimonies. This War ended by an Agreement that was of no long continuance; for the frequent Rebellions of the Subjects of theſe Ambitious Brothers ſtill kindled greater Diviſions, which did not end but by Lothairius's retiring from the World, and becoming a Fryar, and by Lewis's death, whoſe Children were ſomewhat troubleſom to Charles. Before this Lothairius King of Lorrain, and Son to the Emperor of that Name, died at Plaiſance in Italy, and Charles was Crown'd King at Mets by Hincmar Archbiſhop of Rheims in 869. after which he ſubdued the Britons, whoſe Duke uſurp'd the Title of King; but was forc'd to yield the Normans Neuſtria in 875. the ſame year that he himſelf was Crown'd Emperor by Pope John VIII. after the death of his other Nephew Lewis. He did not enjoy this Honour any long time; for endeavouring to become Maſter of Italy, under colour of ſupporting the Intereſt of his Niece Hermengarde, Boſon this Princeſſes Husband thwarted his Deſign, and forc'd him to return to France, where he died at Briord in Breſſe the 5th or 6th of October 877. and was buried at Nantua, whence his Corps was removed ſeven years after to the Abby of St. Denys. He was thought to be Poiſon'd as he came back from Italy by the treachery of his Phyſician call'd Sedecias, a Jew by Nation. Ado Vienn. Sigebert. Du Tillet. &c.

CHARLES the Third, through the weakneſs of his Brain call'd the Simple, born of Queen Adelaide the 17th of September 879. after his Father Lewis the Liſper's death. Charles the Burly, and then Eudes, Sons to Robert Sirnam'd the Strong, govern'd the Kingdom during his Minority, and are for this only reaſon put in the number of Kings by ſeveral Hiſtorians; but at laſt Foulques Archbiſhop of Rheims, a Prelate of great Courage, undertook to make him be Crown'd King at the Age of 14 years, Crown'd him in 893. and acquainted Pope Formoſus and the Emperor Arnoul thereof, as may be ſeen in Flodoard's Hiſtory of Rheims. He began his Reign with a double Peace with the Duke of Lorrain; and Raoul or Rollo, Chief of the Normans, who turn'd Chriſtian, was Chriſten'd Robert, and Married Giſle the Kings Daughter. In the mean time they whom he unadviſedly made Governors of the Places he had gain'd in Lorrain, made themſelves abſolute Maſters of them; and Haganon his Favourite abuſing his Goodneſs, alienated the Affection both of the Nobility and Common ſort from him, ſo that they quite forſook him at Soiſſons in 920. Whereupon Robert Count of Paris, Brother to Eudes and Hugues, Capets Grandfather by the Father's ſide, gets himſelf Crown'd King at St. Remy of Rheims the 29th of June 922. and at the Head of a numerous Army gives Charles Battle the 15th of the following June, but is kill'd, ſome ſay by King Charles himſelf, who profited ſo little by this Advantage, that his Enemies had time enough to raiſe Raoul of Burgundy, and Herbert II. of this Name Count of Vermandois, againſt him, who drew him to St. Quintin upon Somme, where they made him Priſoner, whence he was carried to Caſtle Thierri upon the Marne, and thence to Peronne, where he died after ſix years Confinement the 7th of October 929. forſaken by all his Subjects in his Diſtreſs; which made ſome Authors call him a Martyr. He was buried in St. Fours Church in Peronne, after he had lived 50 years, whereof he Reign'd 30 before his Impriſonment.

CHARLES the Fourth, call'd the Fair, King of France and Navarre, was Third Son of Philip, bore the Title of Count of Marche whilſt his Brothers Lewis and Philip the Tall or Long lived, to which laſt he ſucceeded in 1321. about which time he took alſo the Stile of King of Navarre, which fell to him by his Mother Jean Queen of Navarre, Daughter to Henry I. and Blanche of Artois. In the beginning of his Reign he made a general Search for Traitors, and Confiſcated their Eſtates. Afterwards he received Homage from Lewis II. Count of Flanders, and being diſſatisfied with Edward II. of England, for not aſſiſting at his Coronation, and taking ill that his Seneſchal of Bourdelois had Garriſon'd a Caſtle in the Lands of France, he ſent his Uncle Charles of Valois to take in all the Places that belong'd to the Engliſh in Guyenne in 1324. until the Council of England thought fit to ſend Queen Iſabelle, Charles's Siſter, into France, with her eldeſt Son Edward, to do Homage for Guienne, the County of Ponthieu, and to Negotiate a Peace, which ſucceeded. After this the Pope profer'd this King the Empire, which he refus'd, and ſoon after fell ill, and died at Bois de Vincennes in 1327 without Iſſue Male. Bellforêt. Paul. Æmil. L. 8.

CHARLES the Fifth, called, The Wiſe and Eloquent, eldeſt Son of John and Bonne of Luxemburg, born in the Caſtle of Bois de Vincennes in 1337. and the firſt that took the Quality of Dauphin, a Title which belongs to the Eldeſt Son of France, by Humbert's leaving it to them. He was alſo Duke of Normandy, and was Regent during King John his Father's Impriſonment, to whom he ſucceeded in 1364. at the Age of 27. His Reign laſted 16 years, 5 months, and 8 days, during which time, though he ſeldom took the Field himſelf, but carried on the War by his Brothers and Generals, he gave the Engliſh more Trouble than any of his Predeceſſors; which ſhews that great Buſineſſes are carried on better ſometimes by a good and cunning Management, than by Force and Power, and that the gaining of a Battle is very often as much an effect of Prudent Meaſures taken in a Cloſet, as of the Courage of thoſe that Fight. He firſt of all gains his Brother Philip the Bold of his ſide, gives him Burgundy for Appanage, and makes him Marry the Heireſs of Flanders. Bertrand of Gueſclin, and the Mareſchal of Boucicaut won him the Battle of Cocherel in Normandy in 1364. againſt Charles Evreux King of Navarre, Sirnamed the Bad, and the formidableſt of his Enemies. Then he ſent his Army into Britany, to ſupport Charles of Blois againſt John of Montfort, and afterwards into Spain, to aſſiſt Henry Count of Triſtea mare mare againſt Peter the Cruel, who cauſed his Wiſe Blanche of Bourbon to be Strangled to pleaſe his Concubine. In the mean time the continual Complaints the People of Guienne made againſt the King of England, with an Accuſation of Felony given in againſt him to the Court of Peers, which he refuſed to Anſwer to, put Charles upon Confiſcating all his Lands in France. And Gueſclin at his return out of Spain being made Lord High Conſtable, defeats Robert Knole's Army near Pont Valain in Maine, drove the Engliſh out of Berry, Touraine, Anjou, Limoſin, and Rovergue, gain'd the Battle of Chizé near Niort in Poitou in 1370 ſo that the Engliſh Intereſt began to ſink very low, eſpecially after the defeat of their Fleet upon the Coaſts of Rochelle, where the Earl of Pembrook that commanded it, with 8000 more of his Men, were made Priſoners. Theſe with many more were the Succeſſes of this Wiſe Prince's great Care and good Management of Affairs. He died in 1380. as he was forming other Deſigns. It was ſaid that the King of Navarre got him Poiſoned ſome years before, but that the violence of the Venom was abated by an Iſſue which the Emperor's Phyſicians ordered to be cut in his Arm to give it a vent, which drying up occaſioned his death. His Body was buried at St. Denys, his Heart at Roan, and Entrails at the Abby of Maubiſſon near Pontoiſe. He was Married to Jean Daughter of Peter Duke of Bourbon, by whom he had Charles the Sixth, who ſucceeded him, and ſeveral other Children. Froiſſart, Mezeray.

CHARLES the Sixth, Sirnam'd the Belov'd, was born at Paris the 3d of December 1368. ſucceeded his Father at Twelve years of Age; his Reign was of 42 years, but unfortunate, for Lewis Duke of Anjou Regent, and Chief of the Council, managed the Revenues very ill, imploying a great part to forward his Deſigns on the Kingdom of Naples, where he himſelf and part of the French Nobility periſhed in 1384. and the extraordinary Taxes that he laid upon the People was the Seed of the Rebellion that begun thus; A Farmer of the King's Revenues at Paris, forcing an Herb Woman to pay a Denier, i. e. the Twelfth part of a Penny, for a Bunch of Watercreſſes, the Rabble which ſhe drew together with her Outcries went in a Body, and forc'd the Town-Houſe for Arms, and took from thence 3 or 4000 Iron Hammers, whence this Faction was term'd the Hammerers; This Sedition begun at the ſame time at Roan, Orleans, and ſome other Cities, and would have had very bad Conſequences had not the King taken ſpeedy Care to ſuppreſs it, by putting the Chief Actors to death, and impoſing heavy Fines on the reſt. This he did at his return from Flanders, whither he went in Perſon to Chaſtiſe thoſe of Ghent, whom Philip of Arteville had rais'd againſt Lewis of Marle their Count; theſe he beat at the Battle of Roſebeck in 1382. where they loſt above 25000 Men. and ſoon after the Towns they had poſſeſſed themſelves of ſubmitted to the right Owner, who dying in 1384. left this rich Inheritance to his Daughter Margaret, Married to Philip the Bold Duke of Burgundy, who ſoon appeas'd the Troubles that aroſe in the Father in Law's Reign. This King forc'd the Duke of Gueldres to his Duty in 1388. made a Peace with the Engliſh, and in 1391. ratified the League his Father made with Robert King of Scotland, aſſiſted the Genoueſes againſt the Pyrates of Africa, who quite ruined the Commerce of the Mediterranean. Then he marches his Forches into Britany againſt Duke John of Montfort, for ſheltering Peter of Craon, who had murder'd his High Conſtable Oliver of Cliſſon; but as he was going out of Mans in the beginning of Auguſt, the violent heat of the Sun diſcompos'd his Brain, which Evil was increas'd by a Fright occaſion'd by a Disfigured and Ghaſtly Fellow's coming up to him, taking his Bridle. and ſpeaking thus, Stop King, whither go you? you are betrayed, and then diſappearing preſently: To crown his Misfortunes, a Page that carried his Lance being ſleepy, ran the Point by meer chance againſt a Head-piece that another carried before him, which confirm'd the King in his Belief that he was going to be deliver'd up to his Enemies, and put him in ſuch a violent Fit of Phrenſy that he ſounded away, but he came to himſelf, and was pretty well after, until being at a Maſquerade made to Divert him, he relaps'd into his Phrenſy, being frighted by a Fire that took in one of the Actors Pitch'd Garments. In 1394 he made four years Truce with the Engliſh, ſent Sigiſmond of Luxembourg, King of Hungary, a powerful Aſſiſtance againſt the Turks, who won the Battle of Nicopolis in 1396. He received the Emperor Wenceſlaus at Rheims in 1398. and two years after Manuel Paleologus Emperor of the Eaſt. But ſoon after his Kingdom was unfortunately divided into the Factions of Orleans and Burgundy, for after Charles the Firſt's Misfortune the Dukes of Berry and Burgundy declaring themſelves Regents, enjealous'd the Duke of Orleans, the King's Brother, who pretended to that Honour himſelf. This Animoſity grew to that height after the King's ſecond Fit, that John Count of Nevers, who ſucceeded his Father the Duke of Burgundy, got the Duke of Orleans murder'd in 1407. which divided the Kingdom more and more, and gave the Engliſh leiſure to land. In the mean time Charles of Albret, Lord High Conſtable, loſes the Battle of Azincourt, call'd the Unhappy Day or Battel, wherein Four Princes of the Blood, and the Flower of the French Nobility, were loſt or taken Priſoners: Nor did their Misfortunes end there, for the Engliſh carried all before 'em, got Roan, all Normandy and Maine, whilſt the Duke of Burgundy, together with the Queen, fomented the Diſorders of the State; for this Prince making uſe of the King's Authority, committed moſt horrid murders at Paris, where in 1418. he maſſacred the Lord High Conſtable of Armagnac, the Chancellor, and others which he ſuſpected Enemies to his Faction; but theſe Crimes were ſoon puniſhed in his own Perſon, for the Dauphin Charles Duke of Berry, having drawn him under pretext of a Conference to Montereau-faut-yonne, he was kill'd there in 1419. by Tannegui du Chaſtel. His Son Philip the Good, to revenge his death, makes an Agreement with Henry V. King of England, perſuades the King to declare the Dauphin incapable of inheriting the Crown, which he makes him promiſe to leave after his death to that King Edward who had Married Catharine of France, Charles's youngeſt Daughter, and was thereupon declared Regent of the Kingdom in 1420. which made the Dauphin go into Anjou, and occaſion'd a hotter War than ever. Henry V. died the 22d of Auguſt, and King Charles the 21ſt of October of the ſame year 1422. being 52 years of Age. Froiſſard. Du Bellay.

CHARLES the Seventh, Sirnamed the Victorious or Well-ſerv'd, Son of Charles VI. was born at Paris the 22d of February 1403. took the Quality of Regent in 1418. and got himſelf Crown'd at Poictiers after his Father's death, whilſt his Mother and ſome others proclaim'd Henry VI. Son to King Henry V. of England and Catharine of France, King. The Duke of Burgundy worſted his Army at the Battel of Mons in Vimica. The Engliſh Maſters of the Chiefeſt Provinces of the Kingdom, term'd him but King of Bourges, becauſe in the beginning he kept his Reſidence at Bourges in Berri. The firſt years of his Reign were very unhappy, for he was beaten at the Battel of Crevant near Auxerre in 1423. at that of Verneuil at Perche in 1424. loſt that of Jeanville and Beauce in 1427. ſo that though he gain'd that of Gravelle in Anjou in 1423. and the Battel of Montargis in 1427. his Enemies eſtabliſhed themſelves more and more every day, until at laſt to crown their Victories they lay Siege to Orleans, and preſſed it ſo hard, that the King and the Count of Dunois that defended it, began to think of retreating into Dauphine, when a young Girl about 18 years of Age, called Joan of Arc, and afterwards the Virgin or Maid of Orleans, preſented her ſelf before the King, and beat the Engliſh from before the Town, on Sunday the 8th of May, 1429. They were alſo worſted at ſeveral other Places, and loſt the Cities of Troye, Chalons, and Rheims, where Charles was Anointed and Crown'd by Renaud of Chartres Archbiſhop of the Town, and his own Chancellor. Theſe Succeſſes were followed with many others; for the King overthrew the Prince of Orange at the Battel of Anthon in Dauphine; but the famous Maiden was not ſo happy, for after ſhe was wounded at the Siege of Paris, ſhe was taken before Compeigne, led to Roan, and burn'd as a Witch in 1431. Yet this did not re-eſtabliſh the Affairs of the Engliſh, which began to decline very much, for Charles having pacified the Duke of Burgundy by the Treaty of Arras in 1435. the Pariſians rid themſelves of the Strangers, and ſided with him, as did ſeveral other Cities after the Example of the Capital. The King alſo ſuppreſs'd ſome Rebellions that were form'd under the Authority of the Dauphin his Son, and under the Name of the Praguerie in 1440. carried Pontoiſe by Aſſault the year after; and when he made a Truce with the Engliſh at Tours in 1444. he turn'd his Arms againſt the Town of Metz which he gain'd; and then the War being renewed between him and the Engliſh, he makes himſelf Maſter of Formigni in 1450. ſoon after of Roan, and of all Normandy; and alſo of Guienne after the Battel of Caſtillon in 1453. ſo that the Engliſh having loſt their General Talbot, that ſame year, loſt all with him, excepting Calais, which they kept in ſpight of what the French could do, until the Duke of Guiſe took it above 100 years after in 1558. This King lov'd extreamly a young Woman called the Fair Agnes, which ſometimes made him neglect important Buſineſs; Upon this and ſome other Diſcontentments, Lewis, his eldeſt Son, went away into Burgundy, where he ſtaid near upon fourteen Years, until the King his Father died in 1461. the 39th year of his Reign, and 58th of his Age. The occaſion of his Death was his fear of being Poiſon'd, which kept him from eating any thing for ſeven days time; this ſo dried and conſum'd his Humours, that the Paſſages being clos'd he could not afterwards ſwallow. It was he that made the Pragmatique Sanction or Conſtitution at Bourges in 1438. and was the firſt of the French Kings that made Alliance with the Swiſſers. Monſtrelet, Mezeray, &c.

CHARLES the Eighth, called the Affable and Courteous, Son of Lewis XI. and Charlotte of Savoy, born at Amboiſe, in 1470. Succeeded his Father at the Age of thirteen Years in 1483. and was Crown'd the year after at Rheims, by the Archbiſhop Peter de Laval, but being under Age at his acceſſion to the Crown, his eldeſt Siſter Anne of France, Wife to Peter Lord of Beaujeu, and afterwards Duke of Bourbon, was declared Regent of the Kingdom, according to the King's Laſt Will and Teſtament. This ſo troubled Lewis Duke of Orleans, and firſt Prince of the Blood, that he joins ſome other diſſatisfied Lords, and all together raiſe a numerous Army, which was defeated by Lewis II. Lord of Tremouille, and Lieutenant-General of the King's Army, in 1486. at the Battel of St. Aubin of Cornier in Britany, and this Rebellion ſuppreſs'd. In the mean time Charles ſends back Margaret Daughter to the Emperor Maximilian, to whom he was Contracted, and Marries in 1491 Anne of Britany, which the Archduke of Auſtria had himſelf Married by his Proxy. After this he makes a Treaty of Peace with Henry VII. King of England that ſame Year, and another in 1493. with the Emperor Maximilian, and was perſuaded to yield to Ferdinand V. King of Arragon and Caſtile, the Counties of Rouſſillon and Cerdagne, upon Condition he ſhould not aſſiſt Ferdinand King of Naples, againſt whom Charles raiſed Men at the requeſt of Sforza who had uſurp'd Milan. His own Claim to the Kingdom of Naples was, that Charles Heir to King René had made over his Right to it to Lewis XI. ſo he ſets out with his Army from Grenoble in 1494. paſſed into Italy, and at Turin borrows the Rings of the Dutcheſs of Savoy, which he pawn'd ; then he march'd to Rome, where he arrived the laſt day of the year ; Pope Alexander VI. though no well Wiſher to France, was forc'd to give him the Inveſtiture of the Kingdom of Naples, and Crown him Emperor of Conſtantinople. After this King Charles marches from Rome the 28th of January 1495. takes Capoua, and underſtanding that King Alfonſus made his eſcape by Sea, enters Naples the 22d of February, and made himſelf abſolute Maſter of this Kingdom in leſs than four months, leaving Gilbert of Montpenſier Governor there, with 4000 French, whoſe Inſolence ſoon made the Neapolitans Revolt. And as Charles returned home, the Italians very Jealous of his Succeſs, deſign'd to cut him off, for which purpoſe the Pope, Venetians, and Sforza Duke of Milan, leagu'd themſelves with the Emperor and King of Spain, and made up an Army of 40000 Men, through which he forc'd his way with his, conſiſting of not above 8000 Combatants, and gain'd the famous Battle of Fornove in 1495. reliev'd his Couſin the Duke of Orleans beſieged at Novaro ; and all this with the loſs of no more than 80 Men of his ſide. He had thoughts of a ſecond Journey into Italy, but chang'd his deſign, and died at Amboiſe his Birth-place, ſome ſay of an Apoplexy, as he was looking down from a high Gallery into the Ditch where the Courtiers were at Tenis ; others ſay that he died of a hurt he receiv'd by knocking his Forehead againſt a Door ; however he died in 1498. the Twenty ſeventh year of his Age, after a Reign of 14 years, 7 months, and 9 days, leaving no Children by his Wife Anne of Britany, who Married Lewis the Twelfth his Succeſſor. Guichardin. Comines.

CHARLES the Ninth, Second Son of Henry II. and of Catharine de Medicis, was born at St. Germain in Laye in 1550. bore the Title of Duke of Orleans until he ſucceeded his Brother Francis II. at Ten or Eleven years of Age, and was Crowned and Anointed in 1561. at Rheims by the Cardinal of Lorraine, who had perform'd the ſame Ceremony to his Father and Brother. His Mother got her ſelf declared Regent, and made Anthony of Bourbon Lieutenant General of the Kingdom, not neglecting at the ſame time a cunning Management of the Intereſts of the Princes of Bourbon and the Guiſes. She ordered the Aſſembly of the Notables at St. Germain, and the Conference of Poiſſi in 1561. where the Diſputes of Religion did but irritate both Parties more and more againſt each other. Nor did the Edict of January 1562. give any Satisfaction to the Factious Princes who ſeized on Orleans, Lyons, Bourges, Poictiers, Angers, and ſeveral other Places : The Prince of Conde was at the Head of the Hugonots : But were beaten at the Battle of Dreux the 19th of December 1562. by the Conſtable, Anne of Montmorency the King's General. Both Generals were taken Priſoners, Montmorency by the Admiral of Chaſtillon his Nephew, a famous Proteſtant, and the Prince of Conde by the Duke of Guiſe, who was afterwards kill'd at the Siege of Orleans the 20th of February 1563. by Poltrot Lord of Mere, a Hugonot. After this the whole Kingdom was but a perfect Butchery, being the Theatre of War and Diviſion ; Roan was twice beſieged by the Royaliſts to no purpoſe, the King of Navarre was killed at the laſt of the Two Sieges in 1562. After which there was a Peace made the 18th of the following May, which did but palliate and not cure the Evil ; The King being declared Major, made a Peace with the Engliſh ; and going a Progreſs through the Kingdom, had a Conference at Bayonne with his Siſter the Queen of Spain in 1565. At his return, an Aſſembly of the States was held at Moulins in 1566. but the Hugonots attempting to ſeize upon his Perſon the 27th of September, as he came back from Meaux to Paris, this Enterprize ſet all in a Flame again ; The Proteſtants run to Arms, and the Conſtable defeated them at St. Denys in 1567. They were afterwards beaten by Henry Duke of Anjou, the King's Brother, at the Battel of Jarnac, where the Prince of Conde was killed in 1569. He likewiſe had the better of 'em at Moncontour in Poictou the ſame year. To give ſome ſort of Remedy to theſe Diſorders, the Marriage of the King of Navarre, afterwards Henry the Great, with Margaret the King's Siſter, was Propoſed and Solemnized. After the Performance of the Marriage Ceremonies, Admiral Coligni, Chief of the Hugonots, was wounded, and a little after, he was the firſt that was begun with at the Bloody Maſſacre on St. Bartholomew, which then happen'd on a Sunday. The King now ſuffering himſelf to make uſe of violent Expedients to deſtroy the Hugonots. This Slaughter was horrible at Paris and all over France, whither there was Orders ſent to fall upon 'em at the ſame day and hour ; However this Remedy, as they meant it, did but irritate the Evil. This Maſſacre at Paris was a great Blemiſh upon this King's Reign, though he was puſht upon it by other People more than by his own inclination ; for afterwards reflecting upon the unhappy Conſequences of this rough Expedient, he was much diſpleas'd with the Adviſers of it, who were govern'd more, in their Advice, by particular Animoſity and Ambition, than by any regards to their Prince's Intereſt, or the Peace of the Kingdom ; and therefore he had reſolv'd, if he had lived longer, to have govern'd by himſelf ; Declaring upon his Death-bed the Miſerable Condition of a Prince, who coming to the Crown in his Minority, was oblig'd to be Govern'd by his Miniſters. He died the 30th of May in 1574. not without ſuſpicion of being Poiſon'd. He was ſucceeded by his Brother the King of Poland, who was Henry the Third. Thuan. Hiſt. Davila. Mezeray, &c.

CHARLES the Burley, or Fat, which ſome will have King of France, becauſe he Governed the Kingdom, after Carloman's Death, during Charles the Simple's Minority, was third Son of Lewis I. King of Germany. He was made Emperor in 881. Crowned by Pope John VIII. and ſucceeded his Brother Lewis the Young, who was King of Franconia. The beginning of his Reign was ſucceſsful, by the Defeat of the Normans ; but afterwards, having loſt the uſe of all his Members, and being rendred incapable of doing any thing, he was depoſed in an Aſſembly held at Tribur, in 887. and reduced to ſo low a Condition, that he had ſcarce whereby to ſubſiſt, having but an inconſiderable Penſion from his Nephew Arnoul, to whom he had left the Empire. This hard Uſage broke his Heart ſoon after ; for he died the 13th of January, 888. Some ſay he was ſtrangled in a Village of Suabia ; however, his Body was carried to the Abbey of Richenone, upon the Lake of Conſtance, where his Epitaph is yet to be ſeen. He left no Children by his Lawful Wives, but had a Baſtard called Bernard, whom he recommended to the Emperor Arnoul. Sigebert, Otho Friſingen.

CHARLES Martel, Major of the Court or Palace, and Prince of France, was Son to Pepin Heriſtel, deſcended of Ferreol, Præfectus Prætorio of the Gauls. After his Father's Death, Plectrude his Stepmother got him confined at Cologne ; but he was ſet at liberty ſoon after, in 715. and began to make War againſt Mainfroy, Major of King Chilperick II.'s Palace or Court, defeated him the 21ſt of March, 717. at the Battel of Vinciac near Cambray, and at the Fight of Soiſſons the next year. After this he made himſelf Maſter of the Government of France, overthrew the Saxons in three ſeveral Engagements, and then the Germans, Bavarians, and Noricians, in 728. and alſo Eudes, Duke of Aquitain, and the Saracens, to whom he gave a memorable Defeat upon St. Martin's Day near Tours, in a Plain between the Loire and Cher, killing them 100000, with their King Abderamus. Some ſay this hapned in 726. but the beſt Chronicles put it in 732. After this he took Burgundy, made himſelf Maſter of Aquitain, after the Death of Eudes, and took the Field a ſecond time againſt the Saracens, who had returned into France, beat them out of Avignon and the Lower Languedoc, and returned victorious, after he had defeated King Amormacha's Army upon the River of Berre, in the Valley of Corbiere. He beat theſe Barbarians once more out of Avignon, and drove the Duke of Mouron out of Marſeilles and Provence, for being the occaſion of their coming back again. He died at Creſſi upon Oiſe in 741. being 50 or 55 years of Age, whereof he Governed 26. His Martial Inclination got him the Name of Martel. His firſt Wife, called Rothrude, left him Carloman, Duke and Prince of the French ; Pepin King of France ; and Chiltrude, Wife of Odilon, Duke of Bavaria : His ſecond Wife, called Sunilulda, bore him Griſon. Odericus Vitalis. Mezeray, &c.

CHARLES of France, Count of Valois, Alençon, Chartres, Anjou, and Maine, Peer of France, and youngeſt Son of Philip the Bold, was born in 1270. and afterwards Sirnamed Defender of the Church. He was a King's Son, Brother to another, Unkle to three, and Father of a King, but was not one himſelf: For he was Son to K. Philip the Bold. Brother to Philip the Fair, Unkle to Lewis the Mutinous, Philip the Tall, and Charles the Fair, and Father to Philip of Valois, which Name he has given to the firſt collateral Branch that Reigned in the Third Race 260 years; though this cannot be ſaid very well, by reaſon that the Kings, who Reigned between Lewis XII. and Henry IV. were of the Branch of Orleans. However, Pope Martin IV. inveſted Charles of Valois in the Kingdom of Arragon; but he quitted the Title, for the ſake of the Publick Good and Peace. He made War in Guienne in 1295. and afterwards againſt the Flemins in 1299. took the Count's two Sons Priſoners, and ſoon afterwards paſſed into Italy, to ſupport the Church and King of Sicily, and took the Title of Emperor of Conſtantinople, by right of his ſecond Wife Catharine of Courtenay. Pope Boniface VIII. created him Vicar and Defender of the Church, Count of Romania, and Peace-maker of Tuſcany, after he had wiſely ſuppreſſed the Differences that divided the Florentines into the Factions of the Blacks and Whites. He baniſhed ſome of the firſt, amongſt others, the Poet Dantes Aligeri, who, to revenge himſelf, writ bitterly againſt the Count and Court of France. After this, the Count, upon an Agreement between him and Charles II. King of Sicily, paſſes into this Iſland againſt Frederic, who, frightned by the Fame of his Arms, did not ſtay his coming, but quitted all his Conqueſts of Apuleia and Calabria, and ſought for Peace, which was concluded in 1302. After which, Charles, diſſatisfied with Pope Boniface VIII. who promiſed to procure him the Empire of the Weſt, but got it for, and confirmed it upon Albert Duke of Auſtria, returns into France, and aſſiſted in 1305. at the Coronation of Pope Clement V. at Lyons. He was alſo employed in the Reigns of his three Nephews, and ſent by Charles the Fair againſt the King of England in Guienne, where he ſubdued all the Country between the Rivers Dordogne and Garonne.

CHARLES the Firſt, King of Spain. See Charles V. Emperor.

CHARLES, Prince of Spain, known by the Name of Dom Carlos, Son of Philip II. and Mary of Portugal, was born in 1545. In the Treaty of Peace begun at Caſtle Cambreſis, there was talk of marrying him to Elizabeth of France, Daughter of Henry II. and the Match was then, or ſoon after, agreed upon; but Queen Mary of England dying much about this time, in 1558. his Father, King Philip, married Elizabeth himſelf, which the young Prince reſented very much. He was of a Melancholick, Violent, and Jealous Humour, carried a Caſe of very curious Piſtols always about him, and never ſlept but with naked Swords and Fire-arms under his Pillow. His great Ambition to Command, made his Father ſuſpect he might undertake ſomething to compaſs his Deſire; wherefore when he was told that the Prince condoled the miſerable Condition of the Flandrians and Dutch, and excuſed their Rebellion, he preſently concluded that his Deſign was to ſteal away into the Low-Countries; and therefore ſeizes him in the Night-time, diſcharges his ordinary Train, gets him guarded, and cloathed all in Black, orders his Bed and Furniture to be taken away, leaving him a kind of Rowling, or little Camp-Bed, only with a ſorry Quilt. This Uſage put Dom Carlos into ſuch Deſpair, that he caſt himſelf into the Fire; at another time almoſt choaked himſelf with a Diamond; but being prevented, he faſted two whole days, and then drunk ſo much cold Water, that he almoſt killed himſelf. A little after this, King Philip got him poiſoned, or, as others ſay, ſtrangled: However, he died the 24th of July, 1568. Some think that it was Jealouſie that put the King upon this Extremity, when he had diſcovered the Prince's Love to the Queen, and hers to him; which ſeems the more likely, becauſe this Princeſs died alſo the third of the following October, not without ſuſpicion of being poiſoned. It's ſaid, That the Prince complained much of the Duke of Alva, Dom John of Auſtria, and ſome others, who, he ſaid, miſrepreſented him to his Father, of whom he begged his Life with a great deal of Submiſſion, but not baſely or meanly; to which the ſevere Father returned this Anſwer, in ſhewing him his Arm, When I have any bad Blood, I always get it drawn out; and that it was this that put him quite into deſpair. Thuan. Strada de Bello Belgico.

CHARLES the Second, King of Spain, born at Madrid the 6th of November, 1661. and ſucceeded his Father Philip IV. in 1665. which Philip, at his Death, left Six Privy Councellors to aſſiſt the Queen Dowager, Anne-Mary of Auſtria, his Wife, in her Regency, during her Son's Minority. Charles took the Government upon him, and was declared a Major in 1676. He had two Wives, Mary-Louiſa, of the Houſe of Orleans, married in 1679. and Mariana, Princeſs of Newburgh, in 1690. He had no Iſſue by neither Venter. He died Octob. 21. 1700. in the 39th year of his Age.

CHARLES, Sirnamed Martel, the firſt of this Name, Son to Charles II. called the Lame, King of Naples and Sicily, and Count of Provence, was born in 1272. and came to the Crown in 1290. becauſe his Mother, Mary of Hungary, Daughter to Stephen V. was Siſter to Ladiſlaus IV. who died that very ſame year without Iſſue; but could not take Poſſeſſion of the Kingdom, becauſe Andrew, Sirnamed the Venetian, Queen Mary's Kinſman, was enthroned by the Hungarians. The Emperor Rodolphus obſerving this Diviſion, deſigned to get the Crown from both, for his own Son Albert, Archduke of Auſtria, until Pope Nicholas IV. who had Crowned Charles by a Cardinal Legate, acquainted him by Eugubinus and Eſinus, his Nuncio's, That he could not pretend to a Kingdom that was under the Protection of the Holy See. Upon this, Rodolphus ſubmitted, and married his Daughter Clemence to Charles, who came to take Poſſeſſion of the Kingdom, whereof Andrew always kept part. He died in 1301. leaving Charles II. his Succeſſor, and other Children by Clemence of Hapſpurg, his Wife. Bonfinius.

CHARLES, the firſt of this Na[illegible]e, King of Navarre. See Charles IV. King of France, Sirnamed the Fair.

CHARLES the Second, called the Bad, King of Navarre, and Count of Eureux, &c. Son to Philip, Count of Eureux, and of Jean of France, Daughter to King Lewis X. called the Mutinous, and to whom the States gave the Crown of Navarre, after the Death of her Unkles, Philip the Tall and Charles the Fair. He was Crowned at Pampelune, in 1349. and came four years after into France, with a Train of Miſeries, which his Wit, Eloquence, Boldneſs, and Addreſs, very bad Qualities, when joined to ſuch an Humour as his was, continued a long time; for he got Charles de la Cerda of Spain, Conſtable of France, and King John's Favourite, ſtabb'd, in 1353. at the Caſtle of Aigle in Normandy; made frequent Alliances with England againſt France, eſpecially when King John was taken and carried into England, and deſigned to Poiſon Charles V. called the Wiſe, who, when but Dauphin, took him Priſoner: But miſcarrying in this Deſign, he takes his Meaſures ſo, that he poiſoned his Brother-in-Law Gaſton Phœbus, Count of Foix, through the help of his Son Gaſton, who innocently gives his Father the Poiſon, which he thought was a Love-Potion to make him ſend for his Mother Agnes, which the Count had ſent away to this ſame Charles her Brother: But notwithſtanding the young Prince acted with a good Intention, void of all Malice, yet he was accuſed, and died in Priſon. At laſt, by God's Juſt Puniſhment, the Prince that cauſed ſo much Diſorder and Heat, was himſelf burned alive; for, being wrapped up in Cloth that he got ſteeped in Strong-waters and Brimſtone, to revive his natural Heat, much weakned by his looſe and diſorderly Life, or as a Cure againſt his Scurvy and Leproſie, the Cloth took fire, and he was ſcorched or broiled to the very Bones, whereof he died three days after, in the year 1386. being then Fifty five years of Age, and leaving ſome Children, as Charles the Third, his Succeſſor, &c. *Froiſard, Lib.*3. Paul. Æmil. &c.

CHARLES the Third, called the Noble, and another Solomon, was born at Mantes in 1361. and in 1386. ſucceeded his Father, and was Crowned at Pampelune in 1389. after which, he Governed his Subjects with ſo much Juſtice, good Conduct, and Mildneſs, that he deſerved the Title of Noble and Wiſe. He made a Treaty of Peace, in 1404. with Charles VI. of France, who for his ſake erected the Lordſhip or Lands of Nemours into a Dutchy and Peerage. This Charles built the Caſtles of Teſſala and Olite, where he died in 1425. after a Reign of thirty nine years, nine months, and ſeven days. *Mariana, Lib.*18 &c.

CHARLES of France, the firſt of this Name, King of Naples and Sicily, Son to King Lewis VIII. Sirnamed the Lion, and Brother to St. Lewis, was born in 1220. and married Beatrix, Fourth Daughter and Heireſs of Raimond Berenger, Count of Provence; by virtue of which Marriage, his Brother gave him the County of Anjou and Country of Maine. He followed this King to the War of the Holy Land, and at his return reduced ſome Towns of Provence, which had revolted in his abſence. After which, having had a Grant of the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily, from Pope Urban IV. and Clement IV. he went thither in 1266. and received the Crown from Raoul, Cardinal of Chevrieres, and Legate of the Holy See, after the bloody and glorious Victory he gained over the Troops of Manfroy, Baſtard-Son to Frederick II. in the Plains of Benevent, where this Manfroy himſelf was killed. After this, he beat Conradin in 1268. near the Lake Celano, took him, and his Couſin Frederick, laſt of the Houſe of Auſtria, Priſoners, and cauſed both their Heads to be cut off at Naples. The Sicilians, to puniſh this excuſeleſs Cruelty, maſſacred all the French, as they were at Veſpers, or Evening-Song, on Eaſter Sunday, in 1282. whence this Butchery was called the Sicilian Evening-Prayer.

Charles made a ſecond Voyage into Africa, and at his return was made Titular King of Jeruſalem, being already Senator of Rome, and Vicar of the Holy Empire. About this time, Peter King of Arragon, who had married one of Manfroy's Daughters, enters Sicily, and, to amuſe the French, offers to leave this great Diſpute to the Deciſion of a Combat between him and Charles, taking each but an hundred choice Knights of a ſide to ſecond them. Charles accepts the Challenge, though then almoſt 60 years of age, and the other but 40; and came to the Place appointed them at Bourdeaux by the King of England; but the King of Arragon did not come until after the appointed Day. In 1283. he beſieged Meſſina, and the next year, preparing to return thither again, he was beaten at Sea, and his Son, the Prince of Salerno, taken Priſoner three days before he himſelf came up with a good Number of Ships. Some Months after, he died in the Caſtle of Foggia in Apulia, in 1285. leaving a Son called Charles II. and ſome other Children. Blondus, Villani, &c.

CHARLES the Second, called the Lame, who, whilſt his Father lived, had the Title of Prince of Salerno, and Lord of Mount St. Ange, was ſtill in Priſon, when Charles I. to whom he ſucceeded, died, and was not ſet at liberty until a Peace was made in 1288. by the Mediation of Pope Nicholas IV. King Philip IV. Sirnamed the Fair, the King of England, and ſome other Princes. Before this, Queen Conſtance had ſentenced him to death, but revoked it; for he promiſed that he would perſuade Charles, Count of Valois, to quit his Claim to the Kingdom of Arragon, and get the Pope to inſtal John of Arragon in that of Sicily; and as an Aſſurance of the Performance of this, he gave his three Sons and fifty Gentlemen as Hoſtages. As ſoon as he was ſet at liberty he came into France, whence he went to Italy, where Pope Nicholas IV. Crowned him King of Naples, and of both Sicily's in 1289. He alſo had Hungary by his Wife Mary, Daughter to Stephen V. and Siſter to Ladiſlaus IV. who died Iſſueleſs. All which he Governed with a great deal of Moderation, though he had many Competitors. He died at Naples in Anno 1309 being 63 years of age, and leaving the moſt Illuſtrious Offſpring that a Perſon of his Quality was ever known to have; viz. ten Sons and five Daughters. The Sons were, Charles Martel, King of Hungary; Lewis, Biſhop of Toulouſe and Pamiez, Canonized for a Saint; Robert, that ſucceeded him; Philip, Prince of Tarente, and Titular Emperor of Conſtantinople; Raymond Berenger, Count of Provence, who died a Batchelor; John, that died young; Triſtan alſo died in his youth; John and Lewis, Dukes of Duras, and both died without Iſſue; Peter, Count of Grainne, Sirnamed the Tempeſt, or Storm, killed at the Battel of Moncatin, gained by the Gibelins the 31ſt of Auguſt, 1315. The Daughters were, Margaret, Wife of Charles of France, Count of Valois; Blanche, married to James II. King of Arragon; Eleonor, Wife to Frederick, King of Sicily, the other ſide the Phare; Mary, married to Sanche, King of Majorca, &c. Paul. Æmil. Villani, &c.

CHARLES, only Son of Robert, Son to Charles II. was called by ſome the Prince without Lands, until his Father made him Duke of Calabria, and Governour of his Eſtate in Italy; an Employment he acquitted himſelf very well of, in driving Frederick, King of Trinacria, out of Sicily, who had joined Caſtruccio Caſtracani, and the Gibelins, againſt King Robert. This good Service made the Florentines chuſe him Governour of their City, and receive him with great Magnificence the 30th of July, 1326. after which, he went to Naples to oppoſe the Emperor Lewis of Bavaria's Undertakings againſt his Father, and died there the 10th of November, 1328. Petrarch. Lib. 10. Ep. Summonte Hiſt. de Naple.

CHARLES, the Third of this Name, King of Naples, &c. called of Peace, or Little Duke of Duras, Son of Lewis, Count of Gravina, and Grandchild of one John, Duke of Duras, deſcended of Charles II. the Lame. He went to Lewis, King of Hungary, who employed him againſt the Venetians, and yielded him his Right to the Kingdom of Naples in 1308. His Ingratitude was ſo great to Queen Joan, that having taken her Priſoner, he inhumanely put her to death: After which, making uſe of Pope Urban VI.'s Inſtalment, he got himſelf Crowned King of Naples and Sicily, &c. Count of Provence, in 1381. but his Title was diſputed by Lewis of Anjou, Son to John, King of France, who was adopted by Queen Joan. This Prince dying, Charles falls out with Pope Urban, who Excommunicated him. After which, he, going for Hungary to take Poſſeſſion of the Kingdom given him after King Lewis's death, was killed at Buda, in 1386. by Iſabau the Queen-Dowager's Contrivance, who would have the Crown for Sigiſmund her Son-in-Law.

CHARLES the Fourth, Son of Charles, Duke of Anjou, was King of Naples, Sicily, and Jeruſalem, Count of Provence, &c. He was Adopted by King Rene his Uncle, to whom he ſucceeded in the year 1480. He died the 10th of December, in the year 1482. and made King Lewis XI. his Heir. Noſtredamus. Ruffy, &c.

There were Eleven Kings, all called by this Name in the Kingdom of Swedeland, whereof the firſt Six are ſo little remarkable in Hiſtory, that without mentioning them, we will begin with the Seventh.

CHARLES, the Seventh of this Name, King of Swedeland, who under colour of revenging the Death of Eric IX. Sirnamed the Saint, put himſelf upon the Throne in 1160 and being already King of Gothland, united it to Swedeland: But his Reign was but of ſeven years, and Canute, St. Eric's Son, believing he was Inſtrumental to his Father's Death, got him kill'd about the year 1168. Olaus Mag. Hiſt. Sueciæ, Lib. 19.

CHARLES the Eighth, deſcended from the ancient Kings of Swedeland, was Son to Canute Boude, Senator of the Kingdom, and Governor of Finland, and was choſen after Chriſtopher in 1448 He is not only commended in Hiſtory for his Juſtice and Wiſdom, but alſo for a good Philoſopher, and expert Mathematician; yet he was thrice baniſhed the Kingdom for his Severity towards the Clergy, and died at laſt in 1470. Johan. Mag. Crantzius, &c.

CHARLES the Ninth, Duke of Sudermania, Son to Guſtavus I. Brother to John III. and Uncle to Sigiſmond, Lawful King of Swedeland; which laſt being choſen King of Poland, Charles was made Governor of the Kingdom in 1595. two years after which, he made himſelf Maſter of Stockholm, and of moſt of the other conſiderable Towns, and made a clear Rebellion on't, or, as the Tranſlator of the firſt Engliſh Edition calls it, He ſet up for himſelf in 1598. He made War againſt the Danes, the Polanders, and Muſcovites, with good ſucceſs, though at that time he was called but Governor or Regent of the Kingdom, until the States gave him the Title of King in 1604. He was Crowned four years after, and died in 1611. This Uſurpation occaſioned bloody Wars ſince that time between the Kings of Poland and Swedeland.

CHARLES Guſtavus the Tenth, of the Houſe of Deux-Ponts, Son to John Caſimir, Count Palatine of the Rhine, and of Catharine of Sweden, Daughter to Charles IX. ſucceeded Queen Chriſtina, who made a voluntary Reſignation of her Kingdom to him in 1654. The next year he begun a War againſt Poland, and carried all before him, took Warſaw, Gracovia, and other Places, and aſſiſted the Polanders, who had rebelled againſt their King Caſimir; but this laſt, ſupported by the Valour and Conduct of his brave General Charneski, defeated the Swedes at Jaroſlaw on the 12th of March 1656. and after ſeveral Battels drove them at laſt quite out of Poland. Charles, after this, lays Siege to Dantzick, but is forced to raiſe it; then begins a War againſt the Danes, whom he worſted in ſeveral Rencounters, and at laſt beſieges Copenhagen, their chief Town, and would have certainly carried it, had it not been relieved by the Dutch Fleet. And being a brave and Enterprizing Prince, it's not to be queſtioned but he would have done great things, had he lived longer, but he died of the Spleen in the Thirty ſeventh of his Age, 1660. leaving his Son Charles XI. by Hedewig Eleonor, Daughter to Frederick Duke of Holſtein.

CHARLES the Eleventh, King of Swedeland, was born November 25. 1655. Two years after his Father Charles Guſtavus X. of the Houſe of Deux-Ponts, was advanced to the Crown, upon the Abdication of Queen Chriſtina, whoſe Couſin-German he was, being the Son of John Caſimir Prince Palatine of the Rhine, and Catharine of Sweden, Daughter of Charles IX. and Siſter to Guſtavus Adolphus, Queen Chriſtina's Father: This King's Mother, the Princeſs Hedewig Eleonora, of the Houſe of Holſtein, and Siſter to that Duke, had no other Child, and upon the deceaſe of the King her Husband, in the year 1660. was made Regent of the Kingdom, together with the Five Great Officers of the Crown, and held that Poſt till the year 1672. during which time ſhe governed her Son's Kingdom with much Wiſdom, and added to it by the Treaties of Peace ſhe had the addreſs to make with Poland and Denmark. The King's Education in his Minority, by his own Genius, and the Indulgence of his Mother, if not by the Contrivance of the Principal Miniſters, was moſtly in order to a Military Life, in which Exerciſes, ſuch as Fencing, and Riding the Great Horſe, he took more Pleaſure, and made a better Proficiency, than in ſuch Studies as required more intention of the Mind; Beſides the Swediſh and High-Dutch Languages, which he learned in his Infancy, and ſpoke both equally well, he was not perfected in any other, having only a ſmattering of French, to which he had ſo great an averſion, that he would neither own nor be brought to ſpeak as much of it as he underſtood; and this cauſed a Reſerved Temper in him, and backwardneſs of Converſation with Strangers, whereby it became more difficult for Foreign Miniſters to Entertain him, and made himſelf uneaſie upon their Addreſſes. He was no ſooner Crowned, which happened in the year 1674. but he found himſelf engaged in the War then on foot, and eſpouſed the French Intereſt in Conſideration of the Subſidy of 200000 l. a year, in which the firſt Blow was the defeat of Feldt Marſhal Wrangel and his Army in Germany; a Diſaſter ſo little foreſeen, or provided for, that it made a more eaſie way for all the Miſeries that enſued upon it, and gave him more Eminent Occaſions of ſhewing his Courage in Defence of his Kingdom and People; for the Succeſs of that Action brought the Danes to engage in a War, which they began with the ſurprizal of Holſtein, and the taking of Wiſmar, and thence tranſlated it into Schonen; ſo that when the King was called into thoſe Parts, to make Head againſt the Danes, he found the Effects of his Miniſters deficiency in making due Preparations, four of the ſix fortified Places of that Province being already in the Enemies Hands; and indeed his Forces were ſo ſmall and ſcattered, and the Account of Loſſes from all Parts ſo great, that the Fortune of Sweden, and all its Ancient Glory, ſeemed to be confined to his Perſon and little Army, with which yet in the Compaſs of one year, he won Three Pitch'd Battels, and in one of them was ſaid to have Charged Thirteen times at the Head of a Brigade; and yet, which is very remarkable, valued himſelf for not having drawn the Blood of any one Man: 'Tis certain he gained a great Stock of Military Experience in the Courſe of that War, and that without any tincture of thoſe Vices which commonly prevail in a Camp; and was ſo indefatigable and perpetually imploy'd, that he had ſcarce his Boots off in three years time: The Streights he was often reduced to, taught him many excellent Leſſons, eſpecially the neceſſity of putting his Kingdom into a better poſture of Defence than he found it; Beſides, his Officers and Chief Miniſters about him, made it their Buſineſs to poſſeſs his Mind with an ill Opinion of the Senate, and diſcovered the Malverſations that the Ruling Lords had been guilty of during his Minority, which ſunk ſo deep in him, that his Diſpleaſure fell upon ſome of thoſe Lords during the War; and a ſlight upon them all, neither Communicating his Councels, nor acquainting them with the Succeſs of his Actions; ſo that at the Concluſion of the War in 1680. after he had conſummated his Marriage with the Princeſs Ulrica Eleonora, Siſter to the King of Denmark, he called the States of the Kingdom together, and gave them a Summary Account of the State of Affairs during the War, and the iſſue of it, and propoſed to them to Inſpect the Occaſions of the great Loſſes the Kingdom had ſuſtained, to find out Means to deliver the Government from the Streights it laboured under, and to Conſult for its farther Security. The Odium of all the Loſſes and Misfortunes of the War fell upon the Miniſters that had Managed Affairs during the King's Minority, and therefore a Committee was choſen out of the ſeveral Bodies of the States, to Enquire into the Reaſon of the Miſcarriages, and the Weight fell heavy upon many Senators, whoſe whole Eſtates were not ſufficient to make Satiſfaction; with this farther addition, That the States declared they needed no ſuch Mediator between the King and them, ſo neither did they find that the Article of his Coronation Oath (wherein he promiſed to Rule the Kingdom with the Advice of the Senators) did oblige him to think it neceſſary any longer to have their Concurrence to any Counſels he thought fit to take, or continue their Salaries to more of them than he was pleaſed to imploy; ſo that ſeveral of them were laid aſide, and the reſt, inſtead of their former Title of Councellors or Senators of the Kingdom, were Stiled the King's Councellors: The States alſo declared, That the King, who received his Crown from God, was only accountable to God for his Actions, and tied by no other Engagements, than what his Coronation Oath imported, namely, To Rule the Kingdom according to Law. Great Taxes were laid to diſcharge the Debts; and, in ſhort, a Reſolution taken to eſtabliſh a new College of Reſumption, with Power to re-unite to the Crown all ſuch Lands, as by former Kings had been alienated by way of Donation, or ſold at an under-value, with a Reſervation only of 70 l. a year to the preſent Poſſeſſor; ſo that what with this, the Eſtabliſhment of the Militia, Preparation of the Fleet and Fortreſſes, the Dependance the Nobility and Gentry muſt ſtill have upon him for Imployments, who had not a ſufficient Competency of their own to live upon, and the Miſtake of the Clergy, Burghers and Peaſants, who were eaſily perſwaded, that the Miſeries which they ſuffered proceeded from the too great Power of the Nobility, and that the King could never be too much Truſted, the King had an Opportunity put into his Hands, to lay the foundation of as abſolute a Sovereignty, as any Prince in Europe poſſeſſes. Neither did the next Aſſembly of the States, which was held in the year 1683. ſtop here, but, beſides a Benevolence equal to that granted the laſt Seſſions, they proceeded even to the re-union of the 70 l. a year reſerved by the former Seſſion, and to a farther and more deſtructive Explanation of the Article of Ruling the Kingdom according to Law; declaring, That the King was not thereby tied to the Laws then in being, but might alter the ſame, and add ſuch Conſtitutions thereto as he thought moſt uſeful for the preſent State of the Kingdom, and that whatever Inſtruction he was pleaſed to give any College or Officer, the ſame were a Law to them, and all others that they concerned; adding only this, That they hoped his Majeſty would communicate to the States ſuch Laws as were of a General Nature, and intended to be binding to the whole Kingdom. The next Aſſembly in 1686. proceeded much in the ſame Step and Liberalities. During the War that ſucceeded in about two years after in Europe, wherein moſt of the Princes and States thereof were engaged one way or other, he had the Wiſdom and Conſtancy to obſerve an exact Neutrality, which cannot ſo well be ſaid of his Neighbour Prince upon that Occaſion, and by this Means contributed very much to the enriching of his Kingdom, and enlarging of Foreign Trade; and he ſhewed as much Goodneſs in the indefatigable Endeavours he uſed to make the Peace that followed, by offering his Mediation to that end to the ſeveral Parties concerned; but the ſame had not been long accepted by them, before the Thread of his Life was ſpun out, for he died on the 17th of April 1697. N. S. about 10 of the Clock at Night, in the Forty ſecond year of his Age, and the Thirty ſeventh of his Reign. He was of a Middle Stature, and well ſet, his Hair Brown, of an Healthful and vigorous Conſtitution, and Sanguine Complexion, never attacked with any violent Sickneſs, but what was occaſioned by outward Accidents, of which Two eſpecially endangered his Life, and theſe with others might have ſome influence upon his Death: One was in the War, when the King riding on the Ice, it brake, and he fell into the Water, which brought him into a Fever, of which he narrowly eſcaped; The other happened by a fall off his Horſe, which broke his Leg, and he was ſo ill Treated by his Surgeons, that beſides the danger of his Life then, the Effects of their Miſcarriage were to be ſeen in his Halting to the day of his Death. Two other Accidents befell him, which impaired his Strength; One was, That in Hunting, Monſieur Wachmaſter being in danger to be killed by a Bear, the King was ſo eager to reſcue him, that he broke a Vein, and was then like to Bleed to Death, and continued ſo as long as he lived upon any ſudden motion; The other was, That being accuſtomed formerly to Ride Poſt for ſuch long Stages, and with ſo great ſpeed, he was often like to be ſuffocated by the Heat. In a Word, he was a Prince poſſeſſed of many Excellent and Noble Qualities, an Exemplary Piety, and Religious Diſpoſition, that ſhewed themſelves in all his Actions, and an invincible Courage, that often expoſed his Perſon to great Dangers not only in Wars, but alſo in his Divertiſements: His Chaſtity and Temperance were very regular at leaſt, and if there have been any Inſtances of his failing in the latter upon any extraordinary Occaſion or Entertainment, he has never been known, or ſcarce ſuſpected to violate the former: He was frugal to an high degree, made a diligent Inſpection into all the Affairs of his Kingdom, rather more Reſpectful to his Mother than to his Conſort, the natural Antipathy between the Two Nations of Sweden and Denmark, having perhaps crept into his Bed: And to ſay no more of him, if the Cholerick Temper, which has been incident to all his Anceſtors, carried him ſometimes to low Expreſſions of his Anger, as well towards the Greater as Meaner ſort of Subjects, yet the Fit was uſually ſoon over, and recompenced by his Placability and Readineſs to forgive thoſe that had offended him. By his laſt Will and Teſtament he appointed the Queen Mother, and Five Lords of the Court, for the Government of the Kingdom, and to be Tutors to the young King Charles XII. his only Son, that ſucceeds him, till he attained the Age of Eighteen, he being not full Fifteen at his Father's deceaſe.

CHARLES the Twelfth, born the 27th of June 1682. The King his Father left him under the Regency of the Queen Dowager his Mother, till Eighteen years of Age. Her Majeſty by the late King's Order, has ſeveral Privy Councellors to aſſiſt her.

CHARLES the Third, Duke of Bourbon, Auvergne, and Chaſtellerau, was born in 1489. and from his very Youth given to great Actions. He accompanied King Lewis XII. in his Journey to Genoua in 1507. and behaved himſelf very well at the Battel of Agnadel two years after. In 1512. he commanded the Army deſigned to recover Navarre, and the next year after went againſt the Switzers that had fallen into Burgundy. King Francis I. made him Lord High Conſtable of France: In 1515. made uſe of him in Italy, where he fought courageouſly at the Battel of Marignan, and in the Conqueſt of Milan, whereof he was left Governor, until he was ſent for thence, and was preſent at the Enterview of the French King and the King of England between Ardres and Guines in 1520. Thus did he ſerve France faithfully, and with good Succeſs, until Louiſa of Savoy, Francis the Firſt's Mother, claiming a Right to the Dutchy of Bourbon, commences a Suit for it, and through her great Intereſt, carries it, which Miſfortune made him forget his Duty, and Treat with the Emperor, who promiſed him his Siſter in Marriage. His firſt Exploit for this Prince, and againſt his own Country, was in Provence in 1525. where he took ſome Places, but was forced to raiſe the Siege he had laid to Marſeilles; and was the year after at the Battel of Pavia, againſt his King and Country, who was made Priſoner there; afterwards he commanded the Army that beſieged Rome, where being one of the firſt that mounted the Breach, he was kill'd on the 6th of May, 1527. leaving no Children but a Daughter that was Married to Bertrand of Salmart, Lord of Reſſis. His Body was carried to Gayette in the Kingdom of Naples.

CHARLES of Bourbon, Count of Soiſſons and Dreux, Peer, and Great Maſter of France, Knight of the King's Order, and Governor of Dauphine and Normandy, youngeſt Son of Lewis of Bourbon, the firſt of that Name, Prince of Conde, and of Frances of Orleans his ſecond Wife, was born in 1566. and in Favour at Court under the Reign of Henry, until, upon ſome Diſguſt, he ſided with the King of Navarre, for whom he fought at the Battel of Coutras in 1587. Some time after he quitted this, and was received into King Henry the Third's Favour again; aſſiſted at the States of Blois, and in 1589. being come to wait on the King at Tours, ſuſtained for a whole day together the Efforts of the Enemies Army in the Battel fought at the Suburb of that Town. After this, being made Lieutenant General of the Army in Britany, he was taken Priſoner, and carried to Nants, whence he made his Eſcape, and afterwards brought in a Reinforcement to King Henry the Great at Diepe, who made him Great Maſter of France. He commanded the Horſe at the Siege of Paris in 1590. and ſerved the next year after at that of Chartres; yet he was of the Cardinal his Brother's Faction, who would raiſe a Third Party; but this proving ſucceſsleſs, he aſſiſted at Henry the Fourth's Coronation in 1594. where he repreſented the Duke of Normandy and Guienne. He alſo was preſent at Lewis the Thirteenth's Coronation in 1610. being then Governor of Dauphine, and died two years after at Blandi in Brie. Thuan. Davila, &c.

CHARLES the Second of that Name, Cardinal of Bourbon, Archbiſhop of Roan, Biſhop of Beauvais, Peer of France, Son to Charles Duke of Vendoſme, born in 1523. He was made Cardinal in the year 1547. aſſiſted at the Colloquy of Poiſſy, and at the Aſſembly of the Eſtates at Orleans. He was much averſe to any thing of a Reformation, and Treated the Hugonots ſeverely. The Eaſineſs of his Temper made him practis'd upon by the Principal Leaguers, who, after the Death of Henry the Third, declared him King, under the Name of Charles the Tenth, that by this means they might exclude Henry the Fourth his Nephew from the Crown. Spondan. Thuan. &c.

CHARLES the Third, call'd the Young, Cardinal of Bourbon, was Fourth Son to Lewis of Bourbon, Prince of Conde, and of Eleonor de Roye; He ſucceeded his Uncle Charles the Second, in the Archbiſhoprick of Roan; He was bred among the Hugonots, but afterwards went over to the Church of Rome, and was made a Cardinal by Pope Gregory XIII. in 1583. This Cardinal projected to Form a Third Party among the Roman Catholicks in France, with an Intention of getting himſelf made King, but his Deſign came to nothing, by Henry the Fourth's declaring himſelf of the Roman Communion. Davila. Thuan. &c.

CHARLES Duke of Burgundy, Brabant, &c. Sirnamed the Bold, the Warrior and Raſh, Son to Philip III. Duke of Burgundy, by his Third Wife Iſabelle of Portugal: He was born at Dijon in 1433. and bore firſt of all the Title of Count of Charollois: He was at the Battel of Rupelmonde in 1452. at thoſe of Morbeque and Gavre, in 1453. and in 1465 at the Fight of Montleheri againſt Lewis the Eleventh. In 1467. when he ſucceeded his Father, he begins a War againſt the Inhabitants of Liege, who had revolted againſt their Biſhop, and defeated them at the Battel of Saintron. After this he invades Lorrain, and thereby joyns the Low-Countreys to the Dutchy and County of Burgundy, ſo renders himſelf formidable to all his Neighbours, and would certainly have been troubleſome to France, had not his Deſign to humble the Swiſſers imploy'd him on the other ſide; his Pretext to attack theſe, whoſe Submiſſion he deſpiſed, was, becauſe they had invaded the Lands of James of Savoy, Count of Romont; and the Subject of the Swiſſers Quarrel with the Count, was no more than a Cart Load of Sheep-Skins which he took away from them. The Duke's Undertaking here was not ſo favourable to him as his former in other Places, for he loſt all his Foot, and his rich Equipage, at Granſon, on Saturday the 2d of May 1476. and near upon 18000 Men before Moral the 22d of the following June. After this he was killed in his raſh Attempt upon Nanci with 3000 Men only, the 5th of January 1577. after that Duke René had retaken that Town from him. Philip de Comines. Sainte Marthe, &c.

CHARLES of Blois, Duke of Britany, Son to Guy, Count of Blois, and Lord of Chatillon on Marne. He Married in 1337. Jean, Sirnamed the Lame, Daughter to Guy, Count of Penthievres, and Brother to John III. both come of Artus II. Duke of Britany's firſt Marriage. John III. ſeeing himſelf without Iſſue, gave his Neece to Charles, and Treated him as Heir Preſumptive. In the mean time, John of Monfort, Son to Artus II. by his ſecond Wife, diſſembles his Pretenſions to the Inheritance; but after the Death of his eldeſt Brother John, endeavours to put himſelf in Poſſeſſion by the Sword. King Philip of Valois took Charles's Part, received his Homage by the Court of Peers, and declared him Duke of Britany in 1341. yet theſe Mutual Pretenſions continued a War a long time, wherein Charles, with both his Sons John and Guy, were taken Priſoners at the Siege of Roche-derien in 1347. and was afterwards killed at the Battel of Auray in 1364. Argentré Hiſt. de Bret. Du Cheſne, &c.

CHARLES of France, Duke of Lorrain, youngeſt Son to King Lewis, called Outremer, was born in 953. and made Duke of Lorrain in 957. by the Emperor Otho II. his Couſin, for which he did him Homage-lige, a baſe kind of Homage, wherein the Vaſſal, ungirt, and bareheaded, with joyned Hands, ſwears, and binds himſelf to become an Enemy to all his Lord's Enemies, and to follow him all his Life time againſt all Men but his Lawful King. Such Meanneſs in a Prince of the Royal Blood of France, troubled the French Nobility extreamly, and made the States, aſſembled in 987. after the Death of Lewis V. called the Lazy, this Duke's Nephew, give the Crown, that was then Charles's Right, to Hugh Capet. He made ſome Attempt to recover it, but in vain, for his Army, when it took the Field, did nothing elſe but Plunder; and Adalberon, called Aſcelin, Biſhop of Laon, ſent for Hugh Capet in 991. and delivered him the Town, where Charles and his Wife were taken Priſoners, and ſent to Orleans, wherein the Duke died in 991. Sigebert. Gemblac. &c.

CHARLES the Firſt, of the Latter Houſe of the Dukes of Lorrain, was Son of John, who was Poiſon'd at Paris the 27th of September 1382. Charles Proſecuted thoſe that had Poiſon'd his Father; He was at the Battel of Roſebek in the ſame year, and aſſiſted Philip the Hardy, Duke of Burgundy, at the Siege of Ghent: He made likewiſe an Expedition into Pruſſia, where he himſelf took the Duke of Lithuania Priſoner, at a Battel near Vilna; and in his return, he aſſiſted the Emperor Robert, his Father in Law, at the Siege of Frankfort: The Princes of Bar, Juliers, and Naſſaw, &c. attack'd him in his own Dominions, with a great Army; but Charles routed them, and took the Chief Commanders Priſoners. He was not ſo ſucceſsful in his Attempts upon France, for, endeavouring to continue the Outrages begun by his Father, he was oblig'd to ask Pardon for them in 1412. He died in the year 1430. and beſides other Children by his Dutcheſs Margaret of Bavaria, he had Iſabeau who ſucceeded him, and was Married to Reno of Anjou, King of Sicily. Froiſſart, &c.

CHARLES the Second, Son of Francis Duke of Lorrain, born the 18th of February 1543. He was Bred at the Court of Henry the Second of France, where the Miſfortune of the Times having engaged him in the Faction of the Guiſes, he march'd with an Army into Champagne, and was at the Siege of Marſeilles, where he had liked to have been kill'd. There's little more conſiderable of this Duke, who died in the year 1608.

CHARLES the Third, of Lorrain, Son to Francis III. Son of Charles II. was a Courageous, Bold, but Unfortunate Prince through his great Inconſtancy. He Married his firſt Couſin, Nichole, Daughter to Henry, Eldeſt Son to Charles II. and contracted a ſecond Marriage with Beatrice of Cuſance, Widow of Eugenius Leopold, Prince of Cante Croix. He had no Children by the firſt, but by this had Charles Henry, Legitimated, and called Prince of Vaudemont, and Ann Legitimated alſo, and afterwards Married to Julus, Count of Iſlebonne. In 1630. he Caballed in France with the Queen Mother and the Duke of Orleans, and put the Emperor upon poſſeſſing himſelf of Moyenvic, the Chief Place in the Biſhoprick of Mets, for which King

Lewis XIII. made himſelf Maſter of all his Country, but reſtored it again by divers Treaties made in 1632. and 33. but notwithſtanding theſe, and a new ſolemn Treaty of Peace made in 1641 at Paris, the Duke joyns the Count of Soiſſons, and ſides with the Enemy; but theſe being leſs patient than the French, and fearing ſome effect of his Inconſtancy, ſeized him at Bruſſels in 1654. led him to the Cittadel of Antwerp, and thence to Toledo in Spain, where they kept him until the Peace of 1659. whereof a great part relates to him, for the Sixty ſecond Article bears the Acknowledgment of his Concern for his former Behaviour towards the French King, and his firm Reſolution then made to endeavour his Satisfaction for the future; and all the other Articles to the Seventy ninth run upon his Buſineſs. He made heavy Complaints againſt the Spaniards, for the ill return they made him for his good Service for them. In 1661. he made another Agreement with the French King, and another in 1662. by which he made over all his Eſtate to him upon very diſadvantageous Conditions to his Family, but was no ſooner returned into his Country, but he makes himſelf Maſter of Marſal, and Caball'd again with the Malecontents of France, which the King forced him to ſurrender afterwards by a Treaty in 1663. After this Duke Charles ſought all Means to annoy France, made an Offenſive and Defenſive League againſt it, which he continued until he died at Birkenfeldt the 17th of September 1675. See Charles V. This Prince had a great many good Qualities, but his inconſtancy to his Word was Intolerable.

CHARLES the Fourth or Fifth, reckoning from Charles the Son of Lewis Outremer, late Duke of Lorrain and Barr, and Generaliſſimo of the Imperial Armies, was Son to Duke Francis of Lorrain, Brother to Duke Charles IV. That Family having put themſelves under the Protection of the Spaniards, who dealt unjuſtly with them; they caſt themſelves upon the Court of France, and Charles V. being then very young at Bruſſels, was privately ſent after them, where they were all treated with Princely Honour, but ſtript of their Dominions by War and Treaties; yet the French Court promiſed Reſtitution from time to time. Prince Charles having narrowly eſcaped Death, being ſtruck down by a Poſt, as riding the Great Horſe in the Manage, was as unfortunate in his Love, being fruſtrated of the Matches which were deſigned betwixt him and Mademoiſelle Mancini, Cardinal Mazarin's Niece, who was afterwards Married to the Conſtable Colonna. He was alſo diſappointed as to Mademoiſelle de Montpenſier, Daughter to the Duke of Orleans, as to Mademoiſelle d'Orleans, who was Married to the Duke of Tuſcany, and as to Mademoiſelle de Nemours, who was Contracted to him, though afterwards the Contract was broken by the Pope, and ſhe was Married to the Duke of Savoy. Nor was the Prince any happier in his Uncle Duke Charles of Lorrain, though his Heir apparent, the difficulty of whoſe Humour, contributed much to the Diſappointments of the Matches abovementioned; and out of a Diſtaſte which he had taken againſt Prince Charles, he reſigned over his Country to Lewis XIV. which he afterwards repented, but in vain. As ſoon as Prince Charles underſtood this, he applied to the King, putting him in mind that he had engaged his Royal Word for the Concluſion of his Marriage with Mademoiſelle de Nemours, and hoped he would not take Advantage of his Uncle's Hatred againſt him, ſeeing it was procured by his throwing himſelf upon his Protection. The King looking ſtern, and giving an indefinite Anſwer, the Prince found that all was wrong, but ſuppreſſed his Reſentments, till having Acted his Part at a Ball, which was performed that Night, he made his Eſcape, to the great Surprize of the French Court. He went by way of Tuſcany, Rome, Venice, and Municben for Vienna, where he caſt himſelf upon the Emperor, who received him with great Tenderneſs, promiſed him his Protection, and called him always Brother. Upon Notice that the French King demanded Marſal from his Uncle, who proteſted againſt the Verification of what he had done in Parliament, becauſe of Failures, as the Duke alledged, on the French King's Part; He went ſuddenly from Vienna, and put himſelf into Marſal to defend it, ſending Notice of his Arrival to his Uncle. Whereat both he and the French King were alarm'd: The old Duke being unwilling that his Nephew ſhould take Poſſeſſion before his Death; and the King bethinking himſelf what an Enemy this young Prince might prove to him in time. However, Prince Charles, at the Sollicitation of his Father and Uncle, left the Place, and returned to Vienna: Whence they afterwards ſent for him, with a Deſign that the latter ſhould have declared him his Succeſſor; but the Uncle, being ſtill Jealous of him, countermanded it, pretending that it would irritate the French King, of whom the Prince had ſpoken reproachfully at Rome and Vienna. Prince Charles was ſo nettled with this, that he rode in great haſte to the French Court to wipe off that Aſperſion, without conſulting any body; but when he came thither, he was, as 'tis ſaid, denied Admiſſion, and had a Gentleman of the Guards ſet upon him, to ſee him out of the Kingdom in four days; ſo that with much difficulty, he was allowed two Hours to Diſcourſe with his Aunt, the Dutcheſs of Orleans, and was ſo ſurprized with his Treatment, that though he paſſed by the Palace of Nemours, where the Lady lived to whom he was Contracted, he had not the Courage to ſtep in and ſee her, becauſe his Guard alledged it would diſpleaſe the King, which that Lady made uſe of as an Argument againſt him, when ſhe was prevailed on to diſengage from the Prince; who upon this Diſappointment poſted for Luxemburg, and being out of Money, could ſcarcely find any Body who would furniſh him, till at length, a Knight, who was unknown to him, lent him 200 Crowns, and ſo he went on for Vienna, where the Emperor received him with great Tenderneſs and Concern for his Misfortune, and renewed the Aſſurances of his Protection. The War between the Emperor and the Turks falling out in Hungary, the Emperor gave the Prince a Regiment of 1000 Horſe; but not being then above Twenty years of Age, he would not allow him to hazard his Perſon; ſo that againſt his Will, he was conſtrained to ſtay at Vienna, but at laſt went privately to the Army; and the Turks having attacked the Chriſtian Camp, and put their Right Wing in Confuſion, General Montecuculi was forced to make uſe of this Prince's Regiment, and with much Reluctancy, becauſe of the young Prince's Danger, gave him Orders where to fall on, which he did with ſo much Valour, and Preſence of Mind, as aſtoniſhed the Old Officers; he performed not only the Part of a General, but a Common Soldier, and wreſted the Colours from the Hands of a Turk, who run at him with the Lance to which they were faſtned; ſo that the Victory, wherein above 5000 Turks fell, was almoſt wholly owing to the Prince; and the Emperor preſenting him with the Colours which he took, they were ſent to Duke Francis his Father, who hung them up in the Burgundian Chappel near Nanci, with an Inſcription over them. The Duke was afterwards dangerouſly ill of the Small-Pox at Vienna, and narrowly eſcaped being Poiſoned with the Emperor by the Count Serini. He was afterwards Competitor with the Prince of Conde and Duke of Newburg for the Crown of Poland, but all Three failed in the Deſign. The French King, in a little time after, diſpoſſeſs'd his Uncle of all his Dominions, and narrowly miſſed of ſeizing his Perſon; at which Prince Charles was much concern'd, but comforted himſelf with Hopes of receiving Satisfaction, if the Emperor had once put an end to the Hungarian War; but that being prolonged by the falſe Meaſures which the Emperor took, Prince Charles was imploy'd in it, and reduced Muran. He ſerved afterwards in the Army againſt France in 1672. but met with no Opportunity of ſignalizing himſelf that Campagne. He was again diſappointed of the Crown of Poland, as he imagined, by the French Intereſt; at which the Prince expreſſed his Reſentments, and obtained Leave of the Emperor to rejoyn his Army in Flanders, and performed Wonders at the Battel of Seneff; but expoſing himſelf to all the Dangers of a Common Soldier, he received a Gaſh in the Head, which obliged him to withdraw from the Battel. Next Campagne he ſerved in Germany, and attacking the French at a Bridge which they had laid over the Rhine, he killed 400 of them, and brought off ſeveral Colours, with the Standard of the King's Dragoons; but being overpowered by the French, he made ſo good a Retreat, that Turenne admired it. He was afterwards Wounded by a Muſquet Shot at the Siege of Strasburgh, but received ſmall Harm by it. His Uncle Charles IV. dying in September that ſame year, Prince Charles received the uſual Compliments upon his Succeſſion from all the Princes and States in Europe but France. The Prince was extraordinary Serviceable to the Imperialiſts at that time in Alſatia; but upon the News of his Uncle's Death, went to Kymen in the Honſruck, and having amicably ſettled his Affairs with the Prince de Vaudemont, he carried the Lorrainers that were there into the Emperor's Service with him. People flattered themſelves, that the French King would have reſtored this young Duke to his Dominions, but were deceived, the French King refuſing him ſo much as the Title of Duke and Brother. In 1676. Luxemburg being made General of the French Army, the Duke of Lorrain was made General of the Imperialiſts, attacked Luxemburg near the Saar, and fought him for two Hours with Advantage, after which both entrenched themſelves, and at laſt Luxemburg decamped in Silence, which the Duke of Lorrain having notice of, drove the French from the Lanes, wherein they were poſted to cover his Retreat, and thundered on their Rear with ſo much Fury, that the French had ser-certainly been routed, had not Count Hamilton, a Scottiſh Gentleman, with his Regiment, made a wonderful Effort in their Defence; and though he was ſlain in the Action, yet his gallant Reſiſtance obliged the Duke of Lorrain to retire, and gave the French an Opportunity to draw off; but the Duke of Lorrain encamping cloſe by them, did ply them hard with his Cannon, and obliged them to march off; and by the Defeats which the Duke of Lorrain gave him in ſeveral Rencounters, Philipsburg was taken by the Prince of Baden, the Duke of Lorrain having obliged Luxemburg to a Retreat in view of the Beſieged, though at the Head of 50000 Men, the Duke ſtill purſuing him, and obſerving his Motions. Next year the Duke of Lorrain prepared an Army, deſigning to break into his own Country, where he knew that his Subjects did paſſionately love him; and the French King apprehending the Conſequences of ſuch an Attempt, deſtroyed the Forage. However, the Duke marched with his Army, having this Motto in his Colours, Aut nunc, aut nunquam, and bending his Courſe ſtreight for Metz, took Illingham and Sarbruch in his way, and purſued the French, who lay near the Seille, but could not bring them to a Battel, (the Duke de Crequi then General, keeping off) though he took the Fort of Eſpri in their Teeth, and laid the Country under Contribution as far as Metz and Thionville, but narrowly eſcaped an Ambuſcade of the French. After this he marched towards the Meuſe, plundering the French Country, levying Contributions, and obliging them to deſert Mouſſon. During theſe Proceedings in the Field, the Treaties went on but ſlowly at Nimeguen, and the French refuſed to own the Duke's Plenipotentiaries as Ambaſſadors, though it was proved that the Duke of Lorrain's Miniſters had been received as ſuch at the Imperial Dyets and elſewhere. The French King did alſo propoſe Terms for the Reſtitution of Lorrain, as the keeping of the Roads through Lorrain to Alſace, and thoſe from France to Nanci, and from Nanci to Metz, Briſac, and Franche Comté, which the Duke did altogether reject. The Campagne being over, the Emperor ſent for him to Conſummate his Marriage with his Siſter the Queen Dowager of Poland, whom the Duke had a paſſionate Love for: As he paſſed through Philipsburg, one of the Planks of the Bridge, being not well faſtned, gave way, ſo that he fell to the bottom of the Moat; however he was recovered, but the Treachery of the Governor was ſuſpected herein. He was met by the Emperor's Coaches ſome Miles from Vienna, conducted to the Palace in extraordinary Pomp, and the Emperor made him ſit down by him, and the Marriage was Solemnized with extraordinary Magnificence. Having paſſed the Lent with his Queen at Inſpruch, before the end of April 1675. he arrived near Worms to Command the Imperial Army; but this Campagne proved unſucceſsful, becauſe he was neither ſupplied with Money nor Proviſions, and that his Officers were refractury, and would not conſent to give Battel to the French when he had an Opportunity. In the mean time the Peace being concluded at Nimeguen, the Duke choſe rather to lead a Private Life, than to conſent to the Terms of the French King; and the Emperor being not in a Condition to reſtore him without the Aſſiſtance of his Allies, the Duke returned to Vienna; and ſoon after the Turks broke their Truce. The Duke was made Generaliſſimo of the Imperial Army in Hungary in 1683. which drew upon him the Envy of ſeveral other Princes: The Duke, at the Head of 40000 Men, laid Siege to Newhauſel, which he carried on with great Vigour, and it was no leſs gallantly defended; the Baſſa having made ſome Priſoners at a Sally, put them to Death, and hung their Heads over the Walls of the Town; and the Beſiegers, far from being diſcouraged thereat, treated the Turkiſh Priſoners in the ſame manner; but of a ſudden the Duke had Orders to raiſe the Siege, becauſe the Grand Seignior was on his way toward it with 200000 Men. The Duke made his Retreat with great Conduct, reinforcing Comorra in his way, and very narrowly eſcaped being ſurprized. He paſſed the Raab, and encamped advantageouſly, which he had no ſooner done, but the Enemy appeared on the other ſide of the River; and while the Two Armies looked upon one another, 30000 Tartars under their Cham, ſwam the River, and ravaged all before them with Fire and Sword, to the Borders of Auſtria, putting all to Death: The Duke was in a mighty Perplexity, and being no more than 24000 ſtrong, he was unwilling to be environed by the Infidels, and therefore, according to the Reſult of a Council of War, he retired toward Vienna, not without difficulty. As he was on his March, he received Advice that the Turks had decamped, and that 6000 Hungarians, who guarded the Paſs, had gone over to the Malecontents, which did mightily terrifie his Army, and that ſo much the more, becauſe the Parties ſent out to diſcover the Turks, returned generally in Confuſion, and without half their Number: Yet he continued his March in good Order; but upon Advice that the Turks were within a League of a River which he was to croſs, his Horſe fled to avoid their Fury, and would not be perſuaded to ſtay by all the Methods which the Duke could uſe: By this time the Turks had ſeized all the Baggage, and begun to fall upon the Infantry with a terrible Slaughter; and the Duke giving himſelf over for loſt, reſolved to die like a great General, or ſave his Infantry; and after he had encouraged his Officers to follow him, he made his way through the thickeſt of his Enemies to their Relief, juſt as his Foot were ready to give Ground; but being animated with the Duke's Preſence and Example, they fought with ſuch Fury, that the Turks, who never expected any ſuch thing, but were packing up their Booty, did thereupon fly; and the Duke having by this extraordinary Gallantry brought off his Foot, did not think fit to purſue, but marched on till he came under the Cannon of Vienna, where the reſt of the Cavalry waited for him. The Turks at the ſame time beſieged Raab, and marched to attack Vienna, from before which Place the Duke was obliged to retire beyond the Danube. The Emperor having withdrawn to Lintz, the Turks preſſed on the Siege of Vienna, and the Duke having repulſed the Tartars, who attacked him in paſſing the River, defeated Count Teckely near Presburgh, reduced that Town, encouraged Count Staremburg to hold out Vienna, gave him Notice of the Forces which were gathering together for his Relief, and kept the Infidels in ſuch continual Alarm, that he was a Terror to them, conſiderably diminiſhed their Numbers, obliged them to a continual Defence of their Poſts, and prevented their reinforcing their Camp. However, the Beſieged, though they made a gallant Defence, and many ſucceſsful Sallies, were much ſtreightned, and the Baſſa of Buda adviſed to cut down the neighbouring Woods, lay the Trees in the Way of the Chriſtian Army, caſt up Entrenchments, and raiſe Batteries, &c. to ſtop their March, but the Viſier would not; ſo that the King of Poland, at the Head of 100000 Men, advanced to force the Infidels in their Camp. On their Approach, the Grand Viſier left 20000 Men to make continual Attempts upon the Town, and marched againſt the Chriſtians in Three Bodies. The King of Poland having entruſted the Duke of Lorrain with the Conduct of the whole Army, he led them on with ſuch extraordinary Prudence, that he ſecured them from the Enemies Onſets; and marching down a Hill, at the Foot of which the Turks were drawn up in Battel Array, there enſued a ſharp Battel for three Hours, wherein the Duke of Lorrain acquitted himſelf well, and forced the Infidels to fly, leaving all their Baggage, Arms, Ammunition and Cannon behind, as alſo the Horſe-Tail, the Standard of the Ottoman Empire; the Turks that eſcaped fled to Raab, where they joined the reſt of their Army which blocked up that Place. After this Victory the Duke and King of Poland did mutually Congratulate each other as the Chief Inſtruments thereof; and indeed they both had a large Share in it. The Duke was for purſuing the Turks while in a Conſternation, and improving the Victory; but the Poles being tired out with ſuch a long March, their King was for giving them ſome Refreſhment, by which the Turks had Opportunity of reinforcing ſeveral Places on the Frontiers; and the Chriſtian Princes, particularly the Elector of Saxony, thought fit to withdraw their Forces; but the Duke and King of Poland reſolved to attempt ſomething further, and agreed to attack Barcam; but the King of Poland advancing with too much Precipitancy, was repulſed with great Loſs, and Hazard of his Perſon, and had been totally routed, if the Duke of Lorrain had not come up in good time to his Reſcue, and put the Infidels to flight. This did ſo ſtun the Polanders, that they were for going into Winter Quarters; but the Duke prevailed with the King to aſſiſt in attacking Barcam, which was done with much Reſolution, though the Turkiſh Army of 15000 was near it; and after a bloody Battel the Turks were routed, not above 4000 of them eſcaping, and the Fort was thereupon ſurrendered a Month after the Relief of Vienna. The Duke, in the next place, reſolved to attack Gran, which at length he did; and after two days cloſe Siege, carried it, though the Garriſon conſiſted of above 3000 Men, commanded by Two Baſſa's. Then the Imperialiſts went into Winter Quarters, and the King of Poland returned Home. The Grand Viſier was ſtrangled for his ill Conduct, and a new one ſucceeded, who made extraordinary Applications to repair their former Loſſes. The Duke of Lorrain was no leſs Induſtrious, and taking the Field early, reduced Vice-Grad, June the 17th 1684. a Place of great Importance, formerly the Reſidence of the Kings of Hungary, and which commanded the Danube. The Duke of Lorrain having repaſſed that River, defeated the Baſſa of Buda with 15000 Men near Weizen, taking his Cannon, Baggage, &c. with many Priſoners, and then Weizen ſurrendered, June the 28th 1684. After this he attacked Peſt, which is Commanded by the Cannon of Buda, and in a few days after routed the Ottoman Army near that City, and then beſieged it, carried the Suburbs, beat the Enemy from ſome other advantageous Poſts, and made a Breach in the Wall; but hearing that 20000 Turks were advancing to its Relief, he marched, and fought them with 15000, killed 4000, and put the reſt to flight, taking all their Baggage, Ammunition and Cannon, and the Grand Viſier's Standard; then he returned to the Siege, and though the Imperial Army had been much diminiſhed by the bold and frequent Sallies of the Beſieged, yet they ſprung ſeveral Mines with good effect, and widened the Breach to 30 Paces; but as the Duke deſigned a general Aſſault, he was taken ill, and forced to leave the Siege to the Management of Count Rabata; and during his Indiſpoſition, the Elector of Bavaria arrived with freſh Succours, and ſummoned the Town, but was anſwered no otherwiſe than by Sallies. The Duke of Lorrain, though not perfectly recovered, returned to the Siege, but found the Face of Affairs quite changed, his Army much diminiſhed, and the Seraſquier advanced with new Forces, ſo that the Imperialiſts, being both attacked by the Turkiſh Army and the Garriſon, and labouring alſo under the Want of Proviſions and Forage, the Duke thought fit to draw off, after having loſt 10000 Men, and continued the Siege three Months and a half; he managed his Retreat with ſo much Courage and Conduct, that the Turks durſt not fall upon his Rear: He ordered Peſt to be demoliſhed, becauſe he could not keep it, reinforced the Garriſons which he had lately taken, and blocked up New-Hauſel, with the Siege whereof he began the next Campagne; and inveſted it the 7th of July 1685. carrying on the Siege with great Vigour. The Turks in the mean time having ſurprized the Lower Town of Vice-Grad, and put the Inhabitants to the Sword, laid Siege to Gran, which they diſtreſſed, and had aſſaulted it twice with 60000 Men. The Duke being informed of the Diſtreſs of Gran, decamped from before New-Hauſel with the Elector of Bavaria and ſome other Generals, at the Head of 30000 Men, leaving only 20000 to carry on the Siege. He marched with ſo much Reſolution, that the Seraſquier being afraid, raiſed the Siege, and joined all his Forces, which were 60000. to make Head againſt him, encamping himſelf moreover very advantageouſly. The Duke in the mean time reinforced the Town, and by a Counterfeit Retreat, drew the Seraſquier out of his advantageous Poſt, and then, though the Turks charged with incredible Fury, defeated them, killing above 3000 upon the Place, and taking their Camp, with Arms, Baggage, 24 Cannon, proportionable Ammunition, and ſtore of Proviſions. In the mean time Count Caprara puſhed on the Siege of New-Hauſel, and carried it by Storm, Auguſt the 19th 1685. putting all to the Sword. The Seraſquier retiring with his ſhattered Troops under the Cannon of Buda, was fired upon by the Governor, who upbraided him for running away; and he was afterwards Strangled for his Misfortunes, though at other times, and then alſo, he had behaved himſelf with Valour enough. The Duke of Lorrain in the mean time repaired New-Hauſel, and blocked up Agria. Next Campagne the Duke perſuaded the Emperor to undertake the Siege of Buda, which had a Garriſon of 10000 Men, commanded by a Chriſtian Renegado of great Experience, with ſeveral other brave Officers; and the Town was moreover very ſtrong, and well fortified: However the Siege was begun on the 18th of June, and carried on with great Vigour, many of the Turks cut off in their frequent Sallies, and their beſt Effects, which they were ſending to Belgrade, taken. The Duke reſolving on a general Aſſault, ſummoned the Governor, who returned a haughty Anſwer, ſo that the Duke renewed the Attacks with greater Fury than ever, and the Turks made a gallant Defence, expoſing themſelves on the top of the Breaches undauntedly to all Hazards, blowing up two or three Hundred Chriſtians at a time by their Mines, and repulſed the Imperialiſts, no leſs than three times in the Aſſault, with conſiderable Loſs, which the Duke ſeeing, he led on freſh Supplies himſelf, and did ſo animate his Men when they ſaw him expoſed to the greateſt of Dangers, that they alſo deſpiſed Death, and aſſaulted the Infidels with ſuch Valour, that they poſſeſſed themſelves of a Roundel, which contributed much to the taking of the Town: The Elector of Bavaria and the Brandenburghers were no leſs Succeſsful in their Attacks. The Duke was wounded in this Action, which laſted three Hours, till Night obliged them to give over; and all things being ready for a Storm, he ſummoned the Governor again, who was now become more humble, and offered him any other City in Hungary, provided he would raiſe the Siege, and make a General Peace; but the Duke rejected this, and made a third Aſſault, and advanced his Lodgments to the Foot of the third Wall, which encompaſſed the City, though not without great Loſs. In the mean time the Grand Viſier advanced to its Relief with 100000 Men, put ſome ſmall Succours into the Town by Surprize, and had frequent Skirmiſhes with the Chriſtians, but declined coming to a Battel. The Duke prepared for a fourth Aſſault; and to amuſe the Viſier, drew out 30000 Foot and Horſe to face him, as if he intended to give Battel to the Turks; which had the deſigned Effect, for it kept the Viſier in his Camp, while the Duke went on to the Storm; and being encouraged thereunto by the Confidence of his Men that they ſhould carry it, he renewed the Aſſault with undaunted Reſolution, the Garriſon making ſuch a gallant Defence, that the Imperialiſts were ſeveral times obliged to recoil; but at laſt, after many bloody Struggles, the Governor being killed on the Breach, the Turks were forced out of their Intrenchments at the Duke's Attack; the Brandenburghers entered the City at the ſame time, putting all to the Sword. The Baſſa, who commanded next to the Elector of Bavaria's Attack, was alſo forced to give Ground, and retiring into a Roundel, yielded at Diſcretion; and thus it was ſtormed at all the Attacks, the Duke of Lorrain's being the firſt that entered, and the City was taken in View of the Turkiſh Army, after it had been in their Poſſeſſion 150 years: There were found in it near 400 Cannon, 60 Mortars, with an incredible number of Bullets, Granado's, Carcaſſes, Bombs, &c. and about 2000 were taken Priſoners, the Turkiſh Army retired in the Night for Fear, the Duke being not ſo taken up with the Conqueſt of the Town, that he either omitted, or forgot to purſue them. The Emperor, upon this News, ordered the Duke to attack the Bridge of Eſſeck, which he was againſt, as hazardous to his Army, who had ſuch a vaſt way to march through a Country where there was neither Victuals nor Forage; but having refreſhed them two or three days, he embarked 10000 Foot, 12 Cannon, 20 Mortars, and ſtore of Ammunition and Proviſion for the Deſign, having ordered the Croats to meet him at the Bridge. Next day he and the Elector followed by Land with 24000 Horſe, and 12000 Foot, 6000 Hungarians, and 3000 Heydukes, ſuffering very much in their March; being advanced near the Place, they underſtood that the Viſier was advantageouſly poſted on this ſide the Bridge; Upon this they divided their Army into Two Bodies, one of them under Prince Lewis of Baden, who took Five-Churches, and Two other Places. The Duke in the mean time croſſed the Drave, and detached ſome Regiments from Upper Hungary, where they took in Segedin, after having twice beaten the Infidels that attempted its Relief. Next Campagne the Duke returned to the Bridge of Eſſeck, poſſeſſed himſelf of a Fort near it, where he raiſed ſome new Works, and burnt all the Bridges that were upon the Moraſs. At laſt, having ſtruggled with many Difficulties, by reaſon of Inundations, &c. he cut his way through a Wood, and came in ſight of the Turks under the Viſier, who was above 80000 ſtrong, and he not above 55000. The Turks were ſtrongly fortified with a double Ditch, Two Rows of Palliſadoes, and a Battery of Fifty Cannon. The Duke advanced, and the Infidels with their Cannon cut off 800 of his Men, but would not ſtir from their Camp, ſo that the Duke was obliged to draw off, and the Turks durſt not purſue; but at laſt, coming out of his Strength, the Duke, by feigning that he was afraid, and counterfeiting a Retreat, engaged the Turks in a Battel, where, after a Bloody Fight, they were routed; the Duke and the Elector of Bavaria having behaved themſelves with incredible Courage and Conduct during the whole Action. He took 80 Cannon, and 12 Mortars, with vaſt Riches, and the Grand Seignior's Tent, in which the Elector found Two Millions in Gold and Jewels. This Battel was fought near Mohats, and the Turks had near 12000 Men ſlain there. The Emperor Congratulated both the Duke and the Elector for this glorious Victory, in a Letter under his own Hand. After this the Prince of Tranſilvania having declared for the Port, the Duke marched his Army thither, brought the Prince and States of that Country to a Compliance with the Emperor, and placed Garriſons in their Cities. The Mutinies, after this, grew ſo great in the Turkiſh Army, that they conſtrained the Viſier to fly, and depoſed the Grand Seignior himſelf. Then the Duke Summoned Agria, which refuſed to ſurrender, but he left Forces before it, which quickly brought it to Capitulation, November the 28th 1687. while the Duke went to Presburg, and thence to his Wife at Inſpruck. After this he fell dangerouſly ill at Vienna, inſomuch that his Life was deſpaired of, which rendered the Emperor very Melancholy; but upon his Recovery, and the Deſigns of the French to ſupport Cardinal Furſtemburgh in his Claim to the Electorſhip of Cologne, the Emperor became at laſt inclinable to liſten to the Duke's Advice of making Peace with the Turks, and turning his Arms againſt France, which hitherto he had rejected, being blinded with the Glory of his Conqueſts and Triumphs in Hungary, though, as the Duke told him, he gained nothing, but waſted Countries, whereas the French King diſmembred the Empire daily: So that the Emperor ſent the Duke to Buda, to treat of a Peace with the Turks, while the Elector of Bavaria beſieged Belgrade; but the Duke being ſeized with his Ague again, was neceſſitated to return to Inſpruck: He was detained ſick a long time, but recovering at length, the Emperor deſigned to ſend him againſt the Turks, and the Elector of Bavaria againſt France; but the Duke oppoſing it, both of them were ſent with Armies to the Rhine, and the Duke arrived with 15000 Men near Coblentz, where he was to join the Elector of Saxony and Landtgrave of Heſſe, at which time the French quitted and burnt the Cities of Wormes, Spire, &c. In the mean time, the Confederate Generals meeting at Francfort, agreed to give the Chief Command to the Duke of Lorrain, and never to ſheath their Swords till he were reſtored; and they began with the Sieges of Mentz and Bonne. The Duke of Lorrain beſieged Mentz, which the French had made very ſtrong, and put ten thouſand of their choiceſt Men in it, under the Marquiſs d'Uxelles. The Duke, with the Elector of Saxony and Landtgrave of Heſſe, carried on the Siege from three Attacks with great Vigour, and the French defended the Town with no leſs Gallantry, making three great and ſucceſsful Sallies, wherein they did mighty Execution, but were always repulſed with great Loſs; and the Confederates being willing to ſave the Town, were the more prodigal of their Men, and ſparing of their Bombs, they purſued the French to the Gates, and gained the Counterſcarp, giving no Quarter; which did ſo alarm the Governour, that he Capitulated, Septemb. 11. 1689. The Duke having carried Mentz, came to aſſiſt the Elector of Brandenburgh before Bonne, and attacked it with ſo much Vigour, that it did not a little contribute to its Surrender on the 12th of October, 1689. The Army being put into Winter-Quarters, the Duke went for Vienna, and in his way preſented Memorials to the Diet at Ratisbonne, about recovering his Dominions, which the French King had wreſted from his Unkle, and had a very ſatisfying Anſwer; ſo that he reſolved to have had a Puſh with France in the following Spring; but as he was at Weltz, within three Leagues of Lintz, in his way to Vienna, he was ſeized with a Pain in his Ear, which in a little time fell down on his Throat, and ſuddenly the Symptoms of Death began to appear, which diſordered him a little at firſt; but recollecting himſelf, he prepared for it by his Devotions, ſuitably to one who was a Roman Catholick; and ſent two Letters, one to the Emperor, and another to the Queen his Wife. In the Emperor's, after recommending his Wife, Children, and Subjects to him, were theſe Words: Sacræ Cæſareæ Majeſtati, Commendat ſe, & ultimum Vale dicit Carolus Lotharingiæ Dux. And his Diſtemper encreaſing, he died very compoſed, having all the while of his Diſtemper ordered Prayers for him: And ſo died this Great Prince, April 8. 1690. aged 49. The Phyſicians ſaid his Diſtemper was a Catarrh. He had a Noble Air, was well Shaped when young, but at laſt grew Corpulent. He had all the Qualities required in a Great General, and was well read in Hiſtory and Politicks. Dutch, French, Italian, and Latin, he underſtood perfectly. He was of few Words, but ſpoke to the Purpoſe, and was grave and ſerious with Strangers: He was familiar with his Acquaintance, and dived to the bottom of Things: He was plain in his Habit, punctual to his Word, Generous, Liberal, and of an equal Temper in Proſperity and Adverſity. His Death was univerſally lamented through Europe, France excepted. He left four Children, the eldeſt of which, called Leopold, a young Prince of great Expectations, ſucceeded him in his Title, who is now reſtored to his Country by the Treaty at Reſwick in 1697.

CHARLES of Lorrain, Duke of Mayenne, Peer, Admiral, and Great Chamberlain of France, Knight of the King's Order, Governour of Burgundy, &c. Second Son of Francis of Lorrain, Duke of Guiſe, and of Anne of Eſte, was born in 1554. He was at the Siege of Poictiers in 1569. after that, at the Battel of Moncontour, and in 1573. at the Siege of Rochelle, where he was wounded: Then he was made Admiral, Commanded the Army in Guienne, Dauphine, and Xaintonge, againſt the Proteſtants. He was at Lyons when he received the News of his Brother's death at the States of Blois, in 1588. upon which, he declared himſelf Head of the League, and took the Title of Lieutenant of the Kingdom and Crown of France. This paſſed in open Parliament, where Charles the Old Cardinal of Bourbon was choſen King in 1589. After this, he attacked Tours, until he was forced to come to defend Paris, beſieged by King Henry III. and the King of Navarre; and after the death of the firſt, he ſtill continued to ſupport the League, though his Jealouſie againſt his Nephew, the Duke of Guiſe, hindred him from ſeconding the Ambitious Deſigns of the Spaniſh Ambaſſador, and other Enemies of the State. He fought Henry IV. and was defeated at the Battel of Yvi. This, and other ill Succeſs, forced him to ſeek Succour in Flanders, with which he raiſed the Siege of Paris, and that of Roan in 1592. But at laſt, after ſeveral Misfortunes, and the entire Defeat of his Party at Fontaine-Françoiſe, in 1595. he ſubmitted, and was kindly received by the King, whom he ſerved faithfully, both at the Siege of Amiens, and at other places, until he died at Soiſſons Octob. 3. 1611. Thuan.

CHARLES, Cardinal of Lorrain, Archbiſhop of Rheims, Son of Claude of Lorrain, firſt Duke of Guiſe, and of Antoinette of Bourbon, and Brother to Francis, Duke of Guiſe. King Francis I. had ſuch a Regard for him, that he nominated him Archbiſhop of Rheims, when he was but fifteen years of Age; and Henry II. who was Crowned by him, was much ſway'd by his Advice. He was a great Enemy to the Hugonots. He concluded the Treaty at Cambray, in 1559. for Henry II. and after his death, Crowned Francis II. and Charles IX. ſucceſſively. In the Reign of the latter, and in the year 1561. he aſſiſted at the Colloquy of Poiſſy, where, as Morery affirms, he confuted Beza, in a Diſpute concerning the Reality of the Body of our Saviour in the Euchariſt. He went afterwards to the Council of Trent, at the Head of the French Biſhops, where, as Father Paul obſerves, at his firſt coming he was for retrenching the Court of Rome, and carrying on a Reformation, to ſome degree at leaſt, both in Doctrine and Manners; but afterwards he fell in with the Legates, quitted the Spaniſh Biſhops, and precipitated the Council. At his return into France, he held a Provincial Council at Rheims in 1564. He was a Perſon of great Parts and Elocution, founded ſeveral Academies, and died at Avignon in 1574. whither he came to wait upon Henry III. in his return from Poland. There were two more Cardinals of Lorrain of this Name, who lived not long after him. Ciacon. Spond. Thuan. Dail. &c.

CHARLES of Lorrain, Duke of Aumale, Peer, Grand Veneur, and Governour of Picardy, was born in the year 1555. His Father was Claude of Lorrain, and his Mother Louiſa de Brezé, Lady of Anet. He was bred a Military Man, and King Henry III. gave him frequent Marks of his Eſteem: Afterwards he went over to the League; and beſieged Senlis in 1589. but was obliged to riſe from the Place. From this time he had a ſhare in all the Actions of the League, and after the Peace at Verveins, he ſided with the Spaniard, and died in the Low-Countries in 1618. Davila, &c.

CHARLES of Lorrain, Duke of Guiſe and Joyeuſe, Peer of France, Prince of Joinvile, &c. was Son of Henry the Firſt of Lorrain, Duke of Guiſe, and of Catharine of Cleves. He was born in 1571. and diſtinguiſhed himſelf handſomly upon all Occaſions. In 1617. he Commanded the King's Army againſt the Princes of the League; and in 1622. he beat the Rochellers in a Sea-Engagement; and afterwards, being out of Favour at Court, for having, as 'tis ſaid, ſpoken too freely of Cardinal Richelieu, he retired with his Family to Florence, and died in the Territories of Siena, in 1640.

CHARLES of Lorrain, Duke d'Elbeuf, Maſter of the Horſe to the King, Peer, and Grand Veneur, or Maſter of the Game of France, Count of Harcourt and Iſlebonne, &c. Son of Rene of Lorrain, Marquiſs of Elbeuf, was born in 1556. and ſo much beloved by Henry III. for his good Qualities, that he created him Duke of Elbeuf in 1581. and made him Knight of the Holy Ghoſt the year after. He proved himſelf a Man of great Courage upon ſeveral Occaſions, yet was taken into Cuſtody in 1588. upon ſuſpicion of having a hand in the Duke of Guiſe's Deſigns. He was ſet at liberty in 1591. and made his Peace with K. Henry IV. whom he ſerved very faithfully until his death, which happened in 1605.

CHARLES of Gonzague, the Firſt of the Name, Duke of Mantua and Nevers, &c. Son to Lewis of Gonzague, and Henrietta of Cleves, became Duke of Mantua and Montferrat, by the death of his Couſin Vincent II. which happened on the 26th of December, 1627. The Emperor, King of Spain, Duke of Savoy, and Ferdinand de Gonzague, Duke of Guaſtalla, were againſt his Succeſſion; which occaſioned the Wars that reigned in Italy and Germany for a long time. King Lewis XIII. ſupported Charles's Intereſt the beſt he could, and kept Cazal for him; but Collaire, the Imperialiſts General, ſurprized the Town of Mantua, where he permitted much Diſorder, in 1630. At laſt, the Peace of Quiras, concluded in the Month of July the year after, put an end to this Buſineſs, and Duke Charles died at Mantua in 1637.

CHARLES, Duke of Orleans and Milan, Peer of France, Count of Valois, &c. was born at Paris in 1391. and bore the Title of Duke of Angoulême, until after his Father, Lewis of France, Duke of Orleans, was barbarouſly murdered in 1407. by People hired by the Duke of Burgundy. Charles preſſed King Charles VI. ſeveral times to revenge his death, but without ſucceſs, and was forced to ſubſcribe to the Treaty of Bourges, in 1412. and to the others at Auxerre and Melun. But the State of Affairs changing afterwards, he governed the King, until the Engliſh having made a Deſcent into Picardy, he was taken Priſoner at the unhappy Battel of Azincourt, and carried into England, where he was kept 25 years, until Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy, Enemy to his Family, procured his Liberty in 1440. which good turn occaſioned their Reconciliation. After this, he had Thoughts of conquering the Dutchy of Milan, which was his Mother's Right, and whereof he held only the County of Aſt. In 1464. he was preſent with the other Princes at the firſt Aſſembly of the States held at Tours; but the year after, he died at Amboiſe of Grief, becauſe Lewis XI. deſpiſed his Advice. Mezeray, Comines, &c.

CHARLES, the Firſt of the Name, Duke of Savoy, Third Son of Ame IX. called the Happy, ſucceeded his Brother Philibert in 1482. being then but 14 years of Age. He was brought up at King Lewis XI.'s Court, who became his Tutor after his Brother's Death, to deprive ſome of the Great Men of that Country, who aimed at that Honour, that ſo they might have a plauſible Pretext of diſturbing the State. This young Prince was no ſooner of Age, but the Marquiſs of Saluces puts himſelf at the head of ſome turbulent and diſſatisfied People to War againſt him; but his Raſhneſs was ſoon puniſhed by the taking of Saluces and Carmagnole, and at laſt by the Loſs of all his Eſtate. This Prince was a great Admirer of Learning, and ſo reſpectful to the See of Rome, that he refuſed to enter into the League of the Italian Princes againſt Innocent VIII. Guichenon.

CHARLES the Third, called the Good, Son to Philip by his ſecond Wife Claudine of Breſſe, was born in 1486. and ſucceeded his Brother Philibert II. called alſo the Good, in 1504. His Reign was long, but uneaſie and unfortunate: For endeavouring to accommodate the Difference between Francis I. his Nephew, and Charles V. his Brother-in-Law, and unable to keep himſelf Neuter, he became a Prey to both Parties; for the French plundered Turin in 1536. and Nizza in 1543. and ſtruck terrour over all Piedmont, after they had won the Battel of Cariſolet, in 1544. The Duke ſeeing his Country thus made the Theatre of War, between the two Powerfulleſt Princes of Chriſtendom, was ſo ſtrucken with Grief, that he fell into a lingring Fever, whereof he died at Vercel, in the year 1555. being 66 years of Age, whereof he Reigned 49. He was a Pious, Wiſe, and Juſt Prince, a great Lover of Learning and Learned Men, but of no great Courage, being more fit for the Cloſet, than for the Field or Throne. Thuan. Paul. Jovius.

CHARLES Emanuel, the Firſt of this Name, called the Great, Son of Emanuel Philibert, Sirnamed Iron-Head: He was born in 1562. and married at Saragoſſa, in 1582. the Infanta Catharine Michelle of Auſtria, Daughter to Philip the Second, by Elizabeth of France his Second Wife. This Prince gave ſignal Proofs of his great Valour upon ſeveral Occaſions; as, at the Skirmiſh of Monbrun, the Fights of Vignon, Aſt, Châtillon, Oſtage; at the Siege of Verue, and the Barracades of Suza, &c. He was alſo a Man of very eminent Parts, could ſpeak French, Italian, and Spaniſh to Perfection, had a very great Memory, an excellent Judgment, and always an ingenious and witty Repartee, with an admirable Secret to gain the Hearts and penetrate the Secrets of People. He was alſo very magnificent in Palaces and Churches; and both for his perſonal Courage and great Conduct, juſtly eſteemed one of the beſt Commanders of his time. But the Luſtre of ſo many Virtues was ſomewhat eclipſed by ſome conſiderable Faults; as, his great Inclination for Women; that he was no ſtrict Obſerver of his Word, and was ſomewhat over-ſuſpicious. His unlimitted Ambition put him upon making himſelf Count of Provence, in 1590. and upon aſpiring to the Kingdom of France during the League, as alſo to pretend to the Imperial Crown, after the Death of the Emperor Matthias; to have Thoughts of Conquering the Kingdom of Cyprus, and to accept the Principality of Macedonia, which was offered him by the People of that Country, driven to deſpair under the Turkiſh Tyranny. This Ambition drew many Inconveniences on him, and procured him the Hatred of all his Neighbours. Henry IV. took his chiefeſt Towns in Savoy, which he reſtored again by the Treaty of Peace in 1601. and then exchanged the Marquiſate of Saluces for Breſſe. After this, the ſame Duke of Savoy becoming concerned in the Wars of Mantua, drew firſt the French, and then the Spaniards upon him, after the War for the Valtoline; and after that too the Arms of the French a ſecond time for the Duke of Mantua, and the Germans likewiſe. All theſe Misfortunes caſt him into ſuch deep Grief, that he fell ill, and died in Savillan, three days after his coming to defend that Place in 1630. being then above ſixty-eight years; a Prince that for all his Life-time had the Repute of being ſo reſerved and ſecret in his Deſigns, that it was commonly ſaid of him, That more Mountains covered his Heart than his Country. Guichenon, Davila, Thuan. &c.

CHARLES Emanuel the Second, Duke of Savoy, Son to Victor Amadeus, was born in 1634. and ſucceeded his Brother Hyacinth in the Eſtates of Savoy and Piedmont, in 1638. under the Guardianſhip of Chriſtina of France, Daughter to Henry IV. The Princes of Savoy, back'd by the Spaniards, did much harm during his Minority; but the prudent Mother, ſupported by her Brother Lewis the Juſt, overcame all their evil Deſigns. The Duke being declared of Age in 1648. took the Government of his Country upon himſelf, keeping always a good Underſtanding with the French, as an Acknowledgment of the Obligations they laid on him; but was not ſo great a Friend to the Spaniards, who were forced, by the Peace of the Pyrenées in 1649. to give him Satisfaction for the Loſs he ſuſtained by their means. In 1654. and 55. he levied Forces againſt his Subjects the Vaudois of Lucern, Angrogne, &c. Theſe People the Duke had a mind to make Roman Catholicks by compulſion, who, it ſeems, were enraged by this Method to that degree, that they pulled down the Churches, outraged the Miſſionaries, and, as Morery reports, aſſaſſinated a Pariſh-Prieſt in his own Houſe, and publickly ridicul'd the Solemnity of Chriſtmas. All the Proteſtant Princes of Europe interpoſed in this Buſineſs, which was taken up at laſt by the King of France, who was choſen a Mediator by the Proteſtant Cantons. Morery takes notice, That a Proteſtant Miniſter, called Anthony Leger, publiſhed an Hiſtorical Account in Holland, entituled, The Perſecution of the Vaudois; but this Book, ſays he, is ſtuffed with Falſhood and Miſrepreſentation, the Duke's Severities being magnified a great deal beyond matter of Fact. Charles Emanuel died in 1675. He was a Graceful Perſon, a Lover of Learning, and a Prince of great Senſe.

CHARLES-TOWN, the Name of three ſeveral Places in our Weſtern Plantations; one in New-England, ſituate between the Rivers Charles and Miſtick, with a Market-place near the River, from which run two Streets beautified with ſeveral good Houſes, beſides a large and well-built Church.

CHARLEVILLE, which ſignifies Charles-Town, is the moſt Northern Town of the County of Cork, part of the Province of Munſter in Ireland. 'Tis a Borough-Town bordering upon Limerick.

CHARLEVILLE, in Latin Carlopolis, a Town of France in Retelois in Champagne, ſeated on the Meuſe below Sedan, between Meziers and Rocroy. It was formerly but a Borough called Arches, until Charles of Gonzague, Duke of Nevers and Mantua, built it into a pleaſant Town, and gave it his own Name. It has been ſince that time fortified regularly. On the other ſide the River is Mont-Olympe, on which are ſeen the Ruines of an old Caſtle, thought to have been a Temple of the ancient Pagans. The Duke of Mantua is Sovereign of this Town ſtill; but the Gates, the Walls, and the Caſtle on Mont-Olympe, belong to the King of France.

CHARLIER, (Giles) commonly called Ægidius Carlerius, Dean of Cambray, was much eſteemed in the Fifteenth Century. He was at the Council of Basil, and diſputed there four days together, De Peccatis publicè corrigendis. His Diſputation is extant in the Third Volume of Caniſius's Collection, called Antiquæ Lectiones. His Anſwers to ſeveral Caſes in which he was conſulted, are likewiſe in two Volumes: The firſt, entituled, Sportula Fragmentorum, contains ſeveral Treatiſes; as, De Conſervatione Bonorum Eccleſiæ, & Defenſorum Eccleſiæ, &c. Printed at Bruſſels in 1478. The ſecond, Printed the year after, and called, De Sportula Fragmentorum, and is likewiſe a ſort of miſcellany Piece, and treats, De Electione Judæ Proditoris. De [illegible] chia Eccleſiaſtica. De Reditibus ad Vitam pro Decimis. De Imaginibus, &c. Miræus in Auct. De Script. Eccl. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

CHARLIER, (John) Gerſon, or Jarſon, Doctor of Divinity, and Chancellor of the Univerſity of Paris, was one of the greateſt Men of his time: He is called Gerſon, from the Name of a Village near Rheims in Champaigne, where he was born in the year 1363. He was looked upon as a ſort of an Oracle, both for his Learning and his Piety. The Burgundians handled him untowardly at Paris, for condemning the Works of Johannes Petitus. The Duke of Burgundy receiving this latter Author into his Protection, accuſed Gerſon in the Council of Conſtance, as if he had falſified Petitus's Books, and interpolated them with Hereſies of his own inſerting: But this Charge was not received by this Council, where Gerſon was very much admired. 'Tis ſaid, That at the latter end of his Life, he was much perſecuted for his free way of declaiming againſt the Vices of the Age, and the Encroachments of the Court of Rome. He died at Lyons in 1429. being 66 years of Age. We have ſeveral Editions of his Works; the beſt of them are thoſe of Paris in 1521. and 1606. both in two Volumes, where his Life is ſet before his Works. Pet. Schottus, Trithem. Poſſev. Bellarm. &c.

CHARLOTTE of Bourbon, Daughter of Lewis II. Duke of Monpenſier, was firſt of all a Nun, and made Lady Abbeſs of Jouare; but ſhe quitted her Veil and that Dignity in 1572. got ſafe into Germany to Frederick II. Count Palatine of the Rhine, where ſhe embraced the Proteſtant Religion, and was married to William of Naſſaw, Prince of Orange, whom ſhe loved to that degree, that ſhe fell into a burning Fever, as ſoon as ſhe heard he was wounded by John of Jauregni, whereof ſhe died at Antwerp, May 6. 1582.

CHAROLLES, a Town of Burgundy, and Capital of the County of Charollois, ſituated upon the River Reconſe, 6 Leagues from Cluny, and about the like diſtance from the Loire. This Town is pleaſant enough, having a fine Collegiate Church, ſome well built Monaſteries, and other Embelliſhments. Latin Authors call it Carolia.

CHAROLLOIS, a County of the Dutchy of Burgundy, that lies between Maconois and Bourbonnois: Its chief Town, as was ſaid before, is Charolles; the leſs conſiderable are Parey le Moineau, Charlieu, &c. This ſmall parcel of Lands has often changed Maſters: It belonged in ancient times to the Dukes of Burgundy; then it fell to the Houſe of Bourbon; afterwards to that of Armagnac; at length to the laſt Duke of Burgundy, until it was united to the Empire by Mary of Burgundy's Marriage with Maximilian of Auſtria; after which, the Archduke Philip did Lewis XII. Homage for it in 1499. And Henry II. in the Treaty of Cambreſis, in 1559. reſerved himſelf that Sovereignty too. At laſt the French became the only Maſters thereof, yet reſtored it to the Spaniards by the Peace in 1659. but kept it themſelves ever ſince the Peace of Nimeguen, concluded in 1678.

CHARON, looked upon by ancient Pagans to be a Ferryman, to whom Souls were obliged to pay a certain Piece of Money for their Paſſage over the River Styx to Hell; and this undoubtedly was the reaſon ſome People uſed to put a Piece of Coin in their Friends Mouths when dead, that ſo they might have wherewithal to pay this imaginary Debt. This ridiculous Belief probably was grounded upon what Diodorus Siculus obſerves, which is, That Orpheus travelling in Egypt, and ſeeing the Inhabitants of a certain Town bury their Dead in Tombs that lay on the other ſide of a Lake, make the Greeks believe at his return that Charon Ferried the Souls of the Dead to Hell, becauſe that in the Egyptian Language Ferry-men are called Charons.

CHARON, (Lewis) called Charondas, an Eminent Lawyer of Paris, living towards the end of the Sixteenth Century, who by the Works he has written, has ſhown himſelf no leſs a Maſter in the Polite Part of Learning than in his own Profeſſion. He wrote a Panegyrick upon King Charles IX. Printed by Robert Stephens. He likewiſe wrote De Reſtituenda & in Artem dirigenda Juris-prudentia. De Juriſdictione & Imperio. Vereſimilium Libri tres. Annotationes in Leges Antiquas. Fiſcard & Foſter. Vit. Juriſc. &c.

CHARONDAS, Native of Catana in Sicily; he preſcribed Laws to the Town of Thurium, when rebuilt by the Sibarites; and amongſt others ordered, That none ſhould come to Publick Aſſembies armed, upon pain of preſent death: This he did to prevent the Diſorders that their mutinous Humours would otherwiſe have certainly occaſioned; but he himſelf coming in haſte to the Meeting, forgets to put off his Sword, which being made ſenſible of by ſome of the Aſſembly, he takes and runs it into his Breaſt, to puniſh the Violation of the Law in his own Perſon. Diog. Val. Max im.

CHARRON, (Peter) Chanter of Condom, is ſufficiently known by his Writings. We have three Treatiſes of his; The Three Verities: Of Wiſdom, &c. Balſac affirms, That in his Treatiſe of Wiſdom, Charron did no more in effect than tranſcribe M. Du Vair and Montagne. In ſhort, he had ſeveral other Enemies; and no fewer Friends, who gave in a fair Teſtimony to his Worth. Gabriel Naudé Bibliograph. &c.

CHARTIER, (John) a Benedictine, wrote the Great Chronicle of St. Denys in Franc, and lived about 1430. We have his Works in 3 Volumes, Entituled, Les Grands Chroniques de France, Vulgairement Appellées, Chroniques de St. Denys, &c. It has been ſince carried on to the death of Lewis XII.

CHARTRES upon Eure, Carnutum, or Autricum Carnutum, a Town of France in Beauſſe, Capital of a Country of that Name, has a Preſidial, with a Biſhoprick that was formerly Suffragan to Sens, but depends now on Paris ever ſince 1622. It's ſo ancient a Town, that ſome Authors are of Opinion, that the Gomerites, ſent to People Gaul ſoon after Noah's time, were the firſt Founders of it: Others think it was built by the Druides and Saronides, Miniſters of the Religion of the ancient Gauls. Few can determine this difference; but this is without debate, That the People of this Country were the firſt that withſtood the Romans in defence of their Liberties, and that they afterwards made Alliance with Cæſar, when they could not reſiſt his Power. It has formerly had ſeveral Counts, until being united to the Crown, Francis I. erected it into a Dutchy in 1528. in favour of Rena of France, Dutcheſs of Ferrara. As for the Town, it was beſieged in 911. by Rollo, Chief of the Normans, and was almoſt burned in 1019. In 1568. the Proteſtants laid Siege to it in Charles IX.'s Reign, but were forced to raiſe it; yet it was taken by Henry IV. in 1591. who got himſelf Crowned and Anointed there, Rheims ſiding with the League, and perſiſting in its Rebellion againſt their Lawful King. Chartres, accounted Capital of Beauſſe, built on the extremity of a great Plain on the River Eure, which parts it into the Greater and Leſſer, has but narrow Streets, like moſt other ancient Towns, yet has fine Houſes, fair Walks, and very magnificent Churches. The Cathedral is certainly one of the fineſt in the whole Kingdom, much admired by Strangers for its Quire, its two Belfreys, and that part that is built under ground.

CHARTREUX, a Religious Order founded by Bruno, Native of Cologne, and Canon of Rheims, who retired from the Converſe of the World in 1084. to a place called Chartreuſe in the Mountains of Dauphiné. This Man left the Order no Rules, nor had it any until Baſil VII. General thereof, formed ſome Conſtitutions out of the Cuſtoms they were wont to obſerve, and had them confirmed by the Pope. Theſe of this Order obſerve a ſtrict Faſt, and almoſt perpetual Silence, an Abſtinence from Fleſh even in their Sickneſs, a continual Confinement to their Cloiſter, and wear always a Hair Shirt. Their General takes the Title of Prior of the Chartreuſe, where he holds every year a General Chapter for the Affairs of the Order. S. Bernard, S. Martle, &c.

CHARYBDIS, a dreadful Whirlpool joining the Coaſts of Sicily Southwards, and not far off the Rock Scylla, which lies Northward on Italy-ſide, both very dangerous places, and hard to be ſafely ſhunn'd, as appears by the Proverb, Incidit in Scyllam cupiens vitare Charybdin. Poets feign, That this Chrybdis was a paſſionate and lewd Woman, who was Thunder-ſtruck, and turned into this dangerous Abyſs, finely deſcribed by Virgil, in his Third Book of Æneids. It was here that the Pharo, or Watch-Tower was built, called that of Meſſina, from its Neighbourhood to that Town. Charybdis is now known under the Name of Capo di Faro.

CHASSANÆUS, Firſt Preſident of the Parliament of Provence, was a conſiderable Lawyer, and the King's Advocate in the Bailiwick of Autun, and afterwards Councellor to the Parliament of Paris: He died in 1542. His Works are, Catalogus Gloriæ Mundi. Conſuetudines Burgundiæ. Conſilia, &c.

CHASTEAU-BRIANT, a ſmall Town of France in Upper-Britany, on the Frontiers of Anjou, and about ten Leagues from Nantes: Several Authors take it to be the Country of the ancient Cadutes mentioned by Cæſar; but Sanſon and others are not of this Opinion.

CHASTEAU-REGNAUD, upon the River Meuſe, a little fortified Town in Champagne, has the Title of Principality, and is two Leagues off Charleville.

CHASTEAU-ROUX, which the Italians call Caſtel-Roſſo, and was formerly called Caryſtius, is a Town of the Iſle of Negropont, very remarkable for its fine Marble, and for being thought the Country of Briarius the Giant, ſo famous in Antiquity.

CHASTEL, (Peter) or Chaſtellane, called in Latin Chaſtelanus, Biſhop of Tulles, and afterwards of Orleans, Great Almoner of France, and one of the moſt Learned Prelates of the 16th Century. He was born at Langres in the time of Francis I. 'Tis ſaid, This Prince asked him once in Converſation, Whether he was born a Gentleman, or not? Upon which, Chaſtel replied, That he was not perfectly certain which of Noah's three Sons he was deſcended from. Thuan. S. Marth.

CHASTEAU-THIERRI upon Marne, a Town of France in Champagne, with the Title of Dutchy, Bailiwick, Preſidialſhip and Election. It's about eight Leagues from Meaux, and but a little farther from Rheims, in a place that renders it ſtrong, and alſo very pleaſant. The Duke of Mayenne in the laſt Civil Wars took it for the League, and ſuffered the Spaniards to plunder it with great fury; but it ſoon afterwards yielded to the King, who gave the Inhabitants great Privileges.

CHASTELLERAUD, a pretty pleaſant Town of France upon the River of Vienne, with the Title of Dutchy, towards the Frontiers of Touraine, 5 or 6 Leagues from Poitiers. It ſuffered much in the laſt Civil Wars. Some will have it, that it was within a League of this Place that a Hind guided Great Clovis his Army over the River to fight Alaric King of the Goths. The Family of Hamilton in Scotland had the Titles of Dukes of this Place from the French King formerly.

CHASTENERAYE, (Francis of Vienne) Son to Andrew of Vienne Great Seneſchal of Poitou, a young Lord in great Eſteem at Francis I. his Court, where he was brought up, and was very intimate with Guy Chabot Lord of Jarnac and of Monlieu, until ſome Malicious Perſons ſowed Diſſention between 'em, in acquainting Charles Chabot, that his Son Guy had boaſted he had Debauched his Step-Mother, Charles the Second's Wife, and that they had it from his intimate Friend Chaſteneraye; hereupon the Father taxes the Son with what was told him, and the Son Vows to juſtifie himſelf, ſo publiſhes in expreſs Terms, that Chaſteneraye Lyed; who immediately Petitioned the King for Leave to revenge the Affront in a Single Combat. Young Jarnac was for a Duel too; but were both denied by King Francis. But Henry II. his Succeſſor, gave 'em Leave to decide their Difference as they deſired, and accordingly the Place was appointed in a Park of St. Germain en Laye, whither the King himſelf, the Lord High Conſtable Montmorency, with ſome Mareſchals, and great part of the French Nobility came to ſee it, which ended thus; Chaſteneraye having received many Wounds drops, but would not yield; Jarnac, loth to kill him, begs the King would be pleaſed to accept the Gift the other refuſed; which that Prince was firſt of all againſt, yet did upon the Lord High Conſtable's and Mareſchal's preſſing Intreaties, ſo conſented his Wounds might be dreſſed; but he enraged to ſee himſelf thus overcome, rips 'em open again, and ſo died 3 days after, to the great aſtoniſhment of moſt People, who made ſure account he would come off Conqueror, becauſe he had the Reputation of being one of the Valianteſt Men in all France. Memoires Hiſtoriques.

CHASTILLON-Sur-Seine, a Town of France in Burgundy, between Aiſei-le-Duc and Bar upon Seine. It's a pretty Place, and divided in two by the River, but all environed with the ſame Wall. The Bailiff of the Mountain generally reſides here.

CHATRI Colombe, a Taylor's Wife of the Town of Sens in Burgundy, that lived in King Henry the Third's time, and is ſpoken of in Hiſtory for a very ſurpriſing accident that befell her: For about Twenty years after ſhe was Married ſhe had all the Signs of being with Child, and at ſome Months end felt the Pains that Women feel before they are Delivered, yet ſhe could by no means be laid of her Burthen, but was forced to keep her Bed for three years, at the end of which her Pains ceaſed, her Belly remaining big and heavy as formerly to her death, which happened about 24 years after, and the Sixty eighth of her Age. Her Husband got her opened, and found to all People's Admiration a Girl quite form'd, but petrified. So uncommon an effect of Nature imployed the Phyſicians a long time to find its real cauſe. Alibour, Phyſician in the Town of Sens when this happened, and afterwards chief Phyſician to Henry the Fourth, writ an Eloquent and Learned Diſſertation upon this Subject. Paquier. Recherches de France.

CHAVARIGTS, a Sect of the Mahometans oppoſite to that of the Schiites. They deny that God ever ſent any Prophet that was Infallible, and who had a Commiſſion to give a new Law to Mankind: They pretend likewiſe, that if ſuch an Office ſhould ever become neceſſary, it would not be confin'd to a ſingle Family, but that every Man of Probity and Vertue would be capable of that Honour. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

CHAUCER, (Jeffrey) born at Woodſtock in Oxfordſhire, in the Fourteenth Century. He was call'd, The Engliſh Homer, and was not only a Poet but a Mathematician, and underſtood, according to the Talent of his Time, the Polite Part of Learning. He died in 1440. and has a Tomb in Weſtminſter-Abby. His Works are Printed in Folio, at London in 1561. Beſides theſe, he left a Manuſcript, in which he Laments the Liberties he had taken in ſome part of his Poems, inconſiſtent with Modeſty and Religion. This Manuſcript is now in the Hands of the Reviſer. Leland, Bale, Cambden.

CHAUVREUX, a Councellor to the Parliament of Paris, who having Subborn'd a Publick Notary to Forge ſome Writings, was Sentenc'd by the Court upon the 23d of December 1496. to make an Honourable Amends, particularly to be ſet on the Pillory, Branded on the Forehead with a Flower-de-Luce, and afterwards baniſh'd the Kingdom; This Sentence, as Recorded in the Parliament Regiſter, was Executed in the Manner following. He was order'd to be brought to the Bar, in a Scarlet Gown, and a Cap lin'd with a Rich Fur, to receive Sentence; Then he was order'd to withdraw, and had a Diſgraceful Habit put upon him, and thus he was brought again to the Bar, Bare-headed and Bare-foot, with a Lighted Torch in his Hand; Afterwards he was deliver'd up to the Executioner, who carried him to the Pillory, in a Cart, where, turning him about thrice, he Branded a Flower-de-Luce on his Forehead with a Hot Iron. Regiſt. du Parlement.

CHAUMONT, a Town of France in Champagne, Capital of Baſigni, built upon a little Hill near Marne, between Langres and Chalon. In former times, whilſt it had its particular Lords, it was but a Borough fortified only with a Caſtle, but ſince its union to the Country of Champagne, and falling to the Kings of France, they have augmented it much, and ſtrengthened it with ſeveral Towers, ſo that now it's a very pleaſant, pretty big, and ſtrong Town.

CHAZNADAR-BACHI, Treaſurer to the Seraglio, or Privy Purſe to the Grand Seignior. He Commands the Pages belonging to the Treaſury, and Manages the Revenues aſſign'd to defray the Expences of the Court. The Publick Exchequer for the Affairs of the Empire, being under the Care of the Defterdar. Ricaut Turkiſh Hiſt.

CHECH, firſt Founder of the Bohemian Monarchy. The Bohemians are ſtill called Cheques in the Sclavonian Tongue.

CHEFEIER, in Latin Capicerius; it ſignifies the ſame with Primicerius, who was the firſt Perſon in the Catalogue of an Eccleſiaſtical Chapter; as much as to ſay, He was Primus in Cera, or had his Name ſtanding at the Head of the Roll; it being anciently the Cuſtom to write in Tables of Wax. In the time of Gregory the Great, the Primicerius had an Authority over the Inferior Clergy, and the Management of the Quire, it being his Buſineſs to ſee Divine Service decently perform'd: It was likewiſe his Buſineſs to puniſh the Irregular Clergy, and to inform the Biſhop of ſuch as were incorrigible. Father Simon.

CHEKIANG, a Province of China upon the Eaſtern Coaſts, between Nanking and Tokien, the moſt Fruitful and Wealthieſt of all the Country next to Peking and Nanking, for it comprehends Eleven great Cities, whereof each hath its particular Territories, and all together have Command over Sixty three leſſer ones, with ſeveral Boroughs, Caſtles, and Villages. Their great Foreſts of Mulberry Trees fed ſuch vaſt numbers of Silkworms, that they are able not only to ſupply all China and Japan with Silks, but alſo the other Parts of the Indies, and the Kingdoms of Europe. But we muſt not believe what ſome People ſay of theſe Worms, viz. that they Work their Silk without the Help and Induſtry of Man, for this is required as well in this Country as in Europe. They that Work this Silk have the Art to Interweave Gold and Silver, and to repreſent ſeveral things, eſpecially Dragons in it, for the Emperor and great Lords of the Courts uſe, who wear this as a Badge of their Greatneſs. The People of the Country are very Civil and Witty, but mightily given to Superſtition and Idolatry, notwithſtanding there are a great many Chriſtians among 'em. The Country is very pleaſant, being Watered with ſeveral Rivers and Canals form'd by the Induſtry of the Inhabitants, with Magnificent Bridges, ſo that one may Travel both by Land and Water, and that very pleaſantly. Martin Martini.

CHELONIS, Daughter to Leonidas King of Sparta, liv'd in the Seventy fifth Olympiad. This Lady gave great Inſtances of her Juſtice and Good Nature, upon a very nice Occaſion; for her Husband Cleombrotus, having diſpoſſeſſed Leonidas of his Kingdom, ſhe took her Leave of him, and liv'd with her Father to aſſiſt him in his Miſfortunes; and afrerwards, upon Leonidas recovering, and expelling the Uſurper, ſhe quitted her Father's Court, and return'd again to her Husband. Plutarch. In Vit. Agiſ. & Cleomenes.

CHEMNIS, an Iſland of Egypt, believed by the People of that Country to float. Here are ſeen Palm-Trees in abundance, with many other, whereof ſome bear good Fruit, the reſt afford Shade only. There is alſo a great Temple of Apollo deſcribed by Herodotus in the Second Book of his Hiſtory. He alſo talks of a City of this Name in the Country of Thebes near Nea, with a Temple Dedicated to Perſeus, who, as the Chemnites ſaid, appeared to 'em ſometimes riſing out of the Earth, and at other times in the Temple.

CHEMNITIUS, (Martin) a German Lutheran Miniſter, born at Britzen in the Marquiſate of Brandenburg in 1522. He was a great Divine, and a conſiderable Mathematician, particularly in Aſtronomy; He was very much eſteem'd by the Princes of his own Communion, who often made uſe of him in the Publick Affairs of the Church. He died in 1586. His Works are, Harmonia Evangeliorum. Examen Concilii Tridentini. A Treatiſe againſt the Jeſuits, &c. Thuan. Hiſt. Lib. 84. Melchior in Vit. Theol. Germ. &c.

CHEOPES, or Cheops, King of Egypt, ſucceeded Rhampſinet, but it's not known what Age he lived in. He ſhut up the Temples, prohibited Sacrifices, and commanded that all ſhould Work for him, employing One hundred thouſand Men continually for Ten years to dig Stones in the Quarries of the Mountains of Arabia, and to draw 'em to the Nile: After this he ſpent Ten years more to build thoſe prodigious Pyramids which have been deſervedly looked upon as one of the Worlds Wonders. Theſe vaſt Expences drain'd his Treaſury ſo much, that he ſhamefully proſtituted his Daughter for Money to go on with the Work. Herodotus ſays he Reigned Fifty years, which makes ſome think that he is the ſame Chemmis or Chammos of whom Diodorus ſpeaks. Herodotus.

CHEPHENES, Brother to Cheops King of Egypt, and his Succeſſor, Reign'd Fifty ſix years, and built a Pyramid as his Predeceſſor did: Both their Memories became ſo odious to the Egyptians, that they would not ſo much as pronounce their Names, but held that the Pyramids were built by one Philiſtion, a Shepherd that kept his Flocks about this place. Diodorus calls him Chephres, and ſays, that they who named him Chabris, maintained he was Son not Brother to Chemmis. Herodotus.

The CHEQ, Prince of Mecca, who is as it were High Prieſt of the Law, and Soveraign Pontif of all the Mahometans of whatever Sect or Countrey they be. The Grand Signior ſends him every year a rich Carpet, a ſumptuous Tent, with a great Sum of Money to provide for all the Pilgrims during the Seventeen days of their Devotion: And to make the Expences appear conſiderable the Cheq makes the Mahometans believe that there come yearly Seventy thouſand Pilgrims of both Sexes to Meccha, and that if this number ſhould happen not to be compleat, that then Angels would aſſume Mens Bodies to make it up. As for the Carpet and Tent they are very rich Pieces, as well for the goodneſs of the Stuff they are made of, as alſo for their other Ornaments. The Carpet is to cover Mahomet's Tomb, and the Tent is pitch't oppoſite to the Moſque for the Cheq to live in during the Seventeen days of his Devotion, who, when the year is over, ſends Pieces of this Carpet and Tent to ſeveral Mahometan Princes, and they ſend him great Preſents in exchange: He makes 'em believe, that in ſticking a Piece of the Curtain that environ'd Mahomet's Tent to theirs, they cannot fail of being Victorious over their Enemies whom he calls Infidels. He never ſends the whole Tent or Carpet to any Meaner Perſon than the Great Mogul or Cham of Tartary, and this he does once in Ten years, firſt to the one, and afterwards to the other. Beſides the Gains he has by theſe Cunning Practices, all the Gifts that are ſent either to Mecca or Medina, belong to him, which with the Pilgrims Expences, when they live upon their own Purſes after the Seventeen days are expired, amount to an immenſe Sum. Yet it's to be obſerved that at Mecca there are no other Reliques of this falſe Prophet Mahomet but one of his Slippers, for his Tomb is at Medina. Tavernier.

CHER, in Latin Caris, a River which riſes in Auvergne near Clermont, and running North-weſt through Berry, and on the South-ſide of Tours; a little below this laſt it falls into the Loire.

CHERAZOUL, a Town of Curdiſtan, upon the Road between Nineve, or Moſul, and Iſpahan, built on a ſteep Rock for a quarter of a League together; The Houſes having Ladders, ſome of fourteen or ſixteen Steps to go up to them, with no other Doors but great Mill Stones, which ſhut up or open a paſſage, according as they are roul'd in or out in the Places circled for that purpoſe: Above theſe Houſes, which look like Neſts in a Mountain, are Caves, or great Cellars, where the Inhabitants ſhut up their Cattle, which makes People think that this Place has formerly been a ſtrong Retreat to defend the Frontiers againſt the Incurſions of the Arabians, and Bedovins of Diarbek. Tavernier.

CHERBOURG, in Latin Caroburgus, a Town of France, on the Coaſts of Normandy, near Harfleur and Beaumont, has a good Port, and was the laſt which the Engliſh kept in Charles the Seventh's Reign, but loſt it in 1453.

CHEREAS, Captain of the Emperor Caligula's Guards, putting himſelf at the Head of thoſe who had Conſpir'd againſt that Prince, kill'd him as he was going from the Theater to the Bath; nor did he content himſelf with this, but ſent to kill the Empreſs Ceſonia and her Daughter: Yet, though he rid Rome of a cruel Monarch, hated by all People, and open'd his Uncle Claudius a way to come to the Empire, he was Sentenced to Die by that ſame Claudius, who thought Emperors were not ſafe whilſt ſuch deſperate Fellows liv'd. It's ſaid he ſuffered with great Reſolution, and ask'd a Soldier that ſtood by, Whether his Sword did cut well? and deſir'd they might bring him that wherewith he had kill'd Caligula; which being brought, it deprived him of Life with one Blow. Joſephus, Philo.

CHERIF, (or Xeriſ) in the Arabick Tongue, ſignifies a Prince or great Lord The Turks give their Emperor this Name, as well as that of Sultan. The Prince of Meccha aſſumes it too, and the Emperor of Suz, who is King of Tafilet, Fez, and Morocco, takes the Title of Cherif of Cherifs: Their Riſe in Africa was about 180 years ago; The firſt that made himſelf then Sovereign being an Alfaqui, or Doctor of Mahomet's Law, who appeared in 1508. under the Name of Mahomet Benhamet, otherwiſe called Cherif Huſceen: He pretended his Deſcent from their Prophet, and took the Name of Cherif, as proper to him for that Reaſon. He had Three Sons, Abdel Quivir, Hamet, and Mahamed, whom he ſent in Pilgrimage to Meccha and Medina, thus to gain 'em Reputation amongſt the Africans. At their return they became of the Morabites Sect, which got them the Reputation of very Holy Men amongſt all the Barbarians. After this, he ſends the Two youngeſt, who were very able Scholars, to Fez, to Diſpute for a Chair in the College of Modaraca, which was given to the Eldeſt of the Two; and the other was made Preceptor to the King's Children. But the Father, who ſtill aim'd higher, put 'em upon asking the King Leave to go and Fight the Chriſtians, who began to be very Powerful in Africa, and to Maintain Mahomet's Law by the Sword, which the Quality of Cherifs oblig'd 'em to. The King, though he foreſaw of what dangerous Conſequence it might be to give 'em a Privilege, that by joining the Title of Protector of the People, to that of Cherif, would enable 'em to do what they pleas'd; yet deluded with their apparet Holineſs, he permitted that they might publiſh a Gazie againſt the Chriſtians, (which is the ſame amongſt them as our Croiſade) and allow'd 'em a general Tithe for the Maintenance of the numerous Army they rais'd by marching up and down the Country, with Drums and Banners, for People to come in to them. In 1514. they went as far as Tarudant in the Province of Sus, where having gain'd the Chief of the Country to their ſide, they, with their Father, took the Title of Governors of Tarudant, Dara, and afterwards of Sus it ſelf. The Father Dies about this time, but the Sons, as Ambitious as ever for Rule, attack'd the Governor of Saſi, took him Priſoner, with ſeveral other Portugueſe Gentlemen, but loſt Abdel-Quivir in the Fight; yet this Victory fluſh'd 'em ſo much, that in 1519. they reſolv'd to make themſelves Maſters of the Kingdom of Morocco, to eſtabliſh their Power before their Hypocriſie was diſcovered. In this Deſign they went to Morocco, and found Means to make the King away, ſome ſay by Poiſon, others, That he was Stab'd in a private Conference that they drew him to. Immediately after they ſeized the Caſtle; and the Eldeſt declares himſelf King, as Kinſman to Mahomet, and therefore Lawful Heir to their Crown; And the youngeſt ſtyl'd himſelf Viceroy and Governor of Tarudant; And a little after Hemet call'd himſelf King of all Africa, which irritated the King of Fez to that Degree, that he laid Siege to Morocco, but was forc'd to raiſe it, and returning afterwards with a more Powerful Army, was utterly Defeated, and loſt his Son, with all his Artillery and Baggage; after which, theſe Cherifs Beſieged Tafilet in Numidia, and carried it in 1536. Mahamed King of Sus, took the Town of St. Croix, of Holy Croſs, at Cap Aguer, from the King of Portugal, and became ſo formidable, that this Prince was forced to quit moſt of the Places that belonged to him upon thoſe Coaſts. But in the midſt of theſe Succeſſes, Ambition ſets both the Brothers at Variance, and occaſions a Bloody War: For Mahamed, the Youngeſt, but moſt Valiant, and beſt Beloved by the People, denies to Obey the Eldeſt's Order, from whom he held Sus: Whereupon Hamet ſets forth from Morocco to compel him, but is beaten and taken, yet ſet at Liberty ſoon after, and an Agreement made in 1543. that they ſhould ſhare a-like in their future Conqueſts. Hamet finding himſelf thus free, rais'd a ſecond Army, but is likewiſe beaten a ſecond time, and his Town of Morocco taken; yet Mahamed uſed him very kindly, ſending him to Command in Tafilet, and promiſing to reſtore his Children to his Eſtate. After this, Mahamed ſtill uneaſie when out of Action, picks a Quarrel with the King of Fez, brings him to a Battel, where both he and his Son are taken Priſoners in 1547. and both ſet at Liberty the year after:

But Three Months after Mahamed leads a great Army before Fez, makes himſelf Maſter of the Palace, Marries one of the Kings Daughters, but ſends himſelf to Morocco, ſo that he remain'd poſſeſs'd of the Town, and of the greateſt part of the Country. A little after he ſent Three of his Sons againſt Tremecen, which was delivered them by the Turk that Commanded there upon their firſt Summons; Then, upon Suſpicion that the King of Fez was perſuading the People of Morocco to Rebel, he got him and his Children all put to Death: But the Turks of Algier having retaken Tremecen, and coming near Fez, obliged him to take the Field, becauſe that Town has the Privilege of making Conditions for it ſelf, when the Prince is unable to keep the Enemy above half a Leagues diſtance from it: And having loſt the Battel fled to Morocco, leaving the Turks to Plunder the Town, which he retook again in 1555. but was kill'd ſoon after by ſome of the 1200 Turks of his Guards, as he was upon his Journey to Sus with a great Body of Horſe. His Son Abel Munen purſued the Murtherers, and recover'd his Fathers Treaſure, which they were carrying off to Tremecen; And in the mean time, the Governor of Morocco, leſt thoſe unconſtant People might Rebel, and Proclaim Hamet, Brother to the Deceas'd King, he cut his and his Seven Sons Throats; ſo that both the Brothers coming thus to untimely ends, Muley Abdala, Mahamed's Son, was left in quiet Poſſeſſion of the Empire. This left the Crown to Mahamed the Black, who being deprived of his Right by his Uncles Melic and Hamed, called Sebaſtian King of Portugal to his Aſſiſtance: They were both kill'd in the Battel of 1578. and Hamed kept the Poſſeſſion. The Cherif of Fez calls himſelf the Cherif of Cherifs, and is now in Poſſeſſion of the Empire of Sus, the Two Kingdoms of Tafilet, Fez, Morocco, and Tegorarin. Marmol. Thuan.

CHERILUS, a Greek Poet, born at Samos, deſcrib'd the Victory that the Athenians gain'd over Xerxes. This Poem was ſo fine that they gave him a Stater (about Half a Crown of our Money) for every Verſe, and order'd that it ſhould be publickly rehears'd every year with the Works of Homer. 'Tis ſaid that he died at the Court of Archelaus, King of Macedonia, who had a great Value for him. Lilius Giraldus De Poet. Suidas, &c.

CHERONEA, a Town of Bœotia, Famous for the Battel gain'd by Philip of Macedon in the 416th year of Rome, over the Athenians; and no leſs Famous for Plutarch's Birth.

CHERSONESUS, Aurea, or Golden Cherſoneſus, a Peninſula of Indus, on the other ſide of the River Ganges, which comprehends not only the Peninſula now called Malaca, but alſo Sumatra, ſince ſeparated from it: Several have thought that it was the Ophir Salomon ſent his Ships to. Cherſoneſus is the ſame in Latin with Peninſula. There are beſides this Golden, the Cimbric Cherſoneſus or Jutland, belonging to the King of Denmark; there is likewiſe the Thracian and Tauric Cherſoneſus, frequent in the Writings of the Ancients.

CHERTSEY, a Market Town of Chertſey Hundred in the North Weſt Parts of Surrey, with a Bridge over the Thames, noted in the Popiſh Times for its Rich Monaſtery. King Henry being made away in the Tower of London, was Interr'd here in a private manner, but afterwards removed to Windſor.

CHERUBINI, (Laertio) born at Norcia, an Epiſcopal See in Umbria, Eminent in his Profeſſion from Pope Sixtus the Fifth to the beginning of the Reign of Urban the Eighth, in which he died in 1626. He made a Collection of the Conſtitutions and Bulls of the Popes, from Leo the Firſt downwards, and publiſh'd that Body of Collections called Bullarium. Angelo-Maria-Cherubini, his Son, a Monk of Montcaſſin, made great Additions to it, and publiſh'd it, as now extant, in Four Volumes. Janus Nicius Erithræus Pinac. III. Imag. Illuſt.

CHERUBINS, Angels of the Second Rank of the Firſt Hierarchy. Joſephus in the Third Book of the Jewiſh Antiquities, ſpeaking of the Two Cherubins that covered the Ark, ſays, They were Wing'd, and did not reſemble any of the Creatures, which we know, that Moſes repreſented them in the very Form in which they appear'd to him on the Throne of God. But as for Ezechiel's Cherubins, their Figure is expreſly mark'd, viz. a Man, a Lion, an Ox, and an Eagle; but Authors do not agree, whether each had a particular Figure, or whether each had the Four. Vilalpandus is for the laſt; and believes that each Cherubin had a Shape compos'd of all Four, viz. the Face and Arms of a Man, the Wings of an Eagle, a Lions Panch, and Calfs Feet, and thinks that the Cherubins of the Ark were the ſame too. See Spencer. De Legibus Hebr. Ritualibus, Lib. 3.

CHERUBINS, a Military Order of Swedeland, inſtituted in 1334. according to Siegler, by Magnus IV. King of that Kingdom, in Memory of the Metropolitan See of Upſale. The Collar of this Order was compos'd of Cherubins of Gold, Enamell'd with red, and of Patriarchal Croſſes without Enamel, in the middle. At the bottom hung an Oval, with the Word Jeſus in Gold; and four little Nails Enamell'd black and white, to expreſs our Saviour's Paſſion. But Charles the Ninth, when he baniſh'd Popery, aboliſh'd this Order. Favyn.

CHESNE, a Suburb of Chalcedoine, where Theophilus of Alexandria, and above Thirty Prelates of his Party, held a falſe Synod in 403. againſt St. John Chryſoſtom, who was Cited thither to anſwer what John his Deacon alledged againſt him, a Man that was Depos'd ſome time before by this Holy Prelate for his Vicious Life. Paul, Biſhop of Heraclea, having ſumm'd up the Votes, St. Chryſoſtom was Depos'd, and ſent in Exile to Pienet in Bithynia; but an Earthquake that happened the next day after his departure, and overthrew part of the Emperor Arcadius's Chamber, made him recall him again. Socrat. Theod. &c.

CHESNE, (Andrew of) a French Man of Touraine, one of the ableſt Hiſtorians of our Age, and in great Requeſt for his Knowledge and other good Parts. He Writ ſeveral good Treatiſes when Geographer and Hiſtoriographer to the French King; As, His Hiſtory of England, Antiquities of the Towns of France; His Hiſtory of Cardinals, Authors, &c. and died of a fall out of a Chariot as he came from the Country to Paris in 1640. Towards the end of his Life he publiſh'd an incomparable and very laborious Work, containing an Account of the Authors who wrote the Hiſtory of France; He publiſh'd the Firſt Volume in 1633. It comprehends an Account of the French Writers from Pharamond down to his own time; Afterwards he publiſh'd Three Tomes more; and after his death, Francis Du Cheſne his Son, a Lawyer, Printed a Fifth Volume, and likewiſe Printed a Hiſtory of the Popes and Cardinals, and ſome other Pieces.

CHESNE Ghirbaſchi, one of the Twelve Principal Officers of the Grand Signior, and the Chief of the Sultan's Taſters. Ricaut. Turk. Hiſt.

CHESHIRE, Lat. Comitatus Ceſtrienſis, a Maritime County in the North Weſt Parts of England, is bounded on the North with Lancaſhire, on the South with Shropſhire, and part of Flintſhire in Wales, Eaſtward with Derby and Staffordſhires, and Weſtward with Dee, which parts it from Denbighſhire in Wales, ſo that it reaches in length from Eaſt to Weſt, about Forty five Miles, in Breadth from North to South Twenty five. The whole divided into Seven Hundreds, wherein are Fourteen Market Towns, and Eighty ſix Pariſhes. In this County, amongſt others, dwelt the Cornavii in the time of the Romans: In the Heptarchy 'twas a Province of the Kingdom of Mercia, and now it makes part of the Dioceſs of Cheſter. Here the Air and Soil equals the beſt, and exceeds that of the Neighbouring Counties: For though the Climate be Cold, touching the 54th Degree of the North Latitude, yet the warmth from the Iriſh Seas ſeldom lets the Snow lie long on the Ground, and diſſolves the Ice ſooner than in thoſe Parts that lie farther off. In ſhort, the Air is Healthful, the Soil Rich and Fruitful, both in Corn and Paſturage: But it excels in Three Things, viz. Salt, Cheeſe, and Mill Stones. The firſt made in great plenty out of the Salt Pits of Nantwich, Northwich, and Middlewich; The Mill Stones, both great and good, are digg'd up at a Hill call'd Mowcop Hill. Beſides the River Dee, which ſeveres this County from Wales, here are others of good Note, particularly the Merſey and Wever, which yield plenty of Fiſh; and ſo do the ſeveral Meers and Pools this County is watered withal. Amongſt which, that called Bag-Meer, lying near Brereton, the Seat of the Honourable Family of that Name, is celebrated for this Prodigy; That before the Death of any Heir of that Houſe, the Bodies of Trees are ſeen to Swim upon this Meer: Theſe are Fir-Trees, which, notwithſtanding the Moiſture of the Ground, they have been for many Ages preſerved ſound, black within as Ebony, and us'd by Carvers to inlay Wooden Utenſils, which is thought to be done by ſome clammy Bituminous ſubſtance about them that prevented their Putrefaction. The Gentry of this Country are remarkable, ſaith Dr. Fuller, for four Things: Firſt, For their numerouſneſs not to be parallell'd in England, in the like extent of Ground, which makes this County better ſtor'd with Parks than any other; Secondly, For their Antiquity, many of their Anceſtors being fixt here before the Norman Conqueſt; Thirdly, For their Loyalty, which King Richard the Second was ſo well ſatisfied in, that in Troubleſome Times he ſent for 2000 Cheſhiremen, all Archers, to attend him; Fourthly, For their Hoſpitality, no County keeping better Houſes. This County was reputed a Palatinate before the Conqueſt, and has ſince continued in the ſame Dignity; in that reſpect much Senior to Lancaſhire: And though it has been long ſince reannexed to the Crown, yet it ſtill holds the Rights and Privileges of a County Palatine. The Market Towns, beſides the City of Cheſter, which gives Name to the whole County, are Altringham, Congleton, Haulton, Knotsford, Middlewich, Nantwich, Northwich, Stopford, Tervin, &c.

CHESTER, Lat. Ceſtria, the Principal Place of Cheſhire, and a Biſhop's See in the Province of York, is 150 miles from London to the North Weſt, firſt rais'd, as my Author ſays, from the Fort of Oſtorius, Lieutenant of Britain, for Claudius the Emperor, and pleaſantly ſeated on the North Banks of the River Dee, about 20 Miles from its fall into the Iriſh Seas, widening it ſelf all the way from Cheſter to a great breadth; But unhappily the Channel is ſo choakt up with Sand for ſome Miles, that Ships dare not venture up the River further than the New Key about ſix Miles below Cheſter; Over the River there is a fair Stone Bridge, with eight Arches, and at each end a Gate, from whence iſſues the City Wall, that takes up two Miles. This City lies upon a ſquare, and has four Gates for entrance, beſides three Poſterns. The Wall is Built with Seven Watch-Towers, and broad Battlements for Pieces of Ordnance. On the South ſide is a ſtrong built Caſtle of a Circular Form, with a Caſe Court incloſed with a Wall. All along the Principal Streets there is before the Houſes a covered kind of Gallery for People to walk dry from one end to the other. The Houſes for the moſt part are fair and well built; the Town in general both Populous and Rich, much reſorted unto of late years by the Forces in their March for Ireland; Cheſter being their uſual thorough fair in order to their Imbarkment for that Kingdom; whoſe Vicinity to theſe Parts, affords in ſettled times ſuch an opportunity for conſtant Intercourſe, that the main Trade of Cheſter is with Ireland. In ſhort, this City is of ſuch compaſs, ſo well frequented both by Gentry and others, as to contain Eleven Pariſhes. One Thing there is which conduces much to the Proſperity of it, which is, its being a County Palatine, the Rights and Privileges whereof it enjoys to this day, though it has been long ſince Annexed to the Crown: For the due Adminiſtration of which Rights, here is a Chamberlain, a Juſtice for the Common Pleas of the Crown, Two Barons of the Exchequer, a Sheriff, an Eſcheator, and other Officers, to the great Eaſe of the Country in Expedition of their Buſineſs. The Cathedral was firſt a Monaſtery, Founded by Leofrick, once an Officiary Count in theſe Parts, and by him Dedicated to St. Werburga the Virgin; but afterwards Repair'd, Beautify'd, and Indowed by Hugh Sirnamed Lupus, the firſt Earl of Cheſter. In this State it continued till the Reign of Henry the Eighth, who of a Monaſtery made it an Epiſcopal See; and having Ejected the Monks, ſubſtituted a Dean and Prebendaries; ſo that Cheſter is one of the Six new Biſhopricks Erected by that King, the other Five being Briſtol, Oxford, Gloceſter, Peterborough, and Weſtminſter, which laſt continued but Nine years a Biſhoprick. Thus King Henry having had the Spoil of the Monaſteries in the general Diſſolution of them under his Reign, was pleaſed to Refund back again ſome of it upon the Church. And as for that of Cheſter it was anciently in the Dioceſe of Lichfield, one of the Biſhops whereof removed his See hither, Anno 1073. as the more remarkable Place: And though it continued ſo no longer than his time, yet it gave occaſion many times for his Succeſſors to be called Biſhops of Cheſter. But when King Henry the Eighth Erected it into an Epiſcopal See, it was made up of the Two Arch-Deaconries of Richmond and Cheſter; of which the firſt had Juriſdiction over Richmondſhire, (in the County of York) and part of Cumberland; the other over Lancaſhire and Cheſhire. In which Counties, this Dioceſe contains Two hundred fifty ſix Pariſhes, whereof One hundred and one Impropriate. 'Tis valued in the King's Books, 420 l. 1 s. 8 d. the Clergy paying for their Tenth the yearly Sum of 435 l. 12 s. The Earls of Cheſter were anciently counted Palatines; for when William the Conqueror gave this Earldom to his Noble Norman, Hugh Lupus, he gave it him to be holden as freely by his Sword, as the King himſelf held England by his Crown. The laſt that held it was Simon de Montford, after whoſe Death it fell to the Crown, and has been ſince United to the Principality of Wales; ſo that the Eldeſt Son of England is by Birth Earl of Cheſter.

CHESTERFIELD, a Market Town of Scarſdale, part of Derbyſhire, pleaſantly ſeated between the Ibbe and the Rother, on the Southſide of a little Hill, and that in a fertile Soil; By the Ruins of it it ſeems to be of good Antiquity. Near this Place was the Battel fought between King Henry the Third and his Barons, in which Robert de Ferrans, Earl of Derby, was taken Priſoner. King Charles the Firſt made it an Earldom in the Perſon of Philip Lord Stanhop of Shelford, to whom ſucceeded in that Title his Grandchild Philip the preſent Earl of Cheſterfield.

CHEW, a King of China, the laſt of the Family of Xanga. This Prince was Manag'd by his Wife Takia, a Handſom, but a very Cruel and Unreaſonable Princeſs: The Aſcendant ſhe had over him made his Government intolerable, inſomuch that the Great Men of the Kingdom ſet the Crown upon Change's Head, who dying ſoon after, was ſucceeded by his Son Fau. This Fau gain'd a Battel againſt Chew, who afterwards ſhut up himſelf in his Palace, and ſet fire to't: Queen Takia was taken, and loſt her Head for her Cruelty. Paul Pezron. Antiq. des Temps.

CHEWTON, or Chewton-Mendip, a Market Town in Somerſetſhire, Capital of its Hundred, from London Ninety ſix Miles.

CHIAOUS, Officers belonging to the Grand Signior. There's about Five or Six hundred of 'em, and their Captain is call'd Chiaous-Baſchi, and has a conſiderable Poſt: They frequently meet in the Grand Viſier's Palace, that they may be in a readineſs to Execute his Orders, and carry his Letters and Diſpatches into all the Provinces of the Empire, as occaſion ſerves. The Sultan likewiſe Employs 'em in Embaſſies. They carry a Batoon Silver'd over, and their Arms are a Cimitar and a Bow and Arrows. Ricaut. Turk. Hiſt.

CHIAPA, a Province of New Spain, in Northern America, which took its Name from the Borough Chiupa, remarkable for its good Horſes. The Chief Town is Ciudad Real, a Biſhoprick, Suffragan of the Archbiſhoprick of Mexico. The Province for theſe ſeveral Ages has been Peopled by Four Nations. The firſt called Chiapa, furniſh Men of Excellent Underſtanding, the moſt Poliſh'd and Civiliz'd of all New Spain, very expert in Muſick, Painting, and all other Arts, eſpecially Breeding and Tameing brave and bold Horſes; The ſecond is that of the Zoques or Zoaques; The Third of the Zeltales; And the Fourth of the Quelenes: Theſe have their ſeparate Territories well ſtock'd with ſmall Villages and Boroughs, and Form as it were ſo many Commonwealths. The Town of Ciudad Real is Govern'd by Magiſtrates choſen amongſt the Burgeſſes of the Town by a particular Privilege allow'd them by the King of Spain. Here is a River call'd Gryalua, which Breeds certain Beaſts not to be found in any other place: They reſemble Munkeys, have a long Tail, and are all ſpotted like Tygers; They hide themſelves generally under Water; and if they ſee any Man or Beaſt Swim by, they twiſt their Tail about a Leg or Arm to draw them to the bottom; and yet it has never been obſerv'd that they Eat them. There is alſo another River call'd Rio Blanco, which as it were Petrifies Wood thrown into it, yet is clear, and does no harm to Man or Beaſt that Drinks thereof. Here are alſo ſeveral wonderful Springs: Some Flow and Ebb; and one near Tafixa yields Water in abundance for three years, let the Weather be never ſo dry; and the next three after, let it Rain never ſo much, it has not a drop; There is a Third that overflows in Summer, and is dry all Winter; A Fourth which Cures all External Ailments that require the application of a Cautery, but kills either Bird or Beaſt that Drinks thereof. There is beſides theſe, a Well, into which if one throws a Stone it will cauſe Thunder, and a great Storm; And near the Borough of Chicomuzelo is a Cave, very narrow at the entry, but ſpacious within, with a Lake on one ſide, the Water whereof is very clear, though it Stagnates, and is two Fathom deep towards the Banks. The Province of Chiapa was formerly in great Eſteem for the great quantity of Gold drawn thence; nor does it now want rich Veins, if there were Slaves enough to work them. There are alſo good Mines of Silver, and other Metals, which remain untouch'd. To the South of Ciudad Real is the Mountain Ecatepec, of ſuch a prodigious height, that one muſt go Nine Leagues before he can come to the top; nor is there any time for this but Night, for the Sun is no ſooner up but there riſes ſuch a great Wind and Storm that a Man can't ſtand on his Feet. De Laet.

CHIAVENNA, a Burrough in the Country of the Griſons, and gives the Title of an Earldom; It ſtands upon the River Meira, which joins the Adda, and are both diſcharg'd into the Lake of Como.

CHICHELEY, (Henry) Archbiſhop of Canterbury, born at Higham-Ferrers in Northamptonſhire, a Perſon of great Worth. King Henry the Fourth, after ſeveral conſiderable Church Preferments, ſent him Ambaſſador to Pope Gregory the Twelfth, who was ſo well ſatisfied with his Abilities and Behaviour, that he made him Biſhop of St. David's, and Conſecrated him himſelf. In this Station he aſſiſted at the Council of Piſa, in 1409. After the Death of King Henry the Fourth, Biſhop Chicheley was much in Favour with King Henry the Fifth, who ſent him Ambaſſador to King Charles the Sixth of France, and John Duke of Burgundy, who were then upon ill Terms with each other; and upon the Deceaſe of Thomas Arundel Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Chicheley was choſen Archbiſhop in his Place; Afterwards he Crown'd Catharine of France, King Henry the Fifth's Queen, and Chriſten'd King Henry the Sixth. In 1424. he founded a College in Higham-Ferrars, and in 1440. he Dedicated the Chapel of All-Souls in Oxford, which he founded, and made ſome Statutes for the Government of that Society: In ſhort, he was a great Benefactor to the Univerſity of Oxford, and to the Church of Canterbury, and allow'd Penſions to ſeveral Learned Men. He died in 1443. and was buried in the Cathedral of Canterbury, in a Tomb made by himſelf, upon which was plac'd his Statue of White Marble, with an Epitaph, giving an Account of his Negotiations and Preferment. Pits, &c.

CHICHESTER, Lat. Ciceſtria, a Biſhops See in Suſſex, 58 Miles diſtant S. W. and by S. from London. It was Built by Ciſſa the Second, King of the South Saxons, whoſe Royal Seat it was; it ſtands in a Plain on the Banks of the Levant, wherewith the beſt part of it is encompaſſed, and from whence it runs Southward into the Sea, whereinto it empties it ſelf about 10 Miles from Chicheſter, a City conſiſting of 5 or 6 Pariſhes, circular in its Form, and incompaſs'd with good Walls. The Buildings are generally fair: The Streets large and ſpacious; four of which leading from the four Gates of the City, croſs one another in the midſt; and near the Croſs is a fine Market Place, ſupported round about with Pillars, which was Built by Biſhop Read. Before the See was removed hither, the Town was of little Note, but for its ſmall Monaſtery, Dedicated to St. Peter, and a little Nunnery. Wilfred Archbiſhop of York was he that planted the See in that Iſland, who being Baniſh'd his Country by Egfrid King of the Northumbers, came to Suſſex, and Preach'd the Goſpel there. Selſey was aſſign'd to him for his Seat by Eddwach the South Saxon King, Anno 687. And after Cedwal King of the Weſt Saxons had Conquer'd this Kingdom, he built a Monaſtery in the ſaid Iſland, which he made the Biſhop's See: Here it continued till the time of Stigand, who firſt remov'd the See to Chicheſter, Anno 1070. The Cathedral Church, anciently Dedicated to St. Peter, was new built by Rodulphus the Third Biſhop here, which being ſoon after burnt down, was Rebuilt and Beautified by Siffriddus, the ſecond of that Name. This Dioceſe contains only the County of Suſſex, in which is 250 Pariſhes, whereof 112 Impropriated. 'Tis valued in the Kings Books at 677 l. 1 s. 3 d. and anſwers for the Tenth of the Clergy 287 l. 2 s. The Biſhops hereof, according to an ancient Charter, were formerly Confeſſors to the Queens of England, and had Allowance for the ſame. Laſtly, This City has alſo been Honour'd with the Title of an Earldom, in the Perſon of Francis Leigh, Lord Dunſmore, Created Earl of Chicheſter by King Charles I. Anno 1644. but the Title dying with him, it was Reviv'd in his Grace Charles Fitz-Roy, Lord Limerick, Created Baron of Newburg, Earl of Chicheſter, and Duke of Southampton, by King Charles II. in 1675.

CHIELEFA, a Town of Tzaconia, or Braccio di Maina in the Morea, built a Mile and a half off the Sea, upon a Hill, and Fortified with five Towers. It was taken by General Moroſini upon Compoſition in 1685. and the Garriſon conducted according to Articles to the Place agreed on. The Turks endeavoured to retake it again the year after, but were beat off, and all their Rich Camp taken by the Venetians, who found in this Town above 50 Pieces of Cannon. Coronelli, Deſcription of the Morea.

CHIFLET, or Chifletius, (John James) a Phyſician born at Beſançon in 1588. He was Phyſician to Philip the Fourth King of Spain, who had a great Eſteem for him; in Requital to theſe Favours he wrote his Vindiciæ Hiſpanicæ, being a Juſtification of the Quarrels of Spain againſt France; which Book was anſwer'd by Blundel and others. Chifletius wrote other Pieces more ſerviceable to his Reputation, as the Hiſtory of Beſançon, Intituled, Veſuntio Civitas Imperialis libera Sequanorum Metropolis. The Hiſtory of the Knights of the Golden Fleece. De Loco Legitimo Concilii Eponenſis. De Linteis Sepulchralibus Chriſti Servatoris. Portus Iccius Julii Cæſaris demonſtratus, &c. John Chifletius's Son, a Lawyer at Beſançon, was a good Linguiſt, and particularly an Hebrecian, who, beſides other Treatiſes, Printed a Book in 1642. call'd, Apologetica Parænesis ad Linguam Sanctam. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Miræus De Script. Sec. XVII. &c.

CHILDEBERT the Firſt, Third Son of Clovis I. by St. Clotilde, had in 511. that part of France for his Share which was call'd the Kingdom of Paris. His Brothers, who were Ambitious of Reigning alone, were firſt of all his Enemies, until the Mothers Intereſt united the Three to Revenge their Grandfather's Death on Sigiſmond and Gondamer, Kings of Burgundy. Afterwards Childebert, upon a falſe Rumour of the Death of his Brother Thierry in Thuringia, enter'd Auvergne, where hearing that his Brother was ſtill alive and Victorious, he return'd home to undertake a Juſter Expedition againſt Amalaric, an Arian, King of the Viſigoths, who abus'd his Wife Clotilde, King Childebert's Siſter, upon the account of her Religion; and after overcoming him, join'd his Brother Clotaire, and conſented to the Death of his Nephews, Sons to Clodomir King of Orleans, and ſeiz'd part of their Kingdom; Then he Quarrell'd with his Brother Clotaire, but this was ſoon over, and Clotaire accompanied him in his ſecond Voyage to Spain in 542. where he laid Siege to Saragoſſa, but rais'd it again; when the Biſhop of the Town preſented him with the Stole of St. Vincent, Deacon and Martyr; for which St. Childebert at his return built the Church, now called St. Germain of Prez, and Cathedral of Paris, where he himſelf was Buried by St. Germain, Biſhop of that City in 558. having Reign'd 47 years and ſome days: This Prince is Commended for his great Charity towards the Poor, (ſelling his Plate to relieve their Neceſſities) and his no leſs Zeal for the Chriſtian Religion. Gregor. Turon. Ado, &c.

CHILDEBERT the Second, King of Auſtraſia, Son to Sigebert, was but Five years old when his Father was Murdered at the Siege of Tournay by the Emiſſaries of Fredegonde; yet his Mother Brunehaud, then at Paris, carried him to Metz, where he was Crown'd in 575. At the Age of Fourteen he Headed an Army into Italy againſt the Lombards, and ſent another to help the Emperor Maurice, and ſometime after ſucceeded his Uncle Gontran, King of Burgundy, in that Kingdom; yet by a Stratagem of Landri, Major of the Palace, or Court, to Clotaire II. he loſt the Battel of Soiſſons, called that of Truec; He made up this loſs by the taking of Paris, and afterwards by beating the Varnes that had Revolted; He alſo Chaſtiſed Autharis for breaking his Word to him. During all this time Fredegonde did what ſhe could to get him Murther'd, but to no purpoſe; for thoſe ſhe imployed were always diſcovered and Puniſh'd; yet Paulus Diaconus and Haymo ſuſpect that ſhe got him Poiſoned at laſt; for he died much at the ſame time with his Wife Faileube, being but 25 years of Age, whereof he Reign'd 20 King of Auſtraſia, and two in his Uncles Eſtate: He left Two Sons, call'd Theodebert and Thierri II. with a Daughter call'd Theudeline, whom Clotaire took with the Grandmother Brunehaud. Aimoin. Paul. Diac. &c.

CHILDEBERT the Third, Sirnam'd, The Juſt, was Son of Thierri the Firſt, and ſucceeded his Brother Clovis or Lewis the Third. In the year 595. Pepin the Groſs, Major of the Palace, had the whole Adminiſtration of Affairs, Childebert having nothing more than the Name of a King. This Prince was ſucceeded by his Son Dagobert the Second. Fredegarius. Haymo, Lib. 4.

CHILDEBERT, Son of Grimoald, Major of King Sigebert of Auſtraſia's Palace, who made the People believe after that Prince's Death, that he had Adopted his Son, whom upon that pretence he puts upon the Throne, getting Dagobert, Childebert's Son, ſhaved by Dido, Biſhop of Poictiers, and ſent to Ireland. This ſo enraged the Auſtraſians, that being reſolved to rid themſelves of the Father and the Son, they ſeiz'd both, and carried them to Paris, where Clotaire II. ordered that they ſhould be put to Death in 652. Aimoin.

CHILDEBRAND, Son to Pepin the Burley or Big, Deſcended from Fereol, Præfect of the Gauls, was Brother to Charles Martel, who often intruſted him with the Command of his Troops, and was the firſt of the Branch of the French Kings of the Third Race. Fredegaire and his Continuator affirm this in expreſs Terms, as may be ſeen in Gregory of Tours's Supplement. This Childebrand was Nebelong's Father, who had a Son call'd Thiebert or Theodebert, Count of Matrie, a little Country in Normandy, between Eureux and Vernon; After this follows Robert I. then Robert II. call'd the Strong; then Robert III. who was Crown'd King of France in 922. This was Hugh the Great's Father, who begot Hugh Capet, of whom the French Kings of the Third Race are Deſcended. Du Cheſne, &c.

CHILDERIC the Firſt of this Name, ſucceeded his Father Meroveus in 457. but through the Extravagancies of the beginning of his Reign, he was Baniſh'd by a General Rebellion of his Subjects, who put a Roman, call'd Ægidius, or Gillon, Governor of Soiſſons, in his Place. In this Diſtreſs he goes to his Friend Baſin, King of Thuringia, leaving his Truſty Guiemans or Guienemau to labour for his Reſtoration, who ſucceeded ſo well, that he gain'd Gillon's Heart, and put him upon all kind of Violences, ſo that the People wiſh'd their Lawful Sovereign back again; which the Faithful Guiemans no ſooner perceiv'd, but he acquaints Childeric with it, in ſending him as a Sign of his good Succeſs in the Undertaking, the half of a Piece of Gold which they divided at their parting. Thus the Baniſh'd Prince returns after Seven years Exile, and governed his Subjects with much Moderation; took Angers, Orleans, and the Iſles of the Saxons, made a cloſe League with their King Odacre; afterwards defeated the Germans, and Married Baſine, Baſin's Wife, that followed him from Thuringia, on whom he begot Clovis I. his Succeſſor, and Three Daughters: He died in 481. after a Reign of 24 years. P. Æmil. Du Tillet.

CHILDERIC the Second, a young Son of Clovis II. and St. Baudour, ſucceeded his Brother Clotaire III. in the Kingdom of Auſtraſia, in 674. Ebroin, who would put Thierri on the Throne, being Shav'd and Confin'd in the Monaſtery of Luxeüil in Burgundy, and the young Prince put in that of St. Denys. This left Childeric abſolute Maſter of the Kingdom, a Power he abuſed ſo much by his frequent Extravagancies, that he became Odious to all his Subjects, whereupon, Bodillon, one whom he had got ſhamefully whipp'd, kill'd him as he returned from Hunting at the Foreſt of Lanconis near Chelles, in 673. or 677. Du Cheſne, Mabillon.

CHILDERIC the Third, called, the Idiot or Lazy, a Son, a Brother, or Couſin to Thierri II. was the laſt King of the firſt Royal Race of France. He was put on the Throne in 743. by Pepin and Carloman, Sons of Charles Martel, and Succeſſors to his great Power; but in 751. was Shav'd and Confin'd in the Abbey of St. Bertin, near St. Omars in Artois, by the ſame Pepin who got himſelf Crown'd King of France in 752. And thus ended the Race of the Merovingians, who had ſway'd the Scepter of France for 332 years, to count from the 420. that Faramond was acknowledged King. Annal. Fuldenſ. Du Cheſne.

CHILI, a great Country in Southern America, bounded on the Weſt with the Pacifick Sea; on the North with Peru; on the South with the Country of the Patagons, and with the Magellanick Lands on the Eaſt. This Country is very Cold, occaſioned much by the High Mountains Los Andes and Sierra Nevada, which lying Eaſtward deprives it of the Morning Sun; and ſome pretend that its very Name Chili ſignifies Cold in that Country Language: However, it's divided into three Parts, viz. Chili, Imperiale, Chicuito or Cuyo. St. Jago is now its Chief Town, as the Conception, or Arauco, was formerly: Its other Towns are Angol, Vallarica, Oſorno, &c. which, with almoſt all the Country, belong to the Spaniards, ſince Diego Almagro diſcovered it, and was made Governor thereof in 1534. by Charles V. The Soil here is Fruitful, and will bear moſt of what Fruit or Grain is carried thither out of Europe. The Country too is pleaſant enough, only now and then there riſes a Wind that pierces and kills People. Its enrich'd with ſeveral Mines of Gold, and great Quarries of Jaſper; nor does it want Game or Cattel; their Sheep are ſo extraordinary big that they can carry 50 pound weight on their Backs. The Inhabitants are both Daring and Valiant, eſpecially thoſe of the Valleys of Arauco, Puren, Tucapel, and ſome others, not yet altogether under the Spaniſh Subjection; Their Apparel is Beaſts Skins; and they Worſhip the Devil under the Name of Epanomam, that is, Strong and Powerful; yet there are many of thoſe who are Subject to the Spaniſh, that get themſelves Baptiz'd. Chili depends partly on the Viceroy of Peru, but yet has a particular Governor. Garcilaſſo.

CHILIASTS, or Millennaries; a Party of Chriſtians, who believe, that after the General or Laſt Judgment, the Saints ſhall live a Thouſand years upon the Earth, and enjoy all manner of innocent Satisfactions. 'Tis thought Papias Biſhop of Hierapolis, who lived in the Second Century, and was Diſciple to St. John the Evangeliſt, or, as ſome think, to John the Elder, was the Firſt who maintained this Opinion: The Authority of this Biſhop, ſupported by ſome Paſſages in the Revelations, brought a great many of the Primitive Fathers into this Perſuaſion, as Irenæus, Juſtin Martyr, Tertullian, &c. Afterwards Nepos, an Egyptian Biſhop, living in the Third Century, was ſo far engag'd in this Belief, and maintain'd it with ſo much Elocution, that Dionyſius Biſhop of Alexandria, thought himſelf obliged to write againſt him, upon which, Coracion, one of the Principal Abetters of this Doctrine, renounced it publickly, which practice was imitated by the Generality of the reſt. The Millennaries were likewiſe condemn'd by Pope Damaſus, in a Synod held at Rome againſt the Apollinarians. Some of the modern Millennaries have refin'd the Notion of Cerinthus, and made the Satisfactions Rational and Angelical untainted with any thing of Senſuality or Epicuriſm. As for the Time of this Thouſand years, thoſe that hold this Opinion are not perfectly agreed: Mr. Mead makes it to commence and determine before the general Conflagration; but Dr. Burnet ſuppoſes that this World will be firſt Deſtroy'd, and that a new Paradiſaical Earth will be form'd out of the Aſhes of the Old one, where the Saints will Converſe together for a Thouſand years, and then be tranſlated to a higher Station. Epiphanius Hær. 77. *Euſeb. CHILO of Lacedæmonia, number'd amongſt the ſeven Sages of Greece, was made one of the Ephori of Sparta about the 56th Olympiad, the 198th of Rome, and 556th before the Birth of Chriſt. He generally ſaid there were three very difficult things in the World, viz. To keep a Secret; To know how to employ Time; and to bear Injuries without Murmuring. Pliny ſays, he got theſe Precepts engraven in Golden Letters, in the Temple of Delphos, (viz.) That one ought to know himſelf; To deſire no very advantageous Thing; And that Miſery is the conſequence of running in Debt, and being Litigious. It's ſaid, he died of too great Joy, to ſee his Son Crowned at the Olympick Plays.

CHILPERIC, the Firſt of this Name, a younger Brother of Clotaire I. was firſt of all King of Soiſſons in 561. and then of France in 570. after the Death of his Brother Cherebert. He took Arms twice or thrice againſt his younger Brother Sigibert I. King of Auſtraſia, and in 567 made himſelf Maſter of Rheims; in 676 he ſubdued Touraine, Poitou, and Limoſin. This Prince was Witty and Eloquent, conſidering the Times he lived in, and was a Mixture of Virtue and Vice, if that can poſſibly be; for his Deportment to ſome of the Nobility, whom he had forbid his Sight, until they had fulfilled the Penance enjoined them by Ragnemode Biſhop of Paris, for drawing their Swords in St. Denys's Church, pleads for his Piety; as alſo his Diſcharging Gregory of Tours, and Carterie of Periguex upon their Oath, though they were impeached of High-Treaſon. He alſo took Care for the Converſion of the Jews of his Kingdom, and was himſelf God-Father to many of them; but thoſe few good Actions bore but a ſmall Proportion to his numberleſs Tyrannies, for which Gregory of Tours term'd him the Herod and Nero of his Time. He had the Injuſtice to Uſurp his Brother's Territories, and burthen his Subjects with heavy Taxes, deſpiſing, through his great Pride, all the reſt of Mankind. He Marry'd Audovera, whom he ſent away becauſe ſhe ſtood God-Mother to her own Daughter. Afterwards he took Galſonte, Daughter to Athanagilde, King of the Viſigoths, but got her Strangled in her Bed to pleaſe his Concubine Fredegonde, whom he lov'd to that degree, that he committed the vileſt things in the World, and even Sacrificed his proper Children at her Requeſt; but ſhe at laſt Sacrificed him to her Gallant Landri de la Tour, who at her Perſuaſion, kill'd Chilperic at Chelles, as he was returning from Hunting, in 584. after 23 years Reign. Mezeray, Gregor. Turon.

CHILPERIC the Second, at firſt called Daniel, was, according to ſome Hiſtorians, Son to Childeric II. and after Clotaire the Fourth's Death, was taken out of the Cloiſter by Rainfroy, Major of the Palace, Charles Martel's Competitor. It was he that made him take the Name of Chilperic, giving him the Sirname Clerc; but both were beat by Charles on ſeveral Occaſions, eſpecially at the Battel of Vinciac near Cambray, on Sunday the 21ſt of Mar. 717. Charles alſo won the Battel of Soiſſons in 718. about which time, the falſe Clotaire, whom he cunningly oppoſed to this King, died, which made him ſend to Eudes, Duke of the Gaſcons, for this Chilperic, who died at Noyon in 720. Greg. de Tours. His Continuator.

CHILTERN Hills in Buckinghamſhire, through which they run in the very midſt, yielding a large and pleaſant Proſpect from the Top; formerly they were overſpread with Woods, and then a Receptacle of Robbers; but ſince Leofſtan, Abbot of St. Albans, cauſed them to be cut down, the Paſs grew leſs dangerous.

CHIMAY, upon a River of the Low-Country in Hainault, called La Blanche, or the White, has the Title of Principality, and is at the Entrance of the Foreſts, ſix Leagues from Avenes; Notwithſtanding what it has ſuffered by the almoſt continual Wars, it is now very well recovered, and has a fine Caſtle.

CHIMERA, a Mountain of Lycia that caſts out Smoak and Flame in the Night, which gave Poets occaſion to feign a Monſter with a Lyon's Head, having a Body like a Goat, and Dragon's Tail; and add, that this odd Beaſt was killed by Bellerophon. The truth is, that the top of this Mountain was ſeldom without Lyons, nor the middle, which had very good Graſs, without herds of Goats, and that Serpents did breed at the bottom that was marſhy, which is the likelieſt Subject of the Fiction, and that Bellerophon killed that Monſter, ſignifies no more, as Pauſanias obſerves, than that he render'd the Mountain Habitable. Philoſophers by a Chimæra underſtand a meer Creature of the Imagination, compoſed of ſuch Contradictions and Abſurdities in relation to one another, as cannot poſſibly be any where united into a Being, but only in thought.

CHIMLIGH, an inconſiderable Market Town in Devonſhire, 148 miles from London.

CHIN, a famous Lake in the Province of Junnan in China, where there ſtood in former times a great City that was quite ſwallowed up by an Earthquake, no living Creature being ſaved but a Child that was caſt aſhore upon a piece of Wood. Here are abundance of Plants, whereof the top that appears on the Water bears the form of a Star, which makes ſome call this Lake the Starry-Sea. Kircher.

CHINA: See Chine.

CHINCA, a great and pleaſant Valley in the Dioceſs of Lima, in Perou, well known through all the Kingdom, becauſe Pizarro, who firſt Diſcovered the Country, deſired the King of Spain, that it ſhould be the Limits of his Government to the South, and that the River of San-Jago ſhould part it on the North. This Valley bears very good Wheat, and the Spaniſh Vines thrive extreamly well in it. De Laet.

CHINCHILUNG, or Iquon, a famous Pyrate of China, who firſt of all Served the Portugueſe at Macao, and afterwards the Hollanders in the Iſle Formoſa, then he became Pyrate, and having got Immenſe Riches, kept a Commerce in all the Merchandiſe of the Indies, with the Merchants of the Eaſtern Iſlands, until at laſt he became great enough to form thoughts of making himſelf Emperor of China, and to compaſs his Deſign, he waved taking the Chinoeſes Defence, expecting until Zunchi, who had conquered the greateſt part of that Country in 1644. ſhould quite extinguiſh Thamin's Race, but the Tartars apprehending his Greatneſs, created him King under the Name of Pignan, or Peace-maker of the South, yet when they made themſelves Maſters of the Province of Fokien by his Conduct, they ſeized and confined him in the Town of Pekin. Martini, Hiſt. Conq. of China.

CHINCHIN, a Province of the Kingdom of Tartary, where there is a Mountain that furniſhes Mines of Salamandre, whereof they make Linnen that will not burn when thrown into the Fire. This Mineral ſpreads in Threads, which being dried in the Sun, and cleanſed from their filth, may be wrought like Wool or Flax, and what is more ſurprizing, is, that they whiten it in Fire, which conſumes the Filth, but does no damage to the Cloth. This is the reaſon why it's called Salamandre from the Lizard Salamandre, which common, but ill grounded opinion will have to live in the Fire, for there is no living Creature can bear the heat of that Element; it's true, that little Animal caſts a glutinous and cold humour out of its body, which abates the force of the Fire, and puts it out if little, but if the Fire be vehement, it dies, yet is not reduced into Aſhes, as other Combuſtible Matters are. But to return to the Linnen, it was in ſome of this kind that great Perſons Bodies were wrapped up and burnt, to keep their Aſhes from mixing with others. Some ſay, that there is now a piece of this Stuff at Rome, ſent to ſome of the Popes by one of the Kings of Tartary. Kircher.

CHINE, or the Empire of China, a great and ſpacious Country, on the Eaſt of Aſia, much fam'd for its Fruitfulneſs, Wealth, the Beautifulneſs of its Towns, and for incredible number of its Inhabitants. Ptolemy ſpeaks of it under the name of Sinarum Regio, words which the Chinoeſes are not acquainted with, nor indeed have they a laſting Name for their Country, becauſe that when the Empire falls to any new Family, they never fail giving it a new Name too. Thoſe of Chochinchina and Siam call it Cin, whence is formed our China, which, according to the beſt Relations, has a great Ridge of Mountains to the North, commonly called Ottocora, and where theſe end, there is that famous Wall of near 1000 Miles long, to keep the Tartars out, who notwithſtanding this have at ſeveral times made Incurſions, and waſted great part of this Country, and at laſt made themſelves Maſters of it in the XVIIth Century. To the Weſt are other Mountains, which part it alſo from the ſame Tartars, and from part of the Indies, the main Ocean bounds it to the Eaſt and South, where is alſo the Kingdom of Tunquin. It's length, according to the Relation John Nieuhoff gives us of it in his Embaſſy, is 600 Leagues, its breadth is little leſs, its form ſquare, and the whole is divided into Seventeen Provinces, or rather Kingdoms, if we conſider the vaſt number of great Cities and Towns comprehended in them, amongſt which are 160 prime and famous ones, called Fu, about 240 of leſſer Note, which they call Cheu, and near 1200 called Hien, or ſmall Towns, beſides Fortreſſes, Caſtles, and Reſidences of the King's Officers. The chiefeſt of all now is Peking, about Thirty Leagues from that great Wall, but Nanking was formerly the Capital. The Jeſuits have a vaſt number of Oratories and Miſſions throughout the ſeveral Provinces of this Kingdom, with about Two hundred Churches and Privileged Reſidences, and are building Colleges, if ye believe F. Kirker. It cannot be expected that this vaſt Tract of Land ſhould have the ſame temperature of Air, and indeed we hear that it's very cold towards the North of this Country; yet that the Air is ſo pure and ſerene that Men live to a great Age, without being ever viſited by the Plague, but have frequent Earthquakes, Their Riches conſiſt in Gold and Silver Mines, Pearls, Spices, Musk, which is the very beſt of the World, of the true Ambergriſe Camfre, Sugar, Ginger, Linen, &c. beſides Silk, whereof there is ſuch a prodigious quantity, that the Province of Chekiang alone is able to furniſh all the reſt of the Univerſe, as all parts may furniſh themſelves with Cotton from China, ſince the Europeans ſhew'd them how to ſow it about five hundred years ago. Here are alſo Mines of all other Metals: They have a white kind of Copper, which is but little dearer than the Common yellow Copper, and are very good at caſting Bells and Pieces of Ordinance, which are as well wrought here as in any part of Europe. It's remarkable that the Emperors forbid the opening of Silver and Gold Mines, leſt the Vapours and unwholeſome Exhalations might annoy their Subjects, who have only leave to gather theſe Metals in the Sands of their Rivers, and make them up into ſmall Pieces, which are valued but according to weight, for they have no Stamp, unleſs it be upon Braſs Farthings that bear the Countries Arms. Here are alſo Minerals of Quick-ſilver, Vermillion, Azur Stone, Vitriol, &c. So much for the Wealth, now as to the Inhabitants, whoſe number is as great as the Country is vaſt, ſo great, that to ſee the great Roads, one could not compare them to any thing better than to an Army on its march, or to one of our Fairs of Europe, which ſo ſurprized ſome Portugueſes when they went thither firſt, that they asked whether the Women had not nine or ten Children at a time; and indeed, to ſee their vaſt number of Ships, one at a diſtance could not imagine them any thing elſe but Towns on the Water, they lie ſo thick, nor would he ſpeak very improperly that ſhould call them ſo, ſince whole Families live in them, and breed their Hogs, Hens, Geeſe, &c. aboard, ſo that the Water, eſpecially in the Southern Parts, is well nigh as much inhabited as the Land. But as to the number of the People, Authentick Authors make it amount to 58914284 Men, without comprehending the Royal Family, the Magiſtrates, Eunuchs, Soldiers, Prieſts, or the Women and Children, ſo that it may not ſeem ſtrange if a late Author affirmed that there were 200000000 of Souls in China, nor is this ſupputation hard to be made, for the Laws of the Country oblige each head of a Family under a conſiderable Penalty to hang a Writing at his Door, with the number and quality of the Dwellers. Beſides they have an Officer they call a Tifang, who is oblig'd by his office, to keep a Liſt of ten Families. This is obſerved in all their Cities and Towns, which differ only in Juriſdiction and Power, there being ſome of the latter altogether as big as the former. The Cities are generally under the Juriſdiction of the Vice-roy of the Province, and have ſome Towns under them, yet there are ſome Towns too that are Capital of certain Territories, and form little Provinces with the others that depend on them. Their Forts are the ſame with their Cities and Towns, only that in theſe there are Garriſons which live with the Burgeſſes. They all hate going up Stairs, and therefore live in their low Rooms, have no Windows to the Street, and keep their Wives in the inner Chambers from the ſight and familiarity of Men, if it be not in the Province of Junnan, where they have liberty of walking in the Streets, as with us. The inſide of their Houſes is very magnificent, all the Walls ſhining, being varniſhed with the precious Compoſition Cié. The Men are Civil, well Bred, Politick, and Induſtrious, but inſupportably Covetous, and ſo Jealous that they lock'd their Wives in, until the Tartars, to their great grief, gave the poor Women the liberty of the open Air. They are covetous to that degree, that they will not ſtand to ſell their very Children, or drown them when they think there are too many, thinking they do them a kindneſs in diſlodging their Souls, which perhaps may paſs into the Body of ſome rich Mans Child. This deſire of Wealth lets them never be idle, and inſpires them all with great averſion againſt Strangers. They have particular inventions for the eaſier and quicker diſpatch of every Work, and have a pretty Invention of Flying Chariots. Several are alſo of opinion, that we had Printing, Gunnery, and our Knowledge of the Load-ſtone from them, becauſe theſe were never known in Europe until about the year 1278. which was the time that ſeveral Strangers, amongſt others B. Oderick Italian, Ayton an Armenian, and Paulus Venetus, went into that Country, with the Tartars of the Family of Juena. The Men ſtill go well clad, carry a Fan in their Hand, and when they ſalute each other (for they are very Courteous) they never put off their Hat, but with both Hands joined before their Breaſt, bow their Body. Here is no Nobility but what depends on Science and Learning, without any regard to Birth, except in the Royal Families: And the more Learned any Perſon is, the higher he is advanced in Honour or Poſt of Government. For the Women, they are not accounted handſome, if they have not ſmall Legs, for which reaſon they ſwaddle them up when Children, to hinder their growth, ſo that one may ſee ſome whoſe Legs are ſcarce thicker than Sheep ſhanks. There is another thing very particular in this Country concerning this Sex, which is, that it's the Men, and not they that pay the Portion, which the Bride delivers to her Father, for his trouble and care in bringing her up. Their Letters are not diſpoſed Alphabetically as ours, for they uſe as many Figures as they have Words, which, according to Father Kircher, are 1600 in all, and Father Gunter ſays, there are but 400. becauſe one Word ſignifies a dozen or fifteen different things, according as it is variouſly pronounced; as for Example, Ya ſignifies God, Yä a Wall, Yà Stupidity or Bluntneſs, Yá a Gooſe, ſo that all the force and diſtinction which are very numerous of this Tongue, conſiſts in the diverſity of Accents, Tones, Aſpirations, and Inflection of the Voice. Beſides this they have ſome compounded Figures that expreſs two or three Words all-together, as to expreſs Good Morrow Sir, they will not ſeek a particular Figure for Good, or Morrow, or Sir, but ſhall find one different from all three that ſhall yet expreſs them; They have an infinite number of theſe, ſo that it's clear a Mans Life is too ſhort to make a juſt diſcernment of all, yet he is not accounted a Learned Chineſe that does not know at leaſt 800000 different Figures or Characters. They are ſo very ingenious in making Fire-

Works, that they repreſent any Character or Figure in them, for Grueber the Jeſuit ſays, he ſaw one deſcend from the Ceiling of a great Hall that repreſented a great Vine ſurrounded with another Fire in form of the Leaves, and Grapes, all ſo well coloured, that the beſt Pencil could hardly do them more to the Life. The Chineſes make uſe of Litters carried between two Mules, or by Men, but the Tartars have a kind of Calaſh. The Town of Nanquin, with ſeveral others, has without its Walls two magnificent Towers nine Stories high, all fac'd with Porcelain, and generally near each Tower is a Temple filled with Idols, and another dedicated to the Genius, or Guardian Spirit of the Town. There are alſo in all Towns and Cities, Triumphal Arches, built in honour of valiant Men, famous Doctors, or of thoſe that have done their Country ſome conſiderable Service; and there are but few that have not a College of Confucius, that famous Philoſopher of China, where ſeveral Profeſſors teach his Doctrine, but there are no Idols in theſe Schools, which is very remarkable. The Ancient and late Emperors of China, before the laſt Invaſion of the Tartars, had an abſolute Power over the Lives and goods of their Subjects, the eldeſt Son ſucceeded in the Kingdom, the others had the Title of Kings, but no Sovereign Authority, for the Emperor aſſigned them only a City and magnificent Palace, annexing an Appanage for their Royal Maintenance, ordering his receivers to remit them Quarterly their Revenues, ſo that receiving but inconſiderable Sums at a time, they ſhould never be able to undertake any thing. Theſe Emperors, though they ſeldom went out of their Palaces, yet were perfectly well informed how their Vice-Roys and Governours behaved themſelves, for they ſent a Viſitor yearly with power to ſuperviſe what was done, and according to his Information the Prince ordered all things with the Advice of the Philoſophers, who have been employed in the Government of that Kingdom for above two thouſand years. Thus did they rule happily for many Ages, and unmoleſted by any but the Tartars, who at laſt through the Cowardice and Diviſion of the Chineſes, made themſelves ſole Maſters of that flouriſhing Kingdom under Xunchi, King of Ninche, about fifty years ago. The preſent Tartar, King of China, keeps an Army all of his own Nation, except his Guards, who to the number of about Forty Thouſand, as well Muſqueteers as Bow-men, are out of Japan, or Coréa. He gives the Chineſe the Liberty of their Religion, and of keeping their former Laws, with this alteration only, that in every Tribunal there is a Tartar that preſides. As for the Civil Government, he has eſtabliſhed nine Juriſdictions at Pekin, Capital of the Kingdom, whereof the higheſt compoſed equally of the People of both Nations, is a kind of Parliament that Judges of all Appeals. The ſecond Examines what Concerns Religion, and decides differences between Men of Learning. The reſt are for the Army, or to judge of Criminal Proceſſes, and other things, as amongſt us. In all the other Towns there are nine ſuch, but all Subalterns, and depending on theſe of Pekin. There is no Appeal from the Parliament of Pekin; and if any one has recourſe to the King, he is to have an hundred Baſtinado's, but if it be found that he was wronged, it coſts the Judge his Life, or at leaſt his Place. The King has fifteen Wives, but not of the ſame Quality, for there are three that are Principal, whereof the chiefeſt is called Cinſi, that is perfect Queen, the other two Tumſi and Siſi, that is, Eaſtern and Weſtern Queens, which the Chineſes call Laterales, theſe have acceſs to the Sovereign, but they always ſpeak to her upon their Knees, the other twelve never come into her preſence unleſs by their Mediation. As for other Wives, this Prince has as many as he pleaſes. There is no diſtinction made between theſe Queens Children, nor is it the eldeſt, but whom the Prince chuſes that ſucceeds him. When this Prince dies, his Body is burned after the Cuſtom of the Tartars, but the Pile is not made of Wood, but is all Paper, ſo that the Expences generally amounts to above ſixty thouſand Crowns, and here they burn with his Body his Guarderobe, Jewels, and in a word, all that was deſtined for his uſe, beſides Living Creatures; There are alſo three of his Domeſticks, viz. a Councellor, a Prieſt, and a Concubine, who having devoted themſelves wholly to his Soul, Sacrifice their Lives as ſoon as he dies. They have the Liberty to chuſe what kind of Death they are pleaſed to dye, and are generally beheaded; beſides them there are others who freely Sacrifice their Lives to accompany their Prince into the other World. As to their Religion, there are three Sects, viz. the Learned, who adore a Firſt Being, which they call Soiax Ti: The Nobility and Common Sort, who Sacrifice to a good and bad Spirit; and the Bonzes, which are down right Idolaters. The Tartars alſo have Prieſts who wear a Paper Mitre, but for the moſt part go bare Headed, and bare Foot too, and there are ſome Convents for Tartar Women, built upon Mountains of very difficult Acceſs. The Chriſtian Religion too is permitted here, and one may ſee in all the Churches the King's Proclamation, that approves and gives both the Tartars and Chineſes full Liberty to embrace it if they pleaſe. The Learned of the Country agree well enough with the Miſſioners, and none but the Bonzes endeavour to maintain their old Superſtition. The Chineſes make no Wine, though the Country produces excellent Grapes, their ordinary Drink is Tea, and Wine of Rice, which I ſuppoſe they diſtil from the Grain; This is of an Amber-colour, has a very delicate taſte, and there is ſome which is as good as any Spaniſh. They uſe China inſtead of Plate, both at Court and elſewhere. This Prince formerly in Publick Audiences was ſeated upon a Magnificent Throne, but now the Tartar King on ſuch Occaſions is placed on a Carpet on the Ground. The Chineſes count Twenty Two Families of Emperors of that Monarchy, which they ſay is of 4635 years ſtanding. The Voyage to it by Sea is both long and dangerous, which made Nikpoſa, a Muſcovite, to ſeek a way by Land from Moſcow to Pekin; and here follows the Account he gives us of his Succeſs, and the way he took. From Moſcow one may go to Vologda, and thence to Perma-Velik in Permia, hence to Solkamskot, in the Province of Siberia, thence to Wiſchiturgium, a Fortreſs by which one muſt paſs, to ſhun the great Mountains and Rocks, that lie in the direct Road, thence to Toboul, capital of Siberia, thence up the River Oby, for three Weeks together, to Surgut, the Reſidence of one of the great Dukes Vaivodes. This Country is all inhabited by an Idolatrous ſort of People called Oſtiaski. Hence-forward ſtill upon the ſame River Oby to Klarem, the Reſidence of another Vaivode, all this Country is Woody, the Inhabitants Oſtiaski; at Klarem you quit the River Oby for that of Kieta, upon which, in five Weeks time you come to Makouskichoroda, a Country alſo inhabited by Oſtiaski; Here you leave your Boats, and go by Land to Jeniſca, a Town ſituated upon a River of the ſame name; here is a Vaivode, the People Idolaters, but called Tonguſi; after three days Voyage on the River Jeniſca, you enter into that of Tonguſi, upon which, in three Weeks time you come to Ilimsko, the Reſidence of a Vaivode, the People hereabouts are Tonguſi and Oſtiaski both; hence by the River Ilima, you deſcend to the River Len, where the Inhabitants are called Jakuts, and are Idolaters; leaving this River you enter into another, upon which is the Town Jukuſtanke, the Reſidence of a Vaivode; hence to Bratska, where lives another Vaivode; the People hereabout are called Bratsk, and reſemble the Kalmoucs; from Bratska you mount to Irkutsk, by the River Angara in fifteen days, thence upon the ſame River ſtill to the Lake Bakala, whence in three Weeks you may go by the River Selega to Selenginsk, where is a Sub-Vaivode, ſent from Jeniska: Here Muſcovy confines upon the Mogull's Dominions; where the People are Idolaters, and have their Kam; hence you go through Woods to Jaravana, then to Talembi, and to Naroninska, the Reſidence of a Vaivode ſent from Moskow; Hence in nine days by the Rivers Schilka and Amor, you come to the Town of Albaſin, where the Country begins to be a little hotter; This Albaſin is the laſt Town of Muſcovy, where croſſing the River Amor or Tamore you come to the Country of the Bogdoisk; hence in a Months time, croſſing the Mongoul, you come to Pekin, Capital of China. This way has appeared ſo much better than going by the long Sea, that ſome Jeſuits have of late gone to Moskow, to take that way to China. Martin Martini, Grueber. Relation to Nipicoſa Moſcovita.

CHINES, Idols of the Chineſe, built in Pyramidale form, and curiouſly wrought; in which, ſome ſay, there are a kind of white Ants, that lie hid in their little dwellings made in form of Oratories. The Pagans ſtand in ſuch fear of theſe Chines, that when they buy a Slave, they carry him before them, and after they have offered Rice and other things, according to their Superſtition, they beg of the Idol, that if the Slave run away, he might be devoured by Tygers and Lyons; which keeps the poor Wretches ſo to their Buſineſs, that they never go away, tho' cruelly miſuſed. There is one of theſe Pyramides without the Walls of the Town of Fochieu, in the Province of Fokien, that is nine Stories high, its Figure is Octogone, or of eight ſides, the perpendicular height of it, from the top to the Baſis is nine hundred Cubits, and its breadth proportionable to its height. The Walls are faced with fine Porcelane, and adorn'd with ſeveral other Imbelliſhments; at every little Story is a Marble Supporter, with imboſs'd Stonework, and an Iron Baluſtrade all gilt with Gold, round each Baluſtrade, eſpecially that at top of the Work are a great number of ſeveral ſorts of little Bells hanging in the Air, which being agitated by the Wind make a kind of pleaſant Harmony, and upon the point of the Pyramid is a Copper Idol gilt with Gold, which is plac'd to guard the Structure. Kircher, M. Parl.

CHING, otherwiſe the Eleventh Emperor of China, ſecond of the Family of Cin, rendred his Name famous, by the many Victories which he gained, for he Conquered all the Southern Provinces of China; and it was he who built the prodigious Wall that lies towards the North to ſtop the Incurſions of the Tartars; he was the firſt of his Nation that Equipped a Naval Army, ſubdued a great part of the Indies, and made his Name famous throughout all Aſia, which makes ſome think, that is the reaſon why the Indians call his Country China. Yet his Cruelty and Averſion to Sciences, which he ſhewed in ordering all the Books of the Kingdom to be burned, makes the Chineſe curſe his Memory, though they look upon him as the Founder of their Monarchy. Pezron.

CHING, King of China, ſecond of the Family of Cheu, Succeeded his Father very young, but was brought up by a very able Miniſter. It was this young King that preſented the Ambaſſador of Cochinchina with a Curious Machine, that of its own proper motion turned always to the South, and was a certain guide both by Sea and Land. They called it Chinan, in their Country Language, which is the name they now give the Compaſs; this makes ſome think, as Father Martini obſerves, that it was in uſe at that time, and that other Nations had it thence. Perzion.

CHINKIANG, a Town of the Province of Nanking, in China, Capital of a Territory of the ſame Name, and has Command over four Cities. Near this Town is a great Stone, wherein the King of Mung giving Audience to Ambaſſadors ſent him by other Kings of that Country, that denied him the ſatisfaction he required, made a gaſh three Cubits deep with one blow of his Sword, and ſent the Ambaſſadors back to acquaint their Maſters what Metal his Sword was of; This (they ſay) happened about 210 years before Chriſt's Birth. Here is alſo in this part a certain Fiſh which Phyſicians uſe againſt every Ail. Martin Martini.

CHINON upon Vienne, a Town of France in Touraine, whither Charles VII retreated in 1429. when Joan of Arc, called the Maid of Orleans, came to him. The importance of its ſituation makes the French King keep a Garriſon in it. This is alſo the Birth-place of Francis Rabelau, ſo famous for his pleaſant Jeſts. Du Cheſne.

CHINTING, a great Town in the Province of Pekin, in China, having thirty Cities under its Juriſdiction. There's a ſtately Temple in't called Lunking, where there is a Statue of a Maid Thirty yards high. Martin Martini. In Thevenot's Collection, Vol. 2d.

CHINTU, a great Town, Capital of a Territory of the ſame name in the Province of Suchuen, in China. Here is a ſtrange kind of Bird called Tunghoafung, with a red Bill, and Feathers of divers Colours, which is engendred of a Flower called Tunghoa, and lives but whilſt that laſts. There is a Wall near Nuikiang, a Town that depends of this, whoſe Water riſes and falls according to the Ebbing or Flowing of the Seas, though there is none near it. Nigh the City of Quon is the Mountain Cingching, where the Chineſe ſay the Xinſiens, whom they hold to be immortal Men, meet generally. And near Cungking, upon Mount Toyung, are Monkeys that reſemble Men, and are little leſs than they; Theſe are great Lovers of Women, and endeavour to Converſe with them. There is alſo a Lake that neither riſes nor falls by Rain or Drought, and a River that gives a fine Luſtre to Satin when waſh'd in it. Thevenot.

CHINYVEN, a Town in the Province of Junnan, in China. The Fort Loko ſtands in the Territories of this City. This Country is well furniſhed with Silver Mines, and has a great many Wild and tame Peacocks. The Mountain Nalo breeds abundance of Tygers and Leopards exceeding Fierce. Martin Martini, in the Treatiſe above Cited.

CHINYVEN, a Town in the Province of Queicheu in China. It is the Capital of a Country of the ſame Name. This Country produces the fineſt Flowers in all China. There are likewiſe a great Store of Pomgranates and Oranges. Thoſe who Inhabit the Mountains have no Salt, but make uſe of the Aſhes of an Herb called Hive, to ſeaſon their Meat. Martin Martini, Treatiſe above cited, Vol. 3d.

CHIO, or Scio, Chios and Chius, an Iſland of the Egean Sea in the Archipelago, near Aſia-Minor, and between Samos and Lesbos, famous for the great quantity of Maſtick gathered there, for which reaſon the Turks call it Saquezada, that is Iſle of Maſtick. It's about twenty five or thirty Leagues in circuit, and has a Town of its own name, with a good Port and ſtrong Caſtle. It's generally divided into Upper, which is towards the North, and is called Anomera; and Lower, which lie to the South, and is called Catomera, where the Lentiſques grow that bear the Maſtick. Some count about thirty ſix Cities in this Iſland, which was formerly ſubject to the Athenians, then to the Macedonians, afterwards to the Romans, at length to the Emperors of Conſtantinople, until the Genoeſes made themſelves Maſters thereof in 1346. who governed it in form of a Commonwealth, paying the Turks a Tribute till the year 1566. that it was taken from them by Soliman's Order, to Baſcha Piali, upon pretence that this Tribute was not duly paid, and that they had acquainted thoſe of Maltha with his deſign of Beſieging them. The Town of Chio, formerly a Biſhoprick Suffragant to Rhodes, and afterwards a Metropolis, is inhabited by Turks and Jews, and the Suburbs by Greek and Latin Chriſtians, who have each their Biſhops, and ſeveral Churches. There is but a Chanel of three Leagues, that ſeparates this Iſland from the firm Land of Natolia, and the Inhabitants do not only furniſh Europe with Maſtick, but alſo with good Turpentine. Le Mire, Thuan. Ortelius.

CHIOGGIA, or Chioza, the ſame with Clodia Foſſa, or Claudiopolis, with the Ancients, a Sea-port-Town in an Iſland of the ſame Name, belonging to the Republick of Venice. Leandr. Deſc. Inſul. Venet.

CHIRAM, an excellent Artiſt in Gold, Silver, and Braſs, employed by Solomon to make the Cherubins, and other Ornaments of his Temple, amongſt which were two Braſs Pillars, eight Cubits high, and twelve round, upon which were Corniſhes of Metal too, in form of Lilies, and five Cubits high, and about the Pillars were great Leaves of Gold, which covered the Lilies, with 200 Pomegranates of Braſs hanging in two Cluſters or Rowes.

CHIROMANTIE, an Art of judging of ones Inclinations and Fortune, by the Lines in his Hand, for χεὶρ ſignifies a Hand, and μαντεία Divination: Though ſome have exerciſed Parts in making certain Rules for this Science, yet none ſhould rely on its certainty; for if, according to the old ſaying, Frons, oculi, vultus perſæpe mentiuntur, the Forehead, Eyes, and Countenance very often deceive, what credit can be given to the Hand?

CHIRON, a Centaure, Son to Saturn and Phillyris, lived in the Mountains, where being much given to Hunting, he became very knowing in the vertues of Plants, and one of the famouſeſt Phyſicians of his time; He imparted his skill to Æſculapius, and was afterwards Achilles's Governour, until being wounded by Hercules, and deſiring to die, Jupiter placed him in Heaven, where he forms the Sign of Sagittarius or the Archer, others affirm, that this Chiron was a Phyſician of Theſſaly. Plin. Suidas.

CHIRUAN, a Province of the Kingdom of Perſia upon the Weſtern Coaſt of the Caſpian Sea, where are the Towns of Derbent, or Demir-Capi, of Bachu, and Chamaki. Derbent in the Perſian Tongue ſignifies a narrow Port, and Demircapi in the Turkiſh an Iron Gate. It's about this place that the famous paſſage of the Ancients, which they called Caſpiæ Portæ, was. Tavernier.

CHITOR, a Province of the Great Mogul's Empire in the Main Land of India, with a Town of the ſame name, between the Provinces of Malva and Guzurate. This Province belonged formerly to one Raja, who pretended he was of the Race of King Porus, who was vanquiſhed, but afterwards reſtor'd by Alexander, though this Raja had a conſiderable and very ſtrong Country, by reaſon of the great Mountains that almoſt environed it, yet he was not able to eſcape the Misfortunes of other Princes that were forced to yield to the Mogull's. The Town is almoſt ruined, yet there are ſtill ſome remains of the many Temples and ſumptuous Buildings that have formerly been there. Here is alſo a Fortreſs, where Lords of the higheſt Quality are confined for ſmall Crimes, but thoſe that are Condemned to death are kept in the Caſtle of Rantipor, Capital of Malva. Thevenot.

CHNIN or Knin, a ſtrong place in Croatia, on the Frontiers of Boſnia, and Dalmatia, conſiderable for its Situation, and its two large Ditches formed by the Rivers Cherca and Botiſniza. It was taken and Demoliſhed in 1649. by Foſcolo, General of the Venetians, who beſides ſeveral Machines to carry Canon over the ſteepeſt Mountains, found there a great Cannon that belonged to Charles, Arch-Duke of Auſtria, as appeared by an old Inſcription that was upon it. The great Viſier rebuilt this place again in 1652. and it has ſerved ſince that time as a retreat to the Turks when they make Incurſions into Dalmatia, and the other places that belong to the Venetians and Morlaques. P. Coronell's Deſc. Morea.

CHOBAR, a River in Chaldæa, being an Arm of Euphrates, near which, the Prophet Ezekiel had his Revelations Communicated to him.

CHOGAN, a Town of the Province of Xanſi, in China, near the River Fi, where there is a marvellous Bridge of one Arch, that joins the Two great Mountains which ſtands on both ſides this Water. It's Forty Pearches long, and Fifty in height, which makes the Chineſes call it the Flying bridge, becauſe it appears as if it hung in the Air. That in France called Pont du Gard, near the Town of Niſmes; is ſomewhat like the former, for it joins two Mountains; but there is this difference, that that in France has three Stories; the firſt for Carts and Chariots has four Arches; the ſecond, for People that go a-foot, has twelve; and the third, which ſerves as a Chanel for the Water, is ſupported by ſixteen.

CHOCOLOCOCA, which the Spaniards call Caſtro Virreyna, a Town of Peru, Sixty Leagues Southwards of Lima, is very Famous for its Siver Mines, which are at the Top of a great Mountain always covered with Snow, and but Two Leagues off of the Town. The Stones of the Mine are of a dark Blui; theſe being Calcin'd and Powder'd, then ſteep'd in Water and Quickſilver, the Oar is ſeparated, and the Silver melted and formed into Bars: Theſe Veins are not very rich, but the Silver is extraordinary fine. There is Plenty of Wine in the Town, brought thither out of the Neighbourhood, where it receives a greater degree of Perfection, through the Pureneſs of the Air, than it's obſerved to have in any other Place, the Air being there ſo very good, that Meat will keep a long time untainted, without being ſalted. De Laet.

CHODERLAOMER, or Chederlaomer, King of the Elamites, Deſcended from Elam, Son of Sem. 'Tis from theſe Elamites, that the Perſians are thought to be deſcended. This Prince was defeated by Abraham, and his Brother Lot, and the Booty which he had taken recovered from him. Gen. Chap. 14.

CHOGA, a Town of the Province of Xanſi, in China, near the River Fi. There is a Bridge there with an extraordinary Arch, which joins two Mountains, ſtanding on each Side of this River; the Length of this Arch is Forty Perches, and the height of it Fifty; the Chineſe call it the Flying Bridge, becauſe it ſeems to hang in the Air. Kircher China Illuſt.

CHOISEUL (Cæſar) Duke of Choiſeul, Peer and Marſhal of France, Famous in the laſt Civil Wars of that Country, where he ſignalized himſelf in ſeveral Battles, and in carrying many Towns, but chiefly by his Victory at the Fight of Rethel, in 1650. He Dyed at Paris, in 1675. Du Cheſne.

CHOLM-KILL, Lat. Inſula Sancti Columbani, an Iſland in the Weſt of Scotland, famous for a Monaſtery Built there by Columbanus, the Apoſtle of the Scot's Nation. It lies oppoſite to Knapdale, thirteen Miles North of Ila, and about fifty from New-Caſtle in Ireland. This is one of the five Iſlands called Hebrides or Hebrades. The ancient City Sodora ſtands in it. See Icolmkill.

CHONAD, a Town of Hungary, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Colocza, is Capital of a County upon the Frontiers of Tranſilvania. It's ſituated near the River Mericz, not far from the Place where this empties it ſelf into the Teiſs. The Town is called by Latin Authors, Canadium, and the Country belongs to the Turks.

CHONODEMAIRE, one of the 7 German Kings, that in Conſtantius's Reign entered into Gaul; Julian took him Priſoner in 357. and ſent him to the Emperor, where he died in Priſon. Am. Marcel. lib.16.

CHOPIN or CHOPPIN, (Renne) a French-man, born in 1537. at Baleul, in Anjou, and one of the moſt eminent Lawyers in that Age. He was a good Pleader, and looked upon as a ſort of Oracle in his Profeſſion. His Works are Politia Sacra. Monaſticon, beſides other Tracts collected in Six Volumes in Folio in Latin, and five in French. He died at Paris, in 1606. Le Croix du Maine Bibl. Franc. Thuan. &c.

CHOREBUS, an Athenian, that invented the Art of making Earthen Pots. It's not known what Age he Lived in. Plin. There was another of this Name, who Courted Caſſandra, and Aſſiſted King Priam at the Siege of Troy. Virg. Æneid. 2d.

CHOREPISCOPI, a Name that was given formerly to ſuch as officiated for Biſhops in the Villages or Monaſteries abroad in the Country. The firſt Council of Nice in 325. makes mention of them; and the Council of Ancyra, in 314. ſtiles them the Biſhops Vicars, which made ſome think they were the ſame with Arch-Deacons, or at leaſt, that theſe did the Office of the Chorepiſcopi; yet they ſeem'd diſtinguiſh'd in the Canons of the Council of Nice, where it's ſaid, That the Arch-Deacons and they, are as it were two Hands and Wings which the Biſhops make uſe of to expedite Buſineſs in the Country. However, the Chorepiſcopi were above Prieſts, or at leaſt took their Places in Councils next the Biſhops, but were none, for they neither had the Title, nor an Epiſcopal See. nor all the Ceremonies of a Biſhops Conſecration. Beſides, the Council of Neo-Cæſarea in 313. ſays, That they repreſented the Seventy two Diſciples, which ſhews they were under the Biſhops, ſaid to be the Apoſtles Succeſſors. Father Simon obſerves alſo, That they had not the Character of Biſhops, nor the Power to Ordain Prieſts or Deacons, but only Sub-Deacons, Readers and Exorciſts, which were the loweſt Eccleſiaſtical Orders, and when Church-Hiſtory makes mention of their conferring the Orders of Prieſthood, &c. it was becauſe theſe were really Biſhops, who being baniſhed their own Dioceſſes, by War, or other Misfortunes, were Chorepiſcopi, or Aſſiſtants to other Biſhops, who employed them. This Dignity was ſuppreſſed by Pope Leo, as may be ſeen in Charlemaigns's Capitularies; but ſome retain the Name ſtill in ſeveral Churches of Cologne, and others do the Office without the Name, as the Vicars, who in ſome large Dioceſſes have an Epiſcopal Juriſdiction; as the great Vicar of Pontois near Paris, who thereabouts repreſents the Arch-biſhop of Roan, and all depend immediately on him. P. Simon. Du Cange Gloſſar. Latin. Marka de Concord. Sacerd. & Impar. Lib. 2d.

CHOSROES, the firſt of the Name, King of Perſia, ſirnamed the Great, ſucceeded his Father Cabades, in 532. had ſome Advantages over the Romans in the beginning of his Reign, and then concluded a Peace with them, which he broke Three years after (upon pretence that they had paſſed their own Frontiers) and entred into Meſopotamia, then into Syria, deſtroy'd all, burn'd the Town of Antioch, and threatned to do the like to Apamia, which Thomas, its Biſhop, wiſely prevented. He came a fourth time into the Empire, in 554. laid Siege to Edeſſa, which he was forced to raiſe, and made a Truce of five years with Juſtinian, who paid him a great Sum of Money to perſwade him to this Agreement. Theſe Wars continued afterwards under Juſtin to Choſroes's advantage, who enter'd into Armenia, and being puffed up with his former Victories, refuſed to give Audience to the Emperor's Ambaſſadors, ordering they ſhould follow him to Cæſarea in Cappadocia; but his good fortune forſook him in Tiberius's Time, who rais'd a mighty Army in the third year of his Reign, and ſent it under the Command of Juſtinian I. againſt the Perſians, who beat them two or three times, plunder'd the King's Treaſury, and paſs'd the whole Winter in his Country, without meeting one to oppoſe them. This ſo troubled Choſroes, that he died of Grief in 580. after forty years Reign. Evagr. Agathias. Procop.

CHOSROES II. was put upon the Perſian Throne in 591. his Father Hormiſdas being Impriſoned by his Subjects, who thought him unworthy of the Crown. He firſt of all us'd all poſſible means to ingratiate himſelf with his Father, and did treat him well; but the Father recompenſing his Zeal and Duty with Imprecations and Threatning, put him on an inhumane and deteſtable Action, for he caus'd him to be Can'd to Death. This Parricide offended the Perſians mightily, and their diſcontent being increaſed by the Murther of ſome of the Nobility, which this King Sacrificed to his own Politick Ends; he was forced to fly for it. It's ſaid, That not knowing in this Conjuncture, whether he had better go to the Romans or Turks, he left it to meer hazard, giving his Horſe the Liberty to go whither he pleaſed, which carry'd him into a Town that belong'd to the Romans, whoſe Emperor Mauritius receiv'd him very kindly, and ſent an Army under Narſes his Commander, to re-eſtabliſh him on his Throne, which he recovered with as much Eaſe as he was deprived thereof; and when he was in peaceful Poſſeſſion of his Kingdom, he ſent to Gregory of Antioch the Golden Croſs, enriched with Jewels, which his Predeceſſors had taken out of St. Sergius's Church, and made him ſeveral other great Preſents: And after the Emperor Maurice's Death, in 602. he took Arms againſt his Succeſſor and Murtherer Phocas, entered Syria, ſeiz'd Paleſtina, Phœnicia, Armenia, and Cappadocia, and did incredible hurt throughout all the Eaſt. Heraclius having put Phocas to death in 610. and being himſelf Crown'd Emperor, ſu'd for a Peace, and offered a conſiderable yearly Tribute for the Performance; which Choſroes refuſed with Contempt, and began his Courſes anew; returned into Palæſtina in 615. took Jeruſalem, and carry'd away the Croſs that Chriſt Suffer'd on, with the Ornaments that belong'd to the Church, and a great number of Chriſtians, and amongſt the reſt the Patriarch Zachary. After this he paſſed into Africa, made himſelf Maſter of Libya and Egypt, and carry'd Carthage, and here Heraclius ſues for a Peace a ſecond time, which was offered him upon no other Terms, but that both he and his Subjects ſhould deny Jeſus Chriſt. This Inſolent Propoſition gave the Emperor the Courage to attack that proud Prince in 622. and God bleſſed him with good Succeſs; for he defeated his whole Army and put him to Flight: He was Purſued by his own Eldeſt Son Siroes, whom he would have Depriv'd of the Crown, in favour of a younger Brother, and was ſtarv'd to death in Priſon, in 628. Evagr. Cedrenus, &c.

CHOTZIM, Chotimia, a little Town in Valachia, upon the Nieſter, and Frontiers of Poland and Podolia, very famous in Hiſtory for the great Victory gain'd by Vladiſlaus, Prince, and afterwards King of Poland, over Oſman, Emperor of the Turks, in 1621. Theſe Infidels were worſted in this ſame Place, in 1674. by John Sobieski, firſt General, the late King of Poland; who, to his Immortal Glory, raiſed the Siege of Vienna, in 1683.

CHOUL (William) born in the Country of Lyons, one of the King of France's Council, and Bayliff of the Mountains of Dauphine, liv'd towards the latter end of the XVIth Century. La Croix du Maine ſays, He was the moſt laborious and learned Antiquary of his time. He wrote ſeveral Tracts, one about Medals, another concerning the Baths of the Greeks and Romans; a Third, concerning the Religion of the Ancient Romans; and a Fourth of the Art of Encamping. La Croix du Maine.

CHRAMNE or Chrane, Son to Clotaire I. who ſent him into Aquitain, where he led ſuch a Tyrannical and diſſolute Life, that the People made heavy Complaints to the King, who thereupon ſent for him to render an Account of his Actions; but he, inſtead of obeying, takes Arms. In the mean time both his Brothers, Charibert and Gontran, leading an Army to bring him to his Duty, he cheated them with the falſe Report of his Father's being dead in his Enterpriſe againſt the Saxons which they taking for Truth, returned into Burgundy: Chramne follows, takes Chalon upon Soane, and comes forward to Paris, where his Uncle Childebert made him ſwear upon the Evangeliſts, that he would never be reconciled with his Father, Childebert his Death depriving him of Protection, he broke his Oath, and came to a Peace, which laſted but a very ſhort time, for he ſoon took up Arms again, and withdrew to Britany, to Conober, then Prince of that Country. Clotaire purſued him, defeated the Britons near the Sea, kill'd Conober, and took Chramne Priſoner, whom he cruelly ordered to be burn'd with his Wife Chalde, Daughter to Wilichaire Duke of Aquitain, and their 7 Children, which was executed immediately, by putting Fire to a thatch'd Houſe, wherein they all were. This hapned in 560. Gregory of Tours.

CHRIST, Chriſtus, or Jeſus Chriſt, a Military Order of Portugal, inſtituted about 1318. by Denys King of Portugal, to hearten the Nobility againſt the Moors. The Knights were clad in Black, and wore on their Breaſts a Patriarchal Croſs Gules, charged with another Argent, and this was the Arms of this Order, which was confirmed by Pope John XXII. in 1320. who gave the Knights St. Benet's Rule; but Alexander VI. licenc'd them to Marry. They have Commanderies, not only in Portugal, but alſo in Africa, the Eaſt-Indies, and in Braſil, which makes the Great Maſter worth above 100000 Duckats a Year; and this makes the Kings of Portugal keep it always annex'd to the Crown, and take to themſelves the Title of perpetual Adminiſtrators, both of this and of the other call'd D'Avis, or of Advice. The Croſs and Collar of this Order, are to be ſeen in the Franciſcans Quire, above the Chairs on the Left-hand, round the Arms of ſome Portugueſe Lords, who fled to France with their King Dom Anthonio, who died at Paris, and is alſo buried in the Chappel of Gondy in the ſame Church. Favin. Spondan.

CHRIST-CHURCH, a Market-Town in Hampſhire, ſituate betwixt the Rivers Avon and Stower, at their Fall into the Sea. It is the Capital of its Hundred, and has the Privilege of electing two Burgeſſes for the Parliament. It is beautified with an ancient large Church. From London 86 Miles.

CHRISTIAN, Duke of Brunſwick, ſurnam'd de Halberſtad, upon the Account of his being Adminiſtrator of that Biſhoprick. They call'd him likewiſe the enrag'd Biſhop, becauſe of the Violence of his Temper and Practices: having taken up Arms for the Elector Palatine, King of Bohemia, he harraſs'd the Country of his Brother Frederick Ulrick; burnt a great many Towns of the Elector of Mentz, gave his Army the Plunder of Ameneburg in Weſtphalia, and cut the Throats of the Garriſon, contrary to his own Articles of Capitulation; and having made himſelf Maſter of all the Towns in the Biſhoprick of Paderborn, he ſet fire to all the Churches, and permitted all ſorts of outragious Liberty to his Soldiers. He forc'd naked Women to wait on him at Table, then ſuffer'd 'em to be abus'd by his Favourites, and afterwards either cut their Throats or drown'd them. He fought the Spaniards at Floriac in Holland, where he loſt one of his Arms, and had an Iron one inſtead on't: Afterwards Count Tilly defeated him at the Battel of Statlo, and to diſpatch him, he died in 1626. Chapuy's Hiſt. Fland.

CHRISTIANS, a Name given to the Faithful at Antioch, who were before call'd Diſciples. This Appellation was given 'em about the Year 41. They were likewiſe called Brethren, Saints, Believers, &c. The Heathens gave them a great many Nick Names, as Galileans, Magicians, and confounded them with the Jews. The Averſion they had to 'em made them believe them the Cauſe of all the Misfortunes that happen'd to the Empire; they accus'd 'em likewiſe of eating up little Children in their Meetings, worſhipping an Aſs's Head, and other monſtrous Practices. Theſe violent Prejudices put 'em upon torturing the Chriſtians with all imaginable Cruelty; but their Blood, as Tertullian obſerves, was a Principle of Life to the Church, which, like the Increaſe of Corn, made it multiply in a ſurpriſing manner. Acts 11. Tertul. Apog. Euſeb. Baron. &c.

CHRISTIANS of St. Thomas, a ſort of Chriſtians in the Peninſula of India on this ſide the Gulph; they are in ſome meaſure, Arrians and Neſtorians; however, they believe the Real Preſence, and retain a great many Apoſtolical Traditions. They dwell moſtly at Cranganor, and in the neighbouring Country: There are ſome of 'em likewiſe at Negapatan, Meliapor, and at Angamale beyond Cochin, where their Archbiſhop reſides, who is under the Juriſdiction of the Patriarch of Babylon. The Jeſuits have lately brought ſome of 'em over to the Church of Rome. They are call'd Chriſtians of St. Thomas, becauſe this Apoſtle preach'd the Goſpel, and was a Martyr in this Peninſula, for whom theſe Chriſtians have a particular Veneration. Jovet. Hiſtoir. des Religions.

CHRISTIAN-STAD, a Town of Swedeland, in the Province of Blekin, ſituated upon the Baltick-Sea, with a convenient Port between Copenhaguen and Chriſtianople. It was built by Chriſtierne, the Fourth of that Name, King of Denmark, but was afterwards yielded to the Swedes in 1658. and 60.

CHRISTIERN, or Chriſtian, the Firſt of that Name, King of Denmark, Son to Thierri, Count of Oldembourg, was choſen in 1448. after Chriſtopher of Bavaria he governed his Subjects with much Prudence, took a Voyage to Rome in 1474. where he was very well received by Pope Sixtus IV. afterwards he was choſen King of Swedeland by the Faction of the Biſhop of Upſale, and died in 1481. leaving his Son John to ſucceed him. Crantz.

CHRISTIERN II. Sirnamed the Cruel or Tyrant, Born in 1481. begun his Reign in Denmark after the Death of his Father John, and endeavoured, but to little Purpoſe, to recover Groenland, which his Predeceſſors had loſt. Afterwards he aim'd at the Crown of Swedeland; to compaſs his Deſign, he croſſed the Sea, and laid Siege to Stockholm in 1518. but met with ſuch Reception, that he was forc'd to raiſe it; nevertheleſs, King Steno dying the Year after, he got himſelf choſen in his Place; and though he made a ſolemn Promiſe to uſe his Subjects with all poſſible Mildneſs, he exerciſed unheard of Cruelties, eſpecially on the Great Perſons, both Clergy and Laity, getting them all barbarouſly murthered at a Feaſt he invited them to. This inhumane Action made all the Swedes revolt, and him to get off to Denmark, whence he was alſo baniſhed for the like Faults, and Frederick Duke of Holſtein, his Uncle, was declared King. This happened in 1523. He retir'd into the Low Countries with his Wife Elizabeth, Siſter to the Two Emperors, Charles V. and Ferdinand. After ten Years Exile he endeavoured to re-eſtabliſh himſelf upon the Throne again, with the Aſſiſtance of the Hollanders, to whom he promiſed great Privileges in the Baltick Sea, but was taken and kept Priſoner for twenty ſeven Years, until he died in 1559. in the 78th Year of his Age. Varillas.

CHRISTIERN, or Chriſtian III. Son to Frederick I. who uſurp'd his Nephew's Crown, and was nam'd King in 1533. and Crown'd in 1537. according to the Ceremonies of the Lutheran Church, whereof he was become a Member. He eſtabliſhed it in his Kingdom, baniſhing the Popiſh Biſhops, both there and in Norway. He governed the Kingdom with much Moderation, and died in 1559. 23 Days before the Death of Chriſtiern II. his Priſoner, with whom, it's ſaid, he had a long Conference, and was perfectly reconciled a little before his Death, which hapned in the 22d Year of his Reign, and 56th of his Age. He took and puniſh'd a certain Pyrate called Clement, that did much Damage in Jutland, defeated the Army that belonged to them of Lubeck, and to Chriſtopher Oldemburg, who had made themſelves Maſters of his Father's Territories; and after the Peace that enſued, he eſtabliſhed the College of Copenhagen, founded a fine Library, and gave great Proofs of the Love he always bore learned Men. Thuan. Chytræus. Saxon.

CHRISTIERN, or Chriſtian IV. ſucceeded his Father Frederick II. in 1588. but being then but 12 Years of Age, the Danes choſe four Councellors to govern the Kingdom until 1596. that he was Crown'd. In 1610. he began a War againſt the Swedes, and in 1625. was made Head of the Proteſtant League in Germany againſt the Emperor, for the Re-eſtabliſhment of the Elector Palatine. Here he made Peace in 1629. and in 1644. retook Arms again againſt Swedeland, made himſelf Maſter of ſome of its Holds; but Peace put an end to his Conqueſts, and he died after 60 Years happy Reign, at the Age of 71. leaving, amongſt other Children, Frederick III. who ſucceeded.

CHRISTIERN, or Chriſtian V. which others Name the VIth, King of Denmark, ſucceeded his Father Frederick III. in 1670. In the War that broke out in Europe in 1672. the Swedes having taken part with the French againſt the Empire, were engaged in a War againſt the Elector of Brandenburg, which made the Danes reſolve to break with them; but firſt, in 1675. this King, by the deepeſt Diſſimulation, ſecured the Perſon of the Duke of Holſtein Gottorp, as being a Friend to Sweden, and poſſeſt himſelf of his Country, to which he was not reſtored till 1689. and in the mean time made himſelf Maſter of ſome Places belonging to Sweden; but the King of that Country taking the Field, worſted him on ſeveral Occaſions, as at the Battel fought Dec. 14. 1676. at another a Year after near Landſcroon in Schonen, and in the Sea-Fight between Malmoe and the Iſle of Amag, July, 1676. This War terminating in a Peace, in 1679. the French proved ſo firm to their Ally the Swede, that King Chriſtiern was forced, as well as his Confederate, the Elector of Brandenburg, to quit all his Pretenſions to the Places he had made himſelf Maſter of during the War. This King, as well as his Neighbour, Charles XI. of Swedeland, continued neutral during the War begun in Europe in 1688. and by that means conſiderably advanc'd the Wealth and Trade of his Country; but ſince the Peace of Reſwick in 1697. which gave repoſe to Europe, he began to be uneaſy upon the account of the Forts built by the Duke of Holſtein Gottorp for the Security of his Frontiers, contrary (as he alledged) to the Treaty of Altena in 1689. and was prevented by Death to conteſt the Matter with that Duke and his Ally the Swede, the ſame happening to him Sept. 4. 1699. after he had reigned 29 Years, 6 Months and 25 Days, leaving it to be decided by his Son Frederick IV. who ſucceeded him. As to his Perſon he was of a moderate Stature, rather lean than corpulent, yet well proportioned and ſtrongly built; his Complexion Sanguine, and the Lines of the lower part of his Face not unlike thoſe of Charles II. King of England; his Conſtitution was robuſt, and he could undergo all manner of Fatigue; but ſome Fits of the Gout a few Years before his Death, made him think it better to diſpence with Exerciſes that might diſturb his Eaſe. And for his Habit it was uſually modeſt but gentile. As to his Qualities, he was a Prince of ſingular Affability and good Nature, Temperate, in reſpect to the Nature of the Country; his Amours not many, Religious but not Prieſt-ridden, naturally a Lover of Juſtice and Moderation, but often over-rul'd by Miniſters; very free of Acceſs, and Maſter of High and Low Dutch and French. He took a particular Delight in Geography, was a Lover of Fortification, and of undoubted Courage, and in fine, a very mild and gracious Prince, beloved rather than reverenced by his People. He had by Charlotte Amelia of Heſſe Caſſel five Children, viz. Frederick IV. that ſucceeded him in the Throne, and now Reigns, Prince Chriſtian, Prince Charles, and Prince William, with one Daughter only: Beſides theſe, this King had two Natural Sons by Mrs. Mote, a Citizen's Daughter of Copenhagen (whom he made Counteſs of Samſoe) the Eldeſt bred to Land-Service, being known by the Name of Young Guldenlieu; and the other has been trained up for Sea-Service.

CHRISTINA, Queen of Swedeland, Daughter of Guſtavus Adolphus, called the Great, and of Mary Eleonor of Brandenbourg, ſucceeded her Father in 1633. and govern'd with much Prudence, until ſhe abdicated the Crown in 1654. in favour of her Couſin Charles Guſtavus, and that ſhe might have the Pleaſure of living out of her own Country, ſhe withdrew to Rome, where ſhe died in 1688. being in great Eſteem for her Learning and Skill in Languages; but not ſo much conſidered for her Religion, which is ſaid to have been looſe as well as her Life. Samuel Puffendorf wrote the Hiſtory of her Reign and Abdication in his Hiſtory of Swedeland.

CHRISTINE, or Chriſtina, a new Borough of Northern America, upon the River Sud, in New Swedeland, built by the Swedes in 1640. who gave it the Name of their Queen: It was after this taken by the Hollanders, and at laſt they were beaten out of it by the Engliſh.

CHRISTMAN (James) Profeſſor in the Univerſity of Heidelberg, in the lower Palatinate, was born in 1554. and beſides his Native Language, was perfect Maſter of the Arabick, Syriack, Hebrew, Chaldean, Greek, Latin, French, Italian and Spaniſh Tongues. He Travelled a long time, and then ſettled at Heidelberg, where he died in 1613. in the 59th Year of his Age, leaving us ſeveral Treatiſes; Muhamedis Alfragani Chronologica & Aſtronomica Elementa. Explicatio Calendarii Romani, Ægyptiaci, Arabici, &c. Nodus Gordius, &c. Voſſius de Mathem.

CHRISTOLYTES, a certain Sect that appeared in the Sixth Age, which held, that when Jeſus Chriſt deſcended to Hell, he left his Soul and Body there, and only aroſe with his Divinity to Heaven. Johan. Damaſc.

CHRISTOPHER, a Martyr, whoſe Hiſtory may be ſeen in Baronius's Martyrology.

CHRISTOPHER (Pope) a Roman by Nation, depoſed Leo V. and put himſelf in the Chair in 906. which he held but ſeven Months, for Sergius, aſſiſted by the Marquis of Tuſcany, confin'd him to a Monaſtery, and took the Place himſelf. Baronius.

CHRISTOPHER, the Firſt of the Name, King of Denmark, Son to Valdemar II. was Crown'd in 1252. after the Death of his Two Brothers, Abel and Erric VII. and Reign'd with pretty good Succeſs, until he was taken Priſoner in his War againſt the Counts of Holſtein. Some place his Death in 1268. Pontanus. Crantz. Hiſt. Dan.

CHRISTOPHER II. Son to Erric VII. got himſelf choſen after his Brother Erric VIII. called the Young and Wiſe, who knowing his ill Nature had deſir'd that he might not Reign after him. He added the Iſle of Rugen to Denmark, and gave Roſtoc, now a Hanſe Town in Fief, to the Dukes of Mekelbourg. The Counts of Holſtein forced him out of his Kingdom, but he was re-eſtabliſhed again, and died about 1333. after 13 Years Reign. Crantz. Pontanus.

CHRISTOPHER III. Duke of Bavaria, Son to John, Palatine of the Rhine, and of a Siſter of Erric X. King of Denmark, who freely reſign'd him the Kingdom in 1439. He was alſo choſen King of Swedeland and Norway. His Reign was very mild: He could not however pleaſe his Subjects, who accus'd him of preferring the Germans in all conſiderable Offices to the Natives, which they pretended was contrary to his Promiſe. He was married to Dorothy of Brandenbourg, who was afterwards Wife to Chriſtiern I. his Succeſſor, and he died Iſſueleſs in 1448. Johan. Magnus, &c.

CHRISTOPHER, Duke of Wittenburg, Son of Ulrick, in whoſe Reign he paſs'd his time very ill. He did great Service to Francis I. and Henry II. Kings of France, in the Wars of Piedmont, and was much eſteem'd for his Probity, Conduct and Experience. He was likewiſe a Bookiſh Prince, and a Favourer of Men of Letters. Thuanus gives him a great Character. Thuan. Hiſt. Lib. 11. 24, 43.

CHRISTOPHERSON (John) Biſhop of Chicheſter in the Sixteenth Century. He was educated at Cambridge, and made a conſiderable Progreſs in Learning: Being a Roman Catholick he left England in the Reign of Edward VI. but returned upon Queen Mary's coming to the Crown, and was preferr'd to the See of Chicheſter. He died in 1558. and left a good Library to Trinity-College in Cambridge. He tranſlated Philo-Judæus into Latin, and likewiſe the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory of Euſebius, Sozomen, Socrates, Theodoret and Evagrius. Pits, Godwin, &c.

CHRISTOPHORUS (Sandius) There are two Writers of this Name, the Father and the Son, both Arrians, the Father a Gentleman of Poland, Councellor and Secretary of State to the Elector of Brandenbourg, was forced to quit his Country for profeſſing Arrianiſm. Sandius, the Son, rendered himſelf very famous by his ſeveral Works, amongſt the reſt, his Nucleus Hiſtoriæ Eccleſiaſticæ. His Criticks upon Voſſius's Books of Latin Hiſtorians. This Younger Sandius was the moſt Learned amongſt all the Socinians, being well acquainted with Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory and Humanity, whereas the Socinians generally ſtudy nothing but Scripture and Logick. Richard Simon.

CHRISTOPHORUS Angelus, a Greek Author of the XVIth Century. He has publiſh'd The Preſent State of the Greek Church, in Greek; where he treats chiefly of the Subject of Diſcipline and Ceremonies: There are a great many curious Diſquiſitions in his Book, particularly, relating to their Faſts, Holy-Days, their manner of Confeſſion and Monaſtick Diſcipline. 'Twas Printed in England in 1619. with a Latin Verſion, and it was afterwards Re-printed at Francfort in a new Latin Tranſlation without the Original: It has likewiſe been Printed in Germany ſince, both in Greek and Latin, with ſome Additions, relating to the State of Modern Greece. Rich. Simon.

CHROCUS, King of Germany, who lived in the beginning of the Fourth, or latter end of the Third Age; by the Inſtigation of his Mother, an ambitious Princeſs, lead a powerful Army into Gaul, plundering and deſtroying all Places as he marched along, eſpecially Treves, Mets, and all that belonged to either. He alſo made himſelf maſter of Angoulême, Martyr'd Biſhop Auſonius, and afterwards at Mande, the Holy Paſtor Privatus. But his Carier was ſtopt, and himſelf taken at Arles by Marianus, Preſident of Narbonne; who, after he had led him back through all the Cities that he had but juſt Triumphed in, commanded his Head to be cut off. Some Authors will have this to have happened about the Year 261. others make Chrocus's Irruption in 312. Baron. Gregor. Turon.

CHROMATIUS, Biſhop of Aquileia, and Succeſſor to Nicetas, liv'd to the beginning of the Vth Century, and was eminent for his Piety and Learning. He wrote Commentaries upon St. Matthew; but all that is now extant of him, are his Homelies on the Eight Beatitudes, and ſome other little Tracts in the Bibliotheca Patrum. St. Chryſoſtom. Ep. 155. Baron. A.C. 404, 405.

CHRONOLOGY, a State of Time from the Creation of the World to the preſent Age. This part of Learning is very ſerviceable for the right underſtanding of Hiſtory; we ſhall only mention it ſo far, as to give the Reader a general Idea of this Science. Now, according to the Opinion of many learned Chronologers, the firſt Day of the World was upon the 2d of May, according to the Julian Regulation of the Year. Other Chronologers place the Beginning of the World upon the 25th of March. The Jews began their Year near the Seaſon of the World's Creation, i. e. upon the New Moon, neareſt to the Vernal Equinox. This Month was called Niſan, and anſwers to part of our March and April; but after their coming out of Egypt, i. e. 1592 Years before our Saviour; they began to reckon their Sabbatick Years, and their Years of Jubilee from the point of Autumn in the Month Tiſri, which was the Seventh Month of the civil or common Year, and anſwers to part of our September and October: Their Year conſiſted of 365 or 66 Days, like the Julian; which Julian comes neareſt the Annual Revolution of the Sun, being made up of 365 Days and 6 Hours. The Egyptians, Perſians, Grecians, Arabians and other Nations, had their particular Years, differing in length from each other; but the generality of Chronologers reduce all theſe ſort of Years to the Julian Calculation, which begins upon the firſt of January. Chronologers cannot agree about the time of the World's Creation, for, not to mention any others, the Septuagint and the Hebrew of the Old Teſtament differ from each other about the time; and ſo do the Alphonſin Tables, Scaliger, Petavius, Torniellus, Voſſius, Euſebius, &c. The Year of our Saviour's Birth anſwers to the ſeven hundred fifty third of Rome, according to Labbée and others. The firſt Olympiad begins 776 Years before the Incarnation. The Spaniſh Æra anſwers to the 38th Year before our Saviour, that is the 716th of Rome. The Mahometan Hegyra falls upon the 622d Year of the Incarnation; and the Indictions began Anno Domini 312. From the Creation to the Birth of our Saviour, the Hebrew and the Septuagint differ in the ſtating of the time; but from the Birth of Abraham forward, the Chronology of the Vulgar Tranſlation and the Septuagint falls in with each other. Riccioli Chronologia Reformata, Lib. 7. & alib.

CHRYSAME, a Prieſteſs of Thaſſaly, who having accuſtomed a Bull to feed on venomous Plants, ſent him towards the Enemy: The Chief Officers eating of its Fleſh, became mad, ſo that the Erethrians were eaſily overcome by the Gracians. Polyen.

CHRYSAPHIUS, an Eunuch that was a great Favourite of the Emperor Theodoſius the Young, upon whom he relied ſo much, that he undertook to baniſh Flavianus from the Patriarchal See of Conſtantinople, and continued to abuſe his Prince's Eaſineſs ſo far, that he ſowed Diſſention between the Empreſs Eudoxia and the Princeſs Pulcheria, the Emperor's Siſter, which cauſed much Miſchief to the Empire. After this, he favoured the Hereſiarch Eutyches, his God-Father, who, to ſatisfie his particular Hatred againſt Flavianus, was like to ruine all the Eaſtern Church. At length, when Pulcheria returned to Court, in 450. Theodoſius baniſhed this inſolent Favorite, after he had deprived him of all his Wealth and Dignity; and the Princeſs, for a greater Puniſhment, put him in the Hands of one Jordan, whoſe Father he had put to Death. Cedrenus. Baronius.

CHRYSES, one of Apollo's Prieſts, Father of Aſtyneme, called Chryſeis, who, when the Grecians had taken Thebes in Cilicia, and divided the Booty, fell to Agamemnon's ſhare; whereupon the Father, in all his Prieſtly Robes, came to the Grecian Camp to beg his Daughter; which being denied him, he implored Apollo's Aſſiſtance for Revenge, who infected the Grecian Army with ſuch a contagious Diſtemper, that Agamemnon was forced to let him have his Daughter. Homer.

CHRYSIPPUS, a Philoſopher, Native of Solos in Cilicia, Son to Apollonius, and Diſciple of Cleanthe, Zeno's Succeſſor. He was of a very ſubtil Wit, famous for his Logick, which took him up 40 Years, and was in ſuch Requeſt, that it was generally held that the Gods would make choice of it, if they had occaſion to uſe any. He died at 73 Years of Age: Some ſay of a little Debauch in Wine at a Sacrifice, that one of his Scholars invited him to. Others ſay, That he expired Laughing, to ſee an Aſs eat Figgs out of a Diſh, and ordering that he might have Wine to drink too. However, this hapned in the CXLII. Olympiad. Diog. Laert.

CHRYSOLORAS (Emanuel) a Gentleman of Conſtantinople, who was much eſteem'd in the Fifteenth Age, being ſent into Europe by the Eaſtern Emperor, to implore the Aſſiſtance of Chriſtian Princes, and having acquitted himſelf of that Embaſſy, he ſtoped at Venice, where he taught Greek, and not only put the Italians upon the Study of this Tongue, wholly neglected there for many Years before, but alſo encouraged them to perfect their Latin, which at that time was ſomewhat infected with the Barbarity of the precedent Ages. He afterwards went to Florence, Rome and Pavia, but died at Conſtance in 1415. Spond. Paul. Jov. &c.

CHTHONIA, a Name firſt of all given to the Iſland of Crete. Ceres alſo was Sirnamed Chthonienne, that is, Earthly, becauſe the Pagans made her to preſide over all the Fruits of the Earth. Yet Pauſanias ſays, This is not the Reaſon ſhe was called by that Name, but becauſe one Chthonia, a young Maiden of Argos, had dedicated her a Temple in Hermione, a Town of Peloponneſus; and that this was alſo the Origin of the Chthonienne Feaſt, celebrated yearly in that Town in Honour of Ceres, wherein, if we believe them, great Oxen followed, and preſented themſelves of their own accord to be ſacrificed.

CHUCHEU, a great Town in the Province of Chekiang in China, Capital of a Territory of the ſame Name, all environed with great Mountains, whoſe Vallies are very fruitful in Rice. Here are, if we may believe Travellers, Trees of that vaſt Bulk, that 80 Men can hardly embrace them, whoſe hollow Bodies are ſo capacious, that forty Perſons may with eaſe ſit or ſtand in them; and near Kingning is the River Lugue, which looks all green, by reaſon of the great quantity of Reeds that grow on its Banks; theſe the Chineſes call Cho, and the Portugueſe, Bambu; they are as hard as any Iron, and ſome of them ſo thick, that one cannot graſp them with both his Hands, and there are of them twelve Foot high. The Country People have a certain Art of cutting theſe great Canes into ſmall Threads, whereof they make little Cheſts, Matts, and ſeveral other curious Works. Martin Martini.

CHUENHIOI, Fifth King of China, ſucceeded Xaohau. He compoſed a Calendar to be uſed over all the Kingdom; and Hiſtorians obſerved, that in his Reign was a Conjunction of the five other Planets on the ſame Day that the Sun and Moon were in Conjunction: This, according to their Computation, happened 2513 Years before Chriſt, which makes Father Martini think that it was the famous Conjunction of which our Chronologers of Europe ſpeak, and ſay, was about Noah's Time. Pezron.

CHUNGKING, a great Town, Capital of a Territory of the ſame Name, in the Province of Suchven in China, has Juriſdiction over 19 Towns. It's ſituated upon a Mountain, where the Building riſing by Degrees one over another, form a kind of Amphitheatre. It's one of the moſt magnificent of China, and yields but very little to our beſt Towns in Europe. The Country about it is very fertile, the Air healthful; near Feu, one of the Cities of its Juriſdiction, is a very admirable Mountain, where there is an Idol of that prodigious bigneſs, that one may ſee the Eyes, the Noſe, and Mouth, at a Leagues diſtance. There is another Mountain near the Town Ho, with a very ſumptuous Temple, and a Library of 30000 Volumes, founded by a Governor called Sigulus. Martin.

CHUPMESSAHITES, a Sect of Mahometans, who believe that Jeſus Chriſt was God, and the Redeemer of the World, which Opinion has been eſtabliſhed among the Turks theſe many Years, and is held by ſeveral, even of thoſe in the Seraglio, whereof ſome maintain it with ſo much Courage, that they chooſe to die rather than deny it, ſo that in ſpight of Perſecution, it increaſes daily, though few dare make a publick Profeſſion thereof. Some Authors ſay, this Word is compoſed of Chup, which ſignifies Protector, and Meſſehi a Chriſtian: So that Chupmeſſalites ſignifies Protectors of Chriſtians. Ricaut.

CHURCH-STRETTON, a Market-Town in Munſlow Hundred, and County of Salop, ſeated between Hills: 112 Miles from London.

CHUS, Son of Cham, born about Anno Mundi 1657. Some will have the Ethiopians deſcended of him, becauſe he was Black; but this is but a Dream, and they who have a mind to know who were the Deſcendants of Chus, may conſult the Fourth Book of Phaleg of Bocchart. Joſeph.

CHUSAI, or Huſhai, one of David's moſt faithful Servants, lived Anno Mundi 3005. Holy Writ mentions his coming to the King with his Cloaths all torn, and his Head covered with Aſhes, when he heard of Abſalom's Rebellion: David endeavoured to comfort him, ſaying, That he might do him conſiderable Service, if under pretext ſiding with his Son, he would find him out, dive into his Deſigns, and oppoſe himſelf to Achitophel's ill Counſels, Chuſai obeying, went to Jeruſalem, where having gained Abſalom's Favour, he diverted his Purſuit of David, which he was adviſed to, and acquainted the King with all that paſſed. 2 Sam. 15.

CHUSANRHASATHAIM, called by Joſephus Chuſarte, was King of Meſopotamia or Aſſyria, and lived Anno Mundi 2600. war'd againſt the Iſraelites, whom God, to puniſh them for their Idolatry, ſuffered them to live in 8 Years Bondage, and then raiſed Othoniel to gain them their former Liberty.

CHUSISTAN, a Province of Perſia, which is the Suſiane of the Ancients. The Capital Town is Sus or Souſter, formerly Suſe, the Reſidence of King Ahaſuerus: This Town is upon the River Zeimare. The Province is very fertile, bounded with the Sea of Elcatſi, or Gulph of Baſera to the South, with the Province of Fats to the Eaſt, that of Yerack on the Weſt, and Hyrack to the North.

CHUSLEIGH, a Market-Town in Devonſhire in Exmiſter Hundred, beautified with a noble Seat belonging to the Lord Clifford, to whom it gives the Title of a Baron. It's 182 Miles from London.

CHYNDONAX, High Prieſt of the ancient Gauls, whoſe Tomb was diſcovered in 1598. in the Country of Pouſſot, about half a quarter of a League from Dijon, with an Inſcription eſteemed by the Curious amongſt the rareſt Antiquities of the Gauls. It's engraven in a round hollow Stone, ſhap'd like a ſmall Tun, with a ſmall Glaſs with ſeveral painted pleaſant Colours: The Writing was in two round Lines, in form of a Crown, which were to this Effect: In the Grove of Mithra, this Tomb covers the Body of Chyndorax High Prieſt; withdraw ye Impious, for the Guardian Gods watch my Aſhes. One may obſerve in this Inſcription, that the ancient Gauls agreed with the Perſians and Grecians in Worſhipping the Sun or Apollo, under the Name of Mithra. Gabriel, Simeon, &c.

CHYTENES, or Cliſtenes, Son of Areſtonymus, Tyrant of Sicyon in Peloponneſus, was choſen General of the Grecian Army againſt the Currheans, forbad the rehearſing of Homer's Verſes, becauſe they were in too great Eſteem at Argos, and demoliſhed the Monument that was raiſed in Memory of Adraſtus King of Sicyon: And at the Olympick Plays, expoſed his Daughter, and conſented that the valianteſt Combatant ſhould carry her; ſo ſhe fell to Megacles, a Prince of the Race of Alcmeon, who carried her to Athens. Herodot.

CIACONIUS (Alphonſus) a Dominican, and Patriarch of Alexandria. Hiſtory was his Favourite Study, in which he ſucceeded indifferently well. His Works are, Geſta XII. Gregoriorum Rom. Pontif. De S. Hieronymi Cardinalitia Dignitate. Vita & Geſta Rom. Pontif. & Cardinal. &c. This laſt Treatiſe is the moſt conſiderable this Author wrote; he did not live to finiſh it: Since his Death ſeveral have attempted to perfect it. It has been printed ſeveral times, but the beſt Edition was printed at Rome in 1676. in four Volumes in Folio. The Lives of the Popes are continued in it to Clement the Xth. Nicholas Anton. and Schottus Bibl. Hiſt. Ghilini Teat. di Letter. &c.

CIACONIUS (Peter) a Spaniſh Prieſt much eſteemed towards the end of the XVIth Century. He was a good Philoſopher, Divine, Grecian and Mathematician: Pope Gregory the XIIIth employ'd him to correct the Calendar of Julius Cæſar. He publiſh'd a Treatiſe of this Subject, call'd, Calendarii Romani Veteris Explanatio. His other Works are, Inſcriptio Columni Roſtrati. De Ponderibus. De Menſuris. De Nummis, &c. Schottus & Nichol. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp. Janus Nicius Erythræus Pinac. Imag. Illuſt. C. 112. Voſſius, &c.

CIBO (Lawrence) Cardinal and Archbiſhop of Beneventum, Son to Maurice Cibo, Brother to Pope Innocent VIII. This Cardinal was a great Favourite of his Uncle's, but Alexander VI. who came after, gave him Trouble enough. Volaterran. Lib. 22. Antr. Onuphrius, &c.
